Mr. and Mrs. Carlos E. Wiseman of Governor's Avenue, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary at their home Feb. 24, from 1 to 5 p.m.

The very lovely buffet was hosted by their sons and daughters-in-law, Michael E. and Bonnie, and Carlos H. and Cindy. The three-tiered wedding cake was topped with the original bride and groom of 25 years ago, baked by Mrs. Hammond of near Canterbury. A silver and blue decor was carried throughout the dining and living room, with crystal and an antique lace tablecloth that had been a wedding gift Feb. 26, 1949, when Carlos and Mary were married at the home of his sister, Mrs. L.J. Butler, of near Milford.

The Wiseman sons greeted the 97 guests for their parents. After the affair the Wisemans enjoyed a two-week's trip to the Central Florida area where they had lived for ten years.

Mrs. A.T. Thawley of Governor's Avenue has returned home after spending two weeks in Belleview, Fla., visiting old friends. She accompanied the Carlos Wisemans down to Lakeland and Madera Beach, Fla., to visit their friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Workman have received a recent letter from their son, Ralph, written from Singapore, where the Flour Oil Company have sent him on business for a week. He was a guest at the Hyatt Singapore Hotel. He says it is much like the Hawaiian Hotel where he stayed on his way to Jakarta. He reports that Singapore is rated as a No. 1 city in cleanliness. Any litter thrown in the streets would cause a fine. He reported his trip would have been perfect if he could have had his wife and son with him. He took a little time for shopping and sightseeing.

May we remind you once again of the Greenwood Volunteer Fire Company Supper which is set for March 31, serving time 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

The menu includes our "famous" oyster fritters, chicken salad, and dumplings, plus all other trimmings. This will be served family style, so bring the entire family.

Prices have been altered to ease the cost of the family outing. Adults $3, children (under 12) $1.75, pre-school children free.

We are hoping for a great turnout. The Annual Fund Drive for 1973 was a great drop from previous years, but the cost of operating has increased. With a large turnout for the supper, we are hoping to bring ends closer together which will help us serve you better.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Greenwood Volunteer Fire Company will hold the regular monthly meeting March 22, at 8 p.m., in the Fire House.

News from the Greenwood Lion's Club: Wednesday evening March 13, the Greenwood Lions Club hosted Dover Lions Club president Bill Hall and three members from his club. During the course of dinner, the two clubs talked informally of past and present accomplishments and future goals for both clubs.

Following dinner a business meeting was conducted by Lew Brumberg, Lion president, to discuss future events and club projects. Sat., March 16, the Greenwood Lions Club was represented in the State Lions Day activities in Seaford. Those representing the Greenwood Club were Lew Brumberg, president, Howard Battin, secretary, and Gene Carlisle. The highlight of the day was the dedication of Delaware's Lion Clubs Sightmobile which will provide free eye tests for everyone. Governor Tribbett was on hand to speak and participate in the dedication. Following the dedication all the Lions Clubs represented participated in the parade which started at the Nylon Shopping Center and ended in downtown Seaford.

Horace MacIn is in Beebe Hospital and has been scheduled for removal of his right leg Monday. The visits and prayers of his friends will be appreciated.

Mrs. Margaret Baker spent last week with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Dixon, in Camden. She also visited other friends and relatives in Hartly and Dover.

Saturday evening dinner guests of the Misses Helen and Emma Willey were the Lloyd Zott family and Mrs. Delema Smith and son, James.

The Methodist Women of Greenwood United Methodist Church held its regular meeting March 4, with Mrs. Flora Snyder, the new president, presiding. The new secretary is Mrs. Shirley Hamstead and Mrs. Delema Smith remained in office as treasurer.

The Sunshine Class of Greenwood Church met Wed., March 13, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith, with 16 members present.

Mrs. Jacob Hatfield, Mrs. Gary Bollinger and daughter, Garth, were Tuesday luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Snowden of Lincoln. Wednesday they were luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Green in Mardela.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Green and family, of Mardela, joined the Gary Bollingers after church Sunday to enjoy an indoor picnic lunch.

THE BOY FROM THE NOTCH IN THE ROAD

By J. Harvey Burgess
 Published in 1942

On a country road, in a day long gone,
 Came a boy, just ambling along;
 A smile in his eye, a laugh on his lips,
 In his heart—the lilt of a song;
 A one-gallus boy, and that gallus frayed,
 And homely as any mud fence—
 Just a good galoot, with a ready quip—
 And a scornor of all pretense.

A country boy from a notch in the road,
 And the notch wasn't wide at that,
 And the road was long, but it led right up
 To the seats where the mighty sat;
 Yes, it led right up to the very top,
 To the gifts that the gods bestowed—
 But the higher it climbed, the more enshrined
 The home at the notch in the road.

A country boy from a notch in the road—
 He followed that road through his days;
 And he didn't care if earth called him
 crude,
 He didn't care much for its praise—
 But he helped all folks he met here below,
 And he tried to lighten their load:
 He was at his birth, he was when he died,
 A boy from a notch in the road.

He stood before kings—and talked with the kings—
 And his dress was cheap hand-me-downs;
 And he didn't care, for he knew that kings
 Were only sad men, wearing crowns!
 And gladly would they, the shackled
 of earth,
 Have thrown down the burdens
 they bore
 To walk among men, exchange all their crowns
 For that old hat Will Rogers wore!

New sources of energy

When you have to sit in line waiting for a few precious gallons of gasoline, you probably get some pretty wild ideas about this thing called the energy crisis. There must be a better way and you remember the old adage that necessity is the mother of invention. So what's new? Well, it probably never occurred to you that plants and trees are the major converters of solar energy into usable and storable energy.

W.T. McAllister, extension agricultural economist at the University of Delaware, says scientists are exploring the possibilities of using common agricultural plants and seeds and converting them into sources of energy. For example, a bushel of corn or wheat will produce three gallons of alcohol which can be used as fuel. Chemists are also exploring the possibility of breaking down soybean oil and oils from other plant sources and ending up with a product that would substitute for gasoline or could be made into liquefied natural gas.

The one thing we have no shortage of is solid waste, notes McAllister. It is estimated that we produce 940 million tons of solid wastes each year. Trapped in this high pile of material is energy amounting to the equivalent of 1.2 billion barrels of oil—18 percent of our annual consumption. Researchers are looking for ways to extract some or all of this trapped energy and put it to use generating electric power, heating the home or even maybe fueling the automobile.

Farming operations use a lot of fuel for tractors, trucks, combines and crop drying, but they also create considerable waste material which agricultural researchers hope to convert into an economical source of energy. Livestock and poultry manure alone represent a volume of methane gas equal to 5 percent of the total natural gas production in the U.S.

Finally, if you wish to really stretch your imagination you might think of returning to the use of natural fibers of wool, cotton, flax and silk in place of the energy-consuming synthetic fibers. McAllister says the fossil fuel energy for the production of wool is minimal and the production of a pound of cotton requires only 40 percent as much energy as a pound of synthetic fibers. Along this same line, we might find a return to more use of wood and forest products in place of metals, since our trees are a self-renewable natural resource.

These innovations won't shorten the line at the service station in the near future, but they do provide some hope for the future, according to McAllister.

Questions and Answers

Q - I'll be retiring soon, and I want to apply for monthly social security payments for my disabled daughter. She's 25 and has been completely disabled since birth. What information should I bring along to apply for payments for her?

A - You'll need proof of her age and her relationship to you—both of these are usually shown on a birth certificate. You'll also need to identify a medical source from whom social security can get information about your daughter's medical condition.

Q - I'll be 65 in a few months, and I just got in the mail a Medicare card showing I have coverage under both the hospital and the medical part of the program. Since I'm a Christian Scientist, I only want the hospital part and not the medical part. What should I do?

A - Just fill in the information on the back of the card you received and return the card in the enclosed envelope. This will enroll you in only the hospital part of Medicare, and you'll be sent a card showing your hospital insurance coverage. The hospital part of Medicare covers certain services in certified Christian Science sanatoriums.

Q - I'm 74, and I've already applied for supplementary mental security income payments. Every now and then I do odd jobs for people, but my earnings never go over $50 a month. Will these earnings have any effect on my payments?

A - No. Although your earnings would not be high enough to stop your monthly checks, Your part-time attendance could. To monthly student checks, you must be going to college full time.

DAVE WOODWARD
KENT COUNTY AGENT

Mr. Agricultural Producer, Are you having difficulty in getting fuel for your farming operations? Have you increased your acreage and are unable to get a commitment for your supply of fuel? Have you switched from gas tractors to diesel tractors? In other words, have you changed your farming operations since the base period 1972? If you are having difficulty in securing fuel, you should stop in or call the ASCS office and talk to Lister Hall. Lister is very well informed and aware of the situation that the farmer will be in if he cannot obtain enough fuel for producing crops and livestock. Before you go in to see Lister however, there is a form FEO-20 which must be completed by the applicant requesting fuel. You will need to know how much fuel will be required in your operation for the year, and it must be broken down into months to assist you in estimating your fuel requirements.

Good sanitation can prevent plant diseases

Since you will soon be active in your home garden, now is a good time to consider control of plant diseases. Sanitation measures are as important in keeping plant diseases in check as they are for animal and human diseases, says Dr. Robert Carroll, extension plant pathologist at the University of Delaware.

When conditions are favorable, a disease may start in one or several susceptible plants and spread throughout your garden. For this reason, it is important to destroy the first infected plants as soon as they are found. This means keeping a careful check on your plants. Other sanitation measures include elimination of trash piles, weedy fence rows and the like.

Work among your plants only when they are dry. When wet, disease-causing organisms such as fungi and bacteria are likely to be spread by your hands, clothing and tools. Tools can be disinfected by dipping them in 70 percent alcohol or 10 percent household bleach. It is also a good practice to scrub hands with soap and hot water before handling healthy plants.

Sanitation practices are equally important in controlling insects, mites and rodent pests, says Carroll. Often sanitation measures are the only ones needed in the home garden. Sometimes chemical control will be necessary but this should only be used in conjunction with a sanitation program.

Pruning keeps plants in shape

Many trees and shrubs need annual pruning and training to keep them vigorous and attractive. But don't get carried away with the shears and remove branches that will ruin the plant's natural symmetry, cautions David V. Tattall, extension garden specialist at the University of Delaware.

Prune dead branches and weak wood such as suckers and water sprouts, he says. And remove branches growing toward the center of the tree or rubbing against other branches. This contact may cause injury resulting in disease or insect attack. Remember to make clean cuts close to the branch.

Spring-flowering shrubs, such as forsythia, spirea, mockorange and weigelia, are best pruned immediately after flowering. Most summer-flowering shrubs, however, should be pruned in late winter or early spring before the plants start new growth. Prune small flowering trees and shade trees while the plants are dormant during winter and early spring.

Tattall says avoid pruning trees or shrubs in the early fall; it tends to produce late, immature growth. But prune plants at any time of the year to remove dead, diseased or broken limbs.

For additional information on pruning, write for USDA bulletins G183 and 165 which are available from county extension offices or from the University of Delaware.

It Seems To Me

Janet Reed

If you are trying to stretch your money further these days, you have a lot of company.

Clothing seems to be one of the easiest places for many families to cut expenditures. Most of us have more clothes than we really need to protect us from the elements. We buy clothes for many other reasons, but if we must economize, we can get along with less variety.

We can wear our clothes longer. It's fairly easy to get another year's wear from most clothing items before we discard them. You may tire of clothes, but if they are stored for a season, they look better when you bring them out again.

Fashion changes haven't been radical in recent years. Besides, no one pays slavish attention to fashion anymore, so it's easy to get another year's wear from most items.

If the clothing budget must stretch, it's apt to be the homemaker who adjusts first. Children who outgrow clothing must have replacements. Dad's clothes, too, will come before new ones for mother if he is the sole breadwinner and must present a business-like image at work.

Sharpen your shopping skills to make money go further. Curb impulse buying. Credit cards tempt you to buy items you don't need. Plan your wardrobe needs to help coordinate expensive accessories. Today's versatile separates enable you to have a number of changes with a few clothing items, but this takes careful planning. And with a plan in mind, you won't be as tempted to buy on impulse.

Invest in basic clothes of good fabric. These can be worn for many seasons. Fads and high fashion are likely to be expensive and have a short life as well.

Good quality fabric gets more expensive all the time, but buy the best you can afford. Good fabric wears well, cleans well and will look good for the life of the garment. Good fabrics can even be remade into garments for other members of the family or restyled for current

Sod market to reflect changes in life style

"It seems unlikely that we will return to sheep on the front lawn, but many people are having sober thoughts about our need to live less affluently," observes W.H. Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware. The growing demand for inexpensive sod for private homes and community landscaping is likely to bring about important changes in sod production techniques over the next decade, predicts the agronomist.

"The pressure on land, water and energy resources in the fashion. You pay for the labor of making a garment regardless of fabric quality, so you will have a much better investment if you can spend slightly more for good fabric. If you know fabric quality, you'll be able to pick out the best bargains among sale merchandise.

Buying at sales may be fun but probably you won't save much money in the long run. It's too easy to buy something you don't really need, or something that requires other purchases to go with it. If you are really trying to save, you had better stay completely away from sales unless you have very strong will power.

Keep clothing items in good condition. They will look better and wear better, and you won't be as tempted to buy new things. Keep clothes mended and learn to do inconspicuous repairs. Mending is almost a lost art but it can be satisfying to put clothing back in use after a skillful repair job.

Follow care directions for every garment. Care directions are included on textile items now, so it's up to you to get the most for your money by following these directions.

Making clothes for the family may save you a great deal of money if you have the time, skill and energy to sew. This way, you provide the expensive element in clothing, which is labor.

American way of life calls for doing more with less," he told an audience of sod producers attending the recent Maryland Sod Conference in College Park, Md. And he went on to describe some of the work at the University of Delaware that's concerned with finding ways to adopt production techniques to changes that seem almost inevitable.

This work is concerned with the use of subsurface water systems for improved irrigation, plastic netting to strengthen sod for early harvesting and recycled urban waste for conditioning soil. These innovations could alter the whole picture for sod production over the next ten years, Mitchell told his listeners.

It's conceivable that by 1984 sod production might look something like this.

First, a solid waste product—produced in many communities and cities at cost—will be broadcast over a previously leveled area which is to be seeded. Enough will be used to produce a layer one and a half inches thick. A relatively small amount of lime and fertilizer will then be added to this and the area rototilled.

The next step will involve the installation of plastic netting interwoven with plastic irrigation tubing. This will be done as part of the seeding operation. A relatively small irrigation pump—operating on solar energy—will maintain ideal levels of soil moisture and plant nutrients. There will maintain a rapid growth rate that produces attractive turf in minimum time. Harvest will begin in four to six months—as opposed to the present two years.

At the time of harvest the reinforced sod complete with irrigation lines will be lifted from the soil in large 10 by 50 foot rolls. Handling problems will be minimum, thanks to the reinforcement and the lightweight growing medium.

Harvested sod will be delivered to a housing development where emphasis is on low maintenance landscaping and small, carefully groomed lawns. Sod rolls will be installed and irrigation lines plugged into existing water mains.

At the same time, back at the sod farm more organic waste will be spread in preparation for the second half of a double-cropping system of sod production. Very little soil will have been removed by the first crop. And thanks to the recycled waste, compaction problems will be at a minimum.

To satisfy a growing demand for ground covers producers will also grow ivy, pachysandra, myrtle and bugle plants in sub-irrigated waste material, using plastic netting. These products will be cut and rolled and supplied along with sod as a complete package for the developer or homeowner.

Mitchell told his audience that such a future for sod production could be more than just a pipe dream. The research programs at the University of Delaware are demonstrating right now the feasibility of every aspect of such a system.

DEHC elects new officers

New officers for Delaware Extension Homemakers Council (DEHC) were elected at the spring meeting of the council in Dover March 4. The group is a state advisory council for extension homemaker clubs in Delaware, according to Janet C. Reed, state extension home economics leader.

Officers elected to serve a two-year term were: Mrs. Ross Hofnagle, Newark, president; Mrs. Joel Ridley, Dover, vice president; Mrs. E. Paul Catts, Newark, secretary; Mrs. John Dittoe, Milford, treasurer; Mrs. Norris Givens, Georgetown, director. Mrs. Givens is past president of the council.

Mrs. Hofnagle, the incoming president, will represent Delaware at the national meeting of the extension homemakers council at the University of Illinois in Urbana, Ill., early next August.

Extension homemaker clubs are located in communities throughout Delaware, says Miss Reed. Membership is open to any interested home maker.

Monthly club programs on homemaking topics are given by members who have attended educational meetings conducted by University of Delaware cooperative extension staff.

Social Security

Questions and Answers

Q - I'm 66 and have a small savings account, but I own nothing else and I have no income except the interest on it. Will this keep me from getting supplemental security income payments?

A - Your eligibility for supplemental security income will depend on the total amount of your resources including your savings account, and if you are eligible, your interest income may affect your payments. You should contact any social security office for more specific details in your individual case.

Q - I'm totally blind, and I'm getting a monthly disability payment of $176 from social security. I'm living alone. Can I get any help under the Federal supplemental security income program that just started?

A - Although your income is too high for you to get the basic Federal payment, you may be eligible for benefits if your State has a supplemental benefit program. You should check at any social security office to find out if you are eligible.

Spartan baseball varsity is 17 strong

Bill Falesco, Lake Forest's new, head baseball coach has decided to carry 17 players on his 1974 varsity squad. Some 35 candidates tried out for the team.

This will be a young nine with only four seniors. These are: Bob Jacobs, Bob Nored, Jerry Steerman and Bill Atkinson.

Juniors are: Glenn Jarrell, Russell Dill, Wayne Erne, Greg Hobbs, Rodney Wyatt and Dave Moore. Jeff Chambers, George Luff, Mike McGinnis, Wayne Voshell, Bill Jackson, Neal Smith and Jack McComas.

Most of these players are graduates of the Little League program and have been playing organized baseball for several years.

Russell Dill is an outstanding pitcher with a two-year winning record. He will probably be the workhorse of the mound staff.

Bob Jacobs is a veteran shortstop, whose father was a major leaguer. Bob hopes to make the big time someday.

Neal Smith is a talented athlete who is a starter in three sports. He played some outfield last year, but could be used behind the plate or at first base.

Bob Nored is a versatile ballplayer who can pitch, play third, catch, etc. You name it, he can do it.

Bill Atkinson saw a lot of action for the Harrington team in Big League, 17-18 play, last summer. He may do the same for the Spartans.

Wayne Erne stroked several home runs for that same team and may give Lake Forest the long ball.

Jerry Steerman was a regular infielder for Lake Forest High School in 1973 and could repeat.

Dave Moore was another 1973 Big Leaguer, as was Rodney Wyatt, who can pitch or play infield.

Mike McGinnis is a big, fast-balling lefthander, who did well in the Harrington Senior League on nights his control was good.

When he's hot, he's hot. Coach Falesco and his assistant, Bob Dill, have played a lot of baseball and should have the know-how to mold this young squad into a winning team.

We predict a good season, followed by an even better one a year hence.

Beverly Mack leads All-Henlopen cage team

Lake Forest's Beverly Mack, the leading scorer in the Henlopen Conference, was named to the All-Henlopen Conference first team. Mack, a junior, averaged 21 points a game.

Sophomore Cheryl Lissey, the other half of Lake Forest's powerful 1-2 scoring punch, heads up the second unit.

Eldora Frisby of Woodbridge, was another first-team choice.

Golden opportunity at L.F. for track candidates

This is the year of opportunity in Lake Forest High School track. A sport that can accommodate 60 athletes, easily, has about half that many, here.

With 15 or more events to be contested in each meet, the opportunity is present for lots of boys to win their varsity monograms and to make names for themselves.

The writer personally knows lots of boys, who rode the bench in other sports at LFHS, who would have a good chance to become track stars, if only they would give the thinclad sport a try.

Most healthy boys can fit in at least one of the many events, which consists of short sprints, middle distance and long distance runs, relays, hurdles, long jump, high jump, triple jump, pole vault, plus the shotput and discus throw.

But, it seems the world is full of near-sighted youngsters, who will try only their favorite sports, although they may have no ability there and have lots of potential in something else.

We've seen 75-pounders try to go out for varsity football, we've seen 54-inchers attempt basketball. A lad with thicklensed glasses came out for baseball one year. He couldn't see the ball very well so he was included in the first cut before he got beaned.

There are many, many more examples of square pegs in round holes, yet the sport of track and field could take care of most of these misfits and turn some of them into stand-out performers. Other boys with lots of potential won't consider any sport.

People's Restaurant and Butler's Fuel split four points down the middle in Tuesday night's action as Frank Collins rolled a fine 207 game and 542 series, with Bill Manship adding a fine above average effort for People's.

Sam Lyons was the big gun for Butler's Fuel, amassing a great 547 set, with Ron Wright chipping in with a good 201 game, and real fine above average effort.

Fry's American remained one of the top contenders as they kept pace with People's Restaurant by taking three points from Penn Central. Leroy Wheeler rolled a superb 591 series, which included a good 214 game and John Forbes collected a good 537 series along with a fine above average performance by Dave Reiff.

Penn Central as a team bowled very well in losing, with all members of the four-man squad surpassing their averages. Donald Butler and Bernie Coffman paced the attack which enabled the team to collect one point.

Brothers Five found themselves in trouble at the start of their contest with the Spoilers and couldn't recover from their first game loss and went on to drop all four points to their opponents. Jack Sapp and Leonard Dutton collected 530 and 534 series respectively, and Bruce Herrington added a fine effort for the Spoilers.

All members of the Taylor & Messick squad surpassed their averages as the team took three points from Jarrell Fuel. George Collins set the pace with a superb 601 set which included a great 238 game, and Kenny P. Outten backed that fine performance up with a great 574 series, which saw a 213 game included, and Snooky Collins collected a 210 game and 558 series.

Dallas Hayman hit a fine 213 game and great 574 series, with Martin Jarrell getting a good 535 series and Howard Tribbitt added a good above average effort to enable the team to capture one game.

The Taylor & Messick squad also collected a superb 2701 team series to take over the top spot in the team series category.

The T & M Rejects remain in good position in the standings although the team dropped three points to McKnatt Funeral Home Tuesday night.

Louis Welch and Junior Bishop bowled well for the Rejects, Harry Jack bowled real well, and Robert Garey added a good 203 game for McKnatt's.

Wally's Wrecker Service and Robbins' Hardware come out even after their contest as Wally Ryan, Norman Woodall and Dave Ryan bowled good efforts for Wally's. Their good output was offset by good performances by Frank Robbins and Harry Chadwick.

Big John's Son squashed Quillen's Market to get three points as Mannon Robinson, Jim Carroll, Mike Kohel and Bill Kohel surpassed their capabilities for a fine team effort. Donald Wilson and Eddie Kemp bowled good efforts for Quillen's Market.
