

THE HARRINGTON JOURNAL

SIXTY-FIRST YEAR PUBLISHED WEEKLY HARRINGTON, DELAWARE WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 5, 1977 FIFTEEN CENTS PER COPY NO. 30

Miss Elaine Watson

Journal Staffer Has First Book Published

HARRINGTON—Miss Elaine Watson, of Harrington Manor, received advance copies of the first book she has had published during the Christmas holidays.

The book is entitled "Where Are You, God?" and is printed by Broadman Press of Nashville, Tenn. Miss Watson says the book is written for preschoolers.

She told the Journal she received a contract for the publishing of the book in April and reports she "didn't know what it was" when she opened her first contract. The letter explaining the contract didn't arrive until the following day, but she had figured it out long before then.

This isn't the first time Miss Watson's children's stories have appeared, having several in periodicals, primarily church oriented magazines.

Miss Watson says her literary efforts will continue with young people in mind. She says she has written on numerous children's topics, from "ice cubes to paper clips".

Will the book be sold locally? She is in the process of talking to area religious book stores and says her book, which went on sale January 1 is already in all Baptist book stores in the country.

As an employee at the Harrington Journal, Miss Watson proof reads, helps edit and works in the paste up department.

She lives with her family, the Rev. and Mrs. W. P. Watson. Rev. Watson is the minister of the Harrington Baptist Church.

Pay City Taxes By January 31

HARRINGTON—If any city resident has not paid his 1976 city taxes, he has until January 31 to do so. After that date, the City Council authorized Monday night turning delinquent names, over to the city's alderman, Anna Hampton, for collection.

As Mayor William Minner presided over his last council meeting during this term of his office, the council agreed to meet with Melvin Wyatt, Ira Huffman and Harold Fry to try to work out a satisfactory arrangement for the City to continue to rent its quarters from the local fire department.

The City's present lease expired December 31.

Joseph Allen Jones was hired as a full-time policeman, bringing the force to four men. Officer Benjamin Twilley will attend the state police academy later this month.

The annual town meeting was mentioned, being slated for Friday night at 7:30 p.m. at the city fire hall. All members of council and the mayor are to be present to hear citizen comments.

Tuesday's city election will be held at city hall, from 12 noon until 7 p.m. There is no contest in the post for mayor or the two council seats, those held by Councilmen Dr. Vincent Lobo and Jack Wyatt. Arthur 'Buck' Cahall is the lone candidate for mayor.

City elections are January 11

Annual town meeting is Friday night

See paper for details.

Police Report Quiet Week

HARRINGTON—According to Chief Ed Layton, the city spent a "relatively quiet Christmas and New Year". Only one item appeared on the police docket this week.

On December 29, police received a report of stolen tools from James Hudson of Harrington. The tools, a tool box, and a hydraulic jack capable of lifting eight tons, were taken from a truck on Hudson's property some time during the Christmas holidays. The items stolen were valued at $225.

Mayor William A. Minner

Arthur "Buck" Cahall, candidate for Mayor.

Councilman Dr. Vincent Lobo, candidate for Ward 3.

Councilman Jack Wyatt, candidate for Ward 4.

Record Votes In Bridgeville

BRIDGEVILLE—A record number of townspeople turned out on Monday to vote for four candidates running for the Town Commissioner's seat.

Running for the one year term were the incumbent, John K. Simons, who tallied 242 votes over John M. Shockley with 195 votes. Candidates for the two year term were the two winners William L. Hartzell with 293 votes who was running for the seat vacated by Norman G. Powell and the incumbent Thomas J. Gray with 289 votes to Thurman W. Adams with 201 votes.

The Town of approximately 1400 people logged 471 voters who turned out to give William L. Hartzell the most votes of any candidate. Hartzell is employed by the Seaford Nylon Plant as a production supervisor. He has served as a member of the school board in Bridgeville, and is active in the Lions Club, having held many cabinet posts in the organization.

Couple Spends Christmas In California

With their family in California, Mr. and Mrs. James Rash of Harrington decided to head west during Christmas.

The couple flew to Los Angeles December 23, where they met son Bobby and his wife Janet.

Christmas day found the Rashses united with members of their family in Bakersville, where son Jimmy and his wife Nicki live. Rashses' daughter Cathy also lives in Bakersville, while she is studying modeling.

Mr. Rash reports the weather and scenery were both beautiful. He says he saw six foot poinsettias growing naturally in the area, and in bloom for Christmas.

The Rashses toured the area as much as possible, including the Sequoia Forest, where they saw some of the giant redwood trees and along the Pacific coast line as far north as San Simeon.

Mr. Rash told the Journal his son Jimmy was studying broadcasting and that he was working with station KAFY while continuing his studies. His younger son Bob is in an iron workers' union, and is currently helping to construct a Keyser Steel building, which is 138 feet in the air now and will go up to 235 feet when finished.

The Rashses returned to Harrington late New Year's night and back to the cold weather.

We Have Weather, Regardless

HARRINGTON—We'll have the weather, whether or not, as one expression about the weather goes. There has been a variety of the stuff in these parts lately, with dipping temperatures and a heavy, wet, if not too deep snow last Wednesday morning to get up to. It hasn't all gone yet, with frigid winds and low teen temperatures bringing in the new year.

Tuesday morning found motorists creeping cautiously along treacherously slippery highways and town streets. Youngsters on their way to school on foot or on bicycles frequently found themselves making contact with the ground.

Since winter officially began December 21, winter has provided a variety of weather ever since.

Felton Council Discusses Water Rates

FELTON—The first town meeting of the year for Felton was a quiet one.

The practice of following the procedure of conducting a town meeting was carried out quickly.

It was not until the end of the meeting that the question of water rates and charges were brought up for discussion from the floor by citizen and frequent attendee of Town meetings, Johnny (Hop) Hopkins.

Hopkins asked Mayor Myers and the Council if the rates for the 34 units outside of the Town, which were recently granted the right to have Town water, would be raised and if so by how much. Mayor Myers pointed out that if the average townspeople was paying $4.50 per quarter the average person among the 34 units would be paying half again as much which is $6.75 a quarter.

This is what led the discussion to the point where it was believed that a study should be made soon to determine the costs of water supply to determine if an increase in rates is warranted.

The general consensus of the council was that the rates, whether they were for those users within the Town limits or those outside, were definitely low.

Hopkins also pointed out those living outside the Town should pay more for they were "...getting a bargain". According to Hopkins, for the privilege of getting the use of Town water, the persons living outside the Town should pay more. He went on to explain that townspeople were being penalized because they were required to pay more to the Town and that the tax money was also being used to pay for the maintenance of the water tower, cutting of grass around the tower and the expense of Clorox for water purification. Mayor Myers was quick to point out money from the water rates and charges were the sources of the money to bear the expense of maintaining the water system in the Town. No money collected from taxes was used for the maintaining of the water system for the Town, according to Mayor Myers.

The Town of Felton has approximately 150 homes comprising about 500 people. The charges for water per house where the following items appear are as follows: full bath $2, kitchen $1.65, automatic washer $1.50, outside spigot $1.25, and half bath $1.25. Not every house in Felton has all of these items. The addition of the 34 units would bring in an additional $260 to $285 per quarter or close to $1,000 per year. At the end of the meeting the question of whether or not water was too cheap or reasonable in the Town of Felton remained unanswered until a final recommendation based on a study to be made soon by members of the Council.

The former Outten Insurance building goes under the blade Wednesday, December 29, to make way for the new Peoples Bank building.

The insurance building formerly had housed a barber shop, among other businesses. The bank plans indicate trees and shrubs where the former Outten building stood.

Local AFS Chapter To Host AFS Weekend

The Lake Forest School District, the AFS Chapter and AFS Club of the High School will play hosts to 16 members of the AFS Foreign Exchange Student group this weekend at the Lake Forest High School and in the communities of the school district.

Mrs. Leon Kukulka, president of the local AFS Chapter, reported this week that plans have been made to greet the students as they arrive on Friday morning at Chipman Junior High School.

The young representatives from many foreign countries will visit a number of classrooms in the junior high school and in the Lake Forest South Elementary school.

Each visit will be an opportunity for local students to ask questions about the many countries and customs represented by each of the visitors.

Following lunch at the high school an assembly will be held. This is usually the occasion for the students to demonstrate some native song or dance. After attending classes with members of the AFS Club, each visitor will go to a host home for a short visit before meeting at the Harrington New Century Club House for a covered dish dinner and an evening of dancing, conversation and getting to know one another.

Saturday's schedule tentatively includes a swim party at a pool in Dover and a visit to a pizza parlor in the area.

Sunday the students will gather at Chipman School once more to enjoy a light snack before bidding their host families good bye and returning to their homes in nearby communities.

Happenings

by Carole Glasspool

'Twas the season to be jolly and in Canterbury and Viola gracious hospitality was abundantly evident.

On Christmas Eve Grace and Gardner Kersey held a buffet supper at their Viola home for friends and family.

Ruth and Al Cole waited 'til Santa had paid his visit to hold a buffet supper for their family and friends on Christmas night. Their Orchard Acres home was beautifully decorated much of it with Ruth's own handiwork. Crocheted socks, in every color combination imaginable and no two alike, were carefully hung and had been generously and thoughtfully filled by the jolly old man in the red suit. Ruth had even crocheted a teddy bear for Tuffy, their German shepherd. Now Tuffy will give you his other toys somewhat reluctantly but don't try to take his teddy bear unless you are prepared to get along with only one hand.

Mike and Debbie Fisher of Gulfport, Florida came north to enjoy (?) our "slightly nippy" weather and visit their respective parents Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fisher of Felton and Mr. and Mrs. George Harris of Canterbury.

Also coming from warmer climates was Stanley Good of Dallas, Texas to visit at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Horace Good, Barratts Chapel Rd. Stanley will be moving very soon to Southern California. The Xerox Co. certainly has their offices located in nice climates.

Mr. Hill is a 1974 graduate of Lake Forest High School and is self-employed.

A June wedding is planned.

Prior to Christmas the rock group "Kiss" held a concert at the Spectrum in Philadelphia. Try saying "Kiss Christmas Concert" five times in a row. Attending from the Canterbury-Felton Harrington area were Scott Chambers, Gary Kashner, James Overstreet and David Shulties. There were well to wall people but everyone thought it was a really super concert. Some organization could probably raise some money if they would sponsor buses to take our young adults to some of these concerts.

Friends of Bill and Violetta Hammond greeted 1977 at their Canterbury home and enjoyed a New Years Eve buffet. Alice and C.E. Hinson also had a house full of people on New Year's Eve ranging in age from 13 to well, let's just say over 30. It was also a "christening" of their new family room with fireplace and that fireplace was certainly a welcoming spot on that bitter night.

Alice's table, as usual, was laden to the point where it was groaning with cheese fondue, meat balls, and all sorts of other hors d'oeuvres, really a misnomer because when they are that abundant the hors d'oeuvres are more like a full meal.

Congratulations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gott of Woodbury on the arrival of their Christmas baby girl December 23rd.

A somewhat belated Happy Birthday to Ruth Cole of Orchard Acres and best wishes for at least 40 more birthdays!

The Greenwood Lions Club report that Thomas Lookerman was the lucky winner of the shotgun they gave away just before Christmas. This was for the benefit of Lion Louis Brumberg who is running for District Governor.

The Greenwood Lions Club distributed 21 Christmas baskets this year for the needy.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Meredith entertained on Christmas Day Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hodge and daughter, Amber, and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hedgecock of Dover.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hatfield and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Bollinger entertained between 40 and 50 members of their family and close friends to dinner on Christmas Eve at the Bollinger home where they joined the Bollinger house guests, Mr. and Mrs. William Bollinger of Lewisburg, Pa., and Miss Catharine Stahl of Swarthmore, Pa.

On Christmas afternoon, the Gary Bollingers entertained to a small buffet for their house guests and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Davis and children, Mrs. Helen Maloney and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Patterson and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Anderson of Laurel, Md., spent the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Warner.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Warner, Sr. entertained to Christmas Eve dinner dessert and gift exchange Mr. and Mrs. William Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nichols and son, Brian, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Anderson and son, Brian, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Warner, Jr., Dale and Becky Rentz, Margo and Mark Calvert, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Schaefer and family, Heidi, Frank Wesley 3rd, and Mrs. Margaret Homewood.

On Christmas Day the same group gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs.

Wesley Schaefer for a candlelight buffet dinner in Seaford. Friday evening callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Laughery were Mr. and Mrs. Ronald case, Karen and Blair, of Newark, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Passwaters of Milford, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vincent of Farmington, and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Webb of Harrington.

On Saturday the Laugh-ery's guests were Mr. and Mrs. David Laughery of Seaford, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Laughery and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sammons of Chester, Pa. On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. David Laughery and Vicky of Seaford dropped by for a snack.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hatfield enjoyed the Christmas party on Thursday evening given by the Milford Chronicle for the employees and staff at the Dinner Bell Inn in Dover. The Rev. and Mrs. William A. Davis and sons from Simpsonville, S.C., are spending the Christmas holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Allison Davis and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Allison Davis is entertained at a Christmas dinner on Thursday. Callers at the Davis home on Thursday were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Butler and children, Penny, Sandy, Doug and Kelly of Seaford.

"Where's the new album I got for Christmas?" one teenage son bellowed to the other standing two feet away.

"It's there under the dog, stupid, just where you left it."

"I didn't leave it under no dog," the offended one said darkly.

"Any dog," I corrected.

"What?"

"ANY dog."

"Oh, what's the difference! Mom, the darn dog's been scratching himself. There are dog hairs and dead fleas all over my new record. And look at that long gouge!"

Which only illustrates a point long-suffering mothers have been making for centuries: possessions last longer if treated with care. In the case of records, that means keeping them clean, unwrapped, and out from under the dog.

Extension home management specialist Coral Morris suggests the following routine for keeping your record collection in good shape. First of all, ALWAYS handle records by the edges only. To prevent warping, store them vertically in a cool, dry place, away from sunlight and direct heat. After playing, remove the record from the turntable, return it to its paper envelope and then to its jacket. This minimizes scratching.

Before playing a record, dust it with a special record cleaning pad, or soft brush.

Coral says frequently-played or grubby records should be treated to a bath occasionally. Immerse the records, one by one, in a plastic dishpan of detergent and warm water. Swish them through the suds, then rinse under a gentle flow of warm water. Dry with a soft, lint-free cloth.

From The Frying Pan

Ho, hum...time for the annual town meeting and city elections in Harrington. What's that? You don't know there is an annual town meeting?

According to the city charter, soon to be rewritten with citizen input hopefully, an annual town meeting is called, this year on January 7. At this time, the present mayor and city council are on hand to answer citizen questions, as well as to hear suggestions from the citizenry.

First of all, the meeting is on a Friday night, and it is hoped the meeting night will be, if it is to be continued, on a more suitable night earlier in the week...Friday night is not the best night for a public meeting. However, that is in the future, to speculate about change. We must work with what we have.

At the past several town meetings, there has been very little, if any, citizen response. In fact the only time the citizens come to city hall, they are usually hopping mad about something. So, mayor and council, if no one comes to the annual meeting, it should be interpreted that everyone in the city is satisfied with the jobs being done by the city fathers: who do not get paid for their time and efforts spent attending meetings and workshops.

We would like to see some interest stimulated at the town meeting, but have seen more council meetings that have better turnouts than a town meeting.

Next Tuesday a city election will take place, with one candidate for mayor and two incumbent councilmen seeking to refill their seats. No opposition, another sign that everyone is doing his job well...or won't anyone else stick out his or her neck for the city?

We do not mean to imply the men seeking reelection are not doing a good job, nor that the candidate for mayor is not worthy. We would like to see a little competition, to keep with the American tradition of political contest. Also there are no women or any minority group candidates. We would like to see a little competition, although such has not been seen in several elections.

In either case, two events that should concern our citizenry are about to take place again.

How many of us will adopt a wait, see attitude...or will we get involved...for a change?

In other matters, Councilman Donald Jacobs reported that the Bicentennial Committee as one of its last acts will plant 20 cherry trees which have already been purchased and paid for in advance.

This will bring the total cherry trees for the Town to 76 with the last one to be planted on the school grounds. Additional trees may be purchased by townspeople wishing to have one by paying $8.50 to the Bicentennial Committee, which represents the cost to the Committee. The committee asks that the purchasers plant the

Two major oil spills in the space of one week -- one of them in the Delaware River -- has heightened the need for Congressional action.

The week's desperate efforts to save the waterfowl in and along the Delaware Bay made it clear that our emphasis must be on preventing oil spills, not just containing them or cleaning them up. As a practical matter, we don't have the experience or equipment to effectively contain or clean up a substantial oil spill. So we must stop them from happening.

I've worked for this in the past, but unfortunately, the Congress as a whole has failed to act. By failing to take constructive action, the Congress is courting disaster.

In an effort to spur some action, I organized a group of eight Senators to make a public commitment to press for investigation of the oil spill off Massachusetts. That occurred when the Argo Merchant, an oil tanker flying under the Liberian flag, went aground and split about 30 miles off the Massachusetts coast. The tanker spilled about 7.6 million gallons of oil.

It was unusual for eight Senators to join in such a statement, especially one as strong as the one I drafted. The willingness of these men to commit themselves demonstrates the wide agreement among those of us whose states are threatened by such spills.

From a personal point of view, the oil spill in the Delaware River from the tanker Olympic Games is more frightening. Since the Olympic Games also flew the Liberian flag, many of the questions raised by the Massachusetts spill were revived by the grounding near Philadelphia. But now that I've enlisted the support of other Senators, some of these questions may be trees in good view for future generations to see. So far the only tree lost was the one vandalized in front of the Methodist Church on Main St. The culprit remains unknown, but Mayor Myers voiced belief and hope that the tree would be found and the guilty party identified.

Roth Calls For Action On Oil Spills

The text of our statement was as follows: "The tragic oil spill off the coast of one of our country's most beautiful and valuable areas raises serious questions. It is apparent that both national and international policy are inadequate to answer these questions, especially in the following areas:

- 1. Who was responsible for the grounding of the Argo Merchant? If it is true, as reported, that navigational aids were available but not used, and that their use could have avoided this tragedy, this represents a degree of irresponsibility that appears to verge on criminal conduct. 2. Why was a tanker with a history of accidents and near misses, one which the U. S. Coast Guard termed a 'suspect ship' permitted to continue transporting oil. More importantly, if it is true that the Coast Guard intended to board and inspect the Argo Merchant before permitting it to dock, why was it permitted to approach so close to our coast.

3. Who are the true owners of the Argo Merchant and what is the extent of their liability. Who has been profiting from the operation of a tanker which was, according to reports, unfit for the transportation of oil. It is inconceivable that under present law the owners of tankers should be permitted to avoid their legal obligations and liability through the use of sham foreign corporations and foreign flags which are unrelated to either ship or cargo.

We intend, both collectively and individually, to press for a full and complete airing of these questions so that we can find deficiencies and fix responsibility. This will have been only a senseless tragedy unless we learn from it."

Joining me in the statement were Senators Clifford P. Case, R-N.J.; Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J.; William D. Hathaway, D-Maine; Charles McC Mathias, R-Md.; Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine; Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., and John C. Culver, D-Iowa.

Open Letter To Chipman Parents

Dear Parents,

With the beginning of a new year it seems that this should also be the beginning of a new semester at school. However, the second semester does not begin until January 26th. This fact should not keep us from putting our New Year's resolutions into practice. To put them off is guaranteed to reduce our determination. Perhaps some students have decided to do more and better studying and to be more responsible family members. I hope that many families have decided to arrange to spend more time together, to share experiences, and to talk about feelings as well as the daily happenings.

Frequently I remind myself that the only way to have friends is to be one, but I have a problem when it comes to letter-writing. Perhaps my sharing of these ideas with you will encourage you to do some "taking stock." Isn't it nice to be able to start out on another fresh new year? Learning to make and keep friends will be the subject of this week's lesson for the seventh grade groups.

I expect to have the results of the Differential Aptitude Test scores for the eighth grade by the end of this semester. These test results will be presented and explained to all eighth grade students in their regular guidance classes. However, parent conferences will be scheduled upon request.

I will let you know when I have received these scores. Sincerely, Sarah S. Webb Counselor

Career Corner

We all know that when the body is healthy and fit, it is attractive and serves us well. Keeping it that way often is easier said than done. Workers in physical culture occupations help us keep control of the way our bodies look and feel.

Although there are numerous occupations that involve care of the body, we will consider only these in this article: massage technicians, massage therapists, and reducing machine operators. MASSAGE TECHNICIANS & THERAPISTS

From the invalid in the hospital, to the well-conditioned athlete, to the President of the United States, massage often is a valuable therapy. Usually performed by the hands, it can be used to relieve muscle tension, improve circulation, soothe injuries and relax nerves. Heat, water motion, and exercise may be used along with hand massage in the treatment.

Health clubs, spas, health studios, hospitals, sanitariums, nursing homes, and private offices are some of the places masseurs (men) and masseuses (women) work. Many people include massage as a regular part of physical conditioning while others use it as part of a therapy recommended by a doctor.

The modern trend is to refer to these workers as massage therapists or massage technicians. This is partly a result of an effort by skilled workers to distinguish themselves from unqualified persons calling themselves masseuses.

They should not be confused with physical therapists, however, who are workers in the health field.

The usual path to becoming a massage therapist includes training at a private school offering courses in massage therapy. The American Massage and Therapy Association (AMTA), approves programs. Courses usually include: physiology, massage, hydrotherapy, hygiene.

Unfortunately, the lack of state licensing requirements has resulted in many unqualified and untrained people calling themselves masseuses and masseurs. Most legitimate operators can be distinguished by a membership in a state chapter of the AMTA which maintains specific standards for members.

Depending on where they work, massage therapists earn between $5,000 and $12,000 per year. An experienced worker can earn as much as $17,000. WEIGHT REDUCTION WORKER

Keeping the body down to a healthy weight often requires more than just will-power. Weight reducing organizations, health clubs, and spas usually have staff members who can help people with exercises that will help take off excess pounds.

In a survey of major health club chains, it was found that nearly all workers in this occupation at one time had a weight problem themselves. The ability to empathize with people who have weight problems appears to be important in this job.

The duties of weight reducing workers range from demonstrating exercise equipment to designing reduction programs and lecturing on proper nutrition. Some exercise equipment requires the presence of operators.

FOOD MARKETING ALERT

USDA Agricultural Marketing Service

As of mid-December, the supply situation in January is expected to look like this...

RED MEATS

Beef... plentiful. Production rates will likely average about 5% above Jan. 1974-76 average but about 5% below year earlier record level.

Pork... plentiful. Production rates during Jan. to continue seasonally large and average about 22-24% above unusually low level year earlier.

POULTRY & EGGS

Broiler-fryers... plentiful. Jan. production about 5% more than Jan. 1976, 8% above Jan. 1974-76 average.

Eggs... adequate. Jan. output to be slightly above last year's level.

Turkeys... adequate. Although seasonally small new crop Jan. marketings will be near year earlier levels, the seasonally large cold storage holdings will put turkey in adequate supply. New crop Jan. marketings anticipated to be some 2% lower than last Jan. and 6% below the 3-year Jan. average. Jan. 1 cold storage holdings expected up more than 25% from last year and approximate 3-year average of 1974-76. Therefore, Jan. supply would be up about 20% from a year earlier.

MILK & DAIRY PRODUCTS

Milk and dairy products... plentiful. Heavy stocks and seasonally increasing production indicate Jan. purchases by Government under price support will likely be heavier than recent years. Nov. milk production was up 5% from year earlier and 6% above its 1973-75 average. Preliminary Nov. figures indicate butter production was about 20% higher and American cheese production 25% higher than Nov. 1975. Nonfat dry milk Oct. output was 35% higher than Oct. 1975 and 20% over previous 3-year average.

Nov. 1 commercial butter and nonfat dry milk stocks were higher than 1975 levels. American cheese stocks were record high Nov. 1, about 35% over previous years' level.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES, NUTS

Fresh citrus fruits and juices... plentiful. A record early, mid-season and navel orange crop is forecast at 18% above last season and 21% more than the 1974-75 season. A record grapefruit crop is forecast: 12% above last season. Lemon production is forecast at 62% above last season and only 2% below the record 1974-75 crop. Indicated tangerine crop is around 50% higher than levels of past two seasons. Dec. 1 stocks frozen concentrated orange juice were 5% more than last year at same time.

Fresh noncitrus fruits... plentiful. At Dec. beginning, Pacific Coast winter pear holdings were reported by industry sources at 27% above level Dec. 1, 1975. Cranberry crop set a record, 15% above last year and 6% above 1974. Industry estimates Nov. 1 total storage holdings apples 9% less than a year earlier.

Canned noncitrus fruits... plentiful from this year's production, especially peaches, pears, and fruit cocktail.

Dried prunes... adequate. California 1976 production estimated 8% less than last year and a little less than 1974 crop. Raisins... light. 1976 production is expected to be much lower than last year. Sept. rains adversely affected drying of raisins causing heavy crop losses.

Canned vegetables... plentiful. Canners Nov. 1 inventories 6 principal canned vegetables totaled 14% above average. Canned lima beans, green peas, sweet corn, carrots, and beets were 30%, 29%, 25%, 11%, and 7% above average. Snap bean stocks were 2% below the average but still ample. Oct. 31 supplies frozen vegetables ranged from adequate to plentiful, with green peas, sweet corn (cut) and corn-on-cob exceeding their 3-year average.

Potatoes, sweet potatoes, and dry onions continue plentiful. Dec. 1 stocks storage potatoes were a record 198.4 million cwt., 8% greater than 1975, and 13% above the 3-year average. Sweetpotato and storage onion production remain unchanged at 4% and 20% higher than last year. Frozen French fried potato stocks were 25% greater than 1975.

Peanuts... plentiful even though Oct. 31 commercial stocks were 13% lower than a year ago. Almonds... plentiful. California's 1976 crop expected to be record high, some 47% more than in 1975. Walnuts... plentiful. 1976 production is expected around 4% less than record 1975 crop. Pecans... light. 1976 production is estimated to be less than half 1975 crop and 25% less than in 1974.

GRAINS & LEGUMES

Rice... plentiful with record supply in prospect. 1973-75 average.

Wheat... plentiful with large carryin; production indicated at record 2,147 million bu.; slightly more than last year's record crop and 14% above the 1973-75 average.

Corn... plentiful. Production forecast record 6,036 million bu., 5% above last year, and 13% above the 1973-75 average.

Dry beans... plentiful. Production forecast at 17.2 million cwt., virtually same as 1975 crop, but 4% below 1973-75 average. Dry peas... adequate. Production at 2.0 million cwt. is 25% under last year and 20% under the 1973-75 average.

Terminology used: PLENTIFUL — More than enough for requirements. ADEQUATE — Enough to meet needs. LIGHT — Less than adequate; not enough for normal needs.

For Your Information

Dear friends,

The modern funeral service has evolved in response to public wishes from the more primitive service of our forefathers. The funeral director receives thorough training in the technical skills of his profession and the development of his innate tact, courtesy, patience and understanding.

We continually strive to become more proficient in our professional duties.

Respectfully,

William A. Berry Jr.

The second Pesticide Certification meetings will be held in January. At the meeting we will briefly review the first meeting and answer questions. Then the Delaware State Department of Agriculture will give the test. All Sussex County farmers should have received their letter stating when and where the meetings are being held. Also, the letter lists February 16, 1977 as the make-up meeting. This is a training meeting for all those private applicators who missed the first meeting. The meeting will be held at the University of Delaware Substation at 10 a.m. and should be over by noon.

A private applicator is one who applies "restricted use" pesticides to his land or land that he rents. If he receives pay for doing his neighbors spraying he becomes a commercial applicator. A commercial applicator meeting will be held later.

This meeting is not required for home gardeners

Reflective tape on clothing could save thousands of pedestrians that are killed each year as a result of nighttime accidents.

Coral Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware, points out that motor vehicles killed 8600 pedestrians last year in the U.S., more than half of them after dark.

"It isn't just the drunk or careless drivers who run into people," she adds. "Even skilled and cautious drivers may hit someone they can't see."

Although bicycles are often reflectorized for nighttime protection, people usually aren't. As a result, pedestrians are hit because drivers see them too late to stop, or never see them at all until after impact.

Ms. Morris explains that the average driver going 50 mph needs 185 feet to stop. A pedestrian in dark clothing isn't visible in a car's headlights until he's only 55 feet away.

These grim statistics suggest that it is up to pedestrians to protect themselves after dark. Reflective fabric and tape are designed to do just that.

A pedestrian wearing reflective trim is visible at 500 feet or more in a car's headlights.

The specialist recommends checking local fabric stores and notions counters for iron-on reflective appliques, or sew-on strips of reflective fabric.

Gab Fest

by Pat Hatfield

The snow they have been predicting for Delaware finally fell on it last night, and we awoke to a winter wonderland. It was my kind of snow...soft and whipped creamy. My mockingbird was out early to see what the House Mama had prepared for his breakfast. I feel that I cannot do enough for him to repay him for all the glorious songs he has given me. While I am admiring the Japonica and the other trees and shrubbery dipped in frosty white, Dad is busily cleaning it off the car. In that area, at least, it is not so pretty.

The children are happily enjoying all their gifts. They miss Grandmother Bollinger since she has returned to her home because she enjoys playing their games with them. I am sorry that I am not a "game" person. Most of them bore me to tears, but I will play Chinese checkers with them and I like Scrabble very much and crossword puzzles. But these games where you spin a card or throw some dice and move slowly up five spaces at a time are not for me.

Dad has made us a fine new bird feeder and one for Ellen also. She has lots of birds at her home in town and so does Tess. Tess said yesterday that her feeder was crowded with purple finches and evening grosbeaks. Mary has lots of cardinals and my neighbor down the road has the grosbeaks. Here we put out feed and we have no dog to bark and scare them and no cat to prowl (because Morris never goes out), but not many birds come. We have the mockingbird, a downy woodpecker or two and a red-headed woodpecker and that's about it, except for the inevitable starlings and sparrows.

Do you all follow the New Year's tradition of serving "Hopping John", the black-eyed peas with rice? We sometimes have black-eyed peas but with rice sounds too starchy for me. We like our peas simmered in a pot with a piece of salt pork and some parsley, a chopped onion and sometimes a bit of grated carrot. We serve these in soup bowls as a one-dish meal with salad and dessert.

This afternoon we had to do some errands and it was really a tour of beauty. The little twigs and branches of all the trees were covered in frothy white and the evergreens drooped gracefully with big plops of the white stuff. The lake was partially frozen and the whole picture was one of exquisite beauty. On the back road we took coming home, the fields yet undisturbed were covered with smooth white frosting so lovely with a cold winter sunset, gray and surrounded with very pale gold. In the autumn we were stimulated with the riotous colors, but now we are relaxed and soothed by the soft grays and charcoals, blacks and whites. We all agreed in the car that we were so happy to live in a climate and an area where we could enjoy the change of seasons. Each has its own glory and we never tire of the lovely panorama.

How very best we are I thought gratefully as I put in the last of the mince pie to warm for dinner. Not only do we have food, clothing and shelter for our needs, but the gift of astonishing beauty to delight our eyes and uplift our spirits.

Farm Supplies For Coming Year Look Adequate

Supplies of farm machinery, fertilizer and pesticides look adequate for the coming year, according to University of Delaware extension crops marketing specialist, Carl German.

In contrast to 1973 and 1974, the current outlook for most farming inputs "holds little suspense, excitement or attention," says German, quoting from a recent report released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service (ERS).

Basically, it's back to business as usual, but there are several major points that farmers should keep in mind. These include the rising cost of farm machinery, higher prices for fuel, the possible loss of some pesticides and some uncertainty with respect to nitrogen fertilizer.

In general, manufacturers of purchased farm inputs have increased their production capacity and farmers have increased their purchases. Prices for most input items, with the exception of fertilizer, are rising, but at a slower rate than in recent years.

As of mid-October, 1976, the index of prices received by farmers was down nine percent from the year before. However, prices paid by farmers for production items, interest, taxes and wages averaged five percent higher.

For all of 1976, total farm production expenditures appear to have risen about five percent over 1975, according to the economist.

Realized net farm income for 1977 may be slightly down as compared to last year.

Farm machinery demand remained strong in 1976. Through August, sales of four-wheel-drive tractors increased 16 percent and sales of all tractors were about even with the previous year. Sales of combines, forage harvesters and windrowers were up moderately, and corn picking equipment sales were 16 percent ahead of 1975. The overall rate of farm machinery production through July of 1976 exceeded the rate for all of 1975.

Fertilizers were in strong demand and short supply in 1973-74, and prices rose sharply. Retail prices peaked in April 1975 and have declined considerably since that time.

Production capacities of fertilizer plants generally are up from 1975 and relatively large inventories are being held at the primary and intermediate production levels. As a result, the general outlook for the 1976-77 crop year is that fertilizer supplies will be sufficient to prevent any upward movement in prices.

The nitrogen fertilizer outlook is clouded to some extent by uncertainties in the natural gas industry. Natural gas is an important element in the production of anhydrous ammonia. However, inventories of nitrogen fertilizer material generally are high.

It's too early to develop reliable estimates of fertilizer demand for the 1977 crop year, points out German. But U.S. farmers are expected to plant larger cotton and soybean crops, and possibly smaller crops of wheat, corn and other feed grains. Because cotton and soybeans require less fertilizer per acre, some cutback in use can be expected. Total fertilizer use for the year, however, may be as large as in 1976.

Prospects are good that supplies of agricultural pesticides will be sufficient for the 1977 crop season at nearly stable prices. Manufacturers are adding to capacity and have some current unused capacity.

In 1976, overall pesticide production capacity was increased by about 20 percent. In 1977, manufacturers expect to add another 20 percent to herbicide capacity and five percent to insecticide capacity.

Regulatory actions are becoming an increasingly important factor in assessing the use and availability of pesticides, notes the economist. In recent years, Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) cancellations and suspensions have contributed to significant changes in the use of certain pesticides.

Also, for the coming year there are regulatory requirements that may have a considerable effect on the availability and use of certain pesticides. By next October all private and commercial applicators of restricted-use pesticides must be certified and all pesticides registered before 1972 must be re-registered.

Protect Woody Ornaments Against Winter Injury

Every year many woody ornamentals are lost because of winter injury. Drying winds, bright sunlight, sudden temperature drops and lack of hardiness all take their toll.

Windburn or sunscald is one frequent form of winter injury. According to University of Delaware extension garden specialist Dave Tatnall, the problem occurs because plants—especially evergreens—continue to lose moisture during the winter. If this water isn't replaced as fast as it is lost, twigs and buds will die and leaf edges and tips will turn brown. These symptoms usually appear three to six weeks after actual damage occurs.

Another frequent cause of damage on woody ornamentals is a sudden freeze following a warm spell. This is most likely to happen during late fall or early spring, but could occur after any prolonged winter thaw. If plants are not fully dormant at the time, actively-growing tissue will be injured by the sudden temperature drop.

A third winter problem is mechanical damage. This happens when a heavy load of snow or ice builds up on branches so that they split or break off. What can you do to protect your woody plants from such winter injuries? Select plants and planting sites carefully and follow good cultural recommendations, says Tatnall. The most important factor is to choose plants that are hardy in this area. If you're in doubt about a certain plant, consult your local nurseryman or check with your county extension office.

When planting a wood ornamental, it is also important to choose a site that offers natural protection. The north, northeast or east sides of buildings are best shielded from drying winds and the sun. Where natural protection is unavailable, build shade screens with straw mats or burlap fastened to sturdy frames.

Nurses Are Licensed

DOVER—The State Board of Nursing has announced the names of licensed practical nurses who recently passed the State Board Test Pool Examination and are licensed to practice in Delaware. Included are the following area residents: Deborah R. Bennett, Milford; Eleanor L. Fooks, Greenwood; Patricia A. Griffin, Felton; Patricia A. Hawkins, Milford; and Shirley M. Jobes, Magnolia.

Do not use plastic.

No cultural factor is more important than a good supply of water, adds Tatnall. Use mulches to conserve moisture and also to prevent heaving caused by alternate freezing and thawing of the ground. Newly-planted evergreens will benefit from a weekly watering when the ground isn't frozen and rainfall is inadequate.

Tender shrubs and small trees can be sprayed with an antidesiccant to protect them from injury. This gives a thin, plastic-like coating which retards water loss but still allows the foliage to "breathe." Apply anti-desiccants in early and late winter.

When landscape plants are located under tree branches or the eaves of a building, protect particularly fine or brittle specimens from falling ice or snow with a lath frame shield, or wrap them in burlap. If snow does accumulate on branches, use a broom to remove it with an upward sweeping motion. One caution—never attack an ice-covered shrub or tree with a broom. This will only guarantee injury, explains the specialist.

Finally, take good care of plants during the summer. A healthy tree or shrub will better resist the ravages of winter.

Men In Service

The son of a Brandon, Fla., resident has achieved the rank of staff sergeant in the U.S. Air Force.

Sergeant Jack M. Freeman, whose father is Gerald L. Freeman of 119 Emily Lane, Brandon, is a small arms specialist at Camp New Amsterdam AB, Netherlands, and serves with a unit of the U.S. Air Forces in Europe. The sergeant, a 1970 graduate of Torrance (Cal.) high school received his associate's degree in 1976 from the City College of Chicago extension at Soesterberg, Netherlands. His wife, Dawn, is the daughter of Mrs. Barbara Duncan of Rt. 3, Felton.

Army Private Kenneth E. Perry, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Perry, 201 E. Milby St., Harrington, recently was assigned to the 1st Infantry Division at Ft. Riley, Kan.

A field radio mechanic in Company B, 4th Battalion of the division's 63rd Armor, Pvt. Perry entered the Army last July and completed basic training at Ft. Sill, Okla.

The private is a 1974 graduate of Lake Forest High School in Felton.

Give A House Plant To A Brown Thumb

Do you know someone with a brown thumb? Maybe you can help him or her get interested in gardening with a house-plant that's nearly indestructible.

There seem to be two types of brown thumbs—those that kill plants with kindness by watering them once or twice a day, and those that just can't remember to water plants more than once every couple of weeks. University of Delaware extension garden specialist Dave Tatnall says there are a number of plants suitable for people with either of these handicaps.

There are more possibilities for the forgetter. The most obvious is Cactus, but it must have a sunny window. Sansevieria, also called snake plant, will grow in any window and will usually survive even if you forget to water it for a month or more. Another name for Aspidistra is cast iron plant, because this particular specimen will tolerate amazing neglect.

Wax-leaved Peperomia and Pothos, which both come in plain green and variegated forms, can be forgotten for a week or two if they're in plastic pots. These two are good because they are easy to propagate from cuttings in water, which is usually a thrill to a beginner.

Most Bromeliads (members of the pineapple family) like to dry out well between waterings.

Heart-leaf Philodendron is such a familiar case of neglect in many homes, that you may even forget to consider it. But this is certainly another possibility, says Tatnall. Besides being able to go without water for long periods, it can also survive extensive over-watering.

Other than Philodendron, the selection of house-plants suitable for the overwaterer is much smaller. Chinese Evergreen can tolerate being wet. Cyperus, also called umbrella plant (but don't confuse it with Schefflera) is a swamp plant that must be standing in a container of water all the time. In a big enough basin, this plant would be good for a forgetter, too.

Baby's Tears and Creeping Fig don't like to be soggy, but in small clay pots they can survive a daily watering.

Remember that one small success may inspire a beginner to learn more about growing plants. In fact, it is not at all unusual for some brown thumbs to turn into nice bright green ones, given the chance.

What About Consumer Responsibilities

"Everyone talks about consumer rights, but consumer responsibilities are often ignored," states Coral Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware. She believes consumers who are alert and aware of their responsibilities may not need some protective laws. More often, it's the apathetic consumers who get taken.

Ms. Morris agrees with those who insist they have a right to be heard. But along with this right goes the responsibility to support protective measures, voice complaints, obey regulations and keep an open mind.

Consumers who value the right to be informed must also seek information and use it, Ms. Morris emphasizes. The knowledgeable consumer can then help inform others, keep business people on their toes, and inform government agencies of dishonest organizations.

Even the right to fair prices demands a certain responsibility on the part of the consumer, according to the specialist. Prices go up when merchandise is carelessly handled or returned dishonestly, when credit is misused, and when materials and resources are wasted. Ms. Morris believes most products are safe if used correctly. But consumers can't expect safety unless they read labels and warranties, follow directions, and complain to the proper authorities when normal use of a product poses a danger.

Consumers who expect quality should be able to judge quality, says the specialist. They should also refuse to buy second-rate merchandise, or produce it themselves.

A number of federal, state and local agencies give guidance to the public. Ms. Morris urges responsible consumers to ask for information through these agencies and to report complaints, or problems. Among the state agencies are Better Business Bureaus, divisions of consumer affairs, bar associations, and medical societies. Cooperative Extension Service personnel in each county are also available to answer questions and provide assistance.

Federal agencies include the Consumer Product Safety Commission, the Food and Drug Administration, and the Federal Trade Commission.

A catalog of informative consumer publications many of them free, is available from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

"Elsie Butler" a three year-old filly pacer, is shown here after winning a race at Dover Downs, on a slow track in 2.05. As a three year-old she set an all-time record in the Delaware Development Stake races, with a time of 1.59. She later broke the track record of Harrington in 2.01.1 Shown with the filly are J.D. Dennis, trainer driver; Larry Kane, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Kane, owners and Howard Killen, Executive Director of the Delaware Standard-bred Development Fund.

Fields, Frisby, Correll, Jefferson, Capture Championships

It was a very successful Wednesday and Thursday last week for the Woodbridge High School wrestling team as they came home from the J.M. Bennett Invitational tournament with four champions. Their first champion was 98 pounder Mike Fields. Fields is a veteran wrestler who, although he didn't place high at the Milford Invitational Tournament two weeks ago, figures to be one of the Henlopen Conference's top lightweights. Once again Alonzo Frisby captured a championship as he easily took the 105 pound class. Frisby is also a veteran wrestler who is probably the conference's top 105 pounder. Two weeks ago Frisby captured the Milford Invitational Championship and last season he was undefeated in dual meet competition. The third of the Raiders successive champions was Landy Correll. Correll who wrestles in the 112 pound class figures to be the team's regular in that class this season. The final of Woodbridge's champions was 155 pounder Tom Jefferson who just a little over a week ago began wrestling again. Jefferson had suffered a head injury during football season and was not permitted to compete until he was given the OK by his doctor. Filling this weight class with such a strong wrestler should be a big benefit to the Raiders during their dual meet season. The Raiders open their season today (Jan. 5) against Seaford.

Off and Running?

The Lake Forest Athletic Boosters have once again arranged for an afternoon and evening of donkey basketball as part of their fund-raising efforts. Three games will be played, all on Wednesday, January 12. At 3:30 p.m. at the W.T. Chipman gymnasium, the Chipman teachers will play against the Lake Forest High School varsity football team. At the Lake Forest High School there will be two games, the first to get underway at 7:30 p.m. The high school hockey and soccer teams will take on the high school faculty in the first game. Members from the Harrington and Frederica fire companies will match themselves against members from the Felton and Bowers fire companies. Advance tickets for students are $1, $1.50 at the door, and advance adult tickets are $1.50, and $2 at the door. These may be bought at area fire halls or any Lake Forest School office.
