City/Conrail Confrontation New Mayor's 1st Challenge?

"There's no time seven men can sit down at the same table and be in agreement all the time," said Harrington's new Mayor, Alfred Mann as he was sworn in at the annual reorganization meeting of the Harrington City Council last Wednesday night. But Mann expressed the belief that he and the six members who comprise the Harrington Council last Wednesday night. But Mann expressed the belief that the Harrington Council could work together to work out any differences.

Mann's ability to work things out may very well get its first test in a confrontation, not between members of the council, but between the city and Conrail.

Shortly after the swearing-in ceremonies, the Council chambers were the scene of what appeared to be an angry exchange between Conrail representative George Womer and at least one Councilman. Womer's explanation of Conrail's plans to close the Harrington block house and convert any switches not automated to manual operation as a "Business decision" that he had not even thought would be of interest to the city elicited a heated retort from Councilman Harold Brode who said that the city's business was that the city's business was its people and their safety.

Womer, a Terminal Superintendent, and Gary Miller, a Road Foreman, for Conrail were in attendance at the request of the Council which wanted to hear the railroad company's reasons for the proposed changes.

Womer told the Council a decline in the volume of traffic over the rails which pass through Harrington is the major reason Conrail has appealed to the Federal Railroad Administration for permission to change the controls now handled from the block house to an automated operation and convert any remaining switches to hand operation at the site. This would save Conrail money by eliminating three or four jobs which it feels are no longer needed.

Local officials and firemen worry that this might increase problems with blocked crossings, especially in an emergency situation when it would be vital for firefighters to get across the tracks to the fire house or for emergency vehicles to cross in the other direction.

Womer referred to the "hot line" between the Harrington fire hall and the railroad station. He said it could be used in any emergency - not just for situations involving the transportation of hazardous materials as some had assumed. The hotline phone rings at either the fire house or the railroad

City Swears In Three

Harrington's new Mayor Alfred G.B. Mann, who won with a landslide vote of 372 against three opponents, none of whom got more than a hundred votes, and two new council members...Ray Gagne and Bobby Quillen were sworn in in brief ceremonies at last Wednesday's reorganization meeting of the Harrington City Council.

Gagne defeated former Council member Bill Dill and a second opponent Edward Maher in a three way tie for the Fifth Ward Council seat.

Bobby Quillen was unopposed for the Sixth Ward spot vacated by the Rev. Ray Newman. The oaths of office were administered by City Alderman Anna Hampton, who was one of the four candidates for Mayor.

Wyatt-Vice Mayor

In brief business following the swearing in ceremonies Councilman

Jack Wyatt was selected Vice Mayor, Joseph Cotta, Secretary and Wagner, Treasurer for the Council

Present for the occasion were outgoing Mayor Arthur B. Cahall, and his wife Elizabeth Jane (Betty Jane). There were roses for the outgoing first lady and a plaque in commemoration of his four years of service from the Council to the ex-mayor.

In remarks prior to the swearing in ceremonies for the new mayor and Council, Cahall spoke of the "frustrations and joys" of office and said that the Harrington Public Library was one of the city's finer accomplishments during his term. He said "I don't think there is any better way we could spend $4,500." He praised the City for sticking behind the library.

Reducing a $42,000 debt to $7,500,

-State Inaugural Addresses-

INAUGURAL ADDRESS
GOV. PIERRE S. DUPONT IV
JANUARY 20, 1981

It is with great pleasure that I join you this evening to celebrate an inauguration, to commence a new term of office, and particularly to welcome Lt. Governor Castle, Mike Castle brings ability, energy, and fresh ideas to our Administration. I know I will enjoy working with him and I know the people of Delaware will be pleased with his service as Lt. Governor. In taking my oath of Office as Governor of Delaware just four years ago today, I spoke of setting out upon a four year journey, of the problems that beset us, of what we must do to solve them. This evening that journey has lengthened to eight years, and so we are half-way; eager to continue the progress of the past four years, eager to confront new challenges with a renewed spirit, fresh ideas, eager to confront new challenges with a renewed spirit, fresh ideas, and an enthusiasm borne of the progress we have achieved by working together towards our common goals.

Four years ago the challenges before us were substantial, but they were clear and direct; to solve our worsening financial problems, to begin rebuilding our economic base, to restore confidence in our government, and to bring our State together.

Slowly at first—and then more quickly things began to change. State government—Democrats working with Republicans—restored financial order.

A rejuvenated business community joined with a concerned labor community to confront an issue fundamental to both—jobs—by reducing taxes and spurring economic development. All across Delaware, city leaders began working with State leaders, business leaders with labor

Cattle Rustlers Hit Sullivan

Harrington area farmer George Sullivan has twice in recent months been the victim of modern day cattle rustlers who break up to his barn and run off with his livestock.

The first incident occurred on November 21st when someone made off with a 160 lb. Angus herifer, which was taken out of a shed on his farm 4 miles west of Harrington some time between 8 a.m. and noon on that day.

More recently on January 8th a 250

John Sipple bought land to the south and adjoining New Seventh Haven and in his will of 1752 he mentions this property, "I give and bequeath to my son Nathaniel one hundred acres of land I bought of Mark Smith deceased and 40 acres I bought of Boggs situate to the southward of the above land given to Martinus." This was part of a larger tract containing 600 acres that was conveyed by warrant to Hugh Durborow in 1718 and which he called Durborow Chance. Daniel Tobson purchased 300 acres of this tract and on his death it passed to his heir Matthew Tobson who sold to James Mullen.

In 1734 James Mullen sold to Mark Smith 300 acres "being part of a larger tract or parcel of land called Durborow Chance lying and being in Murderskill Hundred in the aforesaid county of Kent on the head of a branch called Bishops Branch beginning at the south east corner of the land of Samuel Wilson being a corner marked oak standing in the line of Thomas Berrys land (Burberry's Berry) and near the south side of a plain called Bishops Savannah and running thence by this aforesaid Wilsons land west 320 perches thence south south east 154 perches then east 320 perches to the line of a tract called Bettes Land thence north north west binding part with the aforesaid Bishops land and part with the aforesaid Berry's land 154 perches to the place of beginning."

Mark Smith had previously purchased in 1727 from Hugh Durborow 150 acres of land that was originally granted to Michael Lowber and Henry Lewis in separate parcels containing two hundred acres for each man. When the land was surveyed for Hugh Durborow on 3 Oct. 1724 the tract contained 300 acres and was called Burkington. It was bounded beginning at a corner marked stooping red oak...being the south east corner of a piece of land late in the possession of Daniel Tobson being also 160 perches south south east from the south east corner of a tract of land late laid out to Samuel Wilson and now in the possession of John Sipple called Wilson's Lot and running from the said stooping red oak west 320 perches to a corner marked red oak then south south east 160 perches to a corner marked white oak standing by the east side of a branch called the fork branch then west 320 perches to a corner marked hickory saplin then north north west 160 perches to the place of beginning. On 10 Feb 1737 Mark Smith sold to John Sipple "a parcel of land being part of a Tract of land called Durborow's Chance - situate in the forest of Murtherill hundred in the County of Kent...beginning at a marked white oak standing in the line of the said Kings Manner aforesaid and running thence south south east with the said line 22 perches near to Bishops Branch then west 25 degrees south 80 perches to a marked oak standing in a swamp then west 235 perches to a marked oak standing in the line of the aforesaid tract then north north west 60 perches to a marked oak then east 320 perches to the place of beginning containing 100 acres of land." leaders, Democrats with Republicans, upstate residents with downstate ones—all toward the common goal of improving the quality of life in Delaware.

The result was the creation of a new feeling in Delaware government; a new quality for measuring both progress and performance. It is a sense of integrity; integrity in the politics, the process, and the substance of government; integrity that began with the process of selecting judges and defining our financial situation, and ended with balanced budgets, constitutional reform of our fiscal process, and the foundation for improved educational and economic opportunity for all. We fought hard for that integrity: in Legislative Hall, in public forums, in private consultations. This sense of integrity produced a bipartisan government based upon performance rather than politics; it produced results that all could agree were progress—in finances, in corrections, in education, and in the delivery of human services.

Now is the time to reaffirm that integrity and that consensus; to use it to move forward to confront the new challenges that await us. Those challenges, while not so simple as in the past, are equally clear; economic expansion, improved productivity, enhanced educational quality, modernized government procedures—all are challenges which impact our livelihood, our pocketbooks, and the quality of our lives.

These are not challenges that can be considered in a vacuum, for Delaware is not an island. Other states seek our business and our jobs; other nations our dollars and our markets; regional and federal decisions limit our freedom and our choices. If we are to be successful in competing externally, we must be strong and united internally. We must pursue our common goals with uncommon vigor and determination.

Improving our economic opportunities, increasing the productivity of government, seeking equal and quality economic and educational opportunities for all Delawareans, these are the goals to which we must address our energies in the early 1980s.

I accept the responsibility of defining the agenda and setting the course to meet our goals. But today the challenges are more complex than in the past; they will require greater thought, more complex than in the past; they will require greater thought, more tolerance, and statesmanship from each of us. They will require a cooperative effort, for to achieve progress divided will be impossible. I am optimistic, because I believe our State is more united today than it has been in recent memory. We are united in our goals, in the framework we have devised to guide our progress toward them, in the popular consensus that selected our political leadership. We have a truly unique opportunity—the best opportunity Delaware has had in many years, and one that may not occur again for many more. Now is the time to accept the challenge of resolving problems that have needed attention for many years, problems we have often avoided because of the high cost of solving them. Now is the time to use the goodwill, the cooperation, the confidence and the sense of integrity we have created in the past, to tackle the difficult problems facing us in the future.

Let us pledge ourselves this evening to grasping and using this unique opportunity.

portunity. Let us not squander it; for if we do, not only will the next four years be a disappointment to all of us, but also the foundation we have so carefully built to reach this opportunity will have to be built all over again—at an even greater cost to all of us.

To each citizen of Delaware, I want to express my respect for the honor and responsibility you have placed upon me once again; to each citizen of Delaware I renew my pledge on integrity, of effort, of concern for our common needs. I hope in return that you will give us your support individually, so that we may prosper collectively; your willingness to place the common good above the special interest, your understanding in those difficult hours when immediate gain must be sacrificed to long-term benefit.

Divided we can do little; but together we can achieve great things, for we are blessed by our Creator with unique circumstances: we are a free people; we are individuals in the land of the free and the home of the brave; and we are citizens of the best of the best, the first state of the United States of America.

INAUGURAL REMARKS LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR MICHAEL N. CASTLE JANUARY 20, 1981

Mr. Chief Justice, Governor du Pont, Lt. Governor McGinnis, honored guests, and friends.

Just 20 years ago President John F. Kennedy issued a call to the American people in his Inaugural Address, "Ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country."

American promptly lost sight of the wisdom of his words. All eyes turned to Washington, and government extended its reach into all aspects of our lives. Many achievements were realized, but the intervening 20 years were more noteworthy for the failures of government programs.

The recent national and local elections represent the end of an era and, hopefully, the beginning of another. In the past 20 years power has flowed steadily from the state governments to the federal governments. This may soon change. Governor Reagan recently stated we must "begin to reverse this centralization of power. We can begin to return present responsibilities of government from Washington to the state capitols and from there to local government or where possible back to the people themselves."

Delaware is in the vanguard of states prepared to meet and deal with this new philosophy. The first four years of Governor du Pont's Administration, working closely with the state legislature, resolved many of our financial difficulties and restored the confidence of the people of Delaware in their state government. Excellence was achievable.

The next four years hold even more promise but only if we are willing to dedicate ourselves to those changes which are needed. Delaware must be ready to assume some of the responsibilities from the federal government and improve upon them. Government should again become the means to serving the people instead of serving itself.

Library Offers Winter Fun

Harrington youngsters looking for something to do after school, but unwilling to brave for very long the frigid temperatures January has brought are invited to come in to the warmth and the fun at the Harrington Public Library. A new program headlined "Winter Fun" has been initiated at the Harrington Public Library. Four days a week (Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday) the library will offer an after-school program of games, coloring, crafts and movies. Young people of all ages are invited to join in, free of charge. Each day's program will begin immediately after school at 3 p.m. and continue until 5 p.m. Thursdays, says Librarian Chris Hayward, will be movie days.

Young people of all ages who drop in at the library are also invited to sign a birthday card for Dr. Seuss the writer and initiator of the popular childrens series. The card is to be mailed off by February 20, and the local library will be participating in special activities marking a Dr. Seuss birthday week, the first week in March.

Harrington Faces Conrail

station as soon as it is picked up on the other end.

But Harrington firemen in an ambulance stopped at a railroad crossing are out of immediate contact with the hot line, and the railroad station is on the other side of the tracks. The block house, with an operator on duty, is just a few yards away.

Other than emergency situations, Council members and citizens present questioned Womer about the increasing amount of switching and movement back and forth the crossings in the center of town. A number, including one school bus driver, cited delays which have been longer than the 10 minutes Womer said was the maximum amount of time a crossing should be tied up. They also reported that gates are often lifted briefly, then lowered again before the traffic tie-up clears. And there was also mentioned the long-standing problem of gates being lowered and raised, and traffic delayed, while no train ever passes the particular crossing. This sometimes causes the impatient to take the illegal chance of navigating the crossing before the gates are raised.

Residents further queried Womer on promises made by CONrail at the time the switching operation was originally moved from Dover to Harrington that most of the switching would occur north or south of the city rather than in the middle of town.

Womer said he was not aware of the promises that might have been made by the Conrail representative at that time and agreed that the Council should talk to Al Arnett, Conrail's representative for governmental relations. Arnett, unable to be present last Wednesday was the person with whom the city originally dealt when the switching operations were moved to Harrington.

Womer, who claimed Conrail does not want a repeat of the situation which forced it to move its switching operations from Dover, further suggested that the mayor and council appoint some one as a coordinator or liaison between the city and local trainmaster Morris. He also advised individual citizens who have complaints to write down engine numbers and get in touch with the local station.

Council members seemed somewhat less than enchanted with Womer's answers and will probably ask both Arnett and Morris to appear at a future Council meeting, possible in February.

Council Meeting & Referendum on Same Day

The next meeting of the Harrington City Council will be on February 9, following the referendum which will ask city voters to approve the $189,000 FmHA loan necessary to pay for the city's share in the current project to upgrade the sewage treatment plant to meet federal and state standards.

Milford Chapter #3134 of the American Association of Retired Persons which includes members of the National Retired Teachers Association, will hold its next meeting on Jan. 31, 1981, at 1:00 p.m. at Avenue Methodist Church, Milford. The speaker for the day will be Mr. S.M.D. Marshall, of Milford, who will recount the adventures of his father as a doctor in that city in the "Olden Days" and who will bring with him old medical artifacts which his father used. Anyone interested in learning more about this Chapter should call 422-65-61 or 856-6251. Visitors over 55 years of age welcome.

"For No-Till The Future Is Now" is the theme of an upcoming Delmarva No-Till Seminar to be held Jan. 22, 1981 at Chesapeake College in Wye Mills, Md.

The day-long seminar starts at 8:30 a.m. with registration coffee, and donuts and ends at 3 p.m. Subjects to be covered included: soil improvements through no-tillage; high yields through proper fertilization; making more money with no-till; weed management and no-till production; and rotation, for bigger corn and soybean yields. There will also be two panel discussions, one titled "No-Tillage Farming Helps Save the Bay," the other on "Proven Steps to Profitable No-Till Crop Production."

The meeting is sponsored by the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service and concerned agribusiness firms. Chesapeake College is located at US 50 and Maryland route 213 near Wye Mills.

The public is cordially invited to the Capping Ceremony for Wesley College nursing students Friday Jan. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 206 in the College Center. Freshman students who have earned the privilege of wearing the Wesley nursing caps will be capped by Dr. Julie L. Boozer, head of the nursing department at Wesley.

Girl Scout - News -

Girl Scouts of all ages levels—Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes, and Seniors—are getting ready once more for the annual Girl Scout Cookie Sale, the main fund-raising event for Girl Scout troops and councils all over the country.

This year Chesapeake Bay Girl Scouts will take cookie orders from January 29 through February 15.

Made from the finest Kosher ingredients, cookies cost $1.50 a box and there are seven different flavors to choose from—

Trefoils—the traditional Girl Scout shape baked into a tender shortbread cookie made with real butter and eggs, yet having only 24 calories per cookie.

Girl Scouts Announce Cookie Sale

Thin Mints—the all time favorites: thin chocolate cookies covered with a chocolate mint coating, made with pure oil of peppermint.

Samoas—Rich vanilla cookies covered with caramel, rolled into coconut, and striped with chocolate.

Do-Si-Dos—Crunchy oatmeal cookies with a real peanut butter filling.

Van'chos—Crisp chocolate and vanilla creme cookies.

Tagalongs—Crisp cookies topped with real peanut butter and covered all over with a chocolate coating.

For Get Me Not—No preservatives in these cookies, made with toasted rolled oats, crunchy sesame seeds, wheat germ, and molasses.

Girl Scouts will deliver cookies to customers from March 2 through March 21. If no Girl Scout comes to your door, or if there is no troop in your neighborhood, you can place your cookie order by calling the Chesapeake Girl Scout Council at 734-3204.

Troops can earn from $.20 to $.35 per box, depending on the amount sold, and proceeds from the cookie sale are used by troops to help pay for trips or to purchase equipment and supplies.

The Council's share from the cookie sale is used to maintain five camps and a camp staff, to provide resident camp scholarships, and to train and assist adult volunteers.

International Club Reminder

Blanka Falek reminds all concerned that the International Club meets monthly on the fourth Sunday of the month for its monthly pot luck supper and program. The next meeting of the club will be on Sunday, January 25, 1981 at 4:00 p.m. Participants are asked to bring a dish per family of casserole, salad, or dessert and their own place setting of plate and silverware. A free will offering will be taken to cover the cost of beverage. For anyone who is unable to bring a dish, but would like to come we ask that you contribute $2.00 if you partake from the table. However, we would much prefer your own home dish or even store bought.

The program for January will be Americas Wonderland Film—National Parks.

Coming Events:
Lake Forest Athletic Boosters meeting that had been scheduled for January 15th is rescheduled for January 22nd at 7:30 P.M. at the Lake Forest High School.

Get Together and Talk With Our Neighbors

Greenwood

By Pat Hatfield 349-4255.

by Pat Hatfield

Report from Greenwood United Methodist Church: All members of the Administrative Board of the Greenwood United Methodist Church and the Council on Ministries will meet on Tuesday, January 20, at 7:30 p.m. This will be an organizational meeting, and every elected person should attend.

Many of you may want to put on your calendar that the Rev. Earl Tyson will be at St. George's United Methodist Church in Clarksville, Delaware, beginning Sunday, January 25 through Thursday, the 29th.

Report from Hickory Ridge Congregational Methodist Church: Due to the holidays we did not get out a newsletter for two weeks, so we will fill you in on our activities. On Sunday, Dec. 21, our Youth Group presented a play, "A Light Unto My Path". They worked hard as well as their leaders, and we all thought they were great. We were happy to welcome a good crowd. Many who came for the first time.

A group of our Youth also went caroling with some adults on Tuesday evening and then returned to the church for hot chocolate and cookies.

Visitors were also welcomed at the Candlelight Service on Christmas Eve and the Watch Night Service on Dec. 31. We are grateful to our guest speaker, Rev. Robt. Burdette. Refreshments were served.

The pastor and his wife are very thankful to all of you for your smiles and support and gifts and love. We thank you for contributing food for others. We were able to distribute fifteen boxes of food.

Mr. George Johnson, Mrs. Helen Payne and Mrs. Edna Sharp are home from the hospital.

Mrs. Mary Christine (a former resident of Greenwood), now from Aiken, South Carolina, has been visiting her daughter, Jane, in Odesa. While in this area she visited Mrs. Delema Smith and had lunch with her.

Senior Citizens' Menu for January 26 through January 30:

Jan. 26: hamburger on bun, parsleyed mashed potatoes, cauliflower, green peas medley, pear halves, coffee, tea, milk.

Jan. 27: cream of tomato soup, bake beef liver, buttered Zucchini squash, Under-the-Sea salad, biscuits, butter, strawberry gelatin with banana slices, coffee, tea, milk.

Jan. 28: orange juice, fried chicken, scalloped corn, broccoli, peach cobbler, salad bar, coffee, tea, milk.

Jan. 29: apple juice, old-time beef stew, pickled beets, French green salad, wheat bread, butter, Snickerdoodle cookies, milk, coffee, tea.

Jan. 30: oven fried fish, potatoes au gratin, stewed tomatoes, corn bread, butter, spiced cake with peanut butter frosting, coffee, tea, milk.

Mr. & Mrs. Graydon Hurst of Wilmington were Tuesday visitors of Mr. & Mrs. Allison Davis.

Women of the Moose Celebrate 30th Anniversary

By Joyce Lake

Thursday January 8, 1981, The Women of the Moose Chapter 1229 celebrated their 30th Anniversary at Harrington Dodge No. 534. Congratulations Co-Workers!

The evening began at 7 p.m. with a covered dish dinner for members and guest. It was a most delicious meal. Once again the co-workers prove to be very good in the kitchen.

A lovely and good cake was served by the men. As is the tradition Governor Dickie Crouse and Senior Regent Elaine Bradford, cut the first slice of cake to show harmony between the two organizations. The Chapter wishes to thank Dorothy Ianaras for the cake.

The enrollment ceremony was held after dinner and the Chapter was happy to enroll and welcome to the defending Circle four candidates. They are: Charlotte Henning, Jean Cross, Priscilla McConnell and Gerry Thompson. Congratulations new co-workers. The Chapter is looking forward to working with you.

Monday, Jan 26, Mary Hitch has been doing a fine job for Bert in the KITCHEN NOW Mary has earned a vacation. Our Rev. Nelson Benjamin will be taking her to the train so Mary can charge on down to the South Land. Here's hoping the freeze has thawed and Mary and brother, Howard can soak up some beautiful sunshine in St. Petersburg, Fla. Thank you Mary, God Bless.

As Lt. Governor, I am prepared and willing to help consider and implement decisions at the highest level of our government and to aid, where possible, any citizen with his or her smallest problem with state government.

I owe my thanks to all of the people of this state for the opportunity to run for this office and for my election. I only hope that I can extend my appreciation for your support with dedicated and fruitful service.

Good morning and God Bless you.

Gabfest

by Pat Hatfield

Right here in the middle of a deep freeze in January my friend, Tess, was privileged to hear a note of spring. Every morning when she walks her dog, she stops to have a conversation with a mockingbird. Yesterday, in her morning walk, she suddenly heard a robin sing. It was definitely not a chirp, but a real song. When she came home, she called her neighbor down the street, and she said, "Yes, you probably did, because I have a flock of them in my back yard." We know that they do winter in Delaware, and some winters they come out of the woods and feed upon the fields. Later that day, my friend, Shirley, called and told me that there was a flock of hundreds feeding on the field near her home. And she said that they were the fattest robins that she had ever seen.

I've never heard a robin sing this time of the year, but Dad has a mockingbird he watches about every day. And this little fellow gets up on the sho roof and does these somersaults, flying up in the air and down again. I used to think this was a courtship or mating performance, but apparently he does it for fun. "Baby", our macaw, really likes to entertain. When he gets our attention he immediately goes into his act - hangs upside down by a toenail on one foot. The more we laugh, the more he is inspired to greater effort.

Birds, like people, sometimes do strange things. One winter, my friend, Gladys Taber, wrote me from "Stillmeadow", her home in Connecticut, that they had an odd bird nesting in the eaves of the barn that they used for a dog kennel. This was in February. They could not identify the bird, but she said it is a trouble because they had to leave the kennel door ajar so the bird could go in and out.

Snow has not come our way this winter which is both good and bad. It is good not to have the road hazards and the sloppy cleanup and tramping around in big old rubber galoshes, but on the other hand, we miss the exquisite beauty of it all, and the children miss the sledding, the snowball fights and making the traditional snowman.

I've been fighting a bit of a cold for about a week. It doesn't seem to get better, nor does it get worse. An old-time remedy for colds was to eat lots of onions. Boiled or baked whole and simmering in butter, they are one of my favorite vegetables. When I was growing up, a huge buttered sandwich filled with thick slices of raw onion and taken with a glass of hot lemonade upon going to bed was considered a perfect remedy. When we were children, we were also rubbed well with camphorated oil. The last time I have been in contact with camphorated oil was when our Ronald raised rabbits. We used to use it for ear canker in the rabbits, and it would be very effective.

Memory, like tapestry, sets forth in colors gay.

The hopes, the dreams, the happiness, that blessed our yesterday.

Golden threads for golden deeds, rosy tints for dreams come true,

For friendships earned and friendships held-Are tints of heavenly blue.

Reverend Koning of the Nazarene Church of Harrington was leader at Bible Study Monday morning. There were twenty in bible study. Three songs and a prayer. Sylvia was at the piano. His subject was concerning Love but I did misplace my notes and cannot quote his service. Sorry! It was interesting and very miney!

Monday afternoon was Members meeting. Called to order by President Marion Brown, Pledge of Allegiance, Prayer by Pres. Marion Brown. Minutes read by Andy Anderson, Financial report by Treas. Merle Roth. Both approved as read. Roll away bad discussed and Mrs. Anthony told that she could spend as much on it. (By the way, she has purchased a dandy one.) Bazaar is April 3rd. Meeting adjourned on a happy note.

Tuesday morning was Band practice. Ina was at the piano. Not many here to practice. The Jolly Times have been invited to play at a United Way banquet January 21, 1981 at 7:00 at Dover inn.

David LeGates was here with slides on France. David presented his program very well and everyone truly enjoyed the trip he took them on. Thank you David, very much! Wednesday was a very busy day.

Gene gave a macrame class. (Twenty attended) GLene said that two had dropped out. Angela, A former Director was there, she is visiting in Delaware, and plans to make a few more visits to the Center. Lots of pleasant folks played. Bring a prize Bingo. Elizabeth Anthony called.

Thursday it was snowing and my how nice it was to be in the company of so many congenial folks.

= A.M. TOOK THOSE WHO WANT LOCAL SHOPPING. Bowling at Milford Lanes. Alice Houston and Tony Dulik were high scorers. Bowling, like pool, is an enjoyable game for many. Keeps the muscles in tone.

Getting books ready for Mrs. Santa Anna Mae-Bessie-Ethel-Cleora-Sallie and Bertha.

Making fresh flowers for the tables were Bertha-Anna Mae-Sallie-Bessie and Lili.

Sgt. Sterling of State Police will be here January 30, 1981. He didn't get here Jan. 16 because of weather conditions.

David LeGates will be here with slides on Hawaii January 27. You will be happy if you come in and we will be most happy to see you.

It has been cold weather, oil is high but spirits are high too at the Center. Larry's music helps so much.

Best wishes to those who are ill either at home or in the hospital. Be kind to each other. Thank you volunteers for all your kindness. Remember-a bright word when said with a smile, is a happy word-the word is Hello! Mary Dawson Hughes, a special hello to homebounds and friends out of town. See at the Center Faith.

Spartan girls win a pair

By "Gabby"

The Spartans of Lake Forest handed the Dover girls Senators an 88-33 walloping Tuesday evening on the home court. Five Lake Forest cagers were in double figures. Cathy Thompson had 15, Dee White and Tracy Thompson each had 12, Pam Harris had 11 and Lolita Seth had 10. Dover's Dawn Jones was overall high scorer with 16 points.

By Ed Wheatley

The Chipman Wrestlers lost a tough match to Milford yesterday 30-52. Winning for Chipman were Manny Benson, Mike Gygyryuk, G Glenn Homewood, Mike Kessler, and Robbie Rennie. All of these wrestlers had pins.

The wrestling match this Friday has been rescheduled to start at 2:00.

Spartan boys lose two

By "Gabby"

Lake Forest's big guns were muffled somewhat last Tuesday night by the Dover Senators. They were handed a 54-34 thumping being outscored in every quarter except the third which was a close 9-7 in the Spartan's favor. The Spartans offense was led by Kevin Moehlenkamp with 15 points while teammate Dale Benson was the only other local lad in double figures with 10.

Biden Report

By Sen. Joseph Biden Jr.

The fire fighters of Bowers Beach deserve a commendation for their efforts and resolve in rebuilding the town's fire hall without Uncle Sam's assistance. A year and a half ago an arsonist destroyed the town's fire-social hall. While my office as well as that of Senator Roth worked with fire company officials to determine what federal assistance was available to rebuild, to assure efficient, effective fire protection, the members decided to make it a community project.

It's not often that I hear about eligible individuals, organizations or local governments refusing federal assistance. For me, it's both pleasing and admirable. The fire fighters and residents of the Bowers Beach area are a fine example of how to get government off our backs—don't ask government to do for us what we can do ourselves.

Because some funding or other assistance is available for a project, that should not be the only consideration in determining whether or not to ask for or accept that assistance. Across this nation, communities, organizations and individuals have dug themselves into a rather deep hole financially, by requesting and accepting aid that they did not need.

While on the subject of federal assistance, allow me to point out a few items for thought.

There are approximately 500 federal grant programs in existence which cost $83 billion a year. They exist because someone or some group convinced Congress that they were needed. In many cases a number of programs attempt to deal with the same problem in different ways. While the revenue sharing program allows recipients to use funds for practically anything they want, many programs are so narrow in scope that in this past fiscal year, 450 of the 500 federal grants programs accounted for only 10 percent of the federal aid given.

The general concept of the chaotic system of federal grants is that government is trying to deal with real concerns and problems but ultimately ends up throwing money at the problem to make it go away. Actually it's a little more complex than that.

With the push by special interest groups for programs to satisfy their goals, the writing of legislation to allow Congressional subcommittees certain authority over programs, the demands of states, counties and municipalities for more and more aid and the constituent pressure on 535 separately elected Congressmen and Senators in Washington, it is not surprising that there are so many programs and such coasts.

Almost everyone condemns the system and almost everyone wants to change the way federal aid is disbursed. But almost everyone who has an idea on how to do that has a different one.

I suspect that Congress will have to hear a new clamor for reduced spending from constituents. And that clamor will have to be more consistent than it has been. While almost everyone I speak with can advise me on some particular program that is wasteful, ill-advised and unnecessary, in the next breath I might be told of another problem or concern that the federal government should address with its tax revenues.

Recipients of federal aid may complain very loudly that there is too much red tape, too many regulations attached, too many forms and reports to file but that aid generally is accepted after or while righteous indignation is expressed.

I do not propose that federal aid be abolished. I do propose that those with their hands outstretched, be it communities, organizations individuals consider the true costs. Give Congress the mandate to review federal aid programs and eliminate those that are wasteful or out of date.

The federal government has a role in our society. The bounds of that role have expanded in part because the world is more complex, more developed, populations are exploding, pollution and war threaten our existence, and in part because individuals as well as local and state governments have refused to deal with some issues which could best be dealt with close to home.

There is one federal government but there are 50 State governments, 3,042 county governments, 18,862 municipal governments, 16,822 Township governments and 41,136 special taxing districts in this great nation. There are also 226,504,825 individual Americans. Everyone has a role to play in our society. Failure of anyone to fulfill his role be it as a parent, board member or legislator creates a vacuum which history shows us will be filled by another element.

Keeping In Touch

With Tom Evans

Our recent cold wave makes this an especially appropriate time for me to remind all Delawareans of a program which I cosponsored in Congress—the Low-Income Energy Assistance Program (LIEAP). This is a program designed to help those on low or fixed incomes meet the high cost of heating their homes. LIEAP is not meant to pay fuel bills for the entire winter, merely to supplement the rising cost of energy.

Delaware received its share of the fuel assistance funds last month and has been accepting applications since late November. LIEAP should be able to assist approximately 14,000 qualified households in Delaware, with an average benefit of $325 per household. Benefits are expected to range between $200-500, depending on household income, number in household, type of fuel, and dwelling type.

In Kent and New Castle Counties, and the City of Wilmington, LIEAP is being administered by Catholic Social Services. For information and to arrange for an appointment call 674-1782 in Kent County, and 654-9295 in New Castle County and the City of Wilmington. In Sussex County, LIEAP is being administered through Sussex County Community Action, Inc. In Sussex County, call 856-7360 or 856-7367.

I have received word from the General Services Administration that the long-expected transfer of the Fenwick Island lighthouse property should take place within the next few weeks. You will recall that two years ago the Coast Guard de-activated the historic light. After several months, with the help of hundreds of Delawareans, I was able to convince them to re-light the lighthouse and proceed with transfer of the property to the State of Delaware.

An enthusiastic group of Sussex Countians formed the Friends of the Lighthouse and have agreed to take responsibility for the lighthouse. The Friends of the Lighthouse plan to assume operation and maintenance costs for the lighthouse and establish a mini-museum in the lower part of the structure. Admiral Price of the Coast Guard has assured me that the original Fresnel lens will be returned and can be re-installed as a private aid to navigation.

Hopefully, by Spring, with the hard work and cooperation of the Federal government, the State of Delaware and the Friends of the Lighthouse, the Fenwick Island light will shine as before.

Delaware Artist Gets $1000,000 Bonus

Two black ducks on the wing earned a small fortune for Wilmington wildlife artist Ned Mayne, and other Delaware artists have but two weeks to try to follow in his brush strokes.

Mayne hit the jackpot when his painting was selected by a panel of judges to illustrate the 1980 Delaware Magratory Waterfowl Stamp, commonly known as the Duck Stamp. Although Mayne received no direct cash award, he did receive almost two thousand signed and numbered limited edition prints of his winning entry. When sold to private collectors and distributors of wildlife art, the prints provided Mayne with a $100,000 bonus.

Entries for the contest, which is open only to Delaware residents, must be received by the Division of Fish and Wildlife or postmarked no later than January 31, 1981. The design must be a horizontal drawing or painting 6 1/2 inches by 9 inches. If matted, the mat should be 10 inches by 12 inches. No scroll work, lettering, or signatures can appear on the design itself.

The design should be one or more birds depicting a species of duck or goose commonly found in this area. The only exception is the black duck which is ineligible for 1981. The composition cannot include any docks, decoys, boats, or other man-made objects.

The name of the species depicted and the artist's name and address should be placed on the back of the entry. The entries should be sent by registered mail or United Parcel to William C. Wagner II, Director, Division of Fish

THOUGHTS FROM DOVER

By Gov. Pierre S. DuPont

In an extraordinary session of the interstate governing body of the Delaware River, the four governors whose states border the river voted to restrict the non-essential use of the water in their states. This was done because of the drought conditions which have severely lowered the level of water in the upper Delaware River and its tributaries and reservoirs.

I was among the governors who voted unanimously to impose restrictions on such water uses as lawn sprinkling, use of fire hydrants for uses other than fire-fighting, and ornamental fountains. Mayor Ed Koch of New York City, Mayor Bill Green of Philadelphia, and the U.S. representative (and former Delaware Governor) Sherman Tribbitt, joined us in the vote at the meeting of the Delaware River Basin Commission.

We realize, of course, that the ban on non-agricultural irrigation, car washing, and other such uses will not have much of an immediate impact on the water shortage, but the bans are needed to start generating awareness among the public about the water problem. The bans in Delaware will probably only affect New Castle County.

Delaware is not severely affected by the water problem. Most of our water comes from tributaries to the Delaware River and Bay or from wells. While some wells are running dry because of a lowered water table, Delaware homes have not been severely restricted in their use of water. Nevertheless, it is important that we try to conserve water.

I was most concerned at the meeting with regard to two areas. First, was that agricultural irrigation would not be affected by these bans. I am pleased that this irrigation can proceed. Second, I wanted to make sure that New York officials continued to release fresh water from their reservoirs at the headwaters of this great river so that the salt content of the water would not affect the cleanliness of the river or the shellfish industry on the Bay. New York will continue to release water from their reservoirs to even the river flow and avoid upsetting the ecological balance on the river.

New York City's reservoirs are at 30 percent of capacity. That city is the single largest user of Delaware River water and has had water bans for several months.

I encourage each of you to try to conserve water so that our region will not be forced to impose even stricter measures on the use of water.

Tips for Parents: Reading:

Delaware State Education Association

Watching children learn and grow in one of the most fascinating and fulfilling parts of being a parent—or a teacher. Sharing the learning experience gives us a chance to help our children achieve a sense of themselves. Each child develops special interests and talents which we can encourage at school and at home.

The suggestions below are designed to help parents take an active role in their children's situation. A brochure of fun, simple tips for helping your child at home is available from the Delaware State Education Association, 335 Martin St. Dover Del. 19901.

1. Read to your child often. Make reading a pleasant experience, making sure the session is relaxed and unhurried. Let your child choose a favorite story and explain pictures and answer questions about it. Later, you can stop in the middle of a familiar story and ask what happens next. This encourages memory skills and reinforces the material in the text.

2. Begin talking to your child from infancy. Make sounds call attention to sounds and connect them with objects and events. Talk to the child and explain activities as you perform them. Listen and encourage conversation with you. Answer questions patiently and as promptly as possible. Play listening games with your child. A good bedtime game is to listen quietly and identify as many sounds as possible—heartbeats, breathing, traffic. Listening attentively is essential in learning.

3. When your child is learning to read, try "labeling" household objects with the child's name printed in bold letters on masking tape; encourage the reading of signs, posters—everythings.

4. Besides regular children's materials read aloud from ordinary books, magazines, newspapers, advertisements. Your child will begin to recognize magazines, newspaper, advertisements. Your child will begin to recognize the fact that the printed word is a part of everyday life that conveys useful, interesting and amusing information. Set a good example by reading yourself in the child's presence, thus establishing the idea that reading is an enjoyable and rewarding activity.

5. Introduce your child to the wonders of the public library at an early age. Outing a library card and choosing books, gives a child a sense of freedom and responsibility. Read and discuss books brought home for possible school projects or during family sharing periods.

6. Subscribe to a children's magazine. Children love the idea of having their very own periodical.

7. Search out the better television programs for children. Public television, especially provides a wealth of interesting and educational programming. Take the opportunity to watch some of the productions along with your child and discuss the programs. When words are shown ask that they be read to you or you read them to the child.

8. Before you select books for birthday or Christmas, ask the teacher's advice. Books tailored for the child's age-group and skill in reading as well as those that dovetail with topics and times being studied in school will make the book for readable and therefore more enjoyable. Also when selecting books for gifts provide those of "special" interest to the child.

9. When your child is writing a school report, show that information from several sources is better than relying on just one book. This way the child will get acquainted with the wide world of "available sources" that are on any given topic.

10. Hang up a large chalkboard on which to write messages. Have a family bulletin board, too, and occasionally pin up cartoons and short magazine articles you think your child will enjoy.

11. Encourage the writing and addressing of personal greeting cards and invitations and thank-you notes, writing your grocery list, putting names in your address book. Suggest a backyard "mailbox" for exchanging regular letters with the child next door. Write notes and letters to your children. Encourage a written reply. Give praise for all efforts in writing.

12. Word games like "Scrabble" can help increase your child's vocabulary and improve spelling. There are many games that have junior versions. Ask for Salesperson.

13. If at any age your child seems "turned off" by reading, don't make an issue of it. Casually have "irresistible" books around-books on whatever the child's current interests are.

14. Make certain the reading area is comfortable and well-lighted. Take special note of any signs of reading difficulty that may be caused by poor eyesight. If such problems are noted, take prompt action either through your own physical or through the school nurse's office.

Remember! Listen with interest,

Jack Anderson Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON and JOE SPEAR

WASHINGTON — A few years ago, when Henry Kissinger was riding high and detente was in full flower, the United States and the Soviet Union bent over backwards to be nice to each other.

But now the pendulum has swung to the right, Ronald Reagan is in the White House, and detente is as dead as a doornail. Accordingly, the two superpowers now squabble over everything. There is a behind the scenes battle going on, for example, over the construction of an American dacha outside Moscow.

Dachas are country estates. In the time of the czars, every nobleman worth his title had at least one dacha where he could go to escape the workaday headaches of court life.

Their communist successors turned out to be proletarians with royal tastes. So they quietly continued the dacha tradition. The Kremlin bigwigs all have country estates where they can retreat from the cares of office.

Not long ago, officials at the American Embassy decided they needed a new dacha in the Russian countryside, where embassy employees could retire to recover from the tensions of life in downtown Moscow.

But the Russians demanded an outrageous sum to build this rustic retreat. So the Americans asked for permission to bring in a prefabricated dacha. The Soviets at first refused, but after some hard-line negotiating, they finally relented.

The American Embassy solicited bids and chose a Finnish firm to construct the pre-fab dacha. But then the cantankerous Russians demanded the ridiculous sum of $5,885 just to hook up the plumbing and electricity.

The embassy was stuck; it had no choice. So the U.S. government will pay the Russians' hookup fee. But our diplomats will demand an itemized bill for plugging in the utilities. As one State Department official swore: "We're going to make the Russians account for every damn dime."

WASHINGTON WALTZ: Status in Washington is often measured by the acreage of an official's office or the plushness of the rug beneath his feet. But there is no greater symbol of high office than a bureaucrat's washroom privileges.

The official pecking order can be determined simply by checking who is entitled to a private bath. In fact, there are solemn federal regulations governing bathroom privileges and entitlements.

The Cabinet officers, who head the 13 departments of government, are entitled to their own toilet, sink, vanity and shower. Other officials have Cabinet rank but no department to command. They're entitled only to a toilet, sink and shower — no vanity.

As you descend to the lower levels, assistant secretaries get only toilets and sinks. The worker bees of the bureaucracy, of course, are obliged to use communal facilities.

But even these lowly bathroom privileges can be disrupted. The convenience of the big-shots always comes first.

Consider the plight, for example, of the employees of the President's Commission on Pension Policy. They occupy a townhouse that is connected to another townhouse. The two adjacent structures share common bathrooms.

But George Bush, then the vice president-elect, moved into the second townhouse. The Secret Service sealed off the second-floor hallway that connected the two buildings.

The pension workers then had to leave their building, cross a courtyard to another federal building and present a security pass to get to the bathroom. Their predicament became even worse when Ronald Reagan moved into the neighborhood. When he was in town during the transition period, the courtyard was also blocked off. This meant the pension employees had to hike more than a block to get relief.

The blocking of this access to the bathroom, inci-

Thoughts From Washington

By U.S. Senator Bill Roth

Washington, January 14, 1981. Senator Bill Roth (R-Del) said today a General Accounting Office investigation conducted at his request proves that American families can earn more on welfare than they can working at the minimum wage.

Roth, who requested the investigation two years ago, said the report raises more questions than it answers.

"About the only concrete aspect of this investigation is that we need to take a top to bottom review of the entire welfare system," Roth said. "We want to cure the disease, not only symptoms. Targeting a single area for reform would be to overlook the basic problems of the entire system," Roth stated.

Over 1,000 welfare families in several states were surveyed in the study. One aspect of the study was that minimum wage jobs will not get a person off federal assistance because, when welfare benefits are "cashed out," the welfare parent receives more than if he or she worked at a minimum wage job.

"It seems to me that anytime we see a program, or even a series of programs, such as our welfare system, that create an anti-work atmosphere we need to take a long hard look at the entire structure," Roth said.

Roth will assume the chairmanship of the Senate's Governmental Affairs Committee in January. He has advanced the idea of creating a Hoover type commission, based on the 1947 version, to look into all aspects of government, eliminating waste and fraud and providing better services.

"The GAO report leads me to believe that the welfare system and those Americans who actually need the services would be well served by a comprehensive study of the system itself," Roth said. "It is certainly my hope that we can conduct such a study and create a system which works rather than one which proves disincentives for working."

From Dover

by Sen. Thurman Adams Jr.

Governor Du Pont is in the process of a nearly complete reorganization of his cabinet and sub-cabinet structure as he enters his second term, and all of the appointees must be confirmed by the State Senate.

As chairman of the Senate Executive Committee, which considers gubernatorial appointments before reporting them to the Senate for action, I've always taken the position that the Committee should not vote on such nominations until there has been a full and complete public hearing to give the nominees the opportunity to answer questions from legislators and the general public.

Last week the Governor sent to the Senate the nominations of four new department secretaries and two other top posts. I scheduled a public hearing as soon as possible and Thursday the Senate took time off to allow the Executive Committee to hold lengthy public hearings on the appointees.

As a result of the hearings, I expect the Executive Committee to take early action on the nominations and foresee a vote in the Senate in the near future.

Those nominations on which the Committee held hearings last week were: Marna C. Whittington of Yorklyn, Pa., to be secretary of Administrative Services replacing Lydia C. Boyer, resigned. Mrs. Whittington is presently deputy secretary of education in Pennsylvania.

Dennis C. Carey of suburban Wilmington to be Secretary of Labor to succeed Donald P. Whitley, resigned. Carey has been the Governor's special assistant for education and made a splash in September when he swam the English Channel.

T. Dennis Sullivan of Princeton, N.J., to be Secretary of the Department of Finance, succeeding Weston P. Nellius, resigned. Sullivan has been serving as New Jersey's deputy Commissioner of Labor and Industry.

John A. Dillman of Dover to be Personnel Director succeeding William S. Yound III, resigned. Dillman has been director of standards and inspections in the Delaware Department of Agriculture and director of personnel for the Delaware State Police.

Joseph M. Lank, a native of Milford, to be adjutant general of the Delaware National Guard, replacing Francis Ianni. He is a retired Army colonel and a veteran of Viet Nam service.

Former State Rep. Donald J. Lynch of Selbyville, who the Governor has named as his new Secretary of Agriculture, was out of town and unable to attend the hearing. The Executive Committee will hold a public hearing on his nomination at a later date.

dentally, appears to have been a violation of federal health regulations.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: Last year, the Coast Guard cutter "Cowslip" was declared surplus and put on the auction block. But shortly thereafter, the Cowslip's sister ship was sunk, so now the Coast Guard wants its ship back. To get it, the government will have to pay several million dollars more than the ship sold for.

— Without a shot fired in anger, the freezing cold war between the United States and Russia is producing casualties. They are the Russian dissidents who want to emigrate to the West. Only 21,411 Soviet Jews were allowed to leave Russia last year — down 60 percent from the previous year.

— When the bills for Ronald Reagan's inaugural come in, they will add up to more than $8 million. To help pay for the lavish affair, the inaugural committee is selling keepsakes — including the inaugural platform. It will be cut into small pieces, and each hunk will be coated with plastic and sold for $28.

— A quote from a top-secret CIA report: "Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev's major health problems are cardio-vascular. He has hypertension and arteriosclerotic heart disease. He probably has a pacemaker."

The Harrington Fire Company spent 80 minutes in putting out a fire at the home of John A Vogl near Masten's Corner early Tuesday evening...The blaze, caused by a defective flue, was confined to the cellar.

Mr. & Mrs. John Abbott, Jr., who live on the old Salsbury Milbourn farm on the Frederica nine-foot road, apparently believe in a gracious living and believe in getting it at home... The Abbotts have a nice dairy herd mostly Holsteins, with plenty of baled hay to feed it. They have a good flock of layers, mostly Rhode Island Reds; Muscovy ducks and guineas...Across the road from the Abbotts is a wooded ravine whence Harrington urchins picked big, black chinquapins years ago.

Mr. & Mrs. George Cain believe in identifying their farm and use farm stationery. On the Frederica nine-foot road, they have an attractive sign, "Fair View Farms"...The sign painted by Arthur Sipple, of Camden, is an advertisement for the Cains' purebred Angus...Cain recently purchased a purebred Angus bull and also has 25 cows of Blackbird and Epponiand bloodlines...The Cains reside on a farm on which Albert Stout lived until he lost his life in a fall from the top of the windmill...Mrs. Cain has several old maps and deeds concerning the farm and the millpond pond, known as Thislewood's pond.

Think of it as a savings account with scenery.

There are all kinds of checks, you know. Plain checks. Fancy checks. Beige checks. Blue checks. Even checks with palm trees and other pretty pictures.

Now, we love palm trees. But in these inflationary times, we think the prettiest pictures around are portraits. Of guys like George and Abe and good old Andy Jackson.

That's the reason for our new NOW account, the checking account that pays you for putting your money in it.

Of course, to keep it working like a checking account but earning interest like a savings account isn't duck soup. It takes some fancy figuring and special conditions. Things like minimum balance, average balance, and number of transactions.

So it makes more than a little sense to go to the people with the most practice. Us. We're A Full Service Bank®, the home of modern checking, and we've got it down to a science. Isn't that beautiful?

The Insurance Commissioner by Dave Elliott

Delaware motorists are being cautioned about certain road service clubs, for which they may be charged unknowingly along with their auto insurance premium, according to Delaware Insurance Commissioner David H. Elliott.

There are certain auto club plans whose benefits are not reasonable in relation to the fee charged, Commissioner Elliott said. If club members experience car trouble in Delaware, for example, they must contact a garage directly, pay for the service call and contact the company for a refund, he said.

"The charge for auto club plans vary, and may be as much as $100," Elliott explained. "My chief concern is that consumers may not be aware they are paying for the auto club along with the insurance premium."

The Insurance Department has noted that these auto clubs are predominantly associated with Assigned Risk Plan business, the Commissioner revealed. "The justification offered for providing this type of auto club is because towing service is not presently available to motorists in the Assigned Risk Plan," Elliott said, "but my department is working with the Delaware Auto Plan manager to make towing service a coverage option."

Usually, in the auto club plans under scrutiny, a $30 limit on towing service or any emergency repairs is established, and Commissioner Elliott observed that in today's market, that rarely covers the services. "With this type of plan costing up to $100 per car each year, it is our opinion that this may be no bargain, particularly when a motorist is insuring an older car valued at little more than a few hundred dollars over the cost of the plan."

The nature of these road service clubs and their susceptibility to regulation by the Insurance Department is being studied. Commissioner Elliott indicated that his concerns are not directed at plans such as the Delaware Motor Club's Triple-A service and other widely advertised plans.

Since several applications are involved when purchasing insurance coverage, motorists should be aware of what they are signing, Elliott continued. Insurance agencies should ask consumers if they want to join the auto club, and give them the choice of declining, he said. "Consumer are urged to be inquisitive regarding the auto club service, because that charge may continue regardless of the cancelled insurance policy."

NOTICE OF REFERENDUM ELECTION to be held on FEBRUARY 9TH, 1981

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the City of Harrington, Delaware shall hold a referendum election on February 9, 1981 from twelve o'clock noon until seven o'clock P.M. Eastern Standard Time.

The election is being called pursuant to Section 22, Chapter 167, Volume 40 of the Laws of Delaware being a part of the Charter of the City of Harrington in order to permit the qualified voters according to law in the City of Harrington to vote for or against a proposed borrowing by the City of Harrington of a sum not to exceed $189,000 on the bonds and credit of the City and the issuance of funds equal to the borrowing to secure the repayment of the sum borrowed.

The money borrowed will be used as part of the City's share of the cost of the implementation of the project known as the Modification and Expansion of Waste Water Treatment Facility as required to bring the City into compliance with Federal and State clean water regulations. The total cost of the project (including preliminary planning and studies which have been performed) is estimated to be approximately $1,125,000. The City has received grants for the project from the federal and state governments covering approximately 85 per cent of the total cost of the project. The City's share of the cost of the project is estimated not to exceed $189,000.

The project has been approved by the Delaware Division of Environmental Control and United States Environmental Protection Agency. Presently the City is operating its waste water treatment facility under temporary permits issued by State and federal authorities allowing the City to operate its waste water treatment facility in variance to State and federal law.

The City Council will determine the form of the bonds, the time of payment with interest, the classes, the times of maturity and provision as to the registration of the bonds. The City will offer the bonds securing the loan for sale, at competitive bidding.

The City has applied to the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) for a loan and/or grant of up to $189,000 and will request the FmHA to bid on the bonds in connection therewith. The FmHA is currently granting loans similar to the one applied for by the City at an interest rate of 5 per cent per annum and repayable over forty (40) years. If the City is unable to obtain a loan or grant from FmHA it will have to seek funds from other sources at rates which may not be as favorable.

Said election shall be held at a polling place located at the Harrington Fire Hall, Fleming and Mechanic Streets, Harrington, Delaware for persons who were entitled to vote in the last annual City election and an additional polling place at the Harrington Fire Hall, Fleming and Mechanic Streets, Harrington not otherwise qualified to vote.

As provided by Section 22(B) 6 of the City Charter as modified by federal and state law and judicial interpretation the following have the right to vote:

1. Every person who had the right to vote at the last annual City election;

2. Every owner of property in the City of Harrington whether individual, partnership or corporation;

3. Every voter entitled to vote shall have one vote.

4. Votes may be cast in person or by proxy. Forms of proxy are available from the City Clerk.

The polls shall be open from 12:00 noon to 7:00 p.m. on the day of the election.

The vote shall be either "FOR BOND ISSUE" or "AGAINST BOND ISSUE" and voting machines shall be used.

The City Clerk shall maintain copies of the plans and specifications relating to the project known as Modification and Expansion of Waste Water Treatment Facility which shall be available for inspection by the public.

The referendum election shall be conducted by the Election Board as appointed by City Council.

By order of the Council of the City of Harrington dated January 8, 1981.

Norma Short
City Clerk
