Prospect Centennial Set For Sunday

Ed. note: Quotes used in the following article by Margo Farrow appear in the book compiled by Mrs. Jean O. Donovan to commemorate the centennial year at Prospect Church.

No doubt countless numbers over the years have passed by the neatly groomed white building known now as Prospect United Methodist Church, which is located on Delaware Rt. 14, approximately 4 miles west of Harrington at Vernon. This is a special year for the church's members and this Sunday is an extra special one, since it marks the official anniversary celebration for the church.

The members have been preparing for Sunday during the past months, and Mrs. Jean O. Donovan has spent much of the past year gathering historical information of the church, the grounds, and the school located one time at the site. She, with the aid of various persons, was able to collect many interesting facts which have been made into a book for the occasion.

A deed tracing the original owners of the church land was located by Mrs. Donovan in the Kent County Court House, Dover. The deed, made on April 23, 1835, conveyed the land for Prospect Chapel to five men (who were the Board of Trustees) and their subsequent successors to be held in trust for the church, all for the consideration of fifty cents.

The church, although it is clearly visible at a distance, and therefore commands a "prospect" of the countryside, apparently derives its name from a tract of land bordering the church land and bearing the same name. This property is across the road from the church and is now the home of Frank Tharp.

The 1835 church was known as the Prospect Methodist Episcopal Church. The time of completion is unknown, but the cost of the building was $500. The original wooden church, which included a balcony for slaves, was moved nearby to the "Elers Farm" and was used as a barn until 1970 when it was "pushed into a hole and buried."

In 1874 the present building was built. Oxen were used to haul the lumber. When the original plaster walls began to crack inside, a general renovation program was conducted in 1907. At that time the present siding was added and the original clear glass panes were replaced with green ones. A new roof and front step were also added, the latter bearing the renovation date. In 1928 it was noted that the windows were again replaced, this time with clear panes, when "It had been remarked that everyone looked 'sick' with all green glass."

Prior to electricity several people recall "one large chandelier type lamp hanging from the center of the ceiling which had to be lighted by hand. There were also bracket lamps attached to the windows." One of these fixtures still remains on one of the front windows.

Several items of interest in the church include a pettinop Bible bookmark, dated 1853, several hymnals dated 1898, and a communion set nearly 70 years old.

Prospect, now part of the West Harrington Charge, was part of a "circuit," with a pastor serving a large area. These often took "3-4 weeks to complete, as travel was by horseback and very difficult." The pastor boarded with various families who followed a general schedule in expecting him, and would have meals prepared accordingly. It was not until 1972 that weekly preaching services were conducted. The present minister is Joseph V. Holliday, Jr., who also has Bethel, Salem and Trinity Churches in his charge.

In June of 1894 a Sunday School Library was begun with Mr. George W. Sullivan, Librarian. It contained "109 volumes with books suitable for all ages. 41 volumes were purchased in 1897 for a total of $12.80. An exchange of books was conducted by Farmington Church Library with Prospect in 1898, and one of these books remains at the Prospect library today, although the fate of the others is unknown since the libraries were dissolved.

Another building, also removed, once shared the name Prospect. Officially called School District No. 36, the Prospect School was built in 1831, according to Scharf's History of Delaware. The deed for the land was granted in January, 1833, for $6.

There were two school buildings, one built in the 1830's, and the second one in the 1870's. The original school was moved into a wooded area, where it deteriorated.

When consolidation closed the second school in 1930, it was bought at auction by Edward J. Eilers, who later sold it to George Fortney who moved and used it as a home on Rt. 14 near Burrsville, Md. Reportedly, he chained it to a tree during a flood in 1935. The school is currently a residence at 121 Grant Street, Harrington. "Additions have been made to the house, but the owners (state) the pegs can still be seen in the attic."

In recent years the church buildings have grown to include several Sunday School rooms, which were added in 1961, 1967 and in 1973 a third addition consisting of two rooms, a bath and hall completed the present growth.

conducted at the church, including a Children's Day, of which the first record was in 1903. Most currently these are known as Youth Sundays and are conducted by the United Methodist Youth.

The Board of Trustees which now includes nine members consists of: Mr. Leon C. Donovan, Mr. Earl Everline, Mr. Anthony Gallo, Mr. Edwin Hopkins, Mr. Melville Taylor, Mr. Hyland Webb, Mr. Albert L. Wright and Mr. Herman Zeitler, Jr.

The present Superintendent is Mr. Russell Legates; the Assistant Superintendent is Mr. Hyland Webb; the Secretary-Treasurer is Mr. Edwin Hopkins and the Pianist is Mrs. Mary Lou Wright.

At the 100th Anniversary service this Sunday, which begins at 2:30 p.m., there will be special music featured by the Epworth Quartet from Laurel, a duet by Kathi Hopkins and Kay Brittingham, a Historian's report, special choir music and the guest speaker will be the Rev. Alden S. Hopkins, Jr. The latter, now from Lewes, served at the church from 1946-52.

A luncheon provided by the United Methodist Women, will be served immediately following the service.

Ed. note: THE HARRINGTON JOURNAL extends its best wishes on this occasion to the members of Prospect Church and wishes them continued fellowship as they begin their second century.

Delaware Schools Observe American Education Week

Delaware schools will celebrate American Education Week, Oct. 27-Nov. 2.

Gov. Tribbitt, in a statement in support of the observance, urged Delaware citizens to recognize the value of the school system and to "take a just and proper pride in the efficiency and success of this major public endeavor."

Delaware schools enroll some 149,000 students in kindergarten through Grade 12, including some 17,000 in non-public schools.

The public schools employ 10,000 persons, including 6,200 classroom teachers, 300 principals and assistant principals, 500 other instructional personnel, and 116 administrators.

According to statewide tests organized by the Department of Public Instruction, Delaware's grade one students scored slightly above the national average in 1973, and those in grade four and grade eight fell below the national norm.

But two long-established programs have students throughout the country taking the same test, and, in both, Delaware students excelled the national standard by a wide margin, according to the department.

In the College Entrance Examination Boards, taken by high school students, Delaware students have scored six percent above the national average the past two years.

The state's record is even better in the National Merit Scholarship program, open to the highest-ranking high school students. Here, the Delaware average mark has been the nation's highest for five straight years and never worse than second-highest over the past decade.

Public schools in Delaware are organized into 26 local school districts. Boards of education in each district oversee the daily operations of the schools in accordance with general rules and regulations set by the State Board of Education.

The State Board is made up of seven persons appointed for six-year terms by the Governor and confirmed by the State Senate.

Four members must have experience on local school boards, and all areas of the state are represented on it.

Albert H. Jones of Christiana is the current president of the State Board.

Members are Robert W. Allen, Seaford; Charles C. Brown, Dover; Elsie Grossman, Wilmington; Richard M. Farmer, New Castle; and Robert H. McBride, Wilmington.

Working as staff of the State Board is the Department of Public Instruction led by state superintendent Kenneth C. Madden and including 48 supervisors who administer state and federal regulations and assist district staff in improving instruction.

One marked feature of the Delaware system is the high percentage of school revenue that comes from state sources — approximately 65 percent, compared to a national average of 43 percent.

School districts supplement the state funds with local revenue raised mainly by property taxes at rates approved by the residents in referendums.

School districts vary by nearly two to one in total revenue per pupil, from a high of $1,654 in Wilmington to a low $935 in Woodbridge, based on fiscal 1973 figures.

Local revenue varies by almost seven to one, from $695 in Alexis I. duPont to $100 in Laurel. Special state funds are provided to districts in an attempt to offset the differences in local wealth.

Most school revenue in Delaware is allocated to districts based on enrollment. For each 25 elementary pupils and each 20 secondary students, the state provides funds for a base teacher salary, which varies according to the experience and education of the teacher. Districts also receive state funds for operations according to a uniform formula.

Over the past decade, Delaware public schools have enrolled a far higher percentage of eligible students, as non-public enrollment has fallen. In 1959, Delaware ranked next to last among the states in the percentage of the school-age population enrolled in public schools. Now the state ranks 14th.

General educational attainment in the state remains fairly constant. In median school years completed by the adult population, Delaware now ranks as the 23rd-highest state, compared to 20th in 1959. But the state occupies eighth place, one slot lower than 1959, in the percentage of adults with four or more years of college.

In average salaries of educators, the state has fallen from fourth to 10th, both for teachers and school administrators. But the current expense per pupil in the state is now estimated as being the third highest in the country, up from fourth place in 1959, and now, as it had fifteen years ago, the state government has the highest per-capita long term debt of any state.

Fifteen years ago Delaware ranked first in personal income per public school student and second in personal income. The state has fallen to 4th in per-capita income and 9th in personal income per student.

LF Board Meets

On Monday night at the high school, the Lake Forest School Board met for their regular monthly meeting. The Special Education Science Unit on Growth and Development emphasizing a visual approach to the physical processes of birth, growth and maturation was approved and will be in operation by the middle of November.

introduced a program to begin a 9th Grade basketball program this year at the high school. This would enable more boys to gain play experience before joining the varsity squad. This proposal was approved.

In other actions Lynn Parker, student advisory committee member, presented a plan to send students to Washington, D.C., for a week to participate in a program designed to expose young people to national government in action. It would be necessary for community groups to help finance this project. This matter was tabled for further consideration as was the matter presented by Mr. Gladden on the feasibility of constructing tennis courts at the high school.

A lingering matter was brought to the attention of the Board once again when Mr. Luff reported on the problem that could develop in the near future with the high school sewage treatment facilities. The Board will not consider alternative plans for altering these facilities if and when the need arises.

Police Give Halloween Safety Tips

Colonel James L. Ford, Jr., superintendent of the Delaware State Police, announced today that ghosts and goblins will soon be making an appearance to communities throughout Delaware.

"Halloween traditionally is a delightful time, not only for the very young, but for youthful 'minded persons of all ages," Ford said. "If certain precautions are taken, a good time can be had by all, but experience has shown that the trick or treat evening has not been all fun and games.

"Traffic accidents involving youthful pedestrians and extensive property damage of recent Halloween nights have prompted me to make the following suggestions:

"Parents should remind children to be extra careful in crossing streets. This is especially important if they are wearing dark costumes. It is a good idea to carry a flashlight, so the child can see where he is walking as well as to help motorists see him along the roads.

"An adult should accompany the smaller children. Parents should make sure that the masks or costumes do not restrict the child's vision to the point where he or she cannot see steps or other obstructions. Parents should caution children not to eat treats until everything is examined carefully by the parent, as pills and blades have been found in candy and apples.

"Motorists are reminded to drive slowly while keeping a sharp lookout for children walking along the roadway or crossing the street. Defensive drivers know that in spite of the best parental advice, excited children tend to forget safety rules.

"Homeowners should take in lawn furniture and any ornaments that might easily be carried off. Outside lights should be left on to discourage vandalism. Parents of the older children, who may be inclined to enjoy the tricks rather than the treats of Halloween, would be wise to caution youngsters about damaging property.

"Most victims do not regard destruction of their property as a Halloween trick. Under a law, parents can be held liable for any damage done by their children.

"The State Police will have every available officer on patrol during Halloween and mischief night. If we can get everyone to think about his responsibility to his neighbor, Halloween could be a real fun experience for everyone," Ford said.

The Harrington Journal Takes Maiden Voyage

By Harry G. Farrow, Jr. Publisher

From Frank Fleming to J. Harvey Burgess to Carrington H. and Winston Burgess and through six months by the current owners of The Harrington Journal, the newspaper since 1913 has been put together and printed each week in Harrington by a printing process known in the trade as "letterpress."

This week The Harrington Journal takes her maiden voyage by way of a new printing process called "offset." This type of process is designed to bring the reader a better product through modern methods. More about this process the press utilized as well as a goodbye tribute to the former system will be featured in next week's edition.

Ward Foundation Wildfowl Show Success At Salisbury

This past weekend the seventh annual Ward Foundation Wildfowl Carving and Arts Exhibit was held at the Civic Center in Salisbury, Md. There were some seventy carvers present and approximately two dozen artists from 30 odd states and two provinces of Canada. Each year the Ward Foundation presents this international show in order to preserve and further the art of carving waterfowl as well as painting them on canvas. Steve and Lem Ward, as they are known to thousands of people, are the ones who started it all almost 60 years ago. They began carving ducks and geese as early as 1918. Their father before them, Travis Ward, carved and dated two magnificent Canada Geese as early as 1917. The early Ward used the thin barn paint which was all that was available to him to paint the waterfowl. This naturally washed off, and was later repainted by Lem. On display this past weekend were the 60 some originals which both Steve and due to the fact that early carvers... and also true with the Indians... would search the river banks looking for small tree limbs with the right angle turn. From this type of wood, the head and neck of the waterfowl would be carved. The body of the decoy would be carved from another piece of wood. Therefore the early carvings took on crude shapes. As the Wards grew in experience, the wood carved decoys began to take a more natural shape as nature had intended. It took Lem Ward thirty years to achieve stardom, from the time he carved his earliest decoy to 1948 when he won the National Championship.

The Wards have a quiet home-spun nature about them. They still reside in Crisfield, Md. where they started as watermen. They made their living from the waterways before they became famous with their carvings. At the last graduating class at Salisbury State College, Lemuel T. and Stephen W. Ward were honored with honorary degrees of Litt. D., and the citation read that they "have created an art form that has its roots in the Eastern Shore." As duck hunters on the river banks looking for their initial decoys, which they shaped and painted had very practical uses. From their first efforts, made when they were in their teens, they progressed to real decoys and formed a "sort of partnership" in 1926. Since each had his special interests, they divided the tasks generally speaking with Stephen Ward doing the carving and Lemuel Ward the painting. Even at this very important ceremony at Salisbury State College the Wards seemed to be much more at home afterwards when they retired to a quiet corner of the reception room and engaged in barbershop harmony with members of the Foundation.

There have been few before the Wards who possessed the artistry which the Wards have, but there have been many since the Wards who have displayed that rare quality when it comes to the carving of waterfowl. The carvings of Gilbert Maggioni and Grainger McKoy were on display at the Show this weekend as well. These noted carvers exhibit a rare type of carving. Usually these artists depict birds in flight. They are usually suspended on a steel strand depicting perfect balance. Some at the show informed the viewers that "the pair of ducks" would be worth upwards of $25,000. The detail of the carved feathers on the bodies of the decoys raised some suspicion that the decoys were in fact real. The naked eye has been known to betray us at times, and many times the spectators were seen touching the bodies of the decoys testing the real life like features of the birds. The best in the world competition for 1974 were a pair (male and female) of red head drake and hen. Even after the touch of their "coats" by many of the onlookers, one could hear the remarks that the birds felt so life like. The exact detail was captured by a keen eye in order to gain the natural beauty of the species. It is so natural after one thinks on the subject that creatures from the wild...like waterfowl would be selected as subjects to be reproduced, for their beauty in the real or the make-believe is simply beyond words. To miss one of these shows of great living talent is truly a great loss. They had no one to copy but nature "herself" in the beginning.

Those that have come afterward have to a certain extent copied the style of the Wards, and naturally have improved upon that particular style of yesteryear. It is hard to pay tribute to the Ward brothers, for they are the truly unique ones. They are seemingly unmoved by greatness choosing to remain the "salt of the earth." The Foundation and its benefactors will long protect and support them for their great contribution to this "art and craft" like no other contribution in this century, for above all the Wards have paved the way for others to make a very profitable living. It would be fitting to say that the Wards have brought the genius out in others and thereby caused the preservation of this type of art and craft. As a witness to this rare type exhibition is one that shall leave an indelible impression in the mind of the beholder.

The three day affair was a tremendous success. The next Wildfowl Festival will be held in Easton, Md., Nov. 8 and 9. Make sure you attend so that you may witness the incredible works of art... and I shall look for you there....

"...under the 25th Amendment Rocky is right - BUT..."
The 25th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, section 2 does provide for the ways of filling the vacancy in the Office of the Vice-President of the United States. Recently in a New York press conference Nelson Rockefeller, President Ford's nominee to be the next Vice-President of the U.S., complained about the Senate's confirmation hearing on him for this office. He seemed to imply at any rate that the U.S. Senate had overstepped its province in delving into his background. For the most part the Senate hearings have disclosed the fact that Mr. Rockefeller has apparently spent money...sometimes a great deal of it... on many politicians. If this is true, I think that it is bad. Could the check book then become a wedge later on ... should the Senate confirm him... or will it be one prior to confirmation vote. Let's also look at those who accepted the gifts.

Section 2, of the 25th amendment, states that the President shall nominate... and confirmation shall be by majority vote by both Houses of Congress. It calls for a majority vote, but it does not define how the vote will be taken. Therefore it would imply that Congressional rules of procedure would be applied. Mr. Rockefeller is wrong then in his assessment of the confirmation situation. The Senate is not taking too long. The Senate has not gone beyond their scope of interrogation. For the most part all of this easy spending by various politicians is getting to be viewed and reviewed with contempt. We need to put an end to the "last of the big spenders." It will take courage in face, I am sure, of politician blackmail to reject this appointment.

"...if we are heart set on curbing inflation, then why don't we start at the top..."

Since becoming associated with the newspaper business, I have heard it said repeatedly that the biggest contributors to the rising spiral of inflation is government...or the politicians themselves. The whole theory and concept stems from the fact that government is constantly spending...spending...spending. I wonder whatever happened to the concept that we should endeavor to balance the budget...and cut the budget. We hear the President talk so much about fighting inflation, save here, cut there. What I would like to see is a salary cut by all the politicians. Salaries on the national level are staggering high right now, and it seems to me that an effort to share "their own salary" would be a step in the right direction...for after all, it was they who voted to have their salaries where they are now. It would follow therefore, that that is where the "cuts" should originate.

Roth Given Award

Senator Bill Roth has been cited by a national organization of small business firms as the only member of the U. S. Senate who supported government economy in every instance in 12 key votes during the past two years.

The senior senator from Delaware was presented a miniature gold bulldog by the National Associated Businessmen, a non-partisan organization, as a Watchdog of the Treasury Award. It was the fourth time Roth has received the award. He has received one every session he has served in the Congress.

In presenting the award, H. Vernon Scott, president of the National Associated Businessmen, said: "Your outstanding economy voting record indicates a keen awareness of the need for fiscal responsibility. It takes courage to resist the pressures for unnecessary Federal spending, which contributes to the high cost of living, and your record merits appreciation." Twenty-two other senators also were presented the Watchdog award for voting for economy on at least two-thirds of the key votes. Of them, four had an economy voting record of 83 percent, the second highest score in the Senate, the organization reported.

In th House of Representatives, 161 members were cited by the group for supporting fiscal responsibility.

Poems From Paradise Pastures

The following lines were penned under pressure, by Helen Libengood a distant relative of mine, back in Blairsville, Pa., my home town, in 1925, but might well apply today to similar plights of our own faithful fire-fighting fraus.

FIREMAN'S WIFE BLUES

The time just seems to drag along,
I speak the Gospel truth.
It makes no difference if your name
Is Helen, Jane or Ruth.

You sit around and wonder why
You chose this way of life,
But you can see my point of view
If you're a fireman's wife.

You cook supper then sit and wait,
And cuss a little bit.
And then you wonder, "Is he hurt?"
Then pray that won't be it.

I mean the reason he's not home
He should have come at four.
Now you start to beat a path
From the window to the door.

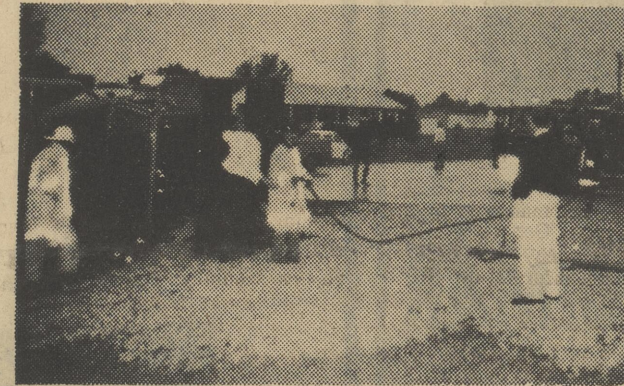

You spread a slice of bread or two,
The kids eat that with glee
Again you wander back and forth
And think, "Where can he be?"

Pretty soon the door bell rings,
You run and think with joy
That Dad is home from work at last,
But it's the paper boy.

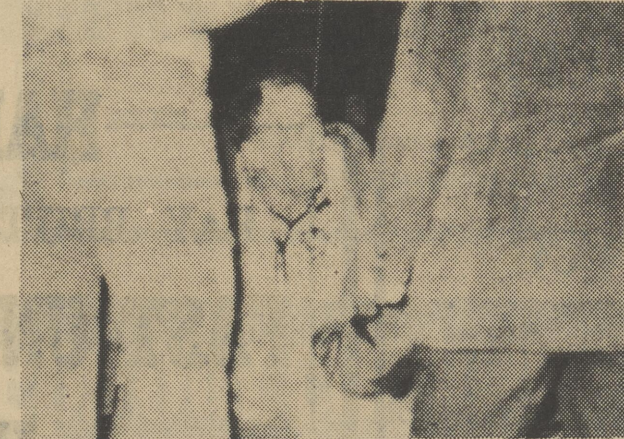

Come five, then six, he's still not home
Again you get so mad,
"Come kids sit down and eat your meal
To heck with dear old Dad."

And when the meal is almost done
Our Dad walks in the door.
He greets you with a little kiss
That's when you bubble o'er.

As calmly he sets down his grip
And says, "Did you miss me dear?"
I would have been home sooner
But I stopped to have a beer.

The famous and unique "wicker sleigh" on display at the N.D. Marvel Carriage Museum is dated circa 1900. It is in perfect condition.

D.A.R. Sponsors Tour Of Marvel Museum

The Nutter D. Marvel farm near Georgetown was the scene Saturday and Sunday for the Antique Carriage Museum Exhibit. This year Mr. Marvel allowed the Lewes D.A.R. to host the affair allowing the Chapter to receive the proceeds from the affair as well. The Lewes Chapter has recently purchased The Mall House in Lewes as their Chapter Headquarters. The exhibit drew about one thousand persons on Sunday.

Mr. Marvel over the years...perhaps as far back as his early childhood...collected the exotic in carriages. The exhibit is housed in two large farm-like buildings, but in actuality they are not se farm buildings. The "long shed" is the original Selbyville-Frankford freight station. The interior is now paneled with hundreds of photographs of the past displayed around the rooms. In the East Wing of this building, there are snow sleighs of various sorts and shapes. There is an "elephant bell" which once belonged to the Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey Circus. The East Wing of the building is really the Frankford Section, which also houses the Owens Station (near Ellendale) Post Office. The Selbyville Wing has eight sleighs or horse carts on display featuring the 3-seated buckboard and wicker sleigh made around the turn of the century. There is also the Viceroy (1 passenger), the Sussex County Side Bar buggy, the Felton buggy, the Side Bar buggy, and the Pony buggy.

Across the drive, there is situated a barn with a loft. This is referred to as the Barn Museum. Just inside the door is located a glass enclosed pine paneled cabinet which contains harness for all kinds of carriages. The saddle on display with the harness belonged to a judge in Sussex County. This saddle was also used on the "cook" or fifth horse in a five horse team. This allowed the horses to be rotated. There is a very early corn sheller which is hollowed out of a log and has the pestle with sheller. The Barn museum has two floors (the second floor was formerly the loft), which contains horse drawn carriages. There are 19 such carriages throughout this barn. It is obvious to the beholder that thousands and thousands of dollars have been spent collecting and restoring these "vehicles" of early travel. Among the 19 carriages is one formerly owned by Walt Disney. It is a four seated "ruff" brake wagon. This carriage will hold 11 passengers, and was used by Mr. Disney when he built the Florida Disneyland. Other interesting carriages were the Scotch Shooting Cart, which carried gunners and dogs in the rear with a capacity of 4 passengers, an Omnibus which carried passengers from the Railroad station to the Hotel in Georgetown, and 1891 Stanhope cutter made by Studebaker & Co. of N.Y., a Victorian Colonial carriage used by the Queen of England, which Mr. Marvel located many years ago in a coal yard in New York City. It is restored to perfect condition and is some times used today for weddings. The top folds down and carries two passengers and a driver. The lanterns have light panels of beveled glass. There was also a Sporting top carriage purchased from John H.

Lyndall of Magnolia, Del., which was made by the Felton Carriage Co., Felton, Del. Another sleigh of particular interest was the 4 seated sleigh, upholstered in red velvet.

As you leave this room which is beautifully decorated with every other board panel being walnut and every other board being cypress, you see by looking overhead the "old time hay fork" hanging from the ceiling overhead. In the room to the rear, still on the second floor, you find many antiques. There is a player piano, many photographs, an early racing sulky circa 1800 made by Cafferty of New Jersey. The horse hitched to the sulky is made of papier-mache. It is approximately 75 years old and the kind formerly used in front of harness stores. It was put out each morning and taken in every night.

In addition to the carriages, sleighs and antiques, there are many strands of bells hanging on the walls throughout the museum. The collection of bells alone is well worth seeing. In order to see the complete museum and study each photograph, it would take a person a good full day, but it is worth your while to visit this exhibit. It is truly priceless and beyond words of description.

Chipman Elects Officers

By Sharon Blackman
Treasurer S. C.

W. T. Chipman Junior High has had its annual Student Council elections. At the beginning of the school year each homeroom elects a representative for Student Council. This year's homeroom representatives are: (8th) Pete Roger, Janet Smith, Kenney Cerklafskie, Gordie Vincent, Lois Russum, Dennis Herman, Lori Donovan, Jeff Kashner, Jackie Williams, Jerry Miller, Kelly Graudfield, Sharon Bright, Donald Webb. It Seams To Me

Let your light shine. If you are using your sewing skill on holiday gifts or holiday clothes, let it sparkle.

Metallic threads in gold or silver provide a subtle attractive trim. They are easy to use, too. Multiple rows of top stitching can emphasize seam lines or garment edges. Use the zig-zag or other decorative machine stitches for special effects.

For machine stitching, use the metallic thread on top and a polyester-type thread on the bottom. Experiment with stitch length for your purpose. A longer stitch usually is more effective and less apt to pucker the fabric.

You can use metallic threads on any fabric. Devotees of jeans are even decorating them with gold and silver threads in spite of the unharmonious textures. Lightweight fabrics should be underlined for easier stitching. Use several rows of basting to hold the underlining in place. The underlining can be clipped away after the stitching is completed.

Metallic thread lends itself to hand embroidery also. Use it for monograms, transfer designs or your own original ideas. Ideas for original designs are all around you, and you'll take pride in knowing there is no other design like yours anywhere.

GENE JARREL

KENT COUNTY'S CHOICE FOR SHERIFF VOTE NOVEMBER 5

Paid By Jarrel For Sheriff Committee

Know Your Volunteer Fireman

Ken Garey is currently the Rescue Squad Captain for the Harrington Volunteer Fire Co. Ken has been active with the fire company for a number of years in both the ambulance crew and the fire fighting operations. Most recently he served in the administrative job of Recording Secretary for the company. In his present job, Ken's responsible for the maintenance and the equipment assigned to the fire company's rescue vehicle. Ken indicates that our rescue vehicle is now equipped with a modern piece of equipment known as a "Hurst Tool." This tool has proven to be very valuable in freeing people from wrecked automobiles in half the time it could have been done a few years ago. Now that the 1974 Harrington Fire Co. Fund Appeal is underway, Ken asks for the financial support that is so desperately needed if the company is to prosper and progress.

Many successful home gardeners frequently have small quantities of various fruits and vegetables in excess of their immediate needs, which often can be stored for future use. Storage facilities are very useful with a home garden at all times, especially so when a killing frost is predicted and one needs to harvest and store all the fruits and vegetables possible before freezing damage can occur. However, there are certain general rules in respect to storing vegetables if one wants to achieve the longest possible storage. These are:

 1) A fruit or vegetable should be mature or nearly mature at harvest, or it will not store well.
 2) It should be free of all visible evidence of disease.
 3) It should be free of severe insect damage.
 4) It should be handled carefully to avoid mechanical damage by cuts or bruises. Damaged fruits or vegetables are more likely to suffer mold or bacterial decay in storage.
 5) It should be harvested prior to any severe or killing frost. Light frost may not appear to injure some fruits and vegetables, but many do not store well if subjected to severe chilling even if the damage is not visibly apparent.
 Since frosts or freezes are not readily predictable for every individual location, some gardens may be damaged by a sudden frost not universally prevalent for the area, and gardeners may have to decide which vegetables to store, and which should be used immediately, discarded, or preserved by other means.

 Vegetables can be divided roughly into three groups on the basis of their susceptibility to freezing damage. The most susceptible are: asparagus, snap beans, lima beans, cucumbers, eggplant, lettuce, potatoes, sweet peppers, summer squash, winter squash, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, pumpkins.
 The least susceptible group: beets, kale, kohlrabi, salsify, brussels sprouts, cabbage (mature), parsnips, turnips.

Dr. and Mrs. Michael H. Woodall being extended a friendly hand by Jack Walls, current president of Milford School Board. Dr. and Mrs. Woodall were honored recently at an Open House at Milford H.S. cafeteria.

Legend has it that Chalehas the soothsayer, died of laughter at the thought of having outlived the predicted hour of his death.

JIM SOLES...
no stranger to the problems of the people in Delaware.

I spent years in honest overalls.
 I see what the economy is doing to people.
 I want to be a congressman to do something about it.

Some people say that one congressman can't do that much, but let me say, "That is the eternal excuse for doing nothing."

I will do what I can. I can be loud. I can work hard -- and I will.

It's time for a citizen congressman who is more concerned about what is happening to people, and doing something about it, rather than looking after his own political future.

I know what's happening to people in Delaware, and when I win this election, so will you!

Here And There

By Edna Massimilla
What Time?

It was Sunday morning and the church was empty. A knock at the Parsonage got the preacher from bed. 'Twas the end of October Daylight-saving was gone. Did everyone forget To turn their clocks ahead?

He smiled and said "Come back in two hours; Then it will be time For you to sing and pray."

Yes, it's the end of October. Standard time is back, But you should have turned Your clock the other way."

Don't forget your clocks this weekend. They are to be turned back one hour.

Debbie Neeman of near Rising Sun was the guest of honor at a birdal shower on October 16th, given by Betty Price and Kathy Massimilla, two of her attendants-to-be. Debbie will be married to Bill Abbott of Felton on November 3rd. She is a graduate of Lake Forest High School, class of 1972.

Does anyone need special hospital equipment? If so, call Lion Guy Johnson who is chairman of the Health Services. The location is Frederica and his number is 335-3965.

Mark your calendars for the yard sale to be held on November 2nd at Magnolia U.M. Church. There will be all kinds of items plus refreshments by the youth of the area.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Nalbome of Canterbury and their daughter, Betty, are vacationing in Florida this week. While there they will visit Debbie and Mike Fisher in St. Petersburg, former residents of Canterbury and Felton. They were married in August and he is studying law at a Florida university.

There's nothing like a Fall Hayride, and thanks to Jack Walton, the youth of Magnolia enjoyed a truckload of fun Sunday night. Advisors were Duane and Pat Preisen.

Another hayride coming up at Little Creek, along with a Halloween party on October 31st with fun planned for all. Little Creek people are also looking forward to November 8th when the Taylor Family, a known Gospel group, will present an evening of inspirational, evangelistic music at Little Creek U.M. Church.

hung his picture so I would remember what he looked like." Jim McGinnis has been in the General Assembly for 6 years so far, and must often be in the House of Representatives when certain bills are discussed and voted on. "As for campaign headquarters, right now our home is it" continues Phil. "Before the returns come in, he's nervous, and so am I." Phil, who was president of his class last year further remarked that it might be fulfilling to be in politics, and though he is a lot like his father, he wouldn't choose this field.

Randy Cripps, son of George W. Cripps who is running for Senator of the 18th District agrees with Phil that meeting many important people - the Governor and others, is great. "Though I don't go all out for politics, I am interested in everything that my father believes in; and I'm worried about this election because with all of Watergate, the Republicans are going to be hindered," he said.

REV. JAMES HILL

In light of a rapidly declining economy, an upwardly spiraling unemployment, and a general trend toward national pessimism, keen observers of segmented America agree a small light of optimism is gradually evolving to a point of newly acquired brilliance; Namely, the perilous situation before us shall only be succumbed as we look beyond self and unite as a nation.

I would that we in Kent County declare November 5th a day of Prayer, and all institutions of worship open their doors one hour before the polls, and remain open until the polls close. It is my prayer that we all take time to pray before we go to the polls and solicit divine-guidance in our selection of those persons who shall govern our Nation and County.

Chambers Elected President L.F. Athletic Booster Club

The Lake Forest Athletic Booster Club held its regular monthly meeting on October 17th.

The main business of the meeting was reorganization and election of officers for 1974-75. The following officers were elected: President, Cliff Chambers; Vice-President,

Sue Lemmons; Secretary, Betty L. Chambers; and Treasurer, Loretta Jackson. It was decided that the most important business at hand was to establish our goals and objectives for this year. Committees were named with the following persons being named Chairmen: Goals and Objectives, Millie Osmundson; Ways & Means, Joan Knaub; Publicity, Paul Mitchell; Membership, Doris McClellan; Programs, Bill Morris.

Each committee is made of enthusiastic people who will meet in individual committee and will be prepared to give a full report of their proposals at the Nov. meeting.

The October meeting was well attended with parents and some faculty and board members in attendance. It was an enthusiastic meeting with a profitable exchange of ideas toward better support of our school athletic programs in all the schools in the district.

$50.00 was appropriated toward the fund for purchase of new uniforms for the soccer and wrestling cheerleaders.

A current project of the Boosters is the display of posters in the school lobby to acknowledge all team victories. It is hoped the project will give encouragement to the team members and increase school spirit and pride for our teams among all the student body.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mitchell have been waging a very active campaign with letters and distribution of fliers to acquaint the communities with the Booster Club. Some consideration is being given to obtaining large label buttons denoting the Athletic Boosters for distribution with paid membership.

The Booster Club will sponsor a float in the parade for the Homecoming Football game this week.

The next meeting of the Athletic Booster Club will be held at the High School on Thursday, November 21, 1974, at 7:30 p.m. All parents and friends of our athletic teams are invited to join the Athletic Booster Club which meets the 3rd Thursday of each month. Your boys and girls need your support in this group effort!

Woodbridge Halts Lake Forest Win Streak

By Ray Blanchette

Friday, October 17, Lake Forest's two game win streak came to an abrupt halt thanks to Jim Weal and the rest of the Woodbridge Raiders to the tune of 21-6.

All the scoring came in the first half, and with the Spartans' advantage in ball control, 14:33 to 9:27, one could have expected a different score. Following Larry Tingle's recovery of a John Pickett fumble, on the first play from scrimmage, the home Raiders started a drive from the 31. From here, led by Jim Weal (13 carries, 128 yds.), it took the Raiders just 3:33 to score. The score came on a Rick Tull to Mike Harris 6 yard, disputed pass.

Following an unsuccessful Spartan drive, the Raiders again started a march downfield, this time from their own 24. After five plays Jim Weal swept right end and scampered into the end zone on a 54-yard run. With the extra point pass Woodbridge held a 14-0 lead with 3:04 still left in the first quarter.

Both teams had unsuccessful drives and then early in the second quarter the Spartans picked up their first, first down. Woodbridge then held but when Russell Dill dropped back to punt the excitement was just about to begin. With a fourth and seven situation, Dill took off straight up the middle and gained 29 yards before he was stopped on the 20.

Another big play was needed as on a fourth down four play quarterback Lester Blades got just enough for the first down on a quarterback keeper. From here two bone-crunching runs by Dill set up John Pickett's 3 yard run for the touchdown.

Following the touchdown, Lake Forest tried an on-side kick and recovered it. The half ran out before the Spartans could drive for another score.

The second half looked like it was going to be a replay of the first as on the first play from scrimmage Weal took off again and appeared to have scored a 50-yard touchdown. However, this was called back because of a mouthpiece penalty.

Next week is homecoming for the Spartans as they take on the Laurel Bulldogs (2-3).

Spartans Are 12th In New York City Race

Lake Forest High's cross country Spartans are enjoying one of their most interesting and successful seasons. Saturday 14 Harriers left at 6 a.m. on a 200 mile trip to Van Courtland Park, in the Bronx, New York City for the 24th annual St. John's University Invitational.

Despite the tiring ride, the Spartans did very well in a field of 41 teams, with 287 runners. Lake Forest came in 12th, as teams competed from Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Rhode Island and New York. The Empire State probably fielded the most teams. No other Delaware school competed.

Jim Blades hoped his Spartans could finish in the top half of the field but his boys did quite a bit better than that.

Dan Parker, a sensational 14-year-old freshman was the first Spartan to finish crossing in 38th place, covering 215 miles in 13:54. Joe Voshell

Dan Parker, a sensational 14-year-old freshman was the first Spartan to finish crossing in 38th place, covering 2.5 miles in 13:54. Joe Voshell (46th), Harry Benson (52), Terry Pettyjohn (89th), Kit Tilghman (93), Bob Kashner and David Richter ably represented Lake Forest and the Diamond State.

George Gibbs' 50th place finish led Lake Forest's jayvees to a 16th place finish in a 37-team field.

Other Spartans here were Paul McCellan, John Moffett, Herb Jarrell, Cliff Ayres, Charley Scott and Craig Kashner.

Milford's outstanding field general, Keith Betts, confers with head coach Walch during the Seaford game Friday night. At this point the game was out of reach for Seaford, but Milford never let up.
