

Mrs. Rosella Humes Gets Democratic Post

A Harringtonian has been appointed party co-ordinator of the state Democratic Committee with headquarters which have been moved from Wilmington to Dover.

Mrs. Rosella Humes replaces Allen D. Kagel, 28, who was receiving $1000 per month.

Ernest E. Killen, state chairman, also of Harrington, said Mrs. Humes will receive about half the salary of Kagel.

The new state headquarters will be at 1679 S. duPont Highway, offices next to the Den Restaurant formerly occupied by former Atty. Gen. David P. Buckson in his quest for the governorship in 1972.

Killen said he's moving the headquarters from Wilmington to Dover because "that's where the seat of government is."

He added his party is not yet in a financial position to afford a high-paid executive assistant.

The Easter Egg Hunt was held Thursday morning. Eggs were hidden around the playground and church yard. Easter and spring songs could be heard being sung throughout the week. The favorite being, "Here Comes Peter Cottontail."

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

DAY DREAMING

There are none but can remember
Some old song they heard in childhood
That will bring him back a picture
That the camera never caught;

Just some rhyme or ditty
That a nurse crooned by a cradle
But it always brings a picture
And with pleasant memories fraught.

So I love to hear the old songs
For the memories that will linger
Though the singer little wonders
All the pleasures that he brought.

So croon to me a rhythm
Of the early days back yonder,
And I'll day-dream of a picture
That the painter never wrought.

Veterans Administration News

Benefits for eligible widows of veterans have been steadily increasing over the years. Dr. Harry E. Walkup, director of the Veterans Administration Center in Wilmington, commented.

Noting that "widow" is synonymous with "widower" for benefit purposes, the director cited CHAMPVA as the most recent benefit available to widows. VA is issuing identification cards for persons eligible for the medical care program which is similar to the military's CHAMPUS.

Eligible for CHAMPVA are widows and children of veterans who died of service-connected disabilities after leaving military service, and dependents of veterans who suffered service-connected total and permanent disabilities. Under the program, VA pays 75 per cent of reasonable cost of care in non-VA hospitals.

From little seeds, lush green carpets grow - with proper selection and care

As spring approaches, along come welcome signs of the blossoming season. . . balmy temperatures, blue skies, bright sun, and - especially - renewed greenery. For families lucky enough to have a yard, it's time to grow a lawn, as a showcase to frame the home and provide a verdant carpet for relaxation and recreation.

Choosing the right kind of seed is essential to establish an attractive lawn, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's agricultural marketing service. Your choice should be guided by the region you live in; how much wear the lawn will get; and the time and effort you are willing to take to maintain it.

For the Northeast region of the United States, a mixture of three kinds of lawn seed is recommended by Dr. John Kaufmann, turf grass specialist at the Cornell University College of Agriculture.

Kentucky bluegrass produces a lush, carpety lawn and is the most popular lawn grass in the area. Its underground stems "creep" sideways and help fill in bare spots. It is hardy and suitable for play areas, but requires good care and maintenance.

Red fescue requires low maintenance and is desirable in shaded or low-fertility areas, but it does not produce as lush a lawn as bluegrass.

Perennial ryegrass will withstand wear and grows rapidly. It is particularly good for the gardener who wants to establish a lawn quickly.

A blend of seeds is suggested because each kind may resist certain diseases, while others will not. A common mixture is one-third each, but the ratio may be changed depending on the particular conditions. A different mixture may be desirable in states south of Pennsylvania; the best bet is to consult your local county agricultural agent for advice.

Within each kind of seed, many varieties are available. In general, new and improved varieties result in a denser, more attractive lawn, but require better upkeep. You should select only varieties recommended for use in your area.

Federal and state laws provide assurance that the seed you buy is labeled correctly. The Federal Seed Act, applying to seed sold across state lines, requires that labels list the name and percentage of each kind present. If a variety name is given, that too must be correct and the percentage stated. Percentages of weed seeds and other matter must also be listed.

In summary, if you start with well-chosen seed, treat your developing lawn with care, and follow good mowing practices - you should be rewarded with a floor of green that will give pleasure for years to come.

Bus Safety Week for Delaware schools

Delaware schools will stage bus evacuation drills during School Bus Safety Week, April 22-26.

Governor Sherman W. Tribbitt, in a statement designating the observance, urged all parents and children to learn about and support all programs to keep up Delaware's record of safe pupil transportation.

Frank Jelich, supervisor of safety and driver education with the State Department of Public Instruction, said most students, drivers, and helpers have had some training in evacuation. But after a recent ruling by the State Board of Education, all schools are now required to hold specified drills at least twice a year.

Jelich said Delaware has had no fatal accident involving a school bus since 1968.

Some 90,000 pupils are transported to and from school in Delaware, riding on about 1,150 buses.

School transportation cost the state $6,700,000 last year, including $650,000 for 9,700 non-public students.

All school buses are inspected twice a year, Jelich said. Every school bus driver must take eight hours of instruction and pass a yearly physical examination.

By state law, drivers of vehicles that approach a school bus from either direction on a two-lane road must stop when the bus picks up or drops passengers and flashes its red lights.

On a four-lane divided highway, drivers going the same direction as the school bus must stop, but those going the opposite direction may proceed.

Children must follow these rules for their own safety:

1. Obey the driver and cooperate with the bus patrol and safety patrol
2. Keep feet out of the aisle and keep books or parcels on your lap
3. Keep arms and head inside the bus
4. Wait for the bus off the road, and do not attempt to board before the bus before the bus stops. Use the hand-rail when boarding and then take your seat quickly.

LIGHTS OF FRIENDSHIP

By J. Harvey Burgess
Published in 1942

I was sort of blue and lonesome
 On that day in '33;
 For the homeland and its whispers
 Seemed to be a-callin' me.
 Broadway folks had kept on pushin'
 Till it just stuck in my craw,
 And I shucked my coat, preparin'
 For to bust one in the jaw—
 When I sort of re-considered;
 But I still was mad and blue
 Till I crossed a street called Fifty
 Up on Seventh Avenue.
 There I saw a light a-shinin'
 In a place—an' in I went,
 An' I straightway knowed the feelin'
 An' the feelin' of content.
 Friendly faces all around me
 Sort of chased away the gloom—
 An' I thanked the Lord that evenin'
 For that little white Tea Room!
 I'd left friendly folks behind me
 In that not so long ago
 Where the pine trees gently whisper
 In the hills I used to know!
 Now I wuz so dog-gone lonesome
 That I wuz in plain distress,
 For there ain't no pang that hurts you
 Like the pangs of loneliness!
 An' there ain't no flower that's sweeter
 Than the ones of friendship's bloom,
 An' I'd found their long-lost fragrance
 In that little white Tea Room!

They've gone in for some improvements
 Since that night in '33;
 Maybe it's a whole lot grander—
 That don't mean a thing to me!
 They've got nicer things there,
 maybe,
 Decorashuns on the wall—
 But such things as decorashuns
 They don't mean a thing at all
 To a feller when he's lonesome—
 All he wants, an' all he knows,
 Is a smile, a smile of welcome
 Where the fire of friendship glows.
 They've got lots more lights a-shinin'
 Than they had in '33;
 But there's one light, an' one only,
 That can reach the heart of me;
 Yes, just one light south of Heaven
 Brightens loneliness, despair:
 Friendship's light, forever shinin'
 In the eyes of people there.
 With the faces all around me
 Just a beamin' with good cheer,
 I ain't longin' for my home-land—
 For I feel at home—right here.

USDA publication offers building plans

Planning to build a greenhouse for your backyard? A barn for your horse? Oh how about an outdoor fireplace or incinerator? You may first want to look at a publication by the U.S. Department of Agriculture entitled, "Recreational Buildings and Facilities."

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne W. Holberton

Though the consumer got a break in March as far as prices went the news is now that prices will be going up again. Economists are revising upward the estimates of increases for wholesale and retail food prices.

Marketings of cattle and hogs in the past few weeks have been somewhat larger than expected. This is especially so for hogs. Both live cattle and hogs are selling at lower prices than a year ago.

Prices for large eggs continue to edge down but at a much slower rate than was expected. There are more hens in laying flocks than last year and egg production is increasing.

plans and details for building five greenhouses, two hotbeds and two propagating frames. It also covers such facilities as outdoor fireplaces, picnic shelter, incinerator, barbecue pits, storage sheds and utility sheds.

Marketings for turkeys are big now but are expected to decline in May. Wholesale broiler prices have declined and are well below a year earlier.

Milk production is increasing seasonally and will reach its peak in May and June. Fluid milk production will be maple during this period even though less than last year by a small margin.

Fresh fruits and vegetables will be more plentiful and will add extra flavor to meals. Strawberries, rhubarb, cantaloupes, asparagus are all on the market and look good to excellent as far as quality is concerned.

DPI testifies for poultry growers

Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., has presented both oral testimony and written statements on behalf of its grower members during recently held hearings, according to Ed Ralph, executive secretary of the tri-state poultry organization.

At a railroad hearing before the I.C.C. in Baltimore, DPI expressed very strong opposition to the proposed rail abandonments on the Delmarva Peninsula.

In addition to the testimonies by individual companies, DPI presented the following comments on behalf of its grower members:

"Our broiler growers also produce grain and vegetable crops. Fertilizer is a must if they are to produce efficiently - especially on our Delmarva soils that are sandy and low in nutrient holding ability."

Higher transportation and production costs to our growers and broiler integrators brought about by discontinued rail service would make it very difficult, if not impractical, for them to compete with others on Delmarva who have rail service and especially other areas of the country where such rail service is available.

When you freeze eggs, make sure to use those that are top quality, fresh, clean and well-chilled. If convenient, chill them almost to the freezing point. Then follow these easy steps.

the integrated growing of broilers across county and state lines, we feel that any disruption of a section of the Peninsula could completely upset the procedure of producing the ready-to-cook chicken that Delmarva sends to the market place each year.

Another aspect of any restriction or regulation would also seriously handicap grain drying operations. If large expenditures were necessary, some grain drying companies would have to go out of business.

Storing eggs

What an invention—the egg. It's a high protein food that's handy, versatile and useful for preparing inexpensive lunches, suppers and snacks.

There are times, though, when the cost of eggs can cut a little deeper into your food dollar than usual. This is because the price of eggs tends to fluctuate with supply.

Egg whites will sometimes cling to their shells if the egg is fresh and the white thick. With

First, wash the eggs in lukewarm water. Dry them quickly. Then break one egg at a time into a cup to check its quality before putting into a large bowl.

When all the eggs have been added to the bowl, use a fork to mix whites and yolks. But don't beat them. Next, to each cup of eggs add either a tablespoon of sugar or light corn syrup, or a half-teaspoon of salt—depending on how the eggs will be used.

Now you're ready for freezing. Wide moisture-proof containers work well. Leave a half-inch head space for expansion of the eggs when they freeze. Seal tightly and label each container so that you will know the quantity and whether the contents were mixed with sweetener or salt.

Frozen eggs will keep from six to eight months, says Mrs. Colvin. To use them, thaw under cold running water or in the refrigerator. Stir before using and do not refreeze.

Cloudiness or milkiness occurs naturally in eggs and is not harmful. It simply indicates that carbon dioxide has not escaped through the shell.

The ties are made of wire rope or rust-resistant steel straps which "tie" the mobile home

By the way, the diet of the hen determines yolk color. But this color does not affect nutritive value, quality, flavor or cooking performance of an egg.

Tie down mobile homes for safety

High winds damage or destroy 5,000 mobile homes a year across the United States. Though Delaware isn't known as tornado country, it does have high winds, hurricanes and even an occasional tornado.

Tie down your mobile home for safety against all destructive winds, advises Ernest Walpole, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware.

Two types of ties are used: (1) the "over-the-top" tie, and (2) the frame tie. The Defense Civil Preparedness Agency recommends you use both ties to secure 10-, 12- and 14-foot wide mobile homes.

Del. River And Bay Authority News Traffic on the Delaware Memorial Twin Bridges decreased 391,793 vehicles or 26.9 percent in March over the same month last year. These statistics were made public by Theodore C. Bright, general manager, and are included in the monthly report to the Commissioners of the Delaware River and Bay Authority. Bright said the heavy loss in traffic for March 1974 is attributed to the energy crisis. Bridge traffic for the month of March 1974 was 1,064,155 vehicles compared to 1,455,948 for March 1973. Bridge traffic for the twelve-month period ended March 1974 was 17,869,159 vehicles compared to 18,572,702 vehicles for the twelve-month period ended March 1973, a decrease of 703,543 vehicles, or 3.8 percent. Since Aug. 16, 1951, a total of 278,343,166 vehicles have crossed the Delaware Memorial Bridge. Be WISE — ADVERTISE SHOP AND SWAP IN THE WANT ADS PHONE 398-3206

No one has enough time. But most of us can make better use of our time through organization and planning. This is true for sewing as well as for other tasks.

Each seamstress has developed time-savers which work for her. It may be a matter of thinking through the problem and finding an easier way to solve it. Sometimes it takes a suggestion or an idea to start the thinking process.

The next time you sew, try to analyze your techniques and see if you can develop easier or quicker ways to accomplish the same results. Here are some time-savers that work for me.

When cutting out a garment, place right sides of the fabric together so that the paper pattern is pinned to the wrong side of the material. Any necessary markings can be made on the wrong side where they are needed. Also, center back or center front seams will be ready for stitching without extra handling.

Many markings can be made as you cut. Small snips in the seam allowance can mark center front and center back and the stitching lines for darts. The dart point can be marked with a pin and sewn in as soon as the pattern is removed.

Develop the habit of cutting notches out beyond the seam allowance for easier visibility. For a group of two or more notches, cut one long notch. Cut a notch or clip at top of sleeve to indicate shoulder seam.

Varying the length of the machine stitch can save time and also give professional results. For example, when stitching darts, stitch toward the point of dart, and shorten the machine stitch for the last half-inch of stitching. Continue stitching off the fabric for about an inch. This twists the thread and eliminates the need for tying knots or back stitching. The shortened stitch will keep the stitching from coming out if the thread does come untwisted.

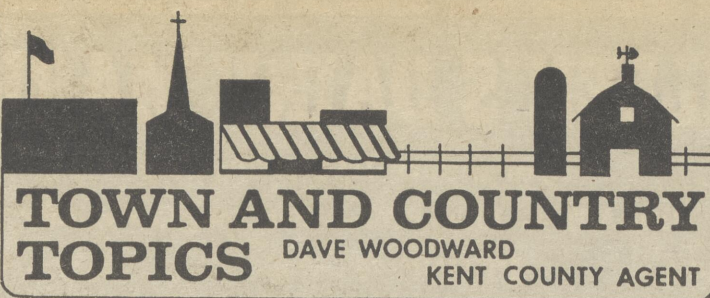

The shortened machine stitch should also be used for stitching curves, and at corners where they must be very accurate. In both of these places you must trim away seam allowances close to the stitching line to achieve a professional appearance. The smaller stitch will lessen the danger of the fabric pulling out of the seam.

Stitching "in the ditch" is a time-saver adopted by many wear techniques. If you don't seamstresses from ready-to-recognize it by that name, it simply means stitching on the right side of the garment in the groove or seam line. The most common places where it is used are for the second stitching of bias bindings, skirt waist bands, cuffs, some styles of rolled collars. There are many places where you can adapt this idea and save the time you would spend on hand stitching.

Pressing as you sew gives a more professional appearance and saves time, too. If you press as you sew, you can usually eliminate the final pressing job.

Use the unit method of sewing for speed and easier handling. This means that you complete each garment piece or unit before attaching it to another. For example, sew patch pockets to skirt front before sewing it to skirt back. Or insert back zipper before attaching back of garment to the front.

Many short cuts are adopted from the ready-to-wear industry. Time is money in the competitive garment trade, so it is essential to use quick techniques. Time is money to the home

Do you have Johnsongrass on your property? House Bill 408, 1973, states: It is unlawful in the State of Delaware for any landowner to knowingly allow Johnsongrass to set seed on any of his land or to allow any portion of a Johnsongrass plant to reach the height of 24 inches. The State Department of Agriculture is responsible for enforcing this law.

The University of Delaware co-operative extension service in co-operation with the Department of Agriculture has launched a Johnsongrass Eradication Program. This program is designed to give direct assistance to farmers in getting this weed eliminated from their fields and road sides.

If you have not received information inviting you to participate in the program contact your county extension office.

There will first be telephone contact with you to set up a visit to your property to evaluate the Johnsongrass problem and to assist you with a control program. We will continue to work with you throughout the growing season to provide up-to-the-minute suggestions to follow. At the end of the season we will evaluate your success and design the second year's program. There will be one person selected as the outstanding co-operator and the most successful in his control of Johnsongrass. State-wide recognition and a prize will be awarded to this person. A summer field tour and a winter meeting are also being planned.

The double rate of Treflan will be our primary program seamstress, too. We can borrow ideas from industry, as well as develop new ideas which work for us.

are very difficult to apply. Eradicate (Stauffer Chemical Co.) is cleared for use in corn for control of Johnsongrass seedlings and suppression of the rhizomes. Highway Property - The State Department of Highways and Transportation is co-operating in this program to make sure that Johnsongrass on highway property is controlled along each participants property.

Preparing your flower garden

Flower seeds and bedding plants will perform much better this summer, if you do a little extra planning now.

One of the first steps in planning your garden is to select the proper site. An area that offers full sunlight will enable you to grow the greatest variety of summer annuals, points out Dr. Charles Dunham, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

Planting sites with east and south exposures are best. If you must plant your garden in an area with a north exposure or an area shaded by trees, you will have to use those plants that are shade tolerant.

Dunham says another important consideration is drainage. Avoid low areas since they will collect water and hinder proper plant growth.

The view of your garden should also be considered. You'll want to enjoy your flowers, so select a site where they can be easily seen either from a patio or from a frequently-used room of the house.

When the ground is free of excess moisture, you can begin the actual work of preparing the flower bed. Peat moss and lime will improve most garden soils.

Soil should be allowed to settle somewhat after tilling before planting. Started plants may dry out in too-recently tilled soil, while seeds sown on unsettled beds may germinate irregularly.

Act now to control crabapple scab

Scab is one of the most widespread and destructive diseases of apple trees. It was a serious problem on crabapples in Delaware last year. The disease is caused by a fungus which develops best during wet, warm weather, according to Dr. Robert B. Carroll, extension plant pathologist at the University of Delaware.

The disease first appears on the underside of young leaves as dull smoky areas that soon become olive-green spots with a velvety texture. These spots, which are usually a quarter inch or more in diameter, eventually turn brown or black. Infected leaves turn yellow, brown, then drop prematurely. With severe infection, the entire tree takes on a "droopy" appearance and seems to be dying.

The scab fungus lives over winter in dead fallen leaves, where it produces reproductive bodies called spores. During warm spring rains—about the time buds are showing pink—these spores are shot into the air and carried by the wind to young leaves and buds where infections are started. Scab spots appear about 10 days later. A new generation of spores is produced in these spots which is capable of causing new infections. So infections may occur throughout the season when temperature and moisture conditions are right, says Carroll.

This disease will not generally kill a crabapple. But once repeated infections may greatly weaken the tree and result in its decline.

There are three ways to control crabapple scab. One is to

Spray now to control sycamore anthracnose

Anthracnose can be a serious fungus disease of sycamore, maple, oak and other trees. It was widespread in Delaware during the past two years and caused serious defoliation on many sycamores. The prevalence and severity of the disease is determined mainly by weather conditions. Frequent rains and cool temperatures favor its rapid spread. These conditions are common in early spring.

If your trees were infected with anthracnose last year, now is the time to start a spray program to control the disease, says Dr. Robert B. Carroll, extension plant pathologist at the University of Delaware.

This disease causes a blight of twigs, buds, shoots and leaves. The stage which is most obvious is the leaf blight stage. Affected leaves will show small to large, irregular-shaped dead areas along the veins. These areas are dark brown to black and will enlarge to include the whole leaf. Such infected leaves appear scorched and will soon fall. A tree that is defoliated early in the season by anthracnose may produce a new set of leaves and appear to be in good condition. But repeated severe attacks of the disease can kill a tree or seriously weaken it, thus making it more susceptible to other problems. Sanitation is very important in disease control. Fallen leaves should be removed and destroyed since the fungus can overwinter in them and initiate new infections in the spring. Also remove and destroy dead branches and twigs where possible.

Valuable trees used for ornament and shade should be sprayed in the spring at bud break and again at approximately two and four week intervals. In many cases it may be most practical for you to engage a professional arborist to do the pruning and spraying work. For information on fungicides that may be used, contact your county extension office.

Another way to control the disease is to replace an infected tree with a new one that is resistant to scab. Check with your nurseryman about resistant and tolerant varieties.

And finally, you can help eliminate scab by collecting and destroying fallen leaves in the fall. This is very important since the fungus lives over winter in these leaves.

Beginning and amateur beekeepers are being encouraged to attend a beekeeping demonstration on the University of Delaware farm May 18.

The program, which is sponsored by the New Castle County Division of the Delaware Beekeepers Association, starts at 2:30 p.m. The farm entrance is near the south end of the B & O railroad bridge on South College Avenue in Newark. Signs will be posted at the farm entrance directing visitors to the demonstration.

Local beekeepers will demonstrate setting up hives, handling packaged bees, supplemental feeding, moving frames and brood chambers, and how to requeen a hive. The program will offer beginning beekeepers or those who are thinking about starting in the bee business an opportunity to observe experienced beekeepers working with bees and have specific questions answered, according to Dr. Dale Bray, chairman of the department of entomology and applied ecology at the University of Delaware.

The event is free and open to the public.

Two softball wins for Lake Forest girls

Beverly Mack paced Lake Forest's girls softball team, coached by Dave Adams, to victories over Milford and Dover Air.

Riders beat track Spartans but Voshell, Mosley excel

Lake Forest's trac Spartans are an inexperienced group, after losing a lot of point-scorers from the 1973 team.

Dover Air Girls win in track

Lake Forest's Dave Buck has only a dozen or so girls out for track, but managed to make a very creditable showing against a Dover Air squad that must have had in the neighborhood of 40 athletes.

Lake Forest didn't have enough personnel to enter every event and therefore automatically gave up points.

Cheryl Lissey, Pam Webber and Nina Adamo led a gallant Spartan effort. This trio, plus Doreen Chaffinch, won the 880 medly relay.

Lissey won the 80 yard hurdles and was second in the football throw. Weber was first in the shot and runnerup in the discus. Adamo annexed the 100 in 12.6 and tied for second in the hurdles.

Ann Scovil was a strong second in the mile run with a clocking near 6:30. Chaffinch was second in the 50 and 220 yard dashes.

Other Spartan scorers were: Harris, Redden, Callaway, Wheatley and Coleman.

Spartans score in Bridgeton, N.J. relays

Lake Forest's thinclads were entered in the Bridgeton Relays last Saturday, but the old trope whammy struck again and what could have been excellent performances were downgraded to merely good ones.

The Spartans were to compete in the one mile and two mile relays. Key men Kit Tilghman and Bob Kashner could not make the trip. Next, a driving rain covered much of the track with two inches of water. Finally, the locals were told that the distance medley, the Spartan's best event was not to be held this year. Such was not the case. It was held but Lake Forest couldn't get in it and probably lost four second place silver medals because of administrative error at the New Jersey end.

Without Tilghman and Kashner, the locals were just one man short, in each race, of being good enough to qualify for awards, which were handed out to the top three teams.

The Spartans finished fourth twice to tally four points. Delmer Freeman, Harry Benson, Ron Dunlap and Ron Mosley slugged through the elements in 3.57 and just missed overhauling third place Lower Cape May, as Mosley gained many yards on the anchor leg.

Mosley led off in the two-mile relay. The slender, senior distance ace staked his teammates to a 20 yard lead, but the trio of younger Spartans, all sophomores, eventually faded to fourth, though all gave it the old college try.

When the practice track at the high school is completed, it will be possible to uncover a lot of the hidden talent in the Spartan student body. It should be possible to go to Bridgeton in 1975 with enough manpower to enter all the scoring relays (6).

Lake Forest competes in the smallest enrollment division, Group One. Cape Henlopen won Group Two and Wilmington was first in Group Four, the largest schools competing.

We feel Dave Buck's Lake Forest girls track squad should have gone. We know they could have done a good job in the three distaff relays, the 440, 880 and one mile.

single and drove in four runs. Becky Chalmers chased a quartet of tallies across the plate.

Mack had three hits in four attempts and hit a home run, as Dover Air was grounded by a 7-4 count.

Debby Shultie pitched both games for Lake Forest.

As might be expected from a school that has a state champion cross-country team, the Spartans are strong in the distance runs.

Ron Mosley had a heavy cold but had an easy, runaway victory in the 880 yard run, then almost caught C.R.'s Jerome Webb on the anchor leg of the mile relay. Webb, a 53.5 quarter miler, was given a big lead but lost most of it to the onrushing Mosley. Lake Forest was clocked in 3.46, a good effort, which was better than their best clocking of 1973 in this event.

Joe Voshell, a sophomore, trailed three Riders for several laps but eventually ran all three into the ground to win the two-mile in 10.52, Joe's first trip under 11 minutes.

Matt Burgess, long on technique but lacking in size, at 145 pounds, is one of the lightest discus men in the state.

Some rivals weigh twice that much. Burgess lettered in 1973 as a sophomore with a best throw around 108 feet. He set a goal of 120 feet for the 1974 season, but threw 120 feet, nine inches to reach that goal in his first start. Matt finished second to C.R.'s Rich Carman, a 6 foot, four inch senior in his fourth year of throwing. Carman could be state champ this campaign.

Lee Dunbar's 24.2 clocking was good enough for second place in the 180 low hurdles. Charley Scott did 25 flat for a runnerup spot in the 220.

An improving Ron Dunlap picked up third places in the long jump, 100 and 440, the latter in 55.2, for a new personal best.

Bob Mullane, Harry Benson and Kevin Wooters were third in the high hurdles, mile run and high jump, respectively.

Terry Pettyjohn's first two-mile clocking of 11.06 in flats, showed Terry has fine potential in the eight lapper.

Bill Manship continues to bowl as strong as he paced People's Restaurant to a three point win over Jarrell Fuel with a great 214 game and fine above average effort. Shanley Smith added a fine effort to give Peoples a little extra power which was enough to offset the fueler's fine performances turned in by Dallas Hayman, who rolled a grand 581 series, which included games of 205 and 216 and Harold Melvin's fine 213 game and 571 series.

Kreg Jester bowled a good above average series and Leroy Wheeler added a fine 576 series to pave the way for a big three point victory for Fry's American over the Spoilers in a very tight contest. Jack Sapp rolled a fine 218 game and 528 set and Bruce Herrington added a great effort for the Cpoilers.

Brothers Five moved into a good position Tuesday night as the team took four points from the T & M Rejects. Ray Dennis collected a fine 530 series and Richard Dennis added a great 545 series effort, with Ron Kelly providing the extra strength with a 566 series, which included games of 207 and 221. The Rejects could only offer token resistance as they could field only a three-man squad, but everyone bowled above average performances.

Taylor & Messick was caught napping as Penn Central took the measure of the T & M combine by grabbing three points and knocking the team out of any chance to win a third. Bobby Collins rolled a fine 204 game and 538 series and George Collins collected a good series effort for the T & M squad. Gary Baker set the pace for the rail- roaders and Paul Baker anchored their efforts as he hit a fine 218 game and 553 series.

McKnett Funeral Home took three points from Big John's Son as Harry Jack rolled a fine effort, and Donald Garey collected a fine 555 series, with Robert Garey hitting a fine 210 game. John Powell, Jim Carroll, Mike Kohel and Mannon Robinson all bowled good above average performances for Big John's.

Butler's Fuel squashed Robbins' Hardware on fine efforts by Ralph Butler, Robert Wright and with a good game by Sam Lyons as he amassed a good above average series. Frank Robbins rolled a fine 200 game and above average effort and Jeff Robbins also turned in a fine performance for Robbins'.

Wally's Wrecker Service took three points from Quillen's Market as Gene Wright hit a fine 200 game and great 548 series to pave the way for Wally's victory. Quillen's Market went into the fray with a three-man squad and managed to salvage one point for their efforts with Ralph Kemp providing a little extra power.

Spartan nine opens with two wins

first-year baseball coach, saw his charges tally single runs in the final innings to nip Milford 5-4 and Dover Air 3-2.

Baseball is one of the strong sports at Lake Forest and the 1974 edition would like to annex another division title.

Russell Dill was the winning pitcher, though giving up eight hits in seven innings. Dill fanned nine Buc hitters, walked only one and had two of Lake Forest's six hits.

Greg Hobbs tallied the winning run on a single by Wayne Voshell. Wayne had two hits in two trips.

Wayne Erne had a baseknock and a RBI, while Bob Jacobs hit safely and had the satisfaction of being on the winning side against his old teammates. The Bucs edged the Spartans in basketball so Jacobs finishes 1-1 against Milford.

The Spartans were again out-hit in the Dover Air contest, as Neal Smith had two basehits and Jacobs had another. However, the locals scored three unearned runs to eke out the victory.

Dover Air's hurler walked five Spartans, hit two more and made several bad throws. Alert baserunning by Bob Jacobs, Neal Smith and Jerry Steerman led directly to the three Lake Forest runs.
