Local Zoning Change Request Denied

By Molly Murray
Kent County Levy Court denied a request by developer Willis Voshell to rezone a property 400 feet west of Felton to permit smaller lots, Tuesday, May 23.

The planning commission recommended that the zoning change be denied following the public hearing on the rezoning. However, Voshell claims that during the public hearings earlier this month, Felton Mayor William M. Meyers Sr. acted "with a conflict of interest." Voshell did not say this with malice, however. "After all," he said, "we (Meyers and Voshell) are in the same business."

Meyers is also the owner and developer of Hickory Hill, a development within the Felton town limits.

Voshell said that last year he had tried to get his property annexed into the town of Felton because he had wanted public water. Meyers, however, told council members according to Voshell, that the town could not afford annexing the extra property into the town limits. Voshell said that his property is now only 400 feet outside of the town limits, however, he indicated that a recent annexation map is not to be found.

Voshell told Levy Court Commissioners that he had been in contact with Kent County Engineer Walter Fritz. He said that Fritz had said county sewage would be no problem for the development once the town of Felton had a sewer district. Voshell said, "If we can do this the right way that's the way I want to do it." He said he would be willing to wait for the sewer district if necessary. He also said that because the town would not consider annexation he would try to get an approved public water system for the development.

William Meyers, Jr., son of Mayor Meyers, spoke against the zoning change. He said that changing the zoning of the property would "destroy the aesthetic value of the land." With this in mind, Levy Court voted 6-1 against the zoning change.

Despite the zoning change denial, Voshell claims that he will continue development of the area. The only difference, he said, will be that the lots will continue to be 1 acre lots instead of 1/2 acre lots. Voshell said that the houses he will build will be for people of low and middle income. He said they will cost between $30,000 and $40,000. Voshell doesn't expect any problems, "We have customers all the time," he said.

Included in the entertainment at the Town Picnic on Sunday was a square dance demonstration. The picnic was organized by the same committee who arranged the first bicentennial picnic. The committee consist of Mrs.

Sussex County Passes $3.6 Million Budget

By Molly Murray
Sussex County Council voted unanimously to pass a $3,651,389 budget for fiscal year 1979, Tuesday, May 30. County residents will pay 21 cents in County taxes, 2 cents for courthouse bonds, and 3 cents for libraries per $100 of their assessed property value. Residents over 21 will pay a $3.00 capitation tax.

According to County Administrator Joseph Conaway, "Everybody in the county gets a tax break." Conaway said that last year a resident of Sussex would pay anywhere between 2 cents and 7 cents for libraries. The amount paid in library taxes was determined by school districts, Conaway explained. He said that by having the library money come into the county in this manner it can't be spent for anything else.

Milford library will be receiving $21,378 from Sussex County. This library had requested $24,000. The Greenwood Modular Library is slated to receive $11,750.

The present tax rate in Sussex is still the lowest for a county of its size and with the services it provides, according to Conaway. He said that his figures are based on compiled data from the National Organization of Counties.

In other business, Sussex County also learned that it had received 5

National Awards for various projects which have been developed in the past year within the county. These awards are distributed by the National Organization of Counties.

Sussex will receive awards of revenue for its sharing program. This program deals with the county's use of Federal Revenue sharing funds, and the county's distribution of human service grants. The County will also receive an award for its project, "Wastewater - An asset through Spray Irrigation"; its Library program, which distributed films throughout the county; the Sussex County C.E.T.A. Special Housing Project, which put 10 homes back on the market through repairs; and its C.E.T.A. Police cadet program.

The county applied for 9 awards and was granted recognition for 5 projects.

Humanist Blasts Sussex Tax Law

By Molly Murray

Although Sussex County provides that senior citizens and disabled people may be exempt from paying county taxes if their income is below a certain level, many people feel that more steps could be taken to insure that people know about the exemption process.

Jean H. Colon, a member of the Kent and Sussex Human Rights Organization, has been working to raise money for a tax fund so that elderly and disabled citizens' homes will not be sold for back taxes when they do not know that they may be eligible for this exemption. Ms. Colon is currently involved with two cases where men who are both elderly and disabled are victims of tax sales because they have been unable to pay back taxes because they live on fixed incomes.

According to a spokesperson in the Sussex County Assessment Office,

State Legislative Notes

By Thurman Adams, Jr.

The House of Representatives last week passed and sent to the Governor my bill (SB 453) to appropriate $1,500 to the Division of Fish and Wildlife to install three security lights at the Cedar Creek public boating ramp at Slaughter Beach.

The major reason for the lighting is to improve the safety and effectiveness of rescue operations at night, and I think that alone is worth the money.

I cast the deciding vote as the Senate passed a resolution (HCR 9) calling on Congress to convene a Constitutional Convention to consider an amendment to guarantee the rights of the unborn. The resolution had been tabled since January with a 10-10 tie vote.

My vote doesn't necessarily mean I'm for or against abortion, but it does mean that I see nothing wrong with a Constitutional Convention being called to discuss the matter. I had conversations with many, many people in the 19th Senatorial District before making my decision and a majority of them convinced me that I should vote for the resolution.

I voted against a bill (SB 421) to establish a State Board of Polygraph Examiners to test, certify and license all persons analyzing lie detector tests in Delaware. It seemed to me kind of silly to set up another state board of five members to regulate an industry which, according to testimony, only has 10 or 12 practitioners in the state. If anyone can show me a real need for such a new agency, I stand ready to change my mind.

A bill I opposed in the Senate (SB 232) was defeated 35-3 in the House of Representatives last week and now is dead. The bill would have required suburban communities to clear their road plans with the State Highway Division rather than with the county governments. The bill was opposed by Sussex County Council.

Even though it was defeated in the Senate by an 11-9 vote, I voted for a bill (SS1 for SB 448) which would require sitting judges to face the voters every four years to remain in office. I believe we must change our present system, which allows a judge to remain on the bench for 12 years no matter what his performance or behavior unless his fellow judges remove him, has to be changed in some way. I've become increasingly angered at the performance by some judges, who not only ignore the laws we pass but the jury verdicts on an almost daily basis.

Governor Asks For School Study

By Governor Pete du Pont

During my economic development trip to California in April, I had the opportunity to meet with school officials, teachers and students in Pasadena's innovative fundamental school program.

Along with other school administrators from Delaware, I observed the instructional method, the disciplinary code and the curriculum of the fundamental school. I also spoke with the students who participate in the program.

The fundamental schools concept is a program which allows students to voluntarily transfer into the more formal curriculum and school environment. The primary focus of the curriculum in the school is toward basic reading, writing, arithmetic and other basic course skills.

All of the students with whom I spoke felt that the school was successful and all agreed that it was a good learning experience. These students represented a cross-section of the student population in Pasadena and all voluntarily transferred into the school.

Upon my return to Delaware, I asked Al Jones, the president of the State Board of Education, to conduct an informal study of the school concept and to see whether it was applicable to Delaware's school systems.

He replied that the program is indeed innovative and apparently successful in Pasadena and other cities. He felt that a longer study was warranted that would look into such areas as curriculum, instructional programs, test scores, teaching methods, disciplinary controls and other areas.

The task force, which will conduct the study, will be composed of school administrators, teachers, parents and students. I would hope that a report will be ready in the early fall.

There are many different approaches to fundamental schools. In fact, each of the several school districts now utilizing the concept have reported different results. We will not know if the program is applicable to Delaware until we have an opportunity to conduct an in-depth study.

But the basic fact remains that the public's confidence in public education must continue to rise if we are to improve our school systems. We must also look to innovative and alternative programs such as the fundamental schools.

Chamber Of Commerce Lauds Milford

Hospital For Contribution To Town Growth

One of the questions most frequently asked, by families looking around the Milford area as a possible town in which to settle, is "What kind of health care facilities are available?"

Fortunately the questions can be answered with a positive and truthful "excellent." This answer greatly influences the decision of the prospective resident. Milford Memorial Hospital, the largest hospital in lower Delaware, makes this answer possible.

The Hospital makes many contributions to the growth and economy of Milford. It is the town's largest employer with an annual payroll of approximately $4. million that is largely spent in Milford. The need for high calibre personnel attracts that level of worker from a wide area. The services provided at MMH enjoy a reputation that brings patients from an area extending from the Canal to the Ocean. The Medical Staff covers practically every specialty, and more and more it is becoming unnecessary for area patients to take the trip to Wilmington for specialized treatment.

The number of patients visiting the Hospital's Emergency Department grows steadily...in the past eight months there has been an increase of approximately 2,000 visits over the same period last year. Last year a total of 24,859 patients visited the Emergency Department. This department is a vital, but costly, contribution to the health care the Hospital offers the community. The Emergency Department is available 24-hours a day, seven days a week, with a physician in attendance at all times.

Joe Adkisson, the Chamber's president, has commented that "the Milford Chamber of Commerce takes great pride in the fact that Milford Memorial Hospital is a member of our growing community, MMH has an outstanding reputation that puts the community of Milford up front in the eyes of residents in Delaware as a medical center."

In the past ten years many advanced medical techniques have been added to the services at MMH. Since the new wing opened in 1969, and the renovations to the older part of the building were completed in 1970, the Radiology Department has been greatly expanded by the addition of ultrasonic and gamma camera services. The ultrasonic scanner emits sound waves of high frequency that send an echo to identify the location and depth of any abnormality. The gamma camera uses isotopes to identify, for the purpose of diagnosis, the isotopes disturbed through the various organs of the body.

A fetal monitor has been added to the Labor and Delivery Department. This measures the heart beat of the child before birth.

Cardiac telemetry was added in 1973 to the Third Floor West to monitor coronary patients who have been transferred from the Coronary Care Unit, and that same year the Intensive Care Unit was opened with seven beds. MMH opened the first Coronary Care Unit in the State of Delaware in 1967. Until then coronary and intensive care in all Delaware hospitals were combined in one unit.

In 1971 MMH announced an unheard-of decrease in room rates. One Delaware newspaper publishing the story on the decrease used the words "that gutsy crew down in Milford" to describe the Hospital Administration's action.

The year 1973 saw the opening of the new Department of Surgery with four operating rooms and a six-bed Recovery Room. All new beds were installed in the Pediatric Department that year through the Women's Auxiliary of the Hospital. Also, in 1973 Natural Childbirth Classes were instituted.

Late in 1974 the Medical Arts Building opened, containing twelve physicians' office suites.

Last year the new Laundry Building opened containing the most modern and efficient equipment available. Also, last year the semi-monthly Arthritis Clinic was initiated. This Clinic eliminates the necessity for sufferers of arthritis to make the tiresome drive to Wilmington for follow-up.

"Talking with Joe Adkisson, president of MMH," Mr. Adkisson says, "he filled me in on the Long-Range Planning for the Hospital. From what he told me MMH will be continuing to grow to meet the needs of the communities it serves, as the largest hospital below the Canal in Delaware."

University of Delaware Report

By John A. Brennan

For many of us, spring is traditionally the time for house cleaning and for disposing of extra odds and ends that have accumulated in the attic, garage or spare room through a garage sale. If you're planning a garage sale, an assistant professor of business administration at the University of Delaware has some tips that might come in handy.

Dr. Denis Healy, as a summer project, studied garage sales from a marketing viewpoint to find out who participates in them, what does and doesn't sell and how the sellers attract shoppers.

First of all, what sells? "We found that dishes, utensils, toys and games are good sellers," Dr. Healy says. "On the other hand, large items such as appliances and furniture seem to be the last things to be sold, if they are sold at all. Almost half of the shoppers said they would look at garage sales for such items as home decorations, lamps, books and paintings before going to a retail merchant."

If you are a seller, be flexible in your prices and if you are buying don't be

Gab Fest

By Pat Hatfield

This morning many of my milk glass containers are filled with roses. Dad brought in eighteen gorgeous pink radiance rose buds, some of which I have shared with my friend, Tess. I just sat and looked at them for a long time. I can look at a rose and be moved to tears...or any other flower for that matter. Flowers are truly one of the great gifts of the Creator.

This year my small lily-of-the-valley bed has grown and I had eleven of the small spikes with their wee bells to arrange and enjoy their unusual fragrance. The pansies are blooming and I must teach little Garth how to pick them, since this old frame I travel in does not bend down too well.

The iris beds are a riot of color, the spicy pinks are blooming and the double buttercups make a splash of gold in the flower beds. I spent this morning getting the house plants out under the maple tree for the summer. With my present problems, everything I do has to be done in slow motion, so I feel like an instant replay on television. However, it is accomplished.

The tractors are busy on the soil, and the gulls have come in from the shore. They are so lovely as they wheel and dive over the fragrant earth, and the air is alive with their high keening. Hilary had a delightful experience with a baby robin out in the school yard. The little fellow was so young he did not know fear, so he hopped on her hand and enjoyed being cuddled and petted.

Recently I had one of those nights when I was just not sleepy. But, as I have told you before, it does not bother me. It is a time for extra prayer, and I get a lot of thinking done. I cook beautiful, imaginary meals, I wander down the roads of my childhood, I repeat quotations I have memorized through the years.

Last night these thoughts kept coming into my head over and over, so in the morning I wrote them down to share with our prayer group at The Lord's Open House. From birth to death, this world we roam, Looking toward Heaven, our future home; And through the centuries we've been told of pre-ious walls of jasper and streets of shining gold. I know this is magnificent and beautiful to see; But I would not care to tarry there Through all eternity. A small and shining kitchen, Lord, That would be Heaven for me. A table laid with gingham cloth...a loaf of bread... a pot of tea. And I would put the kettle on when I hear the angel's wings, And ask them in, and then we'd sit, and sing the grand old hymns. Yes, dear Lord, I need to say...this would be Heaven for me...A little house with lowly tasks my hands could do for Thee. Now when Jesus comes to meet me And takes me by the hand... What portion will He give to me? Will Jesus understand?

Marine Farming Is Big Business

Oysters and other aquaculture could be big business in Delaware. The United States House of Representatives recently passed the Aquaculture Organic Act of 1977. This bill could result in a new industry for America and, moreover, more jobs for Delaware.

The Bill is pending action in the United States Senate.

Delaware has been a leader in Marine Farming since 1971, when the University of Delaware began working to develop commercial methods to grow shellfish in a fully controlled environment.

The legislation establishes both a national policy and a loan program for aquaculture programs. The Federal Government is authorized to guarantee loans for development capital for the construction and operation of aquaculture facilities and the acquisition of stock. The bill permits up to $500 million in loan guarantees for investors in commercial marine farming.

Right now Delaware has a seafood greenhouse right in the college of Marine Studies at Lewes.

In the 1950s the multi-million dollar Delaware Bay oyster industry yielded over 9 million pounds of oyster meat. By 1960, oyster landings were worth little more than $40,000. A series of events starting with heavy siltation and pollution and ending with an epidemic oyster disease ravaged the once plentiful oyster beds.

The University of Delaware began experimenting to create a disease resistant strain of oysters but then realized that a controlled environment was what was needed to raise oysters.

Today the college of Marine Studies can raise an oyster to marketable size in just 9 months. Under "Mother Nature's" guidance oysters and clams grow to 3 inch market size in three to five years.

At the current level of development, rough estimates indicate that commercial quantities of oysters produced at the Lewes lab would range from $20 to $32 per bushel. Oysters raised naturally are priced in the range of $5 to $20 per bushel. University of Delaware scientists, however, feel that because of the unique characteristics of mariculture oysters they may be considered a "new product" with new market potentials.

These juvenile oysters are growing in the recirculating seawater system at the College of Marine Studies complex at Lewes. It takes about 36 weeks from eggs to market size in the lab, compared to 36 months in nature.

Some Tips On Garage Sales

price." Another thing to remember about having a garage sale is letting the public know about it, Dr. Healy adds. Garage sale shoppers tend to stay within close proximity to their own area, and more than half usually drive less than two miles to attend a sale. Almost one quarter of the shoppers said they would travel only between two to five miles to attend one.

Since potential buyers are in the immediate area, advertising should be concentrated there. In addition to advertising in local newspapers and posting neighboring and house signs, Dr. Healy recommends local bulletin boards as a frequently used advertising medium.

Who goes to garage sales? Dr. Healy found that the buyers and sellers at garage sales are, to a great extent, the same people. "The buyers often sell their own goods the same way," he notes "and they definitely feel that giving and attending such sales are worth the effort."

The reason most often given for holding a garage sale was to get rid of clutter, followed by the desire to raise some cash, Dr. Healy says. If not for the garage sale, most people said they would pass the articles on to someone in the family, keep them in storage, donate them to a charitable organization or throw them away.

"Garage sales are continuing to be popular," Dr. Healy says. "People think of them as ways to save money while having fun." Dr. Healy joined the Delaware faculty in 1974 after teaching at Wright State University.

At Beiler's

Lantz Speaks From Experience

At Beiler's Crop Service they go by the motto "Crop Care By Air" and with the knowledge of the professionals who work for them and the expensive, modern equipment at their disposal they are prepared to give you the best in care by air at any time.

Beiler's Crop Service, which is located about one mile west of U.S. 13 on the Hickman Road, is privileged to have working for them two super professionals in promoter-pilot Al Larmarche and pilot Jerry Lantz.

Lantz is probably one of the most experience agriculture pilots in the business having been at this business since 1949, when the term of aerial applicators was unheard of and the pilots were known as crop dusters. They were known as crop dusters because the first ones back in 1922 did use a dust to control an outbreak of cotton-leaf worm down in the southland.

Since that time the art of aerial application has advanced to a point of supreme scientific efficiency. Jerry having started as an agricultural pilot in 1949 has grown through the enormous changes as they have evolved. Jerry worked as an agricultural pilot from 1949 until 1962 and then took a fourteen year break from the spraying business when he worked as an experimental engineer for the Sperry New Holland Company. Jerry wasn't satisfied, however, as he stated, "I couldn't see myself punching a time clock for the next ten or twenty years." In 1976 Jerry returned to the field of aerial application with Beilers and has been there ever since.

Jerry stated that since his beginning in the field of aerial application he has seen a great change in the business. The first biggest change was in the aircraft itself as yesterday's $300 Jenny equipped with a sifter for dusting has changed into an airplane which costs between 75,000 and 100,000 dollars. These new planes are equipped with rotary atomizers which form uniform droplet sizes and distributes these droplets evenly across the field. They cost in the neighborhood of 1,000 dollars each. The second biggest change which Jerry stated he has seen is that he must be more than a pilot. He almost has to be an entomologist to work in this field which is highly scientific. In the early days it was strictly a dusting operation while now 99 percent of aerial application is spraying. Also in the early days the proper pesticides weren't available. Now not only does the pilot have to do the spraying he must be able to diagnose the farmers problem and know which pesticide to use.

Jerry has been a pilot since the age of sixteen and stated that if he had it all to do over again he would go into the same line of work. He advised that in the early days there were no ag pilot schools and all his training came from hanging around the other airplanes. Jerry advised that any young person interested in the business should get into it early and attend one of the half-dozen agricultural pilot training school in the country. These agricultural training schools are now almost pre-requisite for agricultural pilots.

"Learning to fly for agricultural purposes is different than learning to fly period. In the agricultural lines of flying you have to do a lot of things during spraying that you are taught not to do when you are taught to fly. These things are not necessarily against the rules." He also stated that not all-pilots can be agricultural pilots.

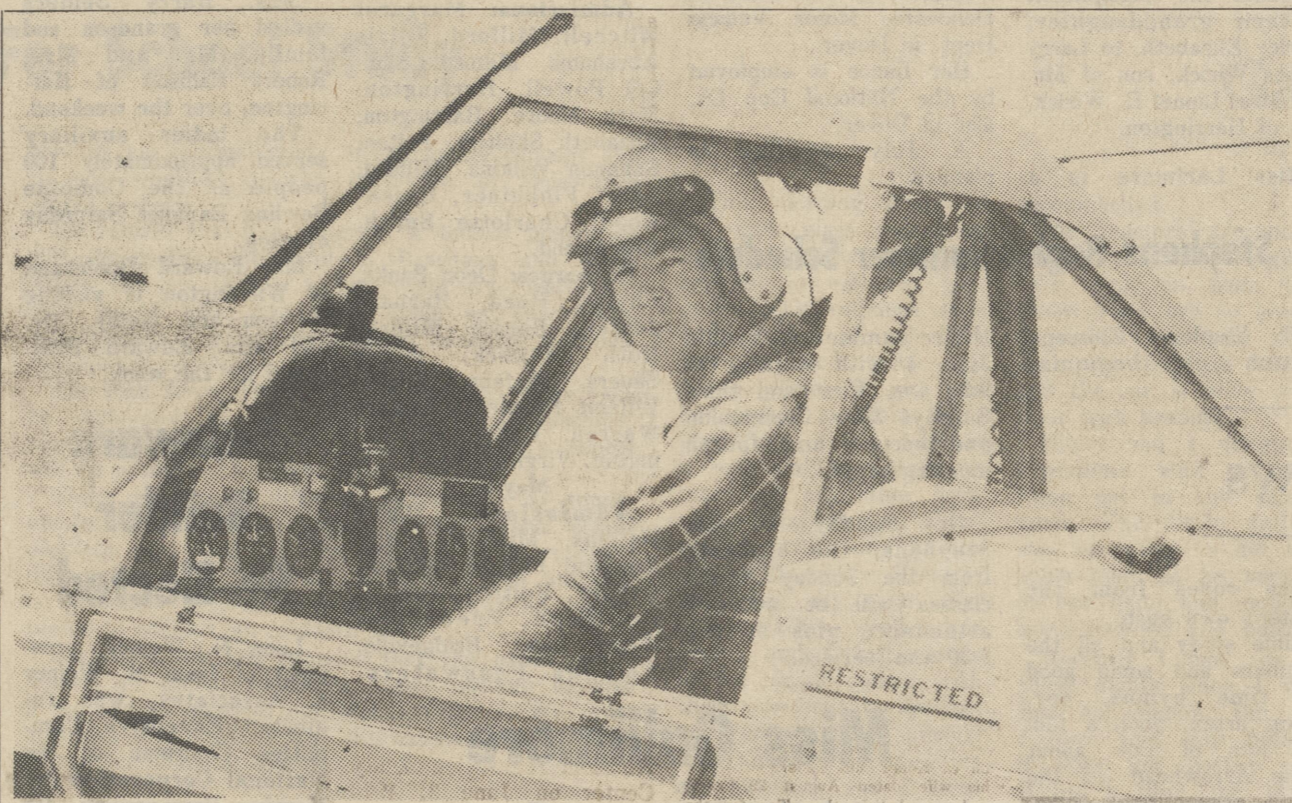

Jerry has not only sprayed crops but has also been involved in spraying timbers in New England and was also called upon to spray during a locust plague in Iran in 1951.

In closing Jerry was quick to point out that on the energy level the aerial application method actually uses less fuel than a farmer would to apply pesticides over the same area. The aircraft which are used a Beilers are capable of spraying up to 10 acres per minute.

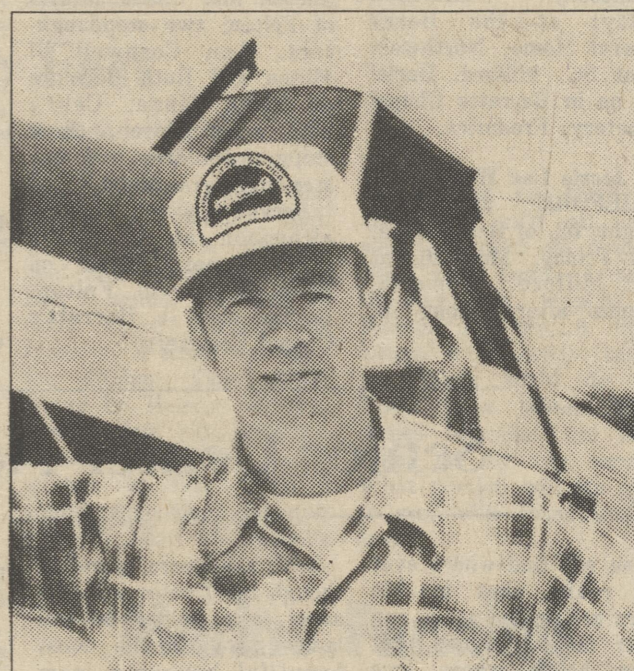

Beilers and their Crop Care by Air will also be featured on June 12th on the Maryland Public Broadcasting System on their weekly farm feature.

The 600 Horsepower Thrush Commander skims the crops at 110 m.p.h. The pilots re-action must be positive and accurate.

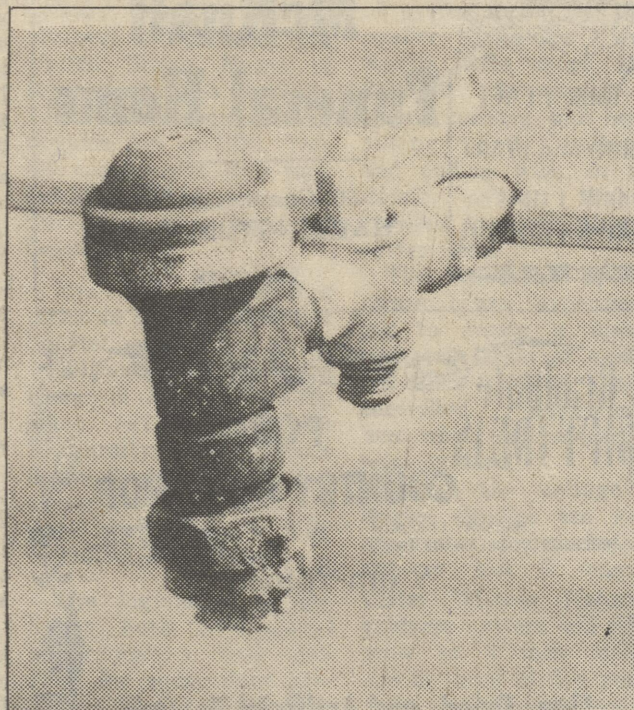

Inside the cockpit Jerry Lantz, Pilot Manager for the Greenwood Branch of Beiler's Crop Service, Inc. must be a very cautious accurate pilot. Jerry began Agricultural Spraying in 1949 and has over 7000 hours of flying time.

Outside the cockpit Jerry Lantz must be an expert at diagnosing the farmers problem and knowing the proper pesticide to use.

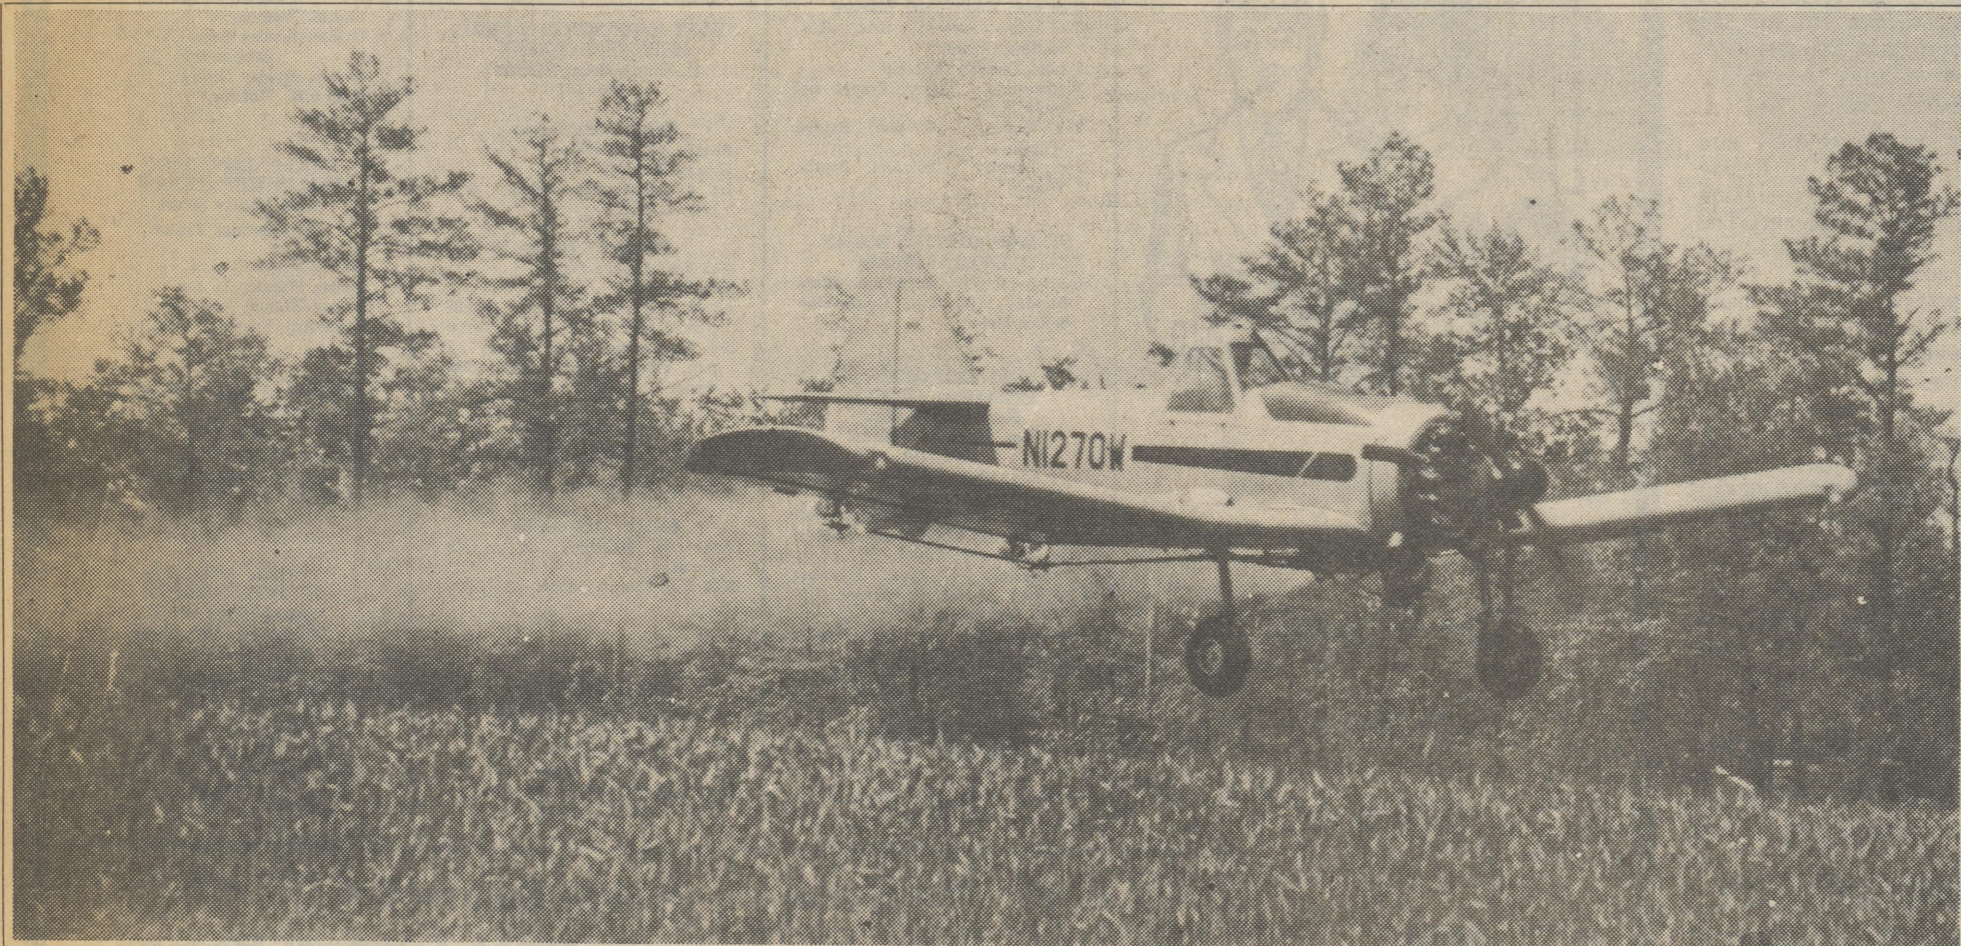

Providing a back drop for the Weatherly 201B, Pilot Al LaMarche tows a banner around the Greenwood/Harrington area.

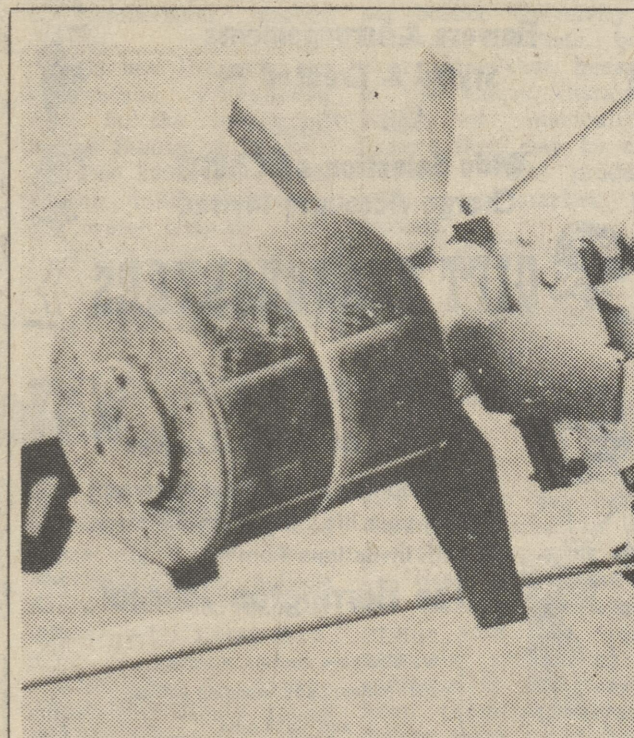

Nozzles, originally designed for ground sprayers, have been adapted for airplanes and are in wide use today.

Working in close to trees and other obstructions, the 450 Hp Weatherly Airplane mists the crop thru its Micronair dispersal system. The Weatherly Airplane is highly suited for small fields.

Rotary Atomizers such as the micron-air provide controlled spray droplet sizes for the ultimate in pest control application. They are designed specifically for aircraft use.

Personal

WEBSTER IVINS: In loving memory of my husband and our father who departed one year ago May 30, 1977.
I did not know the pain you felt
Nor hear your final sigh;
I only know you left me
Without a last goodbye.
I know that God is guarding you
In your silent grave
For in it lies a precious one
Whom I loved but could not save.
Gone but not forgotten
Sadly missed by wife Elizabeth and children

In loving memory of our beloved mother, father and sister, Maggie and Roy Cain and Irene Fry. So many kinds of hurt in life,
We see them every day,
But none compare to the hurt we felt,
When God took you away.
We have a lonely heart-ache,
After a silent tear,
But we will always have beautiful memories,
Of the ones we love so dear.
Dearly loved and sadly missed by the entire family

Thank You One and All! No amount of words can express our feelings and heartfelt thanks for the lovely dinner and dance that you gave for us. It is a lovely memory all six of us will treasure our lifetimes.
Our friends and even strangers who helped bring so much happiness and aide to us are far too numerous to list. You know who you are and we thank you each and everyone.

Personal

God bless you all,

Parker Is Two Time Runnerup

Spartans Score In Six Events In State Meet

By Keith S. Burgess
Cape Henlopen's Lance White is undisputedly one of the top distance runners in Delaware scholastic history. White was a double winner in the state meet held at Delaware State College on Saturday.

Lake Forest's Dan Parker, by his stellar performance this track campaign, has proven beyond the shadow of a doubt that he too belongs in that elite group along with White.

In both the 800 and 1500 meter runs, Parker was caught in traffic. Yet the Spartan rallied in each to finish on the heels of the flying White. The clockings were very fast, as White's 1500 time of 4:01.2 broke Parker's state record of 4:02.

In the 800 White had 1:56.7 to Parker's 1:57.1. Less than four seconds separated the first five runners in the 1500. Only 1 1/2 seconds separated the first six runners in the 800 meters. The races were billed as the probable show stealers and they were.

Jerry Custis who holds all of the Lake Forest hurdle records was sixth in the high hurdles.

Sophomore Ken Thorpe who is prominent in the local record books as a sprinter, was fifth in the 100 meters.

Lake Forest's 800 meter relay team was sixth in 1:32.9. Later this same quartet of Milton Justice, Lauren Burris, Baron Harmon and Ken Thorpe were second in the 400 meter relay in 44.3, breaking a Lake Forest record set two years ago when Grayson Barthlow, Charlie Scott, Mike Benson and Tony Smith ran 44.7 to win the state championship.

The record broken last week at Baynard Stadium was for 440 yards, when the Spartans' 44.4 eclipsed the old standard set by Greg Pritchett, Scott, Benson and Smith.

Coach Jim Blades and his Spartans achieved their greatest season ever by far without having a track to call their own. This record-shattering campaign saw new standards set in all the relays, hurdle events and most of the running events. In some cases, the yards mark was not actually broken but a far better performance was achieved in its metric equivalent. For example, Dan Parker's 1500 meter mark of 4:02 equates to a 4.21 mile while the mile mark at Lake Forest is Chris Wetherhold's 4:28.4.

Bearing this in mind, the only individual running standards which survived the onslaught was Fred White's 52 second 440 yard run and Wetherhold's 9:53.2 two mile run.

Dean McCombs' high jump mark (1977) was tied by McCombs.

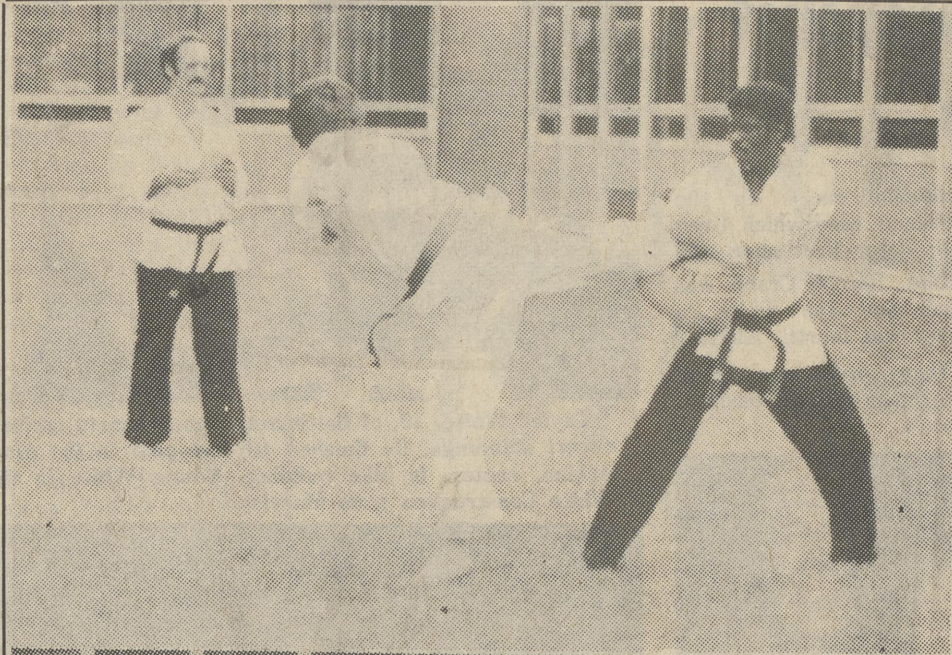

The other field event marks held up. These were: pole vault, Steve Salisbury; shot put, Jim Minor; discus, Matt Burgess; long jump and triple jump, Don Bryant.

Coach Blades is losing most of his firepower and will have to rebuild in 1979. Top scorers Jerry Custis and Dan Parker are graduating, along with other key athletes in Mike Barner, Lauren Burris, Baron Harmon, Pete Hinson, Dale Johnson, Tim McCombs, Joe Nored, Tom Ott, Dave Richter, Stacy Sams, Gusto Voshell and Kelly Woodward.

Lake Forest will have a new all-weather track for next season. This facility should aid greatly in recruiting new candidates to attempt to fill the vacancies.

This writer wonders how many more Dale Johnsons and Lauren Burris are lurking in the student body, waiting to be discovered. These lads came out for track for the first time as seniors. Each was an instant success and both lads ran on record-breaking relay teams. Their names may be in the record book for a few seasons also.

We hope to see a huge turnout of aspirants in 1979.

Karate!

There was much entertainment at the Town Picnic held on Sunday at the W.T. Chipman School. Among that entertainment was a karate demonstration by the Ishenru Club of Dover. In the top photo one member of the club demonstrates the force which a kick puts out. In the center photo the instructor breaks for four cement slabs on the stomach of one of his students. At the bottom, one student demonstrates the hand strength which is developed as he breaks the bottom of two concrete slabs. The club also demonstrated several of the fundamentals and also featured several sparring matches.

Win Final Game

Spartans Must Look Ahead To Next Season

The Lake Forest Baseball team closed a somewhat disappointing season on a winning note as they defeated Woodbridge by a 2-0 score last Thursday.

The Spartans were led by the pitching of senior right-hander Jim Carroll who gained the victory in his final Spartan pitching appearance. Carroll struck out six on the afternoon while he walked only one and gave up only two hits.

Mark Smith led the hitting for the Spartans as he managed two of the four hits that Lake Forest had off Woodbridge right-hander John Butler. Smith scored both of the Spartans runs on the afternoon as he also had the only extra-base hit of the game which was a double.

With the victory the Spartans finished the season with a record of 4-8 on the season which put them in sixth place in the Northern Division of the Henlopen Conference. Dover captured the title in the Northern Division with a 10-2 record. Dover gets the nod as the champion because of their regular season victory over Seaford.

Next season Coach Bill Falasco will have all his players with the exception of senior Carroll back. Leading that returning nucleus will be shortstop Mark Smith who as only a sophomore led the team in hitting for the second straight season. Mark got off to a slower start than last season this year but finished the season with a hot streak that will rank him in the top ten of the Henlopen Conference in hitting. Smith will also be one of the Spartans top hurlers next season having gained some experience this season.

A surprise this season has been the hitting of left-fielder Eric Wise who all season has been hitting near the .300 level. The returning varsity players along with several good junior varsity players moving up to the varsity level should make the Spartans a highly competitive team next season in the Henlopen Conference.

Finish 8-4

Softball Squad Narrowly Misses State Tournament

Lake Forest's Softball team finished the season on a strong note as the girls edged a very strong Woodbridge nine by a score of 1-0. This victory virtually ended any hopes that Woodbridge had for a division title.

Laura Newnom, who pitched all twelve games for the Spartan girls this season was again the hurler against the Raider girls as she bested Woodbridge freshman sensation Claire Betze. Both girls pitched shutout ball for the first six innings until the Spartans scored the only run of the game on a fielders choice in the top of the seventh inning. Newnom struck out eight on the afternoon while Betze fanned nine Spartans.

The Spartan girls had been in contention for the Northern Division championship until two straight losses in their previous two games did them in. The Spartans lost a close game to Milford by one run in extra innings and then fell to eventual division champion Sussex Central on the following Monday. With their 8-4 record the girls finished in third place in the Northern Division behind the Golden Knights who finished at 10-2 and also behind Dover who finished 9-3. The Spartan girls had won seven straight games since their opening two losses before their loss to Milford.

17 Riders Race At Lincoln Speedway

Racing at Lincoln Speedway on May 20th was fantastic. The largest crowd of riders in the past two years rode Saturday night. The addition of the Pro Class has improved the rider turn-out by at least 25% and has become a permanent event in our program. There were 17 Pro riders Saturday night with Greg Smith winning the final. Greg has been a favorite at Lincoln but this is his first Feature win at Lincoln in over two years. Competition was fierce in all Semi-pro and Amateur classes for the evening. Participants from as far away as New Hampshire and Maine participated. If Lincoln's rider turn-out continues to increase, look forward to the management putting on semi combination, Semi Pro and Pro race programs on the same card this year. More on this later.

Jay Conley, 15, from Frederica, Delaware, on a 250 Honda posed at Lincoln Speedway after a race recently. A sophomore at Lake Forest High School, Conley plans to play varsity football this fall. Conley runs 30 races a year and has finished all races in top 10. He wants to become a pro someday.

Georgetown Speedway Opens June 7

GEORGETOWN - Weather postponements played havoc with the spring race season prompting speedway officials to set Wednesday, June 7, at 7:30 p.m. as the grand opening date for summer competition at the popular Georgetown oval. A gala program of renewed racing excitement is scheduled that night with world famous Joie Chitwood's Thrill Show combined with the up and coming Late Model Division all in one evening making it the area's most innovative slate to date.

Seeing automobiles driven on two wheels or jumped sixty-five feet through space is not exactly an everyday occurrence. Spectators attending this year's Joie Chitwood Thrill Show will see these stunts and much more along with Late Model racing that guarantees $300 to win. The Chitwood show will feature all new Chevrolets. There will be slides, spins, roll-overs, crashes, precision driving and the Mr. PIBB Cannon Jump. The cannon's explosion and the 65-foot leap through the air never fail to awe an audience. There are 21 different acts in the 35th edition of the Joie Chitwood Thrill Show.

Delmarva Auto Racing Association directors have begun work on the new track surface and have set their sights on Friday, June 16, at 8 p.m. for the official return of Modified competition at Georgetown Speedway. It is also a special night with the Modified, Late Model, Minis and Hobbies - local stars and cars set to do battle with top-notch out of state competition honoring injured Sussex Central High School wrestler Rodder Purnell with a benefit program to help this outstanding young man. The complete racing public is expected to rally around this worthwhile cause. Adult gate admission for both these nights will be $4 and the youngsters $2.

Ford Motor Company products lead the parade to victory lane at Daytona International Speedway with a total of 17 wins on the 2.5 mile superspeedway. General Motors and Chrysler are tied with 11 wins each at the Daytona track.

Four wins by Pontiac in the early days and a win by Chevrolet in 1976 gives General Motors a total of five wins while Dodge also has scored five wins in the 400-mile race.

David Pearson is the only four-time winner of the Firecracker 400.

The first win by Pearson in the Firecracker event was in 1961 when he put a Pontiac up-front for the checkered flag. That win came the year following his claiming NASCAR's Rookie of the Year title.

Three back-to-back wins in 1972, '73, '74 driving the Purlator Mercury account for the other July 4th wins.

Other multiple winners in the July 4th race include the late Fireball Roberts, who scored three wins in the race. Yarborough also has three wins in the Firecracker. The Timmonsville, S.C. driver scored back-to-back wins in 1967 and '68 driving a Mercury and took the win in 1976, driving a Chevrolet.

Tied with two wins each in the Firecracker 400 are Richard Petty and A.J. Foyt. Petty has won two of the last three 400-mile races at Daytona including last year's Firecracker, while Foyt last visited victory lane in the Firecracker 400 in 1965. Cale Yarborough, holds the record for the fastest Firecracker 400 ever run at Daytona International Speedway in 1968 in 167.247 miles per hour. It is also the fastest 400-mile race in NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National history.

Bowers Holds Memorial Day Tribute

On a rainy, foggy morning at sunrise some people gathered together at the State Ramp at Bowers Beach to remember deceased loved ones. This Memorial to those who lived in the area or those who were remembered in the area was a unique tribute.

A sunrise service was held at the state ramp and the fishing fleet, which daily goes out of Bowers during the summer season, was blessed. A wreath was cast into the muddy waters of the Murderkill which flow into the Delaware Bay.

Sherman Stephens read the poem "In Flanders Field." Senator Bill Murphy reflected upon World War II and asked for a moment of silent prayer for Howard Nye.

prior to the time the senior citizen or disabled individual will be exempted from taxes. The same spokesperson said that a senior citizen's income may not exceed $4,500 a year including Social Security or Railroad Pension. A disabled person's income must not exceed $6,500 including Social Security or Railroad pension. In addition, the assessed value of the property is only covered in the tax exemption up to $12,500.

Ms. Colon said that the two men whose cases she had been involved with owned property at Coverdale Crossroads. She said that neither of the two had paid their taxes for two years prior to the tax sale of their homes on April 22, 1977. Nothing would be amiss with their property being sold in a tax sale but these two men were both elderly and disabled. Both had yearly incomes below the exemption level and both didn't know they were eligible for the tax exemption.

Claims Ms. Colon, "There's something rotten in Sussex County." One attorney with Sussex Legal Aid agrees, at least in part, with Ms. Colon. He said that tax sales are not always carried out in the proper manner. An example he indicated was that the tax sale notice must be posted on the property to be sold. He said this was not always done. He indicated however, that the county was trying to improve the system.

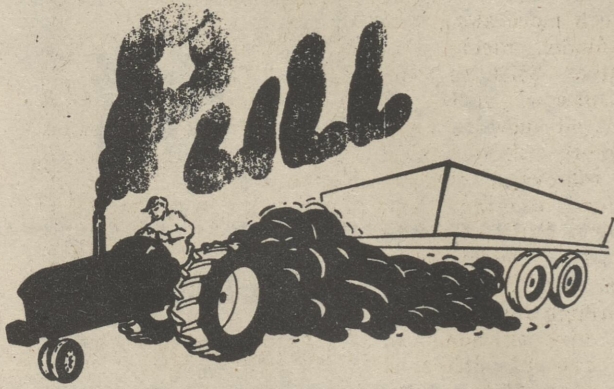

Perhaps one step in the right direction would be to try harder to see that more people know about the tax exemption. One disgruntled Sussex Countian complained that some people in Coverdale Crossroads don't even realize they have to pay county taxes. These people are not ignorant. Many were told when they bought the property that county taxes were paid by the property seller.

"You can imagine their surprise," said one legal aid attorney, "when they saw their property sold at a tax sale to the man who sold it to them."
