By Gloria Dill

Strains of the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance" accompanied 177 graduates at the fifth annual Lake Forest High School Commencement. The proceedings began with an invocation by the Rev. C.M. Huff, pastor of St. Paul A.M.E. Church in Harrington, and a rousing "Star Spangled Banner." This set the mood for the four honor speakers, whose theme was "nostalgia". Doreen Chaffinch, Dottie Stubbs and Paula Corbett all gave their definitions of the word and then told how it can be both constructive and detrimental in coping with the future.

Then the audience fell silent as the president of the senior class walked up to the podium. "My name is Carol Barr," she said. "I have the privilege of reading the speech written by Judy Tatman." Judy, the class valedictorian, was seriously injured in a car accident on Friday night. She could not attend the commencement exercises Sunday, but a moment of silence was observed in her honor. The speech, incidentally, was excellent and it is quite obvious that the choice was a good one.

New Phone Equipment Scheduled

Diamond State Telephone Company announced that three Kent County cities will have more dial switching equipment installed in their central office buildings in June.

Jim Strickland, the firm's Kent County manager, said the central offices slated for the new apparatus are Frederica, Harrington, and Milford.

"A $57,000 dial apparatus installation begins in the Frederica (335) telephone central office on June 17 and will be completed on September 1st (1974). It will provide for serving 365 more phones. Frederica now has 3,026 telephones," he said.

In the Harrington (398) central office building, a $113,000 dial apparatus addition also begins on June 17 and completes September 1. It will permit the office to serve 180 more phones. The Harrington central office now serves 3,177 phones.

On June 24 the utility will start a $170,000 dial apparatus installation in the Milford (422) central office building. It is set to be done on October 13 and will add equipment to serve 545 more telephones. The Milford exchange has 9,763 telephones, Strickland said.

Firemen's Car Show and Flea Market Sunday

The Harrington Volunteer Fire Co. will hold its SECOND ANNUAL CAR SHOW FLEA MARKET June 16 at the Delaware State Fairgrounds. This is an all day affair beginning at 8 a.m.

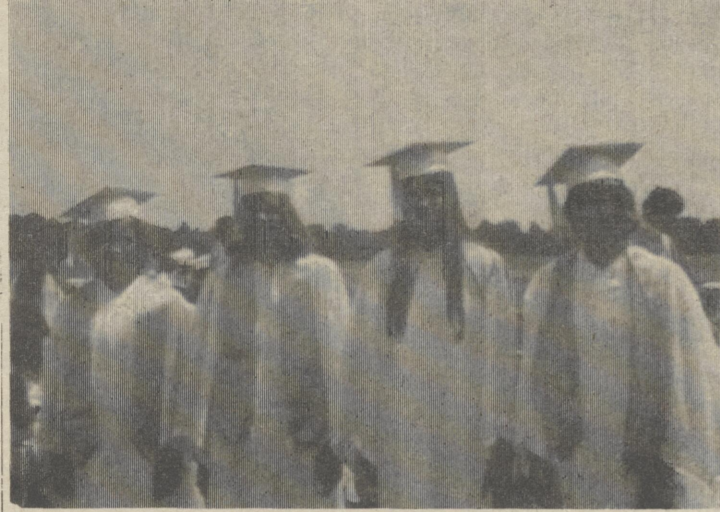

This year the Antique Car Show will include judging with seven classes and 21 trophies being awarded. Last year's turnout of 32 antique cars should be exceeded this year according to the early registrations received. James Embelain, vice president of the Brandywine Region Antique Car Club, has promised a good showing of his club's membership. The Historical Vintage Chevrolet Club of Delaware with local member Arthur Buck Cahall and Pat McCann of Smyrna and their members should also have a good showing with their vintage cars.

An added feature this year will be a horse shoe pitching contest. An entry fee of $1.25 will entitle the throwers of the iron shoe, minus the horse, a winner's trophy and also a trophy for the runnerup. This should prove to be an exciting contest because of local horse shoe enthusiasts.

There will be vendors with all types of merchandise including antique car parts, bottles, fruit jars, coins and stamps and items your grandmother used in her early childhood.

Also this year there will be several exhibits of antique farm

Conserve Electricity

Joseph A. LaSala, Federal Energy Administrator for Region III, says the whole can be greater than the sum of its parts when it comes to conserving electricity.

By doing a few little things as standard procedure in a household, home owners can sharply reduce their own electric bills and help relieve the drain on the nation's energy supply.

"Most homes are overlit," LaSala said. "Money and energy can be saved not only by turning off lights when they are not needed but by using lower wattage bulbs whenever possible."

Fluorescent bulbs are three or four times as efficient as traditional incandescent bulbs and should be used more in kitchens and bathrooms, he added.

LaSala also suggests using the solid-state dimming switches which will allow you to adjust the flow of electricity. By installing dimming switches the lights can be turned up when you want them bright and lowered to a nice, low, background level at other times.

Another source of possible savings in both energy and money is the hot water heater. The thermostats in most heaters are set in the factory and many people have never taken off the cover plate to check the setting.

Tribbitt Appoints Shultie

Richard Allen Shultie, Sr., of Harrington, has been appointed a member of the State Board of Examiners of Barbers for a three-year term from May 30, 1974, to expire May 30, 1977, succeeding George H. Austin, who retired.

Safety Precautions For Boaters

If boating accidents continue to spiral as they have over the past five summers, hundreds of Americans will experience watery deaths in the next three months, the Insurance Information Institute noted.

In 1973, the Coast Guard reported 5,322 boating accidents, a 38 per cent increase over 1972 figures. Boating deaths jumped to 1,754 in 1973, a 22 per cent increase. Last year, 1,599 injuries were reported compared to 829 in 1972 - a 93 per cent increase. Property damage in 1973 accidents climbed 57 per cent to $11 million.

Last year, Delaware recorded 13 boating accidents, 9 deaths, 3 injuries, and $15,500 in property damage.

PART IV

Impeachment Process

Andrew Johnson's personality and background as observed in last week's issue presented problems in getting along with his colleagues and constituents. In this article, one can follow the personality problems to bearing fruit of discontent in Congress, which eventually lead to the impeachment.

The war had caused a great split in the nation and it was a time to heal up the wounds of the nation. Johnson tried vainly to restore the Southerners. Even the final act of his administration exhibited this. Increased tension developed when Congress passed the Tenure of Office Act, which forbade the President from removing any official without the Senate's approval, especially if the Senate had made the appointment.

He was openly opposed at every turn by his Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton. The Secretary had become an element within the so called Radical Republican group. Johnson had secretly hoped that Stanton would resign. When Congress passed the Tenure of Office Act, Johnson took this as an attempt to limit his powers as President. Without further ado, he suspended Stanton for disloyalty and insubordination, and appointed General U.S. Grant. This appointment was short lived, for Grant was tainted with some radical sympathies. He in turn resigned his post and gave it back to Stanton.

When Stanton regained his office, Johnson had no other course but to dismiss him again. This time he appointed General Lorenzo Thomas. Stanton locked himself in his office and refused to allow Thomas to enter and remained there until after the impeachment trial. By this time, it seemed that everyone was at everyone else's throat in Washington.

Impeachment had long been the hue and cry of the radical congressmen. With Stanton's dismissal the wheels of impeachment took motion. On Feb. 24, 1868, the House of Representatives voted 128 to 47 to impeach. There were 11 articles of impeachment lodged against Johnson. The most important ones were the first, which referred to violation of Tenure of Office Act, and the 11th which alleged in some way that he had actually conspired against Congress and the Constitution. This last charge cited Johnson's claim that Congress did not properly represent all the states, which reflected his argument that if the Southerners were not seated

---then the states were not represented. The North and the Radical groups wanted Negroes, now citizens, to have the Congressional seats formerly occupied by whites. Johnson re-appointed southern whites to their old seats in Congress or appointed others who had been officers of the Confederate Army.

In March 1868, the impeachment trial began in the Senate. Presiding was Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase, a founder of the modern day Republican Party. He was a man Lincoln disliked, but realizing his abilities as a lawyer, jurist and Senator, he appointed him to the position of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Johnson never appeared at the trial. His lawyers represented him. As the trial progressed, it became quickly obvious there was no case. It was more of an attempt to punish this man rather than mete out justice as the public had been led to believe. Some even claimed that he had been directly behind the assassination of President Lincoln.

The President for once remained calm and quiet throughout the proceedings. The tension mounted and by May 1868, the Senate finally voted, and the President was acquitted by one vote. Senator Ross of Kansas is generally credited with saving "Office of the Presidency" with this not guilty vote. Two Senators had to be carried onto the Senate floor in order to vote. One was Thad Stevens of Pennsylvania, too ill and weak to walk in under his own power, who voted guilty. Senator James Grimes, who had been paralyzed a few days before, voted not guilty.

After the failure by trial to impeach, life around Washington went on as before and the Johnson administration was thereafter uneventful. In 1866 Johnson, under the continual flurries with fellow Republican colleagues, formed a third party. A convention was held in Philadelphia and was composed of white Southerners, northern Democrats, moderate Republicans and presidential appointees. General Couch of Mass. marched in arm in arm with Governor Orr of S. Carolina to symbolize the United States under Johnson. Like many third party organizations, it lacked local support and grass roots organization.

After the trial ended, Johnson found himself alone. He hoped the Democrats would nominate him as their presidential standard bearer, but they chose Governor Seymour of New York, who lost to Republican General U.S. Grant.

As Johnson readied to leave office, his final act was to grant amnesty under the 14th amendment. It was his final desire to unify the country. An issue had been solely his, and had he responded to the call for leadership, would probably have assured him the historical bearing of a great president.

Following the White House years, he remained in politics, running unsuccessfully for Congress in 1869 and 1872. "Once you get the cinder in your eye. . ." He was elected, however, to the U.S. Senate in 1847, and thus became the first and (Continued on Page 5)

New Farm Wheat Allotment

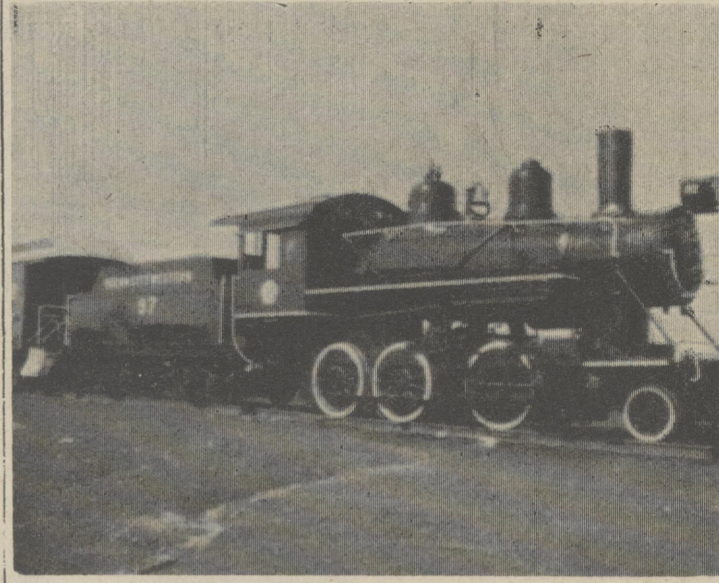

A new farm wheat allotment may be established for 1975 crop wheat acreage for farms that did not have a 1974 allotment, if they meet eligibility requirements, Russell Bowdle of the Kent County ASC Committee announced.

A 1975 wheat allotment will be established automatically for most farms that had a wheat allotment in 1974.

To be eligible for a new farm allotment, the operator must expect to receive more than 50% of his income from farming. Neither the farm owner or operator may have an interest in any other farm which will have a 1975 wheat allotment at the time the request is made, and the person making application must have had at least one year production experience in a prior year.

Applications for a new farm allotment must be filed in the county office on or before July 1, 1974. Any interested producer who can meet these requirements should contact the county office before the final date for filing an application.

No. 97 Passes Through

A tangible memory of the past made its brief appearance here Thurs, June 6, as an old train was seen enroute to a new home in Maryland. Consisting of two engines and passenger cars, it belongs to Historic Railroads, Inc., and will operate on the Ocean City

Western Line from Berlin, Md., to west Ocean City. Anticipating business to begin in three weeks, the corporation will be franchised as a terminal switching railroad to handle passengers (tourists) and interstate freight. George Norcross, president of the corporation, and his son

Geoffrey, escorted the train, and have been instrumental in its location and restoration.

Oldest and perhaps most interesting of the four parts is the black and white steam engine. Built in 1925 and following the custom of taking its number from the last two or three digits from the serial number, No. 97 served as the last common carrier steam engine in service in the country.

Norcross found out about its existence from Ron Ziel, author of several books dealing with railroads, one of which is The Twilight of Steam Locomotives, in which the No. 97 is pictured.

Norcross inspected the engine which was operating on the Mobile and Gulf Railroad, just outside Tuscaloosa, Ala. In order to gain ownership he had to produce a diesel engine as a suitable swap. Since the engineer in Alabama had never operated a diesel engine and Norcross had never operated a steam engine, they had to teach each other. After two weeks each party was satisfied. The steam engine was then disassembled and sent to Delmar on a flat car. This was in 1970.

Bicentennial Medal Offered

Delaware Banks and Savings and Loan Associations, as a non-profit community service, are offering for sale the Official State of Delaware Revolution Bicentennial Medal. June 14, Flag Day, marks the official opening of this program.

The Delaware Bicentennial Commission authorized that the Official medals be struck to celebrate the founding of the United States.

The obverse, or face of the medal, depicts the Liberty Bell and Caesar Rodney on his famous ride from Dover to Philadelphia on July 2, 1776, to cast Delaware's deciding vote in favor of Lee's Resolution for the Declaration of Independence.

The reverse of the medal depicts the coat of arms of Delaware which includes an armed rifleman, a husbandman with a hilling hoe, a wheat sheaf, an ear of maize, an ox, a ship under full sail, and the motto "Liberty and Independence".

The medal program plays a major part in the overall role of the Bicentennial Commission's plan to promote awareness of the state's heritage and the founding of our nation.

Proceeds from the sales of these medals will be used to fund programs which will take place through 1977.

Twenty members of the Delaware Bankers Association and the Delaware State League of Savings and Loan Association are included as participating institutions.

Dr. E.A. Trabant, chairman of the Delaware American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, will present Governor Tribbitt with the new Bicentennial Medalion on Friday.

Local Man Presides W&WOA

Alfred G.B. Mann of 326 Dorman St., was installed as President of the Water and Waste Operators Association of Maryland, Delaware and District of Columbia at the annual meeting in Ocean City, Md., last week.

As a member of the association during the past ten years, he has prepared and presented papers of the association's annual short course for operators and at annual meetings. In 1973 he received a Certificate of Appreciation for outstanding services by the Chesapeake Water Pollution Control Association and the Water and Waste Operators Association. He has also served three years on the Executive Committee as a director from Delaware and most recently as First Vice President. Mann served as Harrington City Manager for four years and

Tax-Free Earnings For Summer Jobs

Teenagers working on the family farm or in other employment this summer can earn up to $2,050 a year without paying income taxes. These provisions were included in the Tax Reform Act of 1969.

According to W.T. McAllister, University of Delaware extension agricultural economist, if a teenager expects to earn less than this figure, he certifies to his employer when hired that he expects to avoid a federal income tax liability for the current year and had none for the preceding year. He then must file a W-4E form that certifies that there is to be no tax deduction by the employer.

If any time after this form is filed the employee does earn more than $2,050, then a regular tax withholding form may be filed and standard deductions will begin.

If he chooses, McAllister says a teenager may have the standard tax deduction made at the time he's hired. This money will be returned when he files for a tax refund after January 1. Some prefer to use this practice as a way of saving about 15 per cent of their summer earnings for use at a later time.

Although he won't have the federal tax taken from his pay, other deductions, such as social security and state tax, will remain. (Continued on Page 5)

Taxidermist In Residence

Norman Toadvine of Farmington, Delaware is aptly described as a man for all seasons. It doesn't take long to discover that he belongs to the old school background of believing in helping others and holding the theory that a dollar is worth a dollar. Many adages placed around the walls of his shop proclaim his attitudes and outlooks.

One could hardly help asking if Mr. Toadvine remembered Will Rogers. Not only did he remember, he volunteered several stories about the famous humorist. "There was a great man...but what if he had had the benefit of television...wouldn't he have been a treat for the public then?" voiced Toadvine.

Several unique activities keep Toadvine busy. In addition to operating The Honey Bee (a store) on Rt. 13, he is also a licensed taxidermist.

"You can't build a reputation on what you're going to do," H. Ford.

Taxidermy is a painstaking art, and therefore one seldom finds anyone practicing this centuries' old profession outside museums. Mr. Toadvine has been at his trade since 1933, when he finished a correspondence course at Northwestern (Omaha, Neb.). His original interest was sparked through the efforts of a German man named Hienekin who helped in his training.

Many question how a taxidermist recreates the natural stances of creatures that have undergone rigor mortis. The secret is not in reshaping the bone structure but in making a mold to the exact size of the skin of the animal to be mounted. The mold can be in any position. These can be bought, but Toadvine prefers to make his own, usually from plaster of Paris.

"Sitting still and wishing Make no person great. The Good Lord sends the fish But you must dig the bait".

Toadvine claims the fish is the hardest to mount. It is difficult, for the entire fish must be skinned out, including the head where there are many oil pockets. A tanning solution is then used and a chemical is applied to retain the color of the fish.

The tools are not as complicated as one might imagine. A knife called a fish spoon, a skinning board and board for putting into shape the eyes, ears and nose are used. Other animals require slightly different approaches.

Toadvine grew up near Salisbury in Rockawalkin. Supposedly the town had gotten its name from a wealthy business man and area landowner. He always fashioned the times by driving beautiful horses hitched to a carriage. When Rock chose to walk to church instead one Sunday, residents took up "Rockawalkin." Hence the name, which is still borne by the church.

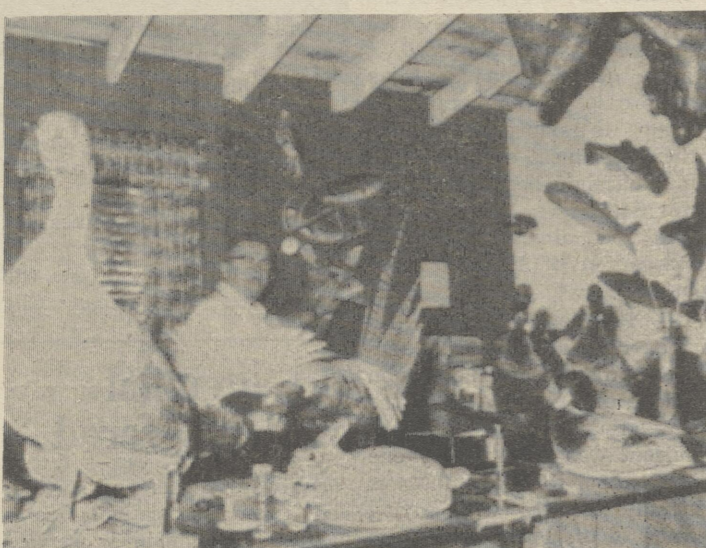

Mr. Toadvine sums up his attitude toward his work aptly. "When you think that you have reached the top in producing a mounted animal, you haven't. You should try to find the mistake in this job in order to make a better job next time."

Another craftsman of an earlier time and different occupation also said something similar. "Man's reach should exceed his grasp".

Next week: Toadvine the keeper.

Mr. Toadvine explains the mounting process.

A variety of finished work can be seen.

Del. Current Expense Estimated Country's Fourth-Highest

The State Board of Education recently received Delaware's rank in the 50 states, a 12-page extract of items from the National Education Association's annual report, Ranking of the States. The report, based in part on estimates, lists Delaware as ranking fourth-highest in current expense per pupil; second in percentage of school revenue from state sources; ninth in personal income per pupil; 20th in drop-out rate (i.e., 30 states have higher rates); tenth in average teacher salary; and 31st in pupil-teacher ratio (i.e., 19 states have fewer pupils per teacher).

From the Frying Pan...??

Much has been said in the 1960's about endangered or vanished species. They seem to be here one minute and gone the next. Many political and public figures have been trying to control this tragic process.

Not so in Delaware. For the past two years when the State budget is in the process of being balanced, the State Library program has wound up on the endangered list. In this area most directly affected is the Bookmobile program, a part of the Library Division. Last year, the Kent County Levy Court gave financial support and kept the program on the road for the tax-paying readers of Kent County.

This year another wrinkle has shown up. It seems that several disgruntled New Castle politicians feel that because they have a county-wide library system (very well established & privately endowed), so should Kent and Sussex Counties. Well and good for urban New Castle, what about the other two-thirds of the state?

House Bill 644 is now under consideration in the Senate and has already passed in the house, with amendments in both. In essence it will do away with the State Library system. According to informed sources this bill outlines what we will not do or have regarding a library system on a state-wide basis, it does not define or set up guidelines for a county system.

One unsettling item is that the State Library has just moved to new quarters on the Delaware State campus. If the state system is scrapped, what will happen to its fine collection? Some sections would be next to worthless if broken into smaller collections. How would it be divided? All taxpayers helped in financing the collection—could it possibly be dispersed equally—three ways?

On a county-wide system, would each town and hamlet be expected to find location and then fill a library on its own? Currently 41 stops are made by the bookmobile operating in Kent County. Earlier this month the bookmobile, now 14 years old, needed repairs. It was missed - by citizens, all ages and from all corners of the county. Imagine what it would cost to duplicate, if done with fairness what the bookmobile offers now. In an inflated economy, can we afford the luxury of a library in every town the bookmobile visits?

Since the nearest Kent County public library is in Dover (and requires membership fee for non-Dover users) it looks as if the taxpayers will be out of luck and no doubt more money if the state program is scrapped.

If this is a means of saving money the legislature has thought up, I'd liked to have it explained how scrapping a program that works, serves the taxpayer, as well as providing pleasure and information, can be justified by replacing it with something of dubious quality and efficiency, not to mention the expense.

One final note...if the State program (and thus the bookmobile) vanishes in Delaware, ours will be the first state again, to my knowledge...without a State library. This will mean that the other 49 states will be dividing the federal funds now channeled into the present program and goodbye to more working tax dollars.

As with the plight of the endangered and vanishing species, this has all been considered very quietly. If you want to do anything about it, contact Senator Nancy Cook in Kenton, Del. Ronald Darling of Camden, Del. is the representative for the Harrington area. If you want a copy of the bill, call the Legislative Council at 678-4114. Make your tax dollars and voice be heard. It's our State Library system on the endangered list. Your action could save it. Act today.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

Mr. Cliff Miller, who usually has a poem in this space, wanted to share the following letter he and his wife received recently. It was written by Valery Blackman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Blackman, Viola. She is the Lake Forest exchange student, from the American Field Service to South Africa.

Valery Blackman
c/o Mr. George Grainger
40 Woolhope Road
Port Elizabeth, S. Africa 6001
15 March 74

Dear Dutch & Pap:

Greetings from South Africa! It is a beautiful, clear, warm day but nearing the end of summer.

I am sure you will be pleased to know that they have a very active Rotary Club here. In fact, there are two Rotary students in Port Elizabeth, here for the year. One student is from Australia, the other, I think, from Argentina. At school I have joined the club "Interact". The purpose of the club is to help the community. They have had clean-ups of the community, collected food for the needy, and paid for the college education of a native. This club is also sponsored by Rotary. I will get the address of the chairman and may be the two clubs can correspond.

It has been very easy to adjust here. Everyone is very friendly. The Graingers are a very loving family. There are only 500 students in my new school...half the size of Lake Forest. This has been an asset for me—enabling me to meet everyone.

Some of the scenery is breath-taking. I am looking forward to March 29th. We get two weeks off for summer holidays. I may at this time be making a trip to Cape Town.

My favorite class in school is Domestic Science (Home Economics). The teacher is Afrikaans and has a strong accent. We are learning the properties of fabrics, how to wash them, nutrition, how to choose meats, how to remove stains, needle point, and many interesting recipes. Last week we made sosaties (meat and fruit on a skewer with a curry sauce). Curry is a popular spice here. Most of the classes are taken seriously - I think it is because it is very easy to fail here.

Love, Valery

You can always recognize the secure people in the world. They are the ones who send their boss the same price Christmas card they send to the rest of the list.

You're only young once, but you can stay immature indefinitely.

Mr. and Mrs. William Horst have moved into a new trailer near Killen's Pond.

Mr. and Mrs. George Graham entertained friends and relatives following the graduation of their daughter, Gene. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lester Baker, of Georgetown; Nicky Thompson, of Newark, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Faulkner and daughters.

The Rev. and Mrs. Fred Marvel of New Church, Va., spent a few days with the latter's mother, Mrs. Joseph A. Masten.

Mrs. W.W. Sharp spent a few days this week with Mr. and Mrs. L.M. Hudson in Cherry Hill, N.J.

Letter To The Editor

Danny Evans
English Department
W.T. Chipman Jr. School
Harrington, Delaware
June 3, 1974

I would like to thank you for the article your paper ran on the archaeological work my students are doing behind the school. It was read and re-read by all of them.

Included with this letter may be a follow-up story for you. While we are busy uncovering the past, we thought that perhaps it would be the intelligent thing to do to leave buried behind some artifacts of our own time. Hence, we have created a "TIME-CAPSULE" made of glass. Each item listed in the appended inventory is sealed in an individual plastic bag. The Capsule will be buried somewhere near the school at an unknown time with the hope that it will remain undisturbed for a century or so. If you need any further information, you can see me out at the dig in the morning, or reach me by phone in the afternoon.

Once again, thank you for the article in your last issue. Oh! A copy of that issue is in the capsule.

Sincerely,
DANNY L. EVANS

Time Capsule 1974 A.C.E.

PURPOSE: The purpose of a time capsule is to preserve some of the items that are current in the culture of the age in which the creators live. It is the hope of the creators of this time capsule that its contents will be turned over to the proper authorities for study and evaluation. It is our gift to you.

INVENTORY: The capsule will contain the following items if found intact.

- 1. Bible (Both Old and New Testaments translated into English in 1611 for King James of England. This translation is still in wide use now in 1974 AGE).
- 2. Calendar (Contains pictures of United States Presidents and a brief history of the Constitution of the United States along with some other less important items of historical import.)
- 3. Currency (One dollar bill - paper, 50c coin, 25c coin, 10c coin, 5c coin, 1c coin).
- 4. Pictures (Many types of photographs are included, and are designed to give you some idea as to our normal manner of dressing, and general appearance.)
- 5. Newspaper (The local newspaper of the day is included THE HARRINGTON JOURNAL. On the front page of this paper is an article about the W.T. Chipman School which is responsible for the creation of this project.)

6. Magazine (The READERS DIGEST is included in capsule as being representative of the best and most widely read magazine available to us.)

7. Miscellaneous (Pictures of animals that are normally seen in this area now, and pictures of food normally eaten by us.)

Rodney Warren Dies At 59

A Virginia horseman died of an apparent heart attack Saturday at Harrington Fairgrounds. Rodney Henry Warren, 59, of Townsend, Va., was found in his stopped car at the east end of a horse barn at 12:49 p.m.

He was taken to Milford Memorial Hospital where he was declared dead on arrival. The sudden death was laid to a heart attack complicated by diabetes.

Asbury United Methodist Women Meet

The United Methodist Women of Asbury Church held their June meeting on Tuesday evening in Collins Hall with Mrs. Edward Taylor presiding. Devotions were given by Mrs. Mary Willey.

Following the business meeting Mrs. Taylor introduced Harry John Dill who spoke on the Kent-Sussex Crusade which will be held Aug. 16 - 25 at the Delaware State Fairgrounds at 7:30 each evening. Mr. Dill told of the beginning of the planning for the Crusade and of the many areas that are now being developed. He invited all of the United Women to take part.

Many churches in the Kent-Sussex County and Caroline County vicinities have set up committees to serve in various capacities. Asbury Church has already begun to work on its commitments under the direction of Guy Winebrenner, local chairman.

Mrs. Taylor thanked Mr. Dill for attending the meeting and telling the group of the Crusade. She also noted that the dates for the School of Missions are July 12 to 14. Anyone wishing to attend may call her for further details.

The Mary Circle, Mrs. Howard Wagner, leader, served refreshments at the social hour.

Mildew is a problem in Delaware. Humid hot weather produces an ideal climate for the mold that causes mildew to grow. The molds grow on anything from which they can get enough food such as fabric, leather, wood and paper. Many man-made fibers are resistant to mildew.

The molds that cause mildew flourish wherever it is damp, warm, poorly aired and poorly lighted. They often leave a musty odor, discolor fabrics and sometimes eat into them so severely that the fabrics rot and fall to pieces.

Hopefully, mildew won't invade your home. It's easier to prevent mildew than to try to get rid of it. Keep everything as clean as possible. Soil can supply enough food for mildew to start growing when the moisture and temperature are right.

Try to control dampness. Air conditioners and dehumidifiers have greatly relieved the mildew problem in those homes which have them. Never let clothing or other fabric articles lie around damp or wet. Spread out wash cloths and towels. Stretch out wet shower curtains.

Wash soiled garments and household fabrics in plenty of hot sudsy water, rinse well and dry thoroughly and quickly. If white cotton items develop a sour or musty odor, add chlorine bleach as directed on the label.

If you discover mildew on fabrics, treat the fabric promptly. Brush off any surface growth outdoors to prevent scattering the mildew spores in the house. Sun and air the fabrics thoroughly. Wash with hot water and detergent. Rinse well and dry in the sun. If stains remain, bleach out with a household bleach following directions for the product. Dry clean non-washable articles.

Mildew-resistant spray products are available. Some of these fungicide sprays contain a wax or silicone resin that repels moisture. When using one of these products, follow all directions and precautions on the can. The fabrics may need frequent examination and respraying.

For more detailed information on prevention and treatment of mildew, see your County Extension Home Economist at the co-operative extension service office.

Carpenter Bees May Be At Work

Large black and yellow bees flying near the eaves and gables of your house or holes about a half inch in diameter drilled in wood surfaces around the house are signs that carpenter bees are at work. These insect pests are out now, according to Frank Boys, extension entomologist at the University of Delaware.

Carpenter bees are about an inch long and resemble bumble bees. They have a bare, shiny, black abdomen, and no pollen baskets on their back legs. Female carpenter bees can sting, but the males cannot. However, to be on the safe side, it's best to assume they will sting.

The bees attack all types of dry seasoned wood, especially soft woods like cedar, redwood, pine and fir. They may damage porch and shed ceilings, railings, posts, porch furniture, wood shingles, wood siding, window sills or wooden doors. Nail and screw holes are attractive starting points for burrows.

Carpenter bees bore holes an inch or more into the wood at right angles to the surface, then turn sharply and bore in the direction of the wood grain. The tunnels, or galleries, are divided into individual cells with cross walls made of cemented, macerated wood.

Boys says there are number of measures you can take to control the bees and prevent damage to wood surfaces. Keep all wood surfaces well painted, since painted wood is less frequently attacked by the bees. Aluminum, asbestos, asphalt and other non-wood materials are also safe from attack.

To control the bees, direct an insecticide spray or dust into the holes and onto adjacent wooded areas. Sprays or dusts of Sevin, malathion or chlordane are recommended. A day after treating seal the holes with plugs or putty or caulking compound.

Annual Dairy Princess Contest

Application for the Delaware Dairy Princess Contest are being taken now. The young lady selected will represent the Delaware Dairy Industry and hold the title of Delaware Dairy Princess. The contest, sponsored by the University of Delaware co-operative extension service and the Delaware Dairy Princess Contest Committee, is part of a program to promote dairy products and publicize the dairy industry. In addition to the title, the winner will receive a $300 prize.

To be eligible, girls must be residents of Delaware between the ages of 16 and 25, as of June 1, 1974. Contestants must never have been married or been professional models and must, at some time in their lives, have lived on a dairy farm that produces milk for a commercial market. They will be judged on the basis of four categories, all of equal merit: personality, grooming, beauty of face and figure and knowledge of dairy business.

A training school for contestants from Delaware, Maryland and New Jersey will be held July 16-17 at the University of Delaware in Newark. All applications should be received before that time.

Applications are available from county agents or from Owan Gruwel, Delaware Dairy Princess Committee chairman, Harrington. Judging will be held at the State Fair, July 24.

Litter Bags

The Delaware Safety Council asks that motorists keep litter bags handy in their cars and use them. It is unlawful to throw glass, bottles, cans or trash upon the highway.

ASCS Says Wool Program Still In Effect

"Many wool producers have the idea that the Wool Payment Program is no longer active," "However, that's not true," said Lister V. Hall, Jr., executive director of the Kent county ASCS. "Wool producers may submit their sales documents on wool and unshorn lambs and file an application for payment on 1974 marketings at the county office," said Hall.

Wool payments were not required in 1973, because the national average price received by producers was 82.7 cents per pound, compared to the incentive payment price, 72 cents per pound. Absence of payments during 1973 may have started a rumor that the program has lapsed, Hall said.

The Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 extended the Wool Payment Program through December 1977. The incentive price level remains at 72 cents per pound, as it has been since 1970.

"ASCS will make payments on 1974 wool only if the National average price received by all producers falls below 72 cents per pound. The final determination of National average price will be made in March 1975," Hall said.

ROTC Cadets Attend Camp In N.C.

Twelve Army ROTC cadets from the University of Delaware will travel to Fort Bragg, N.C., in June to begin six weeks of intensive training as prospective Army officers.

Attending the camp will be approximately 2,000 cadets from colleges and universities from Florida to Maine.

During the summer training, scheduled from June 14 - July 26, the cadets will participate in mental and physical training designed to develop managerial and leadership abilities.

Cadets get paid travel monies to and from camp. While there, each also receives one-half the pay of a second lieutenant per month.

In the fall, the 12 cadets will return to the Delaware campus. All will be seniors in the fall. After graduation, each will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army.

David M. Llayd, Route 2, Greenwood, is one of the cadets participating in this training.

Publisher's Special Report On Billy Martin, Provoker

One of my pastimes is listening to baseball games. One can't move any faster than shifting from Memorial Stadium in Baltimore with a fine turn to the right to pick up the Indian games in Memorial Stadium in Cleveland. Two weeks ago I was listening to the game between the Cleveland Indians and Texas Rangers. Since Cleveland is in a different time zone, I also listened to the Oriole game almost completely first before picking up Cleveland.

On this particularly ill-fated night, which set the scene for the game last week in Cleveland, I had just turned in when moments later Randle of the Rangers gave a barrel roll slide into second baseman Lowenstein. A fight erupted with both benches cleared and on the field. After the dirt had settled, the players went back to their respective dugouts. The next inning Lowenstein had a ball come to close to his head and after the dust cleared, the players finished the game. During this last incident, an incredible thing happened. . . Billy Martin (No. 1 manager of the Rangers) was knocked down twice.

After following Martin from playing for the Yankees on many pennant winning teams, I recognized that Martin is a smart man and an aggressive competitor. He knows how to sell season tickets! Fans get their money's worth when Martin and his Rangers play since this is the team Ted Williams hand-picked for the most part.

When reporters questioned Martin following the fistfight game, he remarked that what had happened in Texas would not bother the fans in Cleveland. He thereby managed to cut the tempermental Cleveland fans to the quick.

Last week the Rangers opened in Cleveland on a Tuesday night, when normal gates are between two and three thousand, 25,000 fans poured into the stadium—not only to see their beloved and much improved Cleveland team, but also to drink 10¢ green beer. By the ninth inning, the Cleveland fans were not to be controlled. When Cleveland tried to score in the bottom of the ninth, pandemonium resulted. They forged over railings, past the security guards and onto the field, grabbing Jeff Burrough's cap (he's the new Ranger hitting hero). This was Martin's cue—he stormed out of the dugout—leading his men with bat wielding clubs. It was almost an hour before things settled. The Indians forfeited the game (9-0), which was announced when plate umpire Nester Shylock was hit with a bottle. The following day, the Cleveland front office blamed the incident on the Rangers.

It wasn't their fault, nor was it Martin's, more likely the 10¢ beer, or a combination of all. It seems that the idea of self-expression has come into its own in the baseball world. Time and again this season, similar incidents have occurred. I believe the answer is to educate the fans on what can and can't be done during the course of a game, as well as reinforcing the security. . . especially when Billy Martin is involved. That's my choice. . . What's yours?

Mosley, Benson Win Jr. Olympic Track Titles

The Lake Forest School District area has had an unprecedented amount of success in track and field in the last eight days. And yet a whole segment of class competitors, the Lake Forest High senior girls, ages 14-17 didn't get to compete. We guarantee that some of them would have added to an already impressive award total garnered by the other locals.

On Saturday, June 1, David Richter, Maurice Coverdale and Jackie Guyton were easy winners in the boys junior division 880, the midget division 880 and the girls junior mile.

One week later, Ron Mosley ran the fastest half mile by a citizen of this district, when he recorded a 1:58.2 victory in the Senior Boys 880. Wm. Penn High's Tom McCarthy, an ex-state high school champion, led for 800 yards until the 1974 Spartan graduate jumped him coming off the final curve.

Harry Benson, a junior mile champion two years ago at 13, returned at 15 to annex the Intermediate Boys Mile with a fine 4:49 clocking.

Benson later finished third against fresh rivals in 2:12 in the half mile.

Joe Voshell, an excellent sophomore prospect, is much less experienced than Mosley or Benson, but is coming on, placed in the Senior Mile and 880, by lowering his mile time from 5:03 to 4:50 and his 880 time from 2:18 to 2:10.

Paul McClellan, like the above trio, practiced and competed right through the winter months. The hardworking Canterbury Freshman's first mile clocking ever was a very promising 5:21 and was followed later by his best 880 to date (2:25).

Dan Parker, a 14-year old, eighth grader showed tremendous potential in cross-country. Parker hung up times of 5:11 and 2:25 and could have four great distance-running years for Jim Blades at Lake Forest High.

Sophomore newcomer, Craig Keshner, another of the prospects to come out of the Canterbury-Barratt's Chapel Road area has done 5:15, 2:15 and 11:30 in the two mile. Craig is one of four cross-country brothers.

Ron Mosley has sepped up a couple of notches, now that his great career at L.F.H.S. is behind him. Thursday night in the State Open at Wilmington's Baynard Stadium, the slender 17-year-old competed against college and A.A.U. runners and finished second with a good half mile of two minutes flat. Only national-class Mike Wilson of Delaware State College could handle him.

Saturday night, after his afternoon 880 Junior Olympic Victory, Mosley vied in the Middle Atlantic A.A.U. meet against top college and amateur athletics from the Pennsylvania and New Jersey area. Ron was third in the mile run, despite the stiff competition and ran a 4:33 mile. Previously he owned a 4:39.8.

Don Bryant, who holds three Spartan track records, is improving despite his year layoff from track competition. Bryant captured the State Open triple jump with a 46 feet 1/2 inch flight, then sailed 22 feet for second in the long jump.

Saturday night Bryant was third in the triple jump and the long jump (22feet 3 inches) as he and Mosley helped the Delaware Sports Club defeat the powerful Philadelphia Pioneers who lost the Middle Atlantic meet for the first time in 17 years. The Pioneers are often seen on national T.V.

Joe Voshell broke his own personal mark in three days as he recorded a swift 10:26 in the State Open two-mile. Earlier he had done 10:33.

On a per capita basis, Lake Forest's athletes probably made a better showing than any other in the state. Ten downstaters hung tough in the four meets mentioned and scored well against strong opposition.

June 22nd, Delaware will be represented in the Middle Atlantic Junior Olympic meet at North Penn High School, Lansdale, Pa. by five state champions: Canterbury's David Richter; Frederick's Harry Benson and Jackie Guyton; Ron Mosley and Maurice "Reese Cup" Coverdale of Harrington.

The role of parents remains the same in spite of these tax rule changes. A child may be claimed as dependents as long as he is under 19 or a full-time student and provides less than half of his support. For the student, the double dependency factor is a benefit since it allows both the student and the parent to claim a deduction.

For parents acting as employers, all payments for work should be made by check and not in the form of free gasoline and use of the car, a calf, a field to grow a crop or a broiler house. McAllister says that unless a separate tax report is filed, sometimes the income and expenses of the teenager are difficult to separate from those of the parents.

Veterans Administration Questions and Answers

A - The Veterans Administration does not require a downpayment, but the lender may require one.

Q - I was treated for a service-connected disability at a VA hospital about two years ago, and the ailment has flared up again. Can I get treatment from VA again?

A - Yes. Since you have already established service connection for your disability, all you need do is apply for treatment again.

Q - I bought a house in 1954 with a maximum loan guaranty of $7,500 from the Veterans Administration. Do I have more entitlement coming, since the current loan guaranty maximum is $13,500?

A - Yes. You still have entitlement equal to the difference between $12,500 and $7,500, or $5,000 in loan guaranty.
