Council Votes Protest Of Block House Closing

The Harrington City Council voted last Thursday night to protest Conrail's projected closing of the block house from which switching operations and signals can be directed locally. The block house, a working institution since at least 1905, is the last of its kind in operation on the Delmarva Peninsula.

Council members were disturbed by the implication for local traffic and safety of the closing and safety of the closing and angered that the City of Harrington had never been officially (or unofficially) notified by Conrail of its intentions. The information about the closing, came to the City Council from union representatives who appeared at last Thursday's meeting to point out and protest the closing which would mean the loss of about four jobs.

In response the Council voted to fire off letters of inquiry and protest to Conrail officials, to state and federal legislators and to the governor. It also moved to request a representative of Conrail to be present at tonight's reorganization meeting of the Harrington City Council, to explain the company's position and to answer questions. (City Administrator Joseph Cotta has since reported that a Conrail Official will attend tonight's meeting, to begin at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall.

Quick action was necessary because Conrail has said that the final date to protest the block house closing is January 24, 1981.

George Haley, Local Chairman of Lodge 739 of the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks (representing agents, block operators and clerks on the Delmarva Peninsula) approached the City Council with the news of Conrail's intent to retire the attended interlocking (block house operation) at Harrington

Frederica Sets Hearing on Proposed Trash Fees

The Frederica Town Council last Wednesday night decided to take its problem with increasing costs for trash disposal to the town's residents by way of public hearing. The hearing has been set for next Monday, January 19, at 7 p.m. in the town hall.

At issue will be how the town can handle the increased cost of dumping trash since the new, state owned landfill site at Sandtown went into operation. Prior to the Sandtown opening the community was paying $7.50 per load to dump its trash. That cost is now $12.50 per ton, and there are several tons to the load. For Frederica, that adds up to an increase from $37.50 spent in October to a $437.50 bill for dumping in December.

The increased costs will probably total at least $1000 or better over and above the amount of the contract, with Eastern Disposal which will be up at the end of March. The town can ill afford to absorb that increase.

Individual households are currently charged $24.50 a year for their once a week trash service. According to Mayor Dan Griffith that fee would have to be raised to $39 just to meet the increased cost of dumping trash at the Sandtown landfill. The Town Council is considering that increase as well as a $1.50 per month addition to the current rates, retroactive to November 1, when the new landfill charges went into effect.

Trash Fees Worry Houston

Like many a Kent County community, Houston is concerned over the recent skyrocketing costs of trash disposal. That problem and how to deal with it was a major item of business as the Houston Town Council met last Thursday. The Council decided to set a public meeting on that question for Thursday, Feb. 12, beginning at 7 p.m. in the Fire Hall.

Fees for dumping at the newly opened landfill at Sandtown have gone from $7.50 per load at the previous site to a whopping $12.50 per ton, and a single load might average five or eight tons according to Houston Mayor Connie Morgan, who reported that Houston's cost for dumping trash have gone up by about $250 per month since the new site opened.

Currently Houstonians pay no trash collection fees. That service is paid for out of revenue sharing funds and the town's own general fund. But there is no way those two sources, at their present level, can absorb the increased costs of trash disposal.

Houston's share of revenue sharing funds has been dwindling over the years, and its general fund is limited. Houston property owners pay .30 per $100 of the assessed value of real estate. The County assessment value is used. In addition, there is a capitation tax of $2.00 for each town resident 18 and older.

Mayor Morgan said she would be ready to present the facts and figures as well as to present the possible alternatives at the public meeting on Feb. 12. The session will also be open to comments and suggestions by Houston residents.

The Houston Town Council hopes to have a proposed solution to the problem ready to put to Houstonians on a referendum to be conducted simultaneously with the town election in March.

Two Council seats, those now held by Virginia Twilley and Joseph Emory, will be in question. Houston is not divided into wards. All council members are elected at large for two year terms.

Mayor Morgan promised to have the trash collection facts and figures available for publication and for distribution to town residents in the form of a flyer prior to the Feb. 12 meeting.

Harrington Loan Referendum Will Be Feb 9th

"It's almost like playing fairy tale games to think we don't have to do it (ie. borrow the money to pay for the town's share in upgrading the sewage treatment plant)" said Harrington Mayor Arthur Cahall during a public hearing at City Hall last Thursday.

Subject of the hearing was the town's proposal to borrow from Farmers Home Administration up to 189,000 to finance the town's share of the project now well underway. At the close of the hearing the Harrington City Council scheduled a referendum for Monday, February 9, to put the loan question to city voters.

Harrington said Cahall, would be foolish to think it could back out of the project at this point. The city would be in violation of state and federal clean water standards if it did not complete the project and it would also be liable to the contractors it hired in July to do the construction.

In the late 1960's Harrington built a sewer plant for which it is still paying. That plant remains adequate in size to handle the community's needs. But in the light of stricter state and federal standards, it does not get the water it treats clean enough.

About four or five years ago, when the Council was considering alternative solutions to the problem, it seemed there were two options. (1) hook into the Kent County sewage treatment system by running a force main all the way to Frederica and building pumping stations or (2) upgrade its own sewage treatment facility to meet the new standards.

The cost of the first option as projected then was around 1.2 million dollars in contrast to an estimated $420,000 (of which the town's share would have been about $60,000) for the second. Switching to the county system would also have meant abandoning a sewer plant still not paid for. The City Council decided on the second option.

During the long application process for the federal and state funds which will pay for 85 percent of the project, construction costs have risen dramatically. The price for option #2 now exceeds the million dollar mark with the city's share up an expected $150,000. An additional $39,000 as a contingency fund for loan applications purposes has been added. But only the amount actually needed to pay the construction bill would be borrowed.

When the state and federal government had finished haggling over just how clean the effluent from the sewer plant must be, the Council, assuming on legal and technical advice that all was in order, proceeded to award the contract for the job to C.Z. Construction. Since then, it finds itself in a cart-before-the-horse situation with the discovery that voter permission is necessary to borrow the money to pay the construction bill. The construction is already underway.

Harrington's Mayor and City Council members point out that for all practical purposes, there is no choice. The city is required by law to meet the federal and state clean water standards. And it is obligated by contract to the construction company to pay for the work. Denial of permission to borrow the money would vastly complicate matters. But it would not reverse the chain of events.

One Arrested In Bank Robbery

State Police in Troop 3 recently arrested a suspect, Charles D. Craig, 21 of Lebanon, in connection with the Dec. 12th armed robbery of the Canterbury Branch of the First National Bank of Harrington. Six twenty dollar bills that Craig used in posting $400 bond on two counts of criminal mischief on January 2nd 1981 were traced directly to the bank holdup. Craig subsequently was charged with armed robbery, is suspected of being one of three men armed with shotguns who entered the cantebury bank on Dec. 12th, shot out the TV camera and made off with a reported $10,000. The getaway car, which later proved to be a stolen vehicle, was recovered near Petersburg.

The investigating officer responsible for the arrest was Detective David Cox of Troop 3.

Craig was arrested anuary 2nd and charged with criminal mischief after an incident in which he drove his car through fences at a Dover Air Force Base housing complex and also in Rising Sun, De. Cox traced Craig by following his tire tracks through the snow. The possible connection to the (Continued on Page 3)

Oral History Project To Begin

Preserving Harrington's history as it is recalled by citizens living today will be the target of an Oral History Project to be initiated by the Greater Harrington Historical Society in April of this year. The Project will officially begin April 1, 1981 and continue through December 1, 1982. Heading the project, which will be partially funded by a grant from the Delaware Humanities Forum, is a committee co-chaired by Mrs. Amanda Quillen and Mrs. Mildred Minner.

The committee will begin asking citizens of the Greater Harrington area to agree to a taped interview in which they will share their memories of life in and around the community. The committee will also ask each person interviewed for a picture which will be needed to complete the record.

Several days prior to the hour long interview, persons selected will be given a list of questions to help them get their thoughts together. Those who agree to the taped interview will also be asked to fill out a form on which they can specify on what date the information on the tape may be released. If any individual so desires, the interview can be kept private until after his death.

Although the area's senior citizens will certainly be on the list of those to be interviewed, there is no age limit. The Greater Harrington Historical Society has drawn up a preliminary list of the most likely people to interview. But other suggestions of people who would be willing to participate in the project would be welcomed.

The tapes, a transcript of each, and the pictures will be kept on file by the Greater Harrington Historical Society in its museum in the Raughley Building on Flemming Street.

The tapes will be the property of the historical society and will not be open to the public, but available by permission. All requests to withhold information until after a certain date will be honored.

With the completion of The Oral History Project, the Historical Society hopes to have on hand an invaluable part of the past which will be preserved for future generations of Harringtonians.

Citizens Turn Out Query Mayor, Candidates

In contrast to the rather meager handful of Harrington citizens who attended the 1980 version of the annual citizens meeting, around thirty or forty residents turned out in Friday's frigid degrees to participate in the 1981 edition. They came to query local candidates and town officials. And they stayed to give outgoing Mayor Arthur 'Buck' Cahall a standing ovation as he told the assembly that he cares "very deeply" about Harrington and thanked citizens, city employees, local organizations and his family for their support during his two terms in office.

First on the order of business was the election of former Harrington Mayor Burton Satterfield to serve as Chairman and City Clerk Norma Short to act as secretary for the evening.

After the reading of the names of the year's candidates, four for mayor and four for City Council from the petitions presented, the business proceeded to the introduction of those candidates present. (Bobby Quillen, lone contender for the 6th Ward (Continued on Page 3)

The balance of Farmes Elsworth, or Manloves Berry was conveyed by Mark Manlove Senior to his son Ebenezer Manlove 12 August 1747 "for the good will and affection I have and do bear...and for the sum of five shillings current money of the government". This parcel of land containing 371 acres was bounded, "beginning at a white oak standing on the south side of spring branch and standing in or near the line of John Hunter and running thence north west crossing the said branch binding with the said Hunters line 325 perches to a corner of William Berry's land standing in the said Hunters line and running thence west with the said Berry's line 182 perches until it intersects with the line of Mark Smith land thence south south east with the aforesaid line 327 perches crossing spring branch to a corner white oak standing on the south side of the said branch then down the south side north 55 degrees east 28 perches then south 4 perches then north 75 degrees east 24 perches to a corner white oak then north 17 degrees east crossing the branch 14 perches to a corner red oak then down the north side of the aforesaid branch north 86 degrees east 28 perches to a corner red oak then south 55 degrees east 33 perches to a corner red oak standing in the fork of the aforesaid branch then south 10 degrees east crossing the Ebenezer Manlove and his wife Sarah sold this property to Samuel Griffith in 1754 and when he died the land was divided between his two heirs, Rachel Pattison and his granddaughter Elizabeth Griffith who married John Warren. Elizabeth and John Warren sold to Peter Handcastle who willed the farm to Phillip Hardcastle, who in turn sold "tract said to contain 260 acres to Jabez Jenkins on 17 May 1798. Rachel Pattison willed her half to William Pattison and on 28 March 1806 William and his wife Susanna sold Rachel's share to Jabez Jenkins. Upon his death the property went to Johnathan Jenkins who on 19 October 1843 conveyed to Jehu Clifton "farm on the south side of road from Canterbury to Berrytown adjoining lands of Vinvent Moore deceased, lands late of Mark Greer (John Greer had willed 13 October 1796 to his son, "Farms Elsworth which I bought of Francis Edmundson") bounds as set forth in division of lands of Samuel

Griffith...two parcels containing 343 acres."

When Thomas J. Moore of the town of Frederica purchased from the heirs of Joseph Simpson the tract of land that he would lay out in streets and building lots to form the town of Felton one of the boundaries was "a stone in the old Stump of an ancient and noted corner Red Oak by the north side of Bishops Branch and at the south east corner of these premises being also a corner for the land of Jehu Clifton." Manlove's Berry also included another 400 acres which was originally part of a tract called Bishop's Choice which was surveyed to Benoni Bishop March 29, 1681 and extended from Murderkill Creek and Ash Branch to Bishops Branch taking in a small neck called Timber Neck on the northwest side of Bishops Branch and contained 1050 acres. It lay immediately west of and adjoining a tract called St. Collom which Bishop also owned. Bishop sold to Robert Hudson 600 acres of Bishops Choice which passed at his death to his eldest son Daniel.

In 1733 Daniel Hudson sold the upper part of Bishops Choice to Mark Manlove who then sold in 1742 "part of that tract or parcel of land commonly called and known by the name of Manlove Berry," containing 400 acres and sharing boundaries with William Berry and Preston Berry, to John Hunter, Bricklayer. When John Hunter died in 1749 his nearest heir was Robert Bohannon. The farm belonged to Captain Nathaniel Young and his wife Elizabeth in 1837 when they sold 308 acres to William Roe.

Thomas Edge was the tenant and it was bounded; beginning at a white oak standing in a valley 12 perches from the run of Murderkill Branch corner late of John Benning now of John Johnson running thence north 27 degrees west 163 perches to a Hickory in line of these lands and corner for John Johnson thence same course 277 perches to a stone where stood a white oak on the head of spring branch corner for Vincent Moore's heirs thence north 82 degrees east 187 perches to a post corner of said land also a corner for Johnathan Jenkins (Jehu Clifton 18-43) and Vincent Moore's heirs thence south 46 degrees and 15 minutes east 248 perches to a white oak standing on the north side of Murderkill Creek or Branch standing in the side of the hill thence 20 perches to the run of said branch thence up said branch with the water courses thereof till it comes opposite the beginning boundary thence north 27 degrees west 12 perches to the place of beginning.

and convert the remaining switches to hand operation. The tracks involved, said Haley, are the Delmarva Secondary Track, the Snow Hill Secondary Track and side tracks. Haley reported that Conrail's purpose in returning the attended interlocking was the elimination of "facilities" not required for present-day operation."

Operators who now work in the block house are able to control the signals and gates at local crossings (Harrington has four at Center Street Liberty Street, Clark Street and the fairgrounds) as well as switching operations. The local operators can contact a train and have it stop as quickly clear a crossing in the event of an emergency. The operator, for example, can hear the fire siren while the engineer of a train in operation cannot.

If Conrail proceeds with the block house closing, emergency contact with a train crew would have to be made through Bridge #3 located some 60 miles north near Edgemoor and Wilmington.

And, according to Haley, every train that has to get off the main tracks will (after the block house closing) have to come to a complete stop. Then the crew would have to get off and throw a hand operated switch before the train could proceed. With Harrington the site of an east-west spur line and the location of Conrail's main switching operations on the lower peninsula, there would be consequences for rail traffic through town.

When Conrail moved its switching operations to Harrington, the location of most of the proposed activities was to have been about two miles north of town. However, city residents have noted a lot of recent activity in mid-town. Consequent traffic delays have elicited complaints from individuals, school bus drivers and members of the fire company.

In a town divided by tracks closed crossings can delay emergency vehicles on one side in attempts to reach the other half of the town -- to get to area hospitals.

Concern over ambulance delays earlier in the year had apparently been worked out between Conrail and the fire company. But Harrington firemen present at last Thursday Council meeting were apprehensive over the results of the loss of local control if the block house is closed.

John Cooper, an operator who mans the local block house for the 3-11 p.m. shift told the Journal last week that if the operation is closed, "There will be almost double the delays now experienced at crossings when shifting cars onto sidings."

In addition to Cooper, a Smyrna resident, the Harrington block house is manned by W.E. Garrett of Dover (7 a.m.-3 p.m.) R.T. Trepasso of Rehoboth (11 p.m.-7 a.m.) and an occasional relief operator.

Similar block houses in Seaford and Clayton were closed in 1980, leaving the Harrington structure the lone sentinel still at work.

hour. He found himself running late for the show "...so I drove over to the radio station...thinking nothing would be wrong with that. I did not have time to go back and get my truck. HUD Survey Conducted

The Frederica Council last week was in the process of conducting a house-by-house survey of the community as a part of the pre-application process for a HUD grant in the neighborhood of $50,000 to $60,000, for rehabilitating the water tower. Questions asked on the survey included the number of residents at each address and whether their income is above or below a certain annual level.

The survey, to have been completed by the end of last week, was being conducted by Mayor Dan Griffith; Council members Asa Fleming, Ezekiel Dill, Virginia Simpler and Helen Powers, Town Clerk Barbara Manaraze.

If the town is successful in getting the grant, the money will be used to clean, repair and paint the water tower and to install such improvements as a larger riser pipe and a flow meter.

The town received a large grant (over $200,000) in 1979 to finance extensive improvements to the water systems (new and larger water lines, additional fire hydrants and curb boxes, etc.) That project has only recently been completed.

Police? on Ballot?

During the discussion of preliminary plans for the annual town election held in March, Council member Virginia Simpler raised the possibility of a question on the ballot to ask whether Frederica's citizen preferred for which the town is now contracting with the state police.

Mayor Griffith said, to be fair, the question also ought to include asking whether or not the citizens would approve a tax hike if they chose local police.

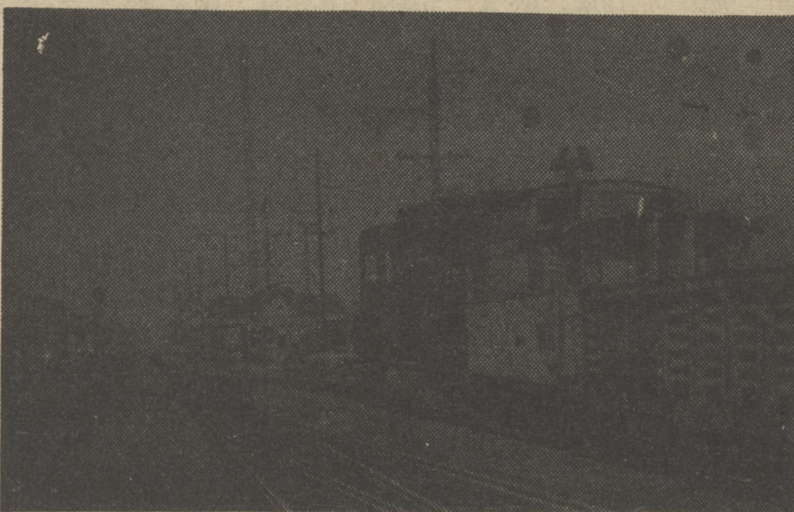

One present said he would rather pay for local police than see the town's money go to state police to "run radar."

But several Council members and one other citizen expressed satisfaction with the state police service. Member Ezekiel Dill said the state police running radar checks were often out of town limits and were on state police time rather than the town's.

From his prior experience on the Frederica council, Dill recalled that "90 percent of the time" had been devoted to problems with local police. He also pointed out the savings the town realizes with the elimination of expenses in keeping a police car and buying uniforms for a local officer.

The Mayor emphasized the increased professionalism of the state police and said the town could hire a full time state police officer-but that would cost something like $22,000 per year. Frederica is one of a number of Kent County communities which have abandoned a local police force in favor of contracting for coverage by off duty state police.

In other business the Frederica Council discussed the possibility of buying a snow blade for a fire company vehicle in exchange for an agreement by the firemen to clear town maintained streets after a snow storm. The blade could also assist the local firefighters in responding to emergency calls during or after such a storm.

Right Turn on Red

The adoption of the right turn on red laws throughout the United States as a fuel saving measure has lost some of its appeal in light of a twenty percent increase in the number of crashes involving right turns at intersections and a fifty-seven percent increase in pedestrian accidents at intersections. This means an additional 20,000 collisions a year, 1,400 of these involving pedestrians. Among the pedestrian crashes, the increase amounts to more than 30 percent among children, about 100 percent among adults, and 110 percent or more among the elderly.

Among the drivers involved, the greatest increase in collisions following the passage of right turn on red laws was among female drivers, particularly those over 55 years of age. Among male drivers, the greatest increase was among those 24 years of age or under. For female drivers in the 24 or under group, the collision involvement nearly tripled.

The recommendation of this study is repealing of the right turn on red laws in urban centers with large traffic volumes, especially those with high numbers of pedestrians.

Copies of the study titled, "Adoption of Right Turn on Red: Effects on Crashes at Signalized Intersections," by Paul Zador, Jack Moshman, and Leo Marcus, may be obtained by writing the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, Watergate 600, Washington D.C. 20037.

Local Towns Won't Get Cable TV

Residents of Houston, Bridgeville, Frederica and Felton will probably not be getting cable television as was originally planned. The Public Service Commission recently awarded General Television of Delaware, Inc. a franchise for these communities, but now the corporation feels that at this time it is not practical to provide this service to these communities. The franchise was awarded last fall. General Television withdrew its request before the PSC issued its order. Apparently some of the reasons for not picking up the franchise by General Television was due to the fact that another cable television company, Mid shore, was already in the area of Houston, Harrington, Frederica, Felton, Viola, Milton, and Bridgeville.

Instead of pursuing the new areas of coverage, General Television will improve the service to its present areas.

Council heard two residents complain about dogs roaming free in the town, knocking over trash and causing other problems. In response, the Council underscored the fact that both by town ordinance and state law it was illegal for dogs to run free in the community any time during the year. They must be kept up.

Robbery

bank robbery was discovered when Craig posted bond with the bills that were easily traced to the bank. Detective Cox refused to say whether any of the rest of the money was found at Craig's home. Craig made no confession of involvement in the bank affair.

Two of the men involved in the robbery are still at large.

Annual Harrington Town Meeting

Council seat, and Edward Maher, 5th Ward hopeful; were the only absentees.

Remarks by the candidates were perfunctory until Burton Satterfield asked mayoral contender the Rev. Joseph Tull how he expected the city to finance the sewer project which he said he favored. By citizen request the same question was posed to the other candidate's for mayor.

Affirming his support for the project, Tull was not sure where the dollars would come from, but mentioned federal funding.

Clinton Graham told the citizens present he was not aware of all the facts surrounding the question.

Al Mann pointed out the fact that the city is already "into it" and has to come up with the money. Mann, who heads Dovers public works department, stressed the vital importance of good sewer and water.

City Alderman, Anna Hampton said the city has no alternative but to vote for it (the $189,000 loan for the sewer project is progress).

The only other specific question was put to the candidates by Jack Apte who questioned their support for the local library. All four Mayoral candidates said they supported the library, but Al Mann and Anna Hampton were not sure where the money would come from. Clinton Graham said the library is a good thing, especially for the towns young-ger and older citizens.

After the introduction and questioning of the candidates, Mayor Cahall took the floor to discuss the state of the city and the issues which confront it.

He was questioned at length on the upgrading of the sewer plant and the city's need to get approval of a $189,000 loan to pay for its share (see separate Journal stories). Several expressed anger and frustration over the situation. But Cahall urged a "Yes" vote on the upcoming referendum because "we have to" He said the city was in a "Catch 22" situation and it was only wishful thinking to look for ways to stop the sewer project.

Also up for some discussion was Conrail's proposed closing of the Harrington block house (see another Journal story). The outgoing Mayor urged citizens to attend tonight's reorganized meeting at which a Conrail representative is expected to be present.

Cahall also said -that city equipment and streets are in fairly good shape.

-This year's city budget is balanced. -The new City Administrator Joseph Cotta (introduced earlier) has said budgetary control will be a major emphasis.

-The question of reassessment of property will be for the new and future Councils to decide.

Gabfest

by Pat Hatfield

January is the longest month for me to get through. It always seems so long and it is usually cold. But then, there are things to do. Two young granddaughters share it with me as a birthday month...the second for me, the 21st for Garith and the 23rd for Hilary. Garith remarks that she must be older than her big sister because her birthday comes first.

Then comes February with Valentine's Day on the 14th and Teddy's birthday on the 15th. When February passes, we will really welcome blustery old March. The blackbirds and the purple grackles will be back and the sea gulls will again soar over the fields after the tractors, and we will hear again the shrill call of the killdeer as she selects a spot for her crude little nest. Any surely the little Peepers will begin their flute-like piping by the roadsides. That always spells spring for me. It is good to dream of spring with its marvelous awakening, but while we wait let us truly give thanks for food, a warm fire and shelter for the storm.

The secret of all life (not just for January) is to keep busy. My mother used to say, "Heaven is blest with perfect rest, but the blessing of earth is toil". This morning I finally settled down to get a job done that has been "hanging fire" since last autumn. I couldn't seem to get around to making Dad's favorite citron preserves. When the weather got very cold he brought them into the house so they would not freeze and since that day they have been decorating my dining room floor-not exactly my favorite form of decor! Now they are simmering away on the stove and are always ready to add the pineapple. I am experiencing a grand feeling of accomplishment.

One of the joys of winter is being able to reach into the freezer and get out the packages of food I put in during those terrific hot days. Wouldn't it be great if we could salvage all that heat and open it up now? All this gives me more time to read. Cooking and reading are my favorite hobbies. Dad is not a reader. He reads his correspondence and he reads his Bible. He prefers his news with the television pictures, but I like to get it both ways and always enjoy the evening paper. Much of television has become so low-grade that there is not much I like to watch, so I read. Once in while they have a really good program. I enjoyed the tribute to Leonard Bernstein, Agnes DeMille, Jimmy Cagney and others. Too bad so much is worthless when it could be such a good medium for culture, education and entertainment, but a lot of it is just a waste of good air.

OUR GOVERNMENT

WILL NEED OUR HELP AND OUR PRAYERS

When the leaders of government take office, it is much more than a ceremonial event. Beyond the swearing-in ritual lies that giant step into reality; whether the leaders have just been elected or are merely being returned to office. Gone are the days of campaign oratory, the slogans and platitudes, the fund-raising affairs. Promise must now give way to performance, and decisions must be made to solve many domestic and foreign problems; some of which will affect not only our nation but the entire world, and none of which can possibly please everyone. Now, as at all times, your elected leaders need your opinions, your requests and above all, your prayers. Wish them well and, at your House of Worship, pray for those who are now in charge of your destiny, whether you voted for them or not. They will need all the help they can get.

TOP HORSEMEN RATE THE LEADING SOPHOMORE PACERS

Columbus, Ohio-If 1980 is remembered as the year of Niatross, and it certainly will, then John Campbell should at least get a footnote.

The 25-year old New Jersey resident, who repeats as the leading money winning driver in North American, won the 1980 title with a flourish by breaking the single season money record by over $250,000.

In year end tabulations by the date processing Dept. of the U.S. Trotting Assn. Campbell accumulated $3,732,306 in smashing Herve Filion's 1974 mark of $3,474,315.

Filion shouldn't feel too badly though. His drives resulted in purses worth over $3.2 million, but more importantly, he finished ahead of all 11,181 drivers who competed in 1980 victories.

For Filion, who visited the winner's circle 474 times, the 1980 title represents this 11th dash crown, and gives the sport's all-time leading driver 7,553 wins lifetime.

Trailing Filion in the dash derby was Ron Waples, last year's winner, and Carmine Abbatiello. Six of the top 10 dash winners in 1980 occupied the same positions in 1979. Newcomers to the upper echelon of the driver's standings are Joseph Hudson Gilles Gendron, Eddie Davis and William Parker, Jr.

Cambell topped the money standings, which included three winners of over $3 million for the first time and 39 drivers who won at least $1 million, also a first. Just five years ago, only 14 drivers topped $1 million in purses.

Understanding A.C.T.

January 13, Tuesday 1981 7:00 p.m. at Howard Johnson's Harnes Corner and U.S. 13, Newcastle, Delaware.

January 17, Saturday, 1981 6 p.m. dinner-7 p.m. presentation at Perry's Steak House, Dover, Delaware.

In our January meetings thus far we have discussed: What is the Basis for the Greatness America Experienced?

It is in the past tense because by a careful look it's easy to see it's not as great as it once was. There were twelve principles laid out; in which we wish to share with you.

Principle One:

All men are created...Endowed by their creator. (Declaration of Independence) No other people in all history have ever made this principle the basis of their government philosophy. Man is of divine origin and his spiritual, or religious nature is of supreme value and importance when compared to secular and material things. Men are not things evolved, as secular humanists teach. Belief in the divine origin of men and women as created beings gives essential perspectives in establishing man over government. Our founding fathers had no faith in rule by the best men and rightly so. Men were, to quote Thomas Jefferson, to be bound down from mischief by the chain of the Constitution. The Constitution then was under our Republic limited in its bounds and was to allow nothing that would violate our unalienable (God given) rights. We were to be one Nation under God, who would be vindicator and benefactor of life, liberty and the right to pursue happiness. It's only when God is recognized as supreme that these rights are unalienable. If the State or government were supreme then they could control the people. Our founding fathers recognized that when faith in God as supreme disappeared then moral standards disappears; followed by individuals and families torn apart. Then civilization crumbles.

George Washington in his farewell address said this: "Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, Religion and morality are indispensable supports. In vain would that man claim the tribute of patriotism, who should labor to subvert these great pillars of human happiness, these firmest props of the duties of men and all citizens. The mere politicians, equally with the pious man, ought to respect and to cherish them. A volume could not trace all their connections with private and public felicity. Let it simply be asked where is the security for property, for reputation, for life, if the sense of religious obligations desert the oaths, which are the instruments of investigations on Courts of Justice? And let us with caution indulge the supposition, that morality can be maintained without religion."

Whatever may be conceded to the influence of refined education both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle. This substantially true, that virtue or morality is a necessary spring for popular government."

The rest of and the whole discussion on this topic is available on cassette tape. Information available by writin: A.C.T. Dept. H.J. P.O. Box 88, Frederica, De. 19946.

Keeping In Touch

With Tom Evans

There was a "fresh start" atmosphere in the halls of Congress last week as I and other members took the oath of office in ceremonies marking the beginning of a new session. As Delaware's only Representative to the U.S. House, I would like to share with you some of my thoughts about what lies ahead for the 97th session of Congress.

The spirit of the country is good, and I sense a strong feeling of commitment. There appears to be a new determination to tackle and conquer our number one domestic problem--our faltering economy. There are no magic formulas, no instant solutions to turn around the intolerable inflation, unemployment and interest rates which are crippling our country. The small businessperson, the elderly on fixed incomes, the low and moderate income working people--are all especially hard hit. We can, and we must, begin the fight to restore our economy to an even keel.

First of all, Congress must exercise restraint in the percentage increase of federal spending. If it doesn't we're never going to break the back of the inflationary psychology that exists in America. I believe this can be done without reducing essential services for people in need.

Restraint is spending, in large part by eliminating waste, fraud and abuse, is only one of the essential components in a comprehensive economic program. General Accounting office reports indicate that nearly $34 billion worth of non-essential expenditures could be cut from the federal budget. Other components of an effective economic program must include regulatory reform, incentives for capital investment in those things that produce jobs, expansion of our overseas market, and a responsible, consistent monetary policy.

Of course, it will take time to implement these steps and produce a turnaround in the economy. Some of the measures may be painful. But the alternative to making a serious effort is exceedingly grim, and we must begin immediately to lay the groundwork for a more secure and prosperous future for our nation.

The Insurance Commissioner

by Dave Elliott

One of the problems the Delaware Insurance Department is called on to solve is the common confusion over who pays how much for hospitalization and doctors fees. So let's begin the new year with an explanation that might save consumers many headaches.

Since Blue Cross and Blue Shield covers the majority of Delaware residents, we'll use its usual billing procedure for examples. While several insurance companies sell medical coverage in addition to their other types of insurance, Blue Cross specializes in this field.

My first word of advice is to always determine at the very beginning whether your physician is participating doctor before treatment is even undertaken. If the physician is a participating doctor, he or she has agreed to accept the Blue Cross usual and Customary fee, and you have obligation to pay attentional money if you have 100 percent coverage after deductible. If you have 80 percent coverage according to the terms of your contract, then you must pay the remaining 20 percent.

In the case of elderly residents, the federal government's Medicare will pay 80 percent of the charges after deductible. The remaining 20 percent would be paid by Blue Cross if you have its Medicare coverage, which is the company's trade name for the Medicare supplement.

Doctors file their billing date with Blue Cross each year, and the company then sets the rates for medical coverage for its clients. About 90 percent of the doctors in Delaware are participating doctors, and their fees established by Blue Cross.

However, many specialists do not participate and they may bill you for any amount they choose. In these cases, Blue Cross will only pay up to its authorized fee, and the remaining balance is your responsibility. That's why it is so important before any medical work is undertaken to determine if your physician is a participating doctor in the Blue Cross program.

If you like on the border with Pa. or Md. your Delaware Blue Cross will pay for the services of an out of state doctor at the usual and customary authorized rate set by the Blue Cross group of the doctor's resident state.

Another area of confusion involves the circumstances under which Blue Cross will pay for nursing home care. Blue Cross of Medicare will pay if it is a licensed health care facility and the patient is still under medical care.

However, many people feel when released from the hospital that they can't go home because there is no one there to care for them. This is termed custodial care, and is not covered by Blue Cross or Medicare, although some separate policies for this coverage are available with other companies.

When you visit a doctor's office or enter a hospital, the chances are you are not feeling very well. But it will certainly put your mind at ease and save you some later unpleasantness if you talk to your doctors beforehand to determine if they participate in the Blue Cross program.

Thoughts From Washington

By U.S. Senator Bill Roth

When is the last time you got away with paying a bill after 90 days without paying late charges? Ignoring due dates and refusing to pay late penalties is becoming a common practice of the Federal Government when buying goods and services from privately owned businesses.

A recently released report from the General Accounting Office showed that 39 percent of the government bills are paid just a few days late, but an average of 74 days after they are due. This chronic tardiness places an incredible burden on all businesses, but especially on small businesses. Small firms must borrow money to provide the goods sold to the government. Therefore, while waiting for a Federal payment that is weeks overdue, the small businessmen are being eaten up by the current high interest rate. One small businessman who was contracted by the Department of Housing and Urban Development for construction work is still waiting for an eight month overdue payment of $800,000. That delinquent bill is costing his firm an astounding $8,000 each month. This is not simply one horror story, there are many similar ones.

Last year, I supported legislation that sought a solution to the problem and will do so again. However, I think action can be initiated through the Administration.

As Chairman of the Governmental Affairs Committee in the Senate, I recently wrote President-elect Reagan to call attention to this growing problem. I outlined a four-point policy that could eliminate the government's slow-paying habits. Under this policy, Federal agencies, contractors, and Federal grantees must (1) pay their bills within a specified period of time after receipt, (2) pay interest penalties on accounts overdue, (3) give partial payments on partial deliveries, and (4) take early payment discounts only if the bill is paid within the discount period.

Small business provide 90 percent of the products bought by the Federal Government. These small firms depend on federal purchase. In Delaware alone, small businesses have received over $31,094,000 in contracts with the government in fiscal year 1980. However, such contracts do more harm than good if the bills aren't paid on time. This lack of efficiency is a problem not just to the small businesses themselves but to all of their customers who ultimately wind up footing the bill through higher costs.

Poor management is only one of the problems that must be tackled. I'm hopeful that, with the help of the Reagan Administration, relief can be available to everyone who is a victim of government inefficiency.

MANAGING YOUR MONEY

High Yields Still Available

A little-noticed "loop-hole" in the new Federal Reserve restrictions on money market funds is allowing alert consumers to continue to enjoy the high yields of the money market.

Higher yields were not completely laid low by Fed restriction.

To restrict the burgeoning growth of money market funds, the Federal Reserve recently penalized new deposits by requiring that 15 percent be maintained in an uninvested reserve--thus reducing yields by one or two percentage points.

However, this restriction applies only to funds with assets over $100 million. Others, such as St. Paul Money Fund, with assets under $100 million, are not subject to the uninvested reserve provision and they may offer higher yields.

For a free prospectus with complete information including management fee charges and expenses, call St. Paul Money Fund, 800-328-1062, toll free. In Minnesota call collect 612-738-4000.

That would be a pretty tall order for anyone. But for Castro, it was ridiculous.

Jack Anderson Washington Merry-Go-Round

Cuba's jet-setting emissary fails to heal Iran-Iraq rift

By JACK ANDERSON and JOE SPEAR

WASHINGTON -- Cuban strongman Fidel Castro has been trying to play the role of an international peacemaker, but he'd prefer that no one know about it. It's not that he's modest. He simply has bungled his peace missions.

First, Castro attempted to mediate the war between Iran and Iraq. He sent his foreign minister, Isidore Malmierca, on a Kissinger-style shuttle-diplomacy mission to bring peace in the desert war.

All that Malmierca has gained is a bad case of jet lag from flying back and forth. Of course, there are no direct flights between the two warring nations. So every time Castro's peacemaker negotiates, he has to fly from one country to the other via Rome. The assignment has made him something of a jet-setter.

No one has bothered to explain to Malmierca that the leaders of Iran and Iraq don't trust him. They figure, quite logically, that he's an agent of the Kremlin.

Castro's other attempt to play the mediator has been even less productive. The Cuban premier fancied that he was the man to smooth things out between the Afghans and their Russian occupiers.

That would be a pretty tall order for anyone. But for Castro, it was ridiculous.

He may insist that he's a leader of the unaligned nations, but the Afghans aren't about to buy that bill of goods.

According to intelligence sources, there are Cuban military advisers in Afghanistan, and they aren't there waving olive branches. They are attached to the Soviet army.

TURBULENT TRANSITION: We were promised a smooth transition as the government passes from Jimmy Carter to Ronald Reagan. But the transfer of power has encountered some turbulence at the State Department.

Reagan's men prepared a hit list of ambassadors who will be discharged immediately after the inauguration. Near the top of the list is Robert White, the able ambassador to El Salvador. He has already locked horns with the people who plan to fire him.

Reagan's choice for United Nations ambassador, Jeane Kirkpatrick, has also been feuding with the head of the human rights bureau, Pat Derian.

Meanwhile, the Carter people have circulated a memo to all assistant secretaries and bureau directors. It was intended for their eyes only, but we've seen a copy.

The memo instructs the departing Democrats to keep certain sensitive documents out of the hands of the incoming Republicans. Classified and restricted materials are supposed to be cleared with the State Department executive secretariat.

The same goes for information that is circulating in the State Department but which originated in another agency. States the memo:

"When a transition team member requests access to a restricted document originating in a third agency, you must have the approval of (the executive secretariat) before showing such a document to a transition team member."

In other words, the Carter people can withhold any sensitive information from the Reagan people -- at least until Jan. 20.

WATCH ON WASTE: The accounting books at the Treasury Department reveal that over $90 million has been stolen by forgers who have falsely endorsed government checks made out to others.

Thousands of forgery cases will never be resolved because the long process of investigation can't be completed by the Secret Service or other Treasury agents.

Our sources at Treasury say the vast majority of bad checks and forged payments are stolen from the Social Security system. The problem could be eliminated by a mandatory system of direct deposits to the bank accounts of Social Security recipients.

CARTER CRITICS: Even some of President Carter's strongest supporters have expressed doubts about the way he handled U.S. foreign policy. One top official who has been critical behind closed doors is none other than Secretary of State Edmund Muskie. According to sources close to Muskie, he privately feels that U.S. policy under Carter wasn't forceful enough -- especially in dealing with Iran.

EXPENSIVE CEREMONY: Within a month, the projected cost of President-elect Ronald Reagan's inauguration has inflated almost as fast as the guest list. Just a month ago, the tab was estimated at $6 million, and 40,000 guests were expected to attend various events. Now, according to internal memos we've seen, as many as 72,000 might be invited to the nine inaugural balls. And the tab for the whole shebang is expected to surpass $8 million. We should add that the inaugural is paid for completely by private contributions.

HISTORIC ACCOMPLISHMENT: Rep. Joe Skeen of New Mexico is only the third person in the history of the United States to take a seat in Congress because of a write-in vote. He is a dyed-in-the-wool Republican.

Anne's Kitchen

Winter weather always seems to bring with it more hearty appetites. I can remember coming home from school and being absolutely delighted to find "PASTA CON PISELLI" for supper. Mom was happy to make this dish for the family for many reasons. The most important being that it is nourishing, second low cost, third satisfying, fourth quick and easy to prepare, and last but not least, it always was sure fire hit with the entire family.

The dish contains, meat, vegetables, and starch. You may want to accompany the meal with a fresh salad and warm pudding for dessert. If your family has a dislike for warm pudding, even in winter, than by all means go with cold pudding. In any case, like it or not, you are giving them milk, (in the pudding) and boosting the nutritional value of the meal.

The recipe traditionally calls for DITALI style macaroni, but I very often use more readily available elbow macaroni. If all you have on your pantry shelf is a spaghetti type macaroni you can improvise as follows: Holding a few strands of the spaghetti in the left hand break off pieces about 1 1/2 inches long. You can use a little imagination in this area, it isn't going to change the taste of the dish.

PASTA CON PISELLI
MACARONI WITH PEAS
/ POUND MACARONI, / POUND SLICED BACON, / MEDIUM ONION, / CAN SWEET PEAS (approx. size Nt. Wt. 17 oz.) Black Pepper (freshly ground is best), Grated Romano Cheese.

1. Set out medium size sauce pan (2 1/2 to 3 qts.)
2. Peel and thinly slice onion and place in saucapan.

3. Place bacon on a cutting board and with a sharp knife cut into 1/2" pieces. It is best not to separate slices, but to cut thru entire pound white bacon is stuck together. Add bacon to onions.

4. Over medium heat cook bacon and onions till most all fat is melted and onions are tender. Add peas and liquid, season with black pepper and continue cooking till peas simmer. Set aside.

5. In a large pot bring six quarts of water to a hard boil.

6. Add macaroni and stir at once to avoid sticking. Cook macaroni according to package directions or to your own taste. IMPORTANT NOTE: Recipe does not require salt! The bacon will provide all the salt you need.

7. Strain macaroni and reserve 1/4 of the cooking water. Return to macaroni and bacon/onions/peas mixture to macaroni/water mixture. Blend and mix well with a wooden spoon. Cover and let rest for 5 minutes.

8. Serve in soup dishes sprinkled with grated Romano Cheese.

Having made this dish so often, I start by putting the water up to boil first. During the time the water is coming to a boil I manage to get the bacon, peas, and onions under control. You will find the whole dish takes very little time. I can usually make this for under $3.00 and sometimes less, depending on market prices. You can expect five or six servings. Naturally this will vary a great deal on the ages and appetites of family members.

Left overs can be reheated by adding a little water in a pot on top of stove or in a covered dish in the oven. ENJOY!

Farming and Fishing Operations must file estimated taxes

Wilmington, Delaware-Individuals engaged in the farming or fishing industries who earned at least two-thirds of their 1979 or 1980 gross income from farming or fishing must make a declaration of estimated tax for 1980 and pay all taxes due by Jan. 16, 1981, the Internal Revenue Service says.

However, farmers or fishermen who plan to file their income tax returns for 1980 and pay the total tax by March 2, 1981, are not required to make an estimated tax declaration.

Qualified farmers or fisherman who pay their total tax by March 2, should obtain from the IRS a copy of Form 2210-F, "Underpayment of Estimated Tax by Farmers and Fishermen." They should enter, "Exempt, Farmer/fishermen" on line one of Form 2210-f, not complete the rest of the form, and submit it with their Form 1040, the IRS adds.

The IRS has three free publications which explain in detail filing requirements, Publication 225, "Farmer's Tax Guide," Publication 595 "Tax Guide for Commercial Fishermen," and publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax."

The publication and Form 2210-F may be obtained by mail, using the order form in the tax package, or by calling the IRS tax information number listed in the telephone directory.

NEWS OF HEALTH

Drinking and Pregnancy

Excessive alcohol consumption during pregnancy can result in damage to the child. Some offspring of chronic alcoholic mothers have suffered birth defects, according to researchers.
One medical authority calls total abstinence during pregnancy "unscientific, unnecessary and unrealistic."
Others disagree. They say, to be safe, don't drink while pregnant. Yet another authority believes light consumption can be helpful to the unborn. So opinions about "safe" drinking levels vary. Certainly excessive drinking makes no sense under any conditions.
The Distilled Spirits Council of the United States (DISCUS) believes expectant mothers should know all the facts about drinking and pregnancy.
DISCUS urges women to consult their physicians on the entire range of health concerns in pregnancy, including drinking.
DISCUS advises all women: "What you do makes a difference. You owe it to yourself and your unborn child to avoid excessive or abusive drinking during pregnancy. If you're pregnant or considering having a baby, consult with your physician on drinking and other health factors."

Women should know all the facts about pregnancy and alcohol.

Dear friends
Periodically, we hear that various national charities spend too much of our contributions on management and too little on actual charity or research. A "Wise Giving Guide" is prepared by National Information Bureau of New York, listing charities that do and do not meet N.I.B.'s basic standards in philanthropy.
