

Public agreeable to housing, if.....

Harrington residents are in favor of some sort of housing for the elderly and would approve a rental complex proposed by Case-Edwards if it can be guaranteed the housing will be limited to senior citizens. That appeared to be the consensus after a straw vote taken near the conclusion of last Wednesday's public hearing on rezoning the property Case-Edwards wants to buy from Dudley Willis.

An informal count taken by Mayor Arthur Cahall showed a 23-5 margin of those attending and voting were in favor of the apartment complex. Eight of those voting in its favor are residents of the ward where the construction would take place. But most made it very clear they wanted adequate assurance the housing would not be filled except with senior citizens.

In fact the questions which recurred throughout the hearing were "Will you be able to fill all the units with senior citizens? and if not, what would you do?" The questions were directed at Case-Edwards representative Irwin Drummer. Drummer said his company, which has built similar complexes - not all of them for the elderly - all over the peninsula, has never been faced with that problem. He seemed reluctant to say what the company would do if not enough senior citizens were interested in the housing. But he also said his company would agree to the restrictions or requirements made by the Harrington City Council.

Council members, responding to the sentiments of the citizens, want the matter nailed down. Councilman Vincent Lobo said the

The Harrington City Council lined up to consider the facts and the questions at last Wednesday's public hearing in rezoning the Willis property. Most of the questions were aimed at Case-Edwards spokesman Irwin Drummer [far left]. His company wants to build an apartment complex on the site.

Randall Smith

A Harrington landmark, Burton's Sport Shop, changed ownership this month but long time patrons need not worry about any drastic changes. Taking over the familiar soda fountain on Commerce Street is Randall Smith, son of the late Burton Smith and Alma Smith, who has retired.

"I was born and raised here in this very store," said Randall in an interview this week. "It's got a lot of memories for me and, to say the least, I'm happy to be the new owner."

Burton and Alma Smith took over the Sport Shop from the Greenhalls in 1939. The Greenhalls sold food and drink along with sporting goods, which is where the shop originally got its name. "My mother and father kept the sporting goods end of the business for a while," said Randall, "but dropped the line after a few years. I can remember all the hunting, fishing and field sport stuff all around and also the Christmas decorations and boxed candy my parents used to sell. Oh, and don't forget the ice cream, homemade too. Can you believe we sold two dips on a cone for a nickel?"

Randall attended Harrington High and was drafted during the Korean War in 1953. After his discharge, he went to work for Kirby and Holloway in Dover as a cook. From there he became an insurance agent, then left to take a position at General Foods where he still holds a job.

Burton Smith died in 1976, leaving Alma to handle the store alone. Until January, she did just that. If you had a craving for a fountain Coke with a dash of cherry or vanilla, you could always count on Mrs. Smith to make it to perfection. A desire to spend more time with friends and relatives caused her to hand

Police crack burglary ring

The Harrington Police Department solved a major theft ring this week. The crimes were committed in both December and January. Charged in all four of the cases was Glenn D. Vincent of Harrington.

Taken into custody were Glenn D. Vincent, 20, of Harrington, Albert Lee Benton, 20, and Bruce L. Benton, 18, also of Harrington. These men were charged with the theft of $70 and an undisclosed quantity of cigarettes from Burton's Sport Shop on Commerce Street. The burglary took place on December 24, 1979. Patrolman Peter Bohn was the arresting officer.

Vincent and both Benton brothers were taken to Court 6 in Harrington and charged with burglary, theft and conspiracy. Bail was set at $3,000 and they were released for an appearance in Superior Court.

Also solved last week was another burglary case, this time at the Harrington Raceway. The incident took place on December 8th.

A truck owned by Joan Kelly of the Harrington Raceway was broken into on December 8th and a color TV was taken. Investigation by Patrolman Bohn and Delaware State Police Detective Harold Brode led to the arrest of Glenn Vincent, Albert Lee Benton and George R. Benton all of Harrington.

All three were charged with felony theft and conspiracy. Bail was set at $10,000 and a trial will be held in Superior Court.

In other action this week, the Harrington Police solved the burglary that took place at L & D Electronics on January 20th.

Taken in that burglary was a stereo receiver, speakers and a turntable. An investigation by Patrolman Twilley and Patrolman Peter Bohn led to the arrest of Glenn Vincent and Bruce Benton. The two were taken to Court 6 where they posted $3,000 bond for a later appearance in Superior Court. They were charged with burglary, conspiracy and theft. The arrest by Twilley and Bohn took place on January 28th.

Glenn Vincent was also arrested in another theft this week, making him practically a one man crime spree. Patrolman Bohn investigated a stereo theft from a car belonging to Richard L. Dale of Harrington. Patrolman Bohn got to Vincent by lifting fingerprints from the car window. He was released on $1,000 bond pending a Superior Court hearing.

L.F. Board approves RIF program

One way to motivate a student to read is to make sure that he owns a book. This is the rationale behind the federally supported "Reading is Fundamental" (RIF) program. It is a rationale with which the Lake Forest School Board is apparently in agreement. After hearing a presentation by high school librarian Emily McKnatt, at last week's regular meeting, the local board gave its approval to participation in the program by Lake Forest High School.

If the proposal receives a "go ahead" from the appropriate federal authorities, the RIF program would put an estimated 3,255 books into the hands of students in grades 9 to 12. The books would be given to the students, not just loaned to them.

According to plans to be submitted with the request for Federal funds, the books would be distributed through English classes on three occasions during the 12 months the program will be in effect. The distribution is to be preceded by a survey of student interests, and perhaps, by an assembly at which an author would speak.

The RIF program was originally supported in 1975 when Congress, by law, established the Inexpensive Book Distribution Program for Reading Motivation and granted funds on a 50-50 matching basis. In 1978 Congress upped the federal share to 75%.

Lake Forest High School will be seeking $9,765 of which $7,323.97 is to come from the federal government. $2,441.03 is the local share. Ms. McKnatt hopes to raise all or most of this from civic groups, businesses and other organizations within the Lake Forest District. The school board was asked to provide financial support if the efforts to raise funds from other sources fail or fall short.

The financial question resulted in a 3-2 split in the Board's decision to back the program with members Albert Price and James Gussett voting against it. Gussett cautioned the Board against guaranteeing monies that "...the man who handles the money says we don't have." It had been affirmed that there is no money in the budget for the local share of the program.

Taking its cue from member Cliff Chambers, ("Have you ever heard of gambling?"), the majority of the Board decided to risk backing the program in the hope that most of the funds can be gained from outside sources.

-Promotion Point System Questioned-

Discussion of a proposed revision of the promotion policy for grades 1 to 8 heated up over a suggested point system for the junior high school. Both teachers and administration want a point system. But the teachers would be tougher about it.

According to the policy suggested, promotion in 7th and 8th grade would depend upon two factors - meeting minimum competencies in arithmetic and language, arts and earning twelve points. English and math would be worth six points each, with three points assigned to science

Director of the Week

Thurman G. Adams, Sr.

Thurman G. Adams was elected to serve on the Board of Directors of the Peoples Bank of Harrington on January 10, 1973. He is 85 years old.

Mr. Adams is a Bridgeville native, he was born and raised on the same farm on which he still lives today. He is still active as a farmer, grain broker, feed dealer and other related agriculture businesses.

Thurman Adams says he enjoys his duties as a board member, particularly in light of the fact that he has done business with the "Friendly Bank" since 1920. As a member, he is directly involved in the decision making and policy setting functions of the bank. "The best part of the job," Mr. Adams said, "is associating with the other Board members, they are a great bunch to work with."

Thurman Adams; just one of the reasons why the Peoples Bank is known as the "Friendly Bank".

patterns. The wear and tear on Peck Avenue could have been avoided at the time the Council opted for a cheaper rather than a more durable job when the street was surfaced.

Would the additional sewer and water hook-ups overload Harrington's system?

City Manager Dave Peterson said "No".

These and other questions were fielded by Dudley Willis, Irwin Drummer and city officials present at the hearing.

A petition from property owners opposed to the rezoning was submitted by Earl Yoder.

During the time opened up for opinions to be expressed a number of citizens and Councilmen spoke a cautious word in favor of the rezoning. These included Councilman Ray Newman who said, in part "--this project will be the first step in meeting one need (housing). It will not come close to (fully) meeting that need. We need all kinds of housing".

A letter in favor of the rezoning signed by members of the Chamber of Commerce was read by its President Ray Gagne, and one from Bob Taylor, also in favor, was read and submitted to the Council.

Get Together and

Gabfest

by Pat Hatfield

Probably by now, we have reached the end of the recipes for cornstarch cake. That proved to be as big a project as the tomato fritters and the rice pudding, but we wrapped it up good. I am so anxious to try some of these, but my activities are still somewhat limited. These days my cooking involves casserole dishes, slow cooker meals and other one-dish affairs. I arrange the food and push the proper button and then rest until it is hot and ready. This afternoon I have put into the big roaster a chicken for roasting with crushed onion, and big fat carrots and white potatoes. This will feed us well with very little effort on my part. There is always fresh fruit for dessert.

This unplanned illness is spoiling my winter plans. I always use the cold winter months when the house is cozy and warm to try all the new recipes I've saved through the year. And I've saved more than I'll probably ever live to try. For some reason, I have now lost my taste for sweets. This is a blessing because I am not supposed to have much anyway. I'm glad I can still enjoy homemade bread. I would gladly give up most anything else to have homemade bread.

This is a typical January day... cold and gray and a sharp wind blowing. The blackbirds and starlings are descending in huge flocks on the fields and feeding. This usually means bad weather ahead. They know. I look across the bleak fields and picture the days that are soon to come when the gulls will come in from the ocean and we will hear their high keening and watch their graceful dives as they plummet down upon the plowed fields for food.

About that time, too, we will hear the call "kill-dee, kill-dee" as the little killdeer flies overhead selecting a site for her little nest of sticks and stones. All of the seasons have something special to give, but Spring will always be my favorite. It is the beginning. It is continuity. It is the Resurrection all over, in flower buds and bird song. It is Life.

Isn't it fun to go out for breakfast? I like going out to eat for a change at any time, but breakfast is my favorite. It always seems so special. This morning, after I finished my lab test at the hospital Ellen and I went over to McDonald's. We are so glad they have one in Milford now. Ellen's favorite breakfast is their egg McMuffin. That with a hot Danish and coffee. I favor pancakes in a restaurant and that was good, too. But best of all, this morning we found ourselves sitting next to old and dear friends. Lila and Hal Wall and Virginia Banning. Did we ever have a gab fest all our own! It made my day, emotionally and even physically. I felt so much better.

Yesterday afternoon was another wonderful time. An old friend whom I haven't seen for twenty years came and spent the afternoon with me. She was a former resident of Greenwood, the former "Pinky" Jester, when our mutual children were growing up. The conversation sparkled with memories of those by-gone years.

Report from Greenwood Methodist Charge: Remember that Saturday, February 2, at 6:30 is the Greenwood Covered-dish supper in the Fellowship Hall. Bring something for the auction which follows the supper.

On Sunday morning many commented on their enjoyment of the pastor's sermon, entitled "When All Else Fails, Read the Directions." How often we plunge into a project without bothering to read the directions. And it is more so with life. We cannot hope to make it work without reading the directions. And they may be found clearly stated in the Bible. It makes sense to read the directions before we try to put it together!

Callers on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allison Davis and the Jacob Hatfields were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elliott of Delmar. Mrs. Elliott was the former "Pinky" Jester who resided in Greenwood for many years.

Jacqueline Dill Heads For Spain

Jacqueline Dill, a former Lake Forest student and resident of Harrington, left Delaware today for Seville, Spain where she will be a student at the University of Seville this semester. Miss Dill is the recipient of a study grant from Trinity Christian College in Ohio which awards about a hundred such grants each year to students all over the nation.

Miss Dill is currently a student at Eastern Nazarene College in Boston where she has a major in Spanish and a minor in French and German. Her background in foreign languages goes back to her years as a student in the Lake Forest District. She took French in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades here, followed by French and Spanish in the tenth grade. In the eleventh grade, she transferred to Christiana High School where she took Spanish, French and German. Graduating from Christiana High School as a junior in 1977, Miss Dill received an award for fluency in French.

During her junior year, her family in Harrington was host to AFS (American Field Service) student Ute Wichels from Bremen, West Germany. In the summer of '77, Miss Dill was able to pay a return visit. She spent six weeks of that summer with the Wichels family in Bremen.

This semester she will be living with a Spanish family while she studies at the University of Seville. Before she returns in June she will have earned 16 credits in Spanish in such courses as Spanish history and politics.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry John Dill, Jr., formerly of Harrington.

Books By Mail To Sussex County Residents

Books By Mail, free, will soon be going out to residents of Kent and Sussex Counties from the Delaware Division of Libraries.

Division Director Sylvia Short says that many residents of rural areas who are home-bound, confined to institutions, who have no transportation to the nearest public library, or who are at work during the libraries' open hours, will qualify for the new service.

An information flyer with a tear-off, postage-paid reply card is now being received by patrons on rural mail routes in each county. On receipt of the reply card, the Division will mail a catalog listing over 500 titles in a variety of categories. The catalog contains a postage-paid card on which books may be ordered, as many as six, which may be kept for up to four weeks.

Books are mailed in a study fabric bag; a clear plastic pocket contains a label addressed to the patron, who returns the books by reversing the label to show the Division's address. Postage is pre-paid in each direction.

Short says that Books By Mail programs have been adopted in many library systems in the country and one has proved very successful close to home, in Maryland's Kent County. She feels that there are hundreds of potential readers in rural areas who will welcome the opportunity to broaden home horizons with a supply of good books.

Delaware Valley CFO

Christians who know and love the Lord rise above the chill of winter and its oft accompanying blues by gathering together in the joy of Christian fellowship.

One such gathering is the Delaware Valley CFO Mid-Winter Retreat held February 8, 9 and 10 at the Wesley United Methodist Church, The City Plaza Dover, Delaware. Speaking leader for this mini camp is Earl Tyson, a man with roots in the church. He is an ordained minister of the United Methodist Church, Virginia Conference. His father and five brothers have all been ordained in the United Methodist Church. Educated in the North Carolina public schools, Guilford College and at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Virginia, he was held pastorates for 17 years prior to entering the ministry of evangelism in 1970.

Earl, an approved evangelist of the United Methodist Church, and his wife, Betty, are the founder/directors of Emmaus, a unique experience in Christian living for older teenage girls in King George, Virginia. Earl and his family make their home in Scottsville, Virginia. Gene Pehovic, Ellicott City, Maryland will lead in the release and joy of worship in song. Betty Smith, Salisbury, Maryland, formerly of Easton and Cambridge will be leading in praise and the healing experience of Rhythms or Devotion in Motion.

Delaware Valley CFO is one of more than one hundred CFO camps throughout the world - this year celebrating their 50th year. The Camps Farthest Out are an adventure in Christian living. CFO does not take the place of a church nor is it a vacation. The purpose is for Christians of ALL denominations to unite for a weekend of prayer and spiritual growth, and then return to their churches to continue to grow as they serve and share in Christian love.

The program includes meditation, prayer, speaking, singing, rhythm and witnessing in order that the mind, body and spirit may be integrated into a normal, healthy, joyous, effective total personality. Brochures may be obtained from Mr. V.H. Hill, 604 Orchard Drive, Wilmington, Delaware 19803.

For Your Information

Dear friends,

When visiting the bereaved we may dread an encounter with a broken-hearted friend who may literally weep on your shoulder. The best response to such emotion is kindness. The sympathetic friend will allow the person to weep without interference. They can be helped by your presence and your touch.

Respectfully,

William C. Berry Jr.

Sports

Wrestlers take I.R., lose to C.R.

105 pounder Bobby Fleming came of age last week with two wins. Here he starts a match.....

It was an up and down week for the Lake Forest varsity wrestlers as the matmen whipped Indian River at home on Wednesday, and lost to an awesome C.R. squad in Camden on Saturday night. It was 41-19 against Indian River and 47-9 against C.R.

Coach Tom Schaffer was fairly confident of his team's chances on Wednesday as Indian River is in a rebuilding year after the loss of most of their talent in the upper weight classes.

Greg Ecenrode began things in the 98 pound class with a forfeit win.

Next was Bobby Fleming at 105. Fleming, who has been struggling to find himself in his first varsity year, showed he had obviously turned the corner with a convincing 10-4 victory over a proven opponent. He started slowly, giving up all four points in the first period, but came back strong to finish with a win.

Charles Jones followed with another forfeit win and it was Jeff Grove's turn at 119 pounds. Grove worked hard from the start and finally put his man to the mat for a pin in 5:52.

At 126, Ken Williams was beaten 12-2. Williams shows much talent, but just so happens to be in probably the most competitive class there is.

Doug Stevens was next and the 132 pound sophomore went down in 3:45. Stevens lacks only the experience, which should come to him soon.

138 pound Dave Brown came on the mat next and atoned for the previous loss with a 11-2 win over a tough competitor. "Dave did an excellent job this time," said his coach. "He looked as good as I have seen him."

Mike Kosiorowski suffered through a disappointing contest in his 145 pound class. Kosiorowski definitely outwrestled his opponent but wound up on the losing end of a 4-3 score. He lost points due to a questionable stalling call by the referee which made the difference. "I challenged the ref about the call, but obviously got nowhere," said Schaffer. "It is a shame that Mike had to lose this way, he wrestled well and deserved better."

Hershel Harmon was next at 155 and lost by pin in 3:53. He was not in the best of shape as he had to shed 3 pounds that day to make weight.

Showing his usual determination and drive, 167 pound Jimmy Fleming went out and man-handled his man to get a pin in 3:52.

Vinny Ware followed and lost by a pin in just under a minute.

Heavyweight Dave Powell earned his first victory of the season in the following heavyweight battle with a 15-4 decision.

The win gave the Spartans a 2-2-1 season record.

On Saturday, the Spartans made the trip to Camden to meet the always tough Riders at C.R. To say the least, Schaffer expected a good fight there, and he wasn't disappointed. The two Flemings, Bobby and Jimmy, were the only wins of the night at C.R. put on a wrestling clinic and showed why they think they are number one - they just may be.

Greg Ecenrode lost by pin in just 50 seconds to start things off.

Then Bobby Fleming had his best match yet. He scored his first takedown of the year and his first pin, it came in 2 minutes 46 seconds. "He is getting his confidence now," said Schaffer. "He is learning more and more and beginning to put it all together. We are all proud of him, he's a real fighter."

Charles Jones was next on the mat to go against one of the state's best, Sydney Wicks at 112 pounds. Jones, who has made his mark with a quick move from the bottom, was unable to fool the crafty and mat-wise Wicks with the move and wound up on the losing end of a 10-1 score. It was Jones' first loss. To go against the tough competition in the 112 pound class, insiders say that Jones is going to need a little more strength.

Senior Jeff Grove made it two in a row as he was simply outmuscled in his 119 contest. He was blanked 5-0.

Ken Williams also failed to score a point in his 126 pound class match. He lost 12-0 against what has to be the class of the state, Parry. No matter how well Williams may have been on Saturday, it's doubtful if Parry can be had.

Doug Stevens got his turn next at 132. Stevens looked good, although he lost by a whopping 23-13 margin, and moved constantly the entire match. "Give him a lot of credit," said Schaffer, "he stayed off his back and gave it all he had."

At 138, Dave Brown got beat 14-5. He too made a good battle out of an impossible situation against a veteran state ranked wrestler.

Mike Kosiorowski followed at his usual 145 pound weight. The match was evenly fought and tied until the last period when Mike tried to make the winning score in a hurry. He attempted his often effective cradle but the move backfired and he lost it 2-0, his largest margin of loss this season.

Then it was Hershel Harmon's turn on the floor and he too met one of the best in Delaware. He looked good but wasn't really in the same class as his counterpart and lost by pin in 4:55.

Jimmy Fleming followed at 167 and drove for the pin from the opening moment. He almost had it but finally settled for a 5-1 win. That brought Fleming's record to 5-1.

Both Ware and Powell, 185 and heavyweight respectively, lost their matches by pin.

Spartans halt losing streak at S.C.

They had lost two in a row, and that wasn't good. Lake Forest, who started the season with 8 straight wins, were in danger of letting things get out of hand - they were looking for a win against Milford on Tuesday night.

They didn't get it, Milford won in the final moments 56-50. "They were pretty good," said coach Bill Falasco, "we should have won it but I have to say they played fairly well and deserved the win."

The Spartans actually lost the contest on the foul line, they made but 10 out of 22 attempts and it made the difference.

The game was won in the last 7 seconds. Milford had the ball and Falasco called for his men to intentionally foul in order to get a chance at a shot. So they fouled, but the Milford player made both of them, making the score 54-50 Milford. On Lake Forest's next possession, a long pass was intercepted and Milford made the shot. There went the game and the Spartans had lost their third in a row.

Scoring points for Lake Forest were Kenny Sudler with 13, Darryl Curry with 10 and both Mark Smith and Quinten Hendricks had 11.

On Friday, the Spartans traveled to Georgetown to play Sussex Central, it was a must win situation for the tailspinning Lake Forest team.

Win it they did, but not without a scary finish. The first period ended with things going very well. It was 21-12 after one and things looked good. Sussex came back in the second period, but the Spartans kept on scoring and led 33-25 at the half. In the third, Sussex pulled closer and made it 49-41. The final period was the heartstopper as Lake Forest allowed points to go unanswered until only the final buzzer saved them. It ended with the Spartans on top by one point, 60-59.

Said Bill "The Godfather" Falasco, "We played rather inconsistently, and it almost beat us."

Kenny Sudler led the team scoring with 16 points.

Dyal's girls play best game

Pat Dyal and the girls varsity basketball team split two last week with a win on Tuesday versus Milford and a loss on Friday to Sussex Central. Tuesday it was 37-32 and Dyal called it "our best game this year". Friday she benched the entire first team in the second half and called it a disgrace. Seems when your hot, your hot, and when your not.....

Against Milford, Lake Forest shot for a fine 41% from the floor, played flawless defense and did everything else right.

"They played just the way I wanted them to," said Dyal. We ran a constantly changing defense, from a 1-2-2 to a 1-3-1, and the girls reacted perfectly. We kept them off balance and struggling all night. It's the best we have ever played.

The Spartans led after the first period 10-7, led after the second 18-14 and squeaked ahead after the third 26-25. Brenda Thomas led all scorers with 15 points followed by Tina Durant with 10 and Laurie Toller, who did a great job filling in for the injured Gwen Scott, had 6. Toller hit 4 big points in the last period to lock the game up for Lake Forest.

"We were patient this game," said coach Dyal, "It was a big win for us."

Things changed in a hurry on Friday as Lake Forest was soundly whipped 43-20 in Georgetown. "We got a lesson in basic basketball," said Dyal, "they played very well and we played miserably. We couldn't do much of anything right and I wound up taking out the entire first team because of it."

"I was just glad to get out of the gym that night," she said.

Chipman Student Council

by Debbie Perry

The purpose of our Student Council is to insure the 7th and 8th grade body a proper voice in important events at the school.

In September, teachers take nominations for Home Room Representatives. After the teacher receives all of the nominations, the nominees leave the room and the class takes a vote. Of course, the one with the most votes is home room representative.

For the people that want to be on the Executive Committee there are several jobs open. There are President, Vice President, seventh and eighth grade representative. Vice-President and seventh grade representative jobs are open only to the seventh graders. President and eighth grade representative jobs are open only to the eighth graders. Anyone that wants to be a President, Vice-President, or a representative must get forty signatures from anyone he wishes, (granted that he is in the 8th grade) before he can be a candidate for the office. The Student Council's secretary and treasurer are elected by the Student Council. By the way, our President is Sandra Warren; our Vice President is April Becton.

The Student Council has been responsible for entertainment and such for some time. We started our duty in September. Since then we have sponsored a few day-time disco dances, we took care of the pictures and the money involved, made I.D. cards, and several movies. Around Christmas time, we had a movie, and the admission was a canned good or fifty cents. The canned goods and money went in a care package for the needy.

Boys win and lose

by Rebecca Brown

The W.T. Chipman boys basketball team won against Laurel last Thursday 50-29. Jerome Scott was the leading scorer for Chipman. Scott had 19 points and Stanton Spencer had 12. Johnson, Showell and West all had 6 points for Laurel.

The boys lost Monday to Woodbridge 43-45 in double overtime. At half time Chipman was ahead 18-12. In the third quarter Woodbridge scored 9 points to put them ahead 21-25. By the end of the fourth quarter the score was 36-36. At the end of the first overtime the score was still tied 38-38. At the finish of the game Woodbridge was on top 43-45. Jerome Scott lead the scoring for Chipman with 18 points. Boys coach, Mr. Davis said that they played a good game and everyone did well.

Music, music, music.....

On Friday morning the second graders were playing drums, triangles and rhythm sticks as they followed a picture chart. Because it was Robbie Hawkins' birthday, he got to be the pointer, directing the class through the chart. Everyone was getting involved and the whole class was having a good time. That included the Blue B photographer who picked up a drum whenever he wasn't taking pictures.

On Monday afternoon the fourth graders had put away their recorders by the time the Blue B reporter arrived. They were into rhythm, clapping their hands and, later, using rhythm sticks as they followed first, the teacher, and then, a record.

The patterns were simple to begin with. But they became intricate. The kids started out sitting on the floor. But by the end of the session, their whole bodies as well as the rhythm sticks were moving to "....music, music, music." The whole thing was contagious. The kids were having fun. And so was their teacher.

Their teacher is Mrs. Jane Singleton. Her students are all in classes at Lake Forest North Elementary in Felton where she oversees the music program from preschool through sixth grade.

At all levels her kids sing, play instruments, and dance. They begin with simple songs, simple instruments and simple body movements and progress to the more complicated. Rhythms are first felt, but later visualized as they go from picture charts to games played on a "floor staff" to actually reading and writing music. All along the way there's a lot of variety, a lot of movement, a lot of fun. And yes, Mikey (and Mom and Dad), they learn a good deal about music, too. (In fact, don't tell anyone, but it's good for them.)

With her pre-schoolers and kindergartners Mrs. Singleton sings very simple songs as they learn to make "pretty sounds" with their voices. They also become conscious of differences in sounds as they discover that some are fast and some are slow, some are high and some are low, some go up and some come down. And they get involved with simple instruments, translating into sound the rhythms they feel with bodies that are almost never still because they weren't meant to be.

By grades one and two, "Beat" is the big word as youngsters go more extensively into rhythms, rhythm instruments and how they are used in songs. For the first and second graders rhythms begin to be visualized as they use picture charts. The second graders will also learn to follow Kodaly charts which use the symbols ta (a quarter note equivalent), ti-ti (two eighths) and a rest. They are actually reading a form of music.

When they get to the third graders, they leave the ta and ti-ti behind and learn that notes have names and values. But it's still fun as the music staff comes off the blackboard to the floor where it is described in super size with colored tape. Here it makes a giant playing field as kids toss bean bags to learn the letter names of the notes and get the feel of note values as they walk the lines and discover that a quarter is a "walk" (one beat) note, but a whole is a "walk very slow" (four beat) note.

By this time their simple songs are parts of such musical stories as "Bambi" and "Mary Poppins" as they get acquainted with simple musicals and learn that songs have meaning and can help to tell a story.

By fourth grade, the music staff leaves the floor and goes back on paper as the students write music and learn such musical terms as "measure" and "treble clef". Fourth grade is also the exciting year they learn to play simple melo-

They get to use the recorder for a month during which they are given music to take home and learn. The month will be repeated in fifth and again in sixth grades. Rhythm for fourth graders become increasingly intricate as they learn to follow more complex patterns of greater duration.

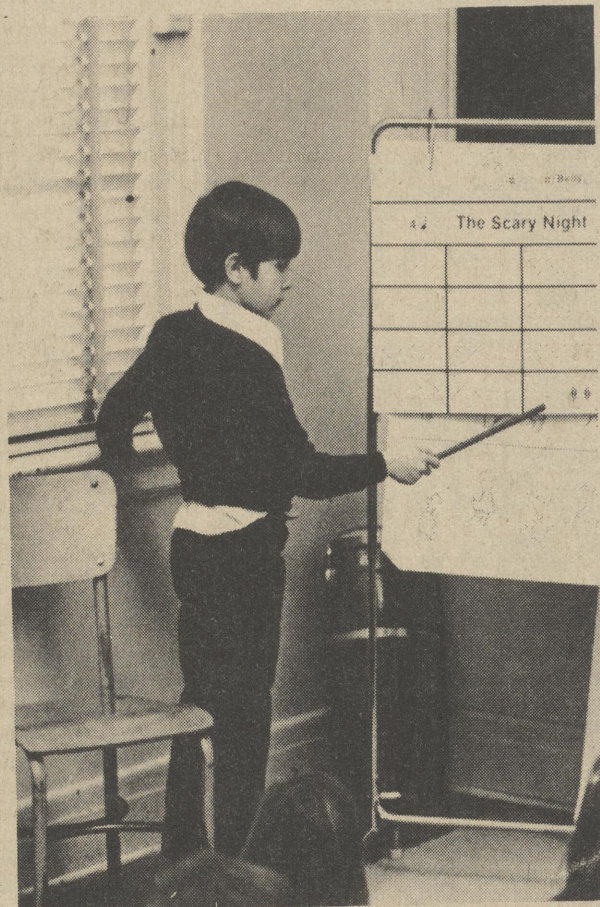

In fifth grade the highlight is a unit in which kids learn about the various instruments as they are presented by filmstrip and chart and get a personal introduction to each one as band students bring their individual instruments to class. By fifth grade, many students are beginning to select band instruments they may wish to learn. Also in fifth grade, the writing of music becomes personalized as they are encouraged to use variety in composing their own melodies.

Sixth graders do a unit on composers, getting acquainted with Tchaikovsky, Strauss and Beethoven through the magic of materials from Walt Disney. In another unit they find out how a record is made.

Both fifth and sixth graders are involved in glee clubs, each grade having its own group of more than 80 members. In addition to this, some outstanding sixth graders may be taking piano lessons with Mrs. Singleton at noon or during a recess. Others in the sixth grade will be studying individual band instruments. Although Mrs. Singleton does not teach the band instruments themselves, she will have given each of her students who chooses that direction a good musical foundation as a start.

Music classes are fun all year long at North, but the fun intensifies with preparations for the two big musical and dramatic extravaganzas held each year, one at Christmas and one in the spring. By tradition and because of the sheer numbers of students involved, the first and second graders get to be in the Christmas musical, and the third and fourth grades are starred in the spring. Prestigious fifth and sixth grade glee club members participate in both.

The 1979 "Christmas Fantasy" is behind, but things should be gearing up soon as Mrs. Singleton's music students turn what they have learned in class into the kind of entertainment that ritually packs the gym at North for an evening in which parents, too, get involved in all that fun.

Follow that pointer-

Robbie Hawkins pointed it all out as his classmates picked up the beat. It was Robbie's birthday, and he celebrated part of it by being the man on the spot in Mrs. Singleton's music class. His chore was to help his second grade classmates follow a picture chart to help them visualize a rhythmic pattern.

Math - HELP! (Lake Forest students are getting it.)

Any student who attends Lake Forest Schools knows that days are busy with a lot of scurrying here and there. There's always some place to go and something to do - gym, art, band, reading groups, the library -.

Among all those students who get around are those who go to Mrs. Betsy Domke's or Mrs. Barbara Trent's classes for the extra help they may need in specific math skills. For some, this takes the place of math in their home classroom. For others, third graders in particular, it means a half hour of work beyond the regular classroom.

On Friday, the Blue Banana dropped in on a group of sixth graders hard at work in Mrs. Domke's class in a conference room at Lake Forest East in Frederica. They had been working on measurements - both U.S. and metric systems - and were in the process of taking a test. Needless to say, they did not object to a break to have their picture taken.

These students started at this year working with Mrs. Domke on fractions - their choice. They work on a "strand" - that is concentrating on one area and following it through all the levels up to fifth or sixth grade.

Asked what they liked best about this class so far this year, they said, surprisingly enough, "taking tests". (Mrs. Domke says they have taken quite a few, both to pinpoint their needs and to demonstrate mastery or progress as they worked on various skills.) Multiplication was second; division, third.

There are eight young people in this class, but Mrs. Domke works with about 60 during each day. She is at Lake Forest South in Harrington in the morning and travels to East in Frederica for the afternoon. Mrs. Trent is the special math teacher at Lake Forest North in Felton. Both work with students in third through sixth grades.

Students in the Lake Forest District have been getting extra help in reading through the federally funded Title I program for years. Special help in math is new. It has been made possible by state appropriated basic skills funds.

Mrs. Domke says the emphasis is on beefing up basic skills in any math area where a student shows a need. And concentration is on understanding the process. Getting the right answer is important, but knowing how to get it is much more so. To do this, a student must stop and think before the problem he sees can be translated to an answer on paper. She stresses knowing the right way, being accurate and cleaning up work habits in her efforts to give that extra "help" in math.

"Be With a Book for a Day" (Essays tell what, why, where.....)

"Be with a book for a day". Sounds like a good idea, doesn't it? At least President Carter thought so. And back when the National Conference On Libraries was holding forth for a week in Washington, he proclaimed the 19th of that month "Be With A Book for a Day" day.

Taking a cue from the President, Mrs. Joanne Clough, librarian at Lake Forest South decided to hold an essay contest in conjunction with the day. Entries were invited from grades 3 to 6, and each entrant had the choice of writing on "What I Read", "Why I Read", or "Where I Read". As could be expected, kids read a variety of things for a variety of reasons in a variety of places.

Mrs. Clough received 74 essays, from which two winners at each grade level were chosen. There were also 20 students who received an honorable mention. Two whole classes - Mrs. Anne Minner's fifth grade and Mrs. Joan Myer's third grade participated as part of an assignment.

Winners each received a book, and those on the honorable mention list were awarded special book marks. In addition, the winning entries were on display at the Harrington Public Library for the month of December.

Following is a selection of winning essays.

I read at school and at home. And at the library.

by Linda Wittle
[First Place, Third Grade]

Because I think it's very fun to do. And also it's my favorite thing to do.

I mostly read in the book I got at the book-fair and I read in my city book and a whole mess of other books too.

I always, I mean always read in my room.

by Rodney Collins
[Second Place, Third Grade]

I read because sometimes I get curious and I want to know more about that particular thing. Horses are my hobby so I like reading about them. I also think that reading will make you broad minded and teach you more things about this world and many things about it. Reading is important. Everybody needs to learn to read. I like reading a lot, and reading is good for you to know what you want to know about. Reading tells you what is going on around your area and other areas, too.

Funny stories make you laugh and feel good about yourself and that's another reason why you read. Other stories will help you get your mind off of what you are thinking of. Some stories you read just to do something. Just because you're bored. Reading can be very exciting when you read something that you enjoy.

I wish I had a book called "Gymnastics". I would read it and read it. If I win I'm going to ask for a book called "Gymnastics" when I get 17 I'm going to sign up for "gymnastics".

I hope I pass to get there. I'm going to go to college and be a teacher because I read a whole book with ten chapters the title is "The Plot Against Buster the Dog". By Gordon Boshell. Illustrated by Pat Dypold.

I'll write in a little section on the paper.

"I left some food on my plate", said Buster. "I thought you'll be hungry". Slinky cat didn't answer. She just sat still and looked mad. "Aren't you going to eat it?" asked Buster. I thought you would like to hear some it's time for dinner now good-bye.

[First Place, Sixth Grade]

I like to read because it is fun and it has experiences. It has good books like fiction, nonfiction, mysteries, funny stories. I also like to read because it helps me to build up my reading skills and my reading.

I have a lot of fun reading books because they make me get real interested in reading and I need to read more and more all day.

Books are all different kinds like I said they are good for you and help you build up your skills in reading.

by Tracy Phelps
[Second Place, Sixth Grade]

I like to read because I can learn a lot of words, meanings, and phrases. I like mysteries and scary stories and also I like funny books and books about magic stories and magic tricks.

I like to read in between class when I have a mintue and on thursdays when I have studyhall.

by Missy Clough

The reason I like to read is because you learn alot by reading. When you get a book you shouldn't just flip over the pages. You should get a book you like and a book you are going to read.

You should get a book your own level and not a baby book. Reading really isn't a funny matter. If you couldn't read you could not get a job. Some people think reading is stupid and it takes too much time, but they are wrong. It might take time but it's worth it.

If you like to read you ought to go to a public library near you. You might even start a read-athon, or even a reading club. If you have ever seen a read-mobile and went into it you would see a lot of books.

by Melody Schaffner
[Second Place, Fifth Grade]

I like reading. It is fun especially reading of famous people and monsters. Like the Mad Scientists where he creates all sorts of monsters. Reading can get people farther than people that don't read. Reading can help you get a job easier and it will get you a high school Diploma. Reading can help you go places. It helps you know the days of the week, holidays, and famous people. It is fun to read. I like to read at school at home and especially on long trips. Reading can help you get a good career. Reading is very important if you didn't have reading you wouldn't have English language and you probably wouldn't have parts of speech. Reading can lead you to a good life ahead of you.

by Aguilha Coleman
[Second Place, Fourth Grade]

I want to read about all sorts of animals. Mrs. Clough our library teacher has very many books on animals. I really like reading about dogs and cats.

I would like Mrs. Clough to get some new books on dogs and cats. Miss Myers our homeroom teacher has very many books on dogs. But now to many books on cats. She has a book called the post office dog which is based on a dog. She also has a book called Miss Pickett and her dog Spot. She has one book on cats. It is called Sammel the mailman's cat. It is a very good book.

My friend Tracy Leslie she told me that she read a book on a dog and cat both. The title is The Dog That Loved the Cat. The dog and cat lived in the same house on the same street. The dog's name is Duke and the cat's name is Tom. The animals loved to live with each other. The master loved both animals. And they lived happy ever after.

I read mostly funny books but sometimes I read a mystry book. I mostly read Snoopy books. I have got one Denice the Menice book. But I've got all these Snoopy books. Don't give up Charlie Brown. Hey Peanuts, Come home Snoopy Movie book, Shaggy D.A.

by Doug Trader

I like to read in our car It is fun to read outdoors. I roll the car window and feel the nice cool wind on a hot sunny day. Everyday my mother goes somewhere like Delaware I carry a book to read. We travel a lot that's why I read when I forget a book I look under the car seat and there a book is there waiting for me to read it.

by Shawn Thompson

Why you read - you read for enjoyment, or something to do. But you could read. Another reason is it can help you, read better, learn more, and learn new words, and some other things. If you didn't have Reading you would spell cook like this kook. Reading a book can help you in spelling to. That is why you should read a book, or something everyday. You can never ever push reading away. Reading will stay with you the rest of your life.

What you read-you read, scary books, funny books, science books, jock books, and state books, and other things you can read, and there all right in the school library.

by Freddie Murry

Where you read-you can read in the living room, in the kitchen, the car, in bed, and other places. You can read any were.

by Kellie Draper

I like to read animal books. I think they are exiting. I live on a farm and I have animals. I have dogs cats cows and I use to have pigs. My pop pop has horses. He has a lot of them. I always get animal books from the library. I like rabbits the best. I use to have rabbits to. My sister has chickens. I mite be a veterinarian when I grow up.

by Paige Parker

When I read a book I try to get a place by myself, like in my bedroom or my living room or attic.

I like reading space books or stories about space.

Also I enjoy reading books if they are very interesting and funny. When I read books about engines or space crafts, I feel very smart. But if you read books long enough that have important information you will soon get smart.

Reading can be a lot of fun if you take time in doing so. Sometimes reading books can be boring if you don't pick the book you like, but usually that doesn't happen, since you usually pick the book you enjoy most.

by Craig MacBlain

Reading is important in our everyday lives. We should all try to take reading seriously. If we couldn't read it would be impossible to obey traffic signs. It also would be hard to shop if you could not read the labels, and you couldn't sing church hymns in church if you couldn't read the words. Reading mail, directions and cookbooks for cooking would also be impossible if we couldn't read. We don't just read words we read numbers too. I nobody could read numbers mailmen could not read our zip code on letters, nor could we dial our phones. "Yes", learning to read is very important, and I like to read very much.

by Derek Dill

I read books that are spooky. Like books about Dracula and the Wolf Man Frankenstein and all of the other scary books.

I like what Dracula does to his victims. He will drain all of his victims blood and he leaves his teeth mark in there neck.

Dracula only comes out when it's dark like the Wolf Man. But Frankenstein comes out any time.

by Freddie Murry

I sometimes read a mystery book and sometimes I read funny books like Tales of the Forth Grade Nothing. I read regular books that sometimes turn out funny or a mystery.

Once I read a book called The Bears House and I enjoyed it because it has alot of exiting parts to it.

There are books I read about science and a whole lot of others.

by Kelly Adams

I like reading becuse. It is fun. I read in liberty. I read at home too. My techer tell me to read in class. I like reading. I like to look at the picher.

by Beverly Wyatt

-Winners-

I like to read because it is fun. And because it teaches you to learn.

I like to read about cats. And animals. And pretty flowers. And leaves and trees.

citizens are obviously asking for assurances in the matter, and he thinks any agreement made should be "by law". Property owner Dudley Willis offered to write in a deed restriction which would limit Case-Edwards to a specific use of the property, but Lobo said deed restrictions (in the past) have been removed - for the right price. Lobo wants to be sure only restrictions asked by the city have a firm legal foundation before the property is rezoned. Whether current city zoning ordinance allow such a restriction or whether they could be rewritten to make it legal is the next question the City Council must face.

At a special meeting following the public hearing, Council members decided to table the question until they can sit down with City Solicitor Harry Terry and look at the legal situation. Presumably meetings with lawyers for Case-Edwards and for Dudley Willis would follow.

Hearing Sheds Factual Light

As Mayor Arthur Cahall had pledged, the initial portion of the hearing was mostly kept open for the presentation of factual material and the asking of factual questions.

Citizens and Councilmen alike had a number of concerns besides the limitation of the housing to the elderly. These surfaced in the discussion and included the following:

What is this going to cost the city?

Irwin Drummer of Case-Edwards said "We pay our way, and we pay our taxes. We are not a liability to the community. We are an asset--". Beyond the normal services (such as police protection) the City provides every resident, there should be no cost. Sewer and water hookups are already in place in the area, and the company would pay for its own plumbing up to those points. It would also construct and maintain its own tar and chip roads or drives and do its own snow removal.

It was further pointed out that Case-Edwards is a private company which would construct, own, maintain and manage the apartment complex. This is not a HUD project. The company must put up thousands of dollars of its own money before getting a loan through the Farmers Home Administration.

Case-Edwards would indeed pay taxes and sewer and water fees to the city. This might bring in as much as $10,000 in additional revenues.

How would senior citizens be able to afford the apartments, and would an elderly person be evicted if unable to pay?

Actual rents paid would be on a pro-rated basis on Social Security income with no other income the individual might have taken into account. The company has not so far had to evict a senior citizen. Do you maintain the buildings?

Case-Edwards maintains its properties and retains a live-in building supervisor who would be selected from the community and who would be available to handle emergencies and call repairs.

Tenants could be evicted for disruptive behavior or for non-payment of rent. The company insists the property be kept clean. Would Case-Edwards want to build more apartment units after the first complex?

Case-Edwards has an option to buy the rest of the property. But rezoning from industrial to residential has only been asked for the 7.3 acres on which it now intends to build. It would have to go back to City Council for rezoning if it wanted to build on the remaining property. Current building plans call for a lot of open space around the buildings, but this is for landscaping, not for squeezing in more units.

Why did the city refuse Willis' offer of a 200 foot strip of property between Peck Avenue and the parcel for which he seeks rezoning?

The City Council wanted to remove all doubt that it might be influenced in its decision by the offer of land.

How would building the complex affect traffic patterns and streets?

Willis said it should have little significant effect on traffic

Letter To The Editor Where were you?

Dear Sir:

This letter is directed to the citizens of Harrington, DE...All of them...in regards to the public hearing held on January 23, 1980 at the Fire House.

Where were you? Harrington is supposed to have a population of about 2500, but only about 30 people showed up...this represents about 1 1/4% of the residents of the town. Aren't you interested in what happens?

I DO want to congratulate the Mayor and City Council on their orderly and informative meeting. Congratulations, Men!

In the past few months many different stories and rumors have been spreading and circulating about the proposed Case-Edwards Development which wants to come into the First Ward. In my opinion the only way to stop these stories is to attend these public meetings and get the facts. Regardless of what each and every one of the residents of Harrington thinks, this project affects us all.

After attending the above mentioned public hearing, I urge the City Council to vote for the project and accept the 200 feet of land that was offered to them. Build a City Office Building or a public park on it, even if they have to float a bond to do so.

All of the above is my own opinion, what's yours? Attend Council Meetings and public hearings so your council will know what YOU want done!

A concerned citizen,
 Carroll Welch, Jr.

Don't just say watermelon. Say MAR-DEL Equally for cantaloupes. Top-Taste and MAR-DEL are identical. We here in the East cannot remain content with the growing. Other areas rush in to capture and saturate the market. Fact is the edge on quality is here. Right here - derived sharply from the vantage point of grower know-how.

We are going to have to put the MAR-DEL name upon promotional illustrations; then make certain these placards are displayed from the market shelf space. The word "promotion" came to birth long ago from the idea of keeping things alive. Also, a proven trait of salesmanship has been "don't let the customers' interest get fastened on an inferior article when you can just as readily direct it, at the beginning, to the better grades". This we can do effectively with loaves and melons-but not without effort.

Talking with Bob Lambden of our staff this week about his boyhood days working on his father's 10 acres of watermelons each summer. "Dad would go ahead, determine and cut the ripeness from the vines and roll bellies on top." That last operation threw me, so out came the obvious question. His reply was that the light spot from ground contact served as a marker so we could identify and carry them out for pick up later. That conversation proved to me that a fellow has missed a lot if he hasn't handled melons or loaves in one place or another.

It is a people business. Go to Laurel or Salisbury Auction Block when the lines begin. Talk about action! Involvement - even to transfer from wagons and trucks to tractor-trailers. This is where boys make school and college money at so much per. Men, older than myself, recall how they too did the same - back when.

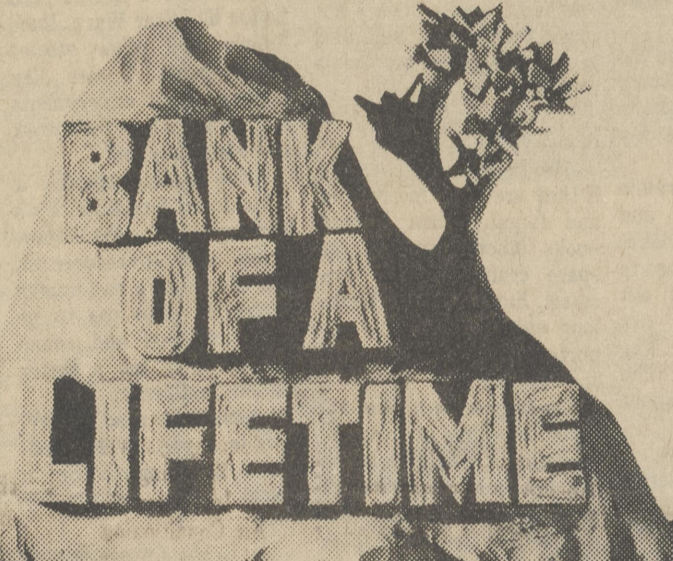

Competitive bidding is the healthy system and "sample-sales" is the recent innovation for larger growers. You've got a good thing going if you're IN with the BLOCK.

The very distinct entity that bought cantaloupes and watermelons up in the world requires faithfulness to keep it going. Can't fudge on it, knock it or hold back on support; and then expect the BLOCK to be always there with open arms the moment you might want and really need the use of it.

LOYALTY should be as consistent with the BLOCK as Top-Taste is already with MAR-DEL.

Beware of 'bargain' windows

You're shopping for new windows. The price of "bargain replacements" is a temptation. Resist it.

In the best of circumstances, "bargain" building materials are seldom worth it.

These days, with skyrocketing fuel costs and the concurrent need to save energy, choosing cheap windows can be an expensive mistake.

The greatest potential sources of serious heat loss in a home are the roof and windows.

Therefore, these areas need the best available protection.

For roofs, it's optimum attic insulation. For windows, it's wood sash and frames because wood is a natural insulator, plus tight, factory-applied weatherstripping and either separate storm sash or double-pane insulating glass.

These insulating features often aren't available in cheap windows. And, though quality windows cost more initially, the money is readily recouped in fuel savings.

Even after the windows have "paid for themselves," they will continue to pay dividends in energy conservation. Home owners can also save on labor costs by installing windows themselves. Most distributors and manufacturers will provide instructions.

One person with basic carpentry skills generally can handle the job, though help may be needed lifting the window into place.

When selecting windows, pick the right style for your purpose.

Weatherstripped wood windows — many with convenient double-pane insulating glass — are available as:

- Casements: easy to reach and operate, especially above sinks and countertops. They open like a door and give good visibility and ventilation.
- Double-hung: open vertically, and are suitable for every room.
- Sliders: open horizontally, and have wide visibility. Sliding glass patio doors provide expansive views and easy access to the outdoors.
- Bows (convex and bays (straight in the center, angled at each end) are among the most beautiful window units. They are Colonial classics.
- Awnings, which open out and up, and hoppers, which open in and down, offer easily adjusted ventilation. Often used in series.

Ready-to-install wood units come in stock sizes and various styles at local window distributors or building supply centers.

Many also come with a low-maintenance exterior cladding that all but eliminates the need for any periodic painting.

Home owners can save on the cost of windows by installing them with the help from a friend. But home owners are advised not to skimp on quality when selecting windows.

Gov't agencies release housing survey report

Sixty-three percent of the owners of the nation's 38.7 million owner-occupied single-family housing units reported making alterations and repairs in the 12 months prior to October 1977, according to a survey report released by the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce, and the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

In addition, 43 percent of the owners in single-family units predicted they would make further alterations or repairs during the following year.

The survey, conducted for HUD by the Bureau in October 1977, showed that there was a total of 82.4 million housing units in the United States.

Of the total housing units, 80.7 million units were available for year-round use (occupied and vacant) and the remaining 1.7 million were vacant units for seasonal use.

Of the 75.3 million occupied housing units, 64.8 percent were occupied by owners.

The survey showed that of the 80.7 million year-round housing units, 67 percent were single-family units, 28 percent were multi-family units and 5 percent were mobile homes or trailers.

The report shows that 55 percent of all occupied housing units used utility gas for heating their homes while 21

FAMILY WORK AND STORAGE AREAS

Whether it's a house for a large family or an apartment for a single, it seems there's never enough storage space.

But the U.S. Department of Agriculture has some suggestions on putting storage space to work.

Even in tight places, wall storage is usually abundant. Make it more useful by putting up shelves and pegboard. That way you'll clear scarce floor space for heavy or bulky items.

And extra space can be created in congested storage places by interchanging seasonal items. Right now, it's getting to be time to remove the lawnmower and golf clubs to a less convenient spot to make room for the snowblower and skis.

For more tips, send for a new free booklet entitled Family Work and Storage Areas from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 6726, Pueblo, CO 81099.

THE ENERGY-WISE HOME BUYER

Tips on burglar proofing a door

by Gene Gary
(Copy News Service)

Q. About a year ago, you gave the answer as to how to make a door burglarproof, that is a door that opens to the outside. As you know, when the bolts that hold the hinges together from the outside are removed, the door could be opened from the hinged side, regardless of slide bolts or chains by the handle or doorknob inside. Your answer had something to do with replacing one screw in each hinge with a longer screw that would fit from the door frame into the door itself.

Would you please repeat and send me the answer if possible? I have many of your answers hanging in my garage, but this one got away from me. — Albert H. LaMesa, Calif.

from both leafs of the hinge may not exactly match up. In that case, a new hole would need to be drilled to accept the protruding screw or concrete nail.

In most areas, the sheriff or police departments will send an officer to inspect your home and give you suggestions for other measures you may take to make your home more secure from intruders.

Q. We have lived in our house for 18 months and a problem has just developed. There is mold growing on my walls, furniture, sills, cupboard doors, woodwork, etc. I have washed everything with Lysol disinfectant and then sprayed with Lysol but the mold continues to grow. — Ellen L.C., Perryopolis, Pa.

A. Since you cannot eliminate mold spores in the air, you must prevent the conditions necessary for their growth. To do this, the moisture in the air of the house must be reduced. Keep affected areas and items clean. Soil alone can supply sufficient food for mildew to grow.

Use air conditioners and dehumidifiers to help keep the air dry, and electric fans to ventilate the area. Use silica gel or activated alumina, sold in department or drugstores. They absorb water up to half their weight — making them great for use in small areas such as closets or drawers. Both are safe for fabrics, but follow instructions carefully. Wash or spray persistent problem surfaces weekly with a disinfectant product labeled specifically for mildew control.

Also use paradichlorobenzene (moth crystals) to control mildew growth. Since the chemical can damage some plastics, do not use where plastic surfaces are involved. In the case of garments, remove plastic buttons and ornaments and use wooden or metal hangers.

Q. Is there such a device manufactured and sold to extend a downspout horizontally at ground level? I would like to purchase several that would recoil when empty of rainwater and extend when full. There are those who hope to sprinkle and distribute water. The purpose is to transport rainwater across a sidewalk and when not raining, retract or recoil when empty of rainwater. Any information you can provide will be appreciated. — Lawrence E.H.

A. There are such retractable extension for downspouts available. Check with building supply stores or handyman shops. Their effectiveness depends on the force of the water in order to extend the coiled plastic pipe. These should prove very satisfactory where there is a heavy rain. If you have trouble finding the product, you might try mailorder catalogs.

Q. Although my roof is in good repair, I am getting a water spot in the ceiling of a bathroom. What might be the cause? — R.M.

A. In many houses, water pipes are run in the attic instead of the crawl space. Look immediately. A small leak can quickly become a big leak.

Home purchase best investment

by James M. Woodard
(Copy News Service)

Most people who will buy a home in 1980 will be doing so primarily as a means to build an equity. It's the best investment game in town, say most buyers.

They will also be motivated by new factors, such as the increased importance of energy conservation features that will cut future maintenance costs and close proximity to work.

These are a few things revealed in a recent consumer survey, conducted by National Family Opinion Inc. — an independent research firm.

The survey, commissioned by Professional Builder magazine, involved interviews with 726 consumers who indicated they planned to purchase a home within the next six months.

Over 60 percent of those interviewed indicated they considered the purchase of a home to be the best of all investments. A third of them also specifically mentioned the added advantage of "a hedge against continuing inflation."

As for the increasing emphasis on energy conservation features, 61 percent of the families said they would pay $1,000 or more, as an extra charge, for special features that could cut energy and maintenance costs in the future.

Beware of home repair frauds

Have you ever been the victim of a home improvement fraud?

If so, you're not alone, says Delaware extension family living agent Pat Wilson. Each year many consumers lose hard-earned dollars to home repair frauds and schemes.

Some common frauds include the following:

Home Insulation — Offers of cheap insulation or promises of large savings on your utility bill may indicate fraud. Be sure you know the work and reputation of anyone who offers to insulate your home.

It's easy to be cheated on insulation, since there are so many types and thicknesses. Contact your local utility company for assistance in determining your need for insulation.

Before choosing a contractor, get three estimates and ask for names of customers so you can check with them.

Q. We have an extra bedroom upstairs I'd like to create for our young grandsons who visit us frequently and for extended stay during vacation. They're 5 and 6. I don't want to invest a large amount but I'd like the room to be theirs and pleasant. The room is very small — about 8 x 13 feet.

A. You might consider built-in beds — bunks would be the only practical way to go — for your grandsons. Paint the walls a soft lemon yellow. That's a good basic color for nearly any room. A light gold or medium-gold carpeting would be good and plenty of decorating drama could be supplied by throw bedspreads of bright coral or orange.

If you need storage for them, consider drawers under the lower bed and boxes that stack and can be painted alternating tones of yellow and coral or orange. Use some of the bedspread fabric at the windows for simple draperies or curtains. Trim the draperies with a braid of yellow.

Q. I have a problem with a dreary living room. Recently, I bought a new off-white upholstered play pen and a number of peccan wood tables in warm wood tones. The walls are a soft green and the carpeting is a slightly deeper tone of green.

I have a problem with the windows. I have a nice view outdoors in my yard but I want night time privacy. I now have off-white draperies. What would you suggest that might give a snappier look to the room? I really can't afford to change much since the carpeting and the upholstery are new. — N.P.

Be sure to get a written contract that specifies the "R" (measure of insulating capacity) value, type(s) and exact quantities of insulation, and exact areas to be covered.

When the contractor gets the insulation, be sure to check the packages to see if the materials are fire-retardant or fire-resistant before the material is installed.

Roofing Repair — Rip-off offers are common, especially during warm weather.

Avoid allowing a roving handyman to climb onto your hose to give you a free estimate. He is likely to come down with a handful of shingles and a report that your roof needs repair.

If you do need roof repairs, contact a local roofer who has been recommended by people you trust.

Also, do not be taken in by a high-pressure salesman who promises to stop roof leaks by applying just a roof coating.

Home Re-siding — This type of fraud usually advertises a very low price for home re-siding with the provision that you let the company use your home as a "before" and "after" advertisement for re-siding in your community.

You are verbally promised a hefty commission for each new customer you find.

What usually happens is that you are asked to make a modest down payment and to sign a permission or confirmation paper giving the right to show your home.

Later, you find that the paper turns out to be a written, binding legal contract for a large sum of money that you may be obligated to pay.

Bait and Switch — Low-cost building or flooring materials are advertised in the local newspaper or on television. When the salesman shows you the low-cost advertised product, he immediately begins to find fault with the advertised item and tries to talk you into buying a more expensive product. Beware of businesses or contractors who use bait-and-switch tactics.

Driveway Resurfacing — Be careful of people who "just happen to be in the area" with just enough materials to do your driveway and offer to do the job at a bargain price.

Their materials and workmanship may be either shoddy or totally ineffective and may wash away with the first hard rain or stay sticky for weeks. Caution! Be suspicious of any stranger who stops at your home and offers an inspection or points out any repair problem.

If you feel you need work done, contact an established, local person who can do the job well and still be around if any problems arise.

Providing an extra bedroom

A. Leaving everything as you have it, you could add, instead of draperies, some new and contemporary mirrored-finish vertical venetian blinds. They would allow you to tilt them open by day to enjoy your view and to close them tight at night for privacy. They're clean lined and very good looking.

You might like an additional piece of furniture that you could use to add some color to the room in addition to the green and white. It might be a green, white and yellow plaid lounge chair, or even a green, white and blue or purple floral.

Accessorize your room, too, to get over the dreary look. Buy a new painting or a set of prints. Add some interesting sculpture or figurines, some crystal or baskets. Plants are great for adding a lively look to a drab corner.

Q. I'm about to go shopping for carpeting. What styles and kinds are available today and best for a frequently used home? — W.I.M.

A. Multi-level is a type with a texture — usually two or more levels of pile height. One level might be a loop and another a cut pile. This style is extremely practical and helps conceal soil and wear. A level loop is similar to the multi-level, only it contains simply one loop and gives a less-textured and less-patterned look. It isn't as good at concealing soil but it may be preferable if you want to get away from a distracting pattern of the multi-level.

Then there are shags, the long pile that gives a casual, informal look that has been popular. However, shags have drawbacks. They are difficult to vacuum and they show traffic patterns. If you do select a shag be certain there is plenty of yarn in the carpeting so the material will not quickly mat down.

Take a look at the plush, the most elegant of carpet textures that gives you a velvet look. It is a style where the loops made on the loom have been cut to a uniform short height to give a light, uniform surface. It does show traffic patterns and is not as practical as a multi-level carpeting. It's especially luxurious in a bedroom or a living room (if you have a family room to take heavy wear off the living!). If you don't have a family room, consider the more practical multi-level in a solid color.

Home purchase still a bargain

If you think home prices are high now, during this time of tight credit, just wait until late spring.

That's the contention of Melba P. Robinson, owner of Robinson Real Estate, 605 N. Hall Street, Seaford.

"The housing market just now is sluggish," Mrs. Robinson says, "and lending institutions are reluctant to commit more mortgage money until existing commitments have been met."

What this situation results in, says Mrs. Robinson, is bargain time this winter for would-be home buyers. Prices will bounce back, and by mid-year, "most of today's bargains will be gone," the Seaford broker believes.

"Interest rates will peak this spring and then start down," Mrs. Robinson predicts, "and savings flow will increase in savings and loan associations, a prime source for home financing. That will mean a jump in home values and what that adds up to is that there is no better investment today than real estate."

Mrs. Robinson says that corporate multi-level carpeting. It's especially luxurious in a bedroom or a living room (if you have a family room to take heavy wear off the living!). If you don't have a family room, consider the more practical multi-level in a solid color.
