In scholarship competition

Louann Jackson is a winner

Louann Jackson has won the Century III Leaders Scholarship competition at Lake Forest High School, according to Dr. Margaret B. Phelps, principal.

The 17 year-old senior is now eligible to compete with other high school seniors throughout Delaware for two $1,500 scholarships, two $500 scholarships, and also for a $10,000 national scholarship that will be awarded in a conference of state winners in historic Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia.

Ms. Jackson triumphed in the local phase of the Century III Leaders program, a scholarship competition which emphasizes the future concerns of America. Students were judged on the basis of their leadership abilities, community involvement and score on a current events examination. To compete at the state level, Ms. Jackson must now write a brief projection outlining what she thinks is one of America's future challenges and how it should be met.

Runners-up in the competition at Lake Forest High School are Martin Ellingsworth (17), and Mike Hernandez (17).

Ms. Louann Jackson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson of Viola, now competes with other high school winners from around the state for four scholarships and an opportunity for the $10,000 top national scholarship.

The two Delaware winners will receive an all-expense-paid trip to the fourth annual Century III National Leadership Seminar in Williamsburg, March 7-10, 1980, to participate in seminars on current issues. In previous years, speakers at these seminars were such notables as news commentator Howard K. Smith, architect/futurist Buckminster Fuller, and anthropologist Rene Dubos.

One school bus stop to change

In response to a request by the Lake Forest District the state's Hazzards Review committee has recommended that the four year old Hrupsa twins, who attend a pre-kindergarten classes at Lake Forest North be picked up at their home instead of the intersection of roads 56 and 251. They live 1,155 feet from that intersection. However, the hazzards committee said the bill for the addition to the bus route should go to the local school district and not the state of Delaware.

After reviewing three other district bus stops, the committee recommended no other changes in the current school pick up situation.

Lake Forest Transportation Supervisor told the school board Monday night that the extra cost for picking up the Hrupsa twins at their door would be about 55c a day or $90 a year.

The Lake Forest Board voted to accept the report which now must go to the State Board for approval.

A Kindergarten child from the Ellingsworth family will be able to take advantage of the noontime bus stop at the Hrupsa's and thereby shorten the distance he has to walk from 1,760 to 605 feet.

Eight other students in grades ranging from kindergarten to ninth will have to meet the bus at their accustomed locations. These include 1 1/2 year old first grader Ricardo Torres who must navigate 1,405 feet of dirt road to catch the bus. The road is wooded with deep ditches on both sides. Ricardo's mother has no car and two younger children at home.

City Council says "No hearing..."

Dudley Willis' second attempt to get a portion of his property bordering on Peck Avenue rezoned to accommodate rental apartments for the elderly took one step forward and two back at last Tuesday's meeting of the Harrington City Council. A motion to hold a public hearing on the proposed rezoning reached the floor. But it was voted down 3-2. At a previous meeting the motion, dying for lack of a second, failed even to reach the Council floor.

Technically, the question is still open because the Council has not voted on the new rezoning proposal itself. In August, Willis' original proposal was denied by a 4-2 vote. But in September Willis returned, taking a fresh approach with a new boundary description which moved the plot of ground to be rezoned back 200 feet from Peck Avenue. At the September 25 meeting at which two Councilmen - Gary Harrington and the Reverend JWayne Newman - were absent, Council agreed not to discuss the matter unless all members were present. Councilman Brode was absent last week.

Mayor Arthur Cahall said he was "amazed" at the Council's reluctance to hold a public hearing on the matter. He wondered whether the Council was "afraid" to do so and said, "...in my opinion, the public was not served the first time.

Define "Mobile Home"

"We really don't know," was the Harrington City Council's answer to Roger Carrier who came asking for a ruling on whether a home he hopes to locate on property on Clark Street behind the Sunoco station is a mobile home. Carrier first approached Building Inspector Ernest Galio who said he would not approve without the Council's say so. If the structure is a mobile home, it is forbidden by the town's zoning laws.

After some discussion and consultation with City Solicitor Harry Terry, the Council told Carrier it just didn't have all information necessary to make a decision. Terry said he thought the Liberty home was a mobile home, but was not sure that opinion could not be challenged in court. Part of the question seems to revolve around whether the structure would be permanently affixed to a foundation or just set down.

The Council told Carrier he would have to come back with evidence convincing them it is not a mobile home or apply for a variance to the zoning laws. The variance procedure takes an estimated seven weeks.

Executive Board meets

The Executive Board and the Executives at large of the Delaware State Council of Senior Citizens, Inc., meeting was called by the President, Marion Borst, at the Sussex County Vocational Technical School at Georgetown, Delaware, October 3, 1979.

Fifteen members were present from various parts of the State and gave a report of activity within various fields.

A motion was made and carried that each driver should be allowed 15c per mile for a full load of passengers, where possible, to a called or stated meeting.

All members are urged to write to their Senators for the defeat of HR3236 which would reduce the amount of money appropriated for assistance to the disabled, infirm and sick by the Social Security system by 15%, which could reduce the income to some families by 25%.

James E. Sluter of Felton was recently named Fireman of the Year by the Delaware State Fire Chiefs Association. He won the prestigious award because of an act of heroism on March 16th.

On Friday, March 16, 1979 at approximately 10:00 a.m., the Camden-Wyoming Fire Company was dispatched to a house fire located on Cty. Rt. 105, South of Camden. At that time, James E. Sluter, a member of the Felton Community Fire Company, was in the area and responded to the scene. Mr. Sluter arrived before any responding apparatus and learned from witnesses that there were possibly two children in the burning house.

Mr. Sluter entered the house through a kitchen door and located Christopher Fountain, four years of age, hiding under a counter in the kitchen area and dragged him outside the building. He was unable to re-enter the burning house due to the intense heat and smoke. At this point, Mr. Sluter initiated artificial respiration and other life sustaining measures until Christopher was transported to Kent General Hospital.

Christopher Fountain was admitted to Kent General Hospital in critical condition with burns of the face, arms, chest and eyes and later transferred to the Chester-Crozier Burn Center.

Members of the Camden-Wyoming Fire Company recovered the body of Frederick Pleasanton, three years of age, from the living room area of the house after the fire was extinguished.

Corrections and apologies

To Frederica residents who may have tried to attend a meeting on the odor problems with the sewage treatment plant on Monday at Milford High School, the Journal apologizes. We received the wrong information.

According to the state's Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control, a meeting is scheduled in the auditorium of Milford High School on Thursday, November 15 at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be a public hearing on the relicensing of the Kent County sewage treatment facility.

The number of the Killen Pond Road going past Lake Forest High School from U.S. 13 is 384 and not 284 as we said last week.

Please ignore the time given for next week's open house at Lake Forest High School in the weeks Friends and Neighbors. 7 p.m. is the correct time, the date is October 24. We were misinformed and did not receive the correct information until after Friends and Neighbors had gone to press.

Five area teens charged with theft of cash

A reported theft at the McCollough's Arco station in Harrington on October 8th apparently was not what it seemed, according to reports from the State Police.

On the 8th, police received a call from an employee of the station, a juvenile. He stated that he had been held up and subsequently gave the robber $1,226 out of the cash register.

The police investigated the story and discovered many things that didn't seem to fit. More digging into the matter resulted in the arrest of a Harrington youth, Dale Kochland, 18 as well as four other teenagers from Harrington and Felton. One of the suspects was the McCollough attendant that reported the crime in the first place.

The five were charged with conspiracy, filing a false complaint and theft.

Two suffer dog bites

The Harrington Police were confronted with two complaints of dog bites on October 8th in the alley behind 104 Center Street. Patrolman Bohn responded. According to reports, the dog belonged to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Havelow of 104 Center Street, he had broken his chain and was running loose. Mr. Tom Peck of Simmon Street was bitten on the calf while walking in the alley. Mrs. Greenhaugh was also bitten later in the day while riding her bike. Greenhaugh resides on Delaware Avenue. Bohn notified the County Dog Warden who arrived and caught the animal and took it in for observation. A citation was issued by the warden.

On October 10th, Patrolman Bohn responded to a disturbance on West Street. According to reports, William H. Scott of 113 West and Richard E. Baynard also of 113 West Street were having an argument when Baynard went into the kitchen and got a knife. He returned to the room where Scott was and began slashing causing slash marks in the victim's hat. There were no other injuries and the case is pending.

Lucy Quinn, a resident of Swain's Motel on Route 13, notified the Harrington Police of a theft on October 14th. According to Ms. Quinn, a black and white TV was removed from the lobby. The case is pending.

Slide show will feature King Tut

King Tut, in picture if not in person, comes to Harrington next week. A slide presentation of "The Life and Times of King Tut" is to be presented at the Harrington New Century Club on Monday, October 22, at 7 p.m. Bringing the presentation will be William Flayhart of Delaware State College. Flayhart was inspired by a display of artifacts in England in 1972 to create a college course based on the life of the young Pharaoh whose place of burial intrigued archeology for years. The slide presentation features the 55 artifacts that kept 21 million Americans standing line during a recent tour of American cities by the King Tut collection.

And Heritage Day. Following the King Tut presentation there will be slides of Heritage Day in Harrington. These are expected to be shown about 8:30 p.m. The King Tut presentation is made possible partially by the Delaware Humanities Forum. Local organizations cooperating in planning the evening are the Harrington Public Library, the Harrington New Century Club and the Greater Harrington Historical Society. Admission is free, and the public is invited to attend.

In My Opinion

By Bruce Levy

The Reverend Jesse Jackson got his political start at the side of Dr. Martin Luther King. But far from simply following in the great man's wake, Jackson showed early on a capacity for leadership and a gift for speaking, particularly to the nation's youth. Those of you who have seen him give his "I am somebody" speech know well the power and eloquence of Jackson's voice.

At King's side, Jesse Jackson learned the powerful philosophy of non-violence. He earned a place in United States history by risking his life again and again pursuing the dream of equality. The quantum leaps made by Blacks in this hate-torn country are due in large part to the courage and persistence of men like Jackson, men who showed the world what a peaceful march down a lonely highway in Alabama could accomplish.

But, sad to say, Jackson has recently begun a less noble undertaking, he has made an obvious gambit for personal gain. His "state visit" to the middle east is a turning point in Jackson's public career, a transparent bid for worldwide attention. The man is now running for something.

That in itself is no crime, it's the vehicle he's using. To watch him embrace Yassar Arafat, an admitted, self avowed murderer of children, is a sickening sight. I just hope the man is speaking for himself alone.

Letters to the editor

Dear Sir:

I am the late Jack Pitlick's daughter and Elsie Pitlick's step daughter, who now lives in Minneapolis, Kansas. We have received the Harrington Journal many years as a gift from Mrs. Fred C. Powell. We keep in touch with the Harrington people through the Journal, and letters and I guess Harrington will always be home.

We now live in a town very much as Harrington was, when I was growing up and it really feels good to be back in a small town. We are retired military. Even my kids now say Mom, I know what you meant when you said small towns and schools are more fun.

Anyway to the point. We also have a town paper like the Journal called the Minneapolis Messenger and they gave my son the original photo's and a copy of an article he was in, and told him he might want to send it back east. Some of the people who work for the Messenger know our roots are in the east and have also read our Journal paper.

The 1st Town Pet Show was held and my son decided to take his cat and we all laughed at him, but needless to say when he came home with $5.00 and a blue ribbon for "Best of Show" and a bag of cat food and three free bowling games for 1st in the cat division, he had the last laugh.

He has been wanting me to write and tell all our friends back in Delaware, so I decided maybe if you used it in your paper many people who haven't seen us could read it as well as my sister who also gets the Journal in Alabama. If you don't use the article, I also understand, but maybe it will give Harrington an idea for kids. They really enjoyed it and this town is great about doing for kids.

You will also see an article about the seniors having an old-time box supper. My daughter is a senior this year and had never heard of a box supper, but she had a blast frying the chicken and getting her box ready. We didn't attend but could kick ourselves for she said it was really fun, especially during the bidding. All the profit went to the senior class. Here they do not get a class trip, they have a senior Sneak Day. They take all the money made through the years and divide it among themselves (this year 96) and take a day to Wichita or Kansas City and have a good time.

Well I guess I've run on long

"Learn-Not-To-Burn"

This past week marks the National Observation of Fire Prevention. Fire Prevention is a major thrust within the Fire Service in the United States. There has been a program which has been instituted for several years now, called "Learn-Not-To-Burn" campaign.

Just recently Louis Amabile, director of the Delaware State Fire School and President of ISFSI, reports two important public education developments. (1) For the first time in Delaware a training program is being held at the Fire School showing teachers how to instruct their students in the "Learn-Not-To-Burn" program. (2) Amabile recently met with Delaware State College officials to include a Fire Safety Curriculum as a part of the study program for teachers. Within the local Fire Departments and especially our department in Harrington we've been making public awareness programs a part of our reach to the people about Fire Prevention.

For several years now the Harrington Delaware State Fireman's Association have conducted, in conjunction with the local schools, Fire Prevention essays and poster contests, and since 1973 our department has been conducting Fire Prevention Observation Day's and get to know your Fire Department Campaigns. In 1974 the Harrington Fire Department instituted Project Identification of children and invalids bedroom windows, rescue stickers. But since then until the present day the common hazards of fire still exist. Common problems such as discarded smoking materials, overloading electrical outlets, soot built up chimneys, lint screens on clothes dryers, left on clothes irons, vegetable grease fires, vegetable grease fires, smoking in smoking in bed, children unattended and playing with matches, overstored attics and basements, poor outdoor trash burners, to name a few but the list goes on. And these problems serve my memory which happens around Harrington.

This year alone starting this winter season marks a new era of even more potential problems dealing with wood burning stoves. October 15th at 7 p.m. our department conducted a Wood Stove Safety Seminar, still another reach to the public about Fire Prevention. We hope that those who will be burning wood, did attend the seminar and trust that the safety tips in installing and the operation of wood stoves helped. Many people should especially have their chimneys checked and cleaned before this season. Home smoke detectors should be checked and if you have not purchased a smoke detector, we urge you to consider this extra protection of early detection and warning of smoke in your home. Our stand on smoke detectors are if the unit has the stamp of the Underwriters Laboratories approval, then the unit should be of good standard. Question number 1 - have you discussed an escape route out of your homes, where to meet outside? Question number 2 - do your children know their address and their phone number? Many of our rural citizens live on county routes such as County 275 or County 429, etc. Know these route numbers for directional help for the Fire Company.

We thank you for your consideration in this important matter and your continual support. Help us to help you to "Prevent Fires."

enough about our little town and only have one question of you. When I lived in Harrington my mother, Ada Pitlick, wrote the Harrington News for the Milford Chronicle, when she got sick and passed away, I took over the job for a couple of years. I enjoyed it so much and would use Monday, as paper day. I called people, always had lots to talk about and always had a nice long news letter. Why don't your people work a little harder and have more local news? I'm sure the pay now is much more than when I did it, but I enjoyed the work anyway.

Thanks for listening to me and keep up the good work.

Mary J. Pitlick Smith

sympathized with the concerns of the parents, but said the problem was one of parental hardship and not a unique traffic hazard. They said the distance the child must walk fell within the half mile deemed to be in the realm of parental responsibility.

The committee's report stated that the conditions at the other bus stops reviewed were not unique and could be encountered almost anywhere in rural Delaware.

Five representatives of the Hazzards Committee and Ray Stoops from the Lake Forest District surveyed the bus stops in question between 10 a.m. and noon on October 9. The survey came in response to a request by the Lake Forest School Board on behalf of a group of concerned parents who came to the September meeting.

-Unit Count Down A Little-
Supervisor of Instruction Sol Markowitz reported that the 1979-80 unit count, which determines the number of teachers who can be hired on state funds, will probably stand at 176. That is down two from last year. The district rolls have dropped by 119 this year. Since 175 teachers are on board, the district will not have to carry any of its teachers strictly on local funds. A search for a kindergarten teacher to relieve overcrowded conditions at Lake Forest East in Frederica is underway. A new high school librarian to replace Emily Cotich is also being sought.

Carrier said he does not have much time. He was hoping to take advantage of a special offering in purchasing the home.

-Hearings Set for Tomorrow-

Tomorrow night the Council will hold a public hearing on a rezoning proposal for the former Millard Cooper Funeral Home on Center Street. The home is presently owned by the William Musser's of Wilmington. If the rezoning is approved, Mark Yoder plans to turn the property into a nursing home. Mildred Messick, a former owner, attempted to do the same thing, but was unsuccessful because of stringent state fire regulations.

Following the public hearing or simultaneously should there be no one present to discuss the Musser property, the Council will conduct a public hearing on the city budget for the upcoming year. Citizens who have concerns or suggestions are urged to be present.

-October 3 Trick or Treat-

The City Council set Wednesday, October 31, from 6-8 p.m. as Trick or Treat night in Harrington. Only youngsters 12 or under may participate in the activity.

Spartans squander early lead

by Harry G. Farrow

The Lake Forest Spartans took to the offense right away on Friday night with dependable Mark Smith hitting his favorite receiver, Quenton Hendricks, for 28 yards and a TD. The Spartans led at the end of the first quarter 6-0. Lake Forest missed the conversion. It wasn't enough as Smyrna won 29-14 sending Lake Forest down to its fifth straight defeat of the season.

It took the Eagles of Smyrna the first quarter to get loose. In the second quarter both teams scored. Smyrna twice and the Spartans once. The victory by Smyrna moved them into a tie in the Southern Division of The Henlopen Conference. The Smyrna Eagles have been running the Wishbone offense with not much success until they invaded Felton on Friday night. When the game was over, the statistics revealed that Smyrna had neither fumbled or committed any infractions. This in itself was a record.

Despite the ball control and excellent execution by Smyrna, the Spartans never gave up. They held the Eagles scoreless in the third period, and at the end of the third period one point separated the teams. In the 4th quarter, the Spartans were under a drive, but coughed up the ball on the Smyrna 35 yard line. By this time, a dense fog had settled on the school grounds that made throwing the ball virtually impossible. Smyrna however stuck to a ground game until they reached the Spartan 14 yard line. From there, quarterback John Trabaudo found his favorite split end again, Luke Naylor, who caught a short toss over the middle and romped into the end zone. Smyrna then led by 8 points 22-14.

Lake Forest got its other score in the second quarter when Billy Scott churned and stained from 5 yards out. At this time in the first half the score was 12-7. Mark Smith converted with a short toss to Dale Benson for the 2 point play. The TD was set up by an outstanding catch by Leroy Garey for about 38 yards. But Smyrna came back just before the half ended to go ahead 15-14.

The Spartans play host to the Woodbridge Raiders on Friday night.

Lake Forest appears to have a definite lead at the take-off of Monday's meet against Caesar Rodney. Leading the Spartans here is Senior Doug Caskey followed by Billy Mitchell, Glenn Stubbolo (CR), Chuck Tozer, Maurice

Coverdale, Jay Howerin and Joe Conley, CR's first place finisher. The Spartans remained undefeated with the 22-36 victory.

Running Caskeys aid Spartan's wins

by Keith S. Burgess

The cantering Caskeys from near Canterbury had their running shoes on Monday and helped Lake Forest to a couple of victories over the Caesar Rodney varsity and Jaycee cross-country teams. Lake Forest's three mile course was used for the first time and the extra distance seemed made-to-order for Doug, Chris and John Caskey, while their brother Terry, a fine sophomore prospect, was a spectator because of a recent stress fracture.

C.R.'s Conley held off a furious homestretch sprint by Spartan Chuck Tozer and eked out a 16.07 victory, with Doug Caskey running strongly in third place, up a couple of notches from his usual finish. Billy Mitchell was fourth, while Sam Lamphier was sixth, running perhaps his finest race ever. Jay Howerin (seventh) and Dale Jarrell (ninth) were other Spartans in the top ten. Lake Forest's 22-36 victory gives Coach Blades Spartans a 5-0 mark, as the lone unbeaten Henlopen team.

Manny Hernandez who is beginning to look more and more like a future star was an easy winner in the jaycee test. Bob Aycoth was second with freshman Chris Caskey just five seconds back in third place.

Larry Guessford was fourth, followed by Mike Hernandez, Ken Kline, Rob Manaraze, Mike Grogan, Sherri Coburn, Albert Burns, Jerry Mosley and Ron Lewis.

Seventh-grader, John Caskey, has asthma and has an extra foe to beat just to finish the race. But he was third on the Chipman team at Smyrna and third again on Monday. But this time he led the Chipman prospects, who are all seventh graders this season, for a couple of miles before the strong running duo of Lafayette Bell and Danny Haines finally prevailed. Formerly these meets saw a two man battle for first now three tough prospects are in contention.

Other Chipman kids looking well were: Jeff Beene, Keith Chandler, Charles McDonald, Mike Cole, Becky Brown and Bob Endres.

Lake Forest sweeps two straight

by Bruce Levy

The Lake Forest soccer team swept two out of two last week and bettered their season record to 4-2-1 with victories over Dover and Sussex Central.

Against Dover last Tuesday, the Spartans won what coach Dave Buck considered a "pivotal game". It was an evenly matched, hard fought contest that saw but one goal scored by Spartan sensation Bobby Collier.

"It was very well played by both teams," said Buck. "It was our first shut out of the season and came as a result of solid team play. Our defense is really coming along, they were getting the ball smoothly to the offense. Also, we were not hampered by any penalties which were the difference in both of our losses this year."

There was no scoring in the first half, although Lake Forest outshot the senators 5-7. At 12 minutes into the second half, Bobby Collier broke away and scored an unassisted goal. It proved to be the winning margin.

On Thursday, Lake Forest traveled to Sussex Central, where they had won the season's first game 6-1, and again beat the Knights with another shutout 2-0.

"I wasn't real happy with our performance there," Buck said, "we could have scored a lot more and we looked rather sloppy. There was lots of kicking but not a lot of solid passing. We just didn't play to our potential, maybe we weren't up for it after the Dover win."

Scoring chores were again handled exclusively by Collier as the stellar forward hit for one in the first half and one in the second, both in-assisted. Collier is now the leading scorer in the conference and possibly in the entire state.

Save money by saving energy

Advice for the market

Following is the final article in a series of articles on how consumers can save money at home, on the road and in the marketplace.

Material for the series is taken from a publication of the U.S. Dept. of Energy, "Tips for Energy Savers."

The following article tells how to save money in the marketplace.

Try to buy products that will last. More durable products save the energy that would be required to make replacements more often.

Buy equipment on the basis of initial cost plus operating costs rather than on the basis of purchase price alone.

Often products that are energy efficient cost more to buy. But over the lifetime of the equipment, you will more than make up the difference in lower operating costs.

Buy products made of recycled materials or those that can be recycled: steel, aluminum, paper, and glass among others.

More energy is used in the production of products from virgin materials than from recycled or reclaimed materials.

For example, producing steel from scrap requires only one-quarter of the energy it would take when using virgin ores.

Making a product from recycled aluminum requires less than 10 percent of the energy that would be needed for the same product made from the ore.

When you buy fabrics or garments, try to choose those that can be washed in cold water and/or require little or no ironing.

When shopping for an unusual item, telephone ahead to see if the store has it. If it doesn't, you save the energy and time of traveling there and being disappointed.

Give gifts with year-round benefits. If you have appliances on your gift list, select long-lasting models that use the least amount of energy.

Don't buy motorized equipment or gadgets when hand-operated versions will do.

Buy the household equipment that's right for you. Purchasing the right equipment for your home and needs, using it wisely, and taking good care of it can reduce energy costs considerably.

Bigger isn't necessarily better. Don't buy a larger or more powerful piece of equipment than you need. Whether it's a furnace, air conditioner, or water heater, make sure its size and power are right for your home.

Ask your dealer, a trade association, or a consumer-interest group for assistance in judging this factor.

Comparison shop when buying appliances. Compare energy use information and operating costs of similar models by the same company and by different manufacturers.

Housing production down 10 %

DOVER - Housing production in Delaware was down 10 percent for the 1979 second quarter compared to a year ago, which was attributed to a drop of 119 single-family units in Kent and Sussex counties in the State Division of Housing's Quarterly Review.

The total of 1,657 units was comprised of 712 single-family units, 84 multi-family units, and 261 mobile home sales.

The major factor in the low state of homebuilding in Delaware continues to be a very minimal amount of multi-family construction in the state, according to State Director of Housing Robert S. Moyer.

Moyer observed that for the fiscal year ending June 30, the Delaware State Housing Authority financed 85 percent of all the multi-family housing produced, 654 of 754 units.

The second quarter breakdown by county and type of construction was as follows:

New Castle - 452 single-family, 72 multi-family, 27 mobile homes, for a total of 551.

Kent - 106 single-family, 0 multi-family, 153 mobile homes, for a total of 259.

Sussex - 160 single-family, 12 multi-family, 99 mobile homes, for a total of 271.

State total - 712 single-family, 84 multi-family, 261 mobile homes, for a total of 1,057.

The total of 1,577 compares to 1,176 for the 1978 second quarter and 870 for the 1978 first quarter. The first quarter figures are seasonally lower due to winter weather conditions at that time of year.

Analysis of the second quarter data showed that, compared to 1978, an 18-unit increase in multi-family units was offset by an 18-unit decrease in mobile home sales, and while single-family production in New Castle County was 10 units higher, it was 64 units lower in Kent County, and 65 units lower in Sussex County.

increased five percent from the first quarter total of 320 and 18 percent from the 1978 second quarter total of 466.

Kent County's total of 235 units was a 56 percent increase over last quarter's total of 150, and a 29 percent decrease from the 306 units recorded in the comparable period a year ago.

Sussex County's total of 271 units increased 37 percent from the 197 units last quarter, but decreased 32 percent from 404 units in the 1978 second quarter.

Other highlights of the summer issue of the quarterly review, prepared by Housing Specialist Vanessa Street, included:

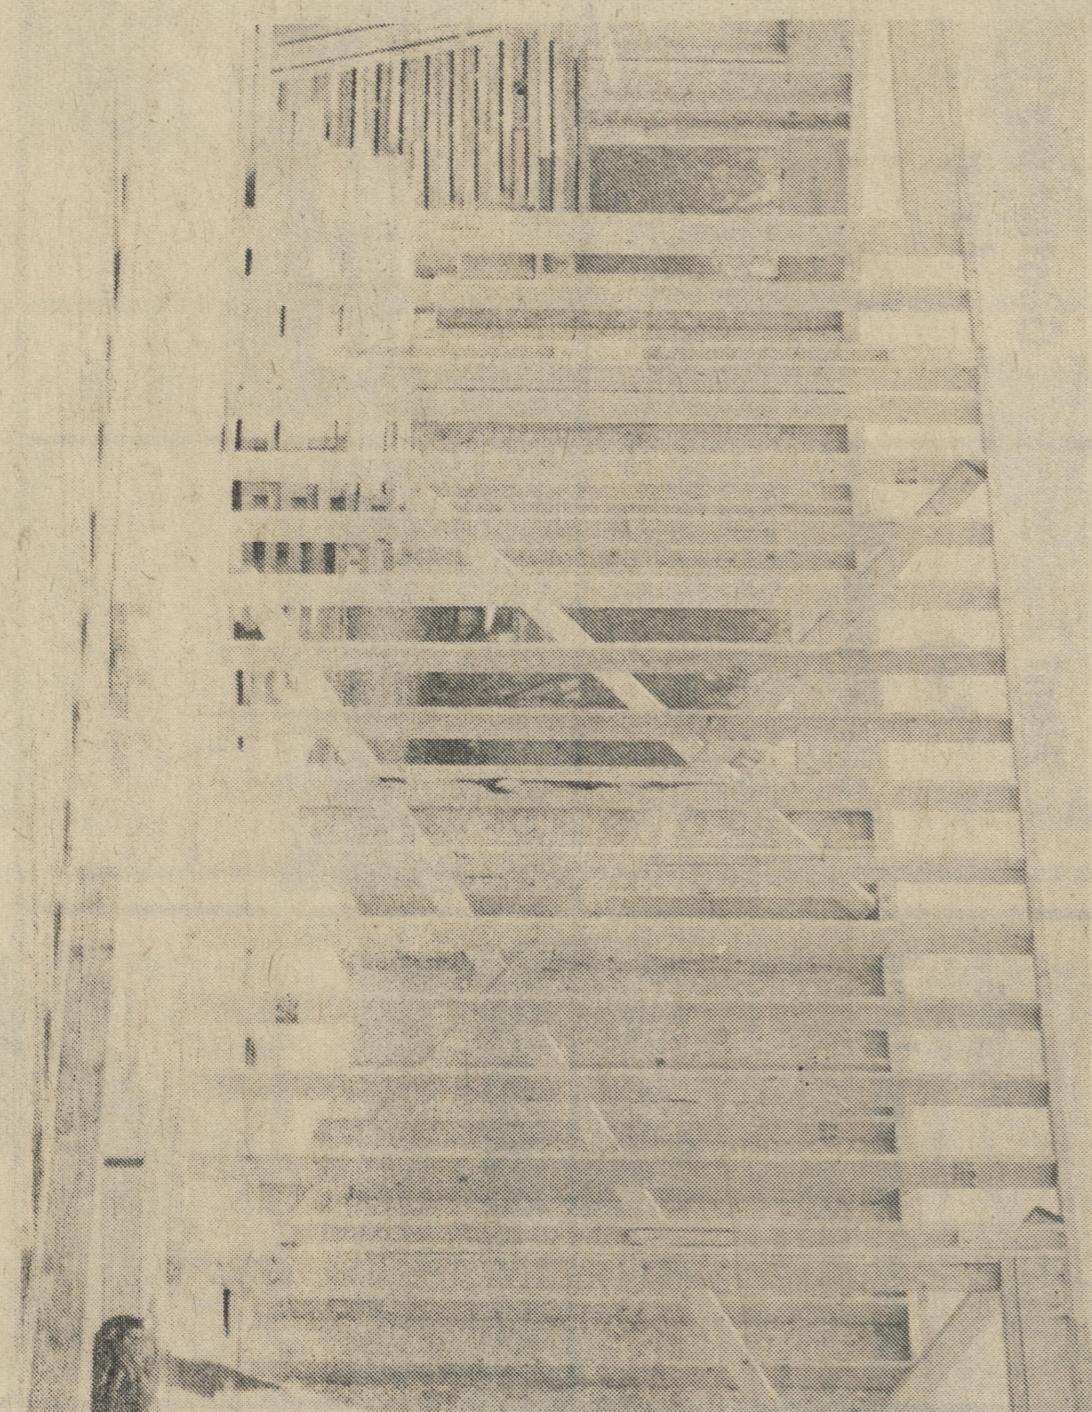

— On-site construction (single and multi-family combined) increased 14 percent over the previous quarter from 683 to 796, but decreased 11 percent from the 897 units produced in the 1978 second quarter.

— The total cost of on-site residential construction in Delaware was $25,726,940 in the 1979 second quarter, a 10 percent drop from the $27,204,470 a year earlier.

The statewide average cost of single-family construction dropped from $38,143 in 1978 to $34,476 this year. The averages were very close in Kent and Sussex Counties, so the decrease is attributable to New Castle County construction.

Polish wood furniture with care

by Gene Garty
Copley News Service

Q. Recently I purchased a carved solid teak Oriental dining suite and have heard several conflicting reports on how to care for it, all from supposed "authoritative" sources.

The recommendations have ranged from piano wax to Old English oil, and each person assures me that the other suggestions are totally incorrect. I would appreciate any information you can give me on the care of this type of furniture. — M.J.J., Calabasas, Calif.

A. The same dusting and polishing methods can be used on all kinds of wood furniture — solid or veneered, old or new, dark or light.

Antiques, which require paste wax, are one of the few exceptions. Because antiques lack the protective finishes found on most furniture today, a paste wax should be used about twice a year.

Polish your teak furniture only as often as it appears to need it, and use a light hand with the polish — the tendency is to apply polish too frequently or too heavily. Paste or liquid polish gives the most lasting finish.

Using a circular scrubbing motion, apply a thin, even film of wax to one small area at a time. Polish while the wax is still a little moist, using firm, sweeping strokes, rubbing across the grain of the wood, then with the grain.

boards or closets in the room with the mildew solution.

Q. How can I remove the necks of bottles to make them into vases? I have heard of soaking a string in something and lighting it. How would you hold it in place to make an even cut around the bottles? — Anne M.

A. The method you mention is one I saw used to make drinking glasses from bottles: A heavy string, previously soaked in gasoline, is fastened around the bottle and held in place with softened paraffin.

Ignite the string and immediately plunge the bottle into cold water. But be careful of the fire hazard.

The edge of the separated glass will be slightly melted, and quite smooth.

Homeowner's Security Guide is available

PHILADELPHIA - The Homeowner's Security Handbook is now available to the consumer to provide straight facts that may save more than just money or valuables.

The text, written by independent experts on theft prevention, offers numerous alternatives in simple lay language on how to protect property.

A consumer publication of the American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM), the publication delves into how fences, exterior lights, resistant locks, door chains, window locks, and alarm systems can help prevent theft.

The facts presented in this consumer's guide can help the homeowner evaluate the system that is right for the owner's needs and budget.

In addition, the book covers fire alarms and how they can be used to protect your family.

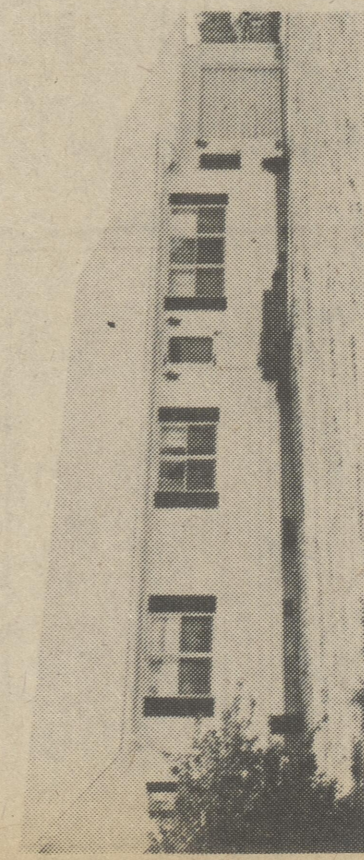

According to R.C. Rhodes, editor of the publication, time is one key in the preventing theft. If getting into a home takes too much time, noise, or effort, the burglar will move on to easier prey.

Tips for reducing heating costs

The energy-saving and cost-cutting potential of home insulation, thermostat cutbacks, and other conservation measures have become well known in an age of increasing home heating expenses.

The Better Business Bureau points out that it is equally important for home owners to make sure that their heating systems work as efficiently and effectively as possible.

Most authorities recommend that home owners have a service contract for their heating equipment.

The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) estimates that periodic checkups and maintenance, included in most furnace service contracts, can reduce fuel consumption by about 10 percent.

Repair work on furnaces and replacement of some of their parts may be covered in service contracts as well.

Whether shopping for a maintenance contract or for specific repair work, be sure to check the reputation of the company or person before making a decision. Major repairs or replacement equipment should be purchased only after considering several estimates.

Of the three main types of furnaces in use today — oil, gas, and electric — the oil burner benefits most, in terms of efficiency, from an annual checkup.

The best time to have this done is in the fall, before the heating season starts and companies are busy answering trouble calls.

Major items on the oil burner checklist include adjusting and cleaning the burner, adjusting the fuel-air ratio, checking for oil leaks or faulty electrical connections, cleaning heating elements, and adjusting dampers and the draft regulator.

Unless operating problems occur, a gas furnace needs maintenance only every three years or so.

The operation of the main gas valve, pressure regulator and safety control valve and the adjustment of the primary air supply nozzle should be checked, and the thermostat contacts should be cleaned and adjusted.

For electric furnace maintenance schedules and checklists, the home owner should refer to the manufacturer's manual.

Regardless of furnace type, the heat distribution system needs annual maintenance. In forced air systems, the operation of the blower should be checked, the blower motor should be oiled, and ducts should be checked for leaks.

Air filters should be changed at least twice per heating season. In hot water systems, the operation of the pump, the flow control valve, and the radiator valves should be checked, the pump motor should be oiled, the boiler should be drained and flushed, and piping should be inspected for leaks.

Radiator valves should be opened twice a year to bleed air from the system. If hot air ducts or hot water pipes run through areas exposed to cold, they should be insulated.

Recent field tests have found that furnaces are often oversized for the heating requirements of homes. Oversized means the furnace will heat the house up quickly and remain off most of the time, even on the coldest days.

During these long off-periods, heat is lost up the chimney, greatly reducing furnace efficiency.

A furnace repairman can tell you, by using a series of measurements and calculations, if this is the case.

Certain modifications may be recommended, such as a smaller nozzle, which will cause the system to run longer but burn less oil per unit of time, and also will reduce the amount of heat lost up the chimney.

Home owners should be wary of the serviceman who emerges from a periodic maintenance check with the somber news that the furnace needs to be replaced.

If this happens, it is time to get a second opinion, particularly if the home owner has had relatively little experience with the person making the recommendation.

In most cases the new equipment is needed, but occasionally score tactics and high-pressure salesmanship are used to induce the home owner to make a needless purchase.

Even if the second opinion simply confirms the first, the home owner can use the occasion to get an additional estimate on the job, an estimate that should be obtained anyway.

The Better Business Bureau reminds consumers that by waiting until problems develop to have their furnaces inspected, they are throwing energy and money away.

Proper heating system maintenance works hand in hand with other conservation measures to save both.

Removing spots tricky business

Have you ever tried to remove some "simple" little fabric stain, only to end up with a disaster area twice as large — and twice as permanent?

It's probably happened to most of us. Depending on what you run, the mistake can be a rather costly one.

Getting rid of spots and stains is a tricky business, says University of Delaware extension home economist Jean Cranston.

It's highly technical process that involves the combined chemistries of fabric, dye, stain, and stain remover. In getting rid of stains it's important to use something that's not going to damage the fabric.

And since no general statement holds true as to the effect of stain removers on all dyes, colorfastness must be tested on each fabric before you try to spot clean it, warns Cranston.

She also says that if you want to avoid trouble, it's best to follow these other basic guidelines:

— Act quickly. Remove a stain as soon as possible, and before laundering. Age, heat, or both may set some stains so they become difficult or impossible to remove.

— Identify the stain. If you can't do this, begin with methods least likely to damage the fabric.

— Be cautious. If in doubt about the effect of a remover on fabric or dye, test it on a hidden part of the garment first.

— Work from the wrong side of the fabric, and place an absorbent pad under the stain. Also, work from the outside edge of the stain in towards the center, blending or "feathering out" the remover in the stained area.

— Work carefully and patiently. Results may depend as much on how you do the job as on the remover used.

— Follow directions given on the label of the remover. The strength of a solution or the way it is applied may affect your success.

— Give the remover time to act. Reactions may be slow.

— Observe all precautions for safety. Work in a ventilated room. Do not inhale vapors.

When in doubt about what treatment to use on a spot, consult a professional dry cleaner — especially if a non-washable garment is involved.

Do this promptly, before you try any home removal methods that may cause permanent damage. Tell him the kind of stain it is and the fiber content of the fabric.

Many stains on washable garments can be removed by good laundering methods, notes Cranston.

For them, use soft, hot (140 degree) water, heavy duty detergent, and chlorine in the proper amounts (as listed on package labels).

Before you do this, though, be sure that the fabric can be bleached and that the stain won't be set by heat.

Find this out first — once the stained item is washed it may be too late.

Furnishings such as upholstery and carpets are particularly vulnerable to stains. A professional rug cleaner can be a help if you have a troublesome stain on your best carpet.

But many stains can be removed by a good upholstery or carpet shampoo. Other stains may respond to treatment for the specific type of stain.

A good reference for dealing with specific stains is the USDA's Home and Garden Bulletin No. 62, "Removing Stains from Fabrics."

Keep a copy in a convenient place where you can refer to it quickly.

If your county extension office doesn't have any, you can purchase one of these bulletins from the U.S. Government Printing Office for a slight charge.

Write Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office,

Washington, DC 20402.

Home spot removal methods aren't always satisfactory, cautions Cranston. There are some good commercial removers available for troublesome stains like rust, some types of ink, lipstick, and grease.

Know what they are and where they can be bought if you need them in a hurry.

Most importantly — know how to start and when to stop.

Ridding furniture of water ring

Summer and cold drinks to get together and so do white rings or spots on table tops caused by the moisture from the drinks.

Fortunately, often the damaged finish can be repaired without refinishing, says Delaware extension home economist Jean Cranston.

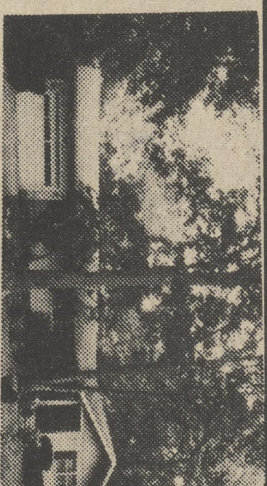

Keeping table tops waxed will not prevent water stains, but it will buy some time, since it will take the moisture longer to penetrate the wood.

If water marks appear, here are some suggestions you might try:

— Place a clean, thick blotter over the ring and press with a warm (not hot) iron. Repeat until rings disappear.

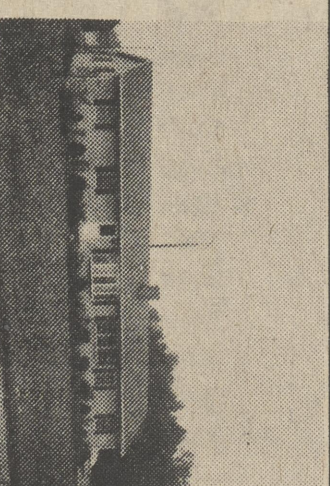

— Dust pumice powder or cigarette ashes over spot or ring; dip a 3-0 steel wool pad into a lightweight oil; rub lightly with the grain of the wood. Apply lightly to entire surface to prevent spotting. Wipe surface with a soft cloth.

— Apply salt and lightweight oil. Dip finger into oil, then salt. Rub spot with mixture. If white spot is old or very deep, much rubbing may be needed.

Don't worry if a few leaves break

by Viola Anthony

It is October 8th as I write this. My outdoor plants have had their session with "Raid" and outside of a few spiders who didn't like to be evicted from their cozy winter home, I saw no other insects. Perhaps tomorrow I can put them in place for the winter. They have grown so large over the summer that I have given quite a few away.

How are your African Violets doing? Mine are really coming into bloom. I have one, a single pink named "New Jersey" that is perfectly beautiful. I have a lot of little ones started, a big can of soil mixed and lots of sterilized pots.

This is one hobby that doesn't depend on the season of the year. If you feel the urge to garden, just clear off the kitchen table, spread out some old newspapers and go to work. Now we must get our soil ready. There are three kinds of planting mixtures. Soilless (a sterile mixture containing no soil or nutrients), sterilized African Violet soil and regular sterilized planting mix for all kinds of plants. As usual, I do mine the hard way but it seems to work so well for me that I don't mind the extra time and work.

I use "Jungle Growth" African Violet soil and "Jungle Growth" all purpose mix and mix them together half and half and to about three gallons of soil I add one half cup of ground charcoal. The charcoal helps keep the soil sweet and holds nitrogen for the plants future use. I put all this into a strong garbage bag and tie it up. Then I roll it and knead it until it is well blended. If it seems dry, add some water. The mixture should be just moist.

For the grower of one or two plants you can get a small bag of each, add about two tablespoons of charcoal, also a bit of water. I keep mine in the bag and I mix it in so it will stay moist.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reports 56 percent of all women of working age hold jobs.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Watson Baker, Sr. celebrated their 50th Wedding Anniversary with 175 of their friends and relatives at a surprise party given to them by their children on August 19, 1973 at The Burrsville Ruritan Building. Mr. and Mrs. Baker have lived 49 of their 50 married years at Vernon.

In case you are wondering where I get "Jungle Growth" products, I get mine at Norfolk Garden Shop on Rt. 113A near Moore's Lake. Almost any brand will do, so don't go out of your way to get that particular brand. Make sure you keep your mixture moist. It is difficult to water dry soil after you have planted your Violets.

Dry soil floats when you try to water it but absorbs nicely into moist soil. This soil drains easily yet holds enough water so that you don't have to water so often. The plastic bag keeps your plant mixture moist. When you have your soil mixed, it is ready for use so while all the newspapers are spread out why don't we report an African Violet that needs a larger pot? Put your plant stem between two fingers, turn your plant over and gently push the plant out with a pencil or stick. If you see lots of roots, it is ready for repotting. Loosen the old soil around the top, better still take some off, it will be easier to get the new soil in. Loosen some of the roots at the bottom so they can begin to grow into the new soil.

Have your pot ready with a couple of inches of new soil in the bottom. Put your plant in and fill around it with new soil, pressing it in firmly. It should be planted a little deeper than before and new soil put over the top of the old soil. Press it in firmly and water thoroughly. It is best to report when the plant needs water. The leaves won't break off as easily.

Don't worry if a few leaves break off. The plant will never miss them and you can put the broken leaves down into moist vermiculite to grow new plants. You can also report a blooming plant and it will never know it has been moved.

My space is filled and I can't seem to keep to an outline so well I'll be surprised when we find out what comes to mind next week. Happy Violet growing!

THE NEW NOW

The teabag was accidentally invented in 1904 when a tea merchant sent out samples in little silk bags.

Today's teabags are made from a special filter paper that keeps the leaves in and lets the flavor out. Over 50% of the tea we consume is made with teabags.

Orders came back for tea packed in the bags. His customers had discovered the ease and convenience of brewing tea from bagged tea.

Dad has gone to Philadelphia today for his checkup, so I am alone at lunch time. But, let me tell you, I am eating a very elegant lunch. Ellen brought me a cup of her French Onion Soup, complete with a thick slab of the French bread to top it and the cheese and so on. It is very delicious. I am fond of onion soup, but I have never made it in my own kitchen.

I look out the window and Autumn is everywhere. I can across a lovely bit of writing in my clipping book. This is a dissertation on Autumn done by a Pennsylvania Farm Teen, Rhoda Weber, at the age of 15. I suppose she is grown up by now. I do hope she kept on writing down her lovely thoughts.

She gives her writing a title: "Autumn is that wide-eyed feeling." "Autumn is when you wonder how summer's coming along so you step outdoors and a cool breeze greets you like a face splash.

Autumn is when you take a deep breath so the winy harvest air goes all the way down to your lungs and you feel like turning a couple of cartwheels, but since you can't you just stand and inhale.

Autumn is when you hear the honk of geese, so you run out to catch a quick glimpse of them -- and then spend a half-hour there watching red and orange leaf-flames float down from the trees. You watch a pair of golden leaf-lovers ballet across the color-carpeted lawn and you feel a tightness in your throat from the Food experiences shape lives.....

The foods that children eat have a direct effect on their growth, development, behavior, and ability to learn, says Delaware extension family living agent Debbie L. Walker. Early positive experiences with food lay firm ground for future eating habits. It is important that children study nutrition and know the role it plays in life. Children first need to realize that the energy they need to jump, run, prance, and grow comes from the foods they eat.

Stress the importance of foods at every opportunity. Expose children to a variety of foods, and explain why it is necessary to eat many different foods to develop properly.

Provide various food experiences to encourage children to develop a positive attitude toward foods. Food experiences at home and school teach and reinforce many concepts.

For instance, letting children help buy and prepare foods can give them a better understanding of quantities and measurements--a lesson in mathematics.

Children can also learn to distinguish colors, shapes, and textures using foods. Apples are red, bananas are yellow, and blueberries are blue--the three primary colors. Banana skins are smooth and uniform, while cauliflower florets are not.

Children can learn many new language skills when preparing foods. They can learn correct processes, terms and equipment, along with distinguishing tastes and smells. A fruit and vegetable smorgasbord can provide experiences that reinforce smells, tastes and terms such as sour lemons or tart apples; squeeze oranges or knead dough.

Watching foods grow, taking care of them and harvesting them provides the child with scientific experiences through food. Walker points out. Knowing where food comes from and why our bodies need it both have scientific implications.

Food experiences can also be used to emphasize a geography lesson. By seeing and tasting different foods from other countries, children get an understanding of differences of climates, soils, and cultures. Children can learn much about their own ethnic backgrounds through food, also.

Finally, good manners and consideration of others can be learned at the table. As children observe adult behavior while eating, they too learn to share with and respect others. Food experiences provide a wide range of learning activities for children everyday.
