After the Delaware Development Fund Stakes

Perfect Beauty has perfect record

Perfect Beauty, owned by Delbert Cain of Harrington, made it a perfect five by taking the two-year-old filly trot in the Delaware Development Fund Stakes held on the preview night at the Delaware State Fair. The youngster went in 2:09 for a purse of $5,500. The stake race, the fifth and final of the evening was her fifth win in as many starts. The fact that it was the final race in the evening probably worked in her favor. The Cains reported that her driver Ross Hayter had mistakenly thought post time for the first race of the evening was 8 p.m. The races started at 7. They were on pins and needles, but Hayter arrived in time, and Perfect Beauty made beautiful time. Her trainer is Sammy Matthews. Prior to Thursday night Perfect Beauty had been entered in four races, all of them at Brandywine. She won all four. The first three were "baby races" for untried two-year-olds, but the last run on July 8, was a conditioned trot for five-year-olds and under which pitted her against some horses with more experience. She crossed the finish line in 2:01.1, just 2/3 of a second off the world record for two-year-old trotters on the 5/8 mile track. She will be going back to Brandywine on August 17 for a stake race with a $10,000 purse. Perfect Beauty was sired by Perfect Harry out of Flowing Beauty by Carlisle. The Cains acquired her as a yearling at Carroll's Sales when Billy Parker sold out. They also own her full sister, Waputla, who is a yearling. Currently there are three racing horses in the Cain stables. These include Ann Rocket, a nine-year-old who had lifetime earnings of $170,000. There are also a couple of brood mares and yearlings.

Phone company asks rate hike

Saying its current prices were simply too low to cover all the costs of providing service, the Diamond State Telephone Company sought a general rate increase yesterday that would produce an additional $18.4 million in annual revenue.

Diamond State Vice President Joseph F. Hulihan pointed out that while the company was asking for increases in a wide variety of offerings, it also is proposing extensive changes in the way it ordinarily charges for services; changes designed to give customers more service options, the ability to tailor service to their needs and the opportunity to save money.

Hulihan, noting that the monthly rate for local exchange service in Delaware had only increased 34 cents since 1976, said this about the proposal:

"The reasons for this request, however they are analyzed, boil down to one simple fact -- our prices don't cover all of our costs."

"As to changes we'd like to make in the way we charge for service, these simply recognize we are no longer the only telephone company in town and we've got to adjust to the world in which we live. In doing so, we've developed local service options to accommodate three levels of usage as well as options that enable a customer to decide how he's going to install and maintain that equipment. These are what I call 'pocketbook' options, the kind of options that give people a chance to save money."

Hulihan said a major portion of the increase in the company's revenue needs was caused by the following:

- *High interest rates, which have a direct bearing on the cost of capital.
- *Inflation, which, while down from record levels, continues to add to costs.

- *Competition, which drains off revenue from Diamond's high profit items used to help subsidize under-priced local exchange services.
- *Advances in technology, which hasten obsolescence in equipment and create the need for faster replacement.

Hulihan pointed out that competition, advancing technology, shifts in public policy and new and growing consumer demands were creating extensive and rapid changes in the telephone industry.

"These changes are having a major impact on the extent, nature and availability of service offerings and on the way offerings are priced."

"It is obvious, for example, that a clear pattern has developed for the light, moderate and heavy user. And the gaps in this pattern are sure to grow even wider in the future as more and more customers use the telephone line for home computer links, data transmission, bank-by-phone, shop-at-home and video games, as well as conversations. As a result, we are offering three pricing options in today's filing. This is not only fair to the customer, it puts the burden of the cost where it belongs--on the heavier users."

*An option designed for light users of telephone service at a low rate. Under this option, customers would pay $5 a month for a Dial Tone Line and a charge for each call--the same per call charge that is in effect today. (The current rate for most measured service calls is 5 cents for the first three minutes and 1 cent for each additional minute within the first mileage band of the local exchange.)

*A second option for the moderate-

Take the Dodge Machine Challenge at the fair

HARRINGTON, DE - The Delaware State Fair has been selected as one of the locations for the unique Dodge Driving Machine Challenge.

Described as the automobile industry's most aggressive, competitive comparison program, the Challenge is located at the fairgrounds, during the Delaware State Fair through July 31, between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Through this product exposure program, Chrysler is providing Harrington area residents the opportunity to compare its own and competitive vehicles. They will be able to compare units, feature by feature, and then register their choices in major areas of styling, convenience and comfort.

According to Jerry Greeley, Chrysler's Washington Zone Assistant Manager, the overall concept of the program is to aid consumers in recognizing the quality and value of Chrysler Corporation vehicles through direct, head-to-head competitive comparison. And, this can be done at the 3,000 square foot display area which contains three Dodge vehicles, three facing competitive units and is staffed by four Harrington area students.

More than five million people are expected to perform "hands on" comparisons this summer at 600 locations throughout the United States.

The circus is coming!

Circus is a tradition of the ages and the circus has been in America for over 200 years. Its beginnings go back as far as Rome and the Roman conquerors. From there the tradition of the circus spread to Europe and into the hearts of mankind. Circus as entertainment can be enjoyed by young and old alike from every walk of life. Circus Maximus in Rome was the beginning of the circus, and the Romans displayed wonders from around the world there. During the Middle Ages, the circus continued with small bands of traveling performers. This tradition continued throughout the Renaissance and into the 19th century.

During the 19th century and the advent of railroads, the size of the circus grew. Several famous names from circus history competed with one another during that time. Each trying to outdo the other, they produced spectacles that rivaled the grand spectacle that was the Roman circus. The 20th century brought two major world wars and a changing labor market that eventually changed the nature of the circus again. Today, shows are mechanized and are run with cost-effective business procedures.

Bentley Brothers International 2-Ring

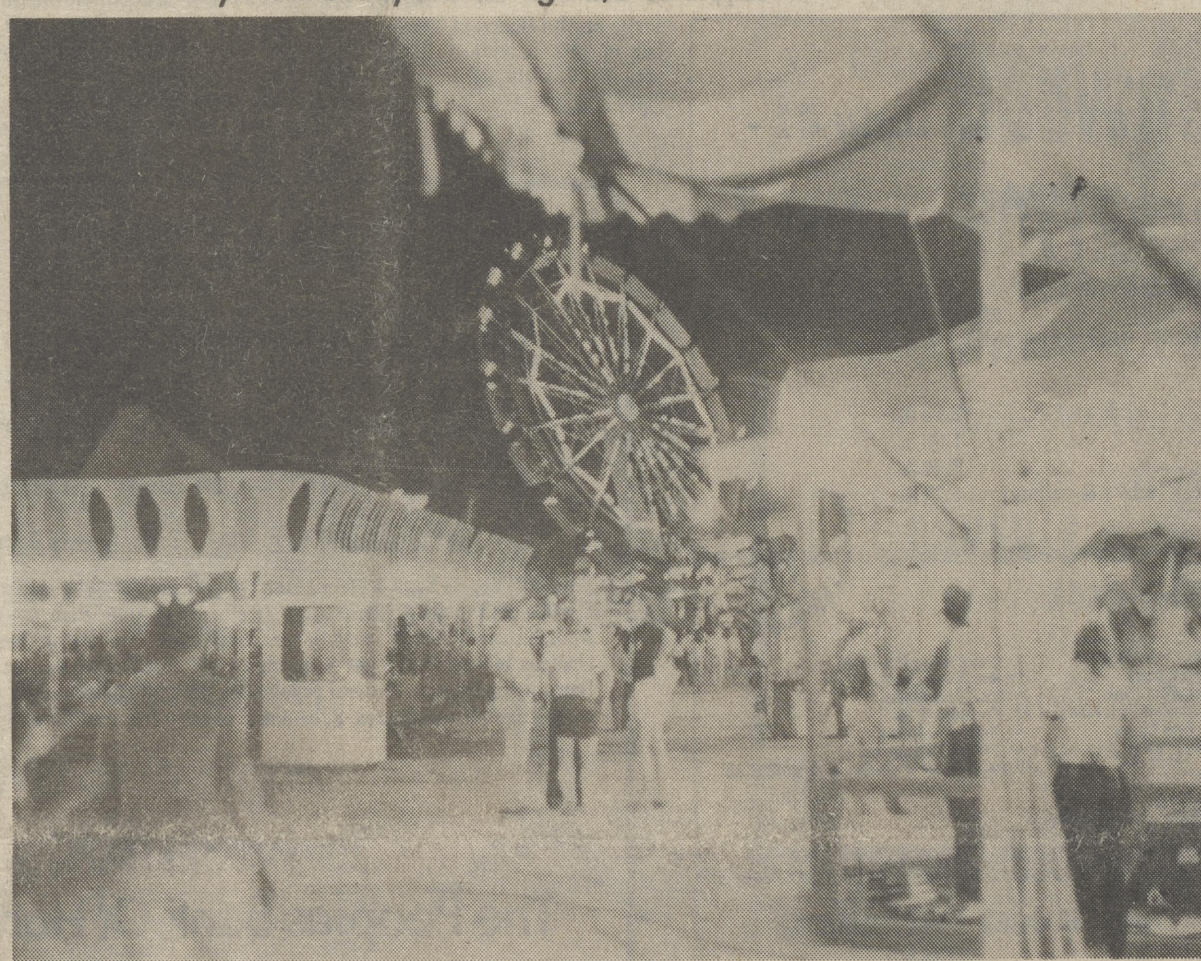

Circus is the largest outdoor show today. From a meager beginning it now travels coast to coast with stops in 40 cities nationwide. Mr. Tom Bentley and Mr. Chuck Clancy are the producers of the show. Each came from different backgrounds, met during their employment tenure with another circus, and formed Bentley Brothers Circus in 1977. Today they bring quality entertainment at reasonable family prices to the American public.

Bentley Brothers is proud to present performers from the four corners of the world. The Zerbinis present daring acrobatic, bareback, equestrian, mastery extraordinary. Buck Steele Pachyderms (elephants) perform with speed and precision and timing in routines that go beyond the imagination of others. Alan Gold challenges his Lords of the Wild by working both lions and tigers in the same cage at the same time. Rex Peterson presents dancing horse trained by Glen Randel, horse trainer for the Hollywood stars. All this plus clowns, jugglers, aerialists, trapeze artists and much more in a two and a half hour show can fill the circus goer with chills, spills, laughter and fun.

Nightowl/Ray Baldwin are tops in county talent

Nightowl of Salisbury, Maryland, and Ray Baldwin of Georgetown walked away with the trophies, the prize money and the promise of free 6 hour recording sessions at Birch Studios in Secretary, Md. in the 1982 version of the Country Music Talent Contest at the Delaware State Fair. This year's competition was a bit different in that it offered first and second prizes in two categories rather than just one. Baldwin was the individual winner; Nightowl took group honors.

Second place in the individual competition was captured by a young man from Felton, Delaware, William R. McCleary, Jr. In the group category, a perennial entry, the Denise Rene Band of Downingtown, PA, came in second. The second place winners took home $25 in cash and a trophy.

Although there were several last minute cancellations and "no-shows", eighteen acts did take the improvised stage in the show arena at the fair to compete before a full house.

Entries included several local groups that were new this year. From Harrington, the Asbury Quartet - Keith Burgess, Dale Jarrell, Jim Olson and Matt Burgess. From Felton, a group of teens put together a group calling itself Nocturnal Flight with singer Pam Kreer, Tommy Lord and Greg Grimm on guitars and Scott Dill on drums. The Milford Seniors Plus One included their senior center director, Leilani Wall of Milford was a contestant in the individual competition.

Touch of Country a popular group from Greenwood, which entered last year's country music talent contest returned and got another rousing reception this year.

Other Delaware entries were the Gamblers of Dover; Ray Absher of Bridgeville; Kay Ellis of Laurel, Kevin Short of Georgetown, Genuine Dill of Dagsboro and The Dalton Gang of Seaford.

From farther afield came Destiny of Crisfield, MD; Native Son of Jarrettsville, MD and Rosemary Mitter from Philadelphia, PA.

At the conclusion of the show there was a square dance demonstration by the Diamond State Twirlers and Levis and Lace.

Dennis Hazzard of WAFB emceed the show, sound arrangements were by Raymond Brown.

Boy Scout Troop #76 of Harrington is on the move, according to Scoutmaster Donald Draper and Committee Chairperson Cindy Carey.

Scout Troop 76

American Legion Post No. 7 CKRT both have made a contribution to the troop for needed equipment, and all other civic organizations are urged to do the same for this very worthwhile local youth activity. Howard and Mildred Wagner contributed a set of flatware for the use of the boys in their outdoor meal preparations.

Scouting needs boys and boys need Scouting. The learning that goes on within the troop's activities enhances the education one receives in school and helps to create a well-rounded youth program for our future citizens.

All boys of the community regardless of race, creed, or color, are invited to join Boy Scout Troop No. 76 program by attending its weekly meetings at Asbury United Methodist Church, sponsor of the Troop, located at the corner of Weiner and Liberty Streets in Harrington, on the second floor of the rear of the building on the Liberty St. side.

Boy Scout Troop #76 has an enviable history and has had many prominent citizens on its rolls at one time, so come on out any Wednesday night a 7:30 p.m. and join a get-up-and go youth group!

I wonder if I could have a flat tire?

Premarital checkups no longer required

Couples who want to get married in Delaware no longer are required to have a premarital physical examination and blood test for syphilis.

Governor Pierre S. duPont IV today signed Senate Bill 642, which removes the premarital examination requirement. Delaware now joins 15 other states which have eliminated or do not have the premarital syphilis test requirement. All other marriage requirements in the state remain the same.

The bill was introduced by Senator Herman M. Holloway, Sr., D-Wilmington, and had the support of the Delaware Medical Society and the Delaware Public Health Association. Dr. Mahadeo P. Verma, director of the Division of Public Health laboratory and president of the Delaware Public Health Association, explained that the premarital physical examination and syphilis test was enacted in 1953 to prevent and control syphilis, primarily in newborns. However, during the past ten years, according to Dr. Verma, testing of premarital couples has not yielded any significant number of cases of infectious syphilis.

Not one case of infectious syphilis has been uncovered in about 75,000 premarital tests administered in Delaware since 1973. Syphilis is still a problem in Delaware, with at least 26 cases reported to date this year. However, according to Public Health officials, a more effective way of preventing congenital syphilis is to test a woman during pregnancy.

Letter to the Editor

Another opinion about the C.A.T. scores

In an article in The Harrington Journal last week Dr. Athur Gilbert, Lake Forest Supervisor of Curriculum and Special Programs, expressed his pleasure with the C.A.T. scores of our students. He commented that "...we're competing against ourselves....improving on past performance is even more important." I wonder if the attitude of Dr. Gilbert, and other administrators in education across the nation, is a wise attitude and also, does it help our children?

Not only did the Lake Forest C.A.T. scores compare favorably in state rank in 1982, but they also compare favorably in state and national ranking the three previous years. In 1981, a disappointment was felt because the Jr. High School students "fell down" in comprehension, a disaster that occurred in the national ranking of scores also, and for which we teachers at Lake Forest were given no explanation as to cause, only that we must work harder at teaching comprehension. This year's report of the C.A.T. scores did not mention comprehension as a weakness or strength; however, it seems to be a matter of great concern to educators everywhere.

To approach the question of teaching thinking skills by asking students and teachers to work harder, is, to me, like playing a nasty game. Teachers and students will honestly tell you that they couldn't work any harder than they have these four years. The C.A.T. scores, being generally above national scores, testify to this fact. Then if this is true, we must return to the question why our thinking skills are among the lower scores in the upper grades?

I pose the hypothesis that the importance of thinking skills in the primary and intermediate grade is not recognized enough in the curricular requirements of a teacher's daily schedule. To put it another way, the specific content of the curricula that a teacher must cover in the pressure of a day's work does not allow time for students to think and reflect. Another reason is that the specific content taught is not related to the child's life, here and now, and a collection of facts to be memorized and forgotten is not meaningful education. If you think that facts cannot be forgotten, ask yourself what you learned in the elementary grades, such as, what is the capital of Arkansas or how do you take the square root of a number. A collection of facts does not make a future successful parent or a better citizen. A good vocabulary may, because words help one to express abstract ideas and enable one to define a problem, relate it to information of the past, and find a solution. Yet, the Lake Forest C.A.T. scores point out that reading vocabulary as one of its student weaknesses.

However hard a teacher or student works, the fact remains that to learn a word and make it your own, you need to say and use the words 16 times. In a school day there is hardly time for a student to learn 5 - 10 new words in a new reading lesson, no less to use a new word 16 times. What are meaningful words related to a child's life, here and now? The word "circuitous" appears on the end of the book test for the 4-2 reader?

We parents, if we look back, have some treasured memories of early school days. Do we recall a teacher who allowed us time to learn a poem, put on a spontaneous class play, relate current events to history, take a neighborhood walk?

But, today? How many of our children are happy in school? Does it really matter if they are happy in school or not? Can hardworking teachers even give the kids the time to express how they feel? Do kids tell us about the stress and anxiety they feel in having to take the C.A.T. - or any test?

Do kids tell you how they feel to be made to compete for "top" grades, and how lonesome this feeling is, to compete with others, rather than to have the happiness of non-competition in learning?

But grades are important! Here on Delmarva, we are told that we are in a protected "pocket", different from the rest of the country. For instance, the Drug Culture did not reach us until 5 years after it had invaded our neighboring states. How long will it take us to realize that our country is producing "failure" schools and "failure self-concepts" in the majority of our schools today? It's hard to believe that in one study of students in Los Angeles, 85% - 90% had failure self-concepts. Dr. William Glasser writes, "In the public schools of this country, there is an aura of failure." So many kids have expectations of failure, even when they started school with perceptions of success!

Expectation of failure is painful! How does it come about and how is it related to test results? In holding up the California Achievement Tests as an achievement goal, to "improve on past performance", which was already good do we take into account the individual differences in children? Do we look at 5 or 6 children in a class of thirty who are rewarded with praise, recognition and "A's", but that the rest of the class, no matter how hard they try, can never receive that "highest" achievement? There is no way that a child of average or below average intelligence can compete for an "A", for esteem and rewarding praise. They are told to work harder! All of us are under-achievers in something or in some subject, and no amount of pressure on teacher or student or parent will change this fact.

Other individual differences exist. Children who have parents disenchanted with one another, or about to become disengaged, have emotional problems. They cannot concentrate. Kids who have learning disabilities due to brain functioning, cannot compete and work under handicaps in the regular grades, such as the right hemisphere dominant child, so good at sports, art, music, math, but they simply can't read as well as children who have left brain dominance.

Yes, we have individual differences! Yet, we continue to fit the child to the curriculum instead of the curriculum to the child. We ask each student to achieve as high as the next - and they CANNOT. It's beginning to become clearer in my mind why kids get the idea they are going to fail. It must be very painful to know that as hard as you try, you may let your teacher down, or you did not do as well as your friend in class. A self-fulfilling prophecy of failure leads to failure.

Often and often, I have wanted to console a down-cast, discouraged student by telling him that God loves him and accepts him as he is. We have a loving God and a Savior. Sometimes I believe that when a kid gets rebellious and delinquent that he believes the humanism pervading our school contents. Teachers know they are teaching God's children and they work hard at teaching. The present day grading system locks the teachers into this competitive system. Tests will make cowards of us all. Instead of teaching thinking skills through reading and writing and speaking, what do we give the kids? Paper and pencil tests!

I cannot close without mentioning the Economy Company Basal Readers. I want you parents to know how difficult these readers are. For instance, the basal readers published by Scott, Foresman & Co., used in some school districts, are a year advanced in difficulty to other basal readers used elsewhere, except the Economy Co. readers. The latter are a year in advance of the Scott Foresman readers as I understand the facts. You might say that Lake Forest children are reading two years above the level of most other students in other districts or states. Fine! We're getting a good education. Children being transferred from our district often are placed two years ahead in reading! Some children coming into our district are indignant and hostile because they are told they can't read our reader at the same level as their reader from a former school. They are put back and put down.

Now the Economy Book Co. like other book companies, publishes "competency tests", or "end-of-the-book tests" and they have published the fact that if any student passes these tests in the Reinforcement area, or at 65% or above, he passes. He is ready for the next book in the series. However, our School Board members, our administrators, and even some of our elementary school teachers want to make it even harder for kids to pass, by setting the line at 85% for passing. What happens to the student's self-concept? He feels he passed, maybe not by 85%, but perhaps 79% or 82%. Should his teacher tell him that he has to repeat the book, while his friends go on to the challenge of a new reader? If his teacher knows that he was motivated to work to his full capacity, can she truthfully tell him that he wasn't working hard enough? If he reacts with justifiable negativism, feeling of failure hatred of school, what is to be said for the grading system?

Fire gutted the interior, burned a large part of the roof and had Harrington Firemen pitching hay and straw at a barn owned by Mrs. Warrington at 210 Commerce Street.

Dr. Maynard H. Mires Resigns

The Board of Directors of the Sussex Society of Archaeology and History accepted with regret, the resignation of Dr. Maynard H. Mires as president of the organization. The former Vice-President, Mrs. Madeline Arnold Dunn of Laurel, succeeds him in this position. As of this date, Mr. Paul Morris of Seaford, will be the Vice-President. Back issues of the society's publication "The Archeolog" can be obtained by contacting the editor: Dr. James E. Marvil, 124 West 3rd Street, Lewes, Delaware.

In the normal curve of distribution of grades, would 50% be passing for an average child of average ability? If such a child passed only 50% of the grade content, and the school flunked him, would a court of law, in a test case, uphold the school or the parent?

If a child hates school, and he can't legally stay home, what's he supposed to do? Become a bum?

There is no end to the demands and pressures in school for grades. Children seek recognition, even to inviting punishment for antics and anti-socialism. Actually, they seek and need self-esteem. Although a conforming child, or a bright verbal child is apt to come out on top for grades, I wonder if they don't feel isolation from their peers and friends, too, because of competition for grades. They also need time to practice communication skills and thinking skills, not more worksheets.

Parents might want to think and reflect about the problems of grades. They might even ask their children to give them feedback on the success-failure syndromes. Kids are usually forthright and honest and usually complimented when we are interested enough to ask their thoughts and how they feel about tests and grades. How do they feel about school?

Gab Fest

The long, hot days and the high humidity tell us that July is here, long known as the month of the Full Buck Moon, when the deer grow antlers. For long periods of time now we will struggle to breathe easily and keep to our usual routine. This is an odd time of the year to start housecleaning, but that is what is going on at Trail's End. I was very fortunate in getting excellent help, so I will "take tarts while they're passing!" My spring cleaning usually merges with my fall cleaning anyhow. My sister always says that when the house is out of order and topsy-turvy, everything screams at you, but when it is all neat and clean everything quiets right down, and she's right. All problems seem more bearable when the house is neat and sparkly clean.

Blueberry picking time is here again, and I'm sure many of you are at it. I passed up the picking this year, but Ellen shared some of hers with me, so we shall enjoy blueberry pies this winter.

I believe I told you about my geraniums going hog-wild this summer as soon as they got their feet in the good earth. The big one that we kept in the dining room all winter in a huge plastic tub has thirty-four clusters of brilliant red.

CLAUDE N. CAHALL
Claude N. Cahall, 80, founder of Cahall's Gas Service Co. of Harrington, died Monday, July 26, 1982, in his home from complications of a heart condition after an illness of several years.

Mr. Cahall, of 10 E. Camden-Wyoming Ave., Camden, started Cahall's Gas Service Co. in 1931. The firm was the first to distribute bottled gas in lower Delaware. He retired and sold the business in 1963.

He was an honorary lifetime member of the Harrington Fire Company, having served as president and chief during many years of active service. He also was a director of the Delaware State Fair, a member of the Delmarva Gas Association, and a member of Temple Lodge 9, AF&AM, of Milford. He was a 32nd degree Mason.

He was a member of the Scottish Rite Consistory of Wilmington, the Kent & Sussex Scottish Rite Club, and was a charter member of Nur Temple of Wilmington. He was a member of Whatcoat United Methodist Church in Camden.

He is survived by his wife, Agatha Hughes Cahall; two daughters, Mrs. Robert W. Oggenfuss of Wilmington and Mrs. Thomas E. Minner of Seaford; a sister, Pearl S. Lotz of Wilmington; and five grandchildren.

Services will be Thursday afternoon at 2 in the McKnatt Funeral Home, 50 Commerce St., Harrington, where friends may call tonight, with Masonic services at 8. Burial will be in Hollywood Cemetery, Harrington.

A page in an old almanac caught my eye just now. It is a portrait of Rubens Pearle (1784-1865) holding the first geranium plant to bloom in the U.S.A. (1801). The portrait is by Rubens brother, Rembrandt (1778-1860). Both were the sons of the Charles Willson Pearle, famous for his portraits of George Washington. This portrait was loaned to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City, upon the occasion of its loan exhibition of American Art from American collectors, by Pauline E. Woodworth, in the Spring of 1963.

July is also the month for the lovely Rose of Sharon and my bushes are full of bloom. Now, I have the morning chore of arranging the beautiful glads and roses that Dad brings in. I'm glad he has this special hobby because it gives us so much beauty in the house. Reading on in the almanac, I came upon this quaint old adage: "When the well's dry, we know the worth of water!" Here at Trail's End we have just gotten on top of a bad problem with the kitchen sink drainage, and I realized that I had never fully appreciated the dishwasher until I could not use it. The next week we had to repair the plumbing in the downstairs bathroom, which necessitated a lot of running the stairs to the other bath. My grandfather had a saying similar to this: "You never miss the water till the well runs dry!" How true. Let's resolve to take just five minutes a day to be thankful for the things we take for granted.

HAY FEVER
Hay fever sufferers sometimes report 'miraculous' cures due to eating honey. Unstrained honey contains pollen particles (that cause hay fever). Some are taken into the bloodstream unchanged by digestion. This tiny irritant triggers the system to build up resistance to the foreign substance. So by eating honey produced locally, the body just may build immunity to the runny noses and sneezes of hay fever.

5 join racing Hall of Fame

GOSHEN, N.Y. - One man and four horses have been elected Immortals to harness racing's Hall of Fame of the Trotter by the museum's Board of Trustees. The Board's President, Elbridge T. Gerry, announced the induction of Edwin T. Keller, and standardbreds Bye Bye Byrd, Dottie's Pick, Hickory Pride and Hickory Smoke. This brings the number of Immortals to 156 persons and 128 horses.

Ed Keller, of Wrentham, Mass. was often called "a walking encyclopedia of harness racing." In a lifetime devoted to the sport, he served at various times as official, general manager, racing secretary, announcer, publicist, program director and clerk of the course at over 140 tracks in the United States and Canada. Before the advent of the starting gate, he also served as starter, starting top races such as the Hambletonian and Little Brown Jug. A prolific writer, he contributed to virtually every harness publication.

Bye Bye Byrd, Horse of the Year of 1959, retired from racing in 1961 as the leading money-winning standardbred, with more than half a million dollars in earnings. He then became a top sire, with 111 in 2:00. He was the first Horse of the Year to sire another Horse of the Year (Keystone Ore in 1976) and excelled as a broodmare sire. One of his daughters, Niagara Dream, produced the all-time champion Niatross.

More than any other mare or stallion, Dottie's Pick is credited for the foundation of the Armstrong Brothers breeding operation in Canada. A daughter of Adios, she won in excess of $250,000 in purses. The highlight of her racing career came in 1956 when she won a $25,000 match race from Adios Harry. Five of her ten foals were virtually every harness publication.

Hickory Pride's claim to fame was at the stud. Standing at Hempt Farms in Mechanicsburg, PA, he sired 22 2-minute trotters. Many of them became world champions or top stakes winners. Two of his offspring - Fresh Yankee and Keystone Pioneer - earned more than $1 million in purses. Four more, including Carlisle and Cold Comfort, won over half a million.

Hickory Smoke, Hickory Pride's half brother, won the 1957 Hambletonian at DuQuoin with the fastest two heats to date in that race. His get of more than twenty 2-minute performers is equally divided between trotters and pacers. His first crop of 1960 starred Elma, an outstanding racing filly and broodmare. Among Hickory Smoke's progeny is Chiola Hanover, voted Trotter of the Year in 1979.

ARMY/AIR FORCE HOMETOWN NEWS - Army Reserve Pfc. Cynthia Y. Loper, daughter of Margaret E. Harris of 6 Sherwood Court, Dover, DE and Robert S. Loper, Sr., of Felton, DE has completed basic train-

Phone company

[continued from page 1] use customer at a cost of $5 for the line plus $1.50 for $4.50 worth of monthly calls (at the current rate). After the allotment of calls is exhausted the current per call charge would apply. (While central offices now offer measured service to some 60 percent of Diamond State's customers, the capability will eventually extend statewide.)

*A third option for heavy users that would provide unlimited local calling for $5 for the Dial Tone Line plus monthly usage rates of $4.40, $5.00 or $5.70, depending on the classification of the customer's exchange.

The unlimited local calling option is similar to the current individual line flat rate service. Under the proposal, residence customers who decide to stay with this type of local service will pay increases ranging from $2.71 to $3.56 a month, depending on where they are located.

Those who choose one of the other options could have service for less money than they are paying today. A preliminary study shows that more than half of residence customers could save by changing to one of the lower cost options in those locations where it is available.

It comes down to how much a customer uses his phone. Those who use the phone a lot and generate more costs will pay more. Those who use it less could pay less by choosing one of the lower cost options. These two options offer even more savings when the calls are made during discount periods after 9 p.m. and before 9 a.m.

The company proposes to increase the discount on local usage rates between midnight and 7 a.m. to 70 percent. For instance, a three minute call in the local exchange, which costs 5 cents at the day rate, would cost only slightly more than a penny during the discount periods. The present 50 percent discount would apply between 9 p.m. and midnight and between 7 a.m. and 9 a.m.

The do-it-yourself options introduced in Delaware in 1977 were extended in application. Under the proposal, customers—for the first time—would be allowed to wire the inside of their homes or businesses.

When it comes to maintenance of the inside wire, there are more options. To begin with, the charge for maintaining inside wire is being separated from monthly exchange rates under the proposal. Thus, if inside wire needs repair work, a customer could either call the telephone company and pay the company's repair rates, hire a private contractor at his prevailing rates or do the maintenance himself.

The company also proposes an inside wire maintenance option at 35 cents a month for each residence line or business station. This would give customers inside wire repair services by the company at any time without incurring charges for a repairman's visit.

Another change proposed applies to the charge for installing, moving or changing one piece of telephone equipment for another.

Today, service charges are averaged so that someone with a task taking only 15 minutes has to pay as much as someone with a more complicated job lasting an hour.

In the new proposal, Hulihan said, charges to residence customers and certain business customers would be based on the length of time it takes an installer to perform a specific job and also for the materials used on that job. The visit rate would be $25 plus $10 for each 15 minutes of labor with the cost of inside wire included when applicable. The cost of some material, such as jacks would be billed extra.

If a new residence customer picked up equipment at a Diamond State Phone-Center or Pick-up Point and performed the work at home, using existing wiring and jacks, he would have to pay a $56 service charge for the Dial Tone Line connection. Were a company installer to do the work, the customer would pay the $56, the initial visit charge and the time and material charge.

The company also is proposing price increases for local coin calls and Directory Assistance because present pricing does not recover the company's costs of providing these services.

The company proposes to increase Directory Assistance calls in excess of the three call free allowance from 20 cents to 35 cents. These increases would affect only the very few customers who require the company to maintain the service. Only 5 percent of all residence customers and only 9 percent of all business customers ever make enough Directory Assistance calls during a month to be charged.

Local coin rates would increase from 20 cents to 25 cents to cover the cost of furnishing the service. Today all customers are indirectly covering some of the costs of providing coin box service whether they use this service or not. The increase would have no effect on those making legitimate emergency calls because most pay phones have Dial Tone First ability to call police, ambulance or fire departments and 911 is available in New Castle County and Seaford.

The company proposes some reductions in the price of toll calls made within Delaware at distances of up to 30 miles. The proposal would reduce these toll charges by between three and seven cents for the first three minutes, depending upon the distance called.

Business customers will also experience increases in a variety of products and services.

A DOG'S LIFE: Stress and Your Dog

Helpful Information From The ALPO Center For Advanced Pet Study

A healthy dog has the best chance of coping with the stresses of everyday life, a situation too many dog owners neglect.

All sorts of factors can cause stress in dogs. Noisy children, a dog show and a long automobile trip are just a few. If your dog is healthy and has good nutrition reserves, he is better equipped to handle such situations.

How do you know when your dog is at its best? There are several signs dog owners can easily observe themselves including dog behavior, weight, coat and stool. If they are positive, they probably mean that the dog's nutritional reserves are adequate to handle stress. If there's a problem, your dog could be more vulnerable to other health disorders.

To start, look for a shiny coat that is clean, pliant, smooth and free of dandruff. To check for proper weight, feel the dog's rib cage. The ribs should be easily felt with gentle pressure but should not be seen. The dog's behavior should be bright, alert, responsive and interested. Stools should be small, dark, dense and well-formed. If they are often loose, abundant, pale in color or poorly formed, consult your veterinarian.
