Write Ins Fail Voting Turnout Is Heavy In City Election

Dr. Vincent Lobo

HARRINGTON—Amdist a flurry of rumors about write in candidates for all office vacancies, the three proclaimed candidates easily won during a surprisingly heavy voter turnout Tuesday.

Of the 429 voters who exercised their privilege here, the following results were announced: for mayor, Arthur 'Buck' Cahall received 366 votes. Write in votes for mayor included: 23 for William A. Smith; 1 for Mrs. Ken Meredith; 3 for Harrison Melvin; 1 for Jack Wyatt; 2 for Sam Welch; 1 for George Robert 'Bobby' Quillen.

In Ward One, where councilman Jack Wyatt was seeking re-election, 73 of the estimated 90 possible voters in his ward cast votes to return the councilman to City Hall in their behalf.

In Ward Three, Councilman Dr. Vincent Lobo (Continued to page 8)

Mrs. Jack Aptt., wife of a former councilman, registers to vote in the city's election here Tuesday afternoon, as Norma Short records her name.

Rotary Searches For Scholarship Eligibles

HARRINGTON—The local Rotary Club is taking part in the club's search for outstanding young men and women who "are interested in world affairs and who can fulfill a dual role of student and ambassador of goodwill."

Through the Rotary Foundation Awards for International Understanding for 1978 and 1979, the local club is trying to locate anyone who might be interested in and eligible for one of the Rotary International's fellowships, scholarships, or training awards, all of which involve study abroad.

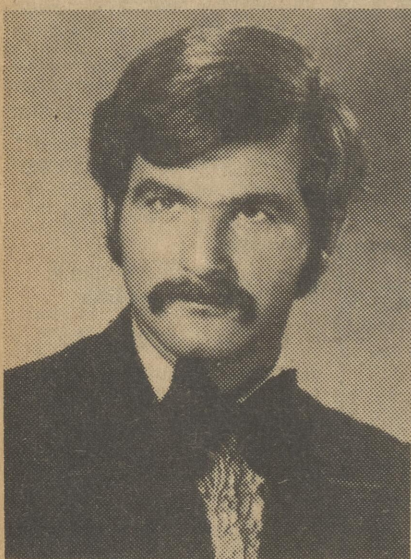

To be a candidate, one must not be a Rotarian or a relative or dependent of a Rotarian by blood or marriage; he or she must be an outstanding student, technician, journalist or teacher and a potential 'good will ambassador' of high quality; and must demonstrate personal qualities of leadership, initiative, enthusiasm, adaptability, maturity and seriousness of purpose as well as meeting specific requirements for each award.

According to Melvin Luff, the local chapter's chairman in the search for interested eligible applicants, one award in each category for each area will be awarded in each Rotary district. The local chapter is in District 763, which encompasses all of Delaware and the eastern shore of Maryland.

A listing of categories open and basis requirements is found on page four. Anyone interested in additional information should contact Melvin Luff at 398-3244 or by writing in care of him at 28 East Camden Wyoming Avenue, Camden, Del.

Luff Joins Congressional Staff

Melvin C. Luff, Jr.

Congressman Tom Evans, Delaware's newly elected member of Congress, announced last Friday a Magnolia resident will be joining his District office staff.

Melvin C. Luff, Jr., will be Rep. Evans' Special Projects Co-ordinator. Luff, a native of Dover, was industrial representative for the Delaware State Development Department from 1967-68. In 1968 he was named manager of the state Bureau of Travel Development of the Department of Commercial Affairs and Economic Development.

He has also served as Director of the Delaware State Sportfishing Tournament and the Delaware Overall Economic Development Program. Luff is one of a staff of seven who will man the District office, located in the Federal Office Building, 844 King Street, Wilmington. He is the only area resident to do so.

According to Luff, he will be acting as a liaison man between Representative Evans and state, county and local government officials. His major responsibility will be "assisting the citizens of Delaware in obtaining federal funding projects."

Luff said he feels Rep. Evans plans to concentrate more in this area of federal funding projects because of working for state government and experiencing some of the frustration others have gone through in trying to deal with projects on the federal level.

Luff says he will be visiting all communities in the state, making himself available to the communities as a resource person in applying for federal project monies.

He also said Rep. Evans plans to have local meetings.

$386,902 Goes To Bridgeville Improvements

BRIDGEVILLE. The President of the Bridgeville Town Council and the members of the Town Council were notified recently that an EDA grant of $386,902.00 would be coming to the Town of Bridgeville in the very near future for street and water department improvements, which would include the separation of storm and sanitary systems, new water lines and the improvement of other lines as well as the improvement of curbs and sidewalk drains relating to the north section.

Greenwood Fire Co. Seeks Fed Funds

GREENWOOD. At last Tuesday's council meeting two members of the Greenwood Fire Company came to the meeting asking the Council "to back them if necessary when Federal funds are made available again in the Spring" so they may try to obtain federal funds to construct a new fire hall.

Finley Jones and John Conaway, members of the Greenwood Fire Company said Federal regulations may require the Town to become involved in the petition which is necessary to start the paper work on obtaining these funds. These are the same funds which recently were awarded the Lake Forest District to construct a new sports complex, and to the Town of Milford to build a new police station...as well as to Laurel to do the same there.

The Town Council members indicated that they would help the fire company provided more details of responsibility and cost if any to the Town could be made available to the Town Councilmen.

Alderman Anna Hampton makes sure the two ladies voting receive the ballots they are entitled to, as everyone could vote for mayor, and citizens in Wards One and Three voted for a councilman also.

Bridgeville Reorganizes

BRIDGEVILLE. At Monday's regular monthly meeting, the Town Commissioners reorganized following the election last Tuesday. Kyle Ewing serving his first term as a commissioner was elected by the new Board as the President of the Commissioners. Under the prior Board, Ewing had served as the Police Commissioner. John K. Simons and T. Jefferson Gray the incumbents elected were given the positions of Chairman of the Water and Sewer Commission and Secretary to the Board respectively.

The new member of the Town Board, William C. Hartzell, III, who was filling the seat left vacant by Norman G. Powell, was appointed to be the next Police Commissioner. Hartzell, who received the highest number of votes in last Tuesday's election, will serve a two year term.

The other member of the Board appointed to post was Earl Willey, Street Commissioner. Willey has served on the Town Board for several years. Charles Daish was rehired as the Town Manager.

Commissioner Earl Willey voiced a strong interest in having a City wide voter registration, and suggested the Commissioners contact their attorney and set the matter in motion. Willey also called on the enforcement of the Town ordinance regarding tax relief for senior citizens. Town Manager Daish commented the proper procedure for the senior citizens would be for each one to phone the tax office in Georgetown and be properly placed on the tax records.

For some time now the matter of separation of the Police Department and the Town Alderman's office has been the subject of much discussion. In every Town office in lower Kent and Sussex Counties the two offices are practically together. Commissioner T. Jefferson Gray suggested at Monday's meeting that the Alderman's Office have a separate phone "...I mean a separate line...a separate phone...a private line all to itself", said Gray. The members of the Board approved Gray's motion.

Jack Simons brought up the matter which has been reported to him "...that there are many stray dogs roaming the Town, and we should begin to enforce the Town's ordinance of this matter". The Town has an ordinance which in effect cites "...that dogs must be under control at all times", according to Simons. If an owner can be determined, a fine of $25 can be levied. "If no owner can be located the SPCA should be brought into the situation," said Simons.

The meeting concluded with the suggestion by the "...veterans of the Board" that the new President Kyle Ewing should get busy organizing the Board of Assessment and the new budget for the coming year.

Harrington Fire Co Installs Officers

HARRINGTON. The Harrington Volunteer Fire Department installed officers during their Monday night meeting last week. The following were installed:

Kenneth T. Collins, president; Ira Huffman, vice-pres.; Edward McCormick, recording sec.; W. Robert Outten, financial sec.; William H. Outten, treasurer; Gary P. Harrington, fire recorder; James Calloway, bingo chairman; Robert E. Taylor, bingo treasurer; Harold Fry, Chester Short, David Peterson, incoming directors.

They were all installed by Melvin Wyatt, past Kent County Fireman's Ass. pres. Monday night.

Joseph E. Green, chief; Carl Wright, ambulance captain; Donald McKnatt, ambulance sec. treasurer.

The following appointments were made:

Mayor Rollison Steps Down From Houston Council

HOUSTON—Mayor Leonard Rollison, citing personal reasons for his decision, resigned from the Houston Council at the monthly meeting Thursday night.

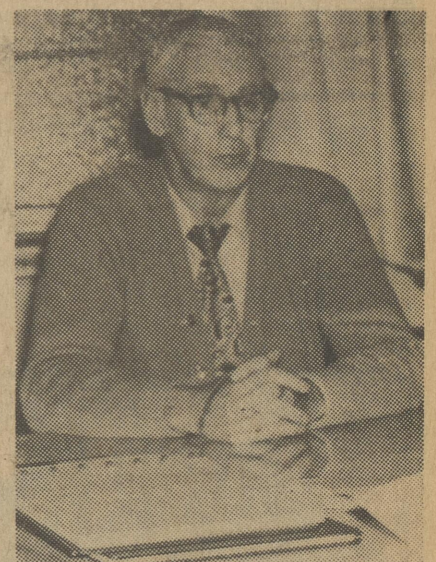

In his letter of resignation, Rollison was very brief saying in effect "...there are certain duties of the Council...and certain ways it should be done...and concluding that (I) cannot carry on under the present conditions". Rollison had asked Councilman Tom Surdukowski to read the letter aloud. At the end of the reading Surdukowski asked (Why are you doing this. Rollison said that he "...felt there had developed over the past year a division between the Town Board and the Fire Co., and I feel that my resignation might bring the Town and the Fire Co. together."

No specifics were cited.

Rollison is currently in his second term as Mayor. In this most recent election last year, he had decided not to run, but as a write-in candidate he gained the highest number of votes, with approximately 50. There were four other candidates in that election, Tom Surdukowski, Virginia Twilley, Jane Smith, and Eddie Walls. Mrs. Twilley got the next highest number of votes with approximately 46, and Surdukowski with about 42.

Technically, with Rollison's resignation, Mrs. Twilley could be selected by the Board as the Mayor. The other members of the Board are William Sapp who is currently hospitalized and unable to attend meetings, and George Marvel. Sapp is filling out the expired term of Harry Towers who also resigned.

The next regular election will be the last Saturday in March, and each candidate must file 10 days prior to the last Saturday in February. With Rollison's resignation, there will be three vacancies on the Board.

Two Arrested For Shrimp Theft

HARRINGTON. Local authorities have arrested an adult and a juvenile in the shrimp theft from Burris Foods, as reported last month in the Journal.

Lewis Miner, 18, and a 17 year-old juvenile, both of Harrington, have been arrested and are awaiting trial for the felony.

Snowball Worth Six Months?

HARRINGTON. The winter white stuff may be lots of fun and may be perfect for customary snow ball battles, but thrower beware.

If the target is a motor vehicle, it may mean six months imprisonment and "any other fines and condition as the court may order", according to Harrington's chief law enforcer, Chief Ed Layton.

Layton said his department received numerous complaints of children snowballing passing motorists last week. Should he or any of his force see this taking place, Layton says the person will be arrested and charged with criminal nuisance.

Any damage done as a result of snowballing a vehicle, such as causing the vehicle to have an accident, will be the responsibility of the youth's parents, who will have to make restitution for any damage done. "If they cause someone to have an accident", said Layton, "they (the parents) have to pay for the car."

Ed. note: We have seen numerous youngsters lobbing snowballs at one another on the business streets of the community. This, obviously, is asking for trouble. We suggest they take to more wide open spaces, out of the way of the busier business section. There is, after all, a time and a place for everything.

Sunny Side Up

I have a beautiful little Chinese friend who is a dynamo in disguise. She weighs barely one hundred pounds, yet she handles three strapping sons with dispatch, and brandishes 25-pound turkeys without blinking a silken eyelash.

My friend makes her own smashing clothes, plus lined floor-to-ceiling draperies for almost every window in her big house. She tears around on ice skates wearing tangerine pants and sweater, causing collisions among all the male skaters on the rink. She has looked slim, shapely and sixteen for the many years I've known her. And in spite of it all, I love her dearly.

But the final wonderment of this miracle of femininity is her very long, tapered, always perfect fingernails. They look as if she languishes all day on a brocade cushion, as perhaps her ancestors did.

My nails look like a disaster area-forever blunted from crashing into frying pans, garage doors, and grocery carts.

I don't know why her nails are so beautiful and mine are so beastly, but the American Medical Association offers some clues.

According to the AMA, nails do not break and split because of a calcium deficiency, as some people think. Actually, there is little calcium in the nail. Also, there is no conclusive evidence that eating large quantities of gelatin makes nails stronger.

Fragile nails may result from an external cause, such as excessive use of nail polish remover, or from an internal or skin disorder.

Avoid extreme clipping or filing too deeply at the sides, say the experts. This may weaken nail corners. Instead, shape nails into ovals with an emery board, working from the sides to the tips. Then protect them with several coats of polish.

Use nail polish remover to take off polish. Peeling off polish can remove layers of the nail plate. Remember, however, that the common ingredient in polish remover, acetone, can remove cementing ingredients in the nail plate, causing dryness. So it's important to wash away any acetone residue with soap and water. It also helps to touch up chipped polish instead of removing it, thus prolonging the time between manicures.

Protect nails further by wearing gloves when doing household chores. Use the eraser end of the pencil to dial the phone. Scrape nails over a cake of soap before starting any gardening. The soap will keep dirt from collecting under the nails.

All this advice is very sensible, and perhaps some day I will heed it. But in the meantime my blunt fingernails make dandy screw drivers.

From The Frying Pan

It's true, as Harrington went to the polls Tuesday afternoon and early in the evening, there was no contest on the surface of the city's election.

However, under the surface, rumors were flying fast and furiously about possible write-in candidates. Since this editorial is being written before the election, it will be unknown whether an unproclaimed candidate will indeed gain a majority of votes over the proclaimed three candidates.

If, indeed no such write ins take place, or if they do not occur in such numbers to win over the proclaimed candidates, we would suggest the mayor and council hopefully instruct the writer of the city's new proposed charter to provide for such write ins.

Nearby Houston finds itself facing interesting questions, as its mayor, a write in winner for re-election, has recently resigned. Now there seems to be some question about the legality of the election.

Surely Harrington has enough problems facing it with a budget of sizeable proportions and a debt of respectable size facing it to not muddy the waters further with questionable election results.

We will assume for the moment anyone seriously interested in the politics of this community, will find out about the requirements for seeking office of mayor and council as stated in our charter. These requirements are not extremely difficult, and are not overly time-consuming.

However, if anyone is not interested enough in the office to follow the structure of city government as we have it, in the charter, we must seriously suspect his motive with a write-in ticket.

If you want to play this game, put your cards on the community table.

'Occupational Outlook Handbook' Available

The 1976-77 edition of the U.S. Labor Department's 'Occupational Outlook Handbook' is now available. The 800-page Handbook is one of the most widely used resources in the career guidance field.

Published every two years by the Bureau of Labor Statistics division, the Handbook provides a rundown on more than 850 occupations.

Each summary includes: What the work is like, job prospects to 1985, a general outline of the personal qualities, training, and education required, what working conditions to expect, average earnings, opportunities for advancement and where to find additional information.

Important changes affecting the world of work are indicated by information in the 1976-77 Handbook. These trends reveal that:

-seventy percent of all job openings between now and 1986 will stem from a need to replace workers who die or retire. Only 3 out of every 10 openings will result from employment growth.

-some jobs fields with the highest demand for workers include health, engineering, personnel and labor relations, social work, and system analysis.

-teaching occupations will continue to be overcrowded and law related jobs will become increasingly hard to find as the number of law school graduates increases.

-some occupations requiring less than a four-year college degree with an expected rapid employment growth include construction machinery operators, lithographic workers, police officers, wastewater treatment plant operators, mechanics and repairers, and allied health workers.

-secretaries, stenographers, and typists will have favorable employment opportunities due to a rapid worker turnover and because the jobs comprise such a large field.

growth will be greatest for those professional and technical occupations requiring a college degree.

-apprenticeship, community and junior college education, and other forms of post high school training will take on increasing importance for persons seeking clerical, sales, service, and craft jobs.

The 1976-77 'Occupational Outlook Handbook' is available and may be purchased for $7 from one of the Bureau of Labor Statistics offices. Make checks or money orders payable to the Superintendent of Documents. P.O. Box 13309 Philadelphia, Pa. 19101

Thoughts.... by Senator Roth

With Congress now back in session, legislative priorities for the coming year are shaping up quickly. Some will be altered by President-elect Carter's selection of goals, but my personal list includes the following:

Taxes and the Economy

We need a permanent tax reduction to stimulate the economy and provide relief for the middle income taxpayers who pay most of the government's bills, but receive few -- if any -- of its benefits. My personal objectives will also include a simplification of the tax laws; tax incentives to encourage and to help people save towards the purchase of a home; and, a tax credit for the expenses of college or vocational school.

Government Reform

Senator Muskie of Maine and I will continue our

I've worked with Senator Long of Louisiana and Ribicoff of Connecticut on this in the past, and will do so again this year to find a solution.

Education

Legislation to further consolidate education funding in a form of broad category education revenue sharing that will cut paperwork and the Washington bureaucracy. That would stop the unfair competition that favors the annual rewriting of grant proposals to make an existing program sound new, innovative, exemplary or experimental. Delaware people, I'm convinced, know best their own problems and their own solutions.

According to Jones, an economist from the Uni. of Del. helped the Town of Laurel in obtaining their funds, and that furthermore it is his job to do this sort of thing as a free gesture. Jones told the council he would ask the economist to attend a meeting of the Council so that the Council members could question him at length.

New 'Right Turn On Red' Law Explained

DOVER-Robert J. Voshell, Director of the Division of Motor Vehicles has reminded motorists of the provisions of the "right turn on red" law. Because of the number of questions currently being asked by Delaware drivers, Voshell said there is still a lot of confusion about the new law.

It is now legal to make a right turn on red, after coming to a complete stop, just as if at a stop sign. The driver can then make the right turn only when the movement can be made in safety. The right turn on red cannot be made if there is a sign posted which reads "No Turn on Red" or if there is a red arrow pointing to the right.

The new law also allows a left turn on red from a one-way street onto another one-way street on which the traffic proceeds to the driver's left. This left turn cannot be made on a red arrow pointing to the left or if there is a sign posted which reads "No Turn on Red".

"Only after the right-turning driver has stopped and yielded to pedestrians and other vehicles may a right turn legally be made", he said.

While the new right turn law has several advantages, Voshell said problems exist because some drivers do not stop and yield as required, thereby creating a hazard for traffic going through on the green.

"Some drivers apparently think they can make a stop, then go ahead and turn right without checking cross traffic", Voshell said. "Such drivers also frequently ignore the rights of pedestrians, even those proceeding with a "walk" light", he added.

Theodore Roosevelt was the first president to ride in an automobile in 1902.

For Your Information

Dear friends,

In arranging a funeral, the family should realize that added costs include newspaper notices, transportation fees, automobile rentals, musicians, cemetery, crematory or mausoleum fees - these items alone can exceed the funeral director's total bill. Keeping this in mind, the total expenditure should not exceed the family's ability to pay.

Respectfully,

To end the Christmas holiday 4-H'ers gathered together for a dinner and dance at the State Grange Building in Dover. Everyone had a great time and enjoyed seeing old friends once again. After dinner, Robin Burton originally from Sussex County presented a slide show from the Netherlands. She explained the (IFYE) International 4-H Youth Exchange Program and encouraged 4-H'ers to apply. During the program Robin mentioned several interesting points. She told us, "overseas, you are not from Delaware or Sussex County but America." The people from the Netherlands just idolize our country.

Club officers are reminded as they start the new year, of the importance of starting their meetings on time, having the program for the meeting well planned in advance, conducting the meeting in a business-like manner and closing the meeting on time. By following this practice those in attendance will no doubt find the meetings interesting and enjoyable and will strive to be on hand the next time.

New officers should also make it a habit to attend all Junior Council meetings. You will be well informed about all contests and activities if you attend these meetings. You may also suggest new and better ideas for the 4-H program here in Sussex County. Look in your newsletter or the newspaper for the dates of these meetings.

As you get into the 4-H club year, what will you do with records, photographs, and news clippings? Why not develop a filing system so this material is readily available next summer. Regular files are real nice. A simple type can be made with a cardboard box and large envelopes and cardboard for separation. Label the sections by projects, activities, contest and other divisions that fit your needs. This is a value if done before items are lost. Don't wait until the last minute to work on your project records!

Report from Hickory Ridge Congregational Methodist Church: We ended up the Old Year and began the New One at the church Friday night in a very pleasant way. About 45 people attended the covered dish dinner, which we thought was pretty good considering the weather, illness and other factors. Following a delicious dinner, the pastor showed slides of the Holy Land, while others played Chess, crocheted, etc. Before the Watch Night service began we enjoyed hot chocolate and cookies made by Miss Stacy Everline. We appreciate very much our guest speaker, Brother Jerry Marando and his wife coming from their home in New Castle. This was our first Watch Night service, but we hope it will be a regular from now on.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Davis of Federalsburg were evening callers last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allison Davis.

Mrs. Myrtle Calhoun attended Hickory Ridge church on Sunday with her guests, Mrs. Pearl Swain and granddaughter, Miss Elaine Rifenburg of Lincoln. After church the guests returned to the Calhoun home to share Sunday dinner.

Mrs. Jeanette McCreary is reported doing nicely after surgery in Milford Hospital. She is expected home sometime this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Bolinger and children were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hatfield.

Mrs. Jacob Hatfield was a recent Friday evening dinner guest of Mrs. Theresa Ottey.

This weather is hard on the news area. You would not believe how many calls I've made to find news. But the answer is that people are staying home and waiting for better climate!

Town And Country

Your family gardening season doesn't have to be confined to spring and summer. With a little imagination, enthusiasm, and some groceries, you and your family can garden indoors in January.

It's easy to grow interesting houseplants from products you'll find in your grocery bag or on their way to the garbage can. Carrot tops, sweet potatoes, pineapple tops, and avocado, apple and citrus seeds all start plants easily.

To sprout carrots, cut a half-inch piece from a carrot top. Plant it in moist sand with just the very top showing. Small leaves will soon appear.

To grow an unusual cactus-type plant, buy a fresh pineapple, cut off the top, leaving an inch of fruit attached, and put it in an inch of water. When roots develop, plant the pineapple top in a pot with dirt and cover with a plastic bag for three weeks. Keep the plant well watered, and in 6 to 12 months tiny pineapples should develop. Keep the plant in a sunny location.

Sweet potato plants have vines that resemble philodendrons. Plant a sweet potato in a container of water with the top third above the water. You may use toothpicks poked into the sweet potato to keep it suspended above the container's edge. This vine needs warm temperatures and high humidity to sprout, so it may not start on a cold windowsill. But once it's started, the vine will grow vigorously. It can even be trained on a stake or small trellis.

If you are patient and willing to wait several months to see results, you might enjoy planting an avocado seed. Your efforts will result in a tree which resembles a rubber plant. With proper care, they will last several years as a houseplant, reaching a height of several feet.

Plant the avocado seed in a soil-peat moss mixture as soon as you take it from the fruit. Place the seed pointed-end up, with the tip just above the soil. After a few weeks, you may want to dig the seed up carefully to check to see if growth is taking place and that you've planted the proper end down. Then replant the seed.

Keep the soil moist while you wait. Once the seed sprouts, your tree will grow very quickly. Unless you want a rather tall, slender tree, pinch off the top of the plant as it grows. This will produce a low, bushy form.

Grapefruit, apple, lemon, orange, or tangerine seeds can also be planted to create interesting houseplants. For success, you'll need a soil containing about half sphagnum moss. Keep it damp but not too wet, and put the plant in good light, but not direct sun.

Any plants raised from seed need adequate drainage. So put at least a half inch of crushed stones in the bottom of each pot before you add the soil.

Young children, usually with less patience, can enjoy "instant" crops of bright green grass. An indoor planter and some corn cobs can combine to create a neat hedge-like border of grass. Soak the cobs in water, place them in the planter and sprinkle with grass seed. In a short time, you'll have a green hedge.

"No-Till and Vetch ..." Robert [left] and Richard Wilson, of Harrington, check out the hairy vetch they're growing this winter as a fertilizer source for no-till corn. Besides saving them money for nitrogen last summer, they figure the vetch had a mulching effect that helped boost yields during a very dry season.

A Winning Combination On A Delaware Farm

by Doris Henrique
Asst. Agricultural Editor

Early last June, Kent county extension agricultural agent Dave Woodward got a call from one of his clients, Robert Wilson. Wilson and his son Richard grow corn and soybeans on about 350 acres of land west of Harrington. The call was a plea for help.

"I've got 70 acres of vetch and the ground's so dry I can't get a plow into it to plant my corn. What can I do?" Wilson asked. The upshot of that call was a whole new tillage system for the Wilsons—one that turned out to be a real crop saver, especially during a summer of drought.

The vetch had been seeded by air early the previous fall, as a nitrogen-producing winter cover. It was the first time the father and son team had tried a legume cover—usually they plant rye.

The elder Wilson had seen some test plots of corn planted in legume covers during the 1975 Field Day tour of the University of Delaware's Georgetown Substation. The plots showed corn recovering 70 pounds or more of nitrogen per acre from winter-annuals like hairy vetch and crimson clover. Using the vetch offered a sizable savings in nitrogen fertilizer costs. The farmer liked the idea and decided to try it himself.

The plan was to have the vetch grow over the winter and early spring. Then, at planting time it could be plowed under to fertilize the corn.

Unfortunately, things didn't work out that way. An extremely dry winter and spring slowed growth of the cover, making it impossible for the Wilsons to follow through with their original plan. By the time the vetch was ready to turn under, the ground was bone dry and much too hard for a plow. They waited as long as they could hoping conditions would improve. Instead, they ended up with a three-foot stand of hairy vetch in early June, and the sinking feeling that they were about to lose the use of 70 acres of good cropland for the season.

That was before they talked to Woodward. The county agent had the perfect solution for them—why not go no-till?

No-tillage has been growing in popularity in Delaware in recent years as an alternative to conventional tillage with the mold-board plow. Many growers in the state have already adopted the system for soybeans. A number are now switching to no-till for corn, as well.

With no-till it isn't necessary to cultivate the soil the way farmers have been doing for centuries. Instead, seed is planted in standing stubble or a chemically killed cover crop without turning the soil over at all. The no-till planter disturbs only enough ground to make an opening for the seed. Competing weeds are controlled with herbicides, rather than by cultivation.

Extensive work on no-till corn production has been done by research and extension personnel at the University of Delaware over the past five years, so Woodward was able to provide the Wilsons with a detailed "prescription" to follow, for their initiation into this system—a system he was sure could work for them.

The Harrington farmers had never tried this tillage method, but it was obvious they had no choice last year, if they wanted a corn crop. So they gave the agent a free hand, and then proceeded to follow his recommendations to the letter.

Woodward wrote up a list of the materials needed and the Wilsons headed for their local supplier. They also set about locating a planter. Since the no-till planters they might have borrowed were already set up for soybeans, which require 14-inch rows as opposed to the 30-inch rows for corn, they ended up having to buy one. Fortunately, they were able to find a planter available for immediate delivery and they were in business.

By then it was June 10—very late to be planting corn. Normally they would have planted by the 10th of May. Woodward was on hand to help them mix and apply the spray materials needed for the no-till operation, since they were new to the procedure. Along with the mid-season corn variety he recommended, they had to put down herbicides to kill the vetch and other weeds, and insecticide to control cutworms and army worms, and fertilizer. Counting on the vetch to give them most of the nitrogen their corn would need, they broadcast less than 30 pounds of nitrogen an acre over the field.

With no-till, planter speed is critical in getting a good stand of corn. The Wilsons "went by the book all the way," says Woodward. As a result, they got an excellent stand.

The vetch, after it had been killed, made a dense, moisture holding mulch. The corn caught some good rains just as it went into tassel, which also helped.

The Wilsons have rather light soil and rolling ground. They usually have a problem getting a good stand on some of the sandier knolls, even in a year with adequate moisture. With the vetch to mulch the ground they got better than normal stands on the knolls. In spite of the drought and the lateness of the planting (which required a lower-yielding variety than they would normally have chosen), Robert Wilson figures they got about 70 bushels an acre from those knolls. On some of the lower land where there was less water stress, his son Richard estimates the yield was up around 100 bushels.

Overall, the field averaged about five bushels higher than yields from other conventionally tilled fields where the corn was planted much earlier. That's not bad for a crop that looked like it was headed for disaster before it even got in the ground.

This coming spring the Wilsons plan to plant no-till corn in vetch again. There'll be one big difference from last year, though. They've had one year's experience at no-till, now, and they'll be

Once again we woke to a "Winter Wonderland". We are really experiencing an old-fashioned winter, the kind we had when I was a child. The very next autumn that woolly bears crawl around in blonde fur I'm going to buy some long-johns and stoke the furnace.

No, I did not make any New Year's resolutions, or rather, only one. And that is, to do my best every day of the New Year, to be thankful, to be grateful and to fill each hour with the joy of living, to scribble a lot and to read, read, read...everything I can get my hands on.

Now, I'm reading a Christmas gift book from a favorite cousin, by Charles J. Truitt and entitled, "Breakfast of the Revolution". It is unique in that no other writer has handled this subject, and it deals with the great part that the Delmarva Peninsula played in the Revolutionary War. Do read it.

I received a lovely note from my dear friend, Virginia, in Milford, who is my exact age, except for two days. She has born the last day of 1903 and I was born in the second day of 1904. She comments on the fact that she finds old age enjoyable and rewarding and asks if I do not find it true also. Yes and no. The most frustrating thing I face is the fact that I cannot crowd all the physical things I want to do into the hours I have. But there are many compensations, too.

To me, the biggest compensating factor is that as we go through the years we build memories, and these memories are a great source of pleasure, especially when you are inactive for some reason. A cold keeps you in the house, or your wise doctor orders you in bed for a few days or you have one of those nights that you cannot get to sleep, then you can turn the pages of the years and look at those memories.

What a gift of memory is fragrance. And what memories come flooding back when a sniff, or imagine we do, a certain fragrance. I can smell the wild strawberries on the hillside under a hot, June sun; I can smell the pungent fragrance of the newly-turned earth as I trot behind Grandfather's heels while he makes a garden; I can smell the waxy sweetness of honey on a hot, summer night as I stand by grandfather while he "robs" the bees; I can smell the lilacs in the twilight after an April rain; I live again on our old front porch on a summer evening and smell the almost unbearable perfume of the honeysuckle vine on the trellis at one end of the porch, as we watch the little house wren who has a nest there.

Now, I grow older as I walk down through the memories and other scents take over. As a young girl, my favorite perfume from a bottle was "Jade" by Roger & Gallet. I wonder if they make it still. The fragrance would bring back many evenings in the porch swing with a current romance. The smell of the hot, dusty athletic field blends with the odor of hot dogs and popcorn as we cheer wildly for our hero out there on the playing field; followed later by the cool, damp smell of warm milk and vanilla as we enjoy a soda with the same hero after the game.

And this is a thing that does not end. Each year will add its own memories to be treasured as long as I live. As I write this Dad brings in the mail, and I find in there a darling letter from one of our Readers in Milford. She tells me that she will be 87 her next birthday, and she believes that exercise is a healthy thing to keep us young. And, even as I, she gives full thanks to our gracious Heavenly Father who has granted us this extra time with clear minds to enjoy our memories.

Cahall, 31, is a driver's education teacher for the Caesar Rodney School District. He will succeed retiring Mayor William Minner, who chose not to seek re-election.

Cahall has lived in Harrington for the past nine years and most recently has chaired the city's planning and zoning commission.

Dr. Vincent D. Lobo, Jr., 41, has served on the council for four years. He is a physician and has lived in Harrington since 1960. He has served on the council for four years.

Jack L. Wyatt, 38, is a lifelong Harrington resident, having served on the council for nine years. He is a state Transportation Department employee, and is the City's police commissioner since September.

The mayor's term of office is for two years, the councilmen's terms are for three years each.

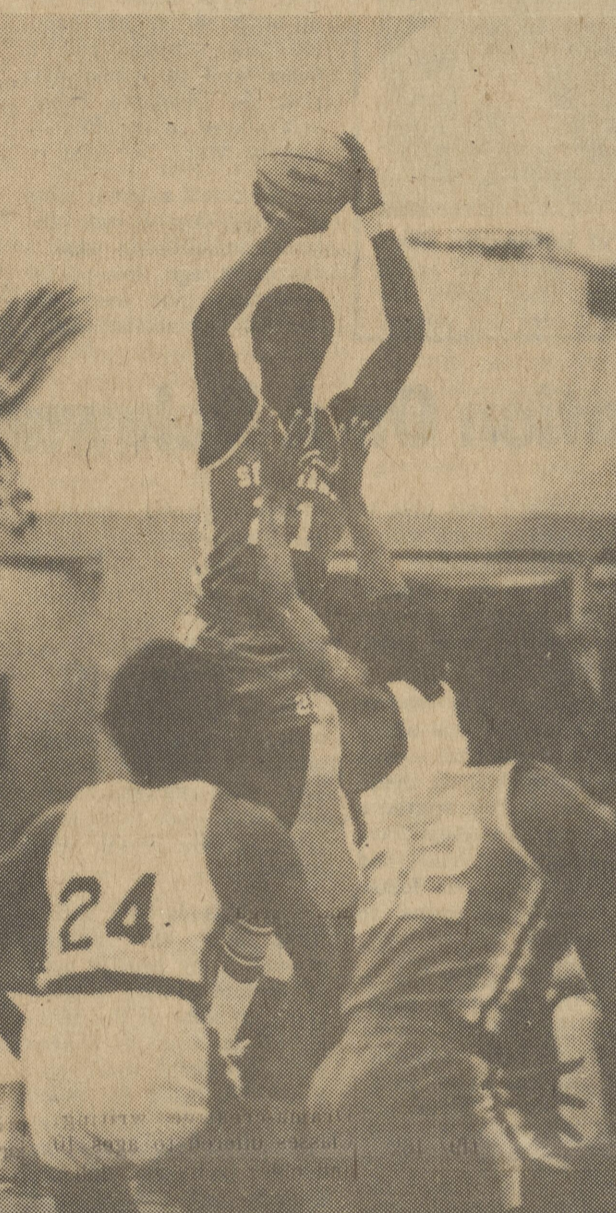

All will be sworn in tonight at City Hall.

Qualifications to run for a Council post are to be a resident for at least one year, and property owner with taxes paid. All but the first would be illegal according to Yerkes.

After the election in March the council members newly elected ones as well can decide the term of the council members.

Ted Yerkes appeared at the Council meeting, and it was learned later that would be a candidate in the March election. But this was not the real reason for being there. He had discovered through a piece of luck in reading the Town charter that the term of the elected in a Town Council race is for two years and one for one year. Usually the two with the highest number of votes will get the two year terms and the one with the least number will get the one term. He said that in passing he had picked this up from the reading of the charter and that in the last election the members were not elected for three year terms.

Sam Carey, who also scored 13 points in last Friday's game against Dover Air Force Base, chips in a basket.

This was all brought about under the tenure of the out-going President of the Town's Commissioners, Norman G. Powell and the result of many months of work which entailed the proper filing of extensive papers for the Federal Government. The grant essentially will enable the Town of Bridgeville to upgrade their water and sewer system.

Making it their business to obtain all federal funds possible, the then President of the Town Commissioners, Norman G. Powell set in motion the plan to obtain HUD funds for various projects for the Town. Some of these projects include monies for the Fire Co. to obtain a $50,000 pumper as well as monies for the purchase of properties which could be rehabilitated, and most importantly the installation of two traffic lights at the intersection of Market and Main Streets (in front of City Hall) and the intersections of Rte. 404 and Main. Both traffic lights are needed to cope with beach and weekend traffic, which has required some action in these areas about traffic regulation.

The results of these requests by the Town of Bridgeville will be known at a later date.
