Aiken has been on the Dean's list each semester at the University and has maintained an academic index of 3.6. The tall beauty, 5'8" graduate from Seaford High in 1974 ranked 3rd in class of 250. That year she was 1st runner-up in the Delaware Junior Miss Pageant at Mt. Pleasant High. It was a result of this experience that the Soroptimist Club of Seaford sought her out to be their entrant in the Miss Delaware Pageant this year. Miss Aiken is a very radiant brunette with large sparkling eyes. She performed for the Rehoboth crowd by singing an operatic aria from La Boheme. She has basically trained in classical and hymn music. Houston Decodes Sewer System

HOUSTON FIRE HALL. Last Wednesday evening at a public meeting at the Houston Fire Hall citizens and some members of the Town Council met in public meeting to decide whether or not to join up with the sewage disposal system at Harrington, which plans to join with the County and pump sewage to the Frederica plant. A representative from Edward H. Richardson and Associates, William Henry, described the details of the plan and the related costs to the townspeople. Connie Morgan a recently elected Town commissioner said the real purpose in the Meeting "...was to see if anyone was in favor of the plan". Henry explained to the small gathering the costs involved. To install a sewer system necessary to be able to connect up with the Harrington system would cost the following: $193 which is an annual charge. The basis for this figure is the amortization of the forced main, pumping station and costs of improvements to the Harrington system; a 29c per front foot per year charge for a period of 20 years which would be for amor-tization of the local costs in the Town of Houston. Henry said later a flat fee of $2.97 per front foot could be paid and it would be a one shot deal and eliminate the amortization factor. There would also be a charge between $250 and $300 to install a lateral from the center of the street (main to the curb and another charge of between $300 to $450 from the curb to the house. This latter would be a plumbing charge. This figure would vary depending on how far back the house sits from the street and whether it is on a slab, etc. The total charges the first year could run approximately $1,000. The situation of the Town of Houston was best spelled out in a letter from Robert J. Toukey, Supervisor Water Pollution Control explaining the best system for Houston was an on-site system calling for septic tanks and drain fields. The area was not heavily populated and the presence of heavy industry was at a very minimum. The townspeople of Houston last Wednesday declared in voice vote by those present that it would not be practical at this time for them to have a central sewer system connecting up with the County.

HARRINGTON. Children's Day has long been considered the busiest as well as the most frustrating day for officials and staff of the Delaware State Fair. At last years Fair better than 36,000 bodies passed through the turnstiles on Children's Day and with children being admitted free on that day you can bet that they accounted for most of the thirty six thousand.

Children's Day at the Fair this year will feature the Royal Danish Circus, pony races, bicycle races and for the evenings grandstand show, a country music talent contest.

The circus is a family show and as so many European performers, they carry on the tradition of their forefathers who operated the oldest Circus in Denmark, "Circus Miede" established in 1864. It was this circus where The Almiros, founder of today's Royal Danish Circus, created their juggling act which they performed all over Europe including the famous Tivoli Gardens in Copenhagen. In the following seven years they toured all over Europe, Africa and America, being featured in Circuses, Night Clubs, Sports Shows, etc.

Later they were joined by Les Thisis, also from Denmark, who specialized on the trampoline. Thisis was later joined by the Almiros daughter, Tina who became one of the outstanding single girl trapeze acts of the country. As time went by, they were joined by other family members, and created their "mini-circus" which now appears all across the United States and in Europe.

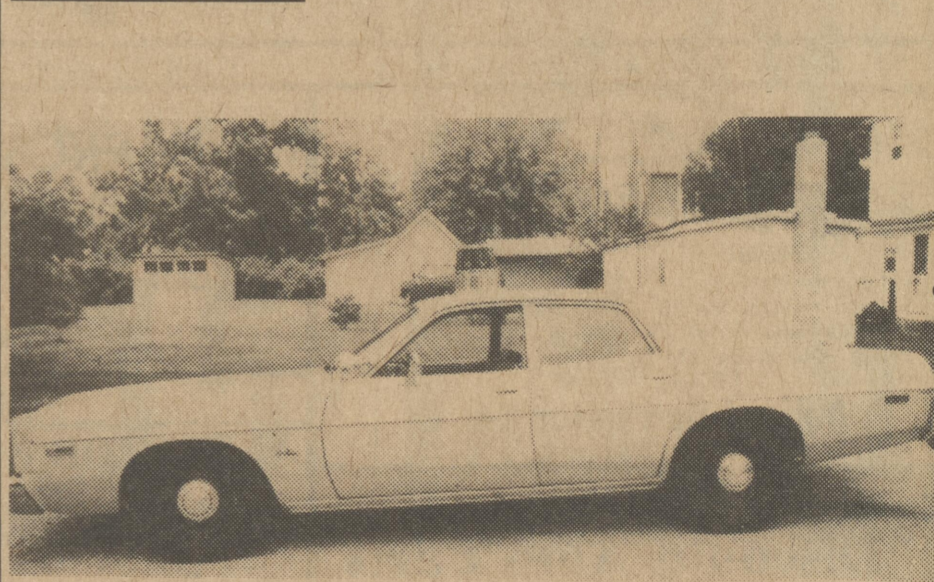

Pony races have held a traditional place at the Fair on Children's Day, but for those less fortunate town and city dwellers who don't own a pony, something new has been added in the form of bicycle races. Anyone 9 years old up to 15 years are eligible to participate in the different divisions as long as they have entered prior to the event at the Fair and have their parents' permissions. The Circus, pony and bicycle races will be the featured attraction in the grandstand during the afternoon on Children's Day, while the evenings show will again feature the Circus, plus the Country Music Talent Contest, which promises to be loaded with talent judging from the entries thus far received. One lady called the Fair office to see if out-of-state entries were allowed and was told that competition was "open to the world", so prepare yourself for one heck of a show. Incidentally, the preliminary contest for the country music competition will be held on July 17th which is before the Fair opens and admission is only a dollar. Six finalists will be picked from that contest to come back during the Fair, so you might want to come test your talent judging abilities against those of the official judges. All in all, this year's Children's Day at the Delaware State Fair promises to hold something of interest from the youngest to the not so young and the Fair may even have some suckers left if you get lost.

New Police Car

Two new emergency vehicles have recently been purchased in Harrington. One is a 1977 Dodge Monaco (above) which will now become the number one police car. It is fully equipped with all band radios and all other necessary equipment. The other new vehicle is a new Chevrolet Modular Ambulance which was recently purchased by the Harrington Fire Co. The new modular ambulance in contrast to the 1974 Cadillac gives the attendants more room to work and is also capable of more easily carrying more than one patient. Both the modular and the Cadillac will remain in service for the Fire Co. New the modular sells for around 32,000 dollars. (Staff Photo by Ray Blanchette)

New Abulance

The City of Harrington has begun installing a new sewer line which will eventually hook up to Walter Messick's antique museum. The new line will also have the capability of additional hookups in case of any additional building in the area. Delmarva Power

Gab Fest

by Pat Hatfield

It is June, and, as one of my favorite poets said: "What is so rare as a day in June? Then, if ever, come perfect days. The Heaven tries Earth if it be in tune, And over it softly her warm ear lays."

And Ernest Buckley says in his: "The Rarity of June", "The earth smells of sunlight and grass. Of towels on the line and the clean angles of gabled roofs. Of warm rock breath and the cloth over rising bread. Of tree sap and leaf spine. Of wild roses on the stone wall and milk cans hanging in the well. Of the imminence of apples and the hair of children... The cow's huge liquid eyes squint tight, then open wide with the rhythms and logarithms of safety and peace.

Nearer the house the wild crabapple tree foams with blossoms and bees intent as theologians. Its branches patiently scrawl the lesson of universal branching on the stainless air. The blue half-shell of a robin's egg lies on the ground beneath it, like a tiny fallen sky. Swallows with a bit of glistening mud or a hyphen of straw in their beaks and a murmur in their throats akin to deliciously soft-edged "X's" tumbling together swoop toward their purse-mouthed houses, building under every

Well, now, we have done right well by June and have savored these lovely thoughts by the great writers. Some day I am going to get them all together by months so I can enjoy them as the earth turns.

A friend, with whom I talked this morning, remarked that she wishes that there were two of her so she could accomplish all the tasks that waited. I'm usually right in that class myself. Right now, two things must come first. This column must meet the press deadline; and, since I'm the only one on the ranch, I have to tend shop. Friday is usually a busy day. I also have paper in the typewriter to get a letter off to our Karen who is way out there in Kansas. And I should be doing cabbage for the freezer. The cabbage will have to come to the top of the list soon because it must be done at the peak of perfection to be enjoyed next winter.

While I'm down here at the shop I am up to my old diversion of reading the old Almanacs. The Agricultural Almanac for the year 1950 has this article, "Tips on Television". They say, among other things: 1. Be sure to arrange your furniture so everyone can see the show. 2. If you have a fireplace, arrange the seating so everyone can enjoy both the television and the fireplace. 3. Do not invite someone to watch television who likes to chat...because television and conversation do not mix. 4. Pick your guests with an eye to the programs available. Don't entertain your husband's boss when he comes all set to enjoy an evening of boxing and has to watch a soap opera or a rock and roll group. 5. If you are a guest, don't laugh or make critical remarks if some difficulty occurs with the set.

Remember you, too, may have a television set some day!!"

And here is another interesting fact about an old English remedy: "Eating a page from the Bible as a cure for ailments was once a prevalent custom in England. A newspaper stated that to this day if an otherwise well cared for family Bible in a country cottage has a page missing at the Sermon on the Mount or one of the miracles of healing, the reason was this simple belief of an earlier generation, in the powers of Holy Writ as a panacea."

"the citizens can't stand anymore taxation without representation"

It would appear from the various accounts appearing in the newspapers and what you hear generally that Delaware is headed for its first official sales tax. With the personal income tax being one of the highest in the country, I quite frankly do not see how the citizens of this State can continue to carry the heavy burden of supporting a top heavy government. As small as this State is, you would wonder why the need for a large government. Cut it out!!!

It would be more practical to eliminate some of the government expense instead of continuing to run a deficit. Not only is the government planning to build more buildings to house additional government agencies, they probably will continue to rent various places which is now already costing the taxpayers great sums of money. The point is that there would appear to be a continuous growth of government...but for what purpose.

What this country and State need is for a candidate to fashion himself along the lines of the "...grass-roots approach". A would be candidate should start a crusade among the people of this great country and State and find out what "John Q. Public" wants...and not what the elected officials would have us take. Some politicians have made it a life's work to spend their entire careers feasting off the public. It would be more practical for an elected official to spend just one term in office and move on to something else...or in the alternative return to whatever they were doing before they got into politics. The point is that maybe things would be different if these people were made to return to the society which they created. See how they would like it from that standpoint. It might not be viewed the same as it was when it was being created.

Now we are told over and over again that the State is broke...as though it is our fault. I ask you...who put us in this situation in the first place. When did the general public get up on its hind legs and say let's go into debt to create this agency...or that new building...and the need for this or that was not even explained to the voters.

It was with President Lincoln and before that we had the point stressed upon us that this was a government of the people...by the people...and for the people. I question now if probably this phrase has not been watered down too much. What kind of government do we have now. It would appear both on the federal and local levels...we have a situation which is just the opposite. It is a government of the politicians by the politicians and for the politicians. So if the State is in debt...and the State needs more money...then let the State get it from the politicians...the citizens can't spend anymore taxation...without representation.

Score One...For The Governor

The Governor this past week called on Delaware's General Assembly to pass into law legislation which would require financial disclosure for state officials and employees. Governor DuPont as an early move after taking office would require financial disclosure for his newly appointees.

The Delaware Governor has to be praised and credited for this type of legislation. It would appear to be an attempt to restore faith in government and also represents a form of restoration of government to the people...for the people...and by the people.

Not only does the bill call for full disclosure as far as financial interests are concerned...by statements...but it also calls for disclosure of obligations on the part of these people. Persons earning $20,000 and more a year from the State will be required to submit annual financial statements if this legislation is passed. The legislation embraces public officials, such as legislators, cabinet secretaries, judges of the State, school administrators and others to report each year. The Secretary of State's office will be the custodian of accounts.

Sources of income are important enough for consideration for the legislation calls for disclosure of any interest or ownership of business or professional organizations and the creditors to whom the State employee might be indebted for more than $5000.

Faith in our government...with this kind of legislation, there appears to be a chance...!

Publisher's Correction

In last week's edition of The Journal there appeared an article regarding the situation of the Editor of this newspaper. Printed in the article was the name of the attending physician. It was misspelled. The correct spelling is Dr. Carlo Cuccia. The incorrect spelling was supplied by the Wilmington Medical Center, General Division. Our regrets to Dr. Cuccia...a fine doctor.

The Editor, Mrs. Margaret R. Farrow, is a patient of Dr. Cuccia at the radium therapy clinic of The General Division. Mrs. Farrow receives the radium therapy--or cobalt treatment--each day. This past week she moved to the out-patient dormitory, Robin Hall, to live during the week, because the drive back and forth to Wilmington was causing her condition to become run down. Since the move to Wilmington, her system has responded to enable her to receive all but one treatment last week. At the present rate, she will be able to complete her treatments by the end of July.

The radium clinic is known as The Carpenter Clinic---called that in honor of its benefactor. The equipment at the clinic is the most modern and the costs of the various pieces of equipment are prohibitive for the average hospital. Patients from many of the bordering states come to this clinic for the treatment of various forms of cancer. The doctors and nurses at the clinic are highly professional people who know their field very well.

The children of the Farrow's, David and Todd, are spending a short vacation in the Blue Ridge Mountains with their grandparents, John and Charlotte Rhodes, where fishing in mountain streams and camping are the orders of the day.

We are fast approaching the Fourth of July, America's greatest national holiday. The day is a time for celebration.

It is a time we celebrate our way of life, our proud history, our scientific advancement, and most of all our freedom. It is a time when we give thanks in appreciation of the men and women who died to preserve our heritage.

Celebrations are as varied as our country's 200 million people. Some will go to the beach; some to the mountains; some will go to the ballpark and munch a hotdog with their children.

In Delaware we have a special occasion to celebrate. We attained our statehood in 1777 and throughout Delaware we are celebrating our own Bicentennial.

Last year it was a privilege to take part in our state's 1976 Bicentennial events. A spirit infused our land as America celebrated her 200th birthday. It was a spirit of strength, pride, freedom and joy.

Last year's Bicentennial brought a renewal of the patriotic spirit that made America great.

Our country may have its faults, but few doubt that we are spiritually and materially the greatest country in the world.

Americans can easily forget this, because of the vastness of our country. However, our influence is felt worldwide, and free people everywhere look to us for leadership. A trip abroad or to the United Nations strikingly verifies the above. The contrast in everything from per capita income to natural resources is extreme. We are truly a land of plenty.

Of course our most precious resources -- almost so ingrained we sometimes slip and think of them as 'natural' -- are our people and the freedoms that we enjoy. In America, when the highest officials make mistakes they are headlined on Page One. In America, when you disagree with the government's stance, you are free to say so without fear of reprisals. In America, the people govern, and we should always remember that.

So while we are enjoying the holiday, playing horseshoes or watching the sailboats on Rehoboth Bay, let us pause for a moment and let us think of the men and women who fought and died for our country and our precious freedom. And let us rejoice and thank God.

Weekly Report

by Senator Joe Biden

Last week I had a meeting with the other members of the Delaware delegation and the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower Reserves and Logistics. Officials from the Delaware State Government, Sussex County Government, and other groups from the State were also present. The purpose of the meeting was to oppose and try to prevent the recommended closing of the Excess Property Disposal Office located at the Dover Air Force Base.

This Excess Property Office enables various groups like state agencies and volunteer fire companies that serve many of the communities throughout Kent and Sussex Counties to acquire needed equipment at a considerable savings to these organizations. If the Dover facility were to close, officials would have to go to other states to purchase their equipment. The net result would be a hardship and extra dollar burden because of travel time and cost of the screening process and the transportation cost involved in delivering the equipment to the local communities.

The Assistant secretary assured us all that no final decision has been made. He said that the proposal now sits on the Deputy Secretary's desk and awaits his decision.

I have examined the arguments and realize that there are legal safeguards in the rules and regulations but the simple fact of the matter is that at a time when the State is trying to overcome its budget difficulties the closing of the Excess Property Office would increase the burden on the taxpayers of Delaware.

Additionally, the brunt of the burden would be felt on groups like the volunteer fire departments. If they have to spend more of their time searching for equipment in other states not only does it detract from the time they have to serve their communities but also limits the funds they have to stay operational.

The volunteer fire departments throughout our state have an outstanding record of service. We should be finding ways to make their lives less complicated rather than making their duties more difficult.

Time to Honor America

U.S.A. PROBLEMS OF 1977 COMPARED TO THOSE OF 1777

A year ago considerable numbers of us were beating the drums, hoisting the flags and lining up for the parades to Honor America on our nation's Bicentennial birthday.

Now the United States is nearly a year older and the fine dash and glitter has subsided from its 1976 apogee. Our country will soon be 201 years old, an odd figure that doesn't stir the imagination to congratulatory hoopla.

Most of us are back at our everyday tasks, trying to cope with mundane perplexities, politely applauding the new administration, but perhaps privately giving the future well being of the United States a slightly lower priority than we might have done a year earlier.

Ours is not the first generation to react this way. After the Declaration of Independence fervor dimmed, Alexander Hamilton complained of the fumbling young government, "The frail and tottering edifice seems ready to fall upon our heads and to crush us beneath its ruins."

Hamilton expressed himself at a time of dense gloom, and perhaps a similar mood exists today amid a large segment of the population. Nagging questions persist. Where can our government find individuals with the perception and skill to ferret out the answers to such intricate problems as the energy shortage, Middle East strife, the budget, disarmament, unemployment, welfare, health insurance and countless other perplexities?

These are worrisome controversies which frequently seem bigger than the nation itself. But fortunately, among the many gifts with which the United States was blessed were the qualities of resiliency, sturdiness and deep inner strength.

If today's issues appear insoluble, it might be worth examining the trauma our new country was undergoing two centuries ago. The Declaration proclaimed our independence, but the immature nation then confronted the cold, harsh realities of survival.

The war with Great Britain was to grind on for four more years. The Continental Congress, no more than a group of delegates from the thirteen states with dubious powers, acted as a central committee to carry on the conflict.

A special congressional committee, of which John Dickinson was the leading activist, drafted the Articles of Confederation, but these did not become effective until 1881. And the longer they were applied the greater their limitations were demonstrated.

Congress was assigned certain powers, but it was denied the three most essential. It could not raise money directly, it could not muster troops directly and it lacked authority to regulate commerce. Thus, Congress requested the states for funds which were never paid; pleaded for troops which filled no army ranks and asked for special powers which were never granted.

Without a firmly-established central government the life span of the republic was questionable. Incisive leaders warned of the danger.

"I do not conceive that we can exist long as a nation," George Washington wrote in 1786, "without having lodged somewhere a power, which will pervade the whole Union in as energetic a manner as the authority of the State governments extends over the several states."

These comments were underscored by Hamilton who noted, "We may be said...to have reached almost the last stage of national humiliation. There is scarcely anything that can wound the pride of or degrade the character, of an independent people, which we do not experience...the delinquencies of the states have at length arrested all the wheels of the national government."

Such assessments by persons of stature gave momentum to a demand for a constitutional convention. Obtaining such a charter was not an easy accomplishment. Advocates worked and debated and wrote and lobbied for a stronger form of government.

Sectional differences had to be settled. Small states had to be assured their rights would not be flouted by larger states. Many prominent figures, such as Patrick Henry, initially opposed the new concept.

Ultimately an agreement was hammered out and ratified by the states by 1789. For the first time in thirteen years the U.S. Government functioned with confidence in its own strength and thus began its ascent to world pre-eminence.

All of us can profit today by bearing in mind the circumstances which brought the Constitution into existence. It was not achieved by a dashing triumph in a clash of arms stimulated by martial music. Instead, it was predominantly a matter of intellect and persuasion. Dedicated, discerning Americans cut through the underbrush of resistance and inertia to accomplish their purpose.

These judicious qualities have not vanished with the passing of two centuries. They are present today, and with sufficient diligence and effort on the part of American citizens can be applied as effectively to grapple with the problems of the 1970s as they were to contend with the problems of the 1770s.

They just don't build houses like they used to.

Fifty years ago, insulating a house was unusual.

Twenty-five years ago, storm windows were rare.

And the heating plants of ten years ago were hardly as efficient as those being installed today.

The point is: most new houses are being built to make better use of energy...with thicker insulation, double glazed windows and more efficient heating and cooling systems (like the electric heat pump).

When you shop for a new home, make sure it's built to save energy...and money.

Look for the EEA seal on new houses.

Our Energy-Efficiency Award is only given to newly constructed homes on Delmarva Power lines that meet our rigid standards for total insulation. (We will inspect any new house, regardless of the type of fuel used.)

The Built for Saving Energy symbol on new construction is your assurance, as a prospective buyer, that the house has been carefully inspected and found energy efficient.

We offer these inspections and the EEA award (if merited) without charge to Peninsula builders.

In these days of rising fuel costs and energy conservation, we think this is a valuable service for our customers.

Towers Finishes Third

Breeding, Passwaters Share Speedway Spotlight

Bob Passwaters of Milton and Walt Breeding of Federalsburg shared the victory circle Friday night in the double modified sportsman program at the Georgetown Speedway.

In the first modified-sportsman feature it was Bob Passwaters in the Hitchens Bros. Gremlin going wire to wire to collect his first victory of the season. Passwaters started on the pole position but, was constantly pressured by Walt Breeding however, Passwaters drove a flawless race which was completed in under ten minutes with no caution flags. Oscar Fields finished first sportsman in the Bodie Bodenweiser Mustang.

The second modified-sportsman feature was a real thriller with Bill Towers of Harrington charging from seventh to first in just two laps. Towers kept the Ford powered Towers Auto Service Mustang on top until lap ten when Ray Sawyer detonated an engine going into the first turn bringing out the caution flag.

On the restart Breeding got the jump and pulled in the lead as Stan Busby of Bridgeville moved in to challenge Towers for the second spot. Busby moved into second on the fifteenth go-round as Jerry West and Haines Tull moved in to make it a real battle for the top five.

Breeding managed to hold off the constant challenges of Busby and Towers to take his second victory of the season. Busby finished second followed by Towers, West, Tull, Richard Jarvis, Fields and Johnny Parker.

Once again Fields dominated the sportsman division finishing first and seventh overall. Parker finished second sportsman followed by Bud Coverdale, Wayne Todd, and Dave Trice.

Milford's Ronnie LaVere

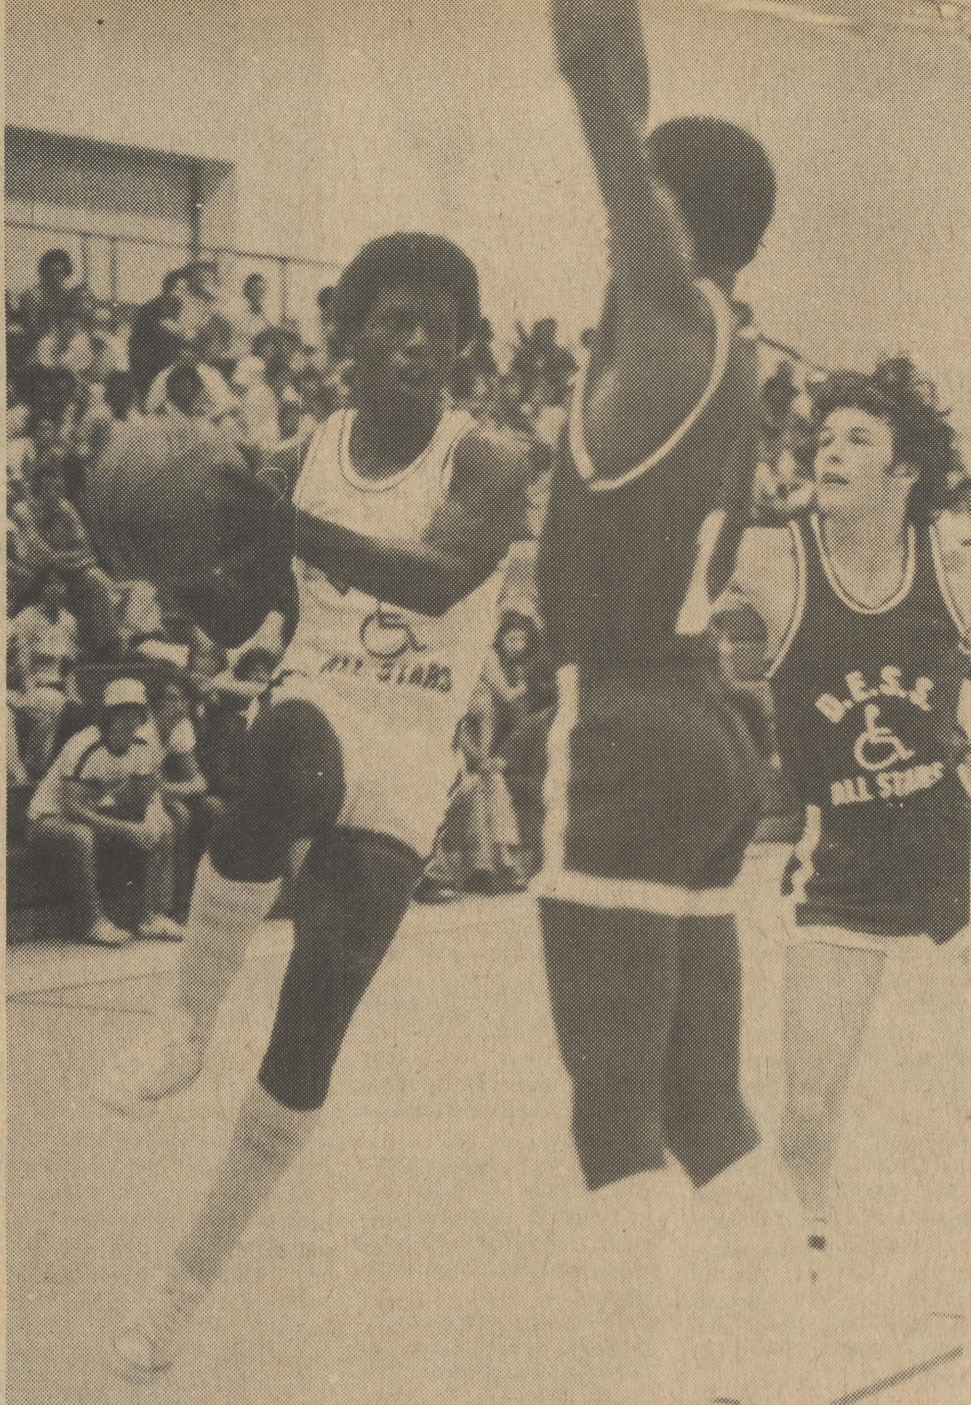

scored an impressive fourth feature victory in the late model division by just edging out Willis Robinson and Wali Shifflett. Jay Walker finished third followed by Richard Smith, Larry Andell, Bob Williams and Ed Williams.

A big Fourth of July extravaganza will be run this Friday evening at the Georgetown Speedway consisting of three twenty-five lap features, one late model, one sportsman, and one modified.

RESULTS: L.m. 1) Don Breeding 2) Wali Shifflett 3) Les Nailor. Heats 1) Mel Joseph 2) Richard Smith 3) Ronnie LaVere.

Sportsman 1) Joe Ellingsworth 2) Wayne Todd 3) Lou Johnson. Heats 1) Johnny Parker 2) Oscar Fields 3) Jim Hughes.

Modified 1) Harold Bunting 2) Bill Towers 3) Bob Wilkins. Heats 1) Haines Tull 2) Stan Busby 3) Bob Passwaters.

Starting Time Changed for Atlantic Coast '300'

The starting time for the July 17th Atlantic Coast "300" at Dover Downs International Speedway has been changed from 12 noon to 1:30 p.m.

According to track president and general manager, John Riddle, the moving of the starting time was made to allow for greater flexibility in the qualifying procedures for the race. "We decided that it would be advantageous to have some Atlantic Coast starting positions determined on Sunday morning," Riddle said, "to allow those drivers who compete at the weekly short tracks to drive down and still make the field on race day. We've also added a practice session to the race day program," Riddle continued, "to allow the Sunday arrivals the opportunity to get used to the racetrack."

Early entries for the Atlantic Coast "300" include: Five-time NASCAR National Modified Champion, Jerry Cook; Geoff Bodine, who recently set a new world record for modified cars at Dover Downs; Jerry Dostie; Tom Bourget; and Bob Rilye.

"The Atlantic Coast '300' weekend will get underway at 6 a.m. on Saturday, July 16th with competitor registration. NASCAR inspection will begin at 7 a.m. on Saturday and the speedway will open for practice at 10 a.m.

Time trials for Atlantic Coast "300" starting positions 1-20 will take place at 2 p.m. on Saturday followed by another practice session and a second qualifying period for starting positions 21 through 35 at 5 p.m.

Sunday's practice and qualifying will get underway at 12:10 with the race getting the green flag at 1:30 p.m.

Spectator gates will open at 10 a.m. on Saturday. On Sunday, spectator gates to the infield will open at 7 a.m. while grandstand gates will open at 8 a.m.

Sunny Side Up

By Lynn Hershey

The Japanese and the British don't have a great deal in common, but on one thing they agree-life without tea would be dismal indeed.

In Japan the tea ceremony is an unhurried ritual reflecting centuries of tradition. It is choreographed with the cool perfection of a ballet. Tea drinking in Japan is as much as refreshment for the soul as for the body.

Itto in England. The British would sooner miss a coronation than skip tea-time. Perhaps it's just a single cup with a crumpet on the side. Or an elaborate high tea with enough food for a regiment. No matter. Whether in a cottage or a castle, it would be unthinkable for one to let an afternoon slip by without enjoying a cup of the choicest tea one could afford, reverently brewed in a pre-heated china pot.

No wonder we lumphish Americans cause the British and Japanese to draw back in well-bred alarm. Look what we do to tea! I once innocently gave an elderly visitor from London a cup of hot water and a tea bag. She eyed it with distaste and said she would rather not take her tea in a Kleenex pouch, thank you.

If bags were our greatest sin against tea, perhaps we could be forgiven. But great heaven, look what else we do! Instant tea! In tiny foil packets or mammoth glass jars. Presweetened with real or artificial sugar. Flavored with chemical lemons. It comes in cartons with milk, or bottles with soda, or flip-top cans like beer.

Rusty brown, full of additives, funny smelling, strange tasting. As Snoopy would say, "AAARGH!"

Tea has been an honored beverage for over 4000 years. According to the USDA, there are more than 3000 varieties. Like wine-tasting, tea-tasting is considered an art. An expert can identify at least 1500 different teas. How dare we reduce these delicate, fragrant leaves to powder, process all the life out of them and dose what's left with vegetable gum, artificial color, citric acid, tricalcium phosphate, BHA, sorbitol and maltodextrin.

For the sake of your thirsty, suffering taste buds, make a resolution for Summer '77. Break the instant tea habit. Treat yourself, your family and your friends to real old-fashioned, grandmotherly, dawn-home, flag-waving, Fourth of July, church supper, family reunion, picnic-in-the-park, HOME-MADE iced tea! Here's a tried and true method from the New York Times food section. And you don't even have to heat water.

Use one quart of cold tap water and six to eight heaping teaspoons of your favorite leaf tea. Put the tea in a glass or ceramic pitcher (not metal), add water and stir. Cover and place in the refrigerator for 24 hours, stirring once or twice. Strain the tea directly over ice cubes. Add genuine lemon slices or bona fide fresh mint.

Instead of using granulated sugar, make a sugar syrup for sweetening the ice tea and other cold beverages. Just stir two cups of sugar into one cup of water and simmer for about ten minutes. Cool and store covered in the refrigerator.

There now, isn't that easy? I'll bet even the Japanese and the British would approve.

Beef Referendum Set For July 5-15

Lister Hall, Jr. executive director for the Kent County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, reminded all registered beef producers of their right to vote on the beef research and information order July 5-15.

If over half the registered producers vote and two-thirds of those voting approve a beef research and information order, the Secretary of Agriculture would appoint a beef board, composed of not more than 68 beef producers, from names submitted by producer organizations.

The board would collect assessments on the sale of cattle and use the funds to promote beef research and information. The law sets the maximum assessment at one-half of one percent of live animal value. "Producers can vote in person at the county office or by mail," said Hall. "Those who want to vote by mail will have to get their request post-marked before midnight."

 The first week of State 4-H Camp is now taking place. There are about 80 Sussex County 4-H members attending the two weeks of camp. They will enjoy the fine outdoors and all the fun and excitement that goes along with a 4-H Camp. During the week, campers are involved in several classes. Campers choose between archery, hooked rugs, puppets, ceramics, quilting, recreation, environment, canoeing and swimming. Each evening the campers are involved with a council circle program. The campers were divided into tribes and each tribe has a chief and sagamore who are responsible for leadership in the tribe. During the afternoon these tribes compete in a variety of games. Be sure to look for camper interviews in the next couple of weeks! Find out "first hand" how much fun camp really is!

 Fair entries for the 4-H department are due in the county office by July 1st. Why not mail yours today? The 4-H department is found on pages 61 through 70 in your Delaware State Fair Book. All other entries should be mailed to the Fair Office in Harrington. If you have questions concerning your entries - please contact your local leader or call us at the 4-H Office.

Sunshine

by Mike Everline

The Harrington Sunshine 4-H Club had a busy meeting on Monday, June 6. President Mike Everline, presided. We were pleased to have four visitors who may become members in the fall. They are Abby Wright, Amy Wright, Ron Wright, and Greg Wright. Reports were given by Kelly Ryan on Hospital Fair, in which our booth netted $210 for the hospital fund. Mike Everline reported on Junior Broiler in which he placed 18th. Mike also reported on the flower bed soon to be made at Killen's Pond State Park.

We will be busy for the next two months with trash pickup, chairman Mike Everline, and a bike hike, chairman Dale Jarrell, fair entries, judging contests, and demonstrations. Kirk Ryan and Duane Hammond were named to the nominating committee to present a slate of officers for the next year. Lisa Bostick, Kelly Ryan and Dale Jarrell received scholarships from the Andrewsville Ruritan Club to 4-H Camp. These members had to complete a project book and turn in to the Ruritan Club for their inspection.

Our club had 7 members competing in County Demonstrations Day. Four of these will be going to state. Those competing were: Mike Everline, Horticulture; Lisa Bostick, Meal Planning; Doug Crouse, Photography; Duane Hammond, Photography; Dale Jarrell, Safety; Kris Ryan, Home Beautification; and Bobby Vincent, Home Beautification.

We have eight people judging in State Contests. Our club won the Horticulture trophy for the second year. Six of our members placed in the top 10 in horticulture. Four of our members attended Kidz Kamp. They were Kris Ryan, Kirk Ryan, Bobby Vincent, and April Testerman. Three of our Junior Leaders attended as counselors. They were Mike Everline, Lisa Bostick and Dale Jarrell. We had three contestants in the Dress Revue all receiving blue awards. They were Lisa Bostick, Ellen Baker, and Connie Harrington. Ellen Baker placed in the honor court.

Duane Hammond, Sandra Testerman, and April Testerman gave demonstrations after our business meeting. Duane Hammond's demonstration was called "My Year As A Shutterbug". He brought a guest with him, Joe Gannon, who helped him with his photography project and took some pictures. April's demonstration was on "Measuring Dry Ingredients", and Sandra's was on the "Care of Your Camera".

Kelly Ryan and Melinda Larrimore arranged for films to be shown. One was on nutrition and one on smoking. Due to problems with the projector the smoking film will be shown at a later date but the one on nutrition told us all how a "Hamburger turns into You" Mr. Everline ran the projector for us. At the close of a busy meeting delicious refreshments were served by Doug Crouse and Duane Hammond.

Mrs. Greenhaugh Retires After 21 Years Of Teaching

"Not a retirement, but a change of pace," would be the comment Mrs. Phyllis Greenhaugh might make as she finishes 21 years of teaching in Harrington.

Mrs. Greenhaugh, who leaves teaching with the close of the '76-'77 school year, has no intention of settling for the proverbial rocking chair or anything like it. She sees ahead a full schedule in house and garden as well as hobbies and travel with her husband Charles Greenhaugh, who is also "retired."

Born Phyllis Smith, Mrs. Greenhaugh grew up in Westchester, Pennsylvania. She attended the University of Delaware receiving her B.S. and doing some extra graduate work there.

She met her husband, a native Harringtonian, while serving as a WAC in New Guinea in World War II.

Her first teaching assignment was in the third grade in Harrington. After that initial year she moved to special education where she remained for 20 years. The last four of those have been in the Learning Center at Lake Forest South Elementary.

Special education has been her particular interest because she enjoys working so closely with the children in small groups.

Admittedly she has some regrets in leaving teaching. But she is looking forward to the opportunity for wider activities.

Among those activities will certainly be visits with her children. The Greenhaughs have a son, John, who is a lawyer and a daughter, Susan Christman (who has also been a teacher). The Christmans with their small son have recently moved to Texas, surely the target of at least one trip by the Greenhaughs.

Bicyclists who enjoy traveling in groups must ride single file to obey the law as well as to avoid accidents, warns the Delaware Safety Council. Every year more than a thousand cyclists die nationally in bicycle-related accidents.

Housewise Helps from the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service

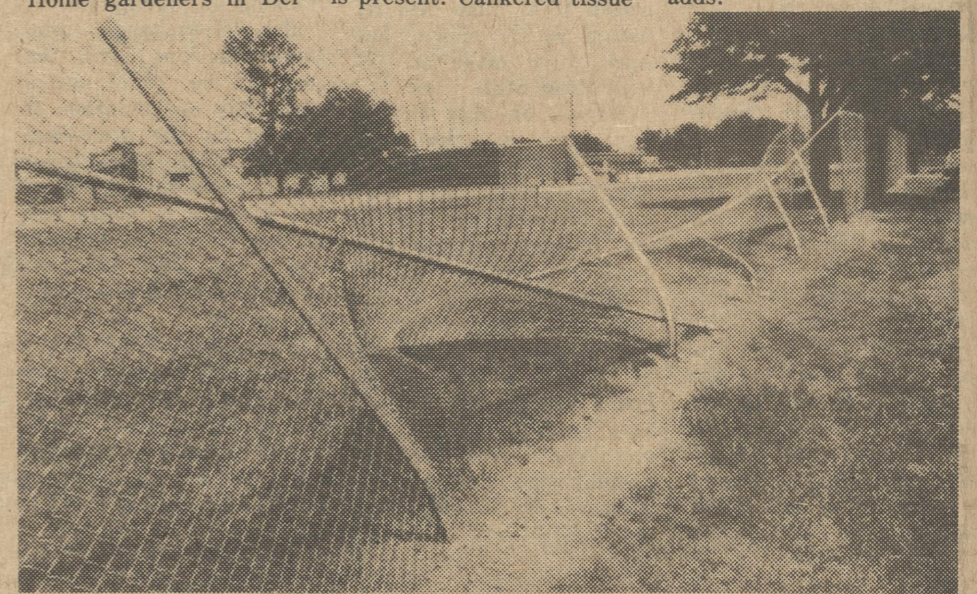

One result of freeze injury in trees is the appearance of dead patches on the bark, or sunken cankers. Several fungus and bacterial organisms can cause such canker on shade trees. One of the most common organisms associated with cankers on trees in Delaware is a fungus called Cytospora. Usually a very weak parasite, it may become about losses of shade trees. Many of the losses can be blamed on the very severe winter, says Dr. Robert Carroll, extension plant pathologist at the University of Delaware. Some trees which did survive the extreme freeze have numerous dead branches. Some trees will obviously need to be replaced, while others need a lot of doctoring.

Home gardeners in Delaware are complaining rampant following winter injury.

A cankered area on a branch often appears as a slightly sunken area that is different in color from the remaining tissue. It may be covered with fruiting bodies of the fungus—small black or brown raised dots on the bark. Sometimes the canker may not be sunken, but the tissue is dead and is usually covered with these same distinctive fruiting bodies. After periods of high humidity, spores of the fungus start erupting and serve to spread the disease.

In evergreen trees, patches of bluish-white pitch or resin may appear in the bark of the dead or dying area. The pitch is often a clue that a canker is present. Cankered tissue is dead and brown when cut with a knife. Healthy tissue, on the other hand, is light green, soft and easy to distinguish from the diseased area.

Cankers on small branches of a tree can be controlled by removing and burning the affected branch. Make the cut several inches below the infected area. Cuts which are over an inch in diameter may be treated with a tree wound paint. Recent research has indicated, however, that such wound dressings do not help prevent infections and are primarily cosmetic, notes Carroll. Fungicides or other chemicals are not effective in preventing or controlling canker diseases caused by Cytospora or related fungi, the pathologist adds.

The Harrington Police Department made an arrest this week in a property damage accident which severely damaged the fence surrounding the W.T. Chipman School. Arrested and charged with leaving the scene of an accident, failure to report an accident and careless driving was Gene Dickerson of Harrington. He is to appear in court on Wednesday. The police department also made four more arrests in the unlawful imprisonment case. Three of the arrested were juveniles while the fourth was James Walters, 18, of Harrington. All persons were released pending family court trial. [Staff Photo by Ray Blanchette]
