

With sixteen hands around, a square becomes a circle as dancers demonstrate at last Friday's barn dance at Welch's Seed Service. Before a thunderstorm thinned the crowd, there was standing room only as the community responded to the festive spirit of this Heritage Day preview. Look more Heritage pictures on page 8.

"It's up to you-----"

"Guardians and creators of the past, it's up to you..." With these words, Dr. Claudia Bushman encouraged Heritage Day celebrants to continue their efforts to search out and preserve Harrington's history. Dressed in authentic costume dating from about the 1890's, Dr. Bushman spoke to some fifty or sixty people who gathered on the lawn in front of the city hall to hear her keynote to the Heritage Day festivities.

Her address was followed by a panel discussion "What Happened Here and What Could Happen" in which five participants recalled the Harrington they could remember, its business and industry, its educational facilities, its government and police protection. The panel was moderated by Connie Quillen. It's four members were Norman Smith, Irene Welch, William Leroy Parker and Mayor Arthur Cahall.

Our heritage, said Dr. Bushman, comes by birth and by adoption. She explained that although her ancestors came to his country sometime after the American revolution, participation in the Bicentennial re-creations of history around Boston made the Revolution her own. By the same token, she has "adopted" Delaware's heritage since coming here two years ago and feels that Harrington is, in a sense, her town since she came here early this year to lead a course in uncovering the history and genealogy of the area.

The people of Harrington, Dr. Bushman claimed, can have a great deal to do with the way in which this community's history is preserved and the way in which it will be remembered in the future. Generations to come may look on those who were instrumental in bringing about such community events as Heritage Day and say, "These were people who cared."

She encouraged the newspaper clippers, the collectors of memorabilia, the recorder of oral history, the preservers of tradition and those who delve into the dusty records of the past to continue. Whatever is preserved now, she said, will be valued by someone in the future. She specifically mentioned Elbert Stevens' model of Harrington in 1918 as a contribution that will help this community recall its heritage long after the current generation is past.

In addition to what she called her "4th of July rhetoric", Dr. Bushman also presented a glimpse of some of Harrington's "prehistory" gleaned

Council says "No"

"I'm ashamed. The only way to change things is to change some Councilmen." These were just two of the comments offered by irate citizens after the Harrington City Council in a stormy session last night denied a rezoning request that would have allowed an apartment complex for senior citizens to be built on a parcel of ground on Peck Avenue.

The motion to keep the two parcels of land in question in their current IMP (Industrial-Manufacturing) zoning was made by Councilman William Dill. Its approval by a 4-2 vote effectively decided the question against the rezoning. Voting to retain the industrial zoning were Councilman Brode, Dill, Lobo and Wyatt. Councilmen Harrington and Newman were opposed.

An earlier motion by Gary Harrington to hold a public referendum on the question was turned down by the same margin by the same Councilmen. The referendum

Blaze Levels Wamsley's Barn

HARRINGTON - A fire broke out in the loft of Wilson Wamsley's pony barn late Monday afternoon. Wamsley was cutting grass a good distance from the structure when he saw smoke coming out of the eaves. He rushed to the barn and when he reached the loft he saw flames on top of several bales of hay and straw "that reminded me of candles burning. Of course it wasn't, the flames were shaped that way", said Wamsley.

He left the loft area and headed for the hose. When he opened up the pump, he discovered that there was no force, which leads him to believe that an electrical spark probably was the cause of the fire. He was able to get all the animals out of the burning structure except 3 pigs in the rear of the building. He tried to retrieve them but by that time the fire and smoke were so intense that he had to struggle to get out of the fiery entrapment. Wamsley was recently hospitalized in Milford where he underwent an operation.

Low Oxygen Results In Fish Kill

Two fish kills were reported last week resulting in the killing of tens of thousands of menhadens.

On Thursday, the menhadens were discovered floating on the surface of the Murderkill River by the thousands. Friday saw the same phenomenon occur in the Saint Jones, but authorities believe it was the same kill simply washed into the St. Jones on the tide.

At first, officials felt that the Kent sewage treatment plant contributed to the kill by releasing partially treated sewage that depleted the oxygen supply in the river. But others suspect that natural conditions were the real cause.

A school of bluefish were thought to have attacked the menhadens and sent them swimming up the Murderkill which depleted the oxygen supply at low tide.

Although the exact cause of the massive kill is as yet unknown, experts believe the incident will not seriously affect the numbers of menhadens off the coast.

The Reverend Leah Coleman delivered the Benediction at opening ceremonies on the library lawn on Heritage Day. The ceremonies ushered in the day's celebration of the first anniversaries of the Harrington Public Library and the Greater Harrington Historical Society.

5 Hospitalized, Heat Blamed

"They found no gas or chemicals of any kind in the building, a doctor in Milford said he believed the workers were overcome by heat," said Delmar Packaging plant manager Joe Esposito after an investigation resulting from Friday's incident that sent 5 employees to the hospital.

At 2 p.m. on Friday, Delmar Packaging workers began to complain of dizziness when an alleged odor swept through the plant. Responding to the situation the Harrington Fire Company evacuated the building and shut off the gas lines. At first, a gas leak was suspected but a thorough investigation could not confirm it. Deputy State Fire Marshal Richard Ward became involved but his office also failed to find a leak.

Delmar Packaging is a specialty printing company located along route 13 in Harrington, 100 employees were in the building when the incident occurred.

Chase Ends In Injury

A high speed chase on August 10 involving Denton and Harrington Police Department ended in injury to a Denton man. Driving a 1973 Yamaha motorcycle, Wilbub Weldon Hullinger started the incident in Denton. Denton police requested the Harrington police to set up a roadblock on Route 14 and Whiteleysburg Road. Hullinger ran the blockade and proceeded through Harrington at a high rate of speed. He made a left on West Street after an encounter with another police car at West and Commerce then ran into a building at 231 Commerce. He was taken to the Delaware Division with a fractured skull. Charges of reckless driving, failure to stop, driving without headlights and no eye protection are pending. Sgt. Jopp was the investigating officer.

On August 11, officers Jopp and Bohn stopped Charles B. Merrill and Kelly Stuck, both of Penn. for speeding on Route 13. As the subjects were acting in a suspicious manner, the officers searched the vehicle and found drugs, paraphernalia and hypodermic needles. The subjects were bound over for the court of Common Pleas. They posted bail and were released.

An accident occurred on August 12 in front of the L&D Electronics in Harrington involving Freida H. Johnson of Harrington and Frank E. Collins also of Harrington. Mrs. Johnson was unhurt but Collins was taken to Milford Memorial Hospital with a sore neck. He was treated and released.

Correction

Last week's Journal we carried a headline, MISPELLION DOG SHOW, that was incorrect. The Mispillion Dog Show will be held August 17 at the Delaware State Fairgrounds.

Woodbridge Board Approves Increased Budget

The Woodbridge Board Monday night approved a tentative budget for the 1979-1980 year for the use of state appropriated Division II and Division III funds as well as for local funds. The figures in these areas come to a total of $601,566 which represents an increase of $81,201 over last year's $520,365.

This total actually represents less than a third of the district budget, which this year, according to Woodbridge Superintendent Griffin, will approach three million dollars. Most of this is in state funded salaries over which the local district has no control. Nearly half of the increase in the three areas mentioned is the result of the projected rise in energy costs and additional salary costs not covered by the state schedule.

The budget as approved is balanced as required by law. But it allows only $10,000 in contingency funds and depends for its balance on a projected $16,200 to be appropriated by the state in special energy funds. In addition to the figures already mentioned, the Woodbridge District will receive $43,981 in Basic Skills funds from the state. Most of this will go for the purchase of new reading and math textbooks. The remainder will allow the district to hire a reading instructor at the high school level.

Mrs. Prettyman Seated

At the outset of Monday's meeting Mrs. Norma Prettyman was sworn in and took her seat on the Woodbridge Board. Mrs. Prettyman was selected by the Board to fill the position vacated by Charles Davis who stepped down to accept the post of principal at Woodbridge High School. She will serve for the remainder of the year which ends July 1, 1980. After that the position must be filled by election. Mrs. Prettyman, who resides near Bridgeville, is a concerned parent who has been active in the local P.T.A.

In other business the Woodbridge Board: -rejected a proposal by Assistant High School Principal William Degan that home football games be changed from Friday nights to 10:30 a.m. Saturday. Energy costs, deterioration of some of the light poles at the field, and crowd control problems after the games were cited as reasons for the proposal. Friday night games will be kept, but at least two of the light poles will have to be replaced in the future. The 90 ft. poles have become hollow above the 40 ft. level. Cost of replacement will be at least $1,000.

-rejected a parent appeal that a student be allowed to attend school in the Seaford District.

-accepted the resignations of Charmaine King as Career Guidance and Placement Coordinator at Woodbridge High School and Marie Shockley as Reading Supervisor/Title I Director for the district.

-hired Stanley Howell as Night Shift Custodial Supervisor at Woodbridge High School. -transferred Peggy Horton from Special Education teacher to Special Education Coordinator.

Mrs. Norma Prettyman

from old census records, tax records, atlases and the like. She was interested, she said in finding out whether the area was more influenced by its extensive agricultural interests or by the growth of the large industrial and commercial region centered in Philadelphia.

The coming of the railroad was perhaps a logical outgrowth of the transportation needs of the mining and industrial interests which developed around Philadelphia in the period between 1840 and 1860. However, the records for at least one year for the port of Milford indicated the value of corn and grains exported from this area to be greater than that of goods that were imported. This, said Dr. Bushman, indicated a healthy local prosperity.

Among the other facts and figures she cited:

Around 1850 about 30% of the adult population was illiterate. But most of the children had attended school at one time or another. This was in the wake of a free school act in 1929 which provided for education, but did not make it mandatory.

Then, as now, most of the people living in this area were born here.

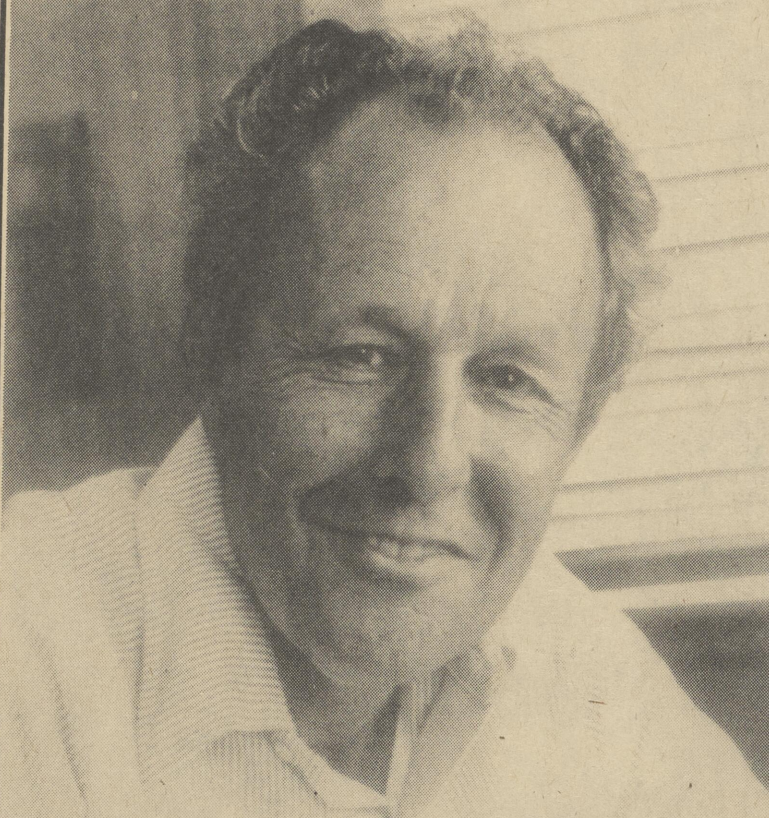

The 1850 Census lumps the population of the Milford and Mispillion Hundreds together without defining the residents of smaller communities.

Dr. Bushman urged the people of Harrington to continue to dig out, to preserve and to celebrate their heritage. She especially cautioned those involved in historical efforts to take care in documenting any research. She emphasized again that the community may largely be remembered by the care taken in preserving its heritage now.

Through the efforts of the Greater Harrington Historical Society, the Harrington Public Library and the Delaware Humanities Forum Dr. Bushman conducted a five week course this year on researching local history and genealogy. Her presentation was so impressive and her enthusiasm so contagious that she was invited to return to address the community on its first Heritage Day.

In My Opinion

By Bruce Levy

In the midst of all the depressing news of late, two separate occurrences developed last week to bolster my faith in our system.

First on the agenda was the KKK march in Alabama. For the first time in anyone's memory, the Alabama police actually enforced the law: they arrested Klan members who were engaged in an illegal march holding a complete arsenal of weapons. This is quite a switch, usually it's the Klan who get the protection and the blacks who get the beatings, abuse and police records. Maybe this is the era of the "New South" and just maybe things are being done differently down there in that bastion of hate and hostility. Martin Luther King brought his people a very long way, it's too bad he was cut down before he could see it. Congratulations Alabama and welcome to the Union.

Next, there is a radical departure from tradition at the United States Military Academy at West Point, the home of our future generals. Vincent K. Brooks has been named Brigade Commander.

So what, you say? It is an historical event as Brooks is a black man, the first to ever assume this role as leader of the cadets. It is usually the black soldier who gets the dirty job in the field and it's good to see a man chosen by ability instead of color. Welcome to the world United States Army.

Maybe some day all people can be judged by their actions and merit instead of their skin color. For now, this seems to be a fine start in the "Land of the Free".

Thoughts From Dover

By Governor Pete du Pont

Lt. Gov. Jim McGinnis will take on the added duties as my special representative for economic development, and will work with businesses, both inside and outside of the state, seeking to expand in Delaware.

The Lt. Governor's special talents and interest in economic development parallels my own desire to see an expanded Delaware economy. His deep understanding of the problems and needs affecting small businessmen and women will make him an invaluable partner in our efforts to attract jobs and investments to the state.

The recent reduction in personal income taxes, coupled with a new attitude by Delawareans for job development makes Delaware a good place in which to do business. A new tax-incentive program, the availability of a labor force and land, and the quality of life here makes it all the more worthwhile for businesses to move to Delaware.

Lt. Gov. McGinnis will work with Secretary Jim Gilliam in leading our state's economic development efforts. The projects on which the Lt. Gov. will work will increase the number of projects state officials can personally pursue.

His assistance will be particularly valuable downstate given his knowledge of the people, the communities and the elected officials and his strong commitment towards economic development.

The Lt. Gov. and I have worked together on several projects, most notably the effort to require a three-fifths vote on all tax increases in the General Assembly and the enactment of tax reductions by the last session of the legislature.

Jim McGinnis will work on such projects as the bringing of high technology businesses from out of state into Delaware and the development of already existing and local businesses. He will also represent the state before business groups around Delaware and throughout the region.

This unified approach to attracting new businesses to Delaware, along with the support of the General Assembly, means that we can attract the number of jobs necessary to ensure a secure and prosperous future for the state.

Sen. William Murphy writes....

I've spoken often in this column about how the state bureaucracy many times ignores the will of the General Assembly, goes far beyond the intent of the General Assembly in rules and regulations to implement a law, or uses loopholes and technicalities to get around laws passed by the General Assembly.

The latest example to come to my attention is a stinkeroo. This year I introduced and the legislature passed a bill (SB 194) to allow any agency of the state to consider such factors as in-state employment, taxes paid, and fees collected in evaluating contract bids between Delaware and out-of-state bidders and to award a contract to a Delaware bidder if its bid was no higher than 2 percent of the out-of-state competitor's bid. The Governor signed the bill into law July 12 and it took effect immediately.

Now I'm informed that the Department of Finance's State Lottery office has notified a Denver, Colo. insurance firm that it was the low bidder on a contract to provide an annuity policy to finance one of those lottery pay-offs of $10,000 a year for 5 years.

The letter, according to my information, went out on July 13—a day after the new law took effect.

And here's the clinker! A Delaware insurance company had submitted a bid of $32,749—only $174 higher than the Colorado firm and well within the 2 percent required by the new law.

We hear a lot from the current Administration about attracting jobs and business to our state, but how can we attract business when the state won't even use a law to give Delawareans preference?

I contacted Mr. Ralph Batch, director of the lottery, and Secretary of Finance Weston P. Nelli in an effort to point out the new law to them. They indicated they knew about the new law but, since they had already notified the Colorado firm it was the low bidder, they planned to proceed to award the contract.

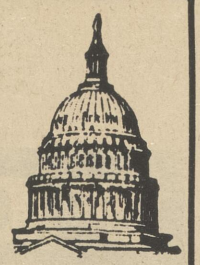

It's becoming almost a daily occurrence these days for Delaware state contracts to be awarded to out-of-state firms who provide no jobs in Delaware, pay no taxes, and contribute nothing but a drain on the state's economy. Often the bids are within a few dollars of each other.

I thought when I introduced SB 194 that state agency heads would be tickled pink to have a law which would allow them to give a little preference to Delaware businesses whose bids were real close to that of an out-of-stater. You can imagine how disgusted I am that the Administration fumbled its first chance to implement the law.

Thoughts From Washington

By U.S. Senator Bill Roth

A little noticed provision in last year's highway bill provides much-needed transportation in rural areas.

With the energy crisis before us, it's plain to see our need for public transportation has become more acute. Not only do we need a mass transportation system, but one that's both accessible and efficient for all citizens in all areas of our country. With this in mind, we, in Congress, have begun working on solutions. Our efforts have been in terms of funding for the planning and implementation of local transit programs.

Last year, we passed the 1978 Federal Surface Transportation Assistance Act, which provides money for this type of local programming. This legislation brought together highway assistance and safety programs with public transportation grants and it was done long before our present crisis.

The Act has already given matching funds to state governments to let them build their own transportation systems in rural and small urban areas.

What does all this mean to Delaware? It means federal money for our transportation needs. Under the 1978 act, Delaware is presently receiving $177,000 for the development and implementation of public transportation in our rural and small urban areas. These funds are administered by the Delaware Department of Transportation to meet specific Delaware needs.

The energy crisis has hit us hard this summer. We have begun meeting our public needs but, I stress, this is only a beginning. We must continue to work with our state and local officials to find long range solutions.

I will continue my work with the Delaware Department of Transportation to see these programs, and others, meet the requirements of Delawareans, especially those on fixed and lower incomes—people who can least afford soaring transportation costs.

Last week I was in Georgetown where I took a test drive in the "Moody Mobile". The mileage this car gets would make it possible to drive the entire length of the State of Delaware using less than two gallons of fuel.

In the hot, humid mid-day heat—the worst possible conditions to test drive an automobile—the engine on this got 67.5 mile per gallon. We drove from just outside of Georgetown to Selbyville on one quart of diesel. The fuel was in an orange juice container in the front seat of the car. The diesel was pumped from the container into the engine's carburetor through the special fuel line, by passing the gasoline tank. If everyone were able to get 67.5 miles per gallon. It would go a long way towards relieving the energy and inflation problems facing our country today.

The "Moody Mobile" is a conventional Mercury Capri, weighing 3,250 pounds. What makes the "Moody Mobile" get such good mileage is the modified diesel engine underneath the hood.

Technological advances like this, developed by Americans, will get us out of the crippling energy crunch and relieve our dependence on oil-rich Middle East sheiks. Our past history proves we can make it through any crisis by using American know-how and creativity as long as advances are not bogged down with Federal red-tape. America has always been at the forefront of technological advancements in the world. In my opinion, allowing Americans to develop new technologies is the real answer to our energy problems.

The Federal Gov. should encourage inventors to come up with new projects, especially new energy-saving products like the "Moody Mobile", for the public's benefit. We've got to cut through the over-regulation that prevents bright people from coming up with a better mousetrap. Then we will be on the road to solving our energy and economic problems.

Gab Fest

By Pat Hatfield

I am reading the most fascinating book entitled "How to Talk to Birds and other uncommon ways of enjoying Nature the year round." by Richard C. Davids. One of the reviews says that "This is for those of us who know that Nature is There, but don't quite know what to do about it. Here is a book that charms, delights and invites by telling us: How to learn to love a swamp; how to attract many varieties of birds to your doorstep (and how to recognize them once they've arrived); how to raise moths in your own bedroom (for enlightenment and pleasure, not for sweaters and overcoats); how to keep an indoor garden prospering, even in January; how best to provision a feeder; how to get a deer every time (by watching, not shooting) how to make sense of field guides; how to offer children a close-up view of the home life of birds - and other ways of introducing them to nature...and more..."

Richard Davids is a native Minnesotan of Norwegian ancestry, and grew up in a large family in Minnesota. He is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and has served as editor of Better Homes and Gardens, and Farm Journal, and advisor to The Lutheran and has contributed to the Readers Digest. He currently lives on a farm in Minnesota which produces no other crop besides wild life. Do read this book, you'll love it. I note that his most recent book is "The Man Who Loved a Mountain". I plan to read that one, also.

Mr. Davids begins his book by quoting from Carlyle... "Life is little gleam between two eternities." But ah, what a gleam, for those who treasure little things!

I love the many beautiful things that this man tells us. On one page he reminds us that a seed once said, "Happiness consists of three things: Something to do; someone to love, and something to look forward to."

If this be the case, I've certainly been happy for the last three or four years work-filled days. I truly had something to do! By the time I got settled at home again with Dad safely out of the hospital, we were confronted and surrounded by 14 baskets of lima beans, 5 baskets of tomatoes, and more sweet corn than you shake a stick at. We gave away what we could and bravely tackled the rest with the help of a good and faithful friend who came to help.

The next requirement is someone to love: And that one is easy! Sometimes I think my capacity will never take care of all the things I love so tremendously. All blessings are beautiful, but the very greatest is the love friends. Through that, we can understand dimly the great love of our Heavenly Father.

The next and third requirement for happiness if something to look forward to. How I hurt for those who do not have this. It is the very essence of life for which the rest was made. When I go to bed at night, I look forward to another sunrise, another bird sing, another day to savor. Who knows what a new day might bring? My prayer is that it will bring each of your heart's desire. Thank you for reading me.

Representing the Marching Spartans, Lake Forest High School, were Rifle Captain and Co-Captain, Sharon Jester and Diane Pendry, Flag Captain Jane Reiridon and Drum Major-ette Marsha Moore.

These eight dedicated bands people were among two thousand other directors and students participating in the conference this year. Six hours each day were spent on the practice field in the hot sun learning new skills and participating field in the hot sun learning new skills and participating on the skills already being used. Bank camp gave the students the opportunity to participate in college life. They stayed in the dorms, ate at the dining hall and had full use of the campus facilities. Also, like most college students, they had alot of complaints about the college food.

Band practice has already started at the High School and will soon be starting at W.T. Chipman. The seven students will attend camp will have the responsibility of teaching their newly acquired skills to the other members of their respective squads in the bands.

As an advisor to these students at camp, I would like to add that they parents of these students should be very proud. At all times, these young peoples' behavior was excellent. They did a fine job representing their state and the Lake Forest District.

Karate club wows Heritage crowd

by Mark Barzewski

By the time four-thirty rolled around on Saturday, Heritage Day in Harrington, spectators were ready for more action following a torrential downpour. What brought the townsfolk out of their shelters was a Karate demonstration by the Isshinryu Karate Club of Dover.

The half-hour of fast moving action proved to be a very popular event as the club demonstrated various karate maneuvers along with some self-defense skits and other "block" busting acts. Although the group was composed of only eight members, due to the number of students taking part in Karate competition with their instructor Reese Rigby in Maryland, the demonstration came off in professional style. The crowd enjoyed the show and applauded each individual portion of the action-packed thirty minutes. Members of the club that took part in the demonstration included; Roland Kelly of Dover (Black Belt), Sandy Clough Bauer of Harrington (2nd Degree Brown Belt), Lori Clough of Harrington (1st Degree Brown Belt), Glenn Burke of Dover (1st Degree Brown Belt), Steve Rodgers of Dover (Green Belt), Phillip Fluor of Harrington (Blue Belt), Scott Wasser of Dover (Yellow Belt), and Jack Carey (Yellow Belt).

Sandy Bauer lets "Fresh Guy" Roland Kelly know he is not wanted during a staged park bench scene where members of the Isshinryu Karate Club demonstrated self-defense techniques as part of Heritage Day activities on Saturday.

Karate Demonstration narrator, Roland Kelly provides some "block" busting action as he heaves a sledge hammer onto four concrete slabs placed onto the stomach of Steve Rodgers. Oh, by the way, the slabs did break and Steve did live.

Arabian show attracts 380 riders

Seen above is just one of the entries of the 9th Annual Delaware All Arabian Horse Show held at the State Fairgrounds last Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The above horse and rider were competing in the Half-Arabian Working Hunter Over Fences class.

The Ninth Annual Delaware All Arabian Horse Show with Region 15 Champion Classes was held last Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at the Delaware State Fairgrounds in Harrington. The show was sponsored by the Milford Jaycees and sanctioned by the Arabian Horse Association of Delmarva. The show secretary, Mrs. William D. Schell of Millsboro, reported that the show was rated "A" in the Arabian Division by the American Horse Show Association. Mrs. Schell stated that the show attracted about 380 horses from many parts of the country and Canada. The rain hurt the show as Saturday night classes had to be postponed until Sunday morning, Sunday's classes running into the evening. Despite the weather, Mrs. Schell reported that many local participants did well in the competition.

What would you guess to be the exact date and the exact time when the greatest demand for electricity will occur for 1979? If you can't come up with the answer don't feel bad... neither can we, here at Delmarva Power.

Sure, we know it'll be on the hottest summer day, and most likely in the afternoon. But because we don't know exactly what day and exactly what time, we have to be ready to meet that level of output all the time. It's this summertime "peak" that determines the reserve capacity we have to have. So, the more we can reduce demand on those "peak" summer days... the better we'll be able to be sure there's enough energy. Peaks aren't hard to identify. When temperatures are highest... we'll be in a peak situation, and energy will be costing more, because the reserve "peaking units" will be running and they're not as efficient as the baseload generating units. So put off that load of laundry or dishes until later at night or early in the morning. And maybe turn the thermostat another degree or two warmer to cut the peak and cut the price. At Delmarva Power we're working hard every day to protect your supply of energy.

While their elders were touring the Conrail station or scouting the flea market, youngsters sought a free Heritage Day train ride. The miniature train was once located at Wheelers Park but has since been purchased by Norman & Marvin Smith. Returning for a Heritage Day ride was Mr. Wheeler himself.

Dr. Claudia Bushman, Heritage Keynote speaker came dressed for the occasion in authentic garb from the 1890's complete with cuff links bearing miniature portraits of a husband and wife.

Heritage Day, a day to remember

by Bruce Levy

Concentration is required as Joe Hughes prepares the materials for basket making.

Strollers kept up a steady stream through the Flea Market/ Crafts Bazaar. There was lots to look at until the rains came and forced a hasty evacuation of the forty odd booths that filled the First National Bank parking lot.

A bicycle safety rodeo tested the navigational skills of cyclists who participated. Those taking part received accommodation awards and free hats. Patrolman Jopp had this message for those who contributed: "I would like to express my deep appreciation to merchants and the citizens of Harrington for their fine donation towards the hats that were distributed to youth that participated in the Bicycle Rodeo."

After the deluge that washed out the Heritage Day flea market, Commerce Street was briefly a wader's paradise with an instant stream that ran over curbs and challenged hub caps.
