Budget Progress Is Zero

Four hours of discussion - in public and in executive session - left the Harrington City Council at ground zero in efforts last Thursday night to get the 1980 budget in line for approval. The Council started the evening with a $19,821 deficit in the proposed figures. By 11 p.m., the gap had been whittled - all the way down to $19,791.

Only two solutions seemed feasible - raise more revenue (i.e. raise taxes), or cut services and/or personnel.

Both Mayor Arthur Cahall and the Council were opposed to any tax hike. But no one was ready to make concrete proposals to cut the budget.

The Mayor reiterated his statement on several occasions that he opposes any tax increase because he feels the Council could have avoided the current situation when it made the decision to hire another police officer last summer. In June, the Council decided to hire Paul Yannucci, who had been paid through the CETA program, on a regular basis and to seek another officer through CETA. Subsequently Ron McQuade was selected. (Officer McQuade has recently left the local police force. See separate Journal story.)

Councilman Vincent Lobo defended the Council's decision to hire Yannucci on the basis of the need for police protection and the number of complaints that were being handled by the local force. But he stated his opposition to a tax hike in the current situation and said, "I will not take a stand as far as raising (taxes) if the Mayor and Council are going to be divided".

Two other Council members - Gary Harrington and Jack Wyatt also voiced their opposition to raising local real estate taxes.

Harrington property owners currently pay the City $1.00 for each $100 of 60% of the assessed value of their real estate. The City uses Kent County assessment figures which have not been updated since 1965. At today's real estate values those figures are unrealistic. But it would cost Harrington $18,000 to reassess local properties, and the city is waiting for the county to do the job and foot the bill.

Some Council members have voiced fears that a tax hike would unnecessarily penalize new home owners who would have their property assessed at today's figures. But sources at City Hall said this just isn't so. Assessment of new homes is still based on the 1965 values.

Cutting the budget to erase the $19,000 deficit proved a problem to which no Councilman was ready to propose a concrete solution. The Council did take a close look at the $134,472 in proposed salaries for the city's fifteen employees. There were rumblings that City Manager Dave Peterson, Street Supervisor Dale Phillippi and sewer plant manager Rober Hassett might not be worth the $35,828 in combined salaries which the city proposed to pay them in 1980. City Manager Dave Peterson was called on the carpet during a lengthy executive session. But when Council returned to open session, no moves were made in any direction.

In the four hour hassle, the Council was able to come to only three decisions:

At the behest of Councilman Harold Brode, monies were added to the budget for police overtime. But the figure was cut to $2,000 rather than the $3,176 suggested, and overtime was limited to Halloween, the Christmas parade, and emergencies.

It was further decided to trim the amount set aside for health insurance for local police from $4,161 to $2,080.

The final decision was to call it a night and add further budget deliberation to the agenda of last night's regular council meeting. (Look for details of that meeting in next week's Journal.)

Frederica gets HUD preview

Frederica Council members spent some 45 minutes last Wednesday night with Guy Winebrenner and Terry Haskins of Edward H. Richardson Associates who gave them a preview of plans to use HUD monies to upgrade the town's water system. Haskins and Winebrenner brought along an aerial photo of the community and discussed with the Council some options it might have before final plans are drawn up. The Council has some time to consider those options before the engineering firm's representatives return at the regular March meeting. Councilman Larry Mannering told the Journal one option under consideration is the installation of more universal fire hydrants capable of accommodating any type of fire truck.

If all goes well, construction on the water improvements may begin by June and be completed by September.

-Town Election Is March 3-

After a year in which the usual Town Council election was delayed by legal questions from March until November, it may seem too early for another election in Frederica. But the 1980 Council election is fast approaching, with March 3 as the date. There will be three Council seats to be filled - those now held by Mayor Ezekiel Dill, and Council members Helen Powers and Reynolds "Buck" Gooden. They have not so far indicated whether they will seek reelection.

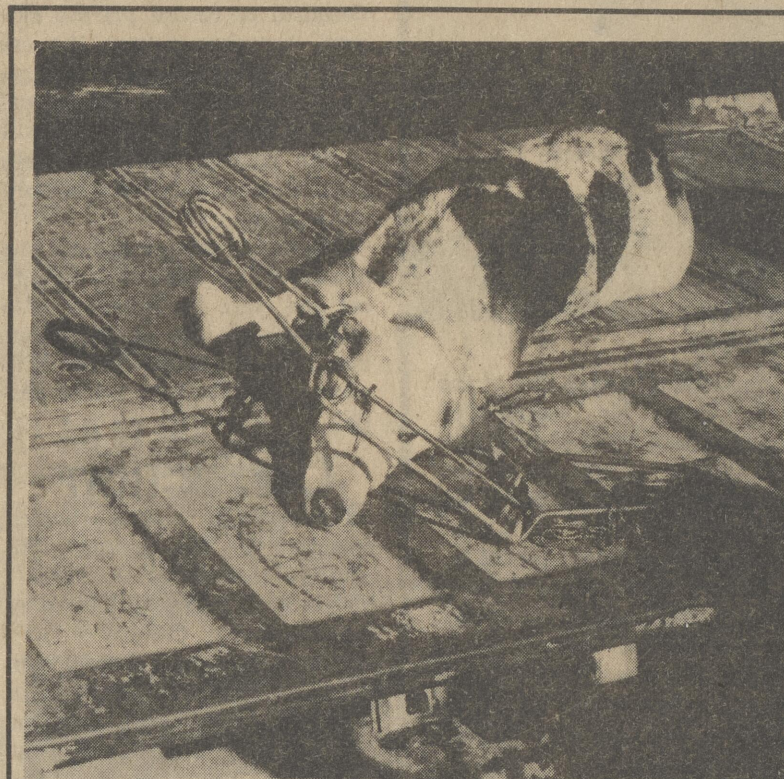

Council terms are for two years. Frederica does not elect a Mayor as such. That office is filled from among the Council members at the annual reorganization meeting which this year will be on Wednesday, March 5.

Filing dates for candidates are February 11 to 22. Any Frederica resident can file by submitting a letter to the Council.

In other business last week the Frederica Council, still happy with the protection the town is getting from the state police, voted to continue that service for at least another month.

Public relations efforts will be gearing up soon as Woodbridge board members, administrators, faculty, and concerned parents prepare for the district's tax referendum set for Tuesday, March 25. Their biggest job, said

Death uncalled for...

This valued hunting companion and friend may have been luckier than some others. The 220 Conibear trap that snapped his neck probably killed him instantly. Others caught in similar traps that have killed three or four dogs in Delaware this year may have been badly mangled and suffered prolonged pain and starvation. This fox hound, owned by Norman Wix, Jr. of Harrington, set off for his last hunt on Saturday. Wix found the dog on Sunday. This kind of trap is illegal in Delaware.

Swain's sale cancelled

The house built around the turn of the century to "...house people coming to the Fair" was scheduled for the auctioneer's hammer this past Saturday was called off. According to the owner of the property Mrs. Lucy Quinn "...we called off the sale (auction sale) because no time had been set for settlement on the land". According to Horace Johnson, a Realtor involved in the sale, "...the matter is now just between lawyers. We are trying to get a time firm up. This has been the problem all along".

A contract was signed for the sale of the property and a date set for settlement, but that date has passed. According to Mrs. Quinn the date for settlement was some time in September. She had the option of selling everything in the building that could be disposed of for a public auction. On inspection Monday of the premises, workmen had already begun to remove sinks from the rooms. They planned to sell the sinks and the windows as well.

"Until we know something different, we are back in business again selling across the bar", said Mrs. Quinn. She reported Monday that she had reordered beer and whiskey for her customers. Mrs. Quinn purchased the Hotel 7 years ago "...this May 15th..." Prior to that it was run by Nathan Sipple, a used car dealer from Wyoming. Sipple had purchased the property from the Swain family. Mr. Sipple's daughter-in-law Gladys Sipple ran the dining room and the hotel for about a year and a half. Under Mrs. Quinn, the building has been run as a hotel and cocktail lounge.

Referendum is March 25

Woodbridge Superintendent Dr. William Griffin in a report to the School Board Monday night, will be education.

Somehow, some way, supporters of the referendum effort must get across to the voters that a "Yes" vote on the ballot will not mean any increase in their taxes. The tax rate would remain the same; the "Yes" on the ballot would simply give the district the permission it needs to use the

.....Maker of sweet sounds

To some, music is simply background. It's a way to fill an otherwise boring silence when traveling at 55 miles per hour down a long, straight highway. Artists, style or instruments are rarely a topic of discussion when these people get together.

But to others, music is a never ending source of fascination and satisfaction. A separate life can be built around the study and practice of putting notes together in a pattern and expressing them on a cherished instrument. Felton's Edwin Reed is one of these people; to him, life without music, particularly bluegrass, would be pretty dull.

Don't get the wrong idea, Reed is not professional. He's a normal guy, a 44 year old, married builder who just happens to have a love for traditional American music and a talent for constructing the precise instruments that give it life.

maker of Dulcimers. He works walnut and cherry wood to the shape of a curvey bottle, adds a fretboard and three strings, thereby belonging to a very small group of purists who manufacture one of the corner-stone instruments in traditional bluegrass music, the dulcimer.

When in the hands of an expert like Reed, the dulcimer's sound reminds one of bagpipes, although the two instruments are worlds apart. It has a continuous background tone, due to the striking of two strings which remain constantly open and unfretted, and the single "picking" of a lead "C" string. These three strings, when stretched out over a hand honed body of fine wood, create the unique musical sound that many believe to be the only true American music in existence.

"A dulcimer is not the best known or most played instrument around, that's for sure", said the Felton native in an interview last week. "Most of the players are in the south and I'm pretty sure that I'm the only person in Delaware building these things."

Reed got his first look at a dulcimer while on a motorcycle tour with his wife, Dottie, during the summer of '73. They had toured much of the mountainous southland and were on their way through Tennessee when they stopped at a small dulcimer shop they found along the way. The Reeds paid a visit and listened to the shop owner as he showed them how a dulcimer could be played. They have been hooked ever since.

It was three years later that Reed constructed his first one. "I couldn't have done it without the pioneering efforts of a woman named Jean Ritchie, who is really responsible for keeping together much of what is known about dulcimers", Reed said. "She wrote a book which contained a playable record stamped on a page that provided the guides I needed. As far as learning how to play

Flamer Is Guilty

Although he claimed not to have taken part, William Henry Flamer was found guilty last week by a Superior Court jury in the stabbing deaths of his aunt and uncle, Bayard and Alberta Smith of Mispillion Street in Harrington. The crimes took place on February 7, 1980.

Flamer was arrested by the Delaware State Police the following day as he walked down Route 13. Also taken into custody at the time was Andre Stanley Deputy. Both men were charged with four counts of first degree murder.

The stabbings were particularly vicious. The police report a total of 145 wounds were found on the bodies of the Smiths. They were made with a large bayonet and a small kitchen knife, police said.

Flamer was tried separately from Deputy as both men are blaming the other in the killings. At the trial, Flamer maintained that he was asleep at the time of the actual stabbings and that his role was limited to helping Deputy rob the house. He said that he just glanced into the living room on his way out of the house and saw the bloody arm of his uncle.

But Flamer actually admitted a role in the stabbings on the day of his arrest. The prosecution used his tape recorded confession against him as evidence during the trial. Flamer said the confession was coerced from him by the police by violence and threats of violence and the only reason he admitted to the killings was because of fear of his interrogators.

However, during the trial, the prosecution pointed out discrepancies in Flamer's story.

The jury was out for a total of 4½ hours deliberating Flamer's fate. Found guilty, Flamer now must be sentenced. He could possibly be the state's second man on death row if the penalty hearing jury recommends it. A death sentence would be automatically reviewed by the Delaware Supreme Court.

At the very least, Flamer faces life imprisonment without a prospect of parole. The penalty hearing began on Tuesday.

Andre Deputy is scheduled to stand trial sometime in the spring. Flamer's sentencing should be a good barometer of the type of sentence Deputy should expect as a precedent will have been set.

Director of the Week

Jehu F. Camper

This week, the People's Bank of Harrington salutes one of the areas most prominent citizens, Jehu F. Camper. Mr. Camper is 82 years young as is the senior member of the banks board of directors. He was first installed on the board in October of 1941, he started using the People's Bank in 1910. "My father was a customer of the bank since I can remember and it was a natural for me to use it too," Mr. Camper said. "But, back then, it seemed we were taking out far more than we were putting in," Mr. Camper added with a smile. As the senior board member, Jehu Camper is called upon to assume Mr. Edward Taylor's duties when he is unavailable and to be on call for any matters which may come up. "This bank is friendly, just like the slogan says," Mr. Camper said, "I plan to stay here until I'm no longer active. I can't think of a better place to bank than the People's Bank."

Bible Study Monday morning with Rev. and Mrs. Watson of Baptist Church - Harrington were the leaders. Rev. Watson's discussion was on LOVE - mature love. Everyone present thoroughly enjoyed the talk. Rev. Watson gave. Questions and answers followed. Mrs. Watson played the piano and favorites were sung with great vigor and enthusiasm! Monday afternoon Elizabeth Anthony turned on the bingo and called to a generous number of ladies. The ceramic table in the craft room was also filled - doing birthday bells. We are behind because of renovation. Bunnys too are hopping all over the place - eggs of all sizes being laid, baskets, large, small, chickens, ducks and owl and of course Bibles and praying hands are all signs of Easter at the Center.

Dominoes, pool and 500 are the games for the men. The pool table has been moved to what used to be the parlor. The men are so happy so guess we have to be. We in the craft room will miss them. The parlor is now in the former pool room. The organ and piano are in there also. The pool table is usually busy with George G., George S., Webb, Howard, Miles, Dick, Norman and Andy. Makes a grand room full of interesting conversation along with some good pool shooting.

Tuesday was a sunny day, cold as could be but happy looking and inside the Center was the same. The band -Jolly Timers- held forth and were so good! When they let go with "Let Me Call You Sweetheart", well I just have to stop everything and listen and thrill to the sound. Ella and Bertha finished the Valentines. Craft table was busy with all kinds of ceramics. Wednesday some did their personal ceramics and others played Bingo.

Thursday was the grand opening of the---KILN! The ugly cat was going to be seen in all its ugliness! Several came to see it!! Some said "it isn't so bad, poor thing, I've seen just as ugly cats in real life". "What color is that? I've never seen a cat that color!" But above all the talk, one voice said, "that's my cat, I've bought it". Audrey Morrison was the speaker. She took its picture and bought "Aztex" on the spot. Pitied it that's for sure! Audrey will not be bothered with nice Aztex around, just a quick look at the critter will truly scare the mice away. Had a couple phone calls, wanted to know if we were going to put the ugly cat in the front window. Can't, Audrey has it and as you know Busy B had a fire so imagine the mold is damaged. Doubt if many are around. Exercise with Charlotte gets rid of too on Thursday morning. Thursday afternoon Mabel Jean Donovan came with hearts, hearts - hearts and more hearts. Sixteen made very pretty Valentines for their front or back door or anywhere really - they were just very cute Valentines for anyone or anyplace. Local Shopping. Alice Houston and Fred Littmann were high scorers at Milford Bowling Lanes Thursday afternoon.

Friday was to be "Remember When", with a U. of D. personnel to inform us of a program to be in April, prompted me to ask, do you remember when you would beg to scrub the kitchen floor for 5 cents, while your mother baked the most delicious pumpkin or sweettata pies you ever sunk your teeth or mouth in! When she paid you the 5 cents - it did "look near as big as a pumpkin", or the privilege of staying up a half hour to listen to the old folks talk of the good old days and warm the brick on the wood stove to wrap in a cloth to warm your bed - my how lucky you were.

Friday afternoon Mrs. Mullin came, weighed in - some lost - she gave a most interesting talk, gave out charts for two weeks as she won't be here next week.

Had Sittical Fitness with Dorothy - slow - easy - fun. Ceramics.

Don't forget Birthday party February 19, 1980 - join the party. Will make you happy and everyone at the Center happy also.

The Modern Maturity Center, Dover continues to send thru Manna very tasty meals to us every day. Usually an organ recital after lunch if Larry is there, and when the men join in and sing, I'm telling you, Harrington Senior Center is the happiest place to be. Many times the conversation turns to golden memories. Stop by see a friend.

Thank you so very much volunteers for the things you do in a weeks time for the Center.

Best Wishes to all! Hope those who are ill will soon be on the road to recovery and back at the Center.

Hello out of towners! We have a very nice DAST driver - Harriett, but miss Cam. He was a most pleasant type of man, his hair was long, his patience great. But letting others share, is our fate. Be kind to each other.

taste-frazz RT. 13 Harrington

It's more than a meal, it's a treat.

This time the weather man hit it right and the snow came in on schedule. The first flakes fell when we were about half way home from Bible Study at Lincoln. It was kind of a lazy snow with the flakes falling as though they hadn't much interest in the whole deal. This morning there is a small white cover but it is not a pretty snow. I like the whipped cream kind where every bush and branch is heavy with big dollops of the fluffy white stuff. The fire whistle blew around midnight last night. I always say a prayer for those in trouble and for the poor firemen who had to leave their homes to help. We can never appreciate them enough. English sparrows are, no doubt, the silliest little birds in the world. I look out at them and in this bitter cold they are carrying nesting materials up to the eaves of the house and building nests. I wonder if there are many other birds that nest in winter. Gladys Taber told me once that at her home in Stillmeadow an unidentified bird was building a nest in their barn in February. She said this made a trouble because they had to leave the door on a jar for the bird to come and go and their Cocker Spaniels kennels were also in that barn.

Usually in February I bring in branches of Forsythia and Pussy Willow to force them in water and cheer us up until spring. But this winter has been so cold I haven't felt the urge to go out and get them. The only comfortable place in the house is in my recliner wrapped up in my afghan. This afghan was made by my dear friend, Helen, and it warms me in two ways...once with the wool and once with her love.

I peeked into the larder to see what was available for dinner tonight. I find I have a choice of fish, liver, veal chops, tenderloin or roast beef. I think I'll choose the roast beef. With carrots and potatoes and onion in the roaster, then push the button and it can cook while I rest.

I was just reading an article written by a man who had been visiting in Japan. He says that if you are a dyed-in-the-wool steak and hamburger person you may have that there but he urges everyone traveling in Japan to sample the native foods, even though they may be a bit frightening. You might be taken aback by finding yourself sitting down to a breakfast of cold boiled lotus root, fermented red beans, assorted pickled grasses, seaweed soup, cold spinach garnished with grated dried bonito and large quantities of steamed white glutinous rice.

You might not think that the best way to finish up an evening would be whalebone pickled in fermented soya paste or mudfish boiled alive in slabs of bean curd.

World Council Mission to the '80's Crusade

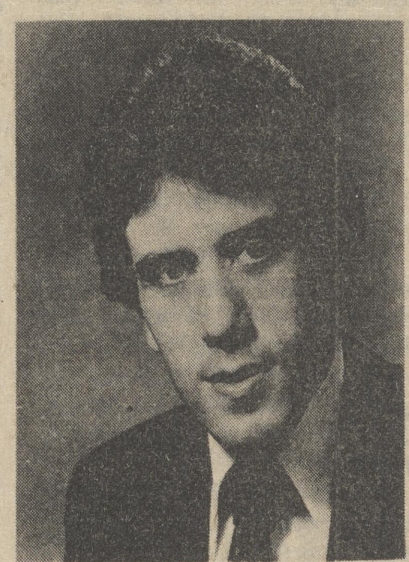

David Baker, a popular Christian vocalist, will lead a 500-voice choir as part of the World Methodist Council's Mission to the 80's Crusade at the new Wicomico Youth and Civic Center here on Wednesday, February 27.

Dr. Alan Walker, the World Methodist Council's director of world evangelism, will be the featured speaker at the 7:30 p.m. Crusade meeting.

Dr. Alan Walker

Baker, a Cincinnati native and the son of a minister, has sung on college campuses, local churches, crusades and conferences across America. He has been on tour in Canada, Europe and the Middle East. In December 1978, Baker toured Israel with the Israeli Philharmonic Orchestra as a soloist in Handel's Messiah.

David Baker

Hailed as one of the Christian Church's most compelling vocal artists, Baker's "brilliant baritone voice combined with a contagious witness is thrilling church audiences across America," according to Harold J. Stephanz, director of Christian Concert Artists, Inc.

In addition to his Christian concerts, he has appeared in numerous leading operatic, oratorio and musical theater roles. On numerous occasions, Baker has performed with the Cincinnati Symphony and in St. John's Passion at the Bach Festival in Austria with the Vienna Symphony.

Baker will sing and direct the mass choir, consisting of local church members, in special music for the crusade meeting.

The World Evangelism Program of the World Methodist Council, entitled "World Evangelism: Mission to the 80's", was conceived by the council in 1970. The council consists of the United Methodist, Free Methodist, African Methodist Episcopal Zion, Christian Methodist Episcopal, African Methodist Episcopal and Wesleyan Churches.

to evangelize the Delmarva Peninsula. The ultimate goal, added Dr. Reynolds, is to encourage the unchurched to make commitments to Christ and to deepen the faith of those who have already made commitments.

Trained counselors will be available at the crusade meeting to assist persons with problems and those who make commitments to Christ, Dr. Seymour pointed out. Explaining the role of the counselors, Dr. Reynolds said commitments to Christ prove more fruitful when another Christian assists and guides new disciples of Christ.

In addition to the crusade meeting, Dr. Walker will lead an evangelism training session for pastors and lay persons from 9:00 - 11:30 a.m. and speak at a civic luncheon for local government officials, pastors and lay persons at noon.

Dr. Walker's wife, Winifred, will host a coffee hour with women from 9:00 - 10:30 a.m. A "Youth Sharing Time" with Dr. and Mrs. Walker will be held for young people from 6:00 - 6:30 p.m.

Seymour and Reynolds encourage people of all denominations and faiths to join in promoting local evangelism by attending the crusade meeting.

YOUR PEACE of MIND and HEART is OUR FIRST CONSIDERATION

For Your Information

Dear friends,

During a lifetime, we develop close affection for members of our family, relatives and friends. We should desire to shield them from the problems that would arise from our unexpected death. Wise and thoughtful planning takes only a brief time, but it can ease much emotional and financial pain for those we love.

Respectfully,

William C. Berry Jr.

Spartans Top Delmar, Bow Tol.R.

Varsity coach Bill Falasco has put a lot of blame on the team's foul shooting in the last few weeks, he said the poor foul shot percentage has been a prime contributor to the losses of late. To remedy that situation, Falasco has tried a new way of practicing which paid off during the Delmar game last Tuesday.

On Tuesday, the Spartans hit a respectable 82% of their foul shots, 14 out of 18. It was the margin of victory as Lake Forest beat the Wildcats on their home court by a 55-45 score.

"During last week's practice," said the coach, "I made the boys shoot foul shots with their eyes closed. It must have worked, they looked great on the line at Delmar."

The contest was a close one from the beginning with Delmar showing obvious improvement over the performance the last time the two teams met. The ball went from one side to the other as no one was able to establish any clear superiority in the first half. At the end of two periods, it was 29-29.

Lake Forest pulled ahead by the end of the third period, 41-37, and managed to coast to a final score of 55-45.

"Delmar played real well," Falasco said. "You should always expect a team to improve over the course of a year and Delmar has done a fine job from what we saw down there. The game was close and I preferred it that way, the tournaments are almost here and we have to get ready for tight competition. This game helped up get in shape for it."

Dale Benson, who many expect to turn into a bonafide superstar in the next few years at Lake Forest, led the team in scoring with 14 points.

Next on the scoring list was center Quinten Hendricks with 12 points, Kenny Sudler had 10, Mark Smith had 11 and Darryl Curry put in 4 baskets for 8 points. The usually high scoring Sudler settled for just 3 for 14 from the floor, but according to Falasco, he was due for a slow game anyway.

After the Delmar game, all attention shifted to Friday night's contest with conference power Indian River. Lake Forest upset the highly rated Indians in their first meeting on January 11th and Indian River had not lost a game since. They came into the Spartan gym looking for revenge and they got it.

The Indians looked to be as sharp and talented a team as could be found in high school basketball. Led by junior Charles Rayne and backed up by an extremely capable supporting cast, Indian River should be heavily favored in the state tournament, they are good - maybe great.

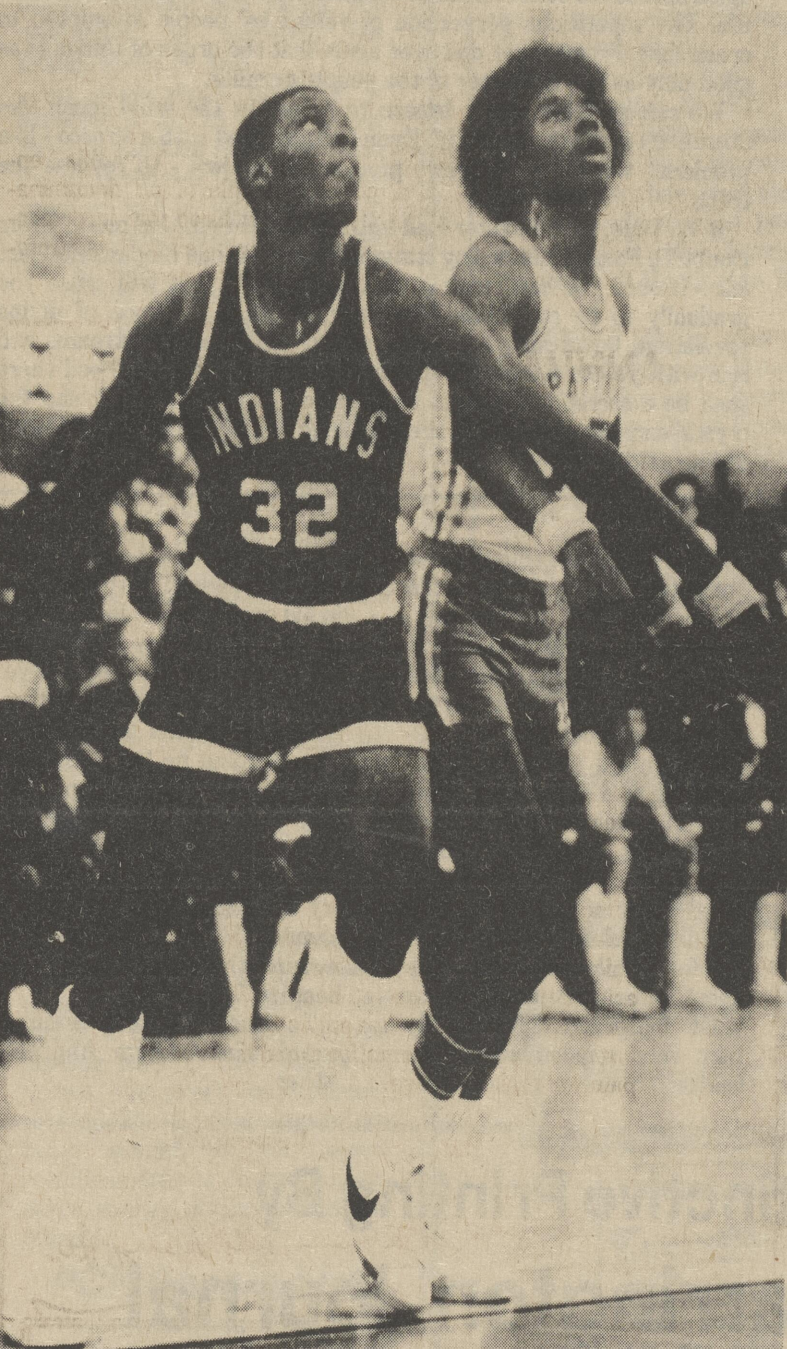

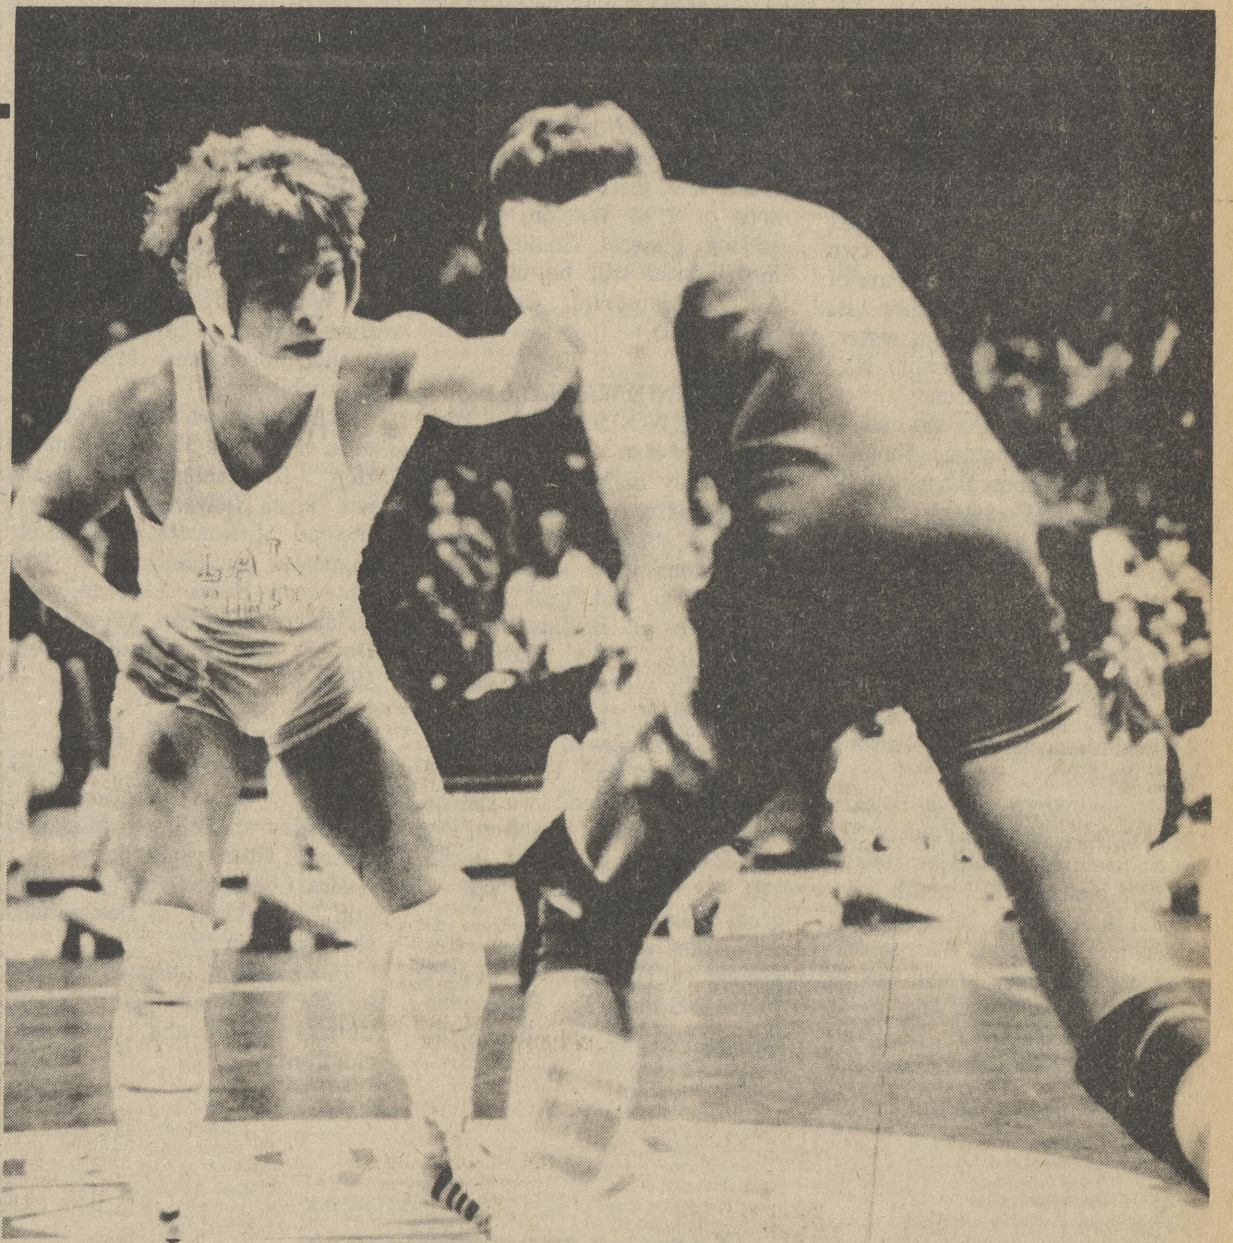

Said coach Falasco, "They are by far the best team we have seen anywhere. People have asked me how we managed to beat them the first time around, but the answer is simple. I don't think they were ready for us in January, they didn't realize what we were capable of. That's a common mistake with sports teams. You can have all the talent in the world, but if you're not ready for somebody, look out, they can beat you."

The game started with the Indians taking complete control. They scored 3 baskets in the blink of an eye and the Spartans played catch up for the rest of the game. They narrowed the score in the second half to pull within 9 points, but that's the closest they came.

"I thought we played very well," Falasco said. "Mark Smith and Kenny Sudler played outstanding ball in the first half and the entire team did well in the second half. We played a tight and effective man to man defense for most of the second half and contained them real well. We probably should have done that the entire game."

Indian River used a questionable strategy in the second period, bringing the action to a complete standstill for almost 6 minutes. They sought to break up the Spartan zone at their end of the court by simply holding onto the ball and passing every 30 seconds. The strategy failed miserably and most observers felt that it was a bush league move on the part of coach Cook.

With the loss, Lake Forest fell to a guaranteed second place spot in the conference.

Spartan Quentin Hendricks jockeys his Indian River opponent in the battle of rebounds.

Aggressive Strategy Pays Off

Members of Southern States Cooperative's local board and committee members, agricultural workers and retail agency managers from the Harrington area, will attend a regional board meeting in Delmar, MD, on February 21. The session will be held at the Del-Mar-Va Convention Hall.

A total of 19 of these regional meetings will be held by Southern States over a five-state area.

Felton Little League to meet

A general meeting of the Felton Little League will be held on Thursday, February 14, 1980 in the Lake Forest North Cafeteria at 7:30 p.m. If you wish your children to participate in the 1980 season, please plan to attend.

145 pounder Mike Kosiorowski can always be counted on to begin a match aggressively. The strategy usually pays off in a big way too as the Spartan has maintained a winning record this year. In Saturday's match against Woodbridge, Kosiorowski won his contest with a 7-5 decision. Greg Ecenrode won by forfeit, 105 pounder Bobby Fleming won by pin, Charles Jones won by virtue of a forfeit. In other action, 119 pounder Jeff Grove got a pin, Ken Williams recorded the first loss of the day by going down 4-0 in the 126 class, Doug Stevens continued the streak with a loss by pin but Dave Brown got Lake Forest back on the track with a quick pin at 138 pounds. Hershel Harman lost his match 6-2, Stayton lost by pin at 167, Vinnie Ware won by forfeit as did heavyweight Powell.

Southern States Regional Board Meeting

Expected to attend the meeting are: Charles L. Peck, Jr., manager of Peck Brothers Farm Supply, and local board members: Walter W. Winkler, John M.

Curtis, Jr., Marshall Anthony, Jr., William G. Jester, Frank G. Hrupsa, Harrington, Robert Winkler, Felton.

Reed...

 it, I just sort of taught myself," he said.

It's not as though Reed had no music background. He first picked up a guitar when he was 12 years old. "I've had no formal training in anything", Reed said, "but I've been listening to bluegrass music since I can remember and have played the guitar for 30 years now. Learning the dulcimer wasn't that difficult for me I guess."

So far, Reed has constructed 8 dulcimers, with three now in various degrees of readiness. He doesn't try to make a profit on them, rather gets pleasure out of giving them to friends and family. "I use my other hobby to help me with expenses," said Edwin Reed. "I also make clocks, grandfathers mostly, which brings in enough to keep me in wood."

SIROCCO

By Alden S. Hopkins, Jr.
 Secretary of Agriculture

William Ellery Channing, the recognized although not the originator of the unitarian movement was a man given to a life of conscientious study. He always made special effort to allow due weight to opposing arguments. Equally important he was not liable to be swept from his moorings by momentary enthusiasm. He was "Blueblood" grandson of William Ellery, signer of the Declaration.

On an upbeat note he penned: "I desire to stand in the open sky and breeze looking far and wide, seeing with my own eyes and hearing with my own ears, and following the truth meekly but resolutely".

On a cautious note he later penned: "I confess I look upon society with many fears and with more and more earnest desire that a regenerating spirit from heaven may descend and pervade it".

On a very sad note late in life mourning the death of his friend Thoreau he wrote: "A wail in the wind is all I hear".

Friday, looking out the south window at Laurel Grain, and seeing the fragments of soil blowing in that severe wind, and ruminating upon the meeting on Farmland preservation the day before in Dover, I thought "These are sirocco times for us farmers". What can a spokesman say to help people hold this precious prime farmland that is being removed not only by that wind out there but by other forces as well".

Something like sirocco - the hot, torrid Mediterranean wind that works disastrous effects upon any kind of vegetation.

This much can be said as a defense against sirocco: in that great metaphysical treatise John made a declaration of principle. "God So Loved The World". In a very practical fashion, he did and still does. It is this writer's firm belief that that statement must be made fact and fibre of the agric-land survival problem. We won't succeed in this sirocco - like problem unless we reach up to that principle. It is so obvious that maybe it might not be expanded upon here but let me just say this - that the deity had a benevolent intention for this land - and that intention at times was so taken out of focus because of people's unfairness to him that he destroyed what there was - and then again spread his benevolence on creation with a very precious gift of a life. The repetitious perversion of values by people attempted to crush that. Proves over and over again that the order of things is as good only as the character of the people permits.

We can go from balmy breeze to a wail in the wind much like Channing - even more quickly. Even though faced with a sirocco - like problem - we still have time - precious little time - to reverse the trend.

R. W. Dale, in the Exeter Hall lectures in 1864 entitled one - "From Doubt To Faith". His closing statement: there is one fundamental fact left - if once you can reach a firm belief in it, that will cause you gradually to be surrounded by province after province of divine revelation, beautiful with fresh verdure and pleasant streams and rich with yellow harvests - and hidden deep beneath the soil there shall be a secret treasure of wisdom and of joy. The gold and the crystal cannot equal it, and the exchange of it shall not be for jewels of fine gold".

"One of the best things about the hobby," he said, "is the fun of showing the instruments, and playing the music, to someone who has never been aware of it before. Most people like it when they hear it."

Continued the Feltonian, "Playing is a good relaxer for me. The dulcimer is a very easy going, smooth sounding instrument." With a smile, Reed tells of sitting on his wooden "picking" bench, playing for awhile and waking up about an hour later wondering what happened. "It'll really take your tension away," he said.

For the time being, Reed contents himself with working in his small shop in back of the house after his day is through. He and his father have operated a successful custom building business for the past 27 years and he has no immediate plan to give it up. "I'll stay in the business until my father decides to stop. After that, who knows? I just may try making clocks and instruments full time. I could think of nothing that would make me happier."

To bluegrass fans, nothing could make them happier either.

money in a different way. Griffin explained that the state requires the choices on the ballot to read "For the additional tax" or "Against the additional tax". Worded otherwise, the ballots would be invalid. Despite that wording, a vote "For the additional tax" would not mean any higher tax. The current rate of 72.8c per $100, based on 50% of the assessed value of real estate would remain the same. What the district proposed to do is take the 16c no longer needed for special education transportation and 2c gleaned from a drop in the debt service funds and apply the total of 18c to the current expense portion of the budget where it can buy badly needed supplies, textbooks and, perhaps, pay for some special teachers.

The savings on transportation funds is made possible because the state has agreed to shoulder the cost of special education transportation. This, said Griffin, gives the district a one time opportunity to apply additional money where it is needed without increasing the burden on the taxpayer. But the district cannot shift the funds without the taxpayers' consent, and should the referendum be defeated, the money would be lost.

An explanatory brochure is expected to go out to the public soon. In addition there are plans for an extensive telephone campaign as well as for meetings in private homes and with various civic groups.

-Sutton's Efforts May Get Energy Money-

Dr. Griffin had words of praise for Assistant Superintendent Dr. Robert Sutton whose efforts were instrumental in preparing applications which may bring new heating equipment to the Greenwood school and get funds for energy conservation surveys at the Woodbridge High School and Bridgeville Elementary as well as for North Bridgeville Elementary. Sutton and a committee of others spent a whirlwind ten days to prepare complex applications for a February 8 state deadline for requests for grants Technical Assistant and Energy Conservation Measures. The state sent the materials only 10 days in advance of the deadline.

If the grants are approved, the district would get a sizable sum to replace the aging boiler and install a control system in the heating plant at the Greenwood School. The grant could amount to $150,000. Smaller grants are being sought to get expert recommendations on how to conserve energy at the Bridgeville schools.

Under a gloomy gray sky, the body of former Delaware Governor Charles L. Terry, Jr. was buried in Christ Episcopal Church yard in Dover Monday afternoon.

The Top-Off Basketball Club will honor two players from Lake Forest High School. They are Chris Moore and Ken Copper.
