John T. Satterfield

Satterfield Will Not Run Again

HARRINGTON - Harrington City Councilman John T. Satterfield who has served 5 terms and an unexpired term of another councilman will not seek his sixth term of office. The Dorman Street resident who heads the electrical contracting firm of Satterfield & Ryan, said "...it is time someone else took the job." Satterfield was asked to fill the unexpired term of Councilman Russell McCready when the latter moved out of the Ward. He was appointed by Mayor Luther Hatfield on January 11, 1967. In the election of '68 Satterfield ran for office and was elected to serve his Ward (Ward 5). The boundaries of Ward 5 are south side of Liberty at Dorman, east side of Dorman to Commerce, west side of Commerce to Railroad Avenue, west side of Railroad to Liberty Street, and south side of Liberty to Dorman. In the election of '68 Fulton Downing was elected Mayor.

Firemen Install New Officers

Harrington To Receive $93,000 Federal Grant

HARRINGTON - City Manager David Peterson told Mayor and Council on Tuesday night that the Federal Government has notified the City with a letter of intent that the Federal grant which the City had previously lost has been restored.

The grant of $93,000 will be used for engineering fees and upgrading the water and sewer system for the community. The areas to be affected are Mispillion and Milby Streets and on to west Route 14 for water mains. Coleman Street and the remainder of west Milby Street will be for sewer upgrading. There were two offers for the engineering fees from Edward H. Richardson & Associates and McCabe Associates. The Council did not accept either offer, but will negotiate the contractual price with one of the firms.

In other matters, the Council voted to take legal action against Ken Meredith & Son garage property on U.S. 13 and Liberty Street to get the rubbish removed from the property. Mayor Cahall said that attempts to have it removed date back to April. Mrs. Norma Meredith, appearing at the last several council meetings, said that the weather has prevented the use of equipment to remove the rubbish. It was unclear at the meeting what legal proceedings would be taken, or whether Meredith would have so many days to respond, and exactly which ordinance applied. The matter was referred to City Manager David Peterson to institute the proceedings.

Joseph T. Richardson, a Harrington resident, and largest mechanical contractor on the peninsula whose firm employs approximately 100 men, was invited before Mayor and Council to explain his actions on the farm he recently purchased out of the Charles Peck Estate on Harrington Avenue in the community. Richardson who has been accused in writing by Mrs. William Walls, who is not a resident of the Town but lives in the general area of the farm, that Richardson had been using the property as an extension of his business Joseph T. Richardson, Inc. Richardson told the Council that any equipment or materials seen on the property site are his personally and not that of the engineering firm of which he heads. Councilman Home-wood who serves the Ward in which the farm is located and resides across the street from a recently restored barn on the property where equipment and materials are stored, said that citizens had complained to him because "the actions of moving equipment and materials in and out gave the impression that the property was being used for commercial purposes." Richardson said they were used for personal reasons and for use on the site. Richardson who was recently elected to the Board of Directors of the 1st National Bank of Harrington, said "...the property is not being used for business purposes and it was never my intent to aggravate my neighbors but instead to upgrade the property." All Councilmen agreed the property has been upgraded since Richardson purchased it at a public auction. Richardson told The Har- rington Journal that he and his men had removed 50 some truck loads of rubbish from the property in an initial clean up effort shortly after the purchase of the farm. In addition to restoring the barn, Richardson set out several hundred evergreen trees which rim the property. The property has taken on the description of an estate in recent months.

Bridgeville Election

Returns Three Incumbents

BRIDGEVILLE - Four candidates vied for office on Monday for the Town of Bridgeville. The three incumbents were Earl Willey, who was running for an unprecedented 14th term and was elected with 194 votes, John K. Simons, who was also seeking an unprecedented 20th term in office, and President of the Town Commissioners Kyle Ewing, who was seeking his second term of office. Simons received 190 votes and Ewing received 160 votes. Both Ewing and Willey were seeking two year terms while Simons sought a one year term.

Willey who is the commissioner of streets for the Town has been working hard over the past year to get separation of the storm and domestic sewer systems and to correct the traffic problem on Railroad Avenue, which is in need of widening. He operates a barber shop on Main Street in Bridgeville.

Ewing who succeeded Norman Powell as President of the Commissioners is completing his first term of office. The president is elected among the other commissioners. He is a supervisor at the Seaford Nylon Plant.

Simons is an office manager for Ralph and Paul Adams, Inc., of Bridgeville. He is the commissioner of sewer and water.

The fourth candidate was Robert L. Thomas who was seeking his first term of elected office. He was defeated and received 134 votes.

A total of 281 votes were cast.

Dover's C-5s Go To Santa's Aid

Part of the mystery on how Santa Claus can be everywhere at one time during the Christmas season has been solved. One of Santa's sleighs is six stories high and 250 feet long and "Santa's helpers" look like members of the Air Force Reserve.

To the untrained eye, the giant C-5 departing from Dover Air Force Base and manned by personnel of the 512th Military Airlift Wing (Associate) didn't look like one of Santa's vehicles, but packed inside was 25 tons of cargo, most of it Christmas mail, appropriately in red bags like the one Santa carries.

As the aircraft cruised up the East Coast, the orange glow of the lights of Philadelphia could be seen to the south and the even bigger glow of New York City to the north with the little towns of New Jersey shining in the night like a string of Christmas lights and you could almost visualize Santa making his Christmas eve drop. But this C-5 wasn't making house-to-house deliveries. It was on its way to Germany with its cargo of Christmas cheer to the military forces in Europe.

Waiting on the ground at Rhein-Main Air Base was a backlog of 200 tons of Christmas presents and greetings to loved ones in the states. Getting the mail transported is just another part of the versatile role played by the C-5 and members of the 512th MAW in supporting the troops everywhere.

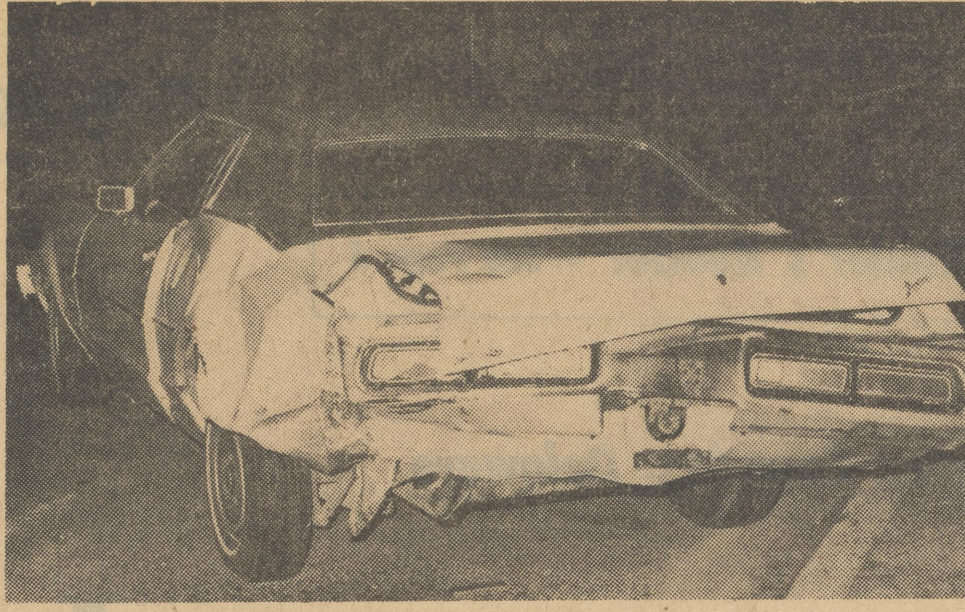

This particular crew of reservists came from across the East Coast; Boston, Mass., Rockville, Md., Arlington, Va., Elmer, N.J., Philadelphia, Dover, Harrington, and even Bergamo, W. Va. Playing "Santa's helpers" for one flight is a small part of the continuing year-long role the Air Force Reserve plays at Dover AFB.

As the C-5 disappeared into the German skies on its way home with another full load, you could almost hear a fading robust voice say, "Merry Christmas to all, and to all a good night."

"Santa's helpers" on this flight included SSgt. Joe Ralyea, Harrington, TSGT Richard Hughes, MSgt. Robert Raksnis, MSgt. Charlie Sterner, MSgt. Oliver King, MSgt. David Morris, and SSgt. David Scandalito from the Dover area.

"The Magic Age Of Steam"

By Harry G. Farrow, Jr.

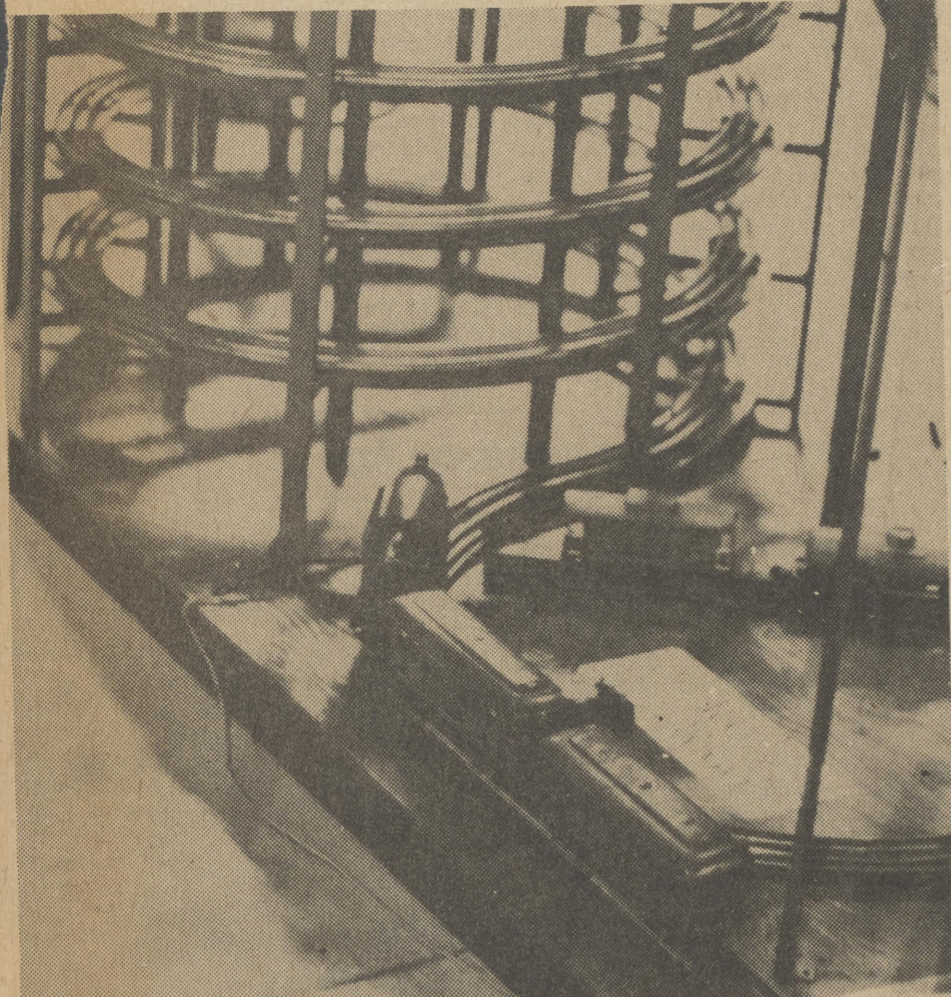

YORKLYN, DE. It was Christmas time again and once more the T.C. Marshall estate outside Yorklyn, De. was the scene of the machines run by steam. Although just miniature models of the real McCoy's, their realistic dimensions gave thought to the days of old when this country operated and operated very efficiently on steam.

T. Clarence Marshall, a magnate in his day, passed away in the early 60s but the things he left behind are being carried on by his son Thomas C. Marshall, Jr. One of the biggest attractions is the 7 1/2" gauge railroad pulled by a steam engine. It is only knee high to the average person. Nonetheless, it demonstrates the power of steam. It pulls its ten cars around the 4 acre estate usually filled with kids and grown ups alike. It has a name too, "The Auburn Valley Railroad."

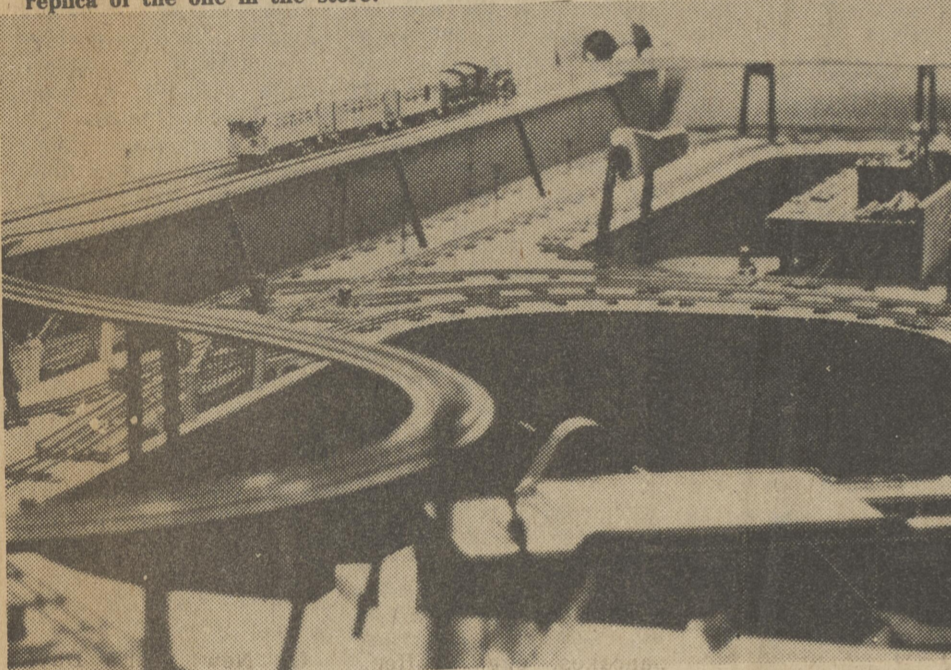

There is a machine shop on the grounds and a full-time retired former Pennsylvania Railroad employee, Weldin Stumpf. There is a museum on the grounds as well which houses among other things like toy trains, etc., several Stanley Steamers from '02 to '24. There are two Stanley Mountair Wagons which were used in the west. The Stanley brothers were twins, and one twin left Massachusetts and moved to Colorado. He built a mountain resort and the demand to get the tourist from the railroad station to the lodge some 30 miles away gave birth to the Stanley Mountain Wagon. There are many scaled models of the use of steam from well pumping to lighting a small town. An "O" gauge circular railway was first seen by T. Clarence Marshall in 1931 and he returned to Yorklyn to recreate it for his family. The Marshalls early on were inventors-innovators if you will. They had a paper mill "up the creek" according to Weldin Stumpf and when their business expanded they came to the present site and converted the grist mill to a paper one. Their earliest grist mill "up the creek" was in 1730. The paper mill was begun at the present site approximately 1889. In 1900 T. Clarence Marshall set about converting the grist mill to a fiber mill. And thus gave birth to "National Vulcanized Fiber (NVF). The Marshall family, down to its present member, Thomas Jr., says that operating the "Magic Age of Steam" is very costly, and he is looking for ways to either preserve the collection through a non-profit status or disbanding the collection and closing the estate to the public. This past week, the so-called Magic Age of Steam Special Christmas was the last showing of the season for the public. The exhibits may open again in the spring...or as Marshall says, closed for the duration.

Marshall named friends past and present from the Harrington area: Randall Hill, George Ward, Lawrence Price, Walter and Albert Simpson, Gayle B. Smith and Dewitt Tatman. Except for Price, the others were associated with Marshall as trap shooters. Marshall was a former Delaware State Champion in trap shooting. His father, T. Clarence Marshall, was the national president of the Amateurs Trap Shooting Assoc. The Yorklyn Gun Club which was founded by T. Clarence Marshall was one of the foremost of its time. The Marshall family owned one of the best gun collections of the day.

The struggle between management and labor is an age old one. Most of the problems have been brought on by the economy. The usual hue and cry is that the laborers want more money and management "refuses to pay" or just can't meet the demands. The ideal situation is for the laborers to make more, for in doing so management will in turn make more money. The point being that as wages climb, so does the retail price of the product. Where the retail price of the product becomes too much for the public to handle, then management must go back to labor and trim the payroll or lay workers off.

There might have been a time in American history when labor unions were important but to say that labor unions were directly responsible for the industrial change is hog-wash. What about the industrial revolution. Patience is a virtue someone once said and what both management and labor should have practiced is just that. Today there is a great deal of criticism of labor unions. They are being blamed for everything including the weather. In some situations the criticism is justified.

It never seemed logical to me to practice a cult that when you did not get your way you merely stopped work...and asked...persuaded...what have you...your fellow workers to do the same. Work stoppage in whatever form means loss of income and the loss will never be recovered. It appears to me that then as now there should have been a balancing of the equities...strike a happy medium and settlement. The laborers today are no longer "laborers" under the definition we knew. They are rich "middle class". When an assembly line worker can get $12 to $14 an hour and earn approximately $25,000 a year, you can readily see that they are not common laborers. These workers must be dealt with accordingly and mostly by their union. The unions by their natural demands for higher wages in many cases cause short term employment to come about.

The question is can the labor union continue to give the "benefits" to the members of the union when many times they are causing a situation where they are pricing themselves out of the market. Fighting for this control that is so imperative to the union, many states have adopted compulsory membership in unions. A minority of states have passed right to work laws. The unions are so adamant in their demands such as what has happened recently to the coal miners have turned their interests to property damage and blood shed.

Those voices in the night who in the beginning said labor unions would be bad and destructive are now being heard. Those voices that early on said labor unions are the forerunners to organized crime are now being heard. Recent voices have stated that labor unions have outlived their usefulness are now being heard and prove to be correct. Labor can price itself out of the market and bring chaos to the economy. Even the professional athletes of today are following the same path established years ago by the opera stars. When entertainment ceases to be nothing but a highly commercialized role, the entire concept is lost.

Well, we have, to be sure, come full circle from the terrible conditions brought about by management or company owners in the early growth of this country to the selfish demands of the unions today. It would seem that instead of helping the economy labor unions by their great demands are harming the economy. Some feel the unions have become too powerful. Maybe so. But...in the alternative have the unions by their very nature and demands become out of balance that instead of rendering help they are causing harm. Are they so weak that what they bring about is singular harm through their own "outofbalance."

What we need then is a balancing of the power between the unions and management. We need to seek ways to hold down the cost of goods and services so that the rapid cost of inflation can be brought under toe. We need right to work laws so that production can go on while arbitration is being carried on. There has to be a give and take in this situation. There must be a middle ground reached. Labor unions too strong...yet weak in their own way...must recognize the worker in or out of the union, that his personal rights be protected.

Leads Manpower Group

Donald E. Dunkle, state director of vocational education, has been named chairman of the State Manpower Planning Council. The group advises the governor and heads of county government on federally funded programs that train unemployed and underemployed persons and the disadvantaged. Grants to Delaware this year amount to $20 million.

Educator To Oversee Job Training

Donald E. Dunkle has been appointed chairman of the State Manpower Planning Council by Governor Pierre S. duPont IV. Mr. Dunkle has been state director of vocational education at the Delaware Department of Public Instruction since 1976.

The council advises the governor and the heads of county government on programs to train disadvantaged, unemployed, and underemployed persons. The programs are funded mainly by the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, which provides some $20 million for Delaware this year.

Mr. Dunkle, a resident of Ironwood Circle, Dover, was state supervisor of trades and industrial education 1968-76. Earlier he was business administrator for the Delaware County, Pa., Area Vocational-Technical School and head of the industrial arts department for the Mechanicsburg, Pa., School District.

He holds a bachelor's degree from Pennsylvania State University and a master's from Temple and is a candidate for a doctorate in vocational administration at Temple.

Governor duPont Reports

By Gov. Pete duPont

By now, many of you have heard about the refusal of four state Democrat officials to allow Delaware to receive some $33 million in federal funds simply because of their own political ambitions.

But what many of you don't know is that the refusal to accept those funds will cause a rise in the state's unemployment rate and hit hardest those people who need the greatest help: the young, the disadvantaged and the minorities.

The rate of unemployment has been greatly reduced in the state since January, 1977, a factor which has contributed to the state's better financial outlook.

A bit of background is in order:

In December, the Delaware State Clearinghouse Committee, a panel which advises the state on federal funds, voted along straight party lines to refuse four federal grants. The four Democrat officials--State Treasurer Thomas Carper, Controller General Duane Olsen, Representative Orlando George, and Senator Anthony Cicone--voted to refuse the funds because of their own partisan ambitions.

Denied to the State by the committee were $32 million in federal highway monies, $50,000 from the National Science Foundation, $45,000 from a federal intergovernmental personnel grant and $496,000 for a CETA Governor's Grant.

While the denial of funds will ultimately cause the lay-off of some 490 State employees, mostly in the highway area, the cancellation of the CETA grant distresses me most. CETA is a federal program which provides jobs and training for the unemployed and the underemployed.

The CETA grant not only affected those State employees who are trained to assist the young, the disadvantaged and minorities, it will affect jobs for those groups.

The refusal to accept the CETA grant means that at least 357 disadvantaged, young and minority individuals, will not receive jobs as planned. And important programs, such as the Wilmington Social Service Center for Spanish Speaking People, the Delaware O.I.C., Vo-Tech high schools in all three counties and a high school drop-out job program, will not receive funding.

But most importantly, the refusal to accept the federal CETA grant, means that the entire $30 million CETA program in the State is in jeopardy because some of those denied funds were to be used to ensure compliance with federal mandates. If the entire CETA program is terminated, then some 3,000 people will be thrown out of work.

As you can see, the refusal to accept federal funds for these programs will hurt those people who need the help the most. I find it incomprehensible that Mr. Carper, Mr. George and Mr. Cicone would put their political ambitions ahead of their commitment to help the needy in our communities and state.

Thoughts

by Senator Bill Roth

My proposal to provide a college tuition tax credit has raised the level of public awareness to the plight of the millions of Working American parents struggling to send their children to college. The Senate Finance Committee will hold hearings on my legislation on January 20th when the Congress reconvenes. HEW Secretary Califano, the rich Washington attorney who has his $25,000 per year private chef financed by middle-income taxpayers, feels he is an "expert" on the plight of the average taxpayer. He is opposed to my college tax credit, claiming my proposal would primarily benefit "some of the wealthiest people in America."

Despite the claims of opponents to this bill, my legislation will not benefit the wealthy. One need only look at the stacks of supportive mail I have received from the middle-income families across America to see that a responsive chord was struck. In fact, according to the American Council on Education, nearly 90% of the college tax credit benefits in my bill would go to those earning less than $25,000 a year.

My bill, the College Tuition Tax Relief Act (S. 311), would provide much-needed relief to the forgotten middle-income American families -- the families that are neither affluent enough to afford the high cost of college nor considered poor enough to qualify for the many different government assistance programs that their taxes pay for. My bill would provide a tax credit of $250 per student the first year, increasing to $300 the second year, $400 the third year, and $500 after four years.

Skyrocketing college costs, higher prices and a growing tax burden are making it more difficult for qualified students from the middle-income families to go to college. The evidence indicates a growing number of qualified students are being prevented from obtaining a higher education because of escalating costs. As a result, college attendance of middle-income students has declined substantially in the past few years. Between 1969 and 1974, college attendance for children of Working American families declined at a rate of 22 percent, while enrollment for lower and higher income students remained fairly stable. This breaks down to the Too Poor, the Too Rich and the Too Taxed!

The time for college tuition tax relief has come. Over the past 10 years, the Senate has passed college tax credit legislation by substantial majorities six separate times. Last year alone, over 50 pieces of legislation providing some form of college tax relief were introduced in the House of Representatives.

Working American families need and deserve tax relief to educate their children and I am determined to continue my efforts to enact a college tax credit bill into law during 1978.

I need your help at the upcoming hearings. Let me hear from you with your personal experiences in trying to send your children through college.

Basketball Team Begins Practice

We interviewed Mr. Campbell, the coach of the boys' basketball team. He says that he foresees a good season. He commented that the players that have improved the most over last year are: Mike Record, Andre Burbage, Andre Carr, Chris Willey, and Brett Evans; and the new players both 7th and 8th seem very good this year.

Patricia Steward was declared the winner of Name the Paper Contest. Her winning selection was "Raider's Reader." Patricia is a 6th grader in Mrs Rudelmier's room.

Cheerleaders Selected

Cheerleading started about the middle of November. The offer was open to any girl who wanted to become a cheerleader. They had practice up until the end of that month. Each girl had three cheers she had to learn. They were "Hello", "Spirit" and "Shoot The Hoop". After the practice days were over, the girls had tryouts; they were judged by some faculty members. The judges were Miss Craig, Mr. Conner, Miss Kelly, and Mr. Wylie.

The day after the tryouts the 1977-78 cheerleaders were announced. They are: Tammy Burbage, Gina Calvert, Lynda Cox, Thayer Stewart, April Thomas and Suzy Zoch. There are also two girls from last years cheerleading squad who automatically made it. They are Captain Polly Adams and Co-Captain Sandra Seymore. The girls were chosen captain and co-captain by the new cheerleaders.

The cheerleaders are now busy learning more cheers and are trying to get new uniforms.

Spartans Bow To Washington, Indian River

The Lake Forest boys basketball team suffered through a rough week as they dropped both games in which they played at the Salisbury Basketball Tournament.

The tournament was a four team affair in which the Spartans, Indian River High School, Washington High School, and Crisfield High School competed. The Spartans barely missed winning their opening game as they lost by only two points to Washington.

It was a strong period that almost led the Spartans to their victory as after having trailed 32-21 at halftime, Lake Forest managed to knot the score at 41-41 in the third period. Washington then scored three points to end the third period and take a 44-41 lead into the final period. The Spartans only lead of the game was in the first period when they opened the game with the first four points.

The Spartans scoring was well balanced on the night as top scorers were Mark Smith and Eugene Dixon who each tallied eleven. Phillip Bowers scored ten for the Spartans while Lauren Burris added nine and Jerry Custis chipped in with eight.

In the tournament's consolation game the following night the Spartans took on Henlopen Conference rival Indian River and were manhandled by a 77-54 score.

It was the first period where all the Spartans troubles began as the Indians managed to open up an eighteen point lead. They then increased that lead to an insurmountable 42-16 lead at the half.

Lauren Burris led the Spartans scoring with 16 points on the night while Jerry Custis added 12 and Larry Smith 10. The Spartans will now return to Henlopen Conference action as they will take on Sussex Central at home on Friday and will travel to Laurel next Tuesday.

Gab Fest

By Pat Hatfield

We are relaxing this week. We have earned it. As we expected it would, everything got done on time. Our Christmas Eve dinner guests numbered just 50 this year. About a dozen who are usually with us were not able to make it for various reasons, but each year we also find new friends that we have come to love and want to have them with us for this time of fellowship and sharing.

And, now that we have had Christmas and the New Year, we will set our minds toward spring. While we toast our toes at the fireplace, we will dream dreams.

Firemen (Cont.)

All Systems Go For 1978
 After two days of testing at Daytona International Speedway last week, Benny Parsons and Bobby Allison were satisfied with the results and say they will be ready when the track opens with Daytona 500 Pole Position Qualifying February 12. Allison was behind the wheel of his new ride for 1978...a Bud Moore prepared Ford Thunderbird, while Parsons ran tests on Buick, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and Chevrolet front ends during the two days.

Parsons indicated after tests were concluded that the First National City Travelers Checks car would not be a Chevrolet for the coming season.

Both Moore and Allison were happy with the performance of the Norris Industri T-Bird and commented that the new body style and what was learned during the tests would make it very competitive for the 1978 season and the February 19 Daytona 500.

years straight, will be making his debut at Daytona in a stock car when Pole Position Qualifying for the Daytona 500 gets underway February 12.

Hylton, a veteran on the NASCAR Winston Cup circuit, is the crew chief for the new team and indicated he will most likely drive the races which Holbert does not run in.

Holbert has said he will be competing in 10 Winston Cup races in his rookie year on Grand National Circuit and with a 30-race schedule, Hylton will still have plenty of opportunity to get behind the wheel.

of Daytona, February 1, over 70 entries are expected to be on hand.

The February 4-5, 24 Hours of Daytona will be the inaugural race of the 1978 IMSA Camel GT Challenge Series and will be round one in both the World Manufacturers' Championship and the World Challenge for Endurance Drivers.

Prior to the 4:30 p.m. February 4 start of the 24 Hours of Daytona, the sub-compact cars of the IMSA Radial Challenge Series will stage a 100-mile race with the green flag falling at 1:30 p.m.

The 24 Hours of Daytona will be the first weekend of racing during Speed Weeks '78 at Daytona International Speedway and will begin the 20th year of racing at the world famous racing center.

Pond's Team Visits Daytona

Lennis Pond and his car owner and team members recently visited Daytona International Speedway and discussed plans for the 1978 racing season.

According to Pond, his efforts for the coming season will begin with the February 19, Daytona 500. It will be the debut of the new team which will include Herb Nab as crew chief and Waddell Wilson as engine builder.

Pond, who was the 1973 NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National Rookie of the Year, has yet to score his first Grand National win but with the backing of his new car owner, Harry Ranier, he feels this might be the year.

"This is a dream I've had all my life," commented Pond after formation of his new team. "We're getting together a team as good as any I know and thanks to Mr. Ranier, we'll concentrate on winning and will do everything we have to do to win."

Pond is no stranger to Daytona Speedway and found himself in victory lane after winning the 1976 ARCA 200 and finished fourth in the Daytona 500 that year. The first test for the new team will come in the February 12 Pole Position Qualifying for the Daytona 500.

Qualifying Races To Tell Story

The Daytona 500 is the

Ted Boody doesn't mince words when he discusses his Camel Pro career goals. "I plan on winning more nationals [races] than any one and being No. 1 [the American Motorcyclist Association champion] longer than any one," says the 19-year-old.

richest and most prestigious stock car race in the world and any driver would tell you if they could win just one race... it would be the Daytona 500.

Each year more than 60 cars and drivers make their way to Daytona Speedway and set their sights on a win in this ultimate test of stock car racing, but only 40 cars will earn a position in the starting field and only one will win. It has become very important to the drivers seeking that win to do well in the 125-mile qualifying races for the Daytona 500 or they pack up and wait for another year.

This year the February 16 Twin 125-Mile Qualifying Races will have an even greater importance as it will be the first real test of the new car makes and teams on a high-banked superspeedway.

A few teams have already tested at Daytona, but for most, the qualifying races will be the proving ground for their efforts for the Daytona 500 and the year to come.
