Here yesterday - [or last week] - and now it's gone. Swains Hotel, which anchored the southeast corner of U.S. 13 and Delaware 14 for as long as many of us can remember, was reduced to a pile of rubble last week. Can Hardee's really fill that empty space?

On the Woodbridge referendum

A vote "For" means no tax increase

Woodbridge voters who go to the polls on March 24 and vote "For Additional Tax" will not be adding one penny to the district's already low tax rate of 72.8c on each $100 of 50% of the assessed value of local real estate. What they will be doing is approving the transfer of 18c of that from two areas where it is no longer needed to the current expense educators say it is desperately

Approval of the 18c transfer would mean $64,400 which the district could then use for classroom equipment, school supplies textbooks, library materials, band, art and physical education equipment, and additional teachers. As just one example, a textbook Modern Health has been longer "modern", but still in use. Referendum approval could mean retirement for this classroom veteran and fresh materials in the hands of today's students faced with problems and choices that would have been remote to their 1959 predecessors.

The $64,000 transfer is possible because the district will save over $57,000 in funds now set aside for portion of the budget where on district shelves for 21 years, no tuition when the state picks up the cost of special education transportation and over $7,000 in monies that now go into the debt service (used to pay the bonds on the district's buildings). Without voter approval on the referendum, the money they saved would be simply lost to the local schools. A report to the Woodbridge Board of Education Monday night showed the referendum steering committee organizing final efforts efforts which have the support of

to reach the community with its message "A vote for means no tax increase" and with the facts behind the message. Almost nightly presentations are being made before small groups and civic organizations. In addition, a telephone committee of about 100 volunteers is gearing up to make person-to-person contact with about 2,500 voters. Referendum the Board of Education, the P.T.A., the teacher's association, the administration and many concerned individuals throughout the district have been in the works for nine months. They will culminate on March 25 when voters go to the polls.

Ban the Conibear????

Gary Cooper of Harrington is a bird hunter who takes great pride in his Brittany Spaniel. He has a lot invested in the dog. Carter is also the father of two small sons aged 2 and 4. Already they want to go hunting with him. They're too little to go out with the gun, but they can tag along when he's just running the dog. However, Carter has been hearing some stories that disturb him, stories about traps that have killed eight dogs in Delaware this year and mairned others. All were set in areas where they are unlawful. young sons into danger. And he is hesitant about exposing his valuable dog to the same hazzard. He has never stumbled over a Conibear #220 or #330. But the tales he has heard made him decide not to hunt at all during the last three weeks of bird

Lem Hudson of Laurel is a coon hunter who keeps about ten dogs. All are valuable, and he has a lot invested in them. But Hudson has much more invested in his four year old son. The dogs are replaceable, his son is not. And Lem has first-hand knowledge of Conibear traps. Not long ago he removed about six of them from an area around Trap Pond The traps had not been checked in so long that the raccoons in two of them had turned green. All were set on projecty of an individual w had no idea anyone was He is fearful of taking his two war ing there. Several of the traps had been discovered by a neighbor's sons aged about 8 and 10. Fortunately, the boys were cautious, and their Dad was along. What could have

Not far behind the school and the development runs a branch threaded with trails where children play their games of discovery. Lem Hudson knows of a hunter living in the development who took his Chesapeake Retriever back to the branch for a run. The dog discovered a Conibear trap.

Gary Carter of Harrington and Lem Hudson of Laurel share concerns which brought them and

Dan Griffith is Frederica's new mayor

Dan Griffith was selected by his fellow Council members last Thursday to serve as Frederica's new Mayor. He succeeds Ezekiel Dill who lost his Council seat in last week's election. Griffith has been a member of the Frederica Town Council since he was appointed to fill the seat vacated by former Mayor George Nashold. He was elected in his own right last November.

Selecting a Mayor was the second order of business at the annual reorganization meeting. The first was the swearing in of Virginia Simpler, Asa Fleming and Helen Powers in brief ceremonies conducted by outgoing Mayor Ezekiel Dill.

In parting remarks to the Council Dill said, "I've been glad to do what I've done. I feel what I've done, I've done right." He pointed out that the town had been spared some large bills because he and "Buck" Gooden had taken care of many repairs to the town's water system. In leaving he also asked the Council to raise Town Clerk Barbara Manaraze's salary to minimum wage standards and requested an early decision on what to do with the town's truck and police car still parked on his property.

Dill further told the Council he felt problems over the delivery of a newsletter and his refusal of ex-Councilman Larry Mannering's request for keys to the town's file cabinet had hurt him in the election.

The Council passed a resolution expressing its thanks and appreciation to Ezekiel Dill for his efforts on behalf of the town. It also went on record with a similar commendation to outgoing

There were no changes made by the council. William Myers, Sr. was reappointed President of the Council, Free Casper was renamed Secretar, Mary Ann Stumpf remains as reasurer, Bill DeLong maintains his position as Police Commissioner and Don Jacobs will handle the Parks and Recreation duties as he has done

Also brought up at the regular meeting was the situation with Perdue. At the last minute, Perdue informed the Council that it would not become a part of the newly proposed sewer plans for the town of Felton, something they had committed to when the plans were being formulated. This pullout has angered residents who cite the odor from the plant as the chief problem. A petition was circulated to appeal this move by Perdue, it now has over 200 names attached and more are still sought. The Council announced a public hearing on the

AFS Radiothon falls short

The Lake Forest-Milford AFS Radio-thon held on Saturday, March 8 over Radio station WTHD fell short of its goal by almost $1,000. Although the AFS clubs from both high schools were on hand with about 17 foreign exchange students from nearby communities in Delaware and Maryland, the pledges for funds to support the programs amounted to only $1,200. Last year about $2,000 was collected.

Mrs. William Smith, AFS Club Advisor at Lake Forest High School, cited the Championship Basketball games and the springlike weather which enticed listeners away from their radios, as possible reasons for the smaller amount of money pledged.

Money will still be accepted by those who wish to support the effort of the Lake Forest AFS Chapter and school club. Checks and money may be sent to Mrs. Smith, Lake Forest AFS Club, Lake Forest High School, Felton,

Burkhart brings Ferguson to Lake Forest

Dale Burkhart had a plan, a plan to cover two bases with one man. First, he would solve one of the Lake Forest's major problems, that being nothing to do in the evening. Second, he would give his students an "educational" lesson they wouldn't soon forget.

Master musician, recording star, multi-directional are all phrases that describe the object of Burkhart's project. Canadian born Maynard Ferguson has been invited to stage a show at the Lake Forest High School on March 15th, a show that Burkhart hopes is just the first of many.

Maynard is simply an excellent musician," said the music director. "He has a grounding in the classics, he graduated from the French Conservatory Institute in Montreal, and has a wide popular base. He can not only give us a great evening of fine music, he can show our students what kind of things are possible when the types of instruments we all play are in the hands of a master. I think it can be a good learning experience for us here," Burkhart said.

Maynard Ferguson began his career with Stan Kenton. He has since branched out into all types of musical directions. His latest album, "Hot", is currently riding high on the charts. It contains "jazz roots" music, a blend of contemporary, classical and jazz based sounds that appeal to a very wide audience of listeners. He plays all the wind instruments and has even invented instruments to fit his own style. Probably the most famous song he has done recently is the popular "Theme From Rocky" that was used in the movie

"Rocky". In a telephone interview with Ferguson last week, he said he was looking forward to paying a visit to Delaware. "Seems I'm traps in their possession.

Trappers, represented last

Wednesday by Joe Lesley, president of the Delaware State

Trappers Association, want to keep the body gripping traps for use against raccoons that make always passing through but never staying", Maynard said, "it'll be nice to stop and see what everybody is all about there."

"I've been playing lots of school dates on this current tour," he said. "Usually, the school shows are a lot of fun for our band as we can stretch out a little more and do what we really like to do. You'll hear us doing all kinds of things on the 15th, from Star Treck to Sonny Robbins to John Coltrane. We hope it goes over as well as we are expecting. We're looking forward to coming to Lake Forest."

Purnell's injuries resulted in permanent paralysis. Dr. Griffin said the suit, if successful, could triple liability insurance costs and place further state and interscholastic competition in Delaware in serious jeopardy. He said there is no sport in which the possibility of injury does not

This week's Board Member of the Week is one of Harrington's best known and best loved gentlemen, Walter Messick. Mr. Messick is known throughout Delaware as not only an honest and dependable businessman, but also as one who is always willing to lend a hand to a person or cause in need. He is the owner of one of the largest farm implement dealerships in the nation, Taylor and Messick, a John Deere franchise.

As a board member of the People's Bank, Mr. Messick is often called upon to appraise farming machinery. "I enjoy being on the board of the People's Bank," said Mr. Messick, "It gives me a chance to meet new people and get involved in many areas of life in the community.'

Mr. Messick has been on the board since July and has been a customer of the People's Bank since he was married, 42 years. "They were good to me in the beginning here and still are today, it's a bank I would recommend to anyone.'

Gabfest

by Pat Hatfield

Old March came roaring in like a lion. Melvin Maddock says in the Christian Science Monitor: 'If months had character, March's would be: Undependable. Not particularly neat. More wind than substance. Lots of energy but, alas, unharnessed. Basically a dreamer.'

I've always thought of March in the masculine gender, but one of my favorite writers, Hal Borland, says: "March is a tomboy with touseled hair, a mischievous smile mud on her shoes and a laugh in her voice. She's exasperating, lovable, a terror-onwheels, too young to be reasoned with, too old to be spanked."

Once again we were very blessed in the matter of our weekend snow. The 18 to 24 inches that the weathermen kept predicting gave us only about four inches in this immediate vicinity. But I find it very hard to cope with the intense cold. However, I am much inproved physically, and my doctor has eliminated two of the medications, and I no longer suffer constantly with nausea. Speaking of wonder drugs, Gil Stearn in the Wall Street Journal says: "A wonder drug is one that has no effect on mice". I guess I'm stupid but I don't really get this one. However here's one we can relate to. In the Guerney Seed Catalog, they print some mighty potent little sayings: thusly, "A wonder drug is a medicine that makes you wonder if you can afford to get sick these days." I'll go along with that.

Recently we've been quoting some beautiful paragraphs on Friendship. Many times we speak lightly, calling someone a friend, when in reality they are an acquaintance. Here is a saying on that subject. "An acquaintance is a person we know well enough to borrow from, but not well enough to lend to!" There's a deep one.

Are you getting a lot of reading done these long, cold winter evenings? Now that my eyes are so much better I am enjoying the luxury of reading again. I'm just getting around to reading "Raintree County" by Ross Lockridge, Jr. This was a Book-of-the-Month Club selection some years ago. I find it delightful and a good picture of our country during the past century.

For some reason on this cold morning I am sitting here dreaming about violets, and longing to see their little purple faces once again. When I was growing up there were great patches of violets everywhere and it did not seem to matter when we picked a few to play chicken rooster. We would hook their little heads together and pull to see which rooster won by keeping his head intact. I'll just take two to demonstrate to my grandchildren how this old childhood game was played. I'm sure wee Garith will not approve. I recently overheard her remonstrate to some children who were crushing angle worms with their feet. She said, 'Don't kill them...I like worms.'

Another game with the violets was to pull down the lower petal and observe the old lady washing her feet in a basin. Did you ever do that? In the summer I still see childen picking honeysuckle blooms and pulling the center until the sweet drop of nectar may be tasted. In the area of flower games I don't suppose there are enough wild field daisies to make a daisy chain. Probably that would be boring for today's children.

Here's a little anecdote for those who are concerned about their weight. "A woman went into a bakery and ordered a pie. The salesgirl asked if she should cut it into six pieces or eight. The woman replied, "Oh, six. I'm on a hope Spring is here. Bingo Tuesday - Mrs. Anthony calling. Tuesday morning was a good time, good to be back at the Center. The band sounded vibrant. Mrs. Sylvia Meredith and Mr. Marion Brown sang a duet.

Most pleasant to the ear. Wednesday was my day off but Manna was sending baked chicken, so went anyway. Worked all day long in the ceramic room, doing gold work and firing kiln. Mary, Hazel and Jo worked too. Conversation and laughter abounded as well as work. Pool room is still busy but rarely get to see or hear them. Been busy doing Easter articles. Selling almost as fast as we make it, good. Bingo Wednesday, Elizabeth Anthony calling. Thursday was bright and sunny. Karl Isley, F. Hoffman, and E. Benzin came and spoke on homebounds. They were interesting for they made their point quickly and clearly. Local shopping and bowling at Milford Lanes completed Thursday. High scorers were Marie Dulik and

Fred Littmann. Friday Mabel Jean Donovan and daughter Lorrie brought the makings of 20 butterflies and they were made up by 17 ladies. Pretty as a picture, made of beautiful printed ribbon. We had green and orange. They look fantastic on drapes, equally as well as on a lamp shade, mirror or to add a dash of spring to the refrigerator

For Your Information

Dear friends.

All over America, a new spirit of independence is stirring among the elderly. They are discovering that Washington cannot or will not solve all their problems. Many can best be handled on the local level.

Every social reform demands organization, hard work, a sacrifice of time and energy. This is in the best interests of American democracy, which is an ongoing experience.

Coach Bill Falasco holds a final meeting with his starting five before the start of Saturday's first round of tournament play at Milford High School. The Spartan's played, and beat 62-51, the highly regarded varsity from Delcastle High in Wilmington. The game was all Lake Forest's in the first half with Kenny Sudler providing most of the fireworks. He scored a game high 22. Quinten Hendricks played an outstanding game at center and totaled 20. This was the first time the Spartans have gone beyond the first round of the state tourney. Mark Smith, Kenny Sudler and Quinten Hendricks were cited on the all-conference list this season, coach Falasco was given the honor of coaching the all star game to be held later this month.

round basketball tournament against St. Elizabeth's High played at Dover on Friday night. The Spartans played erratically and couldn't find the basket on many shots. Harris is the only starting player on coach Pat Dyal's team. [Top] Here is Tina Durant reaching for a jump ball during Friday's contest. She won the jump, but the team failed to mount a real offense all evening. The final score was St. Elizabeth's 47, Lake Forest 19, ending the Spartan's tourney hopes for another year. Lake Forest did not score a single point in the first period and put in only one point in the third. The St. Elizabeth's defense was swarming for the entire game, giving Lake Forest 8 of their total points during the last three minutes. It was a big disappointment for a quality team that did so well in conference play this year. With the strength of the underclassmen on coach Dyal's team, next year should be even better than '80.

"Big Thursday" for many years was a day of great importance at (Bowers). The origin of the festival grew out of an 1856 act of the General Assembly of the State providing for the open season for catching oysters in Delaware Bay and making it unlawful for any person to take oysters in any creek or pond between May 1 and August 10. As the first year the open season began on the second Thursday, and in no year could the second Thursday be earlier than the 8th day, it became by custom "Big Thursday at Bowers". It lasted until the 1920's.

"Freedom from narrow limits" - Webster.

The Biblical Isaac digged a well in the valley of Gerar (Genesis 26-17,22). Nearby herdsmen strove with him; and he called that well Esek meaning strife or controversy. He dug another well and this one caused accusation and counter-accusation. He called it Sitnah. Isaac went on and found another well in a large, free, open space, where each man had room to feed flocks without interference from others. He named that well Rehoboth meaning "room enough".

That man had the conservation instinct. He kept on until he found the latitude he needed. When eventually given the proper spirit of liberty - there and then - and only in that atmosphere could he operate effectively. Genesis states 'There the Lord made room and fruitfulness was in the land".

We farmers on the Shore are being hemmed in so that it is cramping our style. To be hindered by the discordance of the weather presents difficulties aplenty. Put property encroachments on top of that and the wad gets too big to chew.

The fierce, martial Alexander the Great came to interview Diogenes, of whom he had learned was a deep thinker. The Conqueror asked what boon he could grant from his world-wide possessions and authority to help the man along with his work. With a slow gesture Diogenes acknowledged he did have a "boon-tocrave". The request was "Please stand out of my sunlight!"

Instead of "a boon-to-crave", in my neck of the woods we would say "Crow to Pick". And a crow to pick we have indeed, in the wake of the Foreign Purchases of Prime Farmland in Delmarva.

It is said of Daniel Boone that he commenced getting edgy whenever he learned of a settler coming within ninety miles of him. Problems like the one mentioned in the above paragraph have come in so close and fast that, for survival sake alone, we farmers are going to have to be embodiments of Isaac, Diogenes, and Daniel Boone all in one hide.

Even then it's going to be tough. The Indian Scriptures say "Time drinketh up the essence of every great and noble action which ought

B ville commissioners approve budget

The Town Commissioners for the Town of Bridgeville approved a revised budget for '80 - '81 on Monday night in the amount of $300,450. This will mean that with the application of their revenue sharing for this period they will show a balance sheet in the black of $1,026. Plans to purchase a new police car, and planning for certain streets to be resurfaced in the town may have to be shelved for the while. Commissioner William Hartzel said the cost of electricity alone is causing some street maintenance to be put off for the time being. Discussions on the cause and condition of Elm Street were lengthy. One commissioner felt that resurfacing wasn't the remedy, "...but that we may have a drainage problem, which further studies may prove...will save some money there.

In other matters, President of the Commissioners, Bob Mulvaney, read a letter to the Board which he had received from the State of Delaware Environmental Control concerning the high rate of pollutents being dumped from the sewage plant into the stream. The percentage is so high that the town has been given an ultimatum to "clean up their act" or the State will take measures to correct the problem. The town has been in violation for the past 22 months.

According to President Mulvaney, certain industries in the town have not complied with numerous town requests to either see the results of their waste tests or have refused to correct the high percent of waste dumping. The town has the capability of fining for violations, but as Commissioner Hartzel pointed out "...a fine is not going to satisfy the State. The problem will still be there." A meeting with Rapa Scrapple has been set for March 24th in an effort to

Castle counties. Trappers point to the fact that the dogs reported killed so far this year have all been in places where it is illegal to trap at all. They feel illegal trapping is the work of nonassociation members who will give legitimate trappers a black eye. Lesley said his organization would be in favor of stiffer fines and tough enforcement. In fact, he told the Journal the Trappers Association would be willing to offer a reward for the first person caught setting an illegal trap.

Hunters, who were not all sure trappers are as innocent as they claim, had one big question: "Why do you need the Conibear?" They feel raccoons could be effectively trapped by means other than the big, body gripping traps and would be willing to legalize some such device as the box trap (for taking live animals) in exchange for banning the more lethal ones. Not only are the latter a danger to hunting dogs, they contend, but they pose a definite hazzard to small children and could even mean serious trouble to a man hunting alone and catching his leg in one. Hunters say he might not be able to free himself. Lesley admitted it would be difficult.

Hunters and trappers both agree that catching illegal trappers is not easy. Although they poked scornful fun at game wardens for not wanting to get out where the traps can be discovered, they had to concede that Delaware's eight game wardens are not enough to do the job. A deputy warden system such as the one in effect in Pennsylvania and proposed by Fish and Wildlife director Wagner might be part of the answer. But enforcement of any trapping regulations, they say, will also require hunters and trappers alike to be willing to give information. And this is not always an easy thing to do. The man who gives such information may take the risk of having his valuable dog poisoned or shot in retaliation.

In last Wednesday's abrasive atmosphere, little could be accomplished except set a date for another meeting. Selected representatives of the trappers and four hunting groups are planning to sit down with West and Wagner this evening at the same location to iron out a compromise that could result in some effective legislation. They will be considering at least three proposals offered by Wagner, by West and by a group of fox hunter in the Dover area. All three suggest stiffer mandatory fines. The toughest, one suggested by the hunters, would set $500 fines for the first offense and $1,000 for each additional one for illegal trap setting. It would also charge the offender $250 for each trap unlawfully set or found in his possession and would provide a jail sentence of up to 60 days as an option. Fines for those selling the traps it would set at $1,000 for a first offense and $5,000 for each additional one. A $500 fine would be added for each trap found on the individual's property or place of Both West's proposal and the one offered by the hunters would ban the big Conibear traps and make their possession illegal.

Loss of trapping licenses for periods up to five years is also suggested. Hunters would make

All the proposals would set fines that could not be suspended. West's proposed legislation would ask the appropriation of

"...a sum sufficient to hire two additional game wardens, whose sole duty and responsibility it shall be to investigate and prosecute trapping violations." Wagner has suggested a deputy warden

The work was dedicated to the memory of Serge Koussevitzky, one of the middle twentieth centuries greatest conductors. but the composer wrote on the score that he had "tried to write a joyous hymn to the glory of God." The piece calls for a large orchestra and each of the seven brief movements are completely individual in style, spanning the classical oratorio style to a near Broadway approach.

Wolfgang Mozart's "Exsultate Jubilate" was composed in 1773 for the male soprano Rauzzini. While the text is sacred, it seems to be secondary to the operatic style of the four short movements, the most famous of which uses a one word text; "Alleluia".

"A German Requiem" by Johannes Brahms was composed in 1869 and is the only protestant requiem in existence. Its texts are taken directly from Scripture, not using the standard requiem movements and leaning more toward the concept of the Christian Hope of life after death. It is considered to be the major staple of protestant liturgical music and because of its magnitude is rarely heard outside a concert hall. The Chancel Choir will sing four choruses from the Requiem.

The orchestra for this concert will include members of the Dover Symphony, Annapolis Symphony, the TAC Air Force Band, Langley Air Force Base, Virginia as well as many local musicians.

The concert is free and the public is cordially invited to attend. Seating will be on a first come, first serve basis in the 550 seat capacity sanctuary. A free will offering will be received.
