

Mispillion Kennel Club and All Arabian Horse Shows Share Fairgrounds Here

The Mispillion Kennel Club's 13th annual dog show and the Delaware All Arabian Horse Show share the billing this weekend at the Delaware State Fairgrounds.

The dog show is a one day, all day show, with 1010 pure bred dogs in competition, representing more than 100 breeds.

During the one day dog show Friday, Obedience Trials will be included, a very popular part of a dog show, and one that the club has not had in recent years. Thirty-seven dogs are entered in the obedience competition. Judging in these classes will be Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Knott of Ellicott City, Maryland and Mr. Kenneth Nagler of Hyattsville, Maryland.

An additional portion of the show will be the Junior Showmanship classes. Junior handlers, ages 10 to 17, will compete with their dogs for the awards. The Dr. William E. Spence Veterinary Scholarship, Kent County S.P.C.A. and the Sussex County S.P.C.A. will benefit from the show.

Admission to the dog show will be $1 for adults and $.50 for children. Parking will be free. Food will be sold by the W.S.C.S. of the Houston Methodist Church.

According to Bob Massey, the All Arabian Horse Show will be the biggest the Milford Jaycees have sponsored. The horse show will go on for three days, beginning at 3 p.m. Friday afternoon, and running the range in classes until its conclusion Sunday.

Arabian Horse Show is the presentation of the Legion of Merit Award, this year to be presented to Hi-Fashion Imperial, a nine year old stallion owned by Sam Groome and Marathon Farms, Seaford.

These are a few of his wins, and in 1976 he was named Region Sixteen Reserve Champion Park Horse and Reserve Champion Park Horse and Reserve Champion Pleasure Driving Stallion. I This year he won the title of the 1977 Region Sixteen Reserve Champion Halter Stallion and Champion Pleasure Driving Stallion.

Admission to the Horse Show is one dollar that is good for all three days.

Harrington Youth Is CF Poster Boy

Freddie Murray will serve a second term as Kent County Poster Child for the 1977 Cystic Fibrosis Campaign.

The announcement was made by Jim Lonborg, Phillies pitcher, who is general chairman of the drive which will be held during September throughout Delaware.

The seven-year-old boy with the flashing smile won the hearts of Kent Countians last year, that it was decided that he again be the symbol of the '77 campaign.

Fred is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Douglas Murray, Sr., of Harrington. The father works for the Pinkett Shore Lines Bus Company in Denton, Md. His mother is employed as a food inspector for the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Hyattsville, Maryland.

When young Freddie was two years old, his parents became alarmed that he kept developing colds which often turned to pneumonia, which necessitated that he would be hospitalized.

The doctors were puzzled that the boy failed to gain weight, despite a hearty appetite. Finally, they had him examined by Dr. Zosimo Buendia of Harrington, who diagnosed the condition as cystic fibrosis.

He suggested that he be taken to the CF clinic at the Wilmington Medical Center, where Dr. Herman Rosenblum, director of the clinic confirmed the condition and put Freddie under a strict regimen of therapy and medication.

Thanks to the care he receives, Freddie lives the life of any seven-year-old. He attends the second grade at the Lake Forest Elementary School at Harrington; rides Cloud, his very own horse; and looks after his two pet dogs - Scrubb, a husky, and Princess, a Sheperd.

He roots for the Baltimore Orioles, which he watches on television, and his baseball idol is Brooks Robinson. His favorite TV shows are Superman, the Six Million Dollar Man, and Space Ghosts.

Volunteers are urgently needed to march in the door-to-door canvass throughout the State of Delaware which gets underway "Cystic Fibrosis Sunday," September 11th. To enroll call the Delaware CF recruitment office (302) 762-2266.

Fluffy Comes Home

The Return Of The Raptor

by Margo Farrow

HARRINGTON. If residents of the Hanley, Milby and Commerce Streets area thought they spotted an owl last week or, if they heard the "Skree-e-e" call of the barn owl in the night, rest easily and put away the binoculars, because Fluffy is home.

On August 7, Fred Fritz of 100 Hanley Street let his fully mature year-old barn owl out of its cage for an afternoon frolic in its back yard. What started out as routine could have had an unpleasant ending perhaps, but this is a happy conclusion.

The Fritzes have owned Fluffy since February this year, when Fritz had told someone he knew about having owned a screech owl once that he nursed to maturity and released to the wild. The person who originally had found Fluffy in the woods no longer wanted the young owl and Fritz was interested.

He applied for and received a federal permit to keep the raptor, an otherwise punishable offense, since several of these birds of prey are on the extinction list. His permit came through the United States Department of Interior, the Fish and Wildlife Service. A federal game warden came to the Fritz home to grant the special permit, which is one of rehabilitation with a subsequent release to the wild as a conclusion.

Fritz thought Fluffy had taken matters into his (or her) own talons Sunday, as the owl tried out its wings and soared onto the rooftop of a shed across the street, owned by the Harry Farrowes. From the shed, rooftop to the walnut tree went Fluffy, all attempts at recapture in vain. There Fluffy spent the night, sending out several calls that could have sent some shivers down spines, if the hear-

Local Girl Places In State Finals

HARRINGTON. This community had its own representative at the Miss United Teenager Contest for the state of Delaware this past weekend.

From among the field of 35 contestants, the only child of Norris and Reba Jarrell of Harrington held her own placing second runner up in the essay portion of the contest, for which she received a plaque and placing in the top ten of the final contestants, from which five

Boards View Situation

Boundary Dispute Continues

FELTON. Members of the Woodbridge School Board came to Lake Forest High School Monday night to arbitrate the boundary dispute which has become a hotly debated issue between the two school districts. The dispute which centers around detailed boundary lines and confusion brought about by various discrepancies in the boundary lines has caused many discussions.

The area of dispute is that portion between 4/10 of a mile south of the Farmington Fire Hall and 8/10 of a mile north of the Fire Hall.

The issue of the boundary lines was debated back and forth between the two school boards with Woodbridge asking Lake Forest to accept the boundary line established in 1953 and reaffirmed in 1963. Lake Forest, however, asked to have the agreement signed by the two school boards and affirmed by the State Board of Education in 1974 be upheld.

When the matter was argued before the State Board on April 21, a May 17 decision affirmed the 1953 and 1963 boundary line agreement.

The big discrepancy is still with the 4/10 and 8/10 mile north of Farmington. '53 and '63 boundary called for the line to be 8/10 mile north of Farmington.

In 1974 when the State Board ordered Woodbridge and Lake Forest to formally adopt the boundary and accept a line mutually agreeable to both sides, the error committed according to the Woodbridge spokesman William Vanderwende, President of Woodbridge School Board, "...was that there was a typo-graphical error in that instead of the marking reading 8/10 mile it was stated as being 4/10 of a mile, and this was the error". According to another Woodbridge Board member, the boundary is Dewey Taylor farm which is located on both sides of U.S. #13 and the Professor Tharp farm located on the east side of U.S. #13, now lands of Clarence Collins heirs north of Walls Package Store. The line would follow Rd. #434 around to Rd. 117.

The result of the meeting was that Woodbridge wanted to hold to the State Board's ruling and go with the '63 boundary where Lake Forest seeks to have the '74 agreement between the two schools and affirmed by the State Board upheld.

Lake Forest Board member E. B. Warrington, Jr., amid the confusion of many people, board members and guests talking back and forth had his request practically unnoticed. Warrington rose holding the map of the two districts and went through the boundary lines as he interpreted them. He then asked the Woodbridge group, "You have come to settle out of court. Is that right? What do you have to offer?" Warrington was seeking a way to negotiate the matter to a final settlement equitable to all concerned.

Deputy Superintendent Melvin Luff discussed the matter after the meeting in that the important aspect to both schools is the fear of possible loss of units by loss of students by each school district which would mean the loss of money in the budget to support a teacher's salary or the like. This is one reason why the issue is so important to each school.

The two boards will continue to attempt to settle their differences in a meeting between superintendents this week.

Scene of burned out house

Three Burned In Explosion

HARRINGTON. Firemen here are being credited with reacting quickly to conditions that involved a double house early last Friday morning.

Robert H. (Henry) Wooters, and wife, Eliza beth M. (Myrtle) and Earl, the former's brother, were at the couple's residence at 105 West Milby Street when Henry Wooters lighted the kitchen stove. The result was the 4:40 a.m. explosion and fire that ripped out the windows of their side of the double house and sent flames across the roof to involve the other side of the house, occupied by the Robert Tyler family.

The three Wooters, who had fled from the house, sustained varying degrees of burns. Mr. and Mrs. Wooters were admitted to Milford Memorial Hospital and were listed in fair condition Tuesday morning, although Mrs. Wooters had been in intensive care.

Earl Wooters was treated for burns of the hands and arms but was not admitted to the hospital.

Preliminary fire investigation indicates a gas leak in the line leading to the stove caused the explosive conditions and reportedly Earl Wooters said he smelled gas before his brother struck the match to light the stove.

Firemen were kept busy as soon as they arrived on the scene, being met with a downed power line that had melted because of the heat.

The Wooters suffered a total loss on their side of the house, but firemen were able to salvage much of the Tyler belongings. The house, however, which is owned by Marvel Flamer, suffered extensive damage.

Redden Manages

Jack Redden Sr.

HARRINGTON. The Harrington Food Rite will be managed by Jack Redden Sr., it was announced this week by Donald Dadds, the store's owner.

In making the announcement, Dadds said Redden will be in charge of the entire store management, while Dadds will "keep the books and pay the bills".

A Harrington resident, Redden has served as manager in the same store site before, but when it was occupied by Acme Markets.

He has in recent years, been employed by Scott Furniture of Bridgeville.

Donald Dadds and Sterling Mock purchased the Food Rite locally and opened up the business October 17, 1973. Dadds had been in the grocery business for over 20 years, while his partner, Mock, had taught in the Maryland school system. Mock plans to return to teaching this fall in Queen Anne County, Maryland.

Redden will begin as manager of the Harrington Food Rite, Monday, August 22.

The Carl Hills Visit England

Ed. note: Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hill, Harrington residents, consented to share the highlights of their three weeks' trip to England last month with our readers. It will be presented in two parts, as Mr. Hill recalls the trip.

furnished as they would have been at the time and one would not wish to live in them, as by our standards they were very uncomfortable.

From the Shakespeare Country one travels through the Cotswolds, a name given to an area with all the houses made of a yellow sandstone called Cotswold. Here are Broadway, Stow on the Wold (the name of the local river), and Bourton on the Water (again the Wold stream).

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hill returned recently from a three week trip to England. The Hills visited Mr. and Mrs. Fred Markwell, Birmingham, England. The visit was a culmination of visits by the Markwell's son and friend in 1970 and a visit of Markwell's daughter in 1971, and the parents visit to the Hills in 1976.

Also here is the location of the famous model village of Bourton on the Water. The village is built on a man sized scale and is an exact duplicate of the town of Bourton. After seeing the model village the real village attests to the accuracy of the model. Then going out of the Bourton area one finds the Rollright Stones put in a circle similar to those of the prehistoric Stonehenge Circle. These date about 1600 B.C.

The Hills' plane left Philadelphia at 7:45 p.m. and arrived in London, Heathrow Airport at 6:00 London Time. The Markwells were on hand to meet them and drive to Birmingham. There was a stop at the grave of Winston Churchill at Blaydon, and a tour of the magnificent Blenheim Palace, the home of the Dukes of Marlborough.

Perhaps one of the most magnificent Castles in all England is Warwick castle. This is one of the fortifications built by the Beauchamps in the early 1300's. The armory, dungeons, torture chambers, magnificent state rooms, dining halls and living rooms furnished as they would have been in those days. In the Crypt of St. Mary's Church is the Beauchamp Chapel where the Earls of Warwick are buried.

The first day was taken with a trip to the Edward VI Girls School in Birmingham. Here we met the headmistress, Miss Miller. She explained the 13th Century origin of the school and the ups and downs during the Cromwell rule and then the improvements during the Restoration period and finally the present very modern and very selective school for boys and girls. The boys are in one building and the girls in another and meet only for dances twice a year.

Further along we came to the Lor of Leycester Hospice or home for retired soldiers started in 1516. This ancient building serves teas to visitors and can be toured with guides.

A tour of Birmingham showed us the Registry Building and marriages being performed in six chambers at the same time on a clockwork basis. Then the couple, in fine wedding clothes strolled across the street to a beautifully landscaped park for pictures. In the same area is the Chamberlain Memorial, the City Hall and the Birmingham Cathedral.

The following day found us on the way to Chester and Wales. Our stop was the city of Chester an ancient city with Roman foundations. Here we saw the magnificent Cathedral of Chester and walked the Roman Wall, the only complete city wall left.

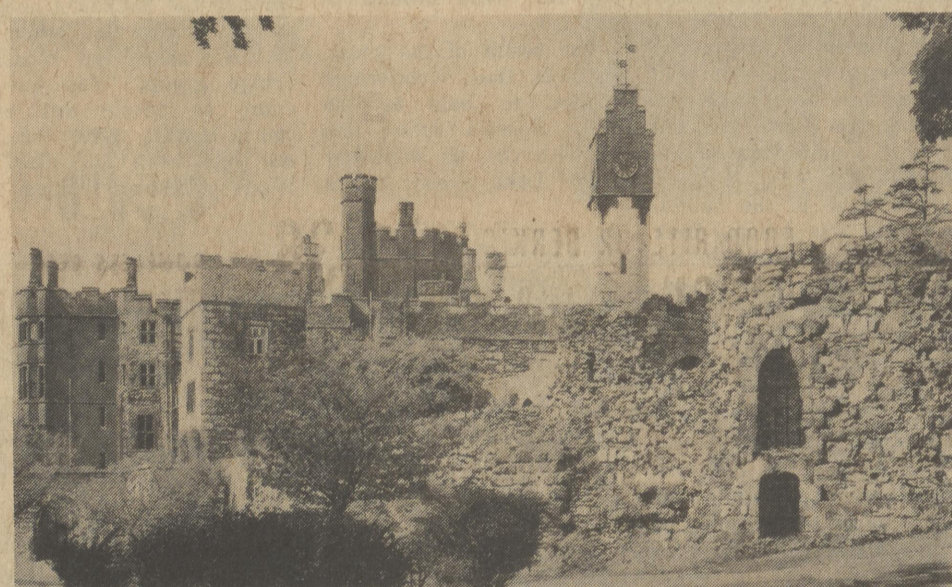

No trip to England would be complete if one missed the 14th century house of Mary Arden at Henley, the Shakespeare House at Wilmcote and the Ann Hathaway House at Showtrey, Stratford on Avon. The houses are

The path then went up into Wales and to Ruthin Castle. Our stay here was the gift of our host and hostess. We checked into a beautiful room and walked over the ruins of the 13th century

Sam Captured -- Who Should Be Rehabilitated?

By Harry G. Farrow, Jr.

With this past week, the capture of "Son of Sam" marked the end of one nightmare. Whether it was the right "Son of Sam" or not... the difference for the moment seemed unimportant.

After the capture, it seemed to the casual observer that the suspect was enjoying every bit of it. No sooner than he was arrested, he had an attorney. It was as though this was all pre-arranged. Soon thereafter, the attorney allegedly announced that the first so many minutes after the capture was to be put on tape and offered for sale at $250,000. The attorney now denies this.

We seem in this country to double what other countries are doing under the same circumstances. Through the years this type of tactic has made celebrities out of accused criminals. Gary Gilmore was the latest of such cases. To the very end, he basked in the glory and publicity of the circumstances.

Who is to blame for this? It would seem to me that both the news media and the courts are at fault. Our desire to see justice done over nine years has developed a system whereby sympathy and amnesia has entered into the verdict and administering the sentence. Although it is not supposed to do so, a great deal of compassion has been permitted to enter into our verdicts. It is contagious, for the same thing carries over into the business world where contracts are broken without much done about it. This is particularly noteworthy in the sports world where athletes continue to take the owners to task.

In the case of David Berkowitz, the alleged Son of Sam, the publicity already surrounding the case would lead one to believe that it would be impossible to try the man. Under New York law, this same person can get back onto the streets of New York again...and thereby commit the same type of crimes again.

It is high time our courts, the guardians of our society, took a long hard look at what is happening. The punishment following the conviction should fit the crime. Berkowitz should never be permitted to return to society again. Yet he faces the very good possibility. They immediately talked of rehabilitation of Berkowitz but is this necessary? Shouldn't the rehabilitation be for the relatives of the slain victims of the .44 cal. pistol? Shouldn't any money derived from the sale of tapes of conversations of the accused be put in a trust for the benefit of the victim's relatives or those who were wounded or maimed? A slayer such as this should not be permitted to reap any of the benefits of this publicity. To allow it is ludicrous to say the least. Who are we trying to protect...society...or the accused? In this case the accused should not have any rights...except as it pertains to a fair trial.

Perhaps as pre-trial training, judges and lawyers alike (who are preliminary judges) should ride with the state police in any state and see how things develop leading up to a capture and arrest. Witness a law enforcement officer get spit on, kicked in the groin, or put up with a drunk who has lost control of all systems, or see the accused actually punch the officer in the mouth in the court room or outside. It makes very little difference because the punishment never fits the crime. Maybe if this were the case we would have better judges and courts, for they would actually see how little respect the criminal has for the law or the law enforcement body.

Does the capture of Berkowitz, the accused Son of Sam, mean the end of such crimes? There are others and there will be others so long as the system as we have it today goes on.

How often have I studied about the fact that my sons will never have the benefit of the type of TV shows or the movies of the 40's and 50's that I knew. What happened to the likes of Laurel and Hardy, Gene Autry, Roy Rogers, Red Skelton, the Jack Benneys, the musicals with Esther Williams or Donald O'Connor and Gene Kelly. To me this was far greater to witness and have a greater impression on young minds than what we have today. The three networks are saturated with crimes and crimes on people. The young minds come to expect it and are "captured" by it. And...yet although these shows take up prime time on all networks to the point where it is either that or a quiz show the old movies come on late at night after the children are in bed. I note that this fall during prime time there will also be more sex shown on the shows.

We should ask ourselves if we are doing the right thing by not policing our media more...or entertainment more or are we creating what we have been witness to... "You get what you see."

There are some who cannot be rehabilitated if for no other reason than the fact that their crime does not warrant it. We need to have our courts deal fast and swiftly with crimes...convictions...and sentencing. Our society deserves a better means of justice than what it has been getting. The big cities are not safe, and under the present form of governing, they never will be. The result is that no one will be safe. Under the present system in dealing with the accused Son of Sam if convicted, the appeal process could go on for some fifteen years. And until the recent New York law the accused or convicted slayer could reap all the benefits monetarily from the exposure.

Governor Pierre DuPont III took time out to be at the Blue-Gold game on Saturday. Miss Delaware, Sandy Aiken, formerly of Harrington and now of Seaford, was also on hand for the days festivities. [Staff Photo by Ray Blanche]

Weekly Report

by Senator Joe Biden

One of the final actions taken by the Senate before adjourning this week was to pass the Clean Water Act of 1977. This bill makes several changes in the 1972 Federal Pollution Control Act that affect the State of Delaware.

One amendment would extend the liability for oil spills beyond our coastal waters to the two hundred mile fishing limit off U.S. shores, to insure protection of our coastline and natural resources from spills occurring a significant distance at sea.

Additionally, the provision would increase the clean-up liability for spills from a vessel from four-teen million dollars to one hundred and fifty dollars a gross ton, with a minimum liability of five hundred thousand dollars and no specified upper limit. It would also increase the maximum liability for on-shore and off-shore facilities from eight million to fifty million dollars.

Other parts of this section authorize recovery of costs for measures taken to control a spill and includes a proviso whereby any expenses needed to restore our natural resources can be reclaimed.

Another feature of this bill would provide Delaware with twenty-two million dollars a year for the next five years for upgrading our sewer treatment plants. This bill will also allow our state a greater measure of control in the protection of our wetlands.

The Evans Report

by Congressman Tom Evans

Delawareans have much in common with our neighbors on the Maryland and Virginia eastern shore. We share a seacoast and a way of life. We are an integrated economic community.

Much of our economy depends on the rail line. Our vital north-south artery must remain active for our economy to remain strong. We must maintain direct access to the south so we won't become a backwater.

We have a problem with the rail line now that threatens our southern access. The problem lies beyond the Delaware border—in Virginia.

This state, plagued by high cost operations such as the carload across the Chesapeake Bay, is unable to adequately subsidize its portion of the line.

I have introduced legislation to help correct this situation. My bill would give Delaware the option of combining any unused federal subsidy with other states.

Next year our unspent funds are estimated to total almost $1 million. Under existing laws, Delaware would be bound to return all of it to the federal treasury.

The bill has picked up enthusiastic and broadly-based support. The other Delmarva members of Congress have cosponsored the legislation; the Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) that regulates rail road operations nationwide A. Daniel O'Neal has endorsed it.

It could keep our rail transportation system healthy, stimulate the economy of our state, and create jobs for Delawareans.

The federal rail program should help, not hinder, interstate cooperation.

Career Corner

by Buck Thompson

The Upward Bound Project at the University of Delaware is a pre-college preparatory program for students in the tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades of high school. Its purpose is to identify students, particularly those from disadvantaged backgrounds, with latent potentials for education beyond the secondary school level and to provide them with experiences which increase motivation for educational attainment and which improve basic academic skills.

Students selected for participation in the Upward Bound Project attend a six-weeks summer school on the campus of the University of Delaware following completion of their tenth year in high school. During this residence on campus, the students receive instruction in basic subjects which is designed to improve skills necessary for college admission, receive extensive counseling and guidance services, and participate in a wide range of cultural activities. Following this summer phase, students return to the University of Delaware campus two Saturdays each month during the academic year. This phase of the program provides for a continuation of academic preparation, tutoring and counseling services. Students return to the campus for a six-weeks summer school following graduation from high school. During this phase of the program, the students take college-level courses, supported by special tutoring and counseling services. This takes place in the College Try Program on the campus.

Primary emphasis is given to the language arts (reading, writing, and grammar) and mathematics. Courses are also provided in science. Physical education, art, and music are included as enrichment areas. In addition, seminars are held dealing with topics such as educational and vocational guidance, problems of youth and characteristics of urban society.

Students live in university dormitories during the summer program, under the supervision of trained counselors. The participants have an opportunity to experience campus living and to benefit from the full resources of the university.

Students are given weekly stipends during the period of their participation in the program, as well as transportation costs associated with program activities. Temporary summer employment is available for some students following the six-weeks summer program in College Try only.

Students are selected for participation in the Upward Bound Project on the basis of:

- *some evidence of potential for higher education.
- *need for the special academic preparatory program and the stimulation of motivation for academic attainment as provided by this program.

- *Financial need. All of the students included in this program will meet family income criteria as established by the United States Office of Education.

Chipman To Hold Orientation

W.T. Chipman Junior School will hold its annual summer orientation day for all students new to the school on Wednesday, August 24, from 8:30 to 4:00.

The principal, assistant principal and counselor will be present to conduct tours of the building and answer questions of concern to new students. Parents are invited to attend with their incoming seventh-graders. This will hopefully provide a good opportunity for students to alleviate some of their anxieties about entering junior high.

We need to make the changes now...we need to rehabilitate the courts, the laws, the judicial system, the victims of the atrocities who are the living relatives of the slain...but by no means should we rehabilitate the convicted slayer. We have several in the State who have been saved from the gallows and who are fighting to get paroled to society. This should never happen in the case of a murder conviction. The convict should never be permitted to return to an unprotected society. The punishment should fit the crime. Rehabilitate...yes...but not the convict...society...

Malloy Vaughn

Vaughn Receives Service Club Award

The second man to work in Sussex county as a county agricultural agent has been honored by the service clubs of that county. Malloy C. Vaughn, of Lewes, was presented the 22nd annual Sussex Service Club Award in ceremonies held recently (Aug. 9) at the University of Delaware's Georgetown Substation. More than 500 service club members and spouses attended the picnic supper which is an annual event the evening preceding the University's Farm and Home Field Day. The presentation was made by Frank Gordy, retired director of the Substation.

Vaughn served Delaware agriculture in a variety of positions during a professional career that spanned almost 50 years. He was named Sussex County agent in 1918.

As county agent Vaughn was instrumental in organizing the Sussex County Federal Farm Loan Association and later became president of a statewide farm loan association, a title he held for 35 years. In 1961 he became secretary of the Delaware Department of Agriculture a job he held until his retirement in 1967.

The award recipient helped organize a number of farm organizations including the Delaware Farm Bureau, a statewide Federal Farm Loan Association (which later became the Delaware Farm Credit Association), a Sussex county Tomato Growers Association and the Nassau Grade A Milk Producers Association.

Vaughn, who is 85 years old, remained active in farming most of his working career.

The Hills Visit England

Ruthin Castle. Peacocks were everywhere and the ramparts of the castle afforded magnificent views. That night we feasted in medieval fashion with only a dagger as a utensil. The courses were Meade, beef ribs, soup, drunk from the bowl, lamb, salad, all eaten by the hands. Then we enjoyed an evening of fine entertainment in Welch music to the accompaniment of harps.

The next day we continued our journey to north Wales and Portmeirion, a transplanted Italian village but there by the architect Clough Williams-Ellis. The beauty of this project grows on one, a transplant from another country.

From Portmeirion we passed the ruined Harlech Castle and then back to Birmingham. The next day found us at Kenilworth Castle built by the Dudley's Earls of Leicester, and the first being the favorite of Queen Elizabeth I. This castle was another in the chain across England to contain the Scots and Northern tribes. Then on to Ragley Hall built in 1690 and inhabited by the present Marquis of Hertford. A small section of the house is set apart for the family and the rest opened to visitors. After the visitors go the Marquis has tea in the Green Room. The gardens to this estate are magnificent. Thousands of sheep range the hills and paths of Ragley Hall.

The next day we visited the Edward VI school for boys and saw a most remarkable educational program. The art sections were most accomplished, and order just everywhere. Mr. Markwell's son is listed on the wall in painting as being one of their most illustrious alumnus. The next day we set out for Hitchens to visit his son Roger and his Peruvian wife Elsa. We had a delightful visit and recalled the days when Roger and John Gaunt spent a week with us. We went through the outdoor market at Hitchens and stopped in at some antique shops. We took leave of Roger and Elsa and set out for Hunstanton on the sea of Norfolk. Here we had a trailer and the Markwells had a trailer. It was our first experience in trailer living but very nice. Hunstanton is a very exclusive seaside resort, the Rehoboth of England or something near it. The sea air is so refreshing and cool at all times. The tides there vary about 16 feet from high and low.

Next day we went to the royal residence, Sandringham House. This was the first time it was open to the public. The state rooms are beautiful and the hobby displays of the kings and queens most interesting. Some of the displays were heads from hunts, weapons and medieval vikings, china, dolls, etc. The lawns of Sandringham are the most beautiful we have ever seen. The parks cover hundreds of acres. No pictures are available of the royal residence.

If your dish towels are badly stained, you might be able to wipe away the problem by soaking them in the sink with suds and bleach. Not only will this whiten the towels, it will bleach your sink as well.

If something in your refrigerator has given it an odor you don't cotton to, and that remains after the food has been removed, put a little vanilla on a piece of cotton and place it on a refrigerator shelf.

Trice, Passwaters Win In Twin 20

Rains skirted the Georgetown area Friday evening, much to the delight of Gary Trice and Bob Passwaters, as they shared victories in the Twin 20 program.

Clifford Todd took the early lead in his small block modified pursued by Bub Coverdale and Walt Breeding. On lap five, Harold Bunting, who was riding in third, made a wild dive on the outside going into the third turn and captured the lead as Gary Trice moved into second.

Bunting stayed on top for the next five until he slipped high coming off turn four and Trice shot into the lead. Hal Browning of West Grove, Pa. came from deep in the pack to make it a three-car battle for the lead.

Trice opened up the lead in the last three laps and went on to capture his fourth victory of the season. Bunting finished in the second spot following by Browning, Bill Towers, Breeding, Jerry West, Stan Busby, Donnie Joseph, and Clifford Todd.

In the second 20, Chris Phillips set the early blistering pace ahead of Bob Passwaters, Fred Kennedy and Breeding. Phillips kept the lead until lap four when Passwaters slipped inside with Breeding moving into second and Bunting into second and Bunting into third.

A torrid battle for second developed between Breeding and Bunting. With three laps to go, the two cars locked together with Breeding going deep into the infield, losing several spots. Bunting held on to second for just one lap, retiring with a broken rear spindle.

Trice moved into second spot as time ran out and Passwaters picked up his third feature victory of the season. Breeding finished in the third spot followed by Joseph, West, Towers, Phillips and John Leach.

Once again Milford's Ronnie LaVere outclassed the late model division winning his ninth feature of the year. Ronnie moved quickly from the deep in the pack and locked into a duel with early leader, Chuck Graves. LaVere moved by on the outside at the half-way point and was never again seriously challenged.

Graves finished in second followed by Sonny Ritter, Larry Andell, Kelly Hastings, and Bob Williams.

Heats - Late Model: 1) Bob Williams 2) Dale Moore 3) Paul Viehman 1) Chuck Graves 2) Mel Joseph 3) Bob Wilkins Modified 1) Clifford Todd 2) John Bennett 3) Bud Coverdale

ers had not known better. Fluffy found other quarters Monday, but was spotted again Tuesday evening, this time on a low branch of Mrs. J.M. McClain's sycamore tree in the side yard, just two trees away from the walnut. A second recapture attempt failed at this point as Fluffy took to the air and ended up perched on the rooftop of Mrs. F. Brown Smith. Fluffy returned to the sycamore tree Thursday night and when she hopped to the porch rail nearby, Fritz caught her. He said she probably hadn't eaten much since gaining freedom four days before, since the daily beef cubes Fluffy enjoys were eaten with gusto. Had Fluffy been near the woods, or in a less populated area, Fritz said he would not have tried to recapture the owl, since he plans to release it in an area where other owls have been spotted next month when the Fritz family plan to move out of the city.

They were granted federal protection under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act of 1972 that makes it unlawful for anyone to kill, collect, possess, buy, sell, barter, trade, ship, transport, import or export any raptor, including feathers, parts, nests or eggs, without a permit. Violation of the federal regulation which includes the permit requirement, carries fines of up to $500 or six months in prison. The Fritzes give Fluffy daily water changes, which she drinks first, then bathes in. Mrs. Fritz says Fluffy will not touch the water after going through the routine, and will treat each new water supply the same.

Fluffy even shakes hands, when no one else is around, according to Fritz and will treat him only with some whispered owl nothings into his ear when she is in the mood. Fritz has had a long love affair with wild life, having owned as many as 46 water snakes, a turkey buzzard, a raccoon as well as numerous chickens and dogs. Fritz is an employe of the Department of Natural Resources, the Environmental Control section. It's hard to tell what he will take on next, but Fluffy will soon be released, and then who-o-o knows?

Dale Jarrell Attends National 4-H Workshop

Dale Jarrell from Harrington returned this week from Washington, D.C. after attending the first National 4-H Wildlife Conservation Team Leaders Workshop at the National 4-H Center. Dale was one of nearly 100 4-H members, volunteer leaders and Extension Service staff from 27 states participating in the program designed to develop leadership skills for conservation efforts in our community. Featured topics for the conference included habitat management, land use planning, urban society and wildlife and the roles of public and private organizations in wildlife conservation. During the six day sessions delegates participated in discussion with nationally known authorities from both government and private organizations engaged in all phases of wildlife conservation. Dale said that among the most interesting things he learned were how animals adapted to habitat and what we can do to prevent habitat loss. Using the national capital area as a classroom the program also included a variety of field trips. The group saw How the Urban Society has adapted to the wildlife habitat, toured Remington farm and the National Zoo and wildlife management. Dale plans to share results of the conference by giving demonstrations and talks. The workshop was sponsored by National 4-H Council in behalf of the 4-H program of the Cooperative Extension Service. It was supported by a grant from the Atlantic Richfield Foundation, Los Angeles, as a part of a new nation-wide 4-H emphasis on wildlife conservaion. Learn more about 4-H and the programs in this area by writing or calling County Agent: Marion MacDonald at 736-1448. The sixteen-year-old has been a member of the Harrington Sunshine 4-H Club for the past seven years. Although wildlife conservation was not a club project, Dale says he plans to look into conservation during the coming year with projects oriented towards conservation. He will be a sophomore at Lake Forest High School in September. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jarrell of Harrington.

William Smiths Buy News Stand

HARRINGTON. The Harrington News Stand business has been sold to the William F. Smiths of here, it was learned this week. The business, which is located on Delaware Avenue, had been owned for the past several years by Robert and Myrtle Kashner. According to Mrs. Smith, she and her husband will continue to operate the business much as the Kashners have done. Mrs. Smith says she has had a lot of experience in the restaurant business, having worked in several restaurants in the area over the years. The couple live in Harrington and have two children at home.

Hints for HOMEMAKERS

You can save money and energy with your electric dishwasher, as well as time, if you turn the dial to off after the machine finishes washing and then let the dishes dry by themselves. * * *

To save time while vacuuming, get a long extension cord and plug it into a centrally located socket, instead of having to stop, stoop, plug and replug the vacuum cleaner as you go.
