Felton Town Council

Street To Be Paved, Water Tap Delayed

by Barbara Brown
 FELTON. West Sewell Street will be graded and ready for paving by or before early fall it was announced at Monday night's Felton Town Council meeting. However, it was pointed out by Mayor William Myers that the street in the recently annexed section of town is the responsibility of the town as far as the paving or tar and chipping is concerned. This is contrary to the opinion rendered by the Council at its July meeting (during which the Mayor was absent) that the paving is the responsibility of Myers Construction. Myers pointed out that the street had already been deeded over to the town.

Street signs for West Sewell and North at their intersections with Walnut as well as a Post Office sign are on order and should be ready soon, possibly within the week. Posts would have to be set for the signs, and Councilman Don Jacobs suggested that allowance be made in setting them for posting needed stop signs.

In the matter of a tap on the water main requested by John Hopkins for his property on Walnut Street, there has been a continuing delay. Myers explained that an auger bit used by the construction company (Marvel Construction) had been broken in other work and was on order. However, it was expected to take at least six to eight weeks before the new bit was received.

Hopkins was on hand at the meeting to inquire about the delay and to complain that the council was "dragging its feet" in the matter. He said he had first applied for a tap in 1961 and then again in 1975.
 Jacobs also reported to the council that he had received various complaints about pot holes in the streets around town. Myers pointed out that it would be very expensive to have a contractor come in to do just patching. He thought it would be possible to get several tons of "coal mix" to do the patching at least until a contractor comes in to do street paving. This was to be looked into.

Renovation of the town hall is complete except for installation of draperies. However, it was noted that there had already been a $382 cost overrun of the original $400 set aside for the project. The Council voted to amend the original sum by $457 to allow for the payment of bills for work already done as well as for the purchase of drapes. This would bring the total set aside for the project to $857.

In other business the Council noted that the revised town charter was in the hands of the secretary of The League of Local Governments for his review and advice. It is to be returned before the opening of the fall state legislative sessions.

made a note to check on what seemed excessive use of oil by the town police car.

Police Report Prowler, Theft

HARRINGTON. After several weeks of quiet, the Harrington Police Department found themselves busy again this past week.

Two youngsters, ages 7 and 8 were reported to the department for playing with matches behind the Harrington Journal printing shop last Tuesday. It was discovered by the department that these same youths also had spilled kerosene on the upstairs porch of a nearby house where quantities of kerosene were located. At this point, Officer Ben Twilley contacted the fire marshal who completed the investigation.

A juvenile shoplifter was found at Harrington Food Rite last Wednesday, with 60c worth of merchandise. The juvenile was turned over to the legal guardian.

Local authorities were contacted Saturday of a theft of $20 from Wheeler's Park. The matter was turned over to Troop 5 in Bridgeville, in whose jurisdiction the property is located.

Sunday morning around 3 a.m., upon returning from the fair, a member of the Maloney family saw a person in the back seat of one of the vehicles parked in their driveway. Upon seeking and locating help, the youth returned to the driveway, to find the person had left. The prowler was described as a Caucasian male, young, and with long, black, curly hair.

His Journal Ad Caught The Right Eye

Ed Robichaud of Delaware Music & Sound is a happier Harrington business man, thanks to a Harrington Journal ad and James E. Strates.

HARRINGTON. Although some people may not be fond of the Midway at the Delaware State Fair, one Harrington businessman is wretched in smiles about it.

Ed Robichaud of Delaware Music and Sound placed an advertisement in the Harrington Journal's fair supplement two weeks ago. The advertisement caught the eye of James E. Strates, owner of the fair's Midway entertainment. Since Mr. Strates was having some problems with his sound systems, he became interested in what Robichaud could do for him, and as a result, Robichaud is now the "Sound of Strates".

Not only did he do the repair work necessary for Strates, the carnival owner was so pleased with "his work and honesty" that Robichaud will now be doing the sound systems for Strates wherever he goes. Says

Robichaud, "If they're close by, we'll go; if not, we'll ship the equipment."

He says he is now working out a system that will be simple to operate but one that works as well for operation on Midway attractions.

Robichaud was responsible for installing the sound systems on the Strates rides located on the Midway this year.

Fifteen years of applied and practical experience have gone into the finished products Robichaud turns out. A musician himself, he has set up sound systems for such celebrities as Bob Hope, Vicki Karr, and Gladys Knight and the Pips.

He was also responsible for providing sound for the preliminary contest of the country music contest at the Delaware State Fair.

Now it looks as if he will be expanding to the East Coast, the area the Strates Midway Shows covers.

Mrs. Elwood Jester of near Harrington was named recipient of the Hanson Award, which was presented to her in the needlework department of the Delaware State Fair Thursday by Governor Pierre duPont. Here Mrs. Jester displays one of the works she entered, which is the Felton fire engine No. 48-8. She had the design hand stamped on the rug, a process that required the work to be sent to England and which took eight months. The rug belongs to her son, a member of the fire company.

No Funds For Fire House

HARRINGTON. The local fire department and city hall will stay where they are, unless some monies come from a source other than the E.D.A.

since the plans for a new fire house and city hall were turned down recently.

One company spokesman said the fire company will exhaust all sources to try to get the new building up on land the company bought in anticipation of getting the federal funds.

'Triple Crown' Dairy Queen

It was a fine fair for Betsy Anne Cook, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Cook, Jr. of Glasgow. She was crowned by Governor Pierre duPont as the Delaware Dairy Princess, her cow won the Pretty Cow Contest and later gave birth to a bull calf, while Ms. Cook proved herself a winning cow milker.

As Dairy Princess, she won a cash award of $300 and took part in the livestock parade during Governor's Day. Martha, the cow, won $15 as Pretty Cow. Her mistress hopes to be a dietician.

Boundary Dispute Nears Settlement

BRIDGEVILLE. The Woodbridge School Board as a group will act as a committee to visit the Lake Forest School Board on August 15 for a special school boards meeting between the two school districts.

A dispute which arose as a result of certain territory dividing the two districts in the Farmington area, was apparently in error at the time the districts were laid off.

According to the State Department of Public Instruction the territory in question should remain in the possession of Woodbridge. The DPI reasoned that the error should have been corrected in the beginning "...not at this late date".

According to a letter read from Superintendent William Griffin from Woodbridge, Board's attorney the judicial system which the Lake Forest Board has sought will not upset the ruling of DPI so long as "...all procedures were properly met, proper hearing and proper evidence was presented...and that a proper decision has been reached as a result of this".

Under the procedure, the attorney for Woodbridge feels that a proper request from the courts is to ask for a Summary Judgment in favor of Woodbridge.

Fair Is Success

HARRINGTON. The 58th Delaware State Fair is no more than a memory now, but several factors brought its attendance near the record 153,000 set in 1974.

While the temperatures soared near 100 degrees while exhibits and midway were being placed, forces of Mother Nature seemed to smile on that particular piece of Delaware geography called the fairgrounds once the fair got underway. The temperatures cooled off, and much to the sorrow perhaps of the surrounding agricultural district, the rains were brief during fair week.

The weather, combined with several new attractions, brought the total number of fairgoers to 151,700.

Among the attractions that were new was the country music contest, which saw 3,000 people approve the selection of George Burress, Jr. of Milford as he took the top spot from a field of thirty six preliminary contestants. The final selection was made last Tuesday night.

On Wednesday the grandstands again filled to around 90% to view the first tractor pull at the state fair. Crowds of people watched the monster machines try to pull incredible weights. According to George C. Simpson, fair manager, the tractor pull will be a repeat attraction next year.

Senior Citizen's Day, also Governor's Day saw over 1,600 of the state's senior citizens taking advantage of the free admission to the grandstand.

Thursday was also the first for an apple pie judging contest (see story on page two).

Grandstand shows that were most popular were the stockcar races and performances by Blood, Sweat and Tears. The former was sold out at the first show Friday night, while the rock group had over 4,000 see their second show. Reportedly over 20,000 passed through the turnstiles for the last night of the fair.

Tax Rate Confirmed/School Lunches Up

Ag Department Gets County Council Funds

GEORGETOWN. In a letter to the Woodbridge School Board and its Superintendent William Griffin, Sussex County Administrator Joseph Conaway announced this week funds in the amount of $31,675 to be used to complete the new Agriculture Building on the high school grounds. The building which was started last year was never finished off inside nor was paving completed around the building. The drainage system also lacks completion. This will be done with the funds provided by the Sussex County Council.

Funds were originally to be provided by the federal government through the EPA program. The School District was turned down on two separate occasions. "Through (Robert) Sutton's efforts we were able to get this money to enable us to complete the program, and I think he should be recognized for this", said Board member William Tull. Board President William Vanderwende said "...the second go around we tried something different, and by going to the Council we were able to complete the program funding request". The next move is for the Board to consult with their engineers and begin taking steps to put the contract out on bids.

After meetings with the cafeteria managers, Superintendent Griffin said the results of those meetings were that lunches must be raised. The decision would mean an increase of 20c. This would mean that elementary students would pay 60c, high school students, 65c, and adults 90c.

The tax rate which has been the subject of much discussion of late was confirmed at Monday night's meeting. The amount of taxable assessed properties for the District is $28,990,233. The property rate was set at .678 per $100 and the capitation rate is to be $12.70.

In other matters before the Board, a dismissal plan was adopted to cope with inclement weather so that school can be delayed until weather clears or called off if the weather worsens. It was also announced teachers will no longer be permitted to ask off for "...across the board" reasons. The Board decided to require a 3 day advance notice in most cases.

The Board announced school will begin on September 8th and terminate on June 14th. Two positions were filled with the hiring of LeRoy Tingle who will begin work on Aug. 2nd and Frank Marabelle who will begin Aug. 8th. Both men will work in custodian capacities. It was also decided regular monthly school board meetings would be held on the second Monday of each month.

The athletic complex at Lake Forest High School is beginning to be more than an idea as 70 percent of the track [in foreground] is completed. A football stadium and pool are also to be part of the final complex. The track is expected to be in use by spring.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Mr. Horace "Pete" Hamilton who passed away last week.

Sympathy is also extended to the family of Mr. Frank Morton who passed away last Saturday.

Congratulations go out to Mr. and Mrs. Paul O'Day on the birth of a daughter in Milford Memorial Hospital. She has been named Paula Jean. Paul and Barbara have two other children Shelia and Mark.

An item I have to mention for several weeks is: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bradley, Mrs. "Jack" Bradley Jr., Mrs. Betty Yoder and Mrs. Lester Tucker went on a bus tour from Denton to Niagra Falls and points of interest in Canada. My apology.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Stayton and Dana have returned from a vacation in Williamsburg and Bush Gardens, Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. William Veal and daughter of Springfield, Virginia, spent the week at Lewes. On their way home they had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Cannon.

Mrs. Robin Breeding and Jason have returned home after spending two weeks at Fenwick Island with Mr. and Mrs. Jay Donato and family. On weekends Rob joined the vacationers.

Charles Jones, our route 2 mail carrier out of Greenwood is back to work. First of all he got an infected finger. Then he broke a toe. Well after a few months vacation, if you call it that, Jones is back on the job.

Visitors at the home of Mrs. Florence Walls and Mr. and Mrs. Alton Breeding have been Mr. and Mrs. Elver Ryan and Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Butler and Mrs. Lottie Tharp.

Welcome back to the USA, Delaware and Andrewville, Margaret Rippley. Margaret was a pen pal of Mrs. Steve Willey and visited last year with Annie and Steve. Margaret is from England. She and her nephew, Tony Rippley arrived at Dulles Airport on Saturday to spend a three week vacation - Margaret with Mr. and Mrs. Steve Willey and girls; Tony with Jimmy Gerardi.

Motorists, when passing or turning remember to communicate your intentions by signaling 300 feet in advance, advises the Delaware Safety Council.

Renee Hunter Bakes First Prize Pie

Renee Hunter, a Delaware native, won the first apple pie judging contest held at the Delaware State Fair. She is a home economist.

HARRINGTON. The Delaware State Fair had another first to add to its list Thursday, as the first apple pie judging contest took place. Elsie duPont, the state's First Lady, was among the three judges who declared Renee Hunter's Applescotch Pie the best of 68 entries.

The Dover home economics teacher walked off with the $50 first prize. Her apple pie recipe was taken from the Grange Dessert Cook book. Otto Deckom, critic with the Wilmington Morning News, termed the pie the best because the apple flavor held its own through the seasoning used. Here is Ms. Hunter's recipe:

5 cup sliced tart apples
1 cup packed brown sugar
1/4 cup water
1 tablespoon of lemon juice
1/4 cup flour
2 tablespoons sugar
3/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 tablespoons butter

1 recipe 2 crust pastry
Combine apples, brown sugar, water and lemon juice in sauce pan. Cook over medium heat for seven to eight minutes or until apples are just tender. Mix flour, sugar and salt together. Stir into apple mixture in sauce pan. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Boil one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir in vanilla and butter. Cool to room temperature.

Place bottom pastry crust in pan. Pour apple mixture into pastry. Place top crust over apples. Cut vents and seal edge.

Bake in preheated 425 oven for 40 to 45 minutes.

Delaware's own Apple Princess, Debbie Rider, just had to have a hand in the apple pie judging contest Thursday at the Delaware State Fair. She helped to distribute the pieces of 68 apple pies to the eager spectators who were on hand during the judging.

Report from Hickory Ridge Congregational Church: We wish to thank everyone who contributed in any way to make our Vacation Bible School a success. We averaged around 65.

Please mark your calendars now for Thursday, Aug. 18 at 6:00 when we will have our Sunday School-Church picnic at Martinak State Park, near Denton. The bus will leave the pastor's home about 5:15. A committee will prepare hamburgers, hot dogs, and soft drinks for everyone. Please accept this as your personal invitation and join us for a pleasant evening.

We'd also like to invite you to hear the Rev. Jerry Marando preach at both morning and evening services on August 7. Also, on August 14, we expect to have World Gospel Missionaries, the Don Griggers, as our special guests. The Griggers have served in the States, as well as the Philippines, and they expect to leave for Burundi, Africa in the near future. We plan to have a Covered Dish Dinner following the morning service, Aug. 14, and hope as many as

Ebert Joins Submarine Crew

Navy Radioman Third Class Richard M. Ebert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Ebert of Route 3, Box 820, Felton, is serving as a crewmember aboard the nuclear-powered attack submarine USS Philadelphia.

Ebert is one of 127 officers and enlisted men assigned to the Philadelphia. She is 360 feet long, displaces 6,900 tons and can travel in excess of 30 knots while submerged. The Philadelphia is designed primarily for antisubmarine operations and is capable of operating covertly in enemy held waters. She is armed with four 21-inch torpedo tubes and is outfitted with anti-submarine rocket launchers.

The Philadelphia is the third ship in her class and the sixth Naval ship to bear the name of the city of Philadelphia. She will be homeported in Groton. He joined the Navy in August 1975.

Scarborough Completes Training

Army Private Roger D. Scarborough, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Scarborough, 106 Hillside, Frederica, recently completed seven weeks of advanced individual training at Ft. Benning, Ga.

The training included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations. This qualified him as a light weapons infantryman and as an indirect fire crewman.

He was taught to perform any of the duties in a rifle or mortar squad. Pvt. Scarborough entered the Army in March of this year.

He is a 1974 graduate of Lake Forest High School, Felton.

Cheer Center News: Week July 25-29

The two most important events of the week were the picnic on July 26 at Redden Forest and attending the Delaware State Fair on July 28, the Senior Citizens day at the grounds. About 30 from our site were able to enjoy the events there and also to see the beautiful fireworks.

We are glad to report that Carrie Kleinhann is enjoying her vacation as her letter stated to the Cheer members of our site. We were very pleased to hear from her.

On August 2, Jennie Kennedy from the Georgetown Center was with us to demonstrate and teach us needle point.

Bingo and Poodle Craft are scheduled for us on August 3. August 4, a picnic lunch and shopping trip are planned for us.

Come out and join our Sing-A-Long directed by Beulah Watson on August 5. Our attendance has been very good this week due to the nice weather.

The Tull Family Reunion was held at the home of Betty Ann and George Hardesty, Jr. in Bridgeville on Sunday, July 24, in honor of the birthdays of Elmer Tull and Margaret Kratz who were 93 and 91 respectively. Forty-five people came to help them celebrate.

Those present in addition to Betty Ann and Sonny were their daughter, Laura Lee, Mr. Elmer Tull, Mr. and Mrs. Laird Kratz, Mrs. Hazel West, Howard and Kay Sue Hardesty, Lee and Margaret Carey, Lee's sister, Maggie Carey of Philadelphia, Pa., Virginia and Robert Graham, Robert Graham, Sr., Phyllis Shue, daughter, Marty and friends from Annapolis, Levin P. 'It's Worth The Money'

Two years ago, the local police department instituted a bicycle identification system that supposedly was to be of assistance in the event of a theft of one's bicycle.

The system involves stamping the bicycle and issuing a one-time registration fee of 50 cents for each bicycle in a household. The only time it is necessary to return to City Hall again is in the event the bike is sold. Then a 50 cent registration fee is required of the new owner.

Two Harrington residents are glad they went to the trouble of going through the procedure of registration as local police confiscated and held two bikes overnight this past weekend, when they discovered two persons operating the bikes in the dark with no lights. Investigation revealed the bicycles were registered, but not to the two riders, who were from Dover. Perhaps bicycles aren't as expensive as a car, but 50 cents seems to be well worth the money put out if it will bring to successful conclusion an otherwise unhappy ending.

So, although we do not always see eye to eye with the City, this is one time when it would behoove those of us who still do not have bikes registered to do so.

Weekly Report

by Senator Joe Biden

I have long been a strong advocate of the Public financing of Congressional elections and as such I have welcomed the two weeks of debate that we have had on the floor of the Senate.

The public financing of the Presidential campaign, I think, came through its first trial pretty well although not perfectly. Those of us who have long opposed the dominance of American politics by big money can feel gratified that for the first time since the earliest days of the Republic a President was able to assume office without the obligation of having to distribute ambassadorships, Cabinet posts, and other plums as the result of generous campaign contributions.

However, there was one major negative aspect that arose because of the public funding of the Presidential race. And that is that in last year's election much of the special interest money that would have gone to the Presidential candidates went into Congressional campaigns instead. Where special interest groups -- business professional, labor, agricultural and others -- invested $12.5 million in the Congressional races in 1974, as much as $25 million is believed to have been poured into them in 1976.

We've come a long way since pre-Watergate days when there were virtually no limitations upon contributions and expenditures. We have imposed across-the-board requirements for full disclosure of all facets of campaign financing and we have demonstrated that the public financing of the Presidential race works well.

Now I think that it is time to take the next step and provide a comprehensive system of public funding for Senate campaigns. Such a system would equalize the amount of money available to candidates in the individual races and it would do away with the corrupting influence of the special interest contribution -- from whatever source.

Thoughts

by Senator Bill Roth

Earlier this year when the Senate and House were revising their ethics codes, I proposed that a special, independent panel be established to conduct the investigating when there were serious and substantial charges of illegal or unethical behavior by Members of Congress. My proposal for strong and independent enforcement of the ethics codes was turned down in favor of continuing the present practice of having each House of Congress investigate itself.

I had argued that when a small group investigates itself, questions of fairness are inevitably raised. For example, is it fair to a person who has been found innocent to have to live with the implication that he was cleared solely because his or her friends did the investigating? I say it is not. But the fact is that the ethics committees have been very reluctant to investigate and have taken action only under considerable public pressure.

The Korean scandal is a good case in point. It has been 18 months since the first revelations about the activities of Tongsun Park, a Korean businessman and lobbyist who made illegal payments to several Members of Congress. Some Members have admitted accepting these payments, but none has been called upon to testify or give evidence. There has been no disciplinary action. In fact, the investigation is only just getting underway.

It was because of this that the House Ethics Committee's special counsel resigned, charging that the Chairman was impeding the investigation. An uproar followed, and finally, through the intervention of the Speaker a new counsel was hired -- Leon Jaworski. Mr. Jaworski was given assurance that he could make his investigation independently.

Under my proposal, the Korean scandals would have been immediately referred to a non-Congressional ethics panel, and there would have been no question about the independence of the investigation. By now, the panel would have finished and reported back to the House, who would be deciding what disciplinary action to take against those guilty of impropriety and what steps to adopt to prevent a recurrence.

In ethics, as in so many fields, the erosion of public confidence in government is directly related to over-promises and under-performance. It is time for some effective enforcement!

Scenes From Antique Farm Machinery Exhibit

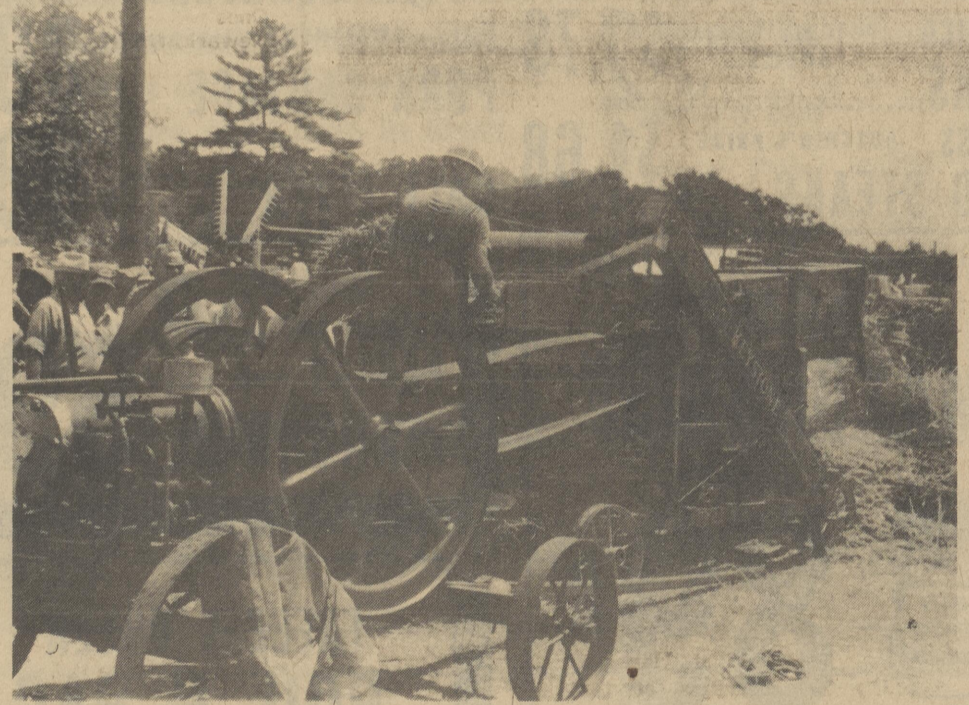

The way it used to be done.....this fellow applies a pitchfork and muscle to thresh the wheat in fashion reminiscent of days gone by during the wheat threshing at the Delaware State Fair Antique Farm Machinery Exhibit last Friday.

Cedar shakes, fragrant and sturdy are produced on this machine by Ed Evans [holding the shingle] and Gordon Adams [getting a whiff of cedar shavings]. The pulley shown at the right was connected to a fine Rumley fuel oil run tractor, owned by Mr. Adams, who is the president of the Agricultural Museum of Delaware.

These were among the machines being demonstrated at intervals all day at the state fair.

Local man Franklin Hendricks hand feeds this "ground hog thresher" during the Antique Farm Machinery exhibit Friday at the state fair. Announcer Wilmer Eshleman took exception to the model on display, saying it was not what was originally known as a ground hog thresher, which was in existence around 1820. The original items supposedly had feeder openings resembling the mouth of a ground hog, or woodchuck, which is how the machine acquired its name.

Eliot Richardson, the United States ambassador to the United Nations Law of the Sea Conference testified before the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee this week, and confirmed my observations:

We cannot expect the Conference to reach an agreement on ocean mining that is in the interests of the United States.

We made progress in some areas, but failed to reach an accord on the ocean mining of minerals -- manganese, cobalt, nickel and copper -- that are critically important to the United States.

We are presently forced to import most of them, and this gives us little assurance of adequate supply or reasonable prices.

However we have the technology to mine these minerals ourselves. They lie on the ocean floor in pockets, that, if you could pick them up and look at them, would resemble a burned baked potato.

It was our goal to wait until we reached an international agreement before we began mining operations. Although no developing nation has either the financial or technological assets to do the work, we were willing to share our resources with these less advanced countries.

After a long difficult session however, the delegates drew up proposals that would give too much power to this international body. They would enable it to control access to and profits from these minerals that are so crucial to our country.

In effect, the developing nations want to put the United States in the role of an international "patsy." We would share our resources and get nothing in return.

This is, of course, an unacceptable situation that we cannot permit.

After the Richardson testimony, my committee passed legislation that I supported to enable the United States to proceed with deep sea mining on our own. We would do this through the free enterprise system and existing treaty agreements.

I am hopeful that this action will spur the developing countries from their uncooperative positions.

BRIDGEVILLE. The Woodbridge School Board announced on Monday night the grant to Marie Shockley's reading program under the title of "Right to Read Program" sums of $41,700.00. Superintendent William Griffin said to the Board "...Miss Shockley deserves a lot of credit for getting this grant for Woodbridge." Griffin went on to point out that this grant was the only one of its kind in the State. The grant comes from the federal government.

Ophthalmic Laboratory Technicians

by Buck Thompson

The two types of ophthalmic laboratory technicians are surfacer (or lens grinder) and bench technician (or finisher). Starting with standard size lens blanks, which large optical firms mass-produce, surfacers lay out the work and grind and polish the lens surfaces. Surfacers use precision instruments to measure the lenses and assure that they fit the prescription. In small laboratories, one person may do these operations and benchwork, too. In large laboratories, work is divided into separate operations which are performed mainly by workers who operate power-grinding and polishing machines.

Bench technicians mark and cut lenses and smooth their edges to fit frames. They then assemble the lenses and frame parts into finished glasses. Bench technicians use special tools, such as lens cutters and glass drills, as well as small files, pliers, and other handtools. They also use automatic edging machines to shape lens edges and precision instruments to detect imperfections.

Most ophthalmic laboratory technicians learn their skill on the job. At first, technician trainees do simple jobs such as processing lenses through a grinding machine. As they gain experience, they progress to other operations such as lens cutting and eyeglass assembly. When the trainees have acquired experience in all types of work, which usually takes about 3 years, they are considered all-round optical mechanics.

High school graduates also can prepare to become technicians through 3-and 4-year formal apprenticeship programs. Apprentices with exceptional ability may complete their training in a shorter time period.

Employers prefer applicants for entry jobs as ophthalmic laboratory technicians to be high school graduates who have had courses in the basic sciences. For these graduates, a knowledge of physics, algebra, geometry, and mechanical drawing is particularly valuable. The interest and ability to do precision work is essential for satisfaction in the work.

About 22,000 persons worked as ophthalmic laboratory technicians in 1975. Most of these technicians work in ophthalmic laboratories. Some work for retail optical dispensaries or other stores that sell prescription lenses. A few work for eye physicians or optometrists who dispense glasses directly to patients.

Employment of ophthalmic laboratory technicians is expected to increase faster than the average for all occupations through the mid 1980's. More technicians will be needed due to the rising demand for eyeglasses. Growth in the population, rising literacy and educational levels, and an increase in the proportion of older persons will add to demand. State programs to provide eye care for low-income families, union health insurance plans, and Medicare also will stimulate demand. Moreover, the growing variety of frame styles and colors may encourage individuals to buy more than one pair of glasses.

Hourly wage rates for ophthalmic technicians ranged from $3.61 to $6.14 in 1975, according to information from a small number of union contracts. Apprentices start at about 60 percent of the skilled worker's rate; their wages are increased periodically so that upon completion of the apprenticeship program they receive the beginning rate for experienced workers. Most ophthalmic laboratory technicians work a 5-day, 40 hours week.

Work surroundings of the ophthalmic technician are pleasant, well-lighted and well-ventilated but noisy because of the power-grinding and polishing machines.

Some ophthalmic laboratory technicians are members of unions. The principal union in this field is the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (AFL-CIO).

Sunny Side Up

You Too Can Keep Sane In The Summer

By Lynn Hershey

"What's that funny smell in the house?" our teenager demanded suspiciously. Since he rarely talks to us these days, I welcome any communication, however surly.

"Don't panic," I assured him in my friendliest, most non-motherly voice. "It's just fresh air. I opened the windows for a change."

"Something wrong with the air conditioning?" he grumped, shutting the door to his pad.

Air conditioning has certainly changed our life-style. Isn't it great to wake up in the morning feeling fresh instead of moldy? Or to shower and change without needing to do it all over again in an hour? What bliss to enter a cool house from the scorching heat outside.

Yes, and how gratifying to receive our electric bills and realize that we are paying enough each month to keep us in T-bones for a year.

To prevent the electric meter from whirling around non-stop, I am setting the air conditioner several degrees higher this summer. Although the temperature of the house isn't quite as comfortable as in previous summers, I have rediscovered an old-fashioned remedy to beat the heat. It's called a fan.

As newlyweds my husband and I bought a big, enthusiastic floor fan called a Vornado (rhymes with, and is almost as powerful as a tornado). It was the only thing that kept us from stewing in our own juice in the tiny third floor walk-up we occupied.

Years later we acquired an air-conditioned house, and the fan was put away. But this summer it has come into its own again, and I am rediscovering the delights of having a breeze blowing in the kitchen, always the warmest room in the house.

The fan has three speeds, all of wind-tunnel velocity. On HIGH it can, and has, blown the cat clear across the room, I usually keep it on LOW, while anchoring everything down with cans of soup, large rocks, bunches of bananas, and other makeshift paperweights.

Floor or table fans are useful because you can easily carry them from room to room and put them just where you want them. Placed in a doorway, they can blow air from a cooler room into a warmer one, or bring cool air in from outside, if the temperature drops suddenly.

Aimed high, they will circulate air without blowing directly on you. And if you're about to expire from the heat, you can crouch six inches from the grille and enjoy the full blast.

Besides cooling our clammy bodies in the daytime, fans promote slumber at night by dulling street noises, cat fights, and other irritating sounds. The soft whir of the blades is as soothing as the whisper of surf on the beach.

When I bragged to Coral Morris, Delaware extension home management specialist, about using the fan to cut down on air-conditioning costs, she asked if I'd cleaned it after all those years in the closet?

Well, no, Coral. Sorry. "You'd better," she said. Yes Ma'am!

Herewith are Coral's instructions. Be sure to unplug the fan first, then take off the protective grille. A thorough wiping with rags or paper towels will remove much of the grime. However, for a heavy coating or oily dirt, use Coral's favorite cleaning compound, trisodium phosphate (TSP). It's available in paint and hardware stores, and is cheap.

Use a solution of one or two tablespoons in two quarts of water and, wearing rubber gloves, carefully wipe the fan blades and the grille. Avoid bending the blades. The cloth should be damp, not wet. Then be sure to wipe off all the TSP with a clean, damp cloth.

Using your vacuum cleaner hose or a dusting attachment, remove the lint and dust from the cooling vents on the motor.

Lubricate the fan, following manufacturer's instructions. Replace the grille. Finally, check to see that the cord and plug are in good condition.

That's all there is to it. I've a feeling our Vornado will never spend another summer in the closet. Besides being comforting, it's also fashionable because of the current nostalgia kick. Haven't you seen the advertisements for big ceiling fans reminiscent of 1940 soda fountains? Crazy!

The only drawback is that a fan tends to reveal what kind of housekeeper you are. At the most awkward moments dust balls are apt to drift across the floor like tumbleweed.

But who cares? My fan uses only about as much electricity as the average light bulb, and you certainly can't beat that for a barban!

Where else but at a state fair could one see a tractor parade? This event culminated the antique farm machinery display Friday.

Richie Evans Joins Atlantic Coast Field

DOVER-Richie Evans (Rome, N.Y.), the only modified driver to interrupt Jerry Cook's string of National Modified Championships, has entered the August 21st Atlantic Coast "300" at Dover Downs International Speedway.

"I'm really glad to have the opportunity to race there (at Dover) again," said Evans, "and I can tell you one thing; it won't be a three or four car run-away; the competition's going to be tough with Troyer, Bodine and the rest of those guys in there."

Evans won the 1973 NASCAR National Modified Championship to break the seeming monopoly held by Jerry Cook, also of Rome, NY.

Evans competed in the 1970 modified race at Dover Downs and remembers his earlier experience there. "I liked the track," he said. "It was very fast, but I remember that the sun would get into your eyes going down the backstretch and this gave us some trouble. The only thing I can say to those drivers making their first run at Dover in this race coming up, is that they take it easy until they get the feel of their car on the speedway. Three hundred miles will make for a grueling race and the more practice everyone can get, the better off we'll be."

Commenting on the fact that the Atlantic Coast race will see both super-speedway modifieds and short track modifieds competing against each other, Evans said, "I don't think these superspeedway cars will blow us away. The short track cars that will be in the race are good ones and I'm sure we can run with the superspeedway cars. On the safety side of it," Evans continued, "we're all experienced drivers and we know where the wheels are. It should be a safe, competitive race."

The Atlantic Coast "300" will start at 1:30 p.m. on August 21st. Tickets are available through Ticketron or by contacting the Dover Downs ticket office c/o P.O. Box 843, Dover, Del.

"We'll Be There This Year"

Spartan Coach Fleming Looks Toward '77 Football Season

FELTON. Football season is over a month away, but one person has been thinking about it all year. Jim Fleming, head coach at Lake Forest High School, told the Journal Monday this week, "We'll be there this year." His quiet confident remark was in response to a question about how he feels the team will fare against competition in the tough Northern Division of the Henlopen Conference this fall. Fleming came to Lake Forest in 1975 from being an assistant football coach under Marty Apostolico at Dickinson High where he was in charge of the defensive backs. The team had one of the most successful high school teams in the state.

In two years at Lake Forest, the young team is showing signs of marked 10th graders were to attend camp at Salisbury State Teachers College. The camps range from $100 to $150 and a total of ten players will have attended this summer by the time the practice sessions begin August 19.

"I think our weakness has been offense", remarked Fleming, but the whole offensive line with the exception of the center and one guard will be Justice, Eugene McBride, Louis Hendricks, Jeff Kashner and Darrell Voshell.

Does the coach have any surprises for the conference? Three players who come to mind who may give the opposition a run for their money and who were not part of the team at all times last year are Dennis Childress, Larry McCombs and Marty Voshell.

Successful teams have been using a body building program for the past 15 to 20 years and the idea has gradually moved into the high schools. Now at Lake Forest "You have boys taking pride in their bodies after they develop" Fleming said. Some have increased their weight lifting potential as much as 20 pounds. The weight lifting program also cuts down on injuries, according to Fleming. Shown here are two of the Lake Forest prospective football team, putting themselves through the paces on the Universal Gym. To the left is Larry McCombs while to the right is Louis Hendricks.

maturity, as it has gone from a 1-9 season in the first year to a 3-7 season last year, which saw several heartbreakers for the Spartans. But the improvement is there and the physical fitness program, emphasizing body building through weight lifting, as well as an understanding of the favored Delaware wing T system, is beginning to fall into place, as Fleming can see.

Around a quarter of the team has been working out all summer, says Fleming. Several are taking advantage of the Universal Gym, located in the high school, which has been open to interested youths this summer.

Although training for the fall season doesn't officially begin until August 19, Coach Fleming said several of his prospective team have been away to camps, or are at camps now. Billy Moore spent a week at the University of Maryland's football camp. "It's a real good camp", said Fleming.

Three team members are at quarterback receivers' camp this week: Greg Shortell, and Mark Smith, both quarterbacks and Russell Knab, an offensive end. The camp is at Glassboro State College in New Jersey, under the direction of Dr. William Hayes, the director of athletics of California State College in Santa Barbara. It is held in conjunction with help from Bob Casciola, head coach of Princeton.

Fleming also confided several of his 9th and back this year, which should help to make a difference.

Of the 45 to 50 team members, twelve are seniors, and eight of these have been playing since their sophomore year.

For the first time, too, Fleming sees depth to rely on. "Last year we had the first junior varsity program ever at Lake Forest." Prior to that Fleming said he had varsity members playing who lacked the junior varsity experience. Billy Moore, Doug Warrington, John O'Toole, Greg Shortell and Michael Quail are all team players who have started over the past two years without the junior varsity experience.

That should be amended this year as Fleming sees it.

Some of the names he intends to rely on for depth from the JV team are: Timmy Kemp, Milton

"Childress didn't play at all last year" said Fleming, but "I expect him to be an outstanding player this year." He plays offensive tackle.

"Larry McCombs has the potential of becoming a really good football player" stated Fleming of the junior. Fleming anticipates seeing McCombs play as offensive quarterback and fullback.

Fleming is also looking forward to welcoming back Marty Voshell, who moved to California last year, but is now back. "He was probably one of the most improved players from last year" Fleming told the Journal.

So, Lake Forest fans, be prepared, because if the team and coach have anything to do with it this year, "We'll be there."

Opening game is with Smyrna at home on September 9.

Camp Long Oar Highlights Final Recreation Week

The six week summer program conducted here by Kent County Parks and Recreation winds up Friday of this week. The program's climax for 25 of the youngsters participating locally came as they traveled to Killens Pond yesterday for an overnight campout at Camp Long Oar.

The Camp, now in its third year of operation, derives its name from the two Capital School District teachers who direct it - Jim Long and Chuck Oar. The former is a science teacher at Dover Central Middle School; the latter teaches math at William Henry. This is the second year Camp Long Oar has been located at Killens Pond.

In its initial year it was set up at Council's Lodge near Smyrna. The one-night campout highlights each of several recreation programs located throughout the county.

On the local scene, those assisting with the camp were Director Bill Falasco and Counselors Mary Jo Harris, Craig Boehmer, Zena Graham and Scott Chambers.

Those attending get a chance to help setting up tents, building campfires, cooking and cleaning up. Other camp activities include swimming, tracking, trailing, a nature trail, an obstacle course and skits around the campfire. Each camper who brings a suitable T-shirt gets a silk screen print with the Camp Long Oar logo. And all campers are suitably warned to be on the lookout for the Camp Long Oar monster - the fabled Taguar.

Setting Up - Campers at Camp Long Oar work at setting up tents as a part of the overnight campout at Killens Pond yesterday. The Camp is sponsored by Kent County Parks and Recreation as a part of its program here. Chuck Oar, one of the camp's two directors, [center, back] oversees the operation.

4-H'ers Win Judging Contests At State Fair

Aug. 10 - Farm and Home Field Day
Aug. 14-19 - Michigan Exchange Trip
Aug. 27 - State Fun Day, Petersburg, 3 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The Sussex County 4-H'ers would like to thank all those who helped and participated in the 4-H Lewes Horse Show. The show was a huge success and returns will provide the means for many activities in the county in the coming year, such as our Jr. Leader Weekend, Exchange trips, Younger Member Weekend, and our many educational activities.

We would like to express a very special thanks to the merchants of the area as well as those individuals who gave support to our venture. Without their help the year-round, our 4-H program in this county would never be the success that it is.

If you have some free time and would like to help a youngster reach his or her potential, look into our program. You can contact us by phoning 856-5250 or writing the county 4-H office at R.D. 2, Box 48, Georgetown, De. 19947.

Congratulations are in order this week for the Sussex County winners in the State Judging Contest that took place at the State Fair in Harrington. Winners in Poultry: Michelle Lasher, Eric Conley; Foods: Kim Wagner, Faith McIlvain, Donna Ward, Janet Cannon, Vicki Morrone, Tawn Crosby; Horticulture: Cynthia Coyle, Darree Palmer; Dairy: Monty Bryan, Sam Hopkins, Charlie Chaffinch; Food Preservation: Carla Vanderwende, Nora Cannon, Karen Taylor, Susan Justice; Field Crops: Heather Abbott, Landy Correll, Earl Looekerman, Karen Messick, Eddie Justice, Mark Calvanesa; Livestock: Mike Pavlik, Jim Hukill, and Sharon Elliott.

The Visual Presentation Contest was held during the week at the Delaware State Fair. The contest was held on July 25th and the competition was really rough. The following 4-H'ers won first place in the division: Janet Cannon - Baking; Karen Taylor and Sue Cooper - Food Preservation team; Rhonda Radish; Home Improvement; Brenda Hudson; Clothing Construction; Landy Correll, Woodworking; James Williamson, Safety; Mike Pavlik, Electric; Jim and Sarah Hukill Livestock; and Steve Majchrzak, Vet. Science.

New 4-H Club for Georgetown being formed on August 4th - meeting will be held at Midland Grange Hall, in Georgetown beginning at 7:30 p.m. Any interested young people between the ages of 8 to 19 can attend. Slides of various activities and projects will be shown at this time. 4-H members are expected to take at least one project during the years. There are a total of 85 projects that can be taken, and some projects include-dog care, sheep, veterinary science, clothing, electric, international foods, home management, woodworking, safety, bicycle, photography and plant science. Activities include camping weekends, contests in the various projects and exchange trips.

Another essential part of a 4-H club is its leaders. Anyone interested in sharing talents in the various projects listed above should also plan to attend the meeting on August 4th. Remember, without interested parents and leaders, there can be no 4-H club.

For more information call the 4-H office at 856-5250 or write the 4-H office, R.D. 2, Box 48, Georgetown, Del. 19947.

Gab Fest

by Pat Hatfield

My dear friend Tess had a most interesting and puzzling bird story for me this past week. She has a pair of tiny goldfinches visiting her back yard. And you'd never guess what they are eating! They are sitting on the big zinnias and pulling off the petals one by one just as if they were playing "He loves me, he loves me not." But they do not eat the flower petals. They seem to bite on the base of each petal and then discard it and go to the next petal. And they can strip a flower in nothing flat. Probably that is what is the matter with my zinnias. I thought they were malformed when I saw so many with half the petals off. Now, what do you suppose the dear little birds are getting at the base of the petals?

It is an absorbing hobby with him. If we can't find him, we look in the garden and there he can be found gathering the beans and tomatoes or pulling a stray weed. Each night he works until he can no longer see for the darkness. And before we eat the food we can feast our eyes on the riot of color. Tender yellow sweet corn, luscious red tomatoes, tiny purplish red baby beets and the green of the limas. We are never too successful with carrots, but my friend Elaine gave me some and so we enjoyed their bright orange color and good taste. Gary takes charge of the broccoli, brussels sprouts, and cauliflower and we have these also.

home from the Fair. It tasted good with hot coffee after that cool breeze on the Fairground. I did not think my pie crust was up to my usual standard, but since I haven't made pies all summer I may have lost the touch. When my little grandmother had not made anything for a spell and she thought the results were not good, she would sigh and remark, "Well, I've just got my hand out."

I got him a bowl of cool water and he lapped gratefully. Then he sank down on the cool concrete for a rest. He allowed small Garith to pat him and hug him around the neck. She said, "Grammudda, I think this is a very friendly dog." And so he is. Now, whenever he is thirsty he comes to the door, knowing that his friend, the House Mama, will give him the refreshing drink.

I've just come in from "talking" with one of my yard visitors. He is a big, black dog and I think he may belong to our neighbors because he seems to follow the tractors when they are working the fields. On one of those intensely hot days he showed up at our back door, panting at one end and wagging his tail at

She said, "Grammudda, I think this is a very friendly dog." And so he is. Now, whenever he is thirsty he comes to the door, knowing that his friend, the House Mama, will give him the refreshing drink. Today, I'm doing corn for the freezer. This is a tiresome job, but Dad helps by pulling the corn and husking it. Then I have to clean the silks off, wash it, blanch it, cut it off and package. I do not do too many packages of ears because it takes so much room in the freezer, but it does seem special to serve a steaming platter of the golden ears on a cold winter's day.

Dad is -supplying our table with the most choice vegetables we have ever had. Truly they look like the pictures in the Burpee

We are feasting on peaches now that the season is here, and I have already made two Peach Pie Supremes. I gave one to Ellen and her family and the other we shared with friends when we got
