

Harrington Council Votes Down Request For Halfway House

HARRINGTON - The Harrington Council took leave of their usual place to conduct City Council matters, and moved to the second floor of the Harrington Fire Hall where about 60 residents of the Town congregated to discuss the merits of rezoning 110 East Center St. in Harrington from C-3 to C-2 for the purposes of establishing a half-way house for the mentally retarded.

Dale Cosden, real estate agent for Realty World Allied Associates of Milford, representing the purchaser, Pan American Corp., made brief remarks and then turned the matter over to a representative of Pan American and a social worker and legal advocate for the Mentally Retarded at Stokley who discussed the emotional, psychological behavior, and background on those who would be residing in the home. Essentially, there seemed to be agreement that a need for this sort of thing was necessary, but when the Pan American representative stated that there would be 10 residents living in the house at one time it became apparent that there might not be enough room at this particular residence to accommodate this many persons.

There was also an attempt to explain that there was a difference between mentally retarded and the mentally ill. These persons who would live in the house would come under a classification of having an I.Q. of between 55 to 70. It was pointed out that the persons living there would not be dangerous. These people would be transported to various self-help classes where they will be taught how to get along in the world. They will be taught how to get along with their fellow persons, learn a craft, make change, write checks and balance check books. It was also pointed out that in some jurisdictions like Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania, it has been decreed that to put people like this who are trainable in institutions is unconstitutional. "They have rights just like you or I," said the Pan Am representative. He also pointed out that his corporation which is set up to fund these places for the mentally retarded "...

have never been asked to leave a neighborhood...or quit a residence." He also pointed out that perhaps they are a little different than "us," because "...they are interested in doing and learning their job well...whereas we are only interested in gain or getting ahead."

The first speaker for the residents against the rezoning was Mrs. Rosella Humes who mainly objected to the fact that there wasn't enough yard

"front, back or side" to accommodate this number of people. Mrs. Humes also called for a reversion of property classification which had heretofore been rezoned back to its original classification. Mayor Cahall said, "this is not the issue here tonight."

Historical Review Of First National Bank Of Harrington

Last week we discussed the early days of the Bank from its formation.

From 1888 to the turn of the century the Bank continued to grow. It was the only Bank in the Community until The Peoples Bank opened their doors in 1905. After the turn of the century, the Bank, like every other entity and person went through the war years of WWI. Charles D. Murphy, a director of the Bank had extensive lumber holdings, and he began to amass large amounts of money through selling lumber for the wooden ships of WWI. Other enterprising events took place which lifted the Bank into a successful and prominent institution.

In January 1925, it was recorded at one Board meeting that the directors would now receive as pay $1.00 for each mortgage serviced. The Bank had growing pains, and it was believed that it should be relocated to the central part of the community. Where the Post Office sits now, there was a string of stores, but the Bank saw the opportunity of putting the Bank where it is today and cutting a street beside it where Fleming Street comes today. In February 1925 a special board meeting was held by an eager and aggressive group of bank directors. At that meeting the decision was made to purchase the property known as the Dickerson Hotel as the new location for the Bank. On March 4, 1925, the Bank through the efforts of W. T. Moore and D. B. Tharp, purchased the Dickerson Hotel for $12,000. There were tenants living in the hotel and in September of that year, the tenants were notified to give up possession at the end of the year. One tenant, Mr. Ballas (the Greek) who presumably ran the candy store where the present office building for The Harrington Journal and Farrow Realty now sits, had a lease, and he did not want to leave the hotel. The committee to purchase the hotel was also instructed to see to it that Mr. Ballas was moved and formulate plans for the erection of a new bank building. This was in January of 1926. In March of that year the Chancellor rules in favor of the bank and all tenants were removed from the hotel building. In April 1926 the hotel was auctioned off for $316.

Frederica Gets Two New Businesses

FREDERICA - At Wednesday night's council meeting, Franklin and Jacqueline Rae were granted a building permit to open up a game room at the corner of David and Market Streets. It is to be open six days a week and closed on Sundays.

Fred White, who owns White's Restaurant, had pinball machines in his place of business. The restaurant is now under new management who did not want the pinball machines. This allowed the opportunity for the new establishment.

The other business is the laundrymat in the former 66 gas station on old #113 alter in front of the fire hall. It is under the name of J & J (Guy Johnston). Mr. Johnston had requested an estimate on water costs. The Town Council is studying what the costs will be, and will make a recommendation at the next meeting. The council members agreed that it should be a figure which would favor a commercial rate.

The members of the hotel property committee were Charles Murphy, William I. Masten, Loren B. Harrington, Warren T. Moore and D. B. Tharp. The costs of the new bank were estimated as follows: the outside of the building was to be of granite and Indiana limestone walls laid in place at a cost of $8,500. The vault door, safe deposit boxes and night safe was to run $7,490. Tile and marble for the inside of the building at the tellers counters would be marble as was the wainscoting on the walls in matching marble. This would be $487. All lumber for the building would cost $1,808.36. The ornate carved metal ceiling would be $841.70. The structured steel would come to $776. Two thousand, four hundred pounds of reinforcing iron 3/4" would cost $98. There would be five 10" x 13" steel beams at a cost of $697. The bank vault door would cost $435. These were some of the costs

25 Acts Set For State Fair Talent Contest

Over seventy country music musicians and singers from five states will be appearing at the Delaware State Fair's 2nd Annual Country Music Talent Competition Semifinals on Sunday, July 23. The show, expected to run about five hours, will be a grandstand attraction scheduled to begin at 6 p.m.

The musicians and singers comprise 25 acts which will be competing for the right to appear in the finals show which will be held at the fair on Tuesday evening, July 25. Only six of the semi-finalists will be selected by a panel of judges to be in the finals competition.

Prizes for the finals include a $300 cash award, a handsome trophy and a recording session at Birch Sound Studio, Secretary, Maryland, for the first place winner. A trophy and $150 cash will go to the 2nd place winner and $100 cash and a trophy will be awarded to the third place winner of the finals.

So that the show would not be too lengthy only the first 25 acts that signed up were taken for the semi-finals. According to producer Dennis Hazard, however, this year's response was overwhelming and many acts were turned down.

All types of country music will be represented in the semi-finals including country rock, country gospel, country and western and bluegrass. Several acts from last year's show will be returning to try their luck again. There are 11 single acts, 13 bands and one duet entered in the competition. Nearly every locality in Delaware is represented by an act with entries also from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Virginia.

A special appearance will be made at the conclusion of the semi-finals competition by the Levi's & Lace Square Dance Club. The group, in colorful dress, will give an exhibition of square dancing while the judges select the six semi-finalists.

The semi-finals gets underway at 6:00 p.m. on Sunday, July 23 and tickets are on sale now at the fair office in Harrington.

Some of the area performers are as follows: "The King's Three", Felton, De.; "The Astrotones", Seaford, De.; Peggy Mills and Laura Winters Watha Hostetler, "Time Space Continued", Milford, De.; Rich McNabb, Vineland, N.J.; Rick Marone, Elmer, N.J.; "Sourmach", Greensboro, Md.; Jeff Medford, Federalsburg, Md.; Bruce Ivins and the "Country Boys", "Easy Livin'", Centreville, Md.; "Praise-makers", Lincoln, De.; Grey Kelsey, Greenwood, De.; Kathi Hopkins, Harrington, De.

FREDERICA - At the council meeting last Wednesday night, Mayor George (Bud) Nashold read a letter aloud into the record which he had received from the county office in charge of the C.E.T.A., the Federally funded agency for the state.

The recent town police chief Ray Wood had charged that Mayor Nashold had illegally spent CETA funds. Upon audit and investigation by this agency, it was found that Mayor Nashold had not committed any infractions. Wood had made the charges to the CETA office, who in turn asked for an accounting of CETA expenditures for the Town of Frederica.

Nashold read the exchange of letters aloud at the Town Meeting. The CETA investigator had

Houston Looks To State Police For Help, Hears Proposal For Economic Development

HOUSTON - The Town Council of Houston met last Thursday night and heard Councilman Theodore (Ted) Yerkes say, "that I believe it is high time the Town of Houston got out of the police business." The Town has had nothing but frustrations when it comes to hiring police officers.

When Tom Francovic resigned several months ago, the Town has been unable to hire a suitable replacement. The Council recently turned their attentions to CETA, the Federally funded program designed to create jobs. For Yerkes, this has been another form of frustration, for a scheduled meeting last week to interview candidates produced nothing, for the candidates did not show.

Just prior to Thursday's meeting, two candidates for the job appeared before the Council in private, but according to the Council members, "these candidates were not acceptable."

The reason cited for being unacceptable was the fact that they had not been to the police academy. With that, Yerkes asked Council to vote to get rid of the police equipment which includes a car believed to be on the brink of quitting. According to Yerkes, "The car stalled a couple of times in attempting pursuit of another vehicle."

All recent police chiefs for the Town have lived out of town, and according to Yerkes, "...by the time they get back in Town for the emergency call, it takes 20 minutes. You would be just as well off to have the State Police protection, for it would not take them any longer to get here."

Mrs. Madeline Quillen who several meetings back had presented Council with a signed list of those who wished to have a police officer for the Town, said, "There are 30 widows in this small Town and they are going to be upset with this decision."

Yerkes pointed out that Mrs. Quillen has been the only one coming to the meetings and voicing her desire for a police officer. Two other ladies from the community who were present for the meeting said they did not have any fear of living in the Town. They did not feel unprotected. Yerkes pointed out that the State Police "could possibly give us added stepped up protection."

The Town plans to hold an auction and sell all police equipment sometime toward the end of this month. The CETA program is merely a temporary thing. "It might be out of money this time next year and then the Town would have to pick up the expense, and we cannot afford that," said Yerkes.

In other matters before the Council, Jack Nylund of Milford presented an economic development program for the Town. They are required to first fill out a questionnaire and set up a committee to work with Nylund and the Council. Nylund said, "You must assess your strengths and weaknesses, and correct them." Nylund said, "The funds will be coming from Economic Development Agency (EDA) for about 70 percent with HUD throwing in about 30 percent."

Yerkes asked, "...If it is possible to annex land and develop an industrial park out of it." Nylund said he thought that there was that possibility. The Office of Economic Development Program (OEDP) is the State agency which makes the decision on who gets the money in the final analysis.

For many meetings now, the Town has been trying to settle the matter of Sunset Avenue, part of which belongs to Mrs. Edna P. Sapp. A dedicated plot shows a 40 ft. right of way back to the western most portion of the street. The proposal made by Mrs. Sapp at Thursday's meeting was to dedicate a roadway 20 feet x 50 feet beyond the present development, which goes approximately two lots beyond Francis Simpson's residence. The Town agreed to reject her proposal and Councilman Yerkes called for a vote on making the strip through there 40 feet by 50 feet. The Council agreed on this. The matter will go back to Mrs. Sapp for her approval or disapproval.

The Council also approved a budget for '78-'79 of $13,155.84. Brook Phillips, who represented the Town in the current Miss Delaware pageant, wrote a letter of thanks for the opportunity to serve her community and her "Town fathers."

Honored On Retirement

Carl C. Schulze, right, retired as a director of Greenwood Trust Company, Greenwood, after 30 years service. Mr. and Mrs. Schulze were presented with an inscribed clock by Bank President, John R. Lyons, center. The retirement dinner was held at Richards Hill and attended by the employees, directors, and their spouses.

CETA Clears Frederica Mayor

Although no names were mentioned, it is thought that former councilmen have urged an audit be made. The period of the audit is for 7 years beginning in '71. No audit has been made since '71. Mayor George "Bud" Nashold who was the mayor then and now has issued a challenge that if the audit turns up wrong doing on his part, he will pay for it. If in the alternative no wrong doing was found, he asks the ones who are requesting the audit to bear the expense since the town does not have the funds.

It was also disclosed that the agency known as "Salle" (State Agency to Local Law Enforcement) which had provided the town with funds for police work had also conducted an audit. One asked for an explanation of certain expenditures such as those for "select material" (fill dirt) of $49.90 to Grier Lumber Co. of $73.02 and $247.10 to Ray Wood for uniform and accessories. These three items totaled just under $400 and CETA by order of Ms. Dee Hartly ordered that the CETA account at Frederica be reimbursed from Town funds in that amount. The explanation was that the CETA funds should be used only for CETA oriented matters, but found no wrong doing beyond that point.

The audit to be made by Rod Johnson will cost between $2100 and $2500, which according to Councilman Gordon "Tom" Betts, "...the Town cannot afford it and there isn't anything wrong with the books."

was instructed to proceed to build the bank "as soon as practical." Shortly thereafter the old bank building where The Harrington Journal printing operations is located today was put up for sale with sealed bids as being the appropriate method of disposing of the property. There were no takers at a price the Board sought. Later on Nov. 30, 1927 the Bank building was sold to J. Harvey Burgess for $6,000. The newspaper remained in that building up until the WWII years when a shortage of young men due to the war caused a temporary halt in newspaper operations until after the War. In April 1977, the newspaper was moved to its present location adjacent to the First National Bank Drive-In-Window. As the bank neared completion and set for the Opening Day celebration on March 24, 1928, the Board agreed to purchase 2,000 copies of The Harrington Journal with a full page ad on the back page of the newspaper advertising the opening of the bank. On March 24th 1928, the official opening day of the present banking facilities in Harrington. The opening exercises were by Rev. E.H. Collins pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church and who was the one who threw out the first shovel of dirt for the foundation. Rev. Collins also read from scripture by reciting the first nine verses of the first chapter of Joshua, it being the only chapter in the Bible where success is mentioned. This was followed by a prayer. Some 2,000 persons attended the festivities. Accounts of the day say the Townspeople and those from surrounding areas dignitaries from large city banks and banking companies were in attendance. Refreshments were also served with American roses presented to the ladies and "smokes for the men." "The Hill Billies", which was a string band of radio fame put on a program of music in the afternoon in the community room which was "greatly enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience."

Pharmacists-State Reach Compromise; Medicaid Prescriptions Honored

Pharmacists throughout Delaware are reported to be signing their Medicaid contracts so that they can service their Medicaid patients. The duPont administration offered a compromise to the pharmacists of a $2.50 dispensing fee. This represented an increase from the $2.30 figure that they had offered originally and represents the first increase in the dispensing fee which Delaware pharmacists have received in eleven years.

The omnibus amendment to the budget bill was signed by Governor Pierre

S. duPont, IV, early this morning. It provided that pharmacists will receive a $2.50 dispensing fee until a survey of the cost of dispensing prescriptions can be completed by outside consultants. At that time the State will provide a fee that is more in conformity with each pharmacy's costs and services. This law requires a yearly re-evaluation of the fee levels. It is with addition of these provisions that the pharmacists have agreed to sign their contracts.

While the $2.75 rate of reimbursement per prescription which the pharmacists had sought represented a compromise from $3.00 which the pharmacists felt was justified, Society President Martin J. Uffner, R.Ph., said, "We feel we reached a compromise that most pharmacists can live with until the survey is completed. We were pleased that we were able to arrive at a solution which enables pharmacists to continue serving Medicaid patients at not so great a loss and appreciate the willingness of the legislature to be responsive to this long-term problem."

Carl R. June, R. Ph. Elected to Board of Directors of Delaware Pharmaceutical Society.

Kent County Farmers To Certify Crop Acreages

All Kent County farmers are asked to certify their 1978 planted acreage, set-aside, diversion and other program acreages with the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office, James Metz, chairperson of the county ASCS Committee, said.

"Certification is the procedure by which farmers report their 1978 program acreages as accurately as possible to insure their eligibility for receiving the benefits of price support and disaster, deficiency, diversion, or grazing and haying payments," Metz said.

"In Kent County, the final certification date for program crops: corn, grain sorghum and soybeans, is by August 1," Metz said.

Metz added that growers not participating in the set-aside programs should report their acreages to insure the opportunity to fully participate in future programs.

After certification the ASCS county office will select farms at random for a visit and acreage measurement.

State Legislative Notes

By Thurman Adams Jr.

You've probably read about the General Assembly's all-night session which closed the door on the regular session of the 129th General Assembly, but I didn't see much mention of the important differences between that night session and the many which have gone before it.

The major difference was that this year all the major items of business -- like the budget bill, the bond bill, and supplemental appropriations -- were already out of the way before exhaustion set in and tempers became frayed. As a result, we had a tremendously productive session which just dragged to an end when no more could be accomplished.

Two bills (HB 1139 and HB 1140) which I haven't commented on before also passed the last night. They provide so-called grants-in-aid of almost $6 million to various non-government groups providing key services to our citizens.

These grants are the life blood of some of these agencies and run from a $1,200 grant for the Miss Delaware Pageant to a $25,000 grant to the Delaware State Fair for prizes in the various competitions.

Some of the other grants you might be interested in include: $10,000 to help the Delaware Association of Chiefs of Police run the summer program at Camp Barnes; municipal street grants to help every town in Sussex and Kent Counties maintain their street systems; $10,000 for the Sussex County Community Action nutrition program; $3,500 to help the city of Seaford promote a commercial television channel which will better serve all of Sussex; and $19,353 for the Delmarva Advisory Council.

Other grants include funds for the S.P.C.A. to provide three dog wardens for Sussex County, $4,000 grants to each of the volunteer fire companies plus additional grants of $1,250 to each company which has a rescue truck, training grants of $2,000 each to maintain aerial or platform trucks, and $1,250 to each company which maintains an ambulance for public service.

There's also funds for the veterans organization, senior centers, youth programs, and aid to local law enforcement agencies.

So you see that the grant-in-aid programs, which require a three-quarters vote by the General Assembly, touch nearly everyone's lives in one way or another and are the state's way of helping these organizations which provide such outstanding service to all citizens.

It seems almost certain that the Senate will reconvene later this month or early in August to tie up loose ends and deal with a Superior Court judgeship nomination. As chairman of the Senate Executive Committee, I plan to hold a public hearing on the nomination. The term of President Judge Albert J. Stiffler expires August 2, but I haven't been informed yet whether or not the Governor plans to reappoint Judge Stiffler or send another name to the Senate.

Letter To The Editor

Delmarva Challenges

Sen. Biden's Statements

Dear Mr. Farrow:

Senator Biden's recent statements that Delmarva Power is smugly ignoring the public interest cannot go unchallenged.

The Senator's criticism of Delmarva is based on a lack of factual information and an understanding that we, too, are working to foster positive change that is responsive to our present energy situation.

The Senator says that rate structures should be redesigned to encourage conservation during peak usage periods. We agree and we have taken the initiative in this area. In 1976 we proposed to the Public Service Commission rates designed to provide an incentive for residential customers to reduce usage during peak periods. The Commission has not taken action pending further studies and information on that proposal. This year we filed revised "peak load pricing" rates which are similar in that they reward customers for reducing their demand during peaks. An optional "Time of day" rate, which requires special metering, is included in our present rate filing. For the record, the Company has had industrial rates for over 30 years that encourage the reduction of electrical demands during peak periods by shifting operations to nighttime or off peak. Since 1982, Delmarva Power has had controllable and interruptible rates for large industrial customers to reduce electrical demand during peak periods of the day. Our residential rates have recognized the seasonal differential between peak and off-peak usage since 1970.

Senator Biden says that our plans for the future contradict national policy. Aside from the fact that our nation does not have a national policy for energy, Delmarva's growth forecast is based on a 4.5% increase in peak demand. The Federal government projects a 5.5% annual growth rate.

Unfortunately, we are not able to plan generating facilities for the future within the framework of a national energy policy. In the absence of such a policy, planning is difficult and we often find that "the rules change in the middle of the game." It takes 8-10 years to design, obtain permits, construct and place in service a major power plant.

Senator Biden is misinformed about our commitment to energy conservation. This is disturbing since Delmarva has been in the forefront in promoting efficient use of energy. We were instrumental in bringing "Project Conserve" to Delaware and making it available to our 171,000 Delaware customers in 1978.

The energy situation concerns all of us. It is a situation for which there are no easy solutions. The problem is aggravated by a high inflation rate and the lack of a workable energy policy. These are areas where Senator Biden's efforts are needed.

Sincerely,
E. F. Spear
Vice President

Jobs For Delaware Graduates

By Governor Pete duPont

Few problems in this nation are more vexing than the problem of youth employment. Over one-half of the 7 million unemployed persons in this country are under the age of 25; one-third of those persons between the ages of 16 and 19 who are unemployed are minority youth, and one-sixth of all teenagers are out of work.

The statistics are alarming. Many of the problems confronting this nation are directly tied to the fact that many people are unemployed. That is why I proposed last week a program that is both far-reaching and comprehensive in its attempt to find work for every high school senior who wants a job upon graduating.

This program will commit the State of Delaware to provide assistance toward career placement -- in a job, in the armed forces, higher education or an approved training program for every high school senior in the class of 1980. The program will begin to serve the majority of the students from the class of 1979 as well.

The program is simple in that it works with business, labor, the schools and the various levels of government and community groups in an attempt to find jobs for young people as well as to provide job training to those teenagers. A follow-up period during the first nine months of employment will assist the students.

All of Delaware must be involved in this program. We need the ideas and efforts of teachers, private industry, government agencies, parents and students if we are to succeed. Before the program is finalized, we need input and commitment from all the groups. Moreover, we need the support of businesses to help us locate jobs for students and a commitment to help us train those students during their senior year in high school.

Nothing of this nature has yet to be done in the nation. But because of Delaware's unique size and diversity, I believe the program can be successful. If we can provide each and every high school graduate with the opportunity to secure a job, then we can begin to make a dent in one of the most difficult problems facing our state and nation.

Safety Tips

The Delaware Safety Council advises bicyclists to avoid riding in the rain. When raining, the brakes become damp and the traction is reduced.

The summer sun's glare can temporarily blind a motorist if his windshield is dirty. The Delaware Safety Council reminds motorists to make sure their windshields are clean, both inside and out.

What do toothpaste, ice cream, waterproofed cloth, beer and certain fertilizers all have in common? Algae? That's right, algae.

Seaweed utilization is nothing new in the Orient. In fact, not only is algae used, but more than 75 percent of the seaweed harvested each year in Japan, Korea and China is consumed directly. One variety, laver, is a particular favorite in Japan. Sold in fragile, darkly mottled sheets, the algae imparts a subtle flavor to soups and to the spicy fish or rice dumplings it is frequently used to wrap. At other times, it may simply be toasted and eaten alone -- as we might snack on potato chips.

So popular is this food that the Japanese even cultivate laver -- with relative ease. Bamboo placed on the sea floor gives the algae "holdfasts," or footed stalks, a surface for attachment. Since its growth period requires no tending by the sea farmers they may abandon the crop completely until harvest time.

Such attention to seaweed and its culinary value has not been limited to eastern cultures. Vendors in Edinburgh, Scotland sold a brown algae called sugar wrack as late as the mid-19th century. Dulse, a reddish algae found along our coast, was relished in Scotland and Ireland. The Boston Irish continued the penchant for this seaweed and commonly sold it on the streets. An acquired taste, dulse is said to have an agreeable flavor when chewed slowly between meals. It is still eaten in the maritime provinces of Canada and by health devotees elsewhere. As far as palatability to the uninitiated is concerned, the first taste of a seaweed is bound to be anything from bland or mildly disagreeable to absolutely revolting. For those truly adventurous souls who would still like to give algae a chance, Euell Gibbon's book, Stalking The Blue-Eyed Scallop, offers a chapter on eating those seaweeds found on our shores, including tips on which seaweeds may be eaten fresh, and which should be dried or boiled.

Despite its apparent popularity in other parts of the world, there is no need to feel that we are wasting a valuable resource by not succumbing to the gourmet charms of seaweed. Actually, seaweed has very little nutritional value. Unlike land plants which develop root systems and therefore acquire soil nutrients, seaweed's holdfasts serve only to attach the plant. All nutrition acquired by the plant must be absorbed through the "fronds" or its leaves. Harvested seaweed is low in fat and protein content; therefore yielding little of the energy we expect from most foods. Algae may be considered primarily significant, however, for its wealth of vitamins and trace elements needed in minute quantities by our bodies.

Seaweed is also used in much of the world as cheap, effective fertilizers and even supports sheep herds in the British Isles which have no other food offerings for much of the year. In the United States, seaweed is used primarily for its derivatives. Brown algae, including giant kelp, yield an extract known as algin which is very similar in properties to the extract, carageenin, derived from red algae. When added to food, industrial products or drugs, algin and carageenin have the ability to produce liquid or semi-solid mixtures from ingredients which would not normally combine -- such as oil and water. This is done by suspending one component in minute particles or droplets within the mixture. In addition to guarding against separation of unlike materials (thus stabilizing mixtures), seaweed extracts also thicken and gel the products in which they are included.

The most important use of these extracts, as far as most children are concerned, is in ice cream where their inclusion helps to prevent crystallization and separation of fats. Other uses are: covering fish with thin films of extract to prevent freezer burn; stabilizing and thickening foods like soup, mayonnaise and puddings; and suspending particles in items ranging from toothpaste to beer to insecticides. Red algae, represented by laver, dulse and Irish moss on this continent, also reduce to an extract known as agar, a gel well-known by any scientist who has ever cultured bacterial colonies in a laboratory. Besides being vital to the pharmaceutical industry, agar is used in preserving canned foods, and in cloth and paper waterproofing.

Following the example set by the Japanese, whose first experiments with algae cultivation occurred in 1736, the U.S. is finally getting rolling on its own seaweed farming attempts. We are even investigating the possibility of using the waste energy from power plants, as well as sewage nutrients to enhance algal growth. Artificial farms, consisting of mechanically tended tanks providing aeration and water renewal, are being intensively explored and so far, have been found to be cheaper and more effective in terms of growth rates, control of product quality and labor costs than natural bed tending. With as much as 60 times the profit obtained from earlier cultivation methods, artificial tank farming of those highly important algae is sure to be an industry you will hear much more about in the coming years.

Bi-Partisan Appropriations-Cutting Task Force Organized

WASHINGTON - A bipartisan appropriations-cutting task force has been formed in the United States Senate.

Senator Bill Roth (R-Del.), having successfully pared the Treasury, White House and Independent Agencies appropriations by 2% on a healthy 54-34 vote, knew he was not the only Senator with the same idea or inclination. Roth contacted key Senators on both sides of the aisle who share his philosophy for weeding out fat, waste, and mismanagement in Federal agencies, which formed.

On each appropriations vote, an "efficiency cut amendment" will be drafted to fit the specific appropriation. This will vary in procedure and format to fit the individual circumstances of the various appropriations measures.

Study Piece Of USS Monitor

Part of a piece of iron plating recovered by professional divers last year from the wreck of the sunken Civil War ironclad, U.S.S. Monitor, is now being studied for its magnetic and metallurgical properties by an associate professor and a graduate student in the University of Delaware's department of geology.

Dr. Robert Sheridan of the U. of D. faculty, one of the original discoverers of the wreck of the Monitor, and Everly Keenan of Amosland Road, Morton, Pa., who is working toward a doctorate, are conducting laboratory magnetic measurements of the sample to determine how well other pieces possibly buried at the site could be detected by remote magnetic measurements Dr. Sheridan has available.

The Delaware researchers also are relating the magnetic properties of the plate to its corrosion state, and they hope to then be able to predict the extent of decay of the rest of the ship's iron.

The Monitor was the first gunboat armed with a revolving turret. The famed battle between the Monitor and the armored Confederate vessel, the Merrimac, ended the era of wooden fighting ships.

The watery grave of the Monitor is 220 feet deep and some 16 miles off the coast of Cape Hatteras, N.C., near the edge of the continental shelf. The Monitor sank in a raging gale Dec. 31, 1862, while under tow by the U.S.S. Rhode Island after the historic battle with the Merrimac at Hampton Roads, VA. The ironclad was to have used to perfect the naval blockade of the South.

Dr. Sheridan's iron sample is from a deck plate recovered in 1977 during an operation carried out under the supervision of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). NOAA closely controls all research at the Monitor wreck site, since it is now a national marine sanctuary.

The recovered deck plating was cut by a laser under a government contract and was distributed nationwide to select scientists and institutions for various scientific tests. Parts of the plating are now being analyzed at the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D.C., the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the L. LaQue Laboratory in N.C. and the Texas Antiquities Research Laboratory in Austin.

Dr. Sheridan is the elected president of the Monitor Research and Recovery Foundation, a non-profit, tax-exempt corporation actively trying to promote recovery of the historic vessel. The foundation holds the permit from NOAA to carry out research at the wreck site, aimed at eventual recovery of the Monitor, its preservation and ultimate display for the public.

Presently, Dr. Sheridan and the foundation are planning a possible return trip to the site at the end of the summer for further undersea exploration.

Pit Chatter

By Harry G. Farrow, Jr.

We interviewed Scott Morris of Federalsburg on Saturday night and it went like this: Last week you said that you were going to make some changes in your car. What kind of changes did you make? Morris said, "We got a new carburetor and added a few new leaf springs. We hope to have stopped some of the spinning problems that we had last week. We put some torque in the rear end to help shift the weight. We also put some spacers between the springs to lift it off the ground a little more. The fellow that had the car before me had small block. He didn't have that much power and was not getting the good bite, but I hope to correct that situation." Scott has installed the drivers seat in the center of the car. He said "...the reason that I decided to do this because it gives the driver better protection from both sides. This is the first week in which we have gotten the car to run right, and we are closer this week than last week in getting it together." Scott is employed by Breedings Auto Center in Federalsburg as a body mechanic.

We had a "new player" Saturday night at Delmar in Walt Smith of Allentown, Pa. He was driving car #44 and was part of the team which came with Dave Kelly (#27). Kelly also drives the #44 on Friday nights at Reading. Smith said that he last year at Reading, but he really likes the Delmar track. I have not started at Reading this year. I have been driving at other tracks. The car was heating up on Saturday night, and Smith said "...a pulley was loose and it built up too much pressure." Smith also works as a mechanic on Mac trucks.

Talked to George Chaney of Diamond State Truck Brokers, Inc. of Milford on Saturday night as car #19 with Harold Bunting behind the wheel continues to run up front. On Friday night at Georgetown he won the heat, feature and second in the feature. Asked George if this was the best the car has run since Daytona. He said "...we were proud of her in Florida. She and Harold made a good showing. The car has had some problems since that time, but the boys...Harvey Dutton and Harold have really been working on the car, and it is beginning to pay off." Bunting told The Journal some time back that he would continue to run the carburetor until the car started handling right. He then would go back to the fuel injection. As of Saturday night, he still had not changed back to fuel injection. According to Chaney "...there has never been a problem with the motor...it was just in the handling."

Bill Trice, right, soaks the carburetor on son Gary's #33 modified Friday night. David Trice, the other third of the race team, holds the light.

Girl Rider Holds Her Own At Lincoln Speedway

LINCOLN SPEEDWAY, LINCOLN, De. - Lisa Niner is only 16 years old, but with six years of racing skills behind her, she can stick right with the big boys. She says that she has good teachers, for she baby sits for big time cyclists Gary Nixon and Denny Palmgren. According to her father, both cyclists say that Lisa has the ability to go all the way.

She is the only girl to make expert point by coming up through "B" class. Her father says that she works hard. Although her father does all the mechanical work, "Lisa is capable of doing some too." She can adjust the chain and strip it down when it comes to working on the transmission.

Lisa is a rising Junior and hails from Monkton, Md. She rides a 125 Yamaha in the expert class. Lisa hasn't won any races yet, but she has been second twice this year. She won #1 Plate in the Youth Division in '76 for dirt tracks. She is a member of the Baltimore County Trail Riders Association.

Lisa says that it doesn't scare her to ride fast, but she would prefer to do so on a larger track than Lincoln. She was referring to a 5/8's mile track as opposed to the 1/4 mile at Lincoln. She says that the Lincoln track is one of the best that she runs on however.

Lisa is also a good student. Her father says that he and her mother have never had any problems with Lisa. She maintains a "B" average in school. She likes all subjects but math and hopes to go to college, but right now her big hopes are to run on the Camel Pro Circuit. She could do that now, "...but I would prefer to hold her back until she gets a little more experience," said her father.

Musser Wins Big At Bridgeport

Calvin Musser, III running his Sportsman Saturday night won the feature for the first time at Bridgeport. Musser, who won the heat race, started 9th in the 15 lap feature. Midway through the race he took the lead and held on for the win. Contacted at his home Calvin said "...we were real lucky even though the car was really running well, because a few more laps and we might have wrung the axle. It appeared after the race when we pulled the axle that the spines were twisted." Musser drives '73 Gremlin with a 301 c.i. motor. "After the race they pumped her twice (measuring the compression) because they thought she was illegal, but she wasn't. She came up to 300 c.i." According to Calvin this was the same motor he used when he won at the Fair last year in Harrington. Calvin got $300 for the win. Before this past weekend he was 7th in the points standing at Bridgeport. He thought that he would move up since some of the drivers were absent.

Lincoln Speedway Attracts Large Number Of Riders

Racing resumed at Lincoln Speedway on July 1st after two nights rained out. One hundred and thirty six riders competed for trophies and cash awards. The track conditions were fantastic and racing action was at its best. Several riders found the fast track conditions more than they could handle with subsequent crashes in evidence. Several minor injuries were reported but nothing serious. Tri state competition at Lincoln has been conducive to tight and very competitive racing. On a basis of amateur competition, Lincoln Speedway offers the spectator a lot of excitement for his or her dollar. The next race is scheduled for Saturday night July 15th.

Wheelstanders Delight Crowd At U.S. 13 Dragstrip

By Bruce B. Levy

The U.S. 13 Dragway hosted the "Smokey and The Bandit" wheelstander show Sunday and "The Bandit" scored one for the bad guys by stealing the event with two straight spectacular wins.

Before the first run, Tommy Maras, driver of the "Smokey Bear," and Jack Esterhaus pilot of "The Bandit," spoke to the large and appreciative audience through a special C.B. radio hook-up with the track P.A. system for their cars.

When the lights signaled to go, the two 1500 HP wheelstanders leaped forward with noses pointed toward the evening sky and the crowd went wild. Flowing lines of sparks from the scraping of the "wheelie bars" against the pavement ignited small fires in the grass along the track as the two cars raced side by side toward the finish line. "The Bandit" tripped the timers first, 10.54 seconds at 123.2 mph to "Smokeys" slightly crossed up 11.61, 115.1 mph.

In the second round, "The Bandit" came off the line 20 feet in front of "Smokey" and never looked back, taking the match 10.33 seconds at 124.9 mph to 12.15, 80.1 mph. To the delight of everyone, at no time during the competition runs did either car touch the front wheels to the ground.

Also scheduled for the evening was a free drawing for a Triple "B" Cycle Center sponsored 3-wheeled, 5 hp, Tri Sport trike. The winner was 14 year old John Clogg of Dagsboro, Delaware.

The top Super Pro division winner was Vernon Russel of Dover. Russel had a successful weekend in his hot 68 Camaro as he also dominated a large, tough field at Capital Raceway on Saturday. The final round victory came at the expense of Dale and

Daniel Turner's Georgetown based 34 Ford Coupe, "DDT EXPRESS."

Low qualifier money was pocketed by the team of Buck Wheatly and Don Teats in their funny car bodied Vega, "Heart-breaker Too", going 9.83 seconds at 136.4 mph as the Cambridge natives continue to get the feel of this awesome piece of machinery.

In first round action, Russel beat Wheatly on the basis of Wheatly's too quick time of 9.77 seconds on a 9.80 dial in.

Next, Seaford's John Theofiles unveiled his new 1978 car (Algas Camero) with a win over Newark Md.'s Jay Bradford. Theofiles is always known to construct a quick race car.

Mike Passwaters roadster, "Rats Brew II" put Elmer Gorden on the trailer home to Union Bridge Md. and Dan Turner eliminated Bobbie Adkins.

The second round saw Passwaters fall victim to the bright red light allowing opponent Turner a free trip to the finals. Theofiles then lined up against Russel and turned a strong 10.07 second quarter mile but it wasn't quite good enough as Russel's .70 second spot and fine take-off got him to the finish line a few feet ahead in a close one.

In the finals, it was Russel taking advantage of a slow get-away by the Turner team for the win. His winning time was 10.45 at 110.0 mph.

Ocean View's Paul Cooper dominated the Pro ranks this week with a final round win over Sonny Johnson's wheelstanding 56 Nomad wagon 11.46 to 11.72. Semi finalists were Ed Smith of Pocomoke City Md. and Millsboro's Richard Clark.

In Heavy Eliminator division competition, Bob Johnson lived up to his reputation as being one of the top 4-speed shifters in the east as he piloted his class 312 cubic inch, 275 hp, '57 Ford past runner up Bill Groton. Johnson, a Millsboro native, Timed the starting lights perfectly to get out well in front of Groton's "Crime Fighter" GTO. With Groton closing rapidly, Johnson stopped timers first with a time of 13.90 seconds at 88.2 mph.

Semi finalists for the Heavy division were Ronnie Bishop of Salisbury, Sterling Clough of Crisfield Md.

Another Salisbury resident, Charles DeHaven returned to the Street Eliminator winners circle driving a '70 Duster in the finals over Horntown Va.'s Marvin Travis's "Chevy In Action" six cylinder Nova.

Semi finalists were James Truit of Berlin Md., New Castle's Art Thayer and Ronald Lewis of Millsboro.

THE

Michael Myers and father Paul "Buck" Myers.

Michael and Paul "Buck" Myers at Delmar U.S. #13 Speedway.

Paul "Buck" Myers hails from Hertford, Pa. near Allentown. He is presently connected with racing on Delmarva with Norris Reed's Racing team.

Myers remembers competing against Reed at the Georgetown oval in the late 50's. Another great driver of those days was "Fuzzy" Woodward. In '54 Myers owned, maintained and drove his own car. It was a sportsman "...flat head V8 Ford," according to Myers. It is still in his possession, and he is rebuilding it in spare moments wh he gets a chance. His son Michael will race it next year.

Myers is not only successful at the racing game where he works hard during the week and weekends but he finds time to run a successful trucking operation in Hertford. Myers owns 22 tractors and 32 trailers where it is a proven business and lucrative too. With all this, Myers travels some weekends 600 miles just to race. His weekend might be from Allentown to Georgetown and back to Allentown then to Delmar and back...by way of Federalsburg and Smithville.

Myers hooked up with Norris Reed at the beginning of the year when Reed went to Florida to race with Foyt's crew at Daytona. Myers went along but his chief duty was seeing to it that the #1 Smithville Farms Chevy was ready for the dirty tracks around Daytona. They campaigned very successfully. Prior to joining Reed, he worked full time with Dave Kelly (#17) where he says "...Kelly is a good friend...one of the best friends I ever had. He is like a brother to me. I learned a lot from him and I hope that I helped him as well. While with Kelly, they raced as much as three times a week."

"Buck" Myers is married to the former Shirley Elper. They have one child at home now. "We would like to find a place down here in the Eastern Shore so that we could come down more frequently. Asked what makes a successful racing team and he said "a driver who finishes races...one who is easy going." "That's Walt Breeding" so says Myers but he also adds that "it is 50% driver and 50% car."

Myers just completed a trip to N.Y. where he campaigned with Norris Reed's Smithville Farms #1 driven by Walt Breeding. "The car was handling good...and the car is competitive...but we are having the breaks at the wrong time," said Myers. Myers concluded the interview by saying that he hopes he can find a place to spend the weekend on the Delmarva Peninsula and Eastern Shore for he loves it here - and that includes the racing..."where it is at it's best."
