Craftsmen Still Sought For Harrington Bicentennial Activities

Plans are continuing for "Ye Olde Towne Picnic" which will be the kick-off Bicentennial celebration for the Harrington community to be held Monday, May 31. Basically, the picnic will try to recreate the kind of celebration lots of small communities had in the past on Memorial Day.

Traditionally, the day started off with a remembrance of the dead and the rest of the day was spent feeling good about being alive.

The committee hopes the picnic will be a day in which a family can have fun doing things together, eating, singing, playing games, watching craft demonstrations, etc.

A Bicentennial costume fashion show is in the works, so, get out the needle and thread and join our fashion show.

The committee would like to contact craftspeople in the area who would like to display their skills at the picnic. Call Bernadine Butler, 398-4370, if interested.

It's not too late to join the board contest. The whole

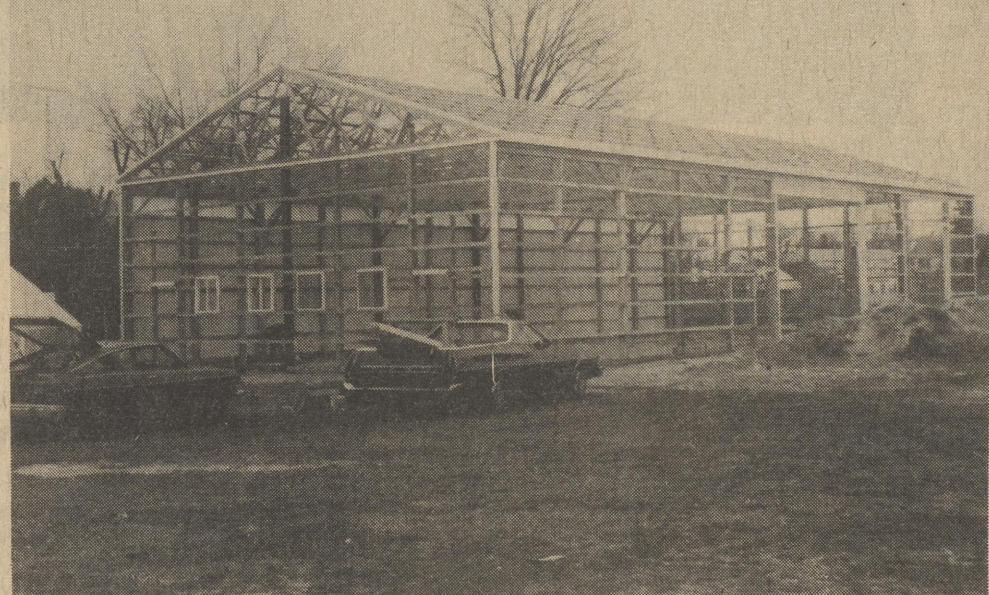

Bicentennial celebration is so much more enjoyable and meaningful if people get personally involved in it and the Beard Contest is one way to get involved.

The talent search continues for the talent show which will be held on the evening of the picnic. Call Nancy Thompson for more information about the talent show.

Chipman Talent Show Set

On April 9, the W.T. Chipman Jr. Band is sponsoring a Talent Show in the W.T. Chipman gym. The show will begin at 7:30 p.m. and last until all talent has been presented. There will be a 50 cent admission price for all children under six will be admitted free. The first prize winner will receive $20, $10 for 2nd and 3rd and $5 for 4th and 5th. The talent show will include a lot of variety and promises to be an interesting night for all.

The new ag. building at Woodbridge High School begins to take shape this week. The dimensions of the building are 88' x 44' x 16' high. The new building will provide room for the shop (repairs for farm machinery.) The building will have steel siding, aluminum roof, and will have two classrooms. The building is slated to be completed by the end of April. The cost of the structure, which does not include finishing it off inside will be $23,845.

Will Repair Woodbridge Boilers

At the Woodbridge monthly meeting, chief custodian George Slacum gave a report of the condition of the boilers at the Greenwood school.

For the past several meetings of the school board, reports had been filtering in that the boilers were in bad shape, were not expected to last out the year, and that the burners also needed replacing.

After Superintendent Foster Flint introduced remarks regarding the boilers and Slacum explained the situation, school board member William Tull asked about the condition of the boilers. The answers which had been given previously were the boilers needed to be replaced. However, answers which Tull began to get to

'Sensational' Is Best Description of Lake Forest Production of 'Godspell'

by Millard Ellingsworth III

"Sensational" would be the only word to describe Lake Forest High School's version of "Godspell".

"Godspell" is a musical based on the Gospel according to St. Matthew and was written by Stephen Schwartz and produced by Theatre Maximus, New York, New York.

This seems to be an appropriate time to give credit to all those involved in the Senior class production. Those in the cast are: Steve Saulsbury, Clinton Graham, Jimmy Callaway, Bob Draper, Cathy Biggs, Maureen Grandfield, Susie Hughes, Cindy Hurd, Donnie Lloyd and Mary Jean Mason, Alternates are

The play is under the direction of Bill Comer. The Musical Director is Jane Singleton; associate directors are: Joyce Simmons, Rae Ann Redman, Pam Comer, Denise Bickling and Nancy Campbell.

Costume design and execution was by Pam Comer, lighting design by Sharyn Williamson and make-up by Marina Knipe. Advisor to the book was Rev. Bruce Shortell, Production manager was Mike Shortell, Student Director was Janet Russell and Trixie Petroski was assistant to the director.

The play involved showing the parables and ideas of St. Matthew's gospel in more modern and more memorable way. It would take pages to try to explain a single one because the action took place in all corners of the stage.

One of the play's largest attributes was its costumes, all of which were bright and colorful, which all added to the gaiety of the scene.

The music must also be commended. At times it was soothing, touching, stirring and exciting. Nick Wayne - Keyboard, Bill McGinnes - Percussion, and Russell Dill - Percussion.

One last thing: If you haven't seen "Godspell," you should. It's touching. Next performances are: tonight 8, Friday 8 and Saturday at 6 and 8 p.m.

BY Melvin L. Brobst

"Godspell," a musical based on the Gospel according to St. Matthew, with music and lyrics by Stephen Schwartz, as produced by Theatre Maximus, of New York City, has been enjoying a bouncing production at Lake Forest North Elementary School in Felton, and presented by the Lake Forest High School, capably directed by Bill Comer of the staff in the school district.

The Frederica sewer installation project continues, with some inconvenience and torn up streets at the same time. The project nears completion, however, and the signs of utility construction as viewed on Market Street will be only a memory when the job is done.

Old Dover Days Features Special Attractions

This year's Old Dover Days horse and carriage promenade will have the added attraction of Delaware's official Bicentennial wagon in addition to the authentic horsemen and carriages which have become a tradition in the celebration. The wagon is an authentic replica of those "prairie schooners" which carried Americans westward. The wagon is one of fifty, one from each state, that is making the trip to Valley Forge, Pennsylvania for a July 4 celebration.

According to Mr. Donald Ebaugh, coordinator of the promenade for Dover Days, "the promenade of horsemen, carriages, colonial riders, the wagon, western riders, and Indians, all led by Caesar Rodney, will assemble at 3 p.m. Saturday afternoon, May 8." The promenade through Dover will begin at 4:15 p.m. and arrive at Legislative Hall in time for the 5 p.m. presentation ceremony. It is expected that carriages and horsemen will be about town all afternoon, lending an authentic air to Old Dover Days.

All riders, carriages, and wagons are welcome to participate in the promenade.

For more information contact Donald Ebaugh at 678-4714 (day) or 736-1263 (evening). Mr. Ebaugh also has information on the Bicentennial wagon's visits to other Delaware towns and the trip to Valley Forge.

Old Dover Days is set for the second weekend in May (8-9) with special opening ceremonies planned for Friday evening May 7. Over thirty-five historic homes and buildings will be open for the celebration which is sponsored by the Friends of Old Dover. Many other festivities are also scheduled including crafts exhibits, colonial games and dancing.

General Chairman of Old Dover Days is Sue Fox. Other members of the committee are: Hattye Mae Bidle, Festivities; Susie Terry, Tour; Carol Petty, Public Relations; and Joann Penuel, secretary.

Ticket prices for the event are: Adult - $5, Senior Citizen - $3.50, Student - $2, and Group Rate - $3.50 (for advance orders or 25 or more). Contact Ticket Chairman, Friends of Old Dover, P. O. Box 44, Dover, Delaware 19901.

Host Families Needed For Visiting Teachers

More Kent County area families are needed to host English-speaking European teachers as guests in their homes for a 10-day period during July 1 and August 1976 it was announced today by the American Host Foundation.

American Host is one of the few non-governmental programs designed to show the American way of life to foreign teachers by pairing them with American families, and has been endorsed by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration as a nationwide home hospitality program.

Now in its fifteenth year, American Host has opened doors to better understanding for more than 9,000 European visitors who have passed on their new understanding of America to their colleagues, students and friends.

Being a "Host Family" is open to anyone who has the desire to increase understanding of friendship between Americans and Europeans. Host Families are required to provide a private room, meals for their guest, the opportunity to meet their friends and neighbors and to see places of interest in the area.

American Host arranges all transportation. Host Families are asked to meet their guest upon arrival in their area. Visitors and Host Families have an opportunity to correspond for a least a month before meeting.

Arrangements for participating as a Host Family can be made by writing: American Host Foundation, Hotel Commodore, Suite 2100, Park Avenue at 41st Street, New York, New York 10017, (212) 683-6567.

A communion took place at 7:30 p.m. in Christ Episcopal Church of Milford as a commemoration of the date.

Felton Crash Sends 15 To Hospital

Fifteen people were hurt Sunday in a four-car collision at the intersection of U.S. 13 and Delaware 12, state police said.

Lillian E. Atock, 70, of the 300 block Cleveland Ave., McDaniel Crest, near Wilmington, was making a turn at the intersection at 2:20 p.m. when her car collided with another, police said.

Two more vehicles plowed into the wreckage.

Police charged Mrs. Atock with careless driving. She was fined $10 plus cost at Magistrate Court 7, Dover and released.

The 15 injured were discharged after treatment at Kent General Hospital, Dover. Police did not release their names.

Adams Is New Raceway Head

State Senator Thurman G. Adams, Jr. of Bridgeville was elected President of Harrington Raceway at their Board of Directors meeting held March 11 at the Raceways office in Harrington.

Other officers elected were: Russell Kirby of Milford, Vice-President; Herbert C. Chase of Church Hill, Maryland, Treasurer; and George C. Simpson of Houston, Secretary and General Manager. Other members of the Board are: Ned Davis and Walter Ellis, both of Dover and Walter Messick and William Parker, Sr., both of Harrington.

Sen. Adams served as Vice-President of the track during the past year and took over its leadership when its late President, J. Gordon Smith became seriously ill last fall and passed away in November.

As the fifth President of Harrington Raceway since pari-mutuel wagering began in 1946, Adams will open the 1976 Spring Meet on March 28th. Racing will continue through May 8th, with Mondays and Tuesdays being dark nights.

Riders Needed For Skating Bus

The bus taking children from the Harrington area to the Dover skating rink still needs more children, according to Mrs. Charles Bright. The originator of the idea, Mrs. Bright says between 35 to 50 children are needed to keep the bus running from Harrington to the Capital Skating Arena. She hopes the interest will continue to the extent that summer trips might be planned. For information, call 398-4301.

The Felton Bicentennial plate is shown above. Buildings of historic significance are grouped on the antique white plate trimmed in gold.

Mrs. Edie Hemphill said 100 plates had already been sold and more are on order.

Felton Gets Bicentennial Plate

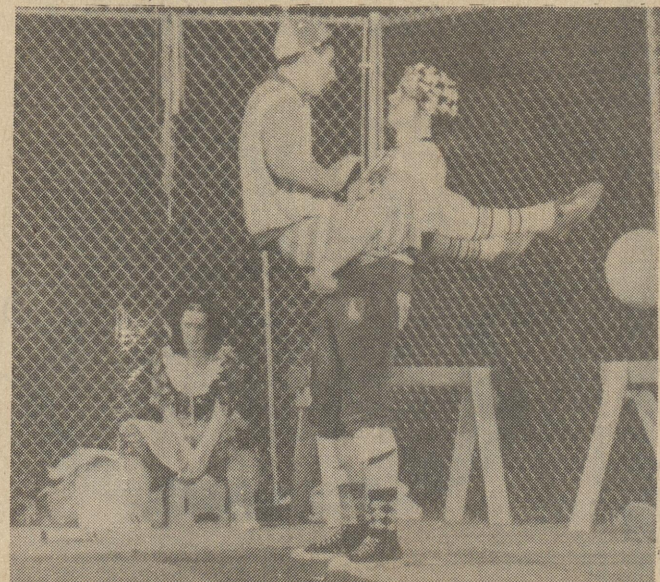

Friday, March 19, the membership of Bicentennial Committee and Town Council judge all 21 entries for the town crest. Anyone knowing any of the entries were to disqualified themselves before the voting began. There were entries from Lake Forest North Elementary, Lake Forest High School and W. T.

Chipman Jr. High also interested area residents. After much deliberation the six entries were chosen and then it really became a hard job. Then finally the voting was over and a student from Lake Forest, High School Dolores Kukulka of Harrington won first prize, a $25 savings bond. Second prize of $15 went to Mr. Ronald Stupt of Felton and honorable mention went to Steven Saulsbury of Felton for an excellent drawing. All entries will be on display on June 26th for all to see.

Schools Close

All schools in the Lake Forest School District will dismiss their pupils at 1 p.m. on Friday, April 2 in order to provide inservice programs for teachers and administrators.

The Prodigal son, Bob Draper, returns to his father, Jim Callaway in a scene from "Godspell."

Jesus, Steve Saulsbury, relates a parable to the audience during Lake Forest's "Godspell."

Reviews Production of Godspell

The performance attended was the one given last Sunday evening, and has alternate castings with each presentation. No special characterization will be singled out for praise or criticism, for the entire production is presented with such outstanding coordination that comparison between individuals would be uncompromising. However, two contributions must be considered, for without them, all else would have been so much rambling on stage, and they are: the direction by the evidently tireless Mr. Comer, and the eloquent accompaniment provided by the keyboard of Mr. Nick Wayne.

The musical direction of Jane Singleton must also be included in any praise of the supervision, for the musical numbers blended themselves during the story that made one unaware of their significance until the close, when the facts that were presented on stage made themselves clear and understandable.

This production was no easy task. True, with each production the scenes fall into place and the words and music make a sequence that while seemingly facetious the impact is strong when it hits home.

For the traditionalists, this is not an unfolding that they must take too seriously if it conflicts with the background of training and religious development. It must be considered in the light of today. It will not convert the heathen to Christianity, sway the atheist nor even the agnostic, but neither should it belittle the faith of the true Christian.

One should go and see this production and judge for oneself. These young people work splendidly together, and deserve nothing but the highest praise for their endeavors. Surely no one will go away from the auditorium feeling sorry for the young people so engaged, but feel only that the coming generation is truly finding

The following report was written by Paula Prettyman, Troop #492.

"I like roller-skating because it's a challenge to learn and because it is good exercise. It makes you feel free when you buzz around the rink and it's fun to compare yourself to others and realize you're better or worse than they are.

Some of the rules are: don't cut in front of other people. Go only as fast as you can control yourself. Don't hold on to other people if you feel you're going to fall. Don't chase each other. Everyone must skate the same way. Always be polite."

Recent graduates of the rollers skating program at the Felton Roller Rink gather for a group picture. The program is open to Scout troops.

Weekly Report By Senator Joseph Biden

When it was disclosed some months ago that the United States had been secretly involved in the support of two factions in the three-way tribal civil war then being fought in the far-off African country of Angola, there was an immediate outcry.

With every justification, from my point of view, Congress ordered an end to American involvement, and I take some pride in the fact that I helped lead that effort to cut off secret aid.

Similarly, there was an outcry when American arms were used by Turkey in a clash with Greek forces over Cyprus. Again, the concern was legitimate: arms aid is given with the clear understanding that it will be used only for defensive purpose not for aggression.

I raise these points to illustrate the fact that Congress responds, justifiably, to those foreign policy crises that involve confrontation or other highly-visible issues.

Yet, there is one issue which we have not really come to grips with - and it is one that may well be, in the long run, the most important foreign policy issue now facing the United States.

I'm talking about nuclear proliferation - the spread of atomic knowledge all around the world sufficient to enable even small countries to build nuclear weapons if they have the determination.

What troubles me is that the danger of nuclear proliferation has not really penetrated the consciousness of American administrations, whether they be Republican or Democratic. Nor has the danger been perceived by the American public. Yet, in the long run, it is a problem that holds much more potential danger than other, more visible, issues.

The troubles is that we tend to treat the problem of nuclear proliferation as we would a possible cancer: we don't think about it, because the consequences are too terrible to contemplate. We just hope it will go away.

Present international controls to stop the spread of nuclear weapons are simply not adequate. All that they can do - at best - is to "blow the whistle" on violations of international agreements of transfers of nuclear materials or facilities - usually after the fact. Beyond that, it's up to each country to act individually.

The lack of international controls pose severe future problems for the United States. If the trend toward proliferation continues, we will be willing - or able - to take unilateral action to stop the spread of nuclear weapons, in the absence of international sanctions?

I am not advocating any kind of unilateral action, and I want to be very clear on that point. But it does seem to me that if we are going to avoid future problems more serious than present dangers, then it's time the American people and government started paying more attention to stopping the spread of nuclear material and facilities capable of being turned into weapons of destruction.

Thoughts.....

By Senator William Roth

One of the most obvious but least understood sources of energy for the future is the sun.

The Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) will soon establish a national center for research on solar energy. This Solar Energy Research Institute will bring millions of dollars into the state where it is located. ERDA will decide on the location within the next several months, and a lot of states, including Delaware, are hoping to be chosen.

A Task for Energy Research and Development which I formed in 1974 has been hard at work trying to persuade ERDA to put the Institute in Delaware. I think our qualifications are as good as those of any other state.

The University of Delaware has already done a great deal of research on solar energy. Its Institute of Energy Conversion has a staff of about 50. In addition, our state has some of the best-equipped and best-staffed industrial laboratories in the world.

The Roth Task Force, headed by Ralph Gottshall, has been meeting regularly, both in my Wilmington office and in my Washington office, with officials of ERDA. University of Delaware officials also have participated. Dr. Irving Greenfield, dean of engineering at the university, is a member of our Task Force.

We decided long ago to concentrate our efforts on solar energy because of its tremendous potential. ERDA believes that solar energy could supply as much as 25 percent of the nation's future energy needs from domestic sources by the year 2020.

The Federal government plans to spend about $20 billion during the next 10 years to research and develop new energy sources. In its first year, the solar research institute would have a budget of about $6 million.

I believe Delaware ought to be among the prime candidates. Should another state be selected, I am hopeful that the University of Delaware would be named a regional branch of the main facility. ERDA had indicated that in addition to the national Solar Energy Research Institute it may decide to establish a number of smaller branches.

Between now and the time ERDA makes its decision, our Task Force will be continuing its efforts to sell ERDA officials on the unique advantages that Delaware offers.

The Task Force, which I formed in the fall of 1974, is made up of the top-flight men who know how to get things done. Mr. Gottshall was the president and board chairman of the former Atlas Chemical Industries, Inc. The other members, in addition to Mr. Gottshall and dean Greenfield, are former U.S. Senator J. Caleb Boggs; Dr. Monroe Sadler, assistant director of the Du Pont Company's Central Research and Development Department; Dr. Donald Ross, president of Wilmington College; and John W. Jardine, vice president of Chesapeake Utility of Dover. Dr. Robert H. Parker, former president of Wesley College, also served on the Task Force prior to his departure from Delaware last summer.

I think these men deserve a great deal of credit for the work they have been doing to promote Delaware's leadership role in the important field of energy research and development.

Career Corner

By Buck Thompson printed in the Journal for youths

So many students tell me, "I want to work with horses. How do I get started? Where do I get the training?"

There are do doubt millions of students who would love to find a career working with horses. But they may change their mind after taking a closer look.

There are enough horses - perhaps 8,000,000 of them - and it does take a lot of people to care for and train all those horses as well as to teach people to ride them.

But... long hours, sore muscles, and low pay are generally the lot for the beginning horse buff.

Occasionally, you may get to ride or exercise horses, but unless you're a veterinarian, expect to make your debut by cleaning stables, pitching hay, grooming horses and cleaning equipment.

Earnings for horse enthusiasts vary according to the job, your training, and the size and location of the employer. If you have little or no training, about $400 a month, plus a place to live, would probably be top dollar. As you advance, however, it is possible to earn a fairly good income, and in a few cases, a very good income.

Here's a sampling of some of the jobs in this field: stable manager, trainer, jockey, breeding farm worker, groom, riding instructor, horse show manager, farrier (blacksmith), veterinarian and animal technician (veterinarian's assistant).

On-job training is usually the path to careers with horses. Obviously, for most jobs no college degree is required. But as competition gets rougher in an already competitive field, the better educated may get the jobs. College courses in horse management, breeding, nutrition, preventive medicine, and related subjects can speed up the time it takes to acquire know-how. Some colleges offer courses in equine studies or horsemanship which can help you evaluate these. Even as a graduate of a specialized program, though, you'll still have to break from the post in a low-level entry job.

Stable managers often start as stable hands and work up. Congress for riding instructors usually include instruction in stable management. Trainers may be ex-jockeys or grooms. Jockeys usually start as stable hands, and perhaps after a year, the trainer permits the jockey candidate to help exercise the horses by galloping them around the track. A jockey candidate usually must be 16 to become an apprentice.

Breeding farm workers include grooms, trainers, stable managers, super-visors and exercisers. You may be able to start as a groom or stable hand with no special training.

Riding instructors may or may not take courses at riding schools. Such courses sometime last several months with tuitions exceeding $1,000. There's no national certification standards for riding schools, which makes finding a good one difficult, although there are excellent American schools. To become certified in some kinds of show riding, a few Americans go to England; and instructor's or fellowship certificate from the British Horse Society is considered outstanding.

Farriers can learn their trade through vocational courses or informal apprenticeship.

Veterinarians need at least six years of college, and more often seven or eight. Animal technicians (also called veterinarian's assistants or veterinary technicians) can attend two-year associate degree programs or vocational schools.

The horse business involves much more than galloping down a country lane...prancing majestically around a show ring...or racing to the finish line at the track. Working with horses is hard, often dirty work, which may not lead to a lifetime of good pay, advancement, or secure employment.

Open Letter to Chipman Parents

March 29, 1976

Dear Parents, By the time you read this, state tests, including the make-up tests, will have been administered and the evaluating committee will have made their visit and will be busily preparing the written reports which always follow such a visit.

Meanwhile, back at Chipman we are trying hard to make the rest of the school year as profitable as possible for each student. This is a real challenge, for general feelings of "I've got it made," or "It's too late now," are fairly common among the students by this time of the year. Please remind your boys and girls that there is still time to learn a great deal more in each subject matter area.

I have been thinking of the feasibility of having an evening "Open House" for the parents of in-coming seventh grade students. This would be in addition to my usual spring visit to each of the elementary schools. It would be helpful if you would talk this over with your friends and neighbors and see how much interest there would be in such an evening.

Again this year there will be a summer program at the Kent Vocational-Technical School. I have been provided with a list of Chipman students who applied last year and were not accommodated. I have been assured these students will get first choice this year. Remember, one whole marking period remains in this school year. Encourage your daughter and/or son to use it wisely. This year's work is the foundation upon which next year's work will sweet corn, and green peas—were 29% higher than year-earlier aggregate and 37% above the 1973-75 average.

Production in 1975 68% larger than 1974's small crop.

Rice... plentiful. Record high '75 crop was 14% above the 1974 output and 32% greater than 1972-74 average. Dry beans... plentiful, because of heavier production of some varieties despite overall crop reduction of 15% from 1974 output and 6% under 1972-74 average. Wheat... plentiful. Carry-over stocks for this marketing year are projected about 4% above last year and 42% larger than the most recent 3-year average.

Felton News

The big event this week in the Felton area was the Felton Firemen's supper. It's the best place to be served fried oyster dinner on the Delaware Peninsula.

I was told by several patrons who came as far as Virginia, Cape May, New Jersey and Philadelphia. I was talking to Walter Moore Jr. and he estimated that they served 1800 to 2000 people. I'm sure they all ate heartily for Clark Brittingham, Chairman for the supper told me they fried 94 gallons of oysters and cooked 2100 pounds of chicken for the chicken salad. This dinner is a good example of area residents all working together very hard and having fun to support their fire company. Many thanks come from the firemen to all who gave up a beautiful first day of spring to work for them and made their dinner a big success.

We also had some dignitaries attend the dinner. Among them were the Honorable Governor Sherman Tribbitt and his lovely wife, the Honorable Thomas Maloney, Mayor of Wilmington, and of course, no supper would be complete without our own Levy Court President, William Paskey, and our Mayor William Myers. The latter two worked very hard in the kitchen.

Celebrating March 25 were twins Dawn and Diane Jacobs who had their 8th birthday. They had a little party on Sat. at 1 p.m. Also Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jacobs will have their 19th wedding anniversary March 31.

Kim Casper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Casper of Felton had her 9th birthday March 31.

Kim Hurd became 13 Sunday, March 21. She is the daughter of Marlene Hurd of Felton.

If you have any news you'd like to have in the column please feel free to call me between 3 p.m. and 6 p.m.

Felton Manor has a new arrival. Have you meet C. J. Morrow yet? I hear he is an adorable four legged friend of the Heinz variety. Good Luck C. J., you've found a good home.

Funeral Home Is Designed For Flexibility

by Barbara Brown

Bill Gruwell is a man who professes to love his business. Since his business is being a funeral director, this attitude might seem a little strange to some. However, Mr. Gruwell knows his office is an indispensable one and feels he can be of real service and comfort to families struck by the suddenness of the loss.

Service and the flexibility to provide it whatever the need - were the keys to the planning of the new Gruwell Funeral Home which opened on the Milford-Harrington Highway last September.

In addition to his experience as a funeral director in Seaford and his years of apprenticeship he brought to the planning of the building a thoughtful concern for those he wishes to serve. His wife Janet employed her talents in the interior decoration. The combination resulted in the physical facilities which exist today and which reflect their ideal of what a funeral home should be.

Much of the story is told by flexibility in the use of space. The rooms which make up the basic plan can be arranged to accommodate groups of varying sizes, allowing for privacy or inclusion as persons may wish. The home is arranged to allow for more than one funeral to be handled simultaneously if necessary.

This basic plan is centered in a large chapel. Adjacent to these are an additional layout room, a family room, and an arrangement room. All of these are separated by folding wooden doors which serve as walls. Thus the four rooms can become three, two or even one, as the occasion demands.

The rest of the story is best told in the thoughtfulness for the comfort of people reflected in many of the details of the building. The building is one level, making it easier for those to whom stairs or entrances are difficult. There is ample parking area and the lobby is accessible from the front or the rear of the building.

Inside the building many other aspects show the concern which went into the planning including a chapel with upholstered pews.

Perhaps a slightly more unusual feature is the addition of a lounge or smoking area this is located across the lobby from the main area and to the rear of the building.

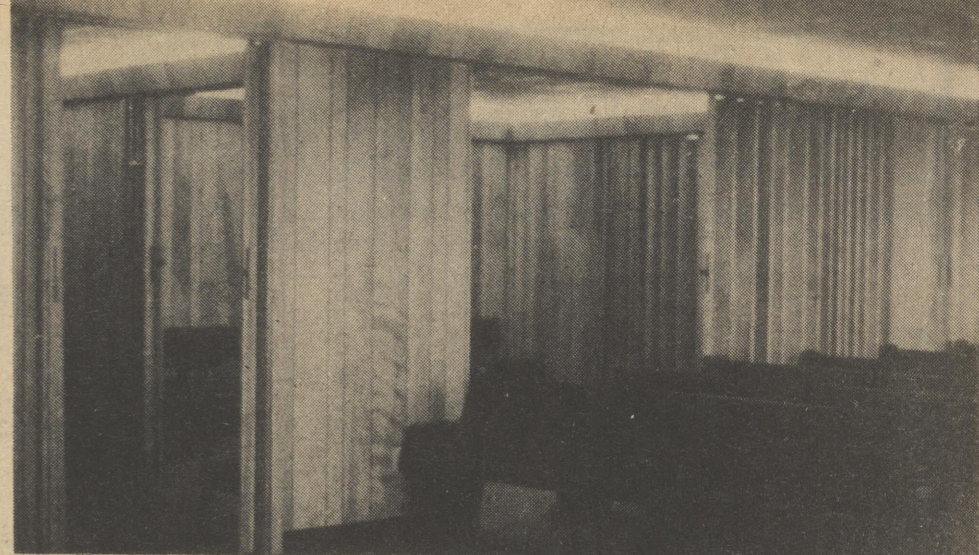

There are other details as well. An intercom provides for communication between rooms in addition to appropriate music. A variety of lighting in the chapel is available and dimmers throughout the building. Much of the physical plant - heating, air conditioning, plumbing is located overhead, making for a quieter operation.

The Gruwell Funeral Home added 3600 square feet of space to the existing Gruwell Casket Company which was built in 1968. In addition, Mr. Gruwell has a funeral home in Seaford. Bill and Janet Gruwell live next door.

Throughout the house are the pictures, statues and carvings of eagles which Bill collects. So it is perhaps appropriate that this personal interest is reflected in the eagle, its wings up-swept in descent, which rests on each of the posts at the entrance to the funeral home and serves as a trademark for the business.

Pictured from the chapel (in the foreground) are several of the rooms which can be opened up or closed by the use of the folding partition shown.

#9 of a Series: The onshore impact of offshore oil

How much impact will offshore oil have on the East Coast economy?

Everyone is aware of the economic importance of finding new domestic oil. America must reduce its dependence on foreign oil. But an oil or gas discovery on the Atlantic Outer Continental Shelf could have even greater economic impact on the East Coast.

Its effect would be gradual. We feel that the exploration phase would have a minimal effect on employment. The initial work would be done by experienced crews brought in from other oil producing areas.

Later, however, if sufficient oil is found and development is begun, employment opportunities would gradually expand. They would be in the areas of marine platform construction and operation, pipeline crews and construction of storage and processing facilities.

Indirectly, the development phase will result in increased business for local helicopter services, water transport, harbor facilities and other businesses. Local suppliers of equipment, tools and supplies should benefit from increased work orders. And the new payroll and tax revenues generated in this way would spread throughout the economy.

But there's no "boom town" economy in store for the East Coast. Boom towns only happen when a new industry comes to an undeveloped area, but the East Coast is highly developed right now. It would absorb the offshore oil industry with little effort.

New domestic oil and natural gas supplies from the Atlantic could offer major economic benefits to the East Coast. At present, the area depends on natural gas and oil produced elsewhere in the U.S. and imported crude oil. So naturally, prices include long-haul transportation costs. A closer supply would eliminate these long-haul costs.

Amoco is going into Atlantic offshore oil exploration with no sure knowledge that our massive investments will pay off. But we'll take the risk.

Amoco wants you to know what's going on. For more information, write: Public Affairs Department, Amoco, 300 East Joppa Road, Towson, Md. 21204.

Our job is you.

Lime... the fertilizer stretcher

○ Lime stretches nitrogen supplies. Acid pH's slow down the reaction of micro-organisms in the soil. This results in the slower conversion of urea and ammonia forms of nitrogen to more readily available nitrate forms. It reduces the microbial breakdown of organic materials which release nitrogen to your crops. Proper liming makes more nitrogen available for healthy growth.

○ Lime stretches phosphate supplies. Low pH causes phosphate to be tied up in unavailable compounds of iron and aluminum. At pH levels of 6.0 or higher, iron and aluminum precipitate out, making them non-reactive with phosphate. So more phosphate is available for crops production.

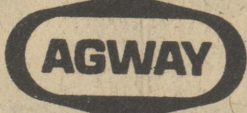

○ Lime stretches potash supplies. Calcium, magnesium and potash can partially substitute for each other in the crop and on the soil colloid. If calcium and magnesium are low, more potash enters the exchangeable form or the soil colloid and less remains in solution form for crop uptake. With proper liming, less total potash is needed.

Lime... for the good of it!

Liming always has been, and today is even more so, the most profitable fertility practice you can undertake. And right now is the time to do it!

Bowling News

Lads and Lassies

by Terry Clegg
 What a night we had at the bowling alley Monday night. The team standings really changed from last week. The Pinbusters are in first place with 19 wins and 5 losses. This team took the first third and are not eligible to take this one. This puts the Moose I and Gold-digger teams tied for the top honor.

The Pinbusters' four game win over the 4-Aces brought the 4-Aces from the first place position down to the third slot in team standings. As happens some nights in bowling, this team couldn't pull it all together and much to their sorrow, the Pinbusters had it all together. Don Hopkins' 206 and 194 and Edna Mae Layton's 184, capped the victory for their team. Edna Mae went home ill Monday night after rolling only two games. Hope you feel better next week Edna Mae.

Moose I seemed to have met their match as they had to settle for a two and two split with the Mickey Moose team. Jean Brown, a sub for Moose I, gave her team a shot in the arm with a nice 172 game. Other members chipped in some good games to help this team take their two wins. Their rivals for the night also went home with two games. This team seems to have lost the will power to gain games for a bid for the top slot. With only a few weeks left in the final third, this team better get going if they want the top position.

on the heels of the Moose I team. The total pin count between these two teams is so close that it's anyone's guess as to who will take top honors if both teams should tie at the end of this third. All members of the Gold-digger team were hot as Jeff Rettig lead the way with a nice 200 game.

Lionie Wirick backed him up with a 199. Mary Bergold's 163 & 172 put the finishing touches on their games and went home with four big ones.

Sam Lyons rolled a 201 for his team, the Campers, but had no help from his teammates and they ended up with four games on the lost side of their game column.

The strikers had to go home with nothing Monday night as the Moose II team took charge and four from them. Even with Doris Fry's 165 & 177 and sub Mike Hastings 193 & 213, this team had little chance of winning games against the rough and ready Moose II team. Boy! Did this team ever get it on Monday night. Leroy Wheeler captured high game and series for men as he rolled a 234 & 237 for a beautiful 653 series. His better half, Leah, would not let Hank take all the glory as she rolled a 202 (high game for women) and a 191. Leah ended up with a 538 series, (second high series for women).

The Spares burst the M & P's beautiful dream of staying in top position as they took four big ones from them. The M & P's now find themselves tied with two other teams for second position in standings. The four game victory for the Spares puts this team only two games out of first place and with a few weeks still left in

With the opening of the spring track season fast approaching members of the team loosen up before practice. The teams opens on Tuesday at Caesar Rodney.

Opens April 5

Team Prepares For Opener

Track Coach Jim Blades and his assistant, Jim Fleming, are drilling between fifty and sixty thinclad aspirants in preparation for an ambitious schedule that includes nineteen meets in Delaware and New Jersey.

The nature of the sport insures that everyone will get to compete. Track and field consists of around seventeen or eighteen events. If the team had 100 candidates, there would still be no necessity for benchwarmers. Most other scholastic sports have a number of athletes who seldom, if ever, get into action.

Year after year in the Henlopen Conference, the same schools dominate the action. These are the larger schools, like Dover and Caesar Rodney, plus others such as Milford, Cape Henlopen, Seaford, who have fairly large school populations, well-established programs and finally, high schools located in or near well-populated areas.

These high schools have many students who have no transportation problems, when they stay after school to engage in extra curricular activities. Here, however, there are only two or three Lake Forest athletes who live within walking distance of the school.

The Spartans have one advantage, this spring, not present in past seasons. New facilities for the sport will enable the team to practice and compete at Lake Forest, thus eliminating the time wasted journeying to Harrington and back each day.

As might be expected from a school that has won the state cross-country championship the last three years, the middle and long distance runs will be the strong point.

Harry Benson, who was state champion in the mile run (4.31), and Dan Parker, who was fourth in the same event (4.37) as a freshman, are back.

Parker will go in the half mile also with Benson vying in the 440 and mile relay at times.

Junior Chris Palmisano and senior Terry Pettyjohn have the ability to get under 10.10 in the two mile run. Only Caesar Rodney's powerful duo of Bill Freeman and Chris Dunham are better downstate.

Chuck Carter, a strong senior, is in his first track season but ran a swift 2.02.2 as month ago in winter track third best 880 in twenty years of track, here.

Carter, Benson, Palmisano, Dan Parker have chances to get into the Lake Forest record book.

A trio of Canterbury lads are strong distance runners. Paul McClellan, Craig Kashner, a 2.03 half miler and David Richter, are added insurance, here. With a plethora of harriers around. Coach Blades may use Richter and Kashner, exclusively in the 880, 440 and mile relay.

Bob Mullane recently jumped 5 feet, 10 1/8 inches to set a school high jump record. Sophomore Tim McCombs has done 5-6. Only two league jumpers have better marks than Mullane.

Bob is a 10-6 pole vaulter. He, Steve Salisbury and Gusty Voshell make this a Lake Forest strong point. Kelly Woodward and Tim McCombs are other vaulters.

Tony Smith, Greg Pritchett and Charley Scott made up three-fourths of a school-record-setting 880 relay, last spring. In addition Pritchett is school record holder in the 220.

Mike Benson and Kevin Pritchett are top sprint candidates, with Mike also returning as a long and triple jumper.

Other sprinters are: Berlin Benson, Jerry Custis, freshman Henry LaSalle and Mark Todd, Reggie Quail.

The 330 intermediate hurdles are new to Delaware for 1976 replacing the 180 yard low hurdles.

John Moffett, a converted distance runner has been a welcome surprise in this event. Grayson Barthlow and Allan Walth are intermediates also.

Bob Mullane has 120 high hurdles experience. John Clarke, Jerry Custis, Pete Hinson, Tim McCombs, Tom Ott, Rusty Pederson in one or both hurdle events.

Prospects in the long and triple jumps, not mentioned, include: Berlin Benson, Jerry Custis, Bill Johnson, Chas McDougal, Mike Quail, Reggie Quail, Stacy Sams, Perry Thomas.

John Clarke and Chuck Carter are novice discus throwers. Joe Back, Dan Glasspool, Kevin Thomas, Lee Turner, Dan Twisselman, Doug Warrington, John O'Toole are other platter spinners.

The last two named are returning in the 12-pound shot. Manny Christopher, Dean McCombs are a pair of giants hopefuls here.

Cliff Ayres, Jerry Miller and John Nickle are distance running prospects. Candidates with no specialties at present are: Kevin Satterfield, Fred Lander, Ed Beachy, Craig Fry, Don Lloyd, Larry McCombs.

Ron Loper is a proven performer in the 440 yard run, while Wilson Fry is a freshman, quarter miler, with excellent potential.

After a practice set to with Glasgow on April 1, the Spartans start regular season competition, as guests of powerful, Caesar Rodney, April 5th.

Business Bowling

by Rich Dennis.

The time has come for the old bowling ball to be traded in for a tennis racket, golf clubs, fishing pole or baseball glove, which marks the end of another enjoyable bowling season. The regular bowling season. The regular season of 30 weeks came to an end, with the league play offs beginning Monday.

This week's bowling found Jarrell's Fuel still leading and finishing by two games in front.

It's nice being in a sure position, for this week they just collapsed, losing all four points to Moose "B".

Chip Shaw paced Moose "B" with a 535 series, assisted by Sam Lyons chipping in with a 531 series. Other help was on the way as John Townsend had a 203 game. Jarrell's, as the other Jarrell's on the other hand had just two men able to make average.

Fry's pulled up to finish second by downing Wally's 3 1/2 points. Looks like John Forbes was the biggest gun for Fry's with a 531 series. I guess if it had not been for D. Ryan, the would have lost the other half point.

Burris finished up by taking three points from Food Rite, with Rich Dennis leading his crew with a 562 series. I found out that the anchor man is supposed to pick the team up, not drag behind.

Frank Collins was the front runner for Food Rite, but we found out Frank bowled exceptionally well when he's not completely on the ally.

Moose "A" took three from Butler's Fuel with Al Melvin doing the shooting for them. Butler's Fuel was only able to have one man above average, who was J. Kohland, of which one of his games was a 203.

Dur-A-Clean had their spring cleaning done early, as Big John took them to the cleaners by taking all four points. Bob Maloney did the firing for John's with a 203 game, while Dur-A-Clean struggled to have anybody higher than a 163 game.

Robbins Hardware settled in eighth position at the end of this third and two and two with the Spoilers in the closing night. Herb Robbins finished up leading his team in high series, while Bruce Herrington did the same for the Spoilers for the closing night.

McKnatts drove back in the closing night to take three from Quillens Mkt. H. Brode had a fine 569 series, while most men struggled for individual average on Quillens.

Penn Central, the caboose, finished in the natural place for a caboose,

"last", as T & M took three points in the closing night. K. P. Outten had a nice 216 game and a fine 576 series. That rest did him good.

The old reliable was there with a 552 series. None other than George Collins.

Penn Central may have finished last, but they probably got to bowl more than any body.

Those that won't be able to tuck those bowling balls away yet are Taylor & Messick, winners of first third, Burris Food, winners of second third and Jarrell's Fuel, winners of last third.

The play offs are as follows: Monday night at 7 p.m. T & M and Jarrell's. Tuesday night at 7 p.m., Burris Foods and Jarrells and Wednesday at 9:15, Burris Foods and T & M.

The bowling banquet is April 23 at 7 p.m.

The cost will be $25 per family regardless of the number in the family. Families will have the same privileges that full year physical members have in that this membership will admit the families to the open recreational periods in the pool through the entire summer period, and also give them access to the other physical feature at the YMCA.

Another plus to the program is that between August 14 and September 1, any family may have the option of converting their summer membership to a full year membership by only paying the difference between the two.

Eighty-four families took advantage of this summer membership, last year and the YMCA reports receiving many positive reactions to the programs.

People may begin to register for the summer membership at the YMCA facility at 1137 South State Street and filling out a membership application. The summer membership applies only to families and not to individual adults or children.

The summer schedule will be ready for print about the middle of April. For additional information call 674-3000.

Garcia Begins Eighth Year

Al Garcia, Matre d' to the Clubhouse at Harrington Raceway, is starting his eighth year at Harrington. Garcia is employed by Nilon Bros. who cater the club-

Garcia there are 14 waitresses, three bus-boys and eight working in the kitchen serving an international menu. It is all a la carte. "There are three different specials each day of seafood and steaks," according to Garcia. The dining room opens at six each evening (except Mons and Tues, which are dark days). A buffet will be served Wed., Thur., and Fri.

The Eastern Shore's original half mile stockcar race track located two miles South of Georgetown, Rt. 113 has scheduled 'Open House' for Sunday, April 4th beginning at 12. Track owner Charlie Herbert extends the invitation to the entire racing community to come out and officially kick-off Georgetown Speedway's 26th season of competition making it one of the longest operating racing plants in the nation.

On tap for area fans to view free of cost will be the new 1976 racing machines that drivers and owners have been preparing since last season's end.

Local racing enjoyed its biggest year in 1975 with all plans go for what will become the "Challenge of '76" for many an anxious seasoned team with the more than adequate arrival of some young and very capable drivers ready to break into the limelight of Delaware stockcar racing.

As a special notice Georgetown will feature the popular Modifieds, Sportsmen, the new Late Models along with preserving the older Hobby racers for any of the teams who cannot afford to graduate to the top three divisions. Any type of automobile racer is welcome at the open house and will be given the opportunity to test drive providing safety standards can be met.

Lads and Lassies

The Misfits, winners of the second third, are not easing up these last few weeks either. They kept the No-Mads in the basement again this week as they took four from them. The women of the Misfits were the high rollers of their team this week with Gail Lutz rolling a 196, 179 & 179 for a 554 series, (high series for women) and her teammate, Patti Friedline a 165 & 182. Gene Wirick put in a nice 192 game to help with their four game victory. The No-Mads just haven't been able to get together this third and can't seem to win any games to pull themselves out of the basement. Maybe next year, No-Mads!!!

Now comes the Dy-no-mite and Friends Four teams. Both of these teams did nothing to brag about and as bad as the Dy-no-mite team did Friends Four did worse, I know, I bowl on the Friends Four team!!! Three games were taken by the Dy-no-mites, leaving one game to Friends Four. This one game win did get the Friends Four one step out of the basement where, like the No-Mads, they are not getting anywhere fast. Junior Gallo did roll a nice 194 game but other than that, nothing else developed from these two teams.

Before I close, I would like to congratulate the Moose A Tuesday night men's team for taking the first place in the lower Delaware men's bowling tournament held in Milford a few weeks ago. Way to go, guys!!!

Georgetown Raceway News

by A. G. Keller

The year was 1950 making it twenty-six years ago this spending Johnny Martin of Millsboro, Delaware won top honors in the inaugural 30 lap feature stock car race on the newly constructed 1/2 mile Stokley Speedway located two miles South of Georgetown on Rt. 113. It was a race that saw only three finishers with Bill Raughly taking second behind Martin and third place went to Bob Atkins. The Semi-Feature as they called it back then was won by Bill Walker who has had one of the longest driving careers in the business. Second place went to Paul Walker. Sr. and presently has not involved never leaving the sport for over a quarter of a century.

Times have changed with Delaware stockcar racing founders turning the driving chores over to sons and grandsons while keeping an active hand in preparing the sophisticated racing equipment in fine tune for the younger generation of performers that have come into full bloom over the past couple of seasons at what is now Georgetown Speedway. There have certainly been thrilling as well as trying times since the 50's but the 1/2 mile at Stockley has proven to be a survivor as well as a hot-bed for the most exciting short track stockcar racing found on the Delmarva Peninsula. Track owner Charlie Herbert has steadily been making plans much in line with the 'Spirit of 76' in announcing the grand opening for Sunday April 4 at 12 noon. This will be an excellent chance for area fans to come out to the speedway absolutely free of charge as guests of the management for a preview of the new racing equipment that is ready for the unique 'Challenge of 76' with further details to be forthcoming as soon as they are available. Georgetown Speedway's first official full race meet will be Sunday afternoon, April 11th, time to be announced.

his questions were that the boilers in fact were no in such bad conditions, but that the lines and the burners were the parts in poor condition.

Replacement of the boilers and lines for the two boiler system would cost about $5,000. Replacement of the entire system would be more substantial according to Flint and Tull. As was pointed out in Tull's questioning more than anything else was a clarification of what everyone had been saying and trying to say.

In other matters before the board, the school board election was set for Saturday, May 8, from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Eastern Standard Time or 2 p.m. to 9 p.m. The deadline for filing was set for Thursday, April 8.

A 16 H.P. riding mower was approved for purchase from Taylor & Messick of Harrington.

The new Agriculture Building is slated to be completed about April 30.

Dr. Foster Flint stated the auditor's report was satisfactory. According to Flint, there was "...no problem with the money. The only thing that they seemed to object to was the way the inventory was made."

Town & Country

March is the beginning of most gardeners busy season. Lawns should be fertilized and limed. Vegetable garden prepared and plant garden prepared and planted. Fruit tree spraying begins and in some sections lawn mowing starts.

If you are applying fertilizer without a soil test you may be applying too little or too much of certain nutrients. You should test your soil at least every three years and follow the recommendations. In general, you can apply 12 lbs. of 10-10-10, or 10 lbs. of 12-4-8 or 12-6-6 or 8 lbs. of 16-8-8 or 6 lbs. of 20-10-10 per 1,000 sq. ft. That is, if you are applying a fertilizer with readily available nitrogen.

Most agriculture fertilizer contains readily available nitrogen and these are usually cheaper than special lawn fertilizers. However, there is a risk involved. If you apply too much you can burn the leaf blades or even kill the grass. You have to be sure that you properly calibrate your spreader.

The 50 percent slowly available nitrogen fertilizers are generally safer to apply because you have a larger margin of error. The rate per 1,000 sq. ft. of these types are 20 lbs. of 10-10-10 or 16 lbs. of 12-4-8 or 12-6-6 or 12 lbs. of 16-8-8 or lbs. of 20-10-10. You could also use processed sewage sludge or tankage at the rate of 30 lbs. per 1,000 sq. ft.

These fertilizer recommendations are for the cool season grasses like fescue and bluegrass. If you have a Bermudagrass or Zoysia lawn increase the rates by 50 percent and make applications each month during May, June and July. In late August, apply 15 lbs. of 10-10-10 or similar high potassium fertilizer to enable these grasses to better withstand winter temperatures.

The cool season grasses go dormant during the hot summer and then will start to grow in the fall. Around September 1 repeat the fertilizer application you made in the spring.

March 20 to April 15 is generally the time to plant the cool season vegetables. Asparagus, beets, carrots, cabbage, kale, peas, lettuce, onions, irish potatoes, radishes, spinach, parsnips and turnips can be planted. If you have a well drained, sandy soil, where late frost is not a problem, you may be able to plant a little earlier. It does take longer for seeds to germinate in a cool soil. The longer they stay in the soil the less chance they have of germinating and emerging from the soil.

It does help to plant seeds that are treated with a fungicide and insecticide to protect the seed from soil borne diseases and insects. Some hard seeded vegetables like beets will often germinate faster if you soak in water for a couple of hours before planting. When planting, be sure not to plant your seed too deep. Follow the directions of the package or refer to Delaware Bulletin #55, Home Vegetable Gardening in Delaware. This book was revised in January 1972 and the information is accurate.

Planting Seeds A Real Science

Growing flowers, vegetables and house plants from seed is a real science, according to David V. Tatnall, garden specialist at the University of Delaware.

Seeds must have the proper temperature and moisture conditions to germinate and produce a new plant, he says. Some seeds will sprout at soil temperatures of less than 50 degrees, but most require temperatures between 60 and 70 degrees to germinate and grow.

Planting seeds outside must be carefully planned to provide the proper soil temperature for germination. Lettuce, radishes, onions, peas and many other vegetables will grow well in cool soils. But marigolds, squash, gourds and sweet corn like warmer soil. It's usually best to wait until after May 1 before seeding these crops.

Moisture is an all-important factor in germination, says Tatnall. For best results, plant small seeds like petunia, onion and carrot in a vermiculite, perlite or peat-lite mix. Make a furrow an inch wide and about one inch deep and fill with vermiculite. Scatter the seed on the surface, then lightly cover with fine soil and water thoroughly.

If you prefer, water carefully and cover with strips of burlap, black plastic, paper or regular cloth. Keep the seeds moist until they sprout; remove the covering as soon as the seedlings appear.

Many people plant seeds too deep, says Tatnall. Small seeds need only be pressed into the vermiculite. Larger seeds such as sweet corn and peas need only be planted an inch deep.
Seeds planted too deep often rot, especially in cool, wet soil. The faster the seed germinates, the stronger the young plant will be.

It Seems To Me

Women's fashions this year can be described as soft, light, carefree, simple and unstructured. Clothes have a simplicity of line and minimum of seams. They are free of busy trimming, extra details and complicated cuts. This helps keep consumer prices in line since less labor cost is involved.

The use of fasteners other than ties or fabric wraps or belts is noticeably absent. Clothes wrap the body, slip over the head and are held together by sashes or belts. In fact, many clothes look limp and uninteresting on the hanger. The body gives shape to the clothes. This may be motivation enough for some of us to get the body in shape or resign ourselves to out-of-date clothes. And design that shows its shape on a hanger, or depends on a zipper to pull it together or gives any semblance of stiffness is said to be passe.

Fabrics are soft and sensuous and seem to float as the body moves. You will find light-weight cottons, crinkly gauzes, crepes, soft single knits of cotton or man-made fibers or blends. These are the fabrics that tie and drape and give fluid movement to the fashion silhouette. They fold into practically no space and are ideal for travel.

The most popular item of wearing apparel this spring seems to be the tunic. The tunic is worn over pants or skirt, or as a jacket or coat. Many of them have side slits for freedom of movement.

One trend best worn by those with a fashion model figure is the fanny wrap. Scarves or sashes around the hip won't do much for most of us, but we all may notice a modification as indicated by the lowest waistline.

The new look for pants is the jumpsuit in both long or short lengths. Pants are shown in midcalf length, just above the knee, in brief shorts, culottes, or harem style bloused at the ankle.

Creativity in fashion today comes from the way one combines separate parts. Fashion seems to be entering a period of seasonless, multi-use clothes that can be combined in endless variety and with varying accessories. It all makes good sense in making clothing expeditions stretch, in easier wardrobe management and in more mileage for clothing.

This trend also may further reinforce the fact that one should choose clothing for one's individual needs and tastes. Even though certain fashion trends emerge each season we really don't need to feel any great compulsion to follow them if the fashion does not suit our preferences and way of life.

The Green Thumb

With winter and its frigid temperatures yielding to the advances of spring, many home gardeners are impatient to turn the sod and soil and start things growing again.

The eager gardeners already have selected their garden site, staked out the area and removed all trash, brush, and rocks. The experienced ones had soil samples tested last fall and have added lime as recommended by soil tests.

To those who hope to establish gardens for the first time this year, here are some hints on how to prepare a garden on a new site.

As soon as the soil is workable, turn the sod over by plowing, rototilling, or hand spading. Prepare the soil to a depth of at least eight inches. This depth can be increased each year until 10 to 12 inches is worked up.

Don't work the soil when it is very wet. When wet, the soil will compact the damage the soil structure. To determine if your soil is workable, squeeze a handful. If it crumbles readily (it doesn't stick together), it is safe to work.

Continue to work the plot until the coarse, lumpy texture is replaced with a fine, granular soil suitable for seedbed. Do not overwork the soil to powdery fine condition. This will cause surface crusting.

At this stage, incorporate organic matter and work it into the soil.
Add fertilizer according to the recommendations of your soil test. This establishes a basic fertility level. Spread the fertilizer evenly over the garden area and work it in deeply. This can be done at the same time organic matter is added.

Now you are ready to rake the garden smooth. Lay out the rows and plant your garden seeds or set the transplants as you planned. Be sure to check your seed labels, garden calendars, or other sources of garden information to determine the best times for planting.

Certain crops and varieties are recommended for early spring planting. Others will not do well until warmer weather prevails. It's important to know which plants are suited to the early season and which are suited for planting later.

Home gardeners are reminded that a variety of publications with information on how to prepare and properly plant and cultivate the home garden are available from the Extension Office. Also, if you have questions, contact this office which is located in the Wesley Church Educational Building, phone 736-1448.

Plant Ever Popular Strawberries Now

Strawberries are one of the easiest of all fruits to grow. This, plus their flavor and versatility, make them a sure bet in the garden.

Now is the time to plant strawberries, if you want a crop ready for harvest next spring, says Dave Tatnall, extension garden specialist at the University of Delaware. The sooner you get them in, the better, since the best berries come from well-established plants.

For your strawberry bed pick an open, sunny location with fertile, well-drained soil. Any site where vegetables grow well should be ideal for strawberries, too. It takes about 50 to 75 plants to meet the needs of the average family. Spacing varies with the system you use, but generally plants are placed 18 inches apart, to allow room for spreading. Lack of space needn't deter you though. It is possible to grow strawberries as an edging or a border. You can also buy pyramid-shaped planters for raising them in limited space.

For best yields, the garden specialist recommends replacing strawberry plants every four years. After that period of time they start to decline and disease problems set in. It is possible to begin a new bed using daughter plants from your original planting. The trouble with this approach is that if a virus has developed in your original berries, it will infect their offspring, too. For this reason Tatnall recommends reordering virus-free strawberry plants from a reputable dealer. Prices are based on lots of 25 plants. They average around $4.25 to $4.50 a lot now. Considering the returns, he feels it is a worthwhile investment. By the end of the season each of your original plants will have multiplied itself fourfold.

The Delaware Cooperative Extension Service has prepared several helpful fact sheets on growing strawberries. Call your county extension office in Newark, Dover or Georgetown for information tailored to your growing area.

"WELCOME TO MY NIGHTMARE" A RIOT OF COLOR, SONG & DANCE!

Alice Cooper, one of the most sensationally successful rock stars in the world, has delved into the inner reaches of his own mind for the concept of his new motion picture hit, "Welcome to My Nightmare," which opens at the Milford Plaza Cinema on Friday.

"Welcome to My Nightmare" is Alice's most carefully planned project, first conceived over two years ago when Alice became fascinated with the demonic visions that appeared in his dreams. Realizing that his own nocturnal images were only a handful of the billions being dreamed around the world, Alice decided to present a set for everyone to share. After choosing some of his most horrifying visitations for the concept, Alice began pre-production work for the soundtrack in association with guitarist Dick Wagner and composer Alan Gordon at Alice's Los Angeles home in the Spring of 1974.

The composition of the lyrics and melodies heard in "Welcome to My Nightmare" spanned three continents and were written in some of the most exotic cities in the world, including Paris, Rio De Janeiro and New York.

"Welcome to My Nightmare" presents yet another musical facet of Alice Cooper; a more diverse, melodious and haunting side to the master of macabre and mayhem. "Only Women Bleed" for example, is Alice's first pure-bred love ballad, and it became an instant hit. "Some Folks" and "Cold Ethyl" are blistering hard rockers in the tradition of the famous "Eighteen" and "School's Out." There is also "Department of Youth," Alice's anthem for the children of the world who make him the symbol of their generation.

"Welcome to My Nightmare" is being presented on the motion picture screen by Key Pictures, Inc.

JEAN-PAUL BELMONDO IN A BREATHLESS SUSPENSE THRILLER

If Jean-Paul Belmondo hadn't already used the title, "Breathless," for an earlier prize-winning film, he could certainly employ it as the sub-title of his newest thriller, "The Night Caller."

The story of a tough detective's hunt for a psychopathic killer, which opens Wednesday at the Seaford Theatre, offers both a study in mounting terror and a series of vivid and suspenseful chases. By the end of the film's production schedule, nearly everyone -- except for the seemingly inexhaustible Belmondo -- was literally out of breath.

Directed by Henri Verneuil, "The Night Caller" was shot in Paris and the hair-raising scenes took place on location, not in a studio. When Belmondo dangles from a drainpipe ten stories over the streets of Paris, that's what he is actually doing.

There are very few screen stars who do not use stuntmen, and with good reason -- they don't want to risk messing up their stock in trade, their appearance. Belmondo never uses a stunt man for two good reasons. He's not too worried about his looks and he doesn't see why stuntmen should have all the fun. To Belmondo, taking a terrifying ride on the roof of a Paris metro train or swinging from a cable hundreds of feet beneath a helicopter is fun.

In "The Night Caller" he does all of that, and in stunting there is no way in which real security can be provided, much to the dismay of insurance companies and production managers.

For instance, take the metro train (hundreds of thousands do everyday). But Belmondo doesn't take the subway like everyone else. When he sees the gunman he's chasing board the train, Belmondo only has time to leap on the back of the last car, then climb up to the roof and flatten himself as the train enters each tunnel.

He then repeats the process, jumping from one car to the next in the stations, hitting the deck as each new tunnel approaches. Finally, he hangs by his feet to peer into the car windows, upside down.

"The Night Caller" is actor Belmondo's first role as a minion of the law. His previous tough-guy roles have kept him mainly on the other side of the law and of society in general. As Inspector Le Tellier, he is a professional, tough cop who is usually first on the scene and first to draw.

In a confrontation with three postoffice robbers, he guns down two and leaps into his partner's car to pursue the other. The windshield is shattered by a bullet which kills the driver, but Le Tellier merely grabs the wheel with one hand and slams his dead friend's foot on the accelerator, to continue the chase as long as he can. The scene is typical of the planning and energy that director Henri Verneuil and star Belmondo put into the film.

Le Tellier has to interrupt his liquidation of run-of-the-mill baddies to track down a mad killer of lone women, who communicates with Le Tellier by means of letters and phone calls after each terrifying murder. At one point in the chase, Belmondo has to inch along a window ledge several stories above the street, lose his footing and slip, then stop his descent with one hand. Finally, he pulls himself back up to the window while firing his pistol with the other hand. His only protection during this muscle-straining stunt was a strap around one wrist.

Belmondo feels that he can qualify as a cat burglar or a human fly after stunts such as those.
