Long Awaited Changes

Conrail Makes Repairs

The long-awaited Conrail track rehabilitation program is well underway in Delaware, and has already resulted in vastly improved transportation service for a large portion of the State.

This year Conrail has budgeted over 2 million dollars for track repair and rehabilitation between New Castle and Milford. Next year will see an extension of the program south of Newark and south of Milford. One of the most visible results of the work is the speed of the trains which have quadrupled.

Average train speeds on the mainline in the recent past have not exceeded 10 miles per hour due to the poor track conditions. The rehabilitated tracks now enable the trains to travel as fast as 40 miles per hour. This positive improvement will result in more efficient rail service at a tremendous cost savings.

According to the Department of Transportation, however, the benefits incurred as a result of the faster speeds should be accompanied by a warning to motorists, cyclists, and pedestrians who frequent areas near the mainline.

Increased train speeds will create a hazardous situation because of our experience with slower, predictable speeds of the past. Trains will reach crossings four times as fast; therefore, driver reactions must be faster and any type of railroad track should be treated with a high regard for safety. Caution should be especially exercised in the following areas:

At all grade crossings, especially at night. Avoid cutting through all crossings when gates are in a down position or lights are flashing.

Avoid usage of railroad right of way as a recreational area.

Discourage all usage of motor bikes on railroad right of way.

Further track rehabilitation of the mainline will progress in stages

Request For Water

Conservation Made by City

HARRINGTON. With temperatures soaring to the 90's and no rain in past several weeks, City Manager Dave Peterson is requesting residents to conserve their water consumption.

This does not mean that people can't water lawns or gardens, but people are asked to use their water supply a little more carefully. For example Peterson suggests residents water their lawns and gardens between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. when the water would be most likely to be absorbed by the soil, and not evaporate.

He said there was no need to ration water at the present.

After 28 Years

Felton Man Discovers Sister In Ohio

FELTON. Jameson E. (Jim) Sluter, a native of Columbus, Ohio, now living in Felton, Delaware learned this spring he had a sister now living in Palmyra, Ohio.

Mr. Sluter came to Delaware several years ago via the U.S. Air Force. He was stationed during his active duty at Dover Air Force Base.

Jim Sluter grew up in Ohio. Unlike many children his age, he grew up in a foster home in Portsmouth, Ohio with a family named Horsleys. Although Mrs. Horsley had raised many many children, Sluter was the first to be adopted.

Another strange thing which happened to Mr. Sluter was when his real mother died, Mrs. Horsley had sensation that she would go to this particular funeral parlor in Portsmouth, Ohio, for it was there Sluter's real mother had been taken after her death. Sluter remembers the incident today.

Not knowing the details of his early beginnings, and for that matter not caring, for Mrs. Horsley was the only mother he had ever known and he desired to keep the relationship sacred.

At the time of his real mother's death, Sluter was about 12 years old. He remembers it today, and from time to time he had the opportunity to reflect on those incidents and times. He was curious about the incidents which lead up to all of this, since he had been told that he had a sister also.

As best as the story can be pieced together today, Sluter was born August 6, 1948 in Columbus, Ohio. His mother Clara Phipps had cancer and was being treated for it in a Columbus hospital. While there she gave birth to Sluter. Knowing that she was dying and conditions being what there were in that part of the country, she gave the boy up for adoption. She was moved to a cancer hospital in Gallopis where she later died. She died never having known her son except for a brief time.

Later Sluter was taken by the Horsleys and was given the name of Sluter.

His given name was Charles Franklin Phipps, and when he was born in the Columbus hospital his maternal grandfather, upon learning of the event, had recorded it in the family Bible. This was later to be one of the loose strings that properly identified Sluter as Phipps. Sluter recalls during his upbringing, Mrs. Horsley tried with all of her children, some 18 or more foster children, to properly identify them to their real parents.

Sometime in March of this year, Sluter received a phone call from his foster sister in Portsmouth, Mrs. Florence Horsley. This Mrs. Horsley had been the original family Sluter was slated to reside with when he was taken from the orphanage. This Mrs. Horsley already had a house full of her own children as well as foster children. She did not have any room for young Sluter. This is why her mother-in-law took Sluter. Mrs. Florence Horsley called Sluter in March to tell him that she had read where an obituary for a "Phipps" had appeared and she believed that this was Sluter's grandfather. She was told by Sluter to check it out and let him know. It turned out that this Phipps was of no relation to Sluter, but further search and check turned up another Phipps...Larn Phipps...who in fact proved to be his grandfather.

Sluter said that one of the hardest things that he had ever tried was forcing the words to come through "...I think that I am your grandson". The elder Mr. Phipps said you could be if you know the name of child born in that Columbus Hospital. Sluter gave him his given name "Charles Franklin Phipps". The grandfather knew right then that Sluter was his real grandson. It was during this difficult conversation with his grandfather that he first learned of an older sister, who had grown up within eight miles of him.

When the grandfather told the sister, Mrs. Sharon Liming, the Limings phoned Sluter in Felton, and came to Delaware in April to visit their newly found brother and brother-in-law. Mrs. Liming is the wife of Rev. Steven Liming, Pastor of Palmyra Church of Christ. They have two children Brian, 8, and Kimberly, 3. Mr. Sluter is married to hometown sweetheart, Rosemary Callihan, and they too have two children Scott, 7, and Chris, 5.

During the Easter holidays this past Spring, the Sluters travelled to Palmyra, Ohio and Portsmouth to visit with Sluter's grandfather and his sister and family. According to Sluter, "...it was an unbelievable experience." "After this experience, you have to believe in miracles", said Sluter.

Sluter's sister had never been told about her brother. According to Sluter, his grandfather felt this was the best for her, because they never felt the children would be reunited. To spare her feeling the sister was never told. During the Easter visit the Sluters and Limings, Jim and Sharon, talked endlessly trying to piece together their past looking at old family photograph albums and exchanging stories of their lives. According to Sluter "...separated for 28 years was long enough, and from now on their lives and families will be very close."

The Limings are planning to visit Felton within the next two weeks. It is hoped their stay will be a rewarding one.

Thirty-Three Acts Slated

Fair Talent Show Takes Shape

Thirty three country music acts are slated to appear at the Delaware state fair grandstand on Sunday, July 17 at 6 p.m. in preliminary competition for the Delaware State Fair's Country Music Talent Contest.

Producer Dennis Hazard believes this to be one of the largest shows of its kind ever in this area, featuring purely local country music talent. Over 95 performers will participate in the show vying for the right to appear in the Delaware State Fair Country Music Talent Show Finals to be held as part of the grandstand show on Tuesday evening, July 26 during Fair Week. Only 6 acts will be selected by a panel of judges to be in the finals.

Prizes for the finals include a $250 cash award, a handsome trophy and a free recording session at Birch Sound Studios, Secretary, Maryland, for the first place winner. A trophy and $100 cash will go to the second place winner and $75 cash and trophy will be awarded to the third place winner.

All types of country music will be presented in the preliminary show including country rock, country gospel, country pop and bluegrass. The entrants come from practically every locality along the eastern shore. There is even an act entered from Gap, Pennsylvania. In all, there are 17 group or band acts, 12 single acts and 4 duo acts entered in the competition.

Fair officials are encouraging the public to support their favorite local country music performers by attending the show, July 17 at 6 p.m. In an attempt to make it a real family night all seats are priced at just one dollar and parking is free. The show is expected to last at least 5 hours.

Appearing in the show from this local area will be: James Treadway, Frederica; Nina DeFilippis & Delaware Troubadors, Felton; Dave & Phil (David Speicher, Phil Perdue), Bridgeville; Ray Wintjen, Image, Reach Out and Kathi Hopkins Paula Clendaniel, Harrington; Watha Hostetler, Little Dick Pleasanton, Salvation Gospel Singers, Jack Burress, Jr., and George R. Ellers, Jr., Milford.

On July 28th

Senior Citizens

Admitted To Fair Free On Governor's Day

HARRINGTON. Senior Citizens will again be the guests of the Delaware State Fair come Thursday, July 28th. That's the day that has traditionally been set aside by Fair officials to recognize and honor Senior Citizens and not surprisingly, the event has grown considerably since its inception just a few years ago.

All persons 60 years and over will be admitted into the Fair free that day and all those that are over 65 and have registered at a special booth set-up by the side of the Fair's administration building by 7 p.m., will be admitted free to the grandstand show. And what a show has been planned.

Starting off at 7:15 p.m. prizes will be awarded to the oldest man, the oldest woman, and the couple married the greatest number of years. Then the annual "Blue Ribbon Parade of Livestock" will be presented to the audience.

Since Thursday is also Governors Day at the Fair, Governor DuPont will next be honored as well as the members of the Delaware Legislature. After all those preliminaries are taken care of, next comes the featured performers of the day, Jerry Clower from Yazoo City, Mississippi and Lawrence Welk star, Arthur Duncan.

Some might be interested to know that Clower was recently honored by the Delaware Legislature and Governor DuPont with a resolution citing his outstanding achievements to the fields of agriculture and show business, as well as his exemplary Christian lifestyle.

He has been named "Country Comic of the Year" for the last three years by all major trade publications. He is co-host of a nationally syndicated TV show, "Nashville On The Road," author of a best selling book, "Ain't God Good," and does national radio and TV commercials for Dodge trucks and Chrysler Motors.

Clower's story has been selling the good life - laughter, remembering the fun you've had, the friends, the simple things you enjoyed, the humorous side of even the bad times.

Clower will appear with Arthur Duncan who started his singing and dancing career as a newsboy on street corners in his native Pasadena. After school and in the early evening hours, the likable lad would drop a dime into a juke box and sing popular songs of the day, collecting coins tossed his way. Duncan says, "I really didn't think seriously about show business. It was just fun and a chance to get money for things I wanted." As the middle child from a family of 13 children, the extra money was well needed.

While in College, Duncan secured occasional bookings and it turned out so profitably, he decided in 1953 to take a six month "leave of duty" from his studies "to see what this show business was all about."

He never returned to college, succeeding far beyond expectation in night club bookings, and national television appearances on programs starring Bob Hope, Jimmy Durante, Bob Crosby, Eddie Cantor, Red Skelton, and Jerry Lewis.

An audition to appear on the Welk Show came in 1964 and Welk was so impressed that he was then signed on as a regular member of the Champagne Music "family" and today, he is one of the most popular and likable performers in the group.

So You Need Police

HARRINGTON. Residents here who have need to call the local police department may do so by using several methods.

During the day calling 398-4494 will result in locating an officer. If it is necessary to call the police at night, calling Troop Three in Dover at 678-4863 is the number to use.

For the citizen band radio users, local police may be reached by the call QRS 1660.

McDaniel Death Decision Changed

On December 1, 1968, Samuel A. McDaniel was found shot in the chest outside his home at 119 Grant St., Harrington. Pronounced dead-on-arrival at Milford Memorial Hospital, death was assumed to be by self-inflicted wound.

The cause of death decision has now been reviewed and changed from "suicide" to "undetermined".

Signs of the Fair

The official opening of the Delaware State Fair will be July 22. However, a special preview night will be held on the 21st. As depicted by the sign the Fair will continue through Saturday, July 30 with several big name shows planned. [Staff Photo by Gwen Harrington]

Local Student Wins National Electronics Competition

An eighteen year old Terry Campus electronics student has won first place in a national competition and might represent the United States at an international electronics convention in August of 1978, Dr. Gary Frank Petty, campus director, announced today.

The student is Richard Lomax of Camden, a 1976 graduate of Caesar Rodney High School, who is now enrolled in the electronics/electrical engineering program at Dover's Terry Campus.

Lomax traveled to Cincinnati, Ohio, with electronics/electrical engineering department chairman Sam Guccione, and two other Terry Campus students, Steve Lambertson of Dover and Ed Morris of Maryland, to the annual leadership conference of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) on June 20-25, 1977.

In Cincinnati, Lomax competed against eighteen other state finalists in the post-secondary division and against fifty state finalists in the high school division in a test of electronics repair skills. Lomax had to repair four TV sets, one radio, and to construct two electronics circuits. In the four hour time span, he repaired and constructed each of the items and racked up the winning score. He was the first place winner, and was chosen to travel on with two other Americans to a training conference in October to prepare a U.S. contestant for the international electronics competition in Pusan, South Korea, in 1978. If Lomax remains the top finalist out of the three, he will be the representative of the United States, and will compete as America's top entry in a similar repair skill competition against contestants from other countries.

"He has a great chance to win," says Guccione, who is the Terry Campus VICA advisor. "His work at Cincinnati was excellent, and his first place win was a credit to the entire State of Delaware and to our vocational/technical education system."

According to Lomax, the repair test was a four hour ordeal with lots of hard work and concentration. But he credits his win to good training currently at Del Tech, to past training at Kent Vocational Technical High School, and to two private TV repairmen who helped him prepare for the contest.

National winner Richard Lomax of Camden wears his gold medal and stands beside a broken TV in the Terry Campus electronics lab. Working on similarly broken televisions and radios gave Lomax the practice needed to become number one finalist in the recent VICA national leadership conference electronic repair skills competition.

Farm Accident Studies Being Conducted

Sometimes it's easier to attract attention by appealing to pocketbooks rather than common sense.

In keeping with this theory, Farm Accident Studies are now being conducted in selected states to determine the real costs of farm-related accidents. According to extension farm safety specialist Ron Jester, once the amount of money lost because of senseless accidents becomes known, farmers may try harder to prevent them.

"Any farmer recognizes the value of good reliable employees," says Jester. "Such help is indispensable at critical times during the year—such as planting, farrowing and harvest. The loss of employees at these times creates undesirable and costly situations."

The accident studies have shown that accidents in Maryland in 1974 resulted in an average of 13 days lost from usual activities and an average medical expense per accident of $298.65.

In addition, a Purdue University study of a corn and hog operation concluded that under certain conditions, the farmer's time was worth $600 an hour during planting and no less than $100 during the rest of the year. Once the farmer realizes the high financial value attached to his time, Jester says, he should strive to keep his employees healthy and able-bodied so that he doesn't end up as one of their replacements.

Emphasizing that a small investment in safety pays big dividends, Jester quotes an Iowa farmer who said, "I bought a roll-over bar for my son's tractor—they are cheaper and caskets."

"Safety is a Good Investment" is the theme for this year's National Farm Safety Week, which will be observed July 25-31.

Delmarva Power

Housewise Helps from the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service By Lynn Hershey

People who want to lose weight are forever at the mercy of someone. We are bombarded with books and articles advising us to eat lots of this and nothing of that, or vice versa. We are told either to fast, or to eat ten tiny meals a day with dill pickles in between. There is Duke University with the rice diet, The Great One with the drinking man's diet, and monkeys with the banana diet. We may be stuffed with grapefruit on the citrus plan, or simply stuffed on the Weight Watchers regimen. We are water-logged because of Dr. Stillman, or bloated with bran from the high-fiber diet (rarely leaving the bathroom in either case).

There are also the marvelous mail-order miracles for making flab melt away with no effort on your part. Just send check or money order. Somebody certainly made a mint on the mummy-wrappings that literally squeezed the juice out of you.

The fashion industry adores the lean and hungry look. Even Canadian rats have joined the plot and are trying to get saccharine banned in this country.

The food industry sensed long ago that people wanting to be thin would spend money to get that way. Low-calorie and dietetic foods often cost more than their regular counterparts, even if the ingredients cost less (e.g. water-packed canned fruits vs. fruits packed in heavy syrup).

Now there's a new product that's supposed to be the answer to the dieter's prayer. Are you ready? It's bread made from wood pulp. Predictably the promoters have given it a name suggestive of miracles. It's known as super bread, and is supposed to be as tasty to humans as to termites.

According to a report in a U.S. Department of Agriculture publication, super bread contains 400 percent more fiber than whole wheat bread, and 33 percent fewer calories than white bread. It costs about 70 cents a loaf. (Is wood pulp more expensive than wheat?) The Food and Drug Administration has already approved the bread for public consumption.

Supposedly super bread was developed as a means of helping overweight people reduce. But I've a suspicion that the developers had something else in mind-like profits.

Marguerite Krackhardt, Delaware extension nutrition specialist, takes a dim view of fad diets. She says there's only one sensible way for the vast majority of people to lose weight. That's to stick to a well-balanced food plan and eat fewer calories than you burn up in activity. She recommends moderate meals based on the basic four food groups (proteins, dairy products, whole grains, fruits and vegetables) plus an increased level of activity suitable for your age and physical condition. However, she stresses the importance of checking with your doctor before beginning any weight loss or exercise program.

And be patient, advises Marguerite. You won't be thin by tomorrow. You'll be healthier and happier with a weight loss of one or two pounds a week.

Marguerite's advice is based on extensive training in food and nutrition. It makes sense, and it's also free. Frankly, I'm tired of the hucksters making money off my avoirdupois. And I'm darned if I'll ever go into a restaurant and ask for a wood pulp sandwich with an order of acorns on the side.

Roy's Out -- Movement Not Dead

Last week Roy Wilkins, Executive Director of the NAACP, at 75 stepped down from that post which he had held for nearly 25 years. Prior to 1954, Wilkins had served in various posts with the NAACP as a young man getting field experience. Once he was sent to Mississippi to serve as a field hand. He was actually on the payroll of the Federal Government. He was there as a "Study" to observe the conditions and hazards to a human life. Upon returning from this journey he was to write, as a young newspaperman, many articles about those conditions which won him national recognition. From there Roy Wilkins began his "crusade" for the oppressed human beings in this world.

In 1954, the Supreme Court, in Brown vs. the Board of Education, declared that separate but equal schools was unconstitutional. It was Wilkins who spearheaded the case with Thurgood Marshall, now Supreme Court Justice Marshall, arguing the merits of the case. Wilkins was asked last year to step down, and it angered him. Roy Wilkins would name the time and the place to relinquish his authority within the NAACP. This year he turned 75 and last week in his home town of St. Louis, he retired from that position.

Prior to the banquet and celebration in his honor, he held his last news conference as Executive Director. He was asked by one reporter "... (with your retirement) does this mean an end to the civil rights movement". After a very long pause, he answered by saying "...I don't think that question has any validity". Although the news conference continued, for all purposes and intent the news conference was over...but the movement to which the young reporter referred was not.

In 1954, the decision referred above was not just for negroes, but for all minorities. The NAACP movement might have been initially for the benefit of negroes...but it was soon to become the civil rights movement, which was not solely for negroes. So...how was Mr. Wilkins to answer the young reporter. The question intending to be specific was as broad as the door which opened after Brown vs. The Board.....

Roy Wilkins, the man, was a very calm, deliberate worker...a great fighter. He above all possessed a great deal of equanimity...and above all he was the man for the job. To the end he was as calm and deliberate possessing mental composure...as much as...he possessed when on that Government junket to Mississippi he took that abuse "...his masters" dealt him. The explosive articles which followed that trip "...that slavery in America still exists" rocked the entire country.

He has been called everything from liberal, to racist, to too soft, to too conservative, but the man Roy Wilkins knew his goals and knew where he was going.

All minorities and those outside the establishment have people like Roy Wilkins to thank, for it was his tireless work which won them their rights.

The question which the reporter asked...though specific...was in fact as broad as the civil rights field itself. The question my friends has no validity.

Weekly Report

by Senator Joe Biden

Last week I testified before Senator Muskie's Subcommittee on Environmental Pollution on oil pollution liability and compensation legislation. I think that there is a growing consensus among my colleagues in the Senate that a comprehensive legislative package must be developed to deal with the preservation of one of our most precious resources -- waterways.

Those of us who have an understanding and affection for the sea are saddened, of late, to see it looking old and tired. Woodrow Wilson once said that the "freedom of the sea is the sine qua non of peace, equality, and cooperation."

It is a curious situation that the seas, from which life arose, should now be threatened by the activities of one form of that life. But the sea will continue to exist -- the threat is rather to life itself.

The spectre of oil washed shores, devastated fish and wildlife resources, and polluted waterways is one of the terrible consequences we endure as a result of the advanced technology we enjoy which is largely dependent upon petroleum supplies.

I think that stronger safeguards and incentives are needed to control oil pollution and its effects. We should consolidate our present laws and legislative proposals into a uniform policy.

As I have indicated there seems to be a consensus about the goals which we are seeking. There are, however, differences of opinion on the implementation of methods needed to reach those goals.

I have introduced legislation that will provide a comprehensive national policy to deal with liability in the aftermath of oil spills. I think that it is essential that there be unlimited liability for the cost of cleaning up oil spills. The higher the limit of liability the more incentive there will be to operate oil tankers safely and carefully.

I would also like to see unlimited liability imposed on those responsible for the loss of property or income as well as any other cost of restoring the environment.

It is obvious to me that government regulation and enforcement is really not the answer to the oil pollution problem. Until those persons responsible for the equipment and operations involving petroleum are made directly accountable for the effects of oil spills, the problem will not be solved.

Losses from oil spills go far beyond direct and immediate loss of income to individuals because they result in losses to society as a result of damage to the environment. I think that all of those losses must be recovered.

Vehicle Code Change

This newspaper in conjunction with your Delaware State Police would like to inform the motoring public of recent changes in the Delaware Motor Vehicle Code.

Since August 5, 1976, several new laws have been in effect. One such law is Section 4146, which now reads:

(c) Where neither a sidewalk nor a shoulder is available, any pedestrian walking along and upon a highway shall walk as near as practicable to an outside edge of the roadway, and shall walk facing traffic.

(d) Except as otherwise provided in this Chapter, any pedestrian upon a highway shall yield the right of way to all vehicles upon the highway.

(e) The provisions of this section shall not require that pedestrians on one way roadways of controlled access highways walk facing traffic to the nearest emergency reporting device.

In voting to increase their own salaries by 29 percent, members of Congress failed to exercise the restraint necessary to curb inflation.

I voted against the pay raise, and I was disappointed that the majority of my colleagues disagreed with me and refused to pass legislation that would have returned our salaries to the level where they had been since 1975.

Inflation -- which hurts everyone -- is a tremendous problem in our country. To find a solution, all sectors of the economy should exercise restraint: business, labor and especially the American Congress.

As members of Congress we have a special obligation to set an example for the rest of the country.

Prices have skyrocketed. At the same time we have a large federal deficit. This is not the time for members of Congress to give themselves a 29 percent raise in pay.

The cruelest aspect of inflation is that it hits hardest those who can least afford it, senior citizens, the poor and the middle income taxpayer. Unreasonable wage increases such as this only fuel the fires of inflation.

In February I wrote the head of the Congressional committee considering the pay raises, urging that the full House vote immediately on the matter. Although I remained opposed to the pay raise, I also asked that if it were enacted it not be implemented until January, 1979.

If Congress should vote for a pay raise, the pay raise should not go into effect until the election of another Congress.

This way the voting would be more objective. Members of Congress could not vote their own pay raise unless their constituents put them back into office to accept it.

This time the raises were recommended by a Presidential Commission. The Commission looked at all levels of federal salaries and found they were drastically below the amount necessary to "attract and maintain first rate persons."

However the recommended increases -- 7.1 percent for Cabinet members, 48 percent for federal judges, and 29 percent for members of Congress went into effect automatically.

There was no choice. The Democratic leadership rigged the system so Congress could not even vote on its own pay.

However, I was pleased that the House stopped another pay raise last week. We passed legislation to prohibit an estimated 6.3 percent raise for upper level federal employees and members of Congress in October.

I cosponsored legislation to do this when I was first elected to Congress because the raise was not justified. This action will save taxpayers $42 million by 1982.

We must protect the purchasing power of the American dollar. Congress must do more than just talk about it. In passing up a chance to refuse the pay hike, Congress unfortunately showed it was not serious about slowing the runaway locomotive of inflation.

Thoughts

by Senator Bill Roth

healthy life.

My bill and similar bills introduced in the House of Representatives are measures intended to halt the unconscionable abuse of human beings -- youngsters, who not having reached the age of consent are used by the greedy and unscrupulous child pornographer simply for profit-making. I am confident that the great majority of the American people will not long condone this mockery of every standard of decent and civilized behavior.

The legislation has been cosponsored by Senator Robert Byrd, the Majority Leader, Senators Eastland and Thurmond, the Chairman and Ranking Minority member of the Judiciary Committee respectively and 17 other Senators. Accordingly, I am hopeful this measure will be quickly passed by the Congress and signed into law by the President.

Tips For Beating The Heat

You can't really beat the heat.

Whether it's the heat or the humidity, or both, it's hot in almost all of the United States in July. After weeks of sweating and steaming, it's not uncommon to find the heat is beginning to wear you down.

The American Medical Association points out that there are some things you can do to be more comfortable -- things that can help beat the heat.

Stay out of the sun as much as possible, especially during the middle of the day when rays are hottest. Wear light, loose clothing. The ladies have the edge over the men in this respect. Drink more liquids than usual, but take extra salt only on your physician's advice, particularly if you have liver or kidney trouble or a heart condition.

Take a shower or dip in the pool once or twice a day to cool off. Get plenty of rest and sleep. Eat your regular diet and don't go overboard on cold cuts and salads, unless you like them anyway.

Get up early in the morning to do your heavy work on the lawn or gar-

FOOD MARKETING ALERT

USDA Agricultural Marketing Service

As of mid-June, the supply situation in July is expected to look like this:

RED MEATS
Beef... plentiful. Production to average about 4-6% below the record levels of a year earlier but about 4% above the 1974-76 average for the month. Smaller output of grass-fed beef accounts for most of the decline from year-earlier levels.
Pork... adequate. Production rates will be down seasonally, but should average 8-10% higher than low levels of a year ago and about 8% above the 1974-76 average for the month.

POULTRY & EGGS
Broiler-fryers... adequate. July production rates up about 5% from last year and about 13% higher than the July 1974-76 average.
Eggs... adequate. July output to be 1% above a year earlier and the July 1974-76 average as well.

Turkeys... adequate. July production rates are down 3% from year-earlier levels but 3% above the most recent 3-year average for July. July 1 cold storage holdings above last year's level, but down about 12 million pounds from the July 1974-76 average. As a result, July turkey supply will be a little above year-earlier levels.

MILK & DAIRY PRODUCTS
Milk and dairy products... plentiful. Milk production in July will be past its seasonal peak, but above the July 1976 level and the July 1974-76 average. Dairy products, also past their seasonal peak, will continue heavy.
In May, according to preliminary figures, butter production was more than 16% higher than in May of last year. Commercial stocks were 35% above May 1, 1976 and 10% above the 1974-76 average for May 1. American cheese production was 6% above May of last year. Commercial stocks were up 27%.

Fresh citrus fruits. Lemons... plentiful. As of June 1, lemons remaining for harvest from the 1976-77 crop were 30% above the year-earlier level. Limes... light. Estimated 1977-78 lime production indicates the crop will be down 38% from last season. This will be smallest crop since 1966-67. Oranges... adequate. Harvest of California's Valencia crop as of June 1 was about 10% complete; harvest of California Navel and oranges produced in Florida and other states was nearly finished.

Dried prunes... adequate. California 1976 production totaled some 3% less than 1975 but 3% above the 1974 crop.
Raisins... light. The 1976 production was much lower than 1975 production.

Frozen vegetable supply... generally adequate but with few items plentiful. Apr. 30 holdings of frozen cut corn and corn-cob were 13% and 31% above average. The frozen French fried potato inventory was 14% above average. Carryover stocks of principal canned vegetables... adequate. Increasing supplies of new 1977 pack vegetables will become available in July.

Fresh potatoes and onions... adequate. Watermelons plentiful and at a summer peak.
Peanuts... plentiful. Commercial stocks on Apr. 30 were 18% lower than a year earlier, but 1977 production totaled only 3% less than the record 1975 crop.

Almonds... plentiful. California's 1976 crop was record high with production about 44% higher than the 1975 crop. Walnuts... plentiful. The 1976 production was 7% less than the 1975 crop. Pecans... light.

GRAINS AND LEGUMES
Rice... plentiful. Early forecasts for the 1977-78 crop predict 97-101 million cwt., as opposed to the 117 million cwt. produced in 1976. The 1976 crop was only 9% less than the previous year's crop, but was produced on 11% fewer acres.

Wheat... plentiful. With harvest only now beginning, the 1977-78 wheat crop is forecast at 1,900-2,150 million bushels, approximating last year's record crop of 2,147 million bushels. Coupled with the largest carryover since 1963, this could produce the largest wheat supply on record.
Dry edible beans... most classes plentiful with the 1976 production only 1% less than 1975, but 5% below the 1973-75 average. Dry split peas... adequate. The 1976 production was 21% below the 1975 levels and 15% less than the 1973-75 average.

Week of June 29

Report from Greenwood United Methodist Charge: At the Sunday morning worship service, our pastor, the Rev. James Doughten, gave us a sermon on Jonah, the reluctant missionary. In the afternoon, we had our Charge picnic at Trap Pond, which was well attended by members of all three churches on the Charge. An extra bit of fellowship was added to us when we met again the Rev. Hubert Jicha and his family who had come over from Millsboro.

All of the young people of the Greenwood Community are invited to the "Happiness Club", sponsored by The Children's Chapel of Delaware, Inc. at The Lord's Open House (the yellow ranch house on rt. 16, west to Greenwood) every Saturday morning from 10 to 12, beginning July 9. Group 1, 1st to 6th grade; group 2, Junior High.

Join us for Bible study, field trips, recreation and crafts. Come and bring a friend. The Vacation Bible School for the Greenwood Charge will be held at the Greenwood Church, July 31 through August 7, except Saturday. It will be held in the evening when the family can all come. If you are planning to help with the VBS in any way, but haven't done so as yet, please contact Janet Durig. Help is needed.

On Thursday evening, after the last choir rehearsal of the season, Mrs. Delema Smith presented a gift to Mrs. Elnora Anthony, the director, from all the choir members. On Saturday evening, the Choir gathered for dinner together at The Gold Key in Dover.

Report from Hickory Ridge Congregational Methodist Church:

Sunday worship service was held at the tabernacle in back of the church. A small gift was presented to the oldest father, Mr. Clyde Bird and the youngest father, William Fleischauer, III. Following the service, we continued on to Nanticoke River near Seaford where the pastor baptized 8 persons.

We wish to thank everyone who helped with the Thrift Shop, the Car Wash and the Yard Sale. A generous friend gave us a 1965 Cadillac 4-door sedan. It has been painted and is being offered for sale. It may be seen at the pastor's house.

A film entitled "Six Hundred and Sixty-Six" was shown at the Sunday evening service on June 26.

On Sunday Mrs. Delema Smith was a dinner guest at the mobile home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Spangler of Lynch Heights, Milford. Afterward Mrs. Smith visited with Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris at their home on Old Shawnee Road.

Japanese Beetle -- 'An Unwelcome Guest'

The Japanese beetle is one product made in Japan that no one has ever bought, yet he's cost Americans millions of dollars, says Dave Tatnall, extension garden specialist at the University of Delaware.

This destructive little foreign import is a small ovalshaped insect, less than a half-inch long. It is a shiny, metallic green with coppery-brown wings. The body is ringed with small white spots along the sides and back.

The beetles begin to appear in early summer on their favorite food plants. They may be quite numerous for about four to six weeks, then gradually disappear. However, some stragglers may hang around until late October. The beetles are most active on hot, sunny days.

The pests attack a wide variety of plants, feeding on an estimated 275 different kinds! They'll eat not only foliage, but also flowers, fruit and even corn silk.

Among the garden plants they especially like are tall marigolds, zinnias, grapes, raspberries, peaches, sweet corn, roses, rose of Sharon, birch, elms, larch and willows.

You can control Japanese beetles by spraying or dusting valuable plants likely to be attacked. Tatnall says the insecticides Sevin, malathion, Diazinon and rotenone are all effective. Make weekly treatments for as long as the beetles are present.

There are also several natural controls of the Japanese beetle. Very dry summer weather destroys many eggs and kills newly-hatched grubs. On the other hand, a wet summer usually means a serious beetle outbreak the following year. Natural enemies of the beetle, especially during the grub stage, include several insect parasites and a bacterial disease known as "milky disease." Birds, moles and skunks also feed on this pest.

Although the Japanese beetle is obviously a very unwelcome "guest" in this country, he's made it clear he doesn't mind the unfriendly atmosphere one bit. In fact, the little free-loader apparently plans to stay around for a long time to come.

Local Sites Added To Historical Register

Four Delaware properties have been listed on the National Register of Historic Places by the National Park Service, according to Governor Pierre S. du Pont IV. Two of the properties, the Coleman and William Russell houses, are in Lewes. The other two properties are in New Castle County. They are the Amstel House in New Castle and the Eastburn-Jeanes Lime Kilns Historic District near Newark.

The Coleman House, located on Kings Highway in Lewes, was built by Thomas Coleman, a prominent silversmith, around 1815. The house is significant because it is an outstanding example of rural early-nineteenth-century architecture once so prevalent in Lewes. It retains most of its original interior detail.

The second Lewes house is the William Russell House on Pilot Town Road. It was built before 1803 by William Virden, a local carpenter, for William Russell, a Lewes tanner and large landowner. The house remains in the Russell family. Much of its well-executed interior detail remains.

The Amstel House, a museum owned and operated by the New Castle Historical Society since 1929, is one of the oldest of the large town houses in New Castle. Nicholas Van Dyke, one of the presidents of the Delaware State, and Chancellor Kenney Johns both lived in the house. George Washington even attended the wedding of Van Dyke's daughter Ann in the house. Outstanding Georgian detail remains both on the exterior and the interior of the house.

The Eastburn-Jeanes Lime Kilns Historic District, located on Paper Mill Road at Pipe Creek, consists of kilns built and operated between 1820 and 1850. They supplied lime to farmers and masons throughout northern Delaware and eastern Pennsylvania. Eight of the kiln structures still exist on the registered property.

Listing in the National Register ensures that federal agencies must consider the historical importance of each property when planning projects in their vicinities. Properties on the National Register are eligible for Historic Preservation Matching Grants-in-aid from the National Park Service.

Trice Continues Hold On Modified Feature

Thunderstorms skirted the Georgetown area Friday, making for a perfect evening of racing at the Georgetown Speedway.

Gary Trice of Parsonsburg, Maryland proved that three is the charm, capturing his third modified feature of the season. Snookie Vent of Milton got cross-up in front of the pack on the initial start sending cars in all directions down the front chute. When the dust cleared, everyone except Jerry West, who had nosed into the wall, was able to continue.

Donnie Joseph of Bridgeville got the early jump but, was soon headed - up by Trice. Bob Wilkins and Glenn Wilson tangled in the fourth turn bringing out the second caution of the race.

On the restart, Joseph pulled back into the lead stuck to the low groove and held off Breeding to the checker. Lou Johnson finished a fine third followed by David Trice and Bill Walker.

Heat Results: 1) Bob Wilkins 2) Larry Andell 3) Les Nailor

HARRINGTON. The Joie Chitwood Auto Thrill Show will perform at the Delaware State Fair on Monday evening July 25th. This is the first time since 1971 that the Chitwood daredevil team has been to Delaware and while spectators in attendance will see "The Greatest Show on Wheels", they won't see all the preparation that goes into bringing the show to town.

There are two Chitwood units traveling in over 35 states this year. Joie Chitwood, Jr. heads up the western unit while brother Tim operates the eastern unit. Both perform over 100 shows each season in locations ranging from county to state fairs, small quarter-mile dirt tracks to the Houston Astrodome.

Each unit which is completely self-contained maintains a crew of approximately fifteen including stuntmen, ramp hands, advance men, clown, an announcer and full-time mechanic. Each unit utilizes fifteen brand new Chevrolets including show and road cars, house trailers, mechanics truck, car carrier, and of course, the Coca-Cola Cannon which is used in the finale to the show to propel either Joie or Tim Chitwood through the air 65 feet.

The net worth of the rolling stock for each unit is valued at nearly a quarter of a million dollars. National sponsors of the show include Chevrolet, Coca-Cola and Champion Spark Plugs.

During the winter months when spots are booked by the Chitwoods, Joie and Tim attempt to schedule dates to avoid long distances overnight. This is not always possible and no matter how far it is from one show to the other, everyone seems to rise to the occasion.

Once the troupe arrives in the next location, everyone has his or her prescribed duties. Uniforms have to be cleaned, old junkers must be made ready for the crashes, new cars have to be tuned, contacts have to be made with local sponsors, and the media must be kept abreast of things happening with the show.

Anywhere from a hour to two before the show, the track must be readied. While spectators wait patiently to hear the roar of the engines, the last step in the ritual is carried out. Joie and Tim call their respective crews together to discuss last minute details of the show. It is at this meeting that individual track differences are discussed, dangerous curves pointed out, and always, always, safety on the track is emphasized.

Like most any other business, there is more to the thrill show than meets the eye. This year at the Delaware State Fair when the announcer of the 34th edition of the Joie Chitwood Thrill Show says, "In true Indianapolis tradition, gentlemen start your engines," rest assured that it has taken many hours of preparation and much energy to reach this point. Be assured also that you are in for a great treat. You are about to see, "The Greatest Show on Wheels".

Atlantic Coast "300" To Be Held July 17th

Dover - As a NASCAR Grand National driver Lennie Pond has made thousands of trips around the one-mile, high-banked superspeedway at Dover Downs. Last week, during Open House activities at the Delaware racetrack, Pond took his first laps as a modified driver.

Lennie will pilot Merle Smith's superspeedway Monza in the July 17th Atlantic Coast "300" at Dover Downs and after acquainting himself with the car and with the way it handles the Dover race-track, the Petersburg, Va. speedster offered a few observations: "Most of the drivers that will be competing in the Atlantic Coast race have been racing for a long time," Lennie said, "and they know racing as well as anybody. The big difference for many of the drivers who regularly run the short tracks however, will be the speed. We'll be running an average speed somewhere around 135-140 MPH during the race and I think some of the drivers won't be used to that.

"Handling will be very important," Lennie went on. "With the cars being so light you can naturally run faster (than the Grand Nationals) through the straights and you can get through the corners faster because you enter the turns at a higher speed. But the car has to be right. A modified car is a little trickier than a Grand National. Because of the shorter wheelbase, it can spin easier and the car wants to dart around more."

Pond's first modified ride in more than 10 years came last month in the Patriot '300' at Charlotte. He finished 4th in the race after holding a strong lead. A sparkplug wire grounding against the air cleaner proved to be the main factor in his failure to go on to victory.

The car Lennie will drive in the Atlantic Coast "300" is the familiar #71 Monza owned by Merle Smith of Avonmore, Pa. which John Anderson put on the pole at Charlotte in 1976 and again at Daytona last February. Asked if he felt that the Smith car was as good as his Charlotte ride, Lennie said, "Yeah, I think it is...I think it's probably a faster car and if we can get it comfortable through the turns at Dover, I think we'll be in real good shape."

The Atlantic Coast "300" will start at 1:30 p.m. on July 17th. Entries received in the last few days include: Jerry Makara of Pinchney, Mich., winner of the Dogleg "200" at Trenton last April; Satch Worley, Rocky Mount, Va.; Ted Wesnofske, Greenlawn, N.Y.; Bill Park, Brentwood, N.Y.; and Ted Renshaw, Ontario, Canada.

The line differs little with other models of Mopeds in the area, except that this particular model is made in Austria. "The top speed is 25 M.P.H. with up to possibly 200 miles to the gallon", says Smith.

For the past seven years, Harrington Suzuki has sold and serviced Suzuki motorcycle, which it will continue to do. According to Smith, "... we are the only firm in the area with factory trained mechanics on cycle engines with the seven years experience."

In addition to the Harrington location, Smith this past week opened a new store on Rehoboth Avenue in Rehoboth, entitled H & S Motors, Inc. The Rehoboth location due to the summer trade has a rental program for the Moped.

Asked what is so different or amazing about this new line of sales inventory, Smith said "...the most amazing thing about it is that we have not sold one bike to a person under 35 years old."

The Green Thumb

In traveling throughout the county in the past week I have noticed a lot of damage to soybean leaves. The damage has varied from a yellowing and puckering of the leaves all the way up to complete kill. The damage has been caused by one of two chemicals, Lorox or Dinoseb. Unfavorable weather following application of these chemicals has caused the damage. The amount of damage which occurred depends on the soil type, the amount of chemical applied, the chemical and the weather which followed application. The soybean damage has varied from light to severe. To determine whether soybeans are worth saving they should be looked at carefully before just going in there and disking them up. There is quite a bit of expense already in the crop and if it is worth saving - it should be. If the new growth or the growing point is still alive on the soybeans and the stem is not damaged and you have 6 to 9 beans per foot of row in 36" rows it is probably worthwhile keeping the stand of beans. Each field should be evaluated as to whether to keep it or to disk it up and re-plant. If you are not sure whether to save your crop you can check with your chemical representative or your county agent to help evaluate your field with you. Many of the fields are worth keeping. Beans injured early will often grow out of the injury and produce normal crops. If you determine that your soybeans should be disked under or destroyed and replanted the method that you use will be dependent on the chemical that you used. Check the label carefully to find out how they should be replanted so that further injury does not occur.

For all those people who are home gardening there are several things that should be done just about right now or probably a week ago. Fungicides should be applied to things like tomatoes and potatoes. Early blight is now appearing in our state. This disease can be devastating. Bravo, or Maneb are two commonly available fungicides which will control this problem. On lima beans or pole beans anthracnose is beginning to show up in irrigated gardens. Here again Maneb or Zineb can be used.

Insects are also appearing in great numbers on some of our crops. Striped cucumber beetles have been active for quite a while now and attack cucumbers, watermelons and cantaloupes. These crops should be protected with Sevin or Methoxychlor until the plants begin to run or set blossoms. It is important to control the cucumber beetles because they can transmit bacterial wilt to these plants which will result in their death. European corn borer have been damaging potato vines. The vines wilt and collapse and you cut the stem open and find a little white worm. It is too late to do anything about this since there is no way you can get in there and spray to protect your plants. You will have to wait until next year to take care of the corn borer in potatoes. But you should, however, keep spraying Sevin weekly to protect your plants from other insects which can get into your potatoes. Aphids or plant lice are attacking many plants right now. Aphids suck the sap and are often found on the new growing points of the plants. Malathion or Diazinon are two commonly available chemicals which can be used to control aphids. Sevin will not control your aphids, in fact, aphids often increase in numbers when you apply Sevin. Sevin will kill many of the beneficial insects which feed on the aphids and aphids in the kind of weather conditions we are experiencing will just explode on you, and will literally suck your plants to death.

Aphids are attacking ornamental plants also. There is a woolly alder aphid or woolly maple aphid which looks like snow underneath the leaves of maple trees and many other trees. This aphid can be controlled by either using Lindane or Diazinon. You will often notice this aphid by the sticky sap which drips from your maple trees. The sap will later turn black because of a sooty mold fungus which feeds on this rich sugary sap. To get rid of the sap and the sooty mold you must control the aphid. There are other chemicals which will control aphids, for example - Cygon and Malathion. However, these two chemicals can injure maple trees given certain weather conditions. So, if you have this problem on maple trees use either Lindane or Diazinon.

Gab Fest

by Pat Hatfield

I have had a busy week, along with my family and friends. One of our favorite speakers and friends, the Rev. Earl Tyson, has been conducting services at Zoar M.E. Church, Millsboro, this week and many of us have gone down each day for Bible study in the mornings and worship in the evenings to avail ourselves of his teaching and to fellowship with the folk down that way. We have had to fit all of this around our regular schedule with the children and all, but it has been very worthwhile. And now that it is over, we will have to adjust again. Having been on the mountaintop of experience, now we will have to come down and walk in the valley; but, hopefully, we will be better able to cope with the everyday problems that confront us. Today, I'm tending shop again, which I love because I love people. Here, I'm just an old antique among all the others. When a customer asks about the age of a certain object, and I reply, "Probably about the turn of the century", I think, "Well, that's me, too!" I came into being in 1904, which is pretty close!

Today I found a small bunch of old-fashioned white field daisies at the foot of the mailbox. I picked some and put them in a small mug on the television set. These have always been my favorite flowers...any kind of daisies, really, but these grew in profusion in the meadows and along the dusty roadsides of my childhood. They gave us joy all summer. We made daisy chains which we used for garlands in our hair and for "dressing up" and also for reins as we played "Horse". I never could make up my mind which was the biggest thrill, wearing the daisy reins and being the horse, or holding the ends of the reins and being the driver. get our early teens when we pulled the petals off, repeating the old rhyme, "He loves me, he loves me not."

Outside the shop, the air is hot, humid and tense, seeming to relate to a coming storm. The rain in this area has given us almost perfect gardens. And the lightning has helped so much in bringing to the soil the nitrogen so necessary for growing. What a perfect world was created until we disturbed the balance. This year we grew cabbage that looked like the pictures in the Burpee catalog. It was a lovely green color and when you cut it with a knife it just crackled with crispness. Even small Teddy who views boiled cabbage with a great deal of apprehension, waded right in and had three helpings.

We usually took turns anyhow. And I'm sure I've mentioned before how we made pyramids of dirt and then picked flowers and stuck in them for flower beds. Daisies were great for this, and we arranged them in different patterns.

Town and Country

Dr. William Mitchell, Extension Agronomy Specialist at the University of Delaware, has done extensive work concerning the production of nitrogen by using legume cover crops. Much of his work has been with vetch and crimson clover seeded to corn and soybeans which have not yet been harvested. The legumes germinate and grow quite rapidly after the corn and soybeans have been harvested. The ideal time to seed is in August by aircraft.

According to Dr. Mitchell's work, these legumes can produce almost half of the corn plants nitrogen needs if allowed to grow until May 1, at which time it can be plowed under or killed for no-till corn production.

However, this technique is not without problems. If small grain is grown on the field in later years, some vetch seed no doubt will germinate and cause harvesting problems. This can be remedied by applying a herbicide prior to harvest. Perhaps this problem can be overlooked because of the benefit of the legumes to corn.

The energy saving aspect of this practice has interested the Kent County ASC County Committee and they have included a cost sharing practice in their program.

You can sign up now to plant vetch or crimson clover cover in row-planted crops before September 30. This cover would be well established when you harvest the crop this fall and would be left on the land through the winter until May 1, 1978. At that time it could be sprayed for no-till corn or plowed after April 15 for conventional corn production in 1978.

Because vetch or crimson clover requires a high pH, it will be necessary to have a soil sample taken when you sign up for legume cover payment. If you have already had the soil tested for the current crop and applied lime, if needed, that soil will be accepted.

Cost-share payments range from $4.95 to $8.70 per acre (depending on the mixture). For additional information, contact the Kent County ASCS Office.

den. Or work at dusk in the evening, but try to avoid heavy exertion during the hottest hours of the day. There is sound physical reason behind the siesta custom of the tropics.

You need exercise in the summer as well as in the winter but don't overdo it, especially on extra hot days. Don't overdo physical exertion, whether at work or at play.

The more relaxed outdoor life of the summer months has many advantages to compensate for the heat. Stay relaxed and use common sense and you can beat the heat—at least somewhat.

Proper Clothing Can Help Beat The Heat

If you want to feel cooler without turning on the air conditioning, try changing your clothes. Proper clothing can make the difference between suffering through the July and August heat or having an enjoyable summer.

Thermal comfort of the body is related to heat exchange between the body and environment, according to Janet Goszyk, Delaware extension home economist. Body mechanisms operate to maintain the internal organs at a constant temperature, which is achieved when the body produces and loses heat at the same rate.

Ms. Goszyk says that heat is lost from the body in four ways:

Convection-Heat transfer which occurs when molecules from a warm object flow to a cool one. Swinging one's arm increases heat loss by convection.

Conduction-Heat transfer occurs through a medium without actual physical transfer of material. Heat is transferred by conduction when a warm body is placed on a cold chair.

Radiation-Heat transfer which occurs by electromagnetic waves. Body heat can be increased by radiation from the sun.

Evaporation-Heat transfer which occurs as water is transformed into vapor. Heat is lost from the body in evaporation as perspiration evaporates from the surface of the skin.

Radiation, convection and conduction usually do not allow for heat loss when the environmental temperature is greater than skin temperature. Therefore, evaporation is the primary means of heat loss from the body on hot summer days.

Since still air is a poor conductor of heat, garments that allow for a still air layer provide good insulation from cold and extreme heat. Clothes that fit too tightly and cling to the skin reduce the insulative effectiveness. Because the insulative effect tends to hold body heat in, garments are usually more comfortable if they have larger openings at the neck, arms and legs to allow heat to escape.

Moisture absorption of the fiber and fabric also affects heat transfer, says Ms. Goszyk. If moisture is absorbed without wetting the surface of the fabric, the garment will be more comfortable. She gives the following suggestions for keeping cool indoors during the summer months:

Wear absorbent fibers and fabric...they will aid in the removal of moisture from the surface of the skin.

Wear garments that allow perspiration to evaporate from the skin's surface.

Wearing skirts and dresses and omitting nylon stockings will keep women cooler.

Wearing short-sleeved shirts and unlined, lightweight jackets and omitting tee-shirts will keep men more comfortable.

As far as keeping cool outdoors, Ms. Goszyk suggests that you wear white and light-colored garments, clothing that is relatively impermeable to air currents and protective head gear.

She adds that selecting fibers, fabrics and clothing which promote the maintenance of the body's thermal equilibrium will help the average person become acclimatized to warmer temperatures.

Use Right Sprayer For the Job

The type of sprayer you use may affect the effectiveness of your spraying and dusting programs around the home, yard and garden. Sprayers are designed for applying three types of sprays--space, contact or surface, and a combination of contact and surface. John McDaniel, extension specialist in agricultural chemicals at the University of Delaware, has some pointers on different kinds of sprayers and their use.

Space sprays are used to control odors and flying insects in and about the home. Very fine droplets are formed which remain in the air for a short period of time. This type of spraying may be done with a household sprayer--the least expensive type. It holds a small amount of material and is easy to use. Some have an adjustable nozzle and can be used for surface sprays on a small area. A pressurized container is a self-contained unit commonly used because of its convenience, especially when only a small quantity of spray is needed. Just depress the valve with your finger and you have a fog spray.

The garden hose sprayer has become one of the most popular types of surface sprays, notes McDaniel. It uses relatively low pressure from the water system to draw chemical mixtures from a small jar attached to the end of your garden hose. The jar is calibrated so you can determine how many gallons of material have been applied. It is inexpensive, easy to clean and convenient to use where a water line is available. You should use separate jars for applying herbicides and insecticides, however.

A trombone or slide pump type sprayer can be used with a two-gallon bucket for holding the spray material. This type is intermediate in cost and is especially good for spraying small trees and shrubs.

The compressed air sprayer is one of the most versatile kinds and may be used for either a surface spray or a space spray by merely changing or adjusting the nozzle. It may be purchased in sizes from one gallon up, with the two or three-gallon units the most popular. A tank with a large opening is best for easy cleaning.

For large areas, a knapsack sprayer may be your best choice. It is a compressed air sprayer designed to be carried on your back.

When spraying a small acreage, you may prefer to use a power sprayer with a small gasoline engine on a cart. Or, a unit that can be mounted on a garden tractor or mower may do the job.

The care given your sprayer will determine its life span, emphasizes McDaniel. Tanks, jars or containers should be emptied and rinsed out with clean water after each use. And when possible, take the sprayer apart, especially nozzles and screens, and leave it in a safe place to dry.
