

SORRY ABOUT THAT! The bubble is about to burst, and you just can't shove it away. - Thoughts of a long, lazy summer evaporate as students meet the hard cold reality of school openings next week. September 7 is the date - just one long weekend away. Actually the athletes [above, center] were not trying to shove Lake Forest High School out of sight and out of mind. They are members of the 1982 cross country team getting muscles into shape for the season. And the kids behind the balloons were celebrating the conclusion of the summer reading program at the Harrington Public Library.

School board freezes lunch prices

After considering the 1982-83 budget presented by Food Service Supervisor Janice Hinzman, the Lake Forest School Board Monday night agreed to freeze school lunch prices for this year at the 1981-82 level. However, some price break incentives were proposed. There had been a glimmer of hope that the prices, raised last year, could be reduced slightly. However, several factors persuaded against this course of action. Chief among those factors was the need to purchase some new equipment. The budget presented by Mrs. Hinzman showed $26-27,000 set aside for new equipment this year in addition to an almost equal amount carried over from 81-82 for purchases not ordered until near the end of the fiscal year. Previously, the district has received a percentage of federal reimbursement for cafeteria equipment purchased. That money will be available no longer. The local district will have to foot 100% of the cost. Another item is the fact that the 82-83 food service budget figure is a percentage of the overhead costs of maintaining the cafeteria - fuel, utilities, etc. Previously this has been carried by the district and not charged against the food service budget. This year $8,000 (about 15% of the total overhead cost) is shown in the budget presented by Mrs. Hinzman.

Prices Set

The board set lunch prices at last year's rates as follows:

Elementary lunch	$.60
Jr. High Lunch	.65
High School Lunch	.75
Reduced Price Lunch	.40
Breakfast	.35
Reduced Price Breakfast	.20
Adult Lunches	$1.25

-Price Incentives Offered-
Mrs. Hinzman told the board that although lunch prices were raised last year, Lake Forest participation in the lunch program has remained high - about 75%. As a further incentive to buying lunch at school she proposed offering a two week (10 day) lunch ticket at a $1.00 discount for paying students. Those who took advantage of the offer would save about .10 a day off the cost of a Type A lunch. She also suggested a once-a-month 25 cent discount on a specific lunch menu. Consideration of the equipment purchase was tabled until a future meeting.

-Bus Discipline Policy-
Lake Forest Superintendent Dr. Edward Powell reviewed a proposed bus discipline policy setting procedure for

Nanticokes will powwow Sept. 11 and 12

Visitors to the 1982 Nanticoke Powwow to be held on Saturday and Sunday, September 11-12 will experience an especially exciting program of activities this year. In addition to the colorful tribal regalia, traditional music and dancing, authentic Native American arts and crafts and variety of foods, the public will be delighted by the talents of two announcers - John "Red Bird" Moore and Gerard Tsonakwa.

Red Bird is a Bird Clan Cherokee from North Carolina. Each summer he and his family entertain at Frontier Town in Ocean City, MD where they are noted for their beautiful outfits and distinctive dance styles. With his daughter, Screaming Eagle, son, Laughing Wolf and younger brother, Little Deer, Red Bird will be an exciting addition to the Powwow program.

Complementing Red Bird's energy, humor and enthusiasm will be the warm and sensitive style of Gerard Tsonakwa, an Abenaki Indian originally from Quebec, Canada. Returning for his 3rd year as announcer, Tsonakwa is familiar to Powwow visitors as a master story-teller and interpreter of Native American culture. He has recently returned from a summer lecture tour of England, Holland and Austria and will have many new adventures to relate.

Another feature of the 1982 Powwow will be the souvenir program book, Moccasin Tracks in Time, containing an illustrated tribal history by Charles C. Clark IV, son of present chief Kenneth S. Clark, Sr. This is the first time a Nanticoke history has been related by a member of the Nanticoke tribe.

In keeping with Nanticoke efforts to document and preserve their heritage and culture, this year's Powwow activities will be videotaped by Video Production Company of Snow Hill, MD. The film will be used as part of a documentary on the Nanticoke people to be available to schools, libraries and organizations early next spring. This project is being partly funded by a grant from the Delaware Humanities Forum, an affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Admission to the Powwow is free, with a $1.00 per car donation for parking. Visitors are encouraged to form carpools and to bring folding chairs. All proceeds benefit the Nanticoke Museum Building Fund. The event will be held rain or shine on the property of William and Joan Norwood on Rd. 297, off Rt. 24, near Oak Orchard, DE; approximately 7 miles east of Millsboro and 12 miles west of Rt. 1, Midway. Signs will be posted.

The schedule of activities includes an opening ceremony and traditional dancing to begin at noon on Saturday, with a second dance performance at 5 p.m. An outdoor worship service to which the public is invited will be held at the Powwow site at 11 a.m. Sunday, with the opening ceremony and dancing to begin at 2 p.m. Activities will close at 5 p.m. For further information contact the Nanticoke Center at 945-3400, 9 a.m. weekdays.

Harrington construction project nears completion

Work on West Street in Harrington consisting of installing a new drainage pipe measuring 28 inches in diameter is nearing completion. The new pipe is to correct the flooding on West Street. "The town is also flushing out the drainage lines and cleaning out catch basins which should correct the flooding," said Donnie Minner of Harrington who is one of the State Supervisors on the job.

The construction is being carried out by Sparr Associates, whose headquarters is in Wilmington. The cost of the construction will be $136,603. In addition to the drainage line on West Street, the State is laying 38 inch drainage pipe from Rt. 14 (Commerce St.) south on the Farmington Road approximately 650 feet. They are also installing 110 feet of pipe along Fleming Street (the street that runs at right angles to the Farmington Rd.)

Editor's Note: The Fleming Street described here is not to be confused with the Fleming Street in the center of town. In 1911, a proposed Fleming Manor was laid out with four streets designated - Fleming Street, Farmington Street, St. Elizabeth's Ave. and Vernon Ave. The streets are paper streets. The right-of-way was reserved, but the streets were not actually built. The drainage pipe described above goes along the proposed Fleming Street to a drainage ditch.

The project covers drainage and paving on West Street from Center Street to Delaware 14. The paving is to be two 11-foot wide lanes. The road will be resurfaced with hot mix.

From Delaware 14 out the Farmington Road, the project involves just a closed drainage system extending about a half a mile from Delaware 14.

Along with the work on West Street, the State is reinstalling a four inch water line from Milby and West streets to the Commerce Street intersection.

Although the majority of the project is state funded, the town is paying for the difference between two inch and four inch pipe along a section of West Street.

Target date for completing the project is Sept. 30th.

Father Charles L. Brown III is busy in his second year as pastor of St. Bernadette's in Harrington and St. John's in Milford.

St. Bernadette's pastor in second year at two-church parish

Charles L. Brown III, who serves St. John's Parish and is pastor of both St. Bernadette's in Harrington and St. John's in Milford, expresses optimism for the local church as he works into his second year here. Father Brown says "My hope is that as we grow together as a parish -- we can get more involved in the community." With the "friendliness, cooperation and willingness to get involved" he has seen in the local people, he appears confident that hope can be realized.

Father Brown served several urban parishes in New Castle County before coming to Milford and Harrington in June 1981. He likes the more rural atmosphere, but finds he puts a lot more miles on his car here. He's now resigned to traveling at least 16 miles (the distance of a round trip between Harrington and Milford) when he goes anywhere. Besides working between the two churches, and with parishioners scattered over a fairly large area, he makes frequent trips upstate.

Even though his time must be divided between two churches Father Brown does not feel he has any less time for those he serves than he would in a larger city or suburban parish with possibly two or three pastors, but maybe 2500 families. St. Bernadette's has about 100 families, St. John's a somewhat larger number.

Born in Philadelphia, he moved with his family to Elsmere when he was ten. He attended public schools for twelve years, graduating from Conrad High School (now a middle school). After high school he went to St. Mary's College in St. Mary's, Kentucky and then Catholic University in Washington, D.C. His first year there was 1963 when President Kennedy was assassinated. Like many people he remembers vividly what he was doing when he heard the news. He had overslept a class and was heading for the refectory (dining hall). At first he assumed it was some sort of accident, with Kennedy wounded perhaps in the leg. The thought of assassination did not cross his mind, and he found that others, too, could not believe the news.

He was ordained in May 1967 and appointed to St. Matthew's in Woodcrest (about three blocks from his old high school neighborhood). In 1971 he became an associate at Immaculate Heart of Mary in Liftwood (a northern Wilmington-Brandywine Hundred). He was there until 1976 when he was assigned to Holy Rosary in Claymont where he remained until moving downstate.

A major goal here, he says, is getting people to become more involved in their parish and the parish more involved in the community. Toward that end the local parish council is involved in reorganization so that its committees can be more effective. A workshop concentrating on goal setting, decision making and reflection on

Local resident experiences own horror show

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr.

Connie Gray has been hearing a strange noise in her living room ceiling for about two months. It is approximately the length of time she has been living at 201 Delaware Ave. in Harrington. The house is a two story dwelling at the Northwest corner of Delaware Avenue and Liberty Streets owned by Mrs. Claude Cahall of Camden.

"The noise was usually noticed at night. We would be sitting in the living room on the sofa and we would hear this noise directly over our heads. At first it wasn't too loud, but Saturday night it got to be a real racket. There was something in the ceiling running back and forth between the ceiling joists." Ricky Wheatley and Valerie Porter, friends of Mrs. Gray along with her sister Ruth Kates decided to find out what was up there.

Wheatley decided to try his luck with a kitchen knife. "So Ricky kept stabbing away at the ceiling until it ran to the far end of the ceiling near the outside wall. It fell through the ceiling at that point, and we could see that it was an opossum. The tail and most of the body had fallen through the ceiling," said Mrs. Gray.

Wheatley then pulled the opossum through the ceiling and covered it with a trash can when it hit the floor.

Telephone company asks rate hike

The Diamond State Telephone Company asked the Public Service Commission to approve an approximate $1 million rate increase under bond which would increase most customers' bills by 32 cents effective Sept. 25.

Under PSC regulations, revenues can be increased up to $1 million under bond while the full amount of a general rate increase is deliberated. On July 27, Diamond State filed for an $18.4 million increase in annual intrastate revenues. The bond guarantees that customers would receive refunds for the additional portion of their payments should those increases subsequently be disallowed by the PSC in the full rate case decision.

Examples of the effect the rates under bond would have on typical residence customers would be: a Wilmington individual residence flat rate customer presently paying $7.69 a month would pay $8.01; a Dover customer with that same type of service would go from $6.44 to $6.76 and a Georgetown customer from $7.29 to $7.61.

Diamond State Telephone said the present business and residence exchange rates are substantially below what it costs the company to provide those services. Placing the proposed increases for rates under bond on exchange rates is a reasonable step in the gradual process of moving the price charged customers closer to costs, the company said. The proposal also equitably distributes the rate increase over the majority of customers, the company noted, to minimize the impact on any one particular group of customers.

The company said that the proposals filed July 27, and now pending before the PSC, offer money-saving options for residence exchange customers who do not make a lot of outgoing local calls in a month. A preliminary study by the company indicates that more than half its residence customers could save by changing to one of two lower cost options here and when they are available. Customers who average fewer than 90 local calls a month, for example, could save about $4 a month by taking a low-use option instead of the proposed unlimited calling service.

Number 1 in a series of memoranda from Milford Memorial Hospital, helping you to KNOW YOUR HOSPITAL -

"HOSPITAL VISITORS - PART I"

Milford Memorial Hospital has always encouraged family and friends to visit patients and has visiting hours on most Nursing units from 12 noon until 8 p.m. with a limit of "2" visitors to a patient. However, for the protection of its patients and the preservation of a quiet environment conducive to rest and recuperation, restrictions on visiting privileges are necessary. One restriction on hospital visiting is in regard to children.

Children under 12 years of age are NOT PERMITTED to visit patients anywhere in the Hospital - with one special exception. If a mother has given birth to a baby and is a patient in the Maternity Unit, her children under 12 may visit her in her room between 7 and 8 p.m. (if free of infectious disease). Hospital security personnel will enforce this policy.

The policy of restricting hospital visits by children under 12 years of age is enforced by hospitals throughout the United States. It is intended to protect patients and newborns from exposure to diseases and other infections and to prevent unwelcome noise or disturbances in patient areas. Also, please do not bring children to the Hospital and leave them unattended in the lobby. They may get into mischief or even injure themselves.

KNOW YOUR HOSPITAL and help it continue to be an institution our community can be proud of.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,
I wish to clarify a statement made in your report on the Public Hearing and workshop which took place on Monday, August 23, 1982.

In your report, published on August 25, 1982, you stated, "Following the public hearing, the Council met for a workshop session where it was decided that certain items should be rearranged on the budget to create surpluses or balanced categories rather than deficits."

I point out that no decision was made. A proposal was made by the Mayor, Mr. Mann, relating to the subject changes. Discussion was held on the proposals and nothing more. Any action or decisions made by Council must, by law, be made at regular or special Council meetings.

It is unfortunate that the word decided was used in your report, for it can convey to your readers that Council is taking actions which are not legal.

Ray Gagne
Councilman, Fifth Ward

Boar sale to be held

The 1982 Delaware Boar Test ends with a sale on Tuesday, Sept. 7, at 6:30 p.m. at the state fairsgrounds in Harrington. Thirty-seven boars finished this year's test with an average daily gain of 2.13 pounds per day, a feed efficiency of 2.41 pounds of feed per pound of gain, and backfat thickness averaging .72 inches.

The leading pen was three Durocs owned by Edwards and Edwards of Rich Square, N.C. This pen had a feed conversion of 2.07 lbs. of feed per lb. of gain and a daily gain of 2.4 lbs. The highest ranking individual pig came from this pen. This boar had an index of 153, indicating that he was 58% better than the test average.

Pigs were also evaluated for soundness of feet and legs as well as underlines. Those that did not pass this test have been culled. Breeds represented in the sale are Landrace, Duroc and Yorkshire. All boars are guaranteed breeders and will be sold subject to the code of standards adopted by the National Association of Swine Records.

Delaware's annual boar test was initiated several years ago for the purpose of helping the state's growing swine industry obtain high quality male breeding stock. The test is co-sponsored by the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service and the Delaware Pork Producers Association.

A boar of proven superior performance can dramatically improve the economics of swine production, says University of Delaware livestock specialist Dr. Richard Fowler, who encourages Delaware growers to participate in the sale.

A catalog of sale boars is available by calling Fowler's office at 302-738-2523.

TRIM classes begin this month

TRIM, a program offering Training in Rhythmic Exercise with Music, will start another year in this area this month. Classes are planned for Felton, Milford and Dover.

Reflecting the popularity of aerobic exercise and dance routines, TRIM combines aerobic and isotonic principles in its program. The word aerobic, literally meaning "with oxygen", is applied to exercise that is designed to enhance the ability of those organs that deliver oxygen to the body. The routines should increase the capacity of the lungs to hold oxygen and make the heart a more efficient pump, sending more oxygen-carrying blood through the system with less effort, i.e. fewer beats per minute. A more efficient pump is also one that should sustain less wear and tear.

In addition to the aerobic, TRIM is programmed around isotonic principles. That means muscle tone and exercise routines that are specifically planned to tone up certain muscles. Put together, the two parts of the program should mean feeling good and looking good, too.

Of course the ingredient that makes all these "good-for-you" routines palatable is the fun of working with a group and of doing the routines to music.

In addition to TRIM, there are a number of programs which offer this kind of exercise. Most of them concentrate only on the aerobic. TRIM instructor Joyce Simmons says there are three important things to look for when shopping around for a good program:

- 1) There should be a sufficient warm up period.
- 2) It should incorporate a series of faster-paced aerobic routines lasting for about 30 minutes.

Happy Birthday, September Folks! Smile! The sweetest joy, the wildest woe is love. Baily.

He chose as his topic from the Old Testament, Amos, Chapter 7, Verse 12. Isaiah, Chapter 6, Jeremiah, Chapter 1, Ezekiel, Chapter 2. Father Brown closed with a prayer and song "Amazing Grace." It was a most inspirational hour. Present were Frances Wright, Tony Perrone, Cecil Meredith, Mildred Vincent, Gladys Hill, Marion and Roxanne Brown, Mary Sapp, Catherine Donovan, Thelma Legates, Anna Mae Short, Mamie Adams, Ethel Holden, Etzel McCready Elwood Morris, Clara Judy, Bertha Dean, Margaret Kirby, Cleora Vincent Florence Minner, Amelia McSweeney and Cecilia Kalief.

Those making the visit, "Andy" Anderson, Etzel McCready, Ola Tildon, Jo Burke, Mamie Adams, Florence Minner, Elwood Morris, Gladys Hill, Mildred Vincent, Tony Perrone, Roxanne and Marion Brown and Bertha Dean.

Heritage Day, Sept. 18, 1982, promises to be a truly GREAT day at Harrington. The Jolly Timers are practicing for it and want you to come by and listen and watch when it is their time on the program! I know you will be glad you did! Best wishes to ALL. Thank everyone for everything and don't forget the Fall Bazaar as you go thru the house and garage. We have always done so well on our white elephant tables. Will appreciate any donations. Tasty meals by Manna. See you at the Center. Faith.

August is a quiet, brooding month; but, often when we've gone through a day of intense heat, just before sunset an east wind will come across the meadows, bringing the salty tang of the nearby ocean, and we are revived and invigorated. Of course, as you have heard me say many times, I have a thing about the east wind. In it is the breath of the seas, the hint of foreign lands, the deep mystery of the universe and I stand at the kitchen window fountain reunion.

TI, called August a quiet month. He says: "The quiet August noon has come; a slumberous silence fills the sky; the fields are still, the woods are dumb, in glassy sleep the waters lie." Shelly gets a big more flowery with his tribute to August: "The whispering waves were half asleep, the clouds were gone to play; And on the bosom of the deep, the smile of Heaven lay."

Do you know the folks back in 1884 thought they were very modern. The editor of the Almanac says in that year: "There was a time when each man had to make his own shoes, weave his own cloth; shoe his own horse and hew out the frame of his own house. That time has passed and it is well that it has." I'm sure this was a big step forward, but I wonder what those same folk would say to the instant cooking mixes, the TV dinners, the dishwashers and the clothes dryers!

Occasionally Dad and I get overcome with a bit of nostalgia and are sorely tempted to get us a Jersey cow and revel in that thick yellow cream and sweet country butter, but common-sense prevails and we meekly go back to swallowing our pills and eating our diet margarine.

Did you know that the universal use of butter in this country is very much a matter of habit? In the time of Christ, and previous to that, butter was chiefly used as an ointment in the baths, and as medicine. Even today, in very warm countries, its use is limited and olive oil is used instead.

I see that the current magazines are all dealing with the problem of giving advice to everyone on how to get your skin in shape after a summer of blistering sun. That is all well and good, but I'm reminded of a little story that helps us to remember that true loveliness comes from within. A dear old Quaker lady was asked what gave her such a lovely complexion and what cosmetics she used. She replied gently: "I use for the lips, Truth; for the voice, Prayer; for the eyes, Pity; for the hands, Charity; for the figure, Uprightness; and for the heart, Love!" Well, we know that these helps will most certainly guarantee a move lovely individual.

Sept. is "Preschool Immunization Month"

Immunization levels are high among school children because of the recent law requiring immunizations for school entry. Many infants and preschool children, however, have not completed their immunizations - leaving them needlessly exposed to serious illness.

Governor Pierre S. duPont has proclaimed the month of September as "Preschool Immunization Month" to highlight this need to immunize children at an early age.

Joseph H. Beaver, coordinator of the Division of Public Health Immunization Program, points out that most children are born with a natural immunity to disease. However, that natural immunity lasts only a few months.

"This is why doctors begin a child's immunizations at about two months of age," says Beaver. "By the time a child reaches 15 months, he or she have completed a basic series of immunizations."

The basic series provides protection against seven preventable diseases: polio, diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis (whooping cough), measles, mumps and rubella.

To help increase immunization levels among preschool children, the Division has been working closely with day care centers for the past few years. Day care centers now require proof of immunizations similar to the school requirements.

A recent Division survey of day care centers was very encouraging, according to Beaver. The percentage of children in day care with adequate immunizations rose from slightly over 50 percent in 1979 to nearly 90 percent in 1982.

Day care centers, however, serve only a small percentage of the state's preschool population. The Governor's proclamation urges all parents and guardians of preschool children to "participate fittingly" in the observance of "Preschool Immunization Month."

The best way to participate, says Beaver, is to check your records to be sure your children's immunizations are completed or on schedule.

Immunizations are available from your family physician or Division of Public Health child health clinics in State Service Centers throughout the state.

MISUSE OF MEDICINE
Don't keep antibiotics 'just in case' you may feel ill later. By taking medicine on your own - and without doctor's orders - you may mask the symptoms your doctor should know about. Don't misuse medicine by allowing family members to use it because their symptoms 'seem the same'. Only your doctor can safely diagnose and prescribe medication.

Preventive medicine is your best medicine.

Is the Lord the God of the American people today? We know that many Americans worship the true and living God. But many do not. Their god is money, fame, power or pleasure. If the United States ever fails, it will be because a majority of its people will have turned away from the Lord instead of turning to Him.

Walk-a-mile for Life

Recreation Departments throughout the State of Delaware are sponsoring a Walk-A-Mile the week of September 12 to promote a national campaign titled, "Life. Be In It."

The promoters of this campaign are deeply concerned about the consequences of our highly technical society. Although our standard of living is more luxurious, everyday complexities at home and at work have left us with higher anxieties and more time on our hands. It is crucial that this new "free time" be spent pursuing happiness and self-fulfillment.

"Life. Be In It." teaches us that leisure time activities need not cost money or require group involvement. Use of free time can be spent walking, bike riding, visiting museums, throwing a ball or tossing a frisbee. The lack of awareness of alternative leisure activities can lead to a sedentary lifestyle.

The National Recreation and Park Assoc. is sponsoring the "Life. Be In It." Fall Festival. The "Walk-A-Mile" will be part of the National Recreation and Park Association's Fall Festival. Dover, Milford, Wilmington, Newark, Seaford, New Castle County, Kent County and the State of Delaware Recreation and Parks Departments will sponsor a "Walk-A-Mile" in several areas throughout Delaware. Two "Walks" will be held in Kent County to celebrate the Fall Festival. A "Walk" will be held at Killens Pond State Park on Sunday, September 12 at 12 noon and 5 p.m. A businessperson's "Walk" will be held on September 15 on The Green from 11:30 to 2 p.m. A Frisbee Golf Tournament will be held on Sept. 12 at Killens Pond beginning at 5 p.m. For more info about the "Walk" and/or the Frisbee Tournament, call your local Recreation Department.

"Walk-A-Mile for Life. Be In It." buttons will be distributed and local radio stations, when feasible, will be airing the names of participants. Come out and join us and place "activity" on your list of daily priorities. "Walk-A-Mile" for "Life" on September 12 and 15 and "Be In It."

L.F. Fun-Run slated

All former Harrington High and Lake Forest High Cross-Country runners are urged to get in shape and participate in an informal fun-run with the 1982 Lake Forest team.

The run will be an informal affair, over three miles, with no score taken and no publicity given afterwards about the event. In effect, it is just an opportunity for former and current runners to get together, get to know each other and enjoy a picnic, after the workout.

The date is Sept. 11, 10:30 a.m. at Killen's Pond State Park. Both sides are invited.

These athletes are all part of that great winning tradition, which has seen winning seasons every autumn, in cross-country, since the sport was started here, more than a quarter of a century ago.

MMH offers "I can cope" program

An effective program to improve the ability to cope with the chronic disease of cancer will be offered this Fall by Milford Memorial Hospital. Beginning Wednesday, Sept. 29, an eight-week program that has been developed under the auspices of the American Cancer Society and is called "I Can Cope" will be conducted in Room 207 of the Administration Building of the Hospital. The Medical Staff of the Hospital has endorsed this program, will recommend it to their cancer patients, and members will participate in several of the 8 programs. There will be no charge for this public service program.

The concept of the "I Can Cope" program is based on the single, rather simple assumption that many worries and anxieties that cancer patients have can be helped by learning from other people who have had or are having the same concerns. The central idea of "I Can Cope" is a communications idea, a learning stimulant which focuses on involvement opportunities for patients to use in their own treatment. One patient who completed the eight sessions said of the "I Can Cope" program, "It can shift our attention away from our own negative concerns and bring us into contact with other people who have accomplished something in caring for themselves. It can teach us and help us help others".

The weekly sessions will be from 7 to 8:30 p.m. each Wednesday night, beginning September 29th and ending November 17th. Edith Purcell, R.N., Nursing Inservice Coordinator, and Rosalind Geniesse, Family Services Director, of the Hospital's staff will be the program leaders. Dr. Richard Crabb and Dr. Sandra Foote of the Hospital's Medical Staff, Patricia Frey, the Hospital Dietitian, and John Hamilton, Chief Physical Therapist, will participate and provide instruction as called for in the curriculum of the program.

All cancer patients in the service area of the Hospital are invited to participate in this public service program and may be accompanied by their spouse, other close relative or friend. Registration for the program will begin Sept. 1st and may be made by writing Edith G. Purcell, R.N., Milford Memorial Hospital, Clarke Avenue, Milford, DE 19963 or calling 422-3311. Extension 404 or 293. Registration forms will also be available in the offices of physicians on the Medical Staff of Milford Memorial Hospital. The registration deadline is Sept. 15th.

AUGUST 30 - SEPT. 2 - Delaware State College Fall Semester Evening School registration will be held August 30 through September 2 from 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. and through the lunch hour in the Center for Continuing Education for the convenience of working adults. Evening classes begin Tuesday, September 7. More than two dozen courses will be "guaranteed" and not cancelled. Course schedules are available by contacting Continuing Education.

BIG CHEESE READER - Jason Monroe, above, of Harrington was the top reader in the Harrington Public Library's Summer Reading Program. He read 94 books, a total which should impress his fourth grade teachers this year. Chris Hayward, librarian, was pleased to present his award. No slouch at reading herself, is a beaming Chelsea Wilson. The upcoming third grader read 66. Mrs. Hayward reports that 54 children participated in the program this summer. All received Big Cheese Reader buttons and certificates and a number returned for a party in the library last week.

For what you always wanted to know about continuing education

(but didn't know where to ask---call INFO.)

- The adult who is looking for new skills to better his job opportunities,
- The person who needs to go back and pick up that high school diploma to get the job he wants,
- The student looking for the educational program that best fits his needs,
- The person looking for creative ways to fill leisure time,
- Someone born in another country who needs to learn to speak English,
- All these people, and many others, have a name and a number in common. The name is INFO; the number (to call) is 800-292-7935 (that's for Kent and Sussex Counties in Delaware. New Castle County residents can call 571-8100).

INFO, started eight years ago as a pilot project in New Castle County, is Delaware's Center for Educational Information. Its free service has two basic ingredients - information and counseling. Through its computerized data system, INFO keeps up-to-the-minute information on what programs are available and where in Delaware they can be located. That includes vocational, technical, academic, recreational and special interest programs. It also keeps records of costs, class schedules registration times, course additions and cancellations, financial aid available, and people and institutions to be contacted. It is indeed a one-call option that can put a student or adult in touch with the educational opportunities he wants and needs.

The other aspect of the program is counseling. INFO maintains a network of contacts with counselors in schools, colleges, agencies and other programs throughout the state. These professionals agree to assist those referred to them by INFO at no charge. Along with the counseling option, INFO has a "talent bank", a list of those with a variety of skills who are interested in teaching and will work with persons at various levels of proficiency in those skills. Thus, the call to INFO can result in decision making help and instruction in addition to the information provided. INFO follows up on those who are referred to counselors to see if the contact was made and what action resulted.

INFO also works to keep educational institutions and agencies up on what the public is looking for in adult education.

Headquartered at 2800 Pennsylvania Ave., Wilmington, it keeps open phone lines from 8:30 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. on weekdays. A message can be left at the 571 number after hours. About 700 calls a month are handled.

Previously funded through the Delaware Post Secondary Education Commission, the community service project is now looking to the state and other sources for financial support. It received a $5,000 grant from the state's Department of Public Instruction for a Counselor Coordinator, part time, to help expand the counseling network.

TRIM

3) There should be a cool down period sufficient to allow the body safely to prepare for a lesser level of activity.

Safety and effectiveness are double concerns of the program. Quick starting and stopping (insufficient warm up and cool down) can be dangerous to the body as can routines that over extend the maximum heart rate (the number of beats per minute when the heart is under exertion).

On the other hand, routines that do not increase the heart beat over the minimum range (the number of beats per minute when the body is at rest) are not effective in increasing heart-lung capacity. Joyce Simmons says TRIM programs are medically and clinically tested to be both safe and effective.

Programs planned for this area are:
Felton - 3:50 p.m. Monday and Wednesday at the Lake Forest North Elementary School gym. Instructor - Joyce Simmons.
Milford - 5-6 p.m. at Milford Bowling Lanes. Instructor Sherry Knopf.
 Joyce Simmons will also conduct some classes in Dover where the coed version of TRIM - Synergetics - will be one of the offerings. For information call 674-5162.

School board looks at bus discipline policy

Major violations would be handled in much the same way as serious discipline problems in school. Major offenses would include use of drugs and alcohol, smoking, endangering students, carrying a weapon, distracting the driver or disregarding his orders and fighting. For any serious offense, it was suggested the bus driver should be able to suspend the student from riding the bus the next day. Then a hearing with parents and the transportation supervisor or the superintendent would be held. Depending on the severity of the case, the hearing procedure could continue to the level of the board of education. Suspension penalties would depend upon the outcome of the hearing. But could extend to the remainder of the school year.

While generally approving the idea that discipline on the buses be taken at least as seriously as discipline in the classroom, the board was not happy with all the particulars.

New member Wallace Caulk wanted more specifics spelled out. He said it should be "put in writing exactly as it must be done."

Several were unhappy with the notion that a student guilty of a serious offense (bringing a deadly weapon such as a knife on a bus, for example) could not be put off the bus the next day unless the bus driver was successful in contacting the parents. They suggested transportation Supervisor Ray

Stoops bear the responsibility for notifying the parents or picking up the student the next day.

Board members William Garey insisted the bus drivers' discipline situation is unique. The classroom teacher usually has help on hand, just down the hall. But the driver, he said, may be "sixteen cow pastures away from civilization". He did not think the driver faced with a student who is really threatening the safe operation of the bus or the safety of the driver and other students should have to wait to put him off the bus.

The board tabled the bus discipline policy for further refinement and review.

In other business of Monday night's special meeting, the Lake Forest Board:

-accepted resignations from Jane Grudzina, music teacher and Virginia Walters, playground aide at Lake Forest North.

-hired Deborah Kennard; Frederick Daffy, special ed - high school; Sara Lee Towers, social studies - junior high; Evette Odell, music teacher - Lake Forest North; Robert Burdette, Lake Forest High School Suspension Aide and Ruby Farmer, playground aide - North.

-approved two coaching assignments: Frederick Duffy, ninth grade football, and Peter Righterink, JV soccer.

Patrolman Ron Fortin of the Harrington Police Department was called who disposed of the animal. Apparently one of the knife thrusts had hit the opossum in the stomach area, from which it later died.

"We had just returned from the ice cream festival at Andrewsville when all of this took place. We wanted to watch a horror picture on the cable, but I guess we created our own horror show. There were some pretty scared females around here...I tell you," said Mrs. Gray, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Kates of Grant Street in Harrington.

Father Brown

the mission of the church is planned for both St. Bernadette's and St. Johns in October. Out of that the Parish Council should be able to develop a Parish Mission Statement (concerning what the church is and should be about in the local parish and community.) Specific projects should follow.

Father Brown is anxious that more lay people become involved in the liturgical celebrations of the church. Now five or six lay people serve as readers for the services, and there is a pianist. He hopes a choir can be formed at St. Bernadette's and several people can be deputized to distribute communion at mass and as they serve as visitors to the sick.

In the area of social concerns, Father Brown mentions the possibility of creating some sort of Parish Outreach whereby people with needs could be connected with those who can help. A major thrust of the Second Vatican Council, he explains, was the recognition of the people of the church with the realization that all are called to ministry and service - not just the pastor. He finds it a major part of his responsibility here to find those who can do and encourage them to take the responsibility.

One program, he says, in which the lay people of St. Bernadette's have really become involved is in the religious education program of the church. Weekly classes this year will be extended to an hour and a half. Although St. Bernadette's is a mission parish in that it maintains separate financial records and has its own Parish Council. The only thing lacking is a resident priest. Father Brown, who shepherds both churches, will be joining St. Bernadette's on Sept. 19 in celebrating the thirtieth anniversary of the dedication of the sanctuary building here.

New brochure for victims of property crime available

It will be distributed statewide by the Coalition.

Information concerning steps a victim should take, including how to report a crime, how to replace lost items, and a listing of agencies providing services to victims, is included in the brochure.

The Victims Coalition is distributing the brochure through all police agencies and senior centers in the State. In addition, any person or organization may obtain copies by calling the Delaware Council on Crime and Justice at 658-7174.

Need a program?

Kent County clubs and organizations interested in having a stimulating as well as an educational program presented, should consider contacting the Speakers Bureau of the Kent County Heart Association during the planning phase of their program development. Speakers provided by the Heart Association can present a program to fit the needs and time constraints of specific groups.

Possible topics for programs include: Signals and Actions of Heart Attack; Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation; Hypertension; and Nutrition and Your Heart. The Heart Association will also continue to provide courses in CPR at the Kent Co-Tech North on a regular basis free of charge to any group or individual. For more information, contact the Heart Association Office in Dover at 734-9321.

Entomologist studies Africanized bees

In 1957 some African bees accidentally escaped from the Brazilian laboratory where they were being studied for a honeybee improvement program. In the wild, the escapees survived, thrived and began to spread, interbreeding on the way with local honeybee populations. The fierce "Africanized" bee resulting from this cross has now traveled all the way south to Argentina and is moving steadily northward through the tropical rain forests and along the eastern coast of Latin America.

It reached the Panama-Colombia border last November. On March 3, 1982, its presence was verified in a suburb of Panama City. Moving north at the rate of about 150 miles a year (twice that fast through unfavorable terrain), it is expected to reach the Texas-Mexico border by 1994.

There's no doubt about the Africanized bee reaching this country, says Dr. Dewey Caron, University of Delaware entomologist who is an authority on honeybees and their behavior. The question is, what impact will the bee have on farming and the general public when it gets here?

The Africanized bee would seem able to inhabit the lower part of continental United States, as well as Atlantic and Pacific coastal areas. It probably would survive favorable winters in Delaware which is about its northernmost range. It would die here during severe winters, respreading from nearby milder areas.

The bee poses a serious threat to the U.S. queen and bee package industry, which is located in Florida and Texas, prime habitats of the intruder. Most of the honeybees which supply American beekeepers and those in other parts of the world are reared in these two states.

Caron says various schemes have been proposed to halt the Africanized bee's northward spread, including stretching a giant barrier net along the Panama Canal. Since none of these ideas appear feasible, the entomologist feels it is more realistic to learn how to get along with the bee, once it arrives. He plans to study its progress through Panama, observing how farmers, beekeepers and the general public in that country adjust to the invader. What occurs in Panama may provide clues as to how to deal effectively with the bee, once it gets to the U.S., since beekeepers in both countries use the same European-type bees and handle them in the same way.

There are two main reasons for concern over the spread of the Africanized bee. First, because of its readiness to sting, it poses a human health hazard. Also, because it transmits this aggressiveness to its offspring when it interbreeds with existing honeybee populations, it has a profound effect on beekeeping and crop pollination in areas where it settles.

The sting of the Africanized bee is no more toxic than that of the European-type bees commonly used in this country and Latin America. The trouble is, it stings much more readily to defend its nest. People and animals in the vicinity are likely to become targets, even when they're not responsible for the disturbance. This bee is smaller than its European counterpart, is much more mobile, and much less selective about its nest sites. These can be anything from a hollow tree or hole in a wall to a discarded container or other debris. One reason the bee spreads quickly is that it colonizes (swarms) much more often than the European honeybee--about eight times a year, compared to once every other year.

The Africanized bee also adapts very readily to living around humans. This means the chances of getting stung are quite high, Caron says. For people who are allergic to bee venom, the insect thus poses a life-threatening hazard.

People have been keeping bees for centuries and have developed techniques to insure adequate crop pollination and to harvest surplus honey and wax from hives. In its own land the African bee is used in the same way, but doesn't lend itself to management as easily as European bees, the entomologist says. This means beekeepers will be stung much more as they try to work with the new hybrids, he predicts.

There are other problems too. Because Africanized bees are so easily disturbed, their hives must be isolated for the safety of people and livestock. This means the bees can't be moved from crop to crop as European bees are. In Delaware, several crops are pollinated by traveling hives managed by commercial beekeepers. The hives are placed with apples and cucumbers in order to pollinate these crops. They're also placed with lima beans to collect honey.

During its move up the coast of Brazil and into Central America, the immediate effect of the Africanized bee on local beekeeping industries and agriculture has been dramatic and very negative, says Caron. We can't predict what will happen in Panama as the bee continues its invasion there, but the impact will likely be similar. Because of the limited resources of the countries invaded so far, very little research has been done on the insect, and most of that research has been supported by American funds.

Last April Caron spent two weeks in Panama visiting beekeepers and observing the bee. "I saw a good cross section of the industry, and much of what they're doing applies to the U.S.," he says. For example, most beekeeping equipment used in Panama is American-made, and most honeybees now in use come from Texas or Florida breeding stock. Caron plans to return to Panama to continue his documentation of the Africanized bee and its effect during the country's next dry season, which occurs between November and May. That's when the bee will be spreading most rapidly.

On that and other future trips, he will observe changes which have occurred in bee management there as a result of the Americanized bee. "It we can document some of the things they try in Panama," he says, "maybe we won't have to reinvent the wheel, so to speak, when the bee gets here."

Conserving water in the home

It's easy to take water for granted when it's always as close as the kitchen sink. Nevertheless, water supplies sometime become low in the summer due to lack of rainfall and increased recreational use of water. In recent summers, Delaware has experienced seriously low water supplies.

Water conservation should be everyone's constant concern. Pfeiffer says. Each household pays for the water it uses as well as for fuel to heat it and for the treatment it gets once it goes down the drain. Each family can take steps to save water (and money) while helping to conserve this resource for the community.

Most households with four people use about 255 gallons of water per day, says Pfeiffer. About 100 gallons of this is used in flushing the toilet. Four to six gallons of clean water go down the drain with each flush. This amount can be reduced by placing plastic bottles filled with water in the toilet tank. At one time it was suggested to place a brick in the tank to displace water. The problem with using a brick is that it disintegrates and causes plumbing problems. Toilets are now available that use less water with each flush, Pfeiffer points out. Look for this feature if you're buying a new toilet fixture for your home.

Bathing, shaving and brushing teeth can also account for a large amount of a family's water use--about 88 gallons each day for an average family of four. Using a flow reducer in the water pipe or low-flow attachments on showerheads and faucets can reduce waste without changing family hygiene habits.

A service with a fee is available for free

The International Association of Police is currently soliciting by mail for Delaware residents to join I.A.C.P.'s "Operation Identification". The form letter contains the I.A.C.P. logo, a description of the free "Operation Identification" kit, and your official assigned identification number. The offer carries a free six month trial period without obligation. If one chooses to continue participation in the program, a $15.00 annual fee is imposed.

With due respect to the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the Delaware State Police and many other police agencies within the State of Delaware offer a similar program which is cost free. Each state police troop has electric engravers available for loan, pamphlets to assist the property owner in the proper manner of marking his or her valued items, and decals identifying a home as containing marked items. A procedure has been established for marking personal property by labeling each item with the letters "DE" followed by one's six digit Delaware operator's code number. Following the eight characters are the letters of the alphabet - the capital letter "A" for the first item marked, the capital letter "B" for the second item, and so on. Those who have more than twenty-six items to mark then begin by using the capital letters "AA" through "ZZ" which follow the "DE" prefix and one's six digit operator's code number. Those who wish to participate within the program and do not have a Delaware operator's license may obtain an "ID" card from the Division of Motor Vehicles. When an "ID" card is used the letter "X" must follow the prefix "DE". Participation in the "Operation Identification" program offered by Delaware police agencies is free; and, it will both minimize one's chances of being a theft victim and maximize one's chances of recovery of his or her stolen property.

unnecessarily. In a house with four people, laundering uses about 35 gallons each day. If you're shopping for a new washing machine, consider a front-loading model or suds-saver option. Both these features reduce the amount of water used when doing laundry, Pfeiffer notes. Run the clothes washer and dishwasher only when full. Use the garbage disposer as efficiently as possible--on the average it uses 1 1/2 gallons of water per person each day. Keep a bottle of water in the refrigerator to avoid running water each time you want a cold drink. Many water-saving practices can be used without sacrificing your family's health or comfort. (This article was supplied by the Agricultural Editor's Office of The University of Delaware.)

Have plumbing leaks repaired as soon as they are detected. Even a small leak (80 drips per minute) can waste nearly seven gallons of water a day. Toilet leaks can waste up to 200 gallons a day. To check for toilet leaks, put a few drops of food coloring in the tank. If colored water appears in the bowl, there is a leak.

To check for other plumbing leaks, turn off all faucets in the house, note the reading on the water meter, then read the meter again after 15 minutes. If the reading has changed, you have a leak.

You can also save water in your home by adopting water-conserving personal habits. Turn off the shower while soaping up or shampooing. And don't let the water run while shaving or brushing teeth. Instead, fill a glass for rinsing teeth, or fill the sink basin to rinse a razor. Don't use the toilet as an ashtray or wastebasket, or flush it

Maximizing the fertilizer value of dairy manure

Dairy manure contains valuable amounts of nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium, as well as several essential micronutrients. Farmers who use manure on their field corn can reduce their fertilizer bills by including these nutrients when calculating the crop's needs.

Application rates should be based on the composition of the manure, the method of application, soil test results, and plant needs. The total amount of manure and commercial fertilizer applied should not exceed the nutrient requirements of the crop. Excess nutrients mean wasted money.

To control application rates of animal wastes, a manure spreader must be properly calibrated. There are many ways to do this. Several procedures are described in a fact sheet on "Manure Spreader Calibration" which is available from county extension offices in Newark, Dover and Georgetown.

Some farmers who land apply manure are over-applying nutrients from commercial fertilizers. This wastes money, may cause a nutrient imbalance in the soil, and increases the possibility that nutrients may leach into groundwater. Continued applications of dairy manure on the same field will result in a build-up of phosphorus and potassium. To avoid this, rotate manure applications every two to three years, or as a soil test indicates.

To reduce nitrogen losses from surface-applied manure, disk or plow it in as soon after application as possible, advises the specialist. Up to 30 percent of the nitrogen in the manure can be lost within the first three days after surface application if this is not done. Disking immediately after application reduces losses to less than 10 percent.

The key to maximizing the value of dairy manure is a good nutrient management program. To get to savings and performance, he advises farmers to develop a fertilizer program based on a soil test, crop need and the nutrient content of the manure.

Something to fall back on.

The first time I ever saw him step into a ring I knew he was a winner. Left jab like a pneumatic drill and a powerhouse right hand. He was a carefree kinda kid who really enjoyed boxing. But when he was in trouble he could fight like an alley cat.

Out of the ring he believed everyone. Trusted everyone. Lent money to people who never paid him back. Invested in all sorts of dumb schemes his "friends" talked him into.

"Your biggest problem," I told him, "is you think this will never end. That your legs will carry you forever. Start putting something away for tomorrow."

He'd just laugh. "Max, you worry too much. Hey, I'm still fighting the main event, right? I'm good for a lotta more years. Don't worry, I gotta live up to my place in the profession. Then I'll open up a little restaurant where I can entertain my pals."

Finally it was over. He couldn't go the distance anymore. He could see the sucker punches coming but couldn't react in time. I tried to cheer him up. "Well, it was fun while it lasted, kid. We beat 'em all, but nobody beats old Father Time."

He was staring at his swollen hands through half-closed eyes. "I can't believe it. I'm broke. I'm washed up in the ring and I'm broke. The only way I can get into the restaurant business is as a dishwasher."

"Well, not really. Remember when I asked you to start buying Bonds years ago? You laughed and said you didn't care, that I could buy 'em for you if it would keep me from worrying. Well, I went ahead and took some out of every purse and put it into Bonds for you. To you it was just another investment a 'friend' talked you into. But I knew if you got your hands on it, you'd blow it."

"You been buying Bonds for me all these years?" he asked.

"Yeah, but it was your money. Seeing you had something to fall back on was the least I could do as your manager. Maybe now you can open up that little restaurant you're always talking about."

He tossed his gloves in the air and shouted, "Hey, all right. Joe and Maxie's... opening soon!"

"What's with the Joe and Maxie's?" I asked. He gave me a playful punch in the shoulder and said, "We're a team, Max. I gotta have a manager. He smiled for a second then added, "Ya know, I never thought of Bonds as a way to make a fast buck."

"They're not fast, kid, they're kinda slow and steady...but very reliable," I assured him. He looked at me and gripped my hand real hard. "Like you, Max. Just like you. And that's the best."

Savings are a vital part of any financial plans for the future. And Bonds are one of the safest, surest, easiest ways to save.

So help yourself while you help your country.
