

Anniversary Set At 200-Year-Old Barratt's Chapel

by Bette McNear

United Methodist Communicator)

FREDERICA, DE.--"What Mount Sinai was to the ancient Jew, Mecca to the true Mohammedan, and Independence Hall to the patriotic American, Barratt's Chapel is to the Methodist, the cradle of faith--a shrine."
These words, written 1911, still hold true as the little chapel known as the Cradle of Methodism observes its 200th anniversary, Nov. 16.

"It was a greater undertaking and a matter of more importance to build a modest chapel in the midst of a forest in those days than for us to build the finest church edifice," the words go on. "The very plainness and colonial simplicity of Barratt's Chapel points the moral that the life which it typifies...is that in which the best men have been nurtured...it helped produce and strengthen those rugged virtues for which the early methodists were noted."

The Hon. Norris S. Barratt, judge of the Court of Common Pleas No. 2, Philadelphia, spoke the words at an address before the 43rd Wilmington Waiting silently as it has for two centuries, Barratt's Chapel, near Frederica, stands ready to welcome the congregation that will gather this Sunday, November 16, to celebrate the historic meeting of Francis Asbury and Dr. Thomas Coke. From that meeting, on November 14, 1784, developed the Methodist Church as it is known in America. The Chapel itself was built in May 1980 on land given by Phillip Barratt, once sheriff of Kent County.....

...Bishop Frederick Wertz, whose mother was a Barratt, will preach at the 3 p.m. service.

City Passes Budget With Slim Surplus

Monday night, just a little over a month into Fiscal Year 1981, the Harrington City Council passed a budget which boasts a slim $96 surplus. Passage of the budget in November beats the record of the past two years by months. Budgets for 1979 and 1980 did not get city approval until early spring.

The city's anticipated spending for 1981 comes to $393,874. Revenues are expected to total only $343,000. However, surplus revenue for 1980 amounted to $85,000. After 1980 overspending to the tune of $34,030 was deducted, there was $50,970 left to apply to the 1981 budget. Added to the anticipated revenues this total $393,970--just $96 more than the city has plans to spend.

Major items in the new budget included Streets-$111,200, Police-$90,612, Sewer and Water-$71,751, City-$42,501, Capital Outlay-$34,410, Debt Service-$25,000 and General-$18,400.

Municipal Street Aid, expected to amount to $31,000 in 1981, was listed separately rather than as a part of the regular budget. Of this, $22,000 has been set aside for street repair and drainages, the latter on Grant Street where at least one resident has promised to take legal action if the city does not act. (Drainage work on North Street, still to be done, was added to the spending for 1980.)

Another $2,713.28 to come from the state for use by the local police, was also budgeted separately. These DARC funds are to be spent for two radios ($2,000) and other equipment.

Salary raises for city employees, slashed in the scramble to balance the 1980 budget, have been included in the 1981 figures. The city's payroll for the year now comes to $134,372.44. Of that total $58,430.52 will pay the town's five police officers (four full and one part time); $52,611 will go to five full time street employees and the Supervisor of Public Works, and $28,285.92 will make up the combined salaries of City Office personnel including a City Manager as yet to be hired. (The City has been operating without a City Manager since the resignation of Dave Peterson effective October 6). City plans to pick up employees' share of FICA (Social Security) payments were changed when it was learned that those payments would have to be reported as taxable income. The city elected, instead, to add a corresponding amount to the pay raises.

Out of the $34,410 the City has slated for capital outlay, $11,000 and

Frederica May Look for Funds to Paint Tower

Cleaning and painting the town's water tower and replacing a riser pipe leading up to it may well be the next project for which Frederica will seek federal funding. The total project would most likely cost somewhere around $55,000, well under the limit of $100,000 for individual projects that has been set this year. And, according to Guy Winebrenner of Edward H. Richard Associates, the project should fit in well with this year's strategy of funding a number of smaller projects.

Winebrenner, who spoke to the Frederica Town Council at its regular meeting last Wednesday, said Kent and Sussex counties will most likely have to share a total of $750,000 in HUD block grants for 1981. He said projects which have an immediate impact upon the target groups--low income and minority families--and smaller ones which would allow the funding of a number of different projects would probably have the best chance of success.

Winebrenner briefly discussed three types of federal funding: EDA grants geared toward creating jobs (the current expansion of ILC near Frederica is an example), EPA grants--Sewer and wastewater quality projects, and HUD block grants. Frederica would be looking for a

Loan Referendum Needed

As the Harrington City Council Monday night approved the application for a loan from the Farmers Home Administration to finance its $189,000 share of the bill for upgrading the city's sewage treatment facilities to meet EPA standards, it also learned it would have to secure permission by referendum from city residents to borrow the money. A public hearing, also required, will be conducted from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Monday, December 8, the next regular meeting of the Council. The referendum would probably be set for some time in January.

With the $869,000 contract for upgrading the sewage treatment facility already awarded to CZ Construction and the town committed to carry out the project to meet federal and state environmental standards, Mayor Arthur Cahall and city council members admit it is late in the game to be going to city residents to ask permission to borrow the money. However, they say they did not learn of the legal necessity until recent days.

Approval of the referendum, Mayor Cahall pointed out, would allow the city to borrow money from FmHA a low interest rate to pay its 15 percent share of the total project. Failure to

Jack Anderson

Jack Anderson whose relentless probing has made him America's foremost investigative reporter, is nothing like the Hollywood version of the hard-drinking, hard-swearing news hound.

He neither drinks nor swears--nor, for that matter, has he ever been seen with a cigarette drooping from the corner of his mouth.

He avoids cocktail parties, shuns night life, has no time for the card games in the back rooms. He is more likely to be found teaching Sunday School or romping with his nine children.

This intense man has been at the bottom of some of the biggest exposes that have come out of Washington. His stories have brought convictions of tax violators, five percentages and corrupt Congressman; have exposed deceit, dishonesty and waste at the highest levels--and in 1972, won him the Pulitzer Prize.

Jack Northman Anderson was born in Long Beach Calif., in 1922 and reared in Salt Lake City, Utah. His father was a postal clerk, his mother a taxi driver.

Started at $7 a week

When he was 12, he got his first newspaper job as a seven dollars-a-week reporter for the weekly Murray Eagle in the Salt Lake City suburbs. By the time he was 18, he was working on the city desk of the Salt Lake Tribune.

A practicing Mormon, he accepted a call from his church to serve two years, 1942-43, as a full-time missionary in the southern states. He still teaches Sunday School and delivers an occasional sermon.

He served briefly during World War II as a cadet officer in the merchant Marine, resigned to accept credentials as a civilian war correspondent. He was accompanying a band of Chinese guerrillas behind Japanese lines when the draft board tried to induct him. Not until he emerged from behind the lines, after the armistice, were the authorities able to locate the prospective soldier. Inducted in China, he was assigned to the Shanghai edition of the Army newspaper, Stars and Stripes.

Anderson joined Drew Pearson's staff after his return to the States in 1947, and was Pearson's choice to write the Washington Merry Go-Round column after Pearson's death, in 1969.

Local Author Autographs Books

Mrs. Nellie Bausell former Harrington teacher and co-author of the recently published book The Bausell Home Learning Guide: Teaching Your Child to Read was on hand to autograph copies of her book at the fair conducted by the Friends of the Harrington Public Library last Saturday. Mrs. Bausell, one of the original members of the Library Advisory Council, donated the proceeds from any of her books that we sold during the Fair support the library.

The book, the first in a series of three, is a joint venture by Mrs. Bausell; her son R. Barker Bausell, and his wife, Carole Rynd Vinograd Bausell. This first volume was published earlier this year by W.B. Saunders Company; it is distributed by Holt, Rinehart and Winston. Two more volumes already written are to follow. These will be Teaching Your Child to Write and one in the area of math.

According to Mrs. Bausell, Teaching Your Child to Read is designed to supplement and not supplant work in the classroom. It could be used effectively by the parents of either a child who needs remedial help or the younger child who is capable of advancing at a faster pace. The one-to-one help an interested parent could provide would be a plus in either direction.

The books contains both material for the parent who would be the teacher and stories, up through a third pre-primer level, for the child.

A teacher for 44 years, Mrs. Bausell has also served as a reading consultant in school districts in both Delaware and Virginia. She taught in Harrington for about 17 years before her retirement. At home on Weiner Avenue, she directs the Reading Improvement Center here.

R. Baker Bausell is associate professor at the University of Maryland Center for Research and Evaluation

Voters Approve Library

Harrington voters made their way to a separate poll last Tuesday to register their approval on a public opinion referendum asking whether the city should use its tax dollars to fund the Harrington Public Library. Their verdict was 301 to 111, also 3 to 1, in favor of supporting the library. The referendum was not legally binding the Council members, but was expected to give its members some indication of how their constituents felt.

As an immediate consequence. The City Council Monday night passed a budget which includes a $4500 appropriation for the library. In addition, it requested, at a prior budget meeting held last Thursday, that the Library trustees come up with a user fee for library patrons who are not city residents.

A suggested fee of $5.00 per family per year was adopted by the Council Monday night. That fee will only apply to library users who live outside city limits. And the Council further agreed that those who own property in town (and thus are city taxpayers) should be exempted from paying the $5.00 to use the library.

Anniversary Service Set at Barratt's Chapel

Annual Conference, at Asbury Methodist Church in Wilmington on March 17th, 1911. His entire address was published by the Historical Society of Delaware that same year, complete with photographs of the chapel and of the men who figured in its history.

Probably the most notable of these were the Rev. Thomas Coke and the Rev. Francis Asbury, who met in the little chapel on Nov. 14, 1784 to develop a plan to organize the Methodist societies in America into one Methodist Church. It was on that day that the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was first administered in this county by an ordained Methodist minister.

Bishop Coke had been sent to America by John Wesley to ordain Asbury as a bishop, and Asbury's reply was that he would not be ordained unless elected by his colleagues, the itinerant ministers. After their historic meeting, a call went out for a conference of all the Methodist clergy, to be held in Baltimore that Christmas of 1794 and at the conference the church was formed. It was then that Asbury was elected and ordained a bishop.

Barratt's Chapel

[Reprinted from The Delaware Digest, November 1979]

In the turbulent years surrounding the American Revolution, Kent County in Delaware became a haven for the persecuted, and history focused, for a moment, on a country chapel. The moment was November 14, 1784; the place, Barratt's Chapel near Frederica, and the occasion, the meeting of Francis Asbury and Dr. Thomas Coke.

From that meeting would come the organization of some one hundred Methodist societies, still loosely bound to the Church of England, into a new church in a new country. The date of their meeting would also mark the first occasion on which American Methodists on American soil were able to receive the sacraments of the Lord's Supper and baptism at the hands of an ordained Methodist minister.

Prior to that date, Methodists in this country who wished to be married, to be baptised, or to receive Holy Communion had to go to clergymen of the church of England. Sometimes they were welcome; sometimes they were not. But at Barratt's Chapel, for once and for subsequent generations, they were accorded a new dignity in their worship.

The story of Barratt's Chapel is the story of at least four men. Their names? John Wesley, Thomas Coke, Francis Asbury and Philip Barratt.

John Wesley, founder of Methodism, came to America in 1735 and returned to England in 1738. The Methodist societies organized under his influence spread to the new world, including Delaware where the first was in existence in Lewes as early as 1739.

John Wesley also influenced a number of young men. One of these was the son of an English gardener, Francis Asbury. Converted to Methodism as a teen, Asbury volunteered to go to America as a missionary. Covering much of the Eastern seaboard, he became unofficially recognized as a leader among a group of unique individuals known as circuit riders. These were itinerant preachers who traveled from place to place on horseback, their Bibles the main provision in their saddlebags. Wherever they stopped, people would gather, and the Gospel would be preached.

Not least among the hazzards the circuit riders encountered was the fact that in the infant years of the new nation, their loyalty became suspect. For their association with the Church of England and for various misunderstandings, they were regarded as Tories and were subject to persecution, particularly on the Delmarva peninsula.

Francis Asbury was no stranger to these difficulties. But he and others found a haven in Kent County, where Asbury took refuge at the home of Judge Thomas White near present day Whiteleysburg.

A waystation along a circuit might be any place where people could assemble for preaching. In Kent County people often gathered at Drawbridge (possibly the site of the present bridge over the St. Jones on U.S. 113) or in private homes. In October 1778, Kent County Sheriff Phillip Barratt was present in the house of David Lewis of Murderkill and was one of those converted.

Barratt began opening his home for services, and on occasion as many as two or three hundred people were in attendance. It was quite plainly an overflow crowd. In winter, especially, this was a hardship, and there was definitely a need for a place to meet. Phillip Barratt was in a position to meet that need.

An earlier meeting house or church of logs had been built near the drawbridge, but Francis Asbury had encouraged the local Methodists to construct something more permanent. In accordance with Asbury's wishes, Phillip Barratt provided about an acre of ground upon which the chapel was built in May of 1780. On August 17 of that year, for the sum of five shillings, he dedicated the land and the chapel to nine men who were to serve as its trustees. His only stipulations were that the trustees maintain the chapel and that it be reserved for the preaching of the doctrines of John Wesley as found in his notes on the New Testament and four volumes of his sermons by those appointed by the conference of "the people known as Methodists".

So it was that Barratt's Chapel was built. Almost foursquare, the 42 by 48 foot brick building rose two stories to accommodate a gallery on three sides. To those who had met in homes and open fields, it seemed almost a cathedral. But by today's standards, its simplicity approaches the austere. Its interior bears mute testimony to the sole purpose for which it was constructed - the preaching of the Gospel. Center and focus is the pulpit on which rests the open Bible. Surrounding that pulpit are silent benches waiting for those who would gather to hear.

To that simple chapel in 1784 came a son of English wealth, an ordained clergyman and presbyter of the Church of England, an emissary of John Wesley - Dr. Thomas Coke. He came in search of Asbury, his purpose to ordain him a bishop to share in the organization of the Methodist church in America.

Wesley had intended the Methodist societies in America as a mission of the Church of England and not as a separate entity. But history precluded him. The colonists had rejected the mother country, and American Methodists would have to survive without the mother church. But they would need a shepherd. Wesley took his concern for them into his own hands and sent Coke to find Asbury and share with him that responsibility.

When Coke arrived in New York in November of 1784, his first task was to locate Asbury who was about his business somewhere along the hundreds or thousands of miles that comprised the circuit riders' territory. The search took Coke to Dover, Delaware, where on Sunday, November 14, at 6 a.m., Richard Whatcoat, who had accompanied him, preached in the courthouse. By 11 a.m. that same day the two Englishmen had arrived at Barratt's Chapel.

Francis Asbury had started that day in Snow Hill, Maryland, where he has been preaching. But he had heard of Coke's arrival in Delaware and was riding north. He strode into the chapel while Dr.

Coke was preaching to a crowd of some five or six hundred. According to eyewitness accounts, a hush fell over the congregation as the two men met and embraced, Coke in the rich vestments of the English clergy and Asbury in the plain clothing of a circuit rider. A bronze star at the altar now marks the place of their meeting.

Following the sermon, Dr. Coke and Richard Whatcoat administered the Lord's Supper to numbers of those gathered. It was the first time it had been administered legally by a Methodist on American soil.

Afterwards Coke and Asbury, meeting on a rude wooden bench belonged to one of the original attendants. A group of Wesley College students has been digging into the chapel's history and some new information is being documented at this very moment.

The Bible on the reading desk has been in use in the chapel since 1854. Pictures on the walls depict historical events and personages, and in the balcony are several pieces of Victorian pulpit furniture given to the chapel by other churches and meeting houses, including an early primitive pine desk from Bethel Church which was located on the banks of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal.

"There are a lot of mysteries about the chapel," says Gen. Charles I. Carpenter, who volunteers every weekend as a guide through the chapel and the small museum which now stands beside it. "For instance, we wonder why there are three tiers of benches on one side of the balcony, and only one on the other." Carpenter is a retired Air Force chaplain who probably knows more than any other person about Barratt's Chapel.

Everett Bryan of Dover is another devoted volunteer, who makes small repairs and keeps the chapel looking beautiful for the visitors who come from all over the country. When it was decided that the chapel windows should be locked, it was Bryan who fashioned authentic colonial locks out of leather straps and wire cut nails. "He's the greatest thing to happen to this place since Asbury left it," chuckles Carpenter.

In 1973 the chapel was restored to its present beauty and placed on the National Register of Historic Places. It is open Saturdays and Sundays from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

On a recent Saturday after, Dr. Carpenter was explaining to a group that Barratt's Chapel was a copy of Wesley Chapel in Bristol, England, when a minister among them spoke up: "That's true! I preach in that chapel every Sunday that I'm home. It's exactly the same."

Bishop D. Frederick Wertz, whose mother, by the way, was a Barratt, will preach at the celebration of the meeting of Coke and Asbury Sunday, November 16 at 3 p.m.

Music will be by the choir of the Wyoming De. UMC and members of the Commission on Archives and History will be participating in the service.

After the services, tour guides in Colonial costume will lead groups through the chapel and the museum. The guides will be Hazel Brittingham, Virginia Rust, and Mary Morgan, Dorothy Matthews, Thelma Knight and Mary Rawlins.

that is still preserved in the Chapel's museum, discussed Wesley's plan for organizing the American church. In character with the times and the spirit of a newly independent nation, Asbury refused ordination as a bishop unless and until that honor and responsibility could be conferred by the election of his fellow ministers. No Englishman, not even its revered founder, John Wesley, would dictate to the Methodist Church in America.

Phillip Barratt was not present in his chapel to witness that occasion. His death had occurred on October 28, 1784, little more than two weeks earlier. However, his widow, Miriam Barratt, opened her home to Coke and Asbury and to eleven other ministers who dined there after the services at the chapel. It was in the Barratt home, then, that the idea of calling a general conference of Methodist ministers was conceived and set in motion. The result was that Freeborn Garretson was dispatched, "like an arrow" to call the itinerant ministers to conference in Baltimore on Christmas Eve. By Friday, December 24, Garretson had covered over 1,200 miles, and sixty of the eighty ministers summoned had arrived at Lovely Lane Church. At that conference Asbury was elected a bishop by his peers and ordained by Dr. Coke. Also at that conference, the Methodist Episcopal Church in America was organized.

The Lovely Lane Church in Baltimore, site of the Christmas Conference, has long ceased to exist. It was torn down in 1787. But Barratt's Chapel still stands. And it was from Barratt's Chapel on that November Sunday in 1784 that the word went forth that American Methodists would have their own church and from its pulpit, and countless others, that the Gospel continued to be preached in a new nation.

New Merit Badge for Boy Scouts

Boy Scouts in the Del-Mar-Va Council now share with other Scouts across the country the opportunity to earn a new merit badge emphasizing Scouting's awareness of the needs of handicapped persons.

"We want to understand the whole group of disabilities," Mrs. West said, "and this includes the emotionally disturbed and mentally retarded as well as those with physical handicaps." One requirement for earning the badge is for a Scout to study what is being done to train, employ, and educate persons with physical, sensory, mental or emotional handicaps. This can be done by visiting an agency that works with handicapped persons.

A Scout also must try to put himself in the place of the handicapped by conducting activities under conditions simulating sight, hearing, manual, and mobility impairment.

In addition, a Scout must spend 15 hours within three months working with groups serving the handicapped and analyzing their views and concerns. Finally, he is asked to work toward greater understanding and awareness of persons handicapping conditions.

Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond, Shirley Warren Sr. spent last Thursday in Georgetown watching their first Returns Day Parade. They enjoyed the Parade, the oyster sandwiches, the drinks and the weather. I met a lot of old friends and was very pleased to see Nancy Cook again. The meeting brought back memories of when I worked at Legislative Hall back in the 60's and we would sit on the back stairs and talk and giggle. Ah! Those were the days. After the Reading of the Returns we attended several parties. We really enjoyed Nutter Marvel's party in his big barn and his carriages are a sight to see.

Thursday was our 28th wedding anniversary and later on we all went to a local Georgetown Pizza Place and relaxed and enjoyed our favorite Pizza.

I've not been able to enjoy my two beautiful trees in our front yard very long this year because the wind has stripped them of the gold and red leaves.

May God be with all the Shut-ins and those of you in the hospital. I wish a speedy recovery. Please call me at 284-4313 if you have any news.

Gabfest

by Pat Hatfield

When we looked at the meadows this morning, November 3 we knew that the Frost King had arrived. The hoar frost lay white upon the land, and the air was so sharp you fairly expected it to snap, crackle and pop! Most of the leaves are still on the trees and lots of them are still as green as they were in summer. I shall enjoy it when they get off. I love the trees in winter, with their bare, black branches silhouetted against the gray skies. Only then can we admire the beauty and form of each tiny twig and sturdy limb. Their beauty is stark, dramatic, and awe-inspiring. Take time to love them now while they are in their silent period of waiting for life-giving sap to flow again and "the voice of the turtle is heard in the land."

I do hope someone will have the rest of the poem about November which we asked for last week. I found a lovely bit of prose about November, written by Alice Julian: "November is a faithful handmaiden of Mother Nature, making leafy patch quilts for the garden beds, shoving southward loite ring birds, carrying fruits of the harvest to men in her generous arms, bustling about till her work is finished. Then complacently, Autumn sits in a corner, with a shawl drawn over her tired shoulders, waiting till her sister Winter tiptoes in, snow-flaked and sparkling, ready to take over in the seasons' cycle."

November gave my friend, Tess, a lovely moment. She had a whole flock of purple finches in her yard. Our Mockers are not singing now. Occasionally, I see a flash of gray and white among the leafless bushes. I think they are checking out the bird feeder to see if Mama has prepared breakfast. They are like winter etching. With their black, silvery gray and snow white, they seem to be costumed to fit into the picture.

It is nice to know they will stay during the winter, along with the cardinals, the evening grosbeaks and the downy woodpeckers. What joy they give us through the long, winter days.

The soup kettle at Trail's End is boiling right merrily and the delicious blend of meat and vegetables promise a treat later on. What is more heart-warming than to come in out of the cold and sit down to a bowl of steaming homemade soup? Hot muffins are a perfect addition. We like a lot of chopped or cubed meat in our beef-vegetable soup, so I always buy some lean cubes to go along with the short ribs or stuff to make the stock.

I am now getting my reward for coping with all that food during the hot summer days. Most of the soup material's come out of the freezer. Today, my soup contains, celery, parsley, cabbage, carrots, tomatoes, turnips, green peppers, onions, string beans, lima beans and corn. I always add a good dollop of catsup while it is cooking. The tiny slippery dumplings go in about twenty minutes before I call it done, and at the last moment, I add some suger and some Italian spaghetti sauce. A few bits of cheese may tossed in also. Well, you can see by this narrative that I do not have a recipe for soup. I just dump in whatever I can lay my hands on!

Happy Holiday.

Fri. night twelve from Harrington Center went to Camp Arrowhead-Bessie-Dave-Viola-Larry-Nellie-Ola Mildred-Elma-Elwood-Irene. Saturday morning Lillian, Florence-Mary and Dorothy went down. We found the group just going on the morning hike, nature, hunt they call it. Dorothy stayed by the newly laid fire tho it was beautiful and sunny outside, the glowing ambers of the fireplace not only looked good it felt good. Elma, Nellie and Viola caught me up on the Fri. nights activities. Greetings all around to the guests from Milford and Dover. Those doing the greeting were Jennifer McCarrell Bell Hartshorn, Jim Ipolitto, Elaine, Ipolitto, Sue and Mike Palmer. Great young people all! Can't pass on without mentioning the cooks there-Serumptious. The first meal was home made chicken pot pie with a delicately round crust, waldorf salad-beets and coconut cake-coffee or tea with I had been there.

Those present-Sylvia-Piano-Andy-Clarinet-Tony Trumpet-Mildred, Maracos-Cleora, Kazoo, Ella, Kazoo, Bertha, Kazoo, Marion Kazoo, Jo, Washboard, and thimble-Marion, drum (candy box) Ola, rolling pin, and stick-Gladys, Kazoo, Roxanne, Tamborine.

Tues. afternoon Sounds of History brought in by Ruth Nasser was different and interesting. She had on record the voices of several famous people-some of their voices were so very different than their image for example-Teddy Roosevelt- a big robust man, had a high squeaky voice. Some others heard were Al Smith-Calvin Coolidge-Charles Lindbergh.

Amelia Earnhart-Mary Bethume- Albert Einstein-Marion Anderson-Will Rogers-Eddie Canton-Gracie Celler-Pete Segar-Franklin Roosevelt-Dwight Eisenhower-Winston Churchill-Sandburg-Douglas McArthur-Adolph Hitler-John Kennedy-Kate Smith-Singing "God Bless America". Anna Mae and Pearl-Mildred-Elwood-Mamie-Lill-Gerti-Cleora-Dave-Bessie-Nell-Louis-Nell-Ethel-Alma and Millie did the Mr. and Mrs. Santa books. Thanks so much Loris and Dick Henry are so kind to bring in fruits and vegetables from some of their customers. Thank everyone concerned.

Wednesday a chartered bus left the Center for Concord Mall. Reported a good time. Saw some lovely things bought they couldn't get here. Charlotte was chaparone. The Center was busy as usual a sad note was entered when the news reached the Center of Lee Hughes going to sleep so early in his life. He had been very kind to the homebounds-delivering the meals. He will be missed by all of us.

Thursday was Ceramic-Pool-and local shopping.

Bowling at Milford Lanes and last weeks high scorers were Phil Astfolk and Marian Littleman, Hooray! Marian always cuts our Birthday cake or should say most always, nobody always does anything, including cutting cake huh? Thursday afternoon from the parlor came soft strains of music-Mamie was playing hymns and a group were singing-sounded good too!

Croak-Croak-Croak-Frog Day with Mabel Jean, Anna Mae Short, Hazel Langress-Florence Minner-Lillian Pearson-Bessie McCrackin-Elwood Morris-Cleora Vincent-Ella Golt-Millie Lennon-Essie Redding and Dorothy Twahan. Such fun! They sit, lay couch, assume many catchy poses. Tedious to set-take quite a bit of stuffing-some embroidery-a little hand sewing-lots of fun if you have a good group and we did. Everyone except Bessie kept theirs. Everyone that has seen mine wants one even at $2.00 each. They are worth $5.00 to Mabel Jean Donovan-Lillian Pearson, Irene Welch-Jo Burks and Florence Minner, and Gene Hobbs for their extra's participation.

As I was saying-Friday night was spent watching a film-craft-singing some old time favorites such as "On Top, Old Smoky" and a "Bicycle Built for two" Larry was at the piano."

The Sat. group walked thru the woods to the Bay. Larry got 5 clams (enough to make a small stew anyway) others gathered treasures of all kinds. Ola brought a greenery much like crowsfoot-called salecornea it has a salty taste and is used in pickling. Lillian's trunk was full of goodies that she, Florence and Mary had gathered. A stroll around the lounge and outside grounds, chatting and a cup of coffee my time as well as Nellie's, Elma & Mildred. Before lunch "Lee" made her appearance and after lunch and a film we did all kinds of crafts. She had all out by doing the sewing of sochet bags & teaching Mary and I how to make the wreaths "Lee" had taught Lillian. I was a must happy afternoon, the sun was shining in the windows-everyone that wanted to be, was busy doing something. Dinner was being cooked and every once in a while you would get a whip of either beef of fluffy mashed potatoes-smoothy brown gravy, tender brocolli, yeast rolls, butter and pumpkin pie, tea, served, tho you could get coffee is all-liked. Delicious. Best Wishes to you-Be kind to each other. Our sympathy to those in sorrow. Thank you Volunteers. Faith.

A meeting was held quite far from Earth, 'Tis time again for another birth, Said the Angels to the Lord above, 'This Special Child will need much love, His progress may seem very slow, Accomplishments he may not show; And he'll require extra care From the folks he meets down there. He may not run or laugh or play, His thoughts may seem quite far away. In many ways he won't adapt, And he'll be known as handicapped. So let's be careful where he's sent; We want his life to be content. Please, Lord, find the parents who Will do a special job for you. They will not realize right away The leading role they're asked to play. But with this child sent from above Comes stronger faith and richer love. And soon they'll know the privilege giving In caring from the gift from Heaven. Their precious charge, so meek and mild Is Heaven's "Very Special Child." -By Edna Massimilla Wife of Rev. John Massimilla of Felton United Methodist Church.

Lake Forest falls to Caesar Rodney

The Spartans of Lake Forest went down to defeat at the hands of the Caesar Rodney Riders before a sparse crowd of home-team fans. In fact, the fans in the visitor's stands outnumbered the locals by nearly 2 to 1.

The Spartans managed to keep the game interesting by matching the Riders touchdown for touchdown. The difference in the scoring was CR scoring first and last and making all their two point conversions. The Riders scored first on a 50 yd pass from DeWitt to Jones in the first quarter with Shockley adding two extra points on a run. The Spartans followed in the 2nd quarter with a TD by Bill Scott on an 20 yd run. Scott pass to Dale Benson for two.

The third quarter saw CR score on a 3 yd run by Taylor with Jones running the ball in for the extra two.

Then Nate Floyd kept it close with a five yard scoring run. The conversion attempt failed. But the Riders went further ahead with a one yard plunge by DeWitt with a good conversion.

In the fourth quarter the Spartans scored first on a 14 yd run by Floyd. With time running out CR closed the door with a 22 yard scoring pass from DeWitt to Childers. Final score CR 32 LF 20.

DP&L Seeks Reduction in Fuel Adjustment

For the second time in three months, Delmarva Power and Light Company has asked the Delaware Public Service Commission to reduce the price of electricity to 177,600 electric customers throughout Delaware.

The company today proposed a reduction in the fuel adjustment charge which would reduce total bills for the residential customer using 750 kilowatt hours of electricity per month by 3.3 percent or $1.86 from $57.03 to 55.17 (winter rates).

The fuel adjustment charge would decrease from 1.157 cents per kilowatt hour to .909 cents per kilowatt hour.

The company asked to the Public Service Commission to reduce the fuel adjustment to reflect the year-long operation of the coal-fired Indian River Unit 4. In October, when the plant began operation, the commission, on the request of DP&L, reduced the fuel charges to reflect the start and first three months operation of Indian River Unit 4.

The requested reduction is a result of the company's filing of its proposed fuel adjustment charges for 1981 as required by the Delaware Public Service Commission. The company and the commission try to set fuel adjustment charges which will remain constant for 12 months unless some unusual event occurs in worldwide fuel prices or DP&L's use of fuel. Each fall, the company proposed a new rate to run from January through December of the following year.

THANKS . . .

On behalf of the Kent County Democratic Party and all our candidates, I wish to say thanks a million to all VOTERS in Kent County for the support extended us and also for the excellent reception we received upon calling on you at your homes or businesses. You all were simply wonderful! Even though all of you didn't agree with our Party, you were nevertheless as courteous and kind as could possibly be expected.

We, the Democrats, have for a long time presented a strong slate of candidates and in most cases they have been successful. Because of the high quality of our candidates for the Legislature, Levy Court, and County Offices, we have been able to provide good, sound, and economical government. We believe all of you want that!

We also congratulate the Republicans for the hard effort their candidates put forth. Hard work brings success!

I, personally, want to congratulate all the Democrat candidates for their hard work and for conducting a clean and truthful campaign. We'll be back!

City Needs Loan Referendum

approve the referendum would mean the city would have to seek funds from more conventional sources at much higher interest rates. The City cannot scrap the project because it would then face costly suits from the federal and state governments for non-compliance with the standards for treated wastewater as well as from the contractor it has already hired to do the job.

The City will also have to get permission from the state legislature to raise the limit on its short term indebtedness from $100,000 to about $250,000 so that payments to the contractor can remain current while the construction is proceeding. This is necessary because the federal and state money for the EPA project will not come in until it is complete. The city would be reimbursed at the end of the project, 75 percent of the cost will be borne by the federal government, and 10 percent by the state.

Although the construction is getting underway, Mayor Cahall said it would be spring before it would be necessary to secure a short term loan to pay the contractor. He did not foresee any problem in getting legislative approval to raise the debt limit.

In other business the Harrington City Council Monday night questioned whether the city charter mandates a public hearing on a zoning request even if the Planning and Zoning Commission recommends against the request. The local Planning and Zoning Commission recently recommended against a rezoning request which would allow a home for the elderly at 110 Center Street. The reason given for recommending against the application was that plans presented were "too vague". The council did not take any action on this matter.

-agreed to sell Ray Gagne a 20 ft. x 54 ft. strip of land to square off his property with the proposed Senior Center parking lot. Gagne has agreed to assume legal costs and to pay the city $2,000, all of which will go into the parking lot project which is financed by the HUD grant. Heard from its attorney, Harry Terry that it will be advisable to get estimates from property owners in the North Street area to go on private property in efforts to correct a drainage problem there. In the meantime, the city can proceed with that part of the project which is not on private property.

-received a request from Richard Henry of Calvin Street to place another fire hydrant in the Vicinity. Water pressure in that area, according to Henry and to Councilman Gary Harrington, could be inadequate in an emergency. The water problems there (near the school)-could be one possibility for a HUD grant. The Council has set December 8 from 7:30 to 8:30 as the date for a hearing to get citizen input on HUD projects that might be needed.

-approved a 1981 budget and set a library user fee for non-residents of Harrington. (see separate Journal articles) grant in the latter category.

Application for a grant is about an 8 month procedure. 1981 grants, if all on schedule, should be announced in August. The pre-application is due January 12, but Winebrenner told the Frederica Council a letter of intent should go to the Department of Budget and Planning sometime between December 12 and 26. Two public hearings must also be held before the pre-application deadline.

If the project mentioned above is chosen and receives funding, the water tower, would be cleaned and painted, and the six inch riser pipe would be replaced with one larger in diameter. The larger pipe would not be as likely to freeze, and it could help with the problem of sediment sifting into the water system.

The Council voted to make the initial moves toward application. The recently improved water system in Frederica was realized through a similar HUD grant.

In other business the Frederica Town Council:

-agreed to have a street light reinstalled on a pole on Coleman Avenue and another one place at the intersection of Hoey and Lowber. The light on Coleman had been moved for better spacing. But an elderly resident complained that the move left her home in the dark. The Council voted to put a light back on the pole.

-heard the cost of trash disposal will go up from $7.50 per load to $12.50 per ton.

-was informed the next edition of the town newsletter should be out in the near future.

-discussed getting some cold patch mix to make pothole repairs on town streets.

-discussed the appointment of three persons to serve on a town Planning and Zoning Commission. The appointment of such a commission would be necessary to the enforcement of federal floor plain regulations and to qualify for attendant insurance programs. Establishment of the commission, which could include more than three members, would also be a step in the direction of the long range goal of planning and zoning for the community. No appointments have as yet been made.

WEEKLY SPECIAL

Hostage Deal: Iran Would Get Most Advanced, Heavy-Duty Arms

By JACK ANDERSON and JOE SPEAR

WASHINGTON -- President Jimmy Carter promised that when the U.S. hostages in Tehran were set free he would let the Iranian government take delivery on millions of dollars worth of weapons the Iranians purchased from the United States before the shah fell from power.

What he didn't tell the public, however, is exactly what this military hardware consists of. But our associate Dale Van Atta has seen a secret Pentagon report, and we can now reveal just what kind of weapons President Carter would turn over to Ayatollah Khomeini. They're not slingshots or B-B guns.

These weapons - $436 million worth - were bought by the late shah at a time when the United States was counting on him as our most dependable ally in the Middle East, outside of Israel. So the weapons included some of the most advanced, sophisticated items in our military arsenal.

Here is what the shah ordered and the ayatollah may get in return for the hostages:

- Phoenix missiles worth $41 million. These are missiles launched from fighter planes to shoot down enemy targets.

- Harpoon missiles worth $95.7 million. These are missiles designed to hit enemy ships, and can be fired from submarines, surface vessels or aircraft.

- MK-46 torpedoes, worth $16 million. These are submarine killers fired from surface ships.

- One F-14 jet, the Navy's most sophisticated fighter, worth $20 million, and one AH-1J Cobra helicopter, worth $2 million.

We have already reported that the U.S. Navy is woefully short of Phoenix missiles, which are used on our own F-14 fighters. In fact, the Pentagon is so in need of Phoenixes that Congress has authorized the Navy to buy the ones that are being stored for the Iranians.

In addition to these advanced naval weapons, the Iranians will also get $110 million worth of spare parts for the fighter planes, helicopters, missiles and warships they already have.

As for arms that can be used by Iran's hard-pressed ground forces in the war against Iraq, here is what Carter would turn over to the ayatollah:

Ten thousand rounds of bazooka ammunition, 28,000 anti-personnel land mines, 86,000 rounds of field artillery shells, more than 136,000 rounds of anti-tank ammunition and 8,656 medium-range, sophisticated Dragon anti-tank missiles.

The list also includes $5.8 million worth of spare parts for the Iranian army's weapons.

Finally, the Iranian air force will get more than $26 million worth of high-technology items, like cluster bomb units, fuses and laser-guided bomb kits. Also on the list are an additional $12.6 million worth of electronic countermeasure devices for fighter aircraft, and $23.8 million worth of spare parts.

DIRTY TRICKS: The political hoopla is all over, but 1980 may yet be remembered as a year of political dirty tricks. Nearly all the contenders have complained, especially officials of the John Anderson campaign.

In New Jersey, for example, Democratic Party officials saw to it that Anderson's name appeared on the ballot behind the Socialist and the Communist Party candidates. Anderson was also the target of a campaign by the White House to convince banks not to loan him money, and hundreds of thousands of dollars were spent to try to knock him out of the race in other ways.

Inside sources with the Anderson campaign suspected that their phones were tapped. The Communist Party also suspected phone taps, but that's nothing new. The Communists believe the government has been tapping their phones since the party was founded in 1919.

The Citizens Party lost $60 in petty cash to a burglar. And the Libertarian Party's phones were frequently on the blink. However, the Libertarians -- who believe in a totally free market -- blamed the "monopolistic" telephone company for their troubles.

Jack Anderson

WATCH ON WASTE: Since World War II, U.S. troops have been stationed in Europe to help maintain the "mutual security" of the West. But the American taxpayers consistently bear most of the mutual burden.

About 200,000 American troops are stationed in West Germany. For the past few years, German officials have sent Uncle Sam bills for damages supposedly done to property by U.S. troops on maneuvers.

In 1975, to cite one example, the claims amounted to about $5.5 million. But last year, the Germans filed claims totaling nearly $39 million.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: Rep. John Jenrette, D-S.C., the second congressman convicted in the ABSCAM scandal, lost his bid for re-election on Nov. 4, and he may not even be permitted to serve out his current term. Inside sources say the Republicans are going to force a vote on a resolution to expel him ... Several Senate investigators who probed the Billy Carter case have been visited by Internal Revenue Service agents. In the course of the Bilygata investigation, it seems, some of Billy's private tax data was leaked, and that is strictly illegal.

Education Week/

Nov. 16-22

Delaware schools will hold open houses, mount displays of student work and carry on other special activities to celebrate American Education Week November 16-22.

In a statement supporting the observance Governor Pierre S. duPont, IV, urged all citizens to visit the schools and offer to work as partners with the school staff to improve the school system.

The governor said public education commands more time, attention and effort than do all other common pursuits of Delawareans. Interested citizens are the factor that decides how well the school system works and how well our children learn, he said.

Delaware public schools are organized into sixteen districts governed by local boards of education. Boards are elected except for the three county vocational-technical districts and the New Castle County District.

General supervision and control are exerted by the State Board of Education, seven persons named by the governor and confirmed by the State Senate.

Led by State Representative Edward J. Bennett of Dover, the committee is expected to recommend ways to offset the variations of local revenue per pupil.

Delaware ranks among the highest states in the percentage of school revenue from state sources, and state funds go to districts by a uniform formula based on enrollment. But school districts vary by a factor of four to one in the amount of revenue raised by local taxes. The difference between the New Castle County and Woodbridge Districts amounts to about $700 per pupil.

Harrington Budget

$5,000 will be allocated for the sewer plant and new sewer construction; $7,500 goes to buy a new police car, and $5,000 will build a new pole shed for the city yard.

Included in the general fund was $4,500 for the Harrington Public Library (the subject of a public opinion referendum last week). The City Council also voted to up its appropriation to the Harrington Jaycees for the Christmas parade from $700 to $900. Other amounts go to the Harrington Volunteer Fire Company, the Senior Center $100 and the Little League $100.

Chief among the 1980 budget surplus items which made a 1981 balanced budget possible are an extra 143,000 in fines collected by the police department and an $18,000 upward adjustment in 1980 revenue sharing funds.

$6,000 for supplies (chemicals, etc. for the water and sewer department) and $4,850 set aside for North Street drainage were two of the larger reasons for overspending in 1980. The surplus canceled out the overspending with $50,970 to spare.

The biggest part of 1980 revenue will come from water and sewer fees (138,000), real estate taxes ($87,000) revenue sharing funds ($56,000) and trash fees ($31,000). Other sources are $28,000 projected in fines and $3,000 in permits and miscellaneous items.

With the costs of trash disposal due to increase drastically, some City Council members question whether or not the city's fees for trash collection ought not to go up. At a special budget meeting held Thursday night, it was observed by Council members, Dr. Lobo and Jack Wyatt that the city has been "living on trash" i.e. using surplus funds collected in trash fees for other city purposes rather than salting away some of the money for the replacement of the dump truck when that becomes necessary.

So far, the anticipated costs for trash collection and disposal are included in the budget, and no formal move to increase collection fees has been made.

THOUGHTS FROM DOVER

By Gov. Pierre S. DuPont

THANKS

The support of the voters in last week's general election is most gratifying and I am looking forward to another interesting and productive term of four years as Governor. To all the people who voted in last week's election, I extend my warmest thanks for taking time to cast a ballot and for your support.

The next four years promise to be exciting. Many new members have been chosen to serve in the General Assembly. My Administration's second term will soon be taking shape. And, in Washington, very important changes are likely to occur.

First, I congratulate the members who were elected to the General Assembly, and I welcome them to another term in Dover. I think we can make substantial progress in the years ahead and with their support and cooperation we can do to benefit all the people of our State.

My Administration will probably face some changes in the months ahead. Already two cabinet offices are open in the Secretary of Finance and the Secretary of Community Affairs and Economic Development. We will be able to find two very capable and qualified persons to fill these important cabinet posts.

Over the next few months we will develop the fiscal year 1981 budget so that I can offer it to the General Assembly in late January. Also, there will be a State of the State speech to prepare and the inaugural ceremonies.

Most of the attention of the public, however, will be focused on Washington where President-elect Ronald Reagan, Vice-President-elect George Bush, and the Congress will be planning for the change-over in administrations in January.

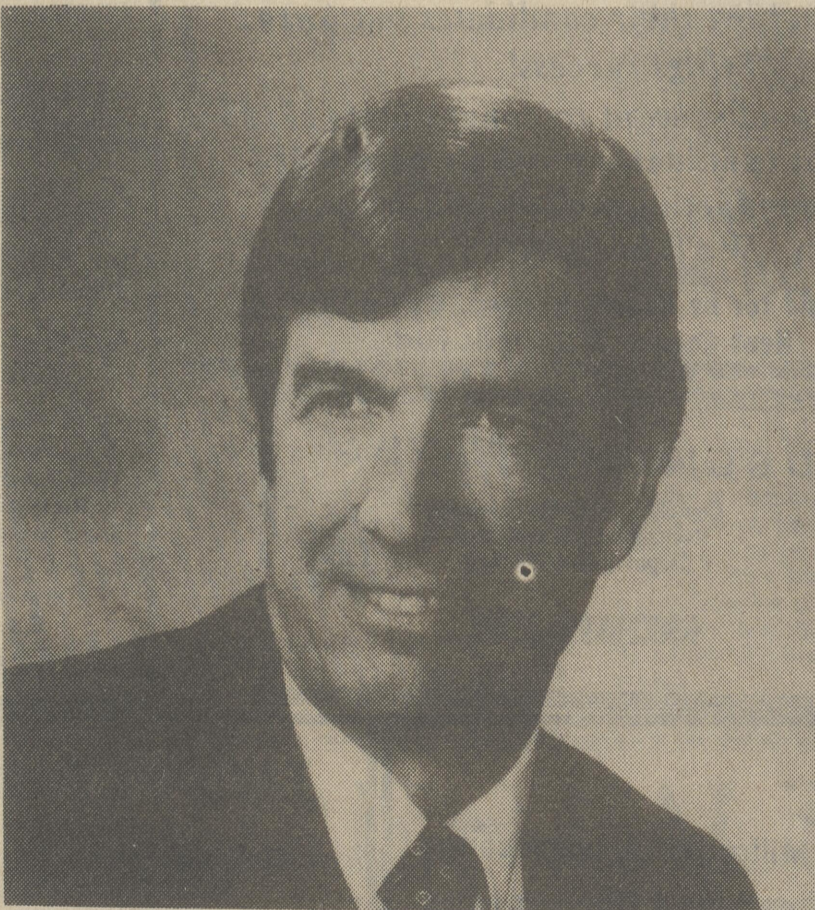

The startling change in the Senate portends many changes in the way the federal government treats states and local governments, as well as the direction of the nation's economy and foreign policy. I am looking forward to Governor Reagan's administration because I personally know that both he and Mr. Bush are able men who are going to give new leadership to our nation.

Again, thanks for your support.

THANK YOU.

I am deeply grateful to all those who made my re-election possible.

All Delawareans have my continuing commitment to make our Insurance Department responsive to our consumer and industry needs.

MAKING FAMILY LIFE MORE FUN
 SKI TOGETHER
 Going downhill together is an experience that a growing number of families find uplifting!

The Equitable Family Ski Challenge, in its fourth season, has become America's fastest-growing amateur competition.

U.S. Alpine Ski Team's head men's coach, Harald Schoenhaar, gives advice to a young competitor before the Equitable amateur ski race.

Two-person teams comprising any combination of family members (mother, father, brother, sister) compete as teams-against-time on a giant slalom course. A handicapping system compensates for age differences and ski course conditions. The races are scheduled for 50 ski areas across the U.S., starting in mid-December. Scores are tallied in mid-February, and 350 winning teams progress to one of four regional race-offs.

Regional winners—32 family teams—will get all-expense-paid trips to the National Finals in Snowbird, Utah, March 29 to April 1. Contact your local ski area for further information.

Dear friends,
 Many persons wish to express their sympathy by sending flowers or other memorial. Others do this because they cannot be present at the visitation or service. Flowers have a radiant message all their own. They add beauty and softness to the casket setting and to the funeral service.
