Mayor Asks For No Tax Increase

Council Studies Trash Tax Weighs Balancing A Budget

HARRINGTON CITY HALL. Several citizens turned up Tuesday night for a special discussion on ways to deal with the trash problem in the City. The problem revolves around businessmen in the Town who are required to pay for trash removal at their place of business due to the inability of the Town to remove the trash to be able to place their home trash with that type of removal. They argue they pay for a service that they don't want. They would rather provide their own.

As many councilmen argued to allow some taxpayers whether they are business or residential to avoid paying the tax would get into legal problem. The matter will be reviewed at the next council meeting.

Mayor Arthur "Buck" Cahall presented his version of the budget at Tuesday's meeting. The budget presented earlier would necessitate a tax increase due to the fact that there would be an average of $20,550. The Mayor's plan calls for certain cuts in the fields of salaries and services. He said "... I feel my proposal would enable us to live within the framework of past years and still provide the citizens of the town with basic services". City Manager David Peterson pointed out the need for citing priorities before budget cuts are made. He suggested that there were certain alternatives such as raising the tax rate 15%, increase the capitation tax, and a 10% surcharge for sewer plant rehabilitation. Certain needs such as painting the inside of the water tower (cost of $15,000) is a must according to the City Manager. He also pointed out that the sewer and water department is running about $30,000 in the red. He pointed out that the City is operating at the maximum proficiency possible, but certain matters must be planned for now to avert greater expenses down the road. Councilman John Satterfield said "... each department should pay its own way and not look to the property tax as a means to pay for everything." Satterfield a-iso pointed out that commercial trash remover would charge each individual property owner nearly 50% more that the Town is now charging. The matter of the budget will also be brought up at the next regular meeting of the Council.

Michael Everline Is National 4-H Winner

A Harrington youth has been named one of nine national winners in the 4-H Leadership program.

Michael Everline, 16, of R.D. #3, Harrington, was presented with a $1,000 scholarship by Reader's Digest, sponsor of the 4-H Leadership program at the 56th National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Nov. 27 - Dec. 1. Winners were selected by the Cooperative Extension Service.

The youth, who excels in the 4-H gardening program, organized and taught a five-week horticulture training course as well as a horticulture judging training session. He has also led his 4-H group in painting community fireplugs, chairing the Easter Seal Campaign, collecting for UNICEF, organizing a trash pickup day and passing out litterbags. He leads a group which planted a community flowerbed two years ago and has taken on maintenance responsibilities.

Everline likes to cook and reports that he had to ward off snickers about the "boy cook" until he won the Reddy Foods state title twice. Now his "eccentricity" is regarded as a talent.

He also excels in poultry raising. At the age of ten he entered the junior broiler contest and won the state award. Since then he has placed in the top 20 each year.

"The contest is exciting," he says. "It lasts over seven weeks. From the time my 50 chicks arrive until I enter them in the contest, I am always wondering just exactly how my flock is going to turn out."

A high school junior, he has organized school dances, car washes, yard sales and Salvation Army drives.

Everline, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl W. Everline, was named president of his sophomore class and served on the Student Council.

Miss Delaware Is Christmas Parade Grand Marshall

The Harrington Jaycees announced this week that the 1977 Miss Delaware, Miss Sandra Aiken, will be the grand marshal of this year's parade. The parade will be held this Saturday beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Miss Aiken is a native of Harrington where she and her family made their home until 1968. She then moved to Seaford where she graduated in 1974 ranked 3rd in a class of 250. She is also a prior 1st runner-up in the Delaware Junior Miss Pageant.

Miss Aiken will lead a parade that as in years past will feature a variety of entries. Included in these entries will be numerous floats, bands, antique cars, vans, fire engines, and horses.

The parade route as in years past will begin on Delaware Avenue where all participants are reminded to be in line by 12:30-1:00 so the parade can begin promptly at 1:30. The parade will then turn onto Center Street, onto Dorman, onto Commerce and onto Clark where the judging will take place and the trophies will be awarded.

Judges for the bands will again be provided by a professional organization to make sure bands are judged accurately and fairly. Judges for all other areas of competition will be by non-area people to help allow for the fairest judging possible.

Thanks to the Harrington Chamber of Commerce this year's parade will also receive live coverage on WTHD-WAFL with that station's Dennis Hazzard providing the commentary for the people of Harrington.

As always, Santa Claus will again be brought into town by this annual event. He will again be stationed at the Quillen Shopping Center where all children will be able to get their Christmas wishes in.

To entertain the people before the parade begins, a van show will be held in the parking lot of the People's Bank beginning at 11:00 a.m. A large number of vans is expected to be on hand and three large clubs are also planning to participate in the parade.

Also at the same time as the van show, an antique car show will be held in the parking lot of the 1st National Bank of Harrington. The antique cars will be judged before the parade and anyone wishing to enter the competition should register in the bank parking lot no later than 11:00.

Anyone wishing to know their lineup position can contact Ray Blanchette at 398-3206 (day) or 398-3225 (night).

The Green Thumb

Already we can see Christmas decorations up in the stores. This must mean Christmas is not far off. If you are having trouble thinking of gifts, think of things a person can use in the garden. Tools make excellent gifts, although they represent work. Your "Green Thumb" friend may appreciate a new hoe, spade or rake. There are many tools for indoor gardens or pot gardens. A garden trowel, hand weeder, mini-hoe and many similar items may be purchased at garden centers or shops. Also, in late fall many of these items are on sale.

A wheelbarrow, rototiller, lawn mower, power sprayer, feeder for fertilizer spreader are some of the larger pieces of equipment gardeners use. A bag of fertilizer, mulch, peat moss, lime, perlite or vermiculite are also very practical gifts. Pruning tools can also make excellent gifts, you can choose from hand or power tools. Hand shears, loppers, hedge clippers or pruning saws are locally available. If a person is interested in plant propagation, a grafting knife could be a nice gift. With tools, cheap tools are dangerous and not worth the money spent on them. You may as well buy good tools to begin with, they will last longer and be a lot safer to use than a cheap tool.

For greenhouse owners - pots, trays, rooting compounds, or new plants can be ideal gifts. If you have some carpentry skills you can construct a small cold frame and if you have heating cables you have a hot bed. Gardeners can always use black plastic for mulching in the garden. Seeds, new plants, terrariums, dish gardens also make excellent gifts. If a gardening friend likes to read and keep up with the latest gardening information, books and/or a good garden magazine can make an excellent gift. There are a lot of very practical gifts you can give your gardener friends.

Winterize Your Boat To Prevent Damage

Boat owners can prevent major weather damage and long delays in beginning next year's boating season by taking a few precautionary steps this fall and winter. The following measures are recommended by the U.S. Coast Guard as a general way of winterizing recreational boats.

1. If you remove your boat from the water, make sure you store it with adequate support all around and not just with one or two points carrying all the weight. Put it under cover or place a waterproof tarp over it leaving a way for air to circulate through and around the boat.

2. For outboard motors that use an electric starter, remove the battery, take it home and put it on trickle charge. If you leave your boat in the water and use the battery to run an automatic bilge pump, arrange to have the battery placed on trickle charge at the marina and have it monitored.

3. Outboard motors should be flushed with fresh water and stored upright and out of the weather. If your outboard is too large to remove from the boat, make sure it is well covered against the elements.

4. On inboard engines, drain the engine block after closing the raw water intake. If the engine is cooled by fresh water heat exchanger system, you can either drain the system or add sufficient anti-freeze to prevent freezing.

5. Portable fuel tanks should be drained. Installed tanks should be filled with fuel and have a fuel stabilizer added.

6. No matter what kind of boat you have, no matter whether you keep it in the water or in unattended dry storage, check it over at least once a week. It cannot take care of itself.

For more specific information on protecting your boat and engine from winter damage, consult your owner's manual or contact your local marine dealer.

think they should take all the fun out of prisons, and make them work hard everyday. They should be made to pay their debt to society. Men and women that kill people should be put away for the rest of their lives and never be able to talk or see anyone the rest of their lives; and maybe the crime rate will go down.

It sounds bad but not as bad as your son or daughter getting stabbed to death for nothing.

Stay Warmer This Winter

An ounce of prevention this fall can keep you warmer this winter. You still have time to check your heating system now. Doing so could prevent some cold-weather trouble later on, says University of Delaware extension agricultural engineer Ernest W. Walpole.

You should have a qualified serviceman check oil burners, gas-fired equipment and controls. But there are a number of steps you can take yourself to keep your heating system working properly, says the specialist.

Dust and dirt are major enemies of heating systems. Clogged filters in a hot air system can increase your heating costs substantially. So change the filters at least once a year and clean them at frequent intervals. Although some filters can be cleaned with water, the most familiar type are cleaned simply by tapping and vacuuming gently.

Walpole says hot water and electric baseboard units also require occasional cleaning. Dust collects on the metal fins, reducing their efficiency. You can remove the baseboard cover and carefully clean the fins with a vacuum.

Lubricate electric motors fans and pumps according to the manufacturer's specification. Use oil sparingly once or twice a year.

Check all belt drives for proper tension. You should be able to press belts in about one-half inch when properly adjusted. Overtension should also be avoided as it causes excessive wear on bearings and may overload the motor. Replace cracked or frayed belts.

Humidifiers should be examined carefully for sediment deposits. Calcium deposits caused by hard water can be removed by soaking the humidifier in a vinegar solution and then washing.

Remember to turn off the electricity to the furnace before beginning these jobs, warns Walpole.

Farmers Reminded To Certify Program Crops Soon

"All farmers in Sussex county who certify their crop and land use acreage on all 1977 cropland will be eligible to participate in 1978 program benefits," Harold Short, Chairman of the Sussex County ASC Committee said. This also includes farmers who did not have allotments in past years.

Certifying refers to reporting acreage on a field-by-field basis. Mr. Short added, and applies to farmers who wish to participate in the voluntary farm programs. He said all these reports must be received in the county ASCS office within the next few weeks to allow time for the Normal Crop Acreage to be established for each farm by the county ASC Committee.

So far, 2000 farmers in Sussex county have certified.

The programs that may become available to eligible producers include the 1978 loan, deficiency and disaster programs administered by ASCS.

"Farmers may not have needed to certify crop acreages last year," Short noted, "but we want to emphasize that they do need to contact us about their 1977 crop acreages this year if they plan to participate in 1978 programs."

Producers will no longer have to pay a service charge for late filed acreage reports.

Applicants for all ASCS programs will be given equal consideration without regard to race, color, creed or national origin.

Report On 1976 Delaware Farm Income

There's been a lot of speculation about how much of a financial beating some Delaware farmers may have taken from the weather this year. The jury is still out on that question, but as of 1976 agriculture in the state was thriving, says Dr. Raymond C. Smith, chairperson of the University of Delaware's department of agricultural economics.

Each year Smith puts together a bulletin presenting the most recent data available on the economics of farming in the state. The 1976 edition of this publication on "Delaware Farm Income" has just been released, and it is a must for anyone wanting to know about the role farming plays here.

Below are some highlights from the new bulletin.

It may come as a surprise to many people to learn that Delaware has the fourth highest net income per farm of any state in the continental U.S. with an average of $23,811; only Arizona, California and Florida rank higher. Of course, explains Smith, this is because of the broiler industry, which accounted for nearly 53 percent of the state's cash farm income in 1976, bringing in a total of over $148.5 million.

Delaware's two major field crops, corn and soybeans, which as feed grains are closely tied in with the broiler industry, brought in another $64 million and accounted for an additional 22 percent of last year's total farm income.

Cash receipts from farming in Delaware reached an all-time high in 1976, according to the bulletin. In spite of this fact, however, the net income per farm was down 4.3 percent from the previous year, due to rising production costs.

Prepared as it is on an annual basis, the bulletin makes it very easy to trace trends in Delaware farming. One obvious trend, as you look over data provided in one of the many charts Smith has prepared, is the way farm production costs have risen over the past six years.

In 1970 these costs came to $123.7 million. But last year they had climbed to $210.8 million—nearly double that figure. The only expenses which have remained relatively constant over the six-year period are those for hired labor and taxes. Farmers have managed to hold the line on expenses for labor by adopting practices which reduce the need for it.

Costs of all other farming inputs, including feed, livestock, seed, fertilizer and lime, repairs and operation of equipment, interest on farm mortgage debts and land rent, have just about doubled.

There are also some interesting cropping and marketing trends. Corn, mushrooms, greenhouse and nursery crops all had substantial increases in income last year, while lima beans, green peas and watermelons were substantially down. Cash income from broilers increased by $10.64 million in 1976. Dairy products and eggs were other livestock products with income increases.

The bulletin also provides some other interesting insights into the state of Delaware agriculture. For example, there is a very illuminating breakdown of census data on farms, acreage and value for the period 1954-1974. This shows, among other things, that though the number of farms with harvested cropland has dropped from 5,512 in 1954 to 2,792 in 1974, the actual acreage harvested has increased by nearly 40,000 acres. In 1974 about half the total land area of the state was in farms.

Size of individual farms

has increased over the years. Where there were only 47 farms in 1954 with 500 or more acres, twenty years later 274 farm operations fell within that category. Value of land and buildings rose from an average of $20,000 per farm to $180,000. The average cost of land per acre has risen from $157 to $971.

One thing that has not changed significantly over the past two decades is the average age of farmers. Now, as then, the average Delaware farmer is 51 years old.

The "Delaware Farm Income" Bulletin has been prepared on an annual basis since the 1940's. Information contained in it has many applications. It frequently is used by business firms that sell or buy from farmers, to help decide how to modify their operations. It is used to study land use, in terms of crop acreage, by county agents concerned with gearing their services to farmer needs. It has also been used by political campaigners on both sides of the fence to make their points.

Over the long range, the report shows what adjustments farmers are making to changing conditions such as labor costs, market fluctuations and rising production costs.

Copies of the 1976 "Delaware Farm Income" bulletin are available from county extension offices in Newark, Dover or Georgetown.
