Robbery Attempt Foiled

Leroy Calhoun, owner of L & D Electronics, can count himself a lucky man today, thanks to the vigilance of the Harrington Police.

If Corporal Royce Purcell had failed to glance in back of the Quillen Shopping Center early Friday morning or if he had not realized the van parked there was not Calhoun's, it has been estimated that $15,000 worth of merchandise could have been taken from Calhoun's shop, which carries televisions and related entertainment merchandise.

According to Harrington Police, Purcell was driving past the shopping center at 2 a.m. on his round when he happened to see the parked van behind the center. Realizing the green Chevrolet van did not belong to Calhoun, he approached for a closer inspection. His action scared off the two persons, who fled on foot.

Purcell called the state police and remained on the scene, where $5,000 worth of equipment has already been loaded into the van.

Four Delaware State Police arrived approximately ten minutes later and tracked the suspects with dogs to Center Street where the scent was lost.

Later inspection, however, revealed footprints behind Food Rite. Apparently the dogs were following the wrong scent.

The suspects forced entry into Discount Auto by breaking the front door lock and proceeded to break through a cinderblock wall into L & D's repair shop. Once inside, they apparently opened the back door and began to load merchandise from Calhoun's front display floor.

A green Chevrolet van, which is being held by city police, was used. The van was reported stolen by owner Steve Billings of Milford. Investigation of the attempted robbery is continuing at this writing.

Calhoun, who praised the work done by the police, was critical of the City's lack of complete protection. "If this had happened this past Tuesday night (24 hour protection was not available for that particular night, according to Calhoun) they could have gotten away with it." "The town doesn't want to pay any overtime. They

(the police) have to take the time off. This leaves the town some nights with no protection." Calhoun says on nights when there is no police protection all night he plans to stay in his store with his shotgun.

Calhoun says he speaks not only as a store owner, but also as the president of the local Chamber of Commerce.

He, along with several other shopping center residents agree that the lights at the center should remain on all night. Calhoun says he also plans to install a flood light behind his store.

All residents reported a problem with shoplifting. According to Sterling Mock at Harrington Food Rite, "If a person wants to get in bad enough there's always a way to get in. I'm just glad they didn't come through my wall."

Clarence Collins of Collins Clothier praised the local police for their work. "They're doing their job." According to Collins, "The law is going to have to tighten up...the judges are going to have to tighten up."

Pot It Was Not

Two Frederica youths were apprehended and released Friday night by the Harrington City Police for attempting to sell what they thought was marijuana to spectators at the Friday night Lake Forest-Delmar football game here.

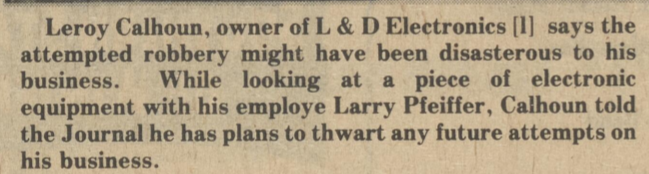

Chemical tests conducted by the Harrington City Police revealed the green contents of the small plastic bags that were clearly marked 5 were mimosa leaves.

According to reports, the youths were under the impression they had found a marijuana tree growing in Frederica. Fortunately, the tree was a mimosa. The youths were released in the custody of their parents.

Bridgeville Council Meets

Monday night, October 13 the Bridgeville Town council met in the Town Hall to discuss a few matters.

The first thing discussed following the approval of the minutes for the last meeting was the expenditures the town had during the past month. Discussed in this part was the fact that 21,386 dollars is still owed on the total cost of the new water tank which originally cost 139,740 dollars. Plans were for the new tank to be in operation by the end of this week. Also approved in the Leroy Calhoun, owner of L & D Electronics (l) says the attempted robbery might have been disastrous to his business. While looking at a piece of electronic equipment with his employe Larry Pfeiffer, Calhoun told the Journal he has plans to thwart any future attempts on his business.

The evaluation program covers many areas of the reading program, the mathematics program, social studies, science and environmental education, art and music. Mr. Parks reported that there are some 13 committees working in the Greenwood school. According to Parks "...we are doing a real good job and the information we are gathering will provide some help for guidelines to follow in the future."

Parks added that each of the committees is made up of a good cross section of the District. This gives a true overall picture of the system.

The policy of evaluating teachers as another topic was brought up with the hope that changes could be instituted. The old rule held that a new teacher should get three evaluations during the first year, a non-tenure teacher and a tenure teacher would evaluate twice a year. Board member William Tull who normally takes the lead in most discussions before the Board came up with the controlling suggestion that a first year teacher should get a least three formal evaluations, a non-tenure teacher get at least two formal evaluations and a tenure teacher receive one formal evaluation as a minimum. It was pointed out by Dr. Beckert, President in discussion that a

Weekly Report

by Senator Joseph Biden

This week the Senate gave its approval to a resolution approving the Middle East Peace Accords negotiated by Secretary of State Kissinger...

I voted against that resolution, both in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and on the final vote.

I want to be clear on one point: I do not oppose sending civilian technicians to the Sinai Desert as observers on the Egyptian - Israeli truce line...

What I do oppose is something far more fundamental.

In sending those technicians to the Middle East, Congress has triggered new commitments to Israel and Egypt which are largely unknown to the American people...

I think that's a mistake. It's a mistake when Congress allows commitments to be made without the full knowledge of the American people.

It is true that four secret documents containing agreements with Israel and Israel were declassified and published by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

But others exist which, to this day, are known only to the president, the State Department, the Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and the ranking Republican member of that Committee.

Thoughts

by Senator William Roth

The food stamp program is a good example of the way Federal programs frequently turn into something quite different than Congress intended when it established them.

The original purpose of the food stamp program was to provide assistance to people in genuine need. But under present regulations, more than 40 million persons -- one out of every five Americans -- is eligible to receive food stamps.

The number actually claiming these benefits has risen each year. More than 19 million persons are now receiving food stamps, and the cost to taxpayers exceeds $6 billion a year.

The food stamp law and administrative loopholes enable many persons who are not in need to qualify for benefits. For example:

There is no ceiling on personal income to qualify for food stamps; more than half those eligible have income above the poverty line.

College students may qualify regardless of their parents' income. Last year the University of California at Berkeley had 11,000 food stamp recipients; the University of Minnesota, 4,700; the University of Florida, 3,000.

Ownership of boats, cars, jewelry, and other luxury items is no bar to receiving food stamps.

In addition to these loopholes, lax administration has permitted many persons to illegally receive food stamps.

Other members -- myself included -- were not allowed to see them.

Furthermore, there exists a legal memorandum from the State Department outlining the Department's understanding of what is binding and what is not binding on the United States in the understandings we have made with Israel and Egypt.

Now that 200 technicians have been approved, the Administration will execute the accords with Israel and Egypt. Under international law, these executive agreements (they are not treaties even though they are written in the language of treaties) are binding upon the United States.

Thus, the Congress has given the President the right to bind us to potentially far-reaching agreements, some of which are completely unknown to the public, many of which are not understood, and none of which have been debated.

I am one Senator who believes strongly that the United States must continue to aid Israel. I have no objections to sending American technicians to the Sinai.

But, this is not the way to do it.

Whether you work for money or do a volunteer job, think about part-time work as a sort of conveyor belt to your future.

Part-time jobs are tremendously useful in helping you choose - or avoid - certain kinds of jobs in your future.

The importance of this is shown in newspaper help-wanted ads for full-time jobs. Many of them say "experienced only."

The best way to get around that problem is to work after school and during summers now. After graduation, employers will be more willing to give you a chance to build on the good work record you started as a student.

You may advance to fish hatchery manager or superintendent, fisheries management specialist, senior conservation technician, or private owner of a fish farm which operates for food or sport.

Earnings vary according to geographic location, job specialization, and ability. Experienced fish culture technicians earn about $6,800-$10,500 a year.

If you like to spend time outdoors, and you are concerned with the environment and conservation of our resources, you may be a super fish culture technician. The work is varied and interesting.

DuPont Reports

One of my colleagues suggested to me the other day that the Congress ought to be held responsible for practicing what it preaches--or more accurately, for practicing what it passes. He's right. Few people realize that Congress does not subject its own operations to those it forces on businesses. Nor do Congressmen and their staff members have to abide by the same groundrules as private employers.

For instance, I daresay my Washington office (or any other Congressional office) would not comply with the occupational safety and health regulations which we set down for others to follow. Mention OSHA to a small businessman and the likely reaction is a mixture of fear and rage. But Congress has exempted itself from those regulations -- and those emotions. While few would quarrel with the desirability, even the necessity, of safe and healthy workplaces, OSHA does not allow inspectors to point out possible unsafe conditions; it requires the offending company to be cited and fined instead.

But when Congress passed the act it defined the term "employer" as meaning "a person engaged in a business affecting commerce who has employees, but does not include the United States or any State of political subdivision of a State." Obviously, Congressmen view OSHA inspectors as unwelcome visitors. So they have insulated themselves from the burden OSHA imposes on the rest of the employers of the Nation.

The same holds true for equal employment opportunity. Congress has exempted itself from the EEOC regulations regarding discrimination in employment. And yet a recent study alleges sex discrimination on the staffs of the U.S. Senate, and a well documented press story reported racial discrimination in some twenty Congressional offices. This hardly provides a good example for the rest of the country.

In passing the laws of the land, if the Congress would apply the same rules to itself as it does to the rest of the country, I think we would see better, and fairer, legislation.

Career Corner

Disadvantages include long hours and working outdoors in all kinds of weather. The work often is physically demanding. Data must be gathered according to the fish's time table - you may have to work evenings and weekends. In addition, you don't always end up smelling like a rose. You have to adjust to the rather overpowering fishy odor.

The field is new and it is only expanding slowly. Job opportunities for fish culture technicians may brighten as new uses are found for fisheries' products and as more federal, state, and private agencies employ technicians to aid biologists and other researchers in fish culture.

Fish culture technology could be for you. Think of being paid for going fishing.

If you aren't sure why adults nudge you to get a part-time job - other than to stash cash in your pockets - here are six solid reasons:

(1) You find out what it's like to work in the world outside of school. It's really a very different activity. So different, in fact, that you won't fully understand what we mean until you've worked at some kind of a job.

Through working, you can form experience-based ideas of what you like and don't like. To illustrate, you may find that you detest working in large groups, or you may find that crowds please you. You may find that working in the great outdoors is your thing, or you may find that laboring in 90-degree summer heat is too much of a sweat.

Part-time jobs are tremendously useful in helping you choose - or avoid - certain kinds of jobs in your future.

Del Tech Advises Veterans To Apply Early

Veterans who are thinking about enrolling at Delaware Technical and Community College for any of the programs offered will be wise to apply early, according to Ron McCool, Veterans' counselor at the Southern Campus.

According to McCool, there is about a two-month delay in receipt of educational benefits, because of the large number of applications to be processed by the V.A. His advice is to start the application on its route now, so that the benefits will be received in time for winter quarter registration on December 2.

McCool started work as veteran's counselor in 1973; at that time there were 135 taking advantage of the educational benefits. The number increased to 181 that first year for a 41% increase; the following year, with 396 veterans enrolled, the increase was 217%. Fall enrollment this year brought in 354 registrations, which McCool says will increase by the end of next spring's quarter. He estimates about 425 veterans will have come to the college this academic year for a variety of programs, making use of benefits to further their education or training.

Keep The Goblins Safe

Ms. Finch suggests that children be instructed to eat nothing until parents have looked over the "loot." Parents should go through the bags of treats, disposing of anything that looks questionable. Candy and gum wrappers should be intact. Items individually wrapped should be checked. Unwrapped candy, cookies and other treats should be discarded because they may not be very clean.

Ideally, of course, children should never be exposed to open flames on Halloween. Certainly they should NEVER carry lighted candles. Give them a flashlight for dark areas. Hopefully, the neighbors won't have lighted candles on porches where children might brush up against them.

Young children should be accompanied by an adult or responsible teenager when they go "trick-or-treating." Older children should go in groups of four or five. They should be limited to the area they're familiar with. That should help them know where unfriendly dogs and unfriendly people-live, and to avoid these places.

When older children go out on their own at Halloween, it is a good idea for parents to know where they plan to go. Reminders may be necessary as to what is fun and what is destructive behavior. Reminders on how to ask for treats and how to respond to both those who give treats and those who do not.

After Halloween each year, there are newspaper accounts of children who have been endangered or injured by such things as poisoned candy or apples containing razor blades. These incidents are rare, but they happen often enough to be on our guard.

Candy and gum wrappers should be intact. Items individually wrapped should be checked. Unwrapped candy, cookies and other treats should be discarded because they may not be very clean.

Business Notes: Seven winners were drawn by Joe Webb, Jr. who had submitted their names for the drawing during the "New Car Showing" of the new Fords, Lincolns and Mercurys.

The winners were Harry Palmer Moore of Georgetown, who won a Polaroid Camera and case, Anne Hickey of Claymont who won a Lady Norelec electric razor, William Myers, Jr. of Felton who won a West Band six quart Slo-Cooker, John B. Walls of Milford who won a five quart electric ice cream freezer, David A. Houseman of Ellendale who won a highway emergency kit, V. George Carey of Milford who won a Norelec Rotary Razor and Robert L. Abbott of Milford who won bathroom scales.

Farmers who employ eleven or more full or part-time employees at any one time during the previous calendar year are required to keep Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) records.

However, if his employees are only members of his immediate family or neighbors who help at specific times as a neighborly gesture, then record keeping is not required.

OSHA record keeping is not complicated. The following three forms must be maintained:

1. The Log (Osha No. 100) This log is a convenient means of classifying injury and illness cases and for nothing the extent and outcome of each. Not every injury or illness occurring in the work place is recordable as explained on the back of the log. The employer must enter each recordable case on the log within six work-days after learning of its occurrence. The logs must be kept current for five years following the end of the year to which they refer.

2. The Supplementary Record (OSHA No. 101) This form contains additional information for every recordable injury or illness. Workmen's compensation insurance or other reports are acceptable supplementary records if they contain all items found in the OSHA No. 101 form.

3. The Summary (OSHA No. 102) This form is a calendar year summary of log entries. A copy of this summary must be posted no later than February 1 and remain in place until March 1, in a place where all employees are likely to see it.

These records must remain in the establishment for five years after the year to which they relate.

All farm employers must report any accident which results in one or more deaths or in the hospitalization of five or more employees. The report must be made within 48 hours after the accident to the Area Director of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. This may be expedited through the Delaware Department of Labor in Wilmington by calling (302) 571-2979.

In addition, all Delaware farm employers are required by law to display the OSHA poster. Even if an employer employs only one employee full or part-time, he is required to display the OSHA poster prominently in the place where his employees report to work. The poster explains the protections and obligations of employees under the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

The Record Keeping Requirements booklet, Revised 1975, and the OSHA poster are available through the Delaware Department of Labor, 618 N. Union Street, Wilmington.

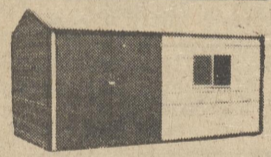

For any questions concerning you and the Occupational Safety and Health Act, contact Ronald C. Jester, Extension Farm Safety Specialist, University of Delaware Substation, R.D. 2, Box 48, Georgetown 19947.

They come in car pools and sometimes even rented buses to save 40 to 75 per cent on the finest bedspreads, made to measure draperies and linens. They drive from miles around to buy the highest-quality towels, rugs, sheets and pillowcases, pillows, piece goods, placemats and blankets at prices far below those found in department stores. If you haven't been there, you'd better come and see for yourself. Open the first and third Saturdays of each month 9 a.m.-2 p.m. Why not stop by on your way to the beach?

It Seems To Me

By Janet Reed

A professional result in a minimum of time is what most seamstresses want. We are constantly looking for good, timesaving ideas we can use. Here are some ideas you might use, too.

Gathered skirts are back in style, along with softer fabrics. If you have ever had the thread break as you pulled up the gathering thread, try this suggestion. Cut a length of button or carpet thread, or other strong cord, the length of the fabric to be gathered. On the wrong side, just inside the seam line, fasten the end firmly with several back-and-forth machine stitches.

Then, using the widest zig-zag setting and a fairly long stitch, zigzag over the heavy ends or tacking them to the seam allowance. If you can't find elastic in the color that is right, use several strands of your sewing thread and crochet a chain which can be attached in the same way.

Knit fabrics do not require as much ease in the sleeve cap as woven fabrics. Firm fabrics of man-made fibers may be difficult to ease in anyway. One way to eliminate this problem is to shorten the sleeve cap by one-quarter inch. Fold a one-eighth-inch tuck in the paper pattern above the paper notches. Adjust other markings accordingly.

Another sleeve suggestion for difficult fabrics is the placement of gathering stitches around the sleeve cap. Use this only on fabrics that do not leave a stitching mark. Instead of placing both rows of gathering thread in the seam allowance, place one inside the seam line and the other outside the seam line. Pull up both threads at the same time, adjusting fullness to fit the armhole. Stitch sleeve to bodice between the two rows of stitching and you'll have a sleeve with no gathers caught in the stitching line.

Spartans Finish Third In 19-Team Test

The Fourth Annual Delmarva cross-country Championship Run, sponsored by Salisbury State College, saw the closest team race yet. Cape Henlopen, led by race winner Lance White, tallied 75 points to nose out Caesar

Rodney (78 points) and Lake Forest (79 points). Lake Forest, runnerup in the previous three runs, finished ahead of the 1974 winner Surratville, Md., a Washington D.C. suburban school and the other previous winners, Christiana and Dover Air. The Spartans ran an excellent race, finishing five runners in the first 23 of the 132-man field, with the other two locals close behind. The evenly-matched Henlopen Conference teams won the three team trophies that were up for grabs in the tri-state affair. Dan Parker was sixth despite running off course and therefore won one of the ten individual awards. Chris Palmisano and Dave Richter, underclassmen like Parker, ran very well to finish 12th and 16th. Seniors Terry Pettyjohn and Chuck Carter were 22nd and 23rd. Non-scorers who nevertheless beat 100 or more runners were Craig Kashner (29) and Bob Mullane (32).

Harry Benson, unable to compete or train for three weeks, due to tendonitis, ran in the jayvee meet as a test of his ailing knee. The injured member held up fine and Benson was an easy winner over a 100-plus field. Harry ran in the previous three Delmarva Invitationals and was a top-10 finisher each time. But for the tendonitis, Lake Forest would have won the Delmarva title this time. The jayvee meet was an easy victory for the well balanced Spartans. After Benson and an Indian River harrier, Brendan Warner, Spartans Howard Parker, Paul McClellan, Louis Thomas and Herb Jarrell, occupied the next four spots.

The three-mile test through the beautiful Salisbury City Park area saw many Spartans run well, including Bill Mitchell, Nathan Morris and John Gilmore of W.T. Chipman School.

Delmar Wins First Game

For the first time this year the new rule governing ball games at the end of regulation play presented itself on Friday night on the Chipman field. Delmar led at the end of the half 7-0. At the start of the second half, Delmar went on a march of 70 yards in 11 plays to score their second touchdown. Delmar led at point 13-0. In the first half, L.F.

Spartan Lose In First Overtime Game

set up Delmar's first score when the latter recovered a fumble at about mid-field. From there Delmar took it in. The real turnovers were the number of yards L.F. suffered on penalties. Each Fleming reported that he knew of at least 165 yards plus as he described it. The mark could be around 200 yards.

Lake Forest experienced on of its better nights offensively. The total rushing yards were 310 yards with 258 on the ground in 32 carries for an average of just over eight yards per carry and 52 yards through the air. I these stats Neal Smith carried the ball approximately seven times for considerable yardage. He was also three for seven in the air but two were nullified by penalties making his evening two completions in five attempts. Lester Blades was also two for two while Billy Moore, the sophomore, was two for five. The longest pass play was an 18 yarder from Lester Blades to Wayne Voshell. The longest pass play was 31 yarder, but it ended up being a 16 yard gainer with a 15 yard penalty.

On the first score of the game by Delmar, they recovered a fumble at mid-field, moved on a counter play for 32 yards. This was the one which was partially nullified by a penalty.

When the last touchdown was scored by L.F. a penalty was called due to 12 men being on the field at one time by one or other team. L.F. had kicked the extra point making the score at this point 14-13. The penalty nullified this.

Fleming said this week's game concerns him from the standpoint that he wants to get the players mentally up for the game. He had high praise for his running backs feeling that all had run well again Delmar. He pointed out that Ronnie Loper had run "the good Counters." Neal ran well and had plenty of yardage, and Mike Benson had the longest run of the night on a counter play for 32 yards. This was the one which was partially nullified by a penalty.

This week the Spartans go against the Senators in Dover. A win here could turn their season completely around for them.

Dover Air Spoils Homecoming For Woodbridge : Miss Joni Delores Named Queen

Friday night was homecoming for Woodbridge High. Although the final score of the game between Dover Air and Woodbridge did not favor Woodbridge, the half time ceremonies by this small school were quite impressive.

There were four floats in the homecoming parade. The sophomore Class (78) won first prize. Their float's theme was "Fry the Falcons." Second place went to the Senior Class with the theme "Cage the Falcons." The Homecoming Queen and her Court was as follows: Queen selected: Miss Joni Zerolles, a Senior and daughter of Mrs. Delores Zerolles. Her activities include field hockey, basketball, softball and varsity club. She likes drawing and watching professional sports. Miss Jamie Closser, a freshman and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond activities include all sports, member of F.B.L.A., newspaper staff, and office aide; Sue Stuart, a junior and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Stuart. Her activities include Delegate AT Large S.G.A., News Editor of Newspaper, like karate and reading; Miss Cathy Zoch, freshman and daughter of Mrs. Louise Zoch. Her activities include sec. to F.B.L.A. and teacher's aide. She likes music and motorcycles.

After a sensational victory the previous Friday night against a strong Milford eleven, Woodbridge fell victim to the blahs in losing to Dover Air.

Where in the Milford game Woodbridge boys hit all of the tackles, broke down Milford's interference, against Dover Air they could not get anything going. The factor which contributed largely to Woodbridge's loss was the six turnovers. Woodbridge fumbled three times in the first half and Tull threw three interceptions in the second half.

In yardage rushing Woodbridge was 108 in 32 carries with an average of 3.4 yards per carry. Woodbridge did not have the opportunity to punt the ball on Friday night. In the passing department Tull was nine for 15 in the air for 108 yards and three interceptions. Lewis Dexter was zero for one.

Nathaniel (Spank) Neal had three catches for 22 yards with his longest gain being 12 yards. Woodbridge had three penalties called against them for 25 yards. Gary Baker intercepted one of Mike Purcell's aerials for Woodbridge.

Dover Air on the other hand had 231 yards rushing in 56 carries for an average of 4.1 yards per carry. Mike Purcell, number 34, was all over the football field for Dover Air.

The score was 7-6 at half time in favor of Woodbridge with Dover Air pulling away in the final quarter. Dover Air kicked twice for 54 yards with an average of 27 yards per kick. In summary the Woodbridge coaches summed it all up by saying that the loss to Dover Air was simply due to Woodbridge giving the ball up too often and poor positioning which caused missed tackles and the like. Woodbridge goes on the road Friday night against Laurel.
