

Mann, Wyatt, Coleman elected in Harrington (But election results may be contested)

Mayor Alfred Mann won a second term while Jack Wyatt and Daniel Coleman were elected in the first and third wards respectively in Harrington municipal election yesterday.

But questions about the conduct of election officials may throw the results into limbo. At least two residents tried to register write-in votes in the mayoral election. One was unsuccessful because the machine would not work. She was told by one of the election officials that write-in votes were not allowed.

Another individual, who was successful with a write-in, reported that the same election official announced when the returns were revealed that he was the one who wrote in the name and who the vote was cast for. The individual feels his traditional rights to a secret ballot maintaining the privacy of his vote were flagrantly violated.

In addition, two other city residents were told by a Harrington City Councilman that they could not write-in a vote for mayor. He said that ruling was a part of the charter and that attempts to write-in votes had been successfully contested in Dover and Frederica. However, this newspaper has ascertained that write-in votes had to be allowed in Frederica. In the last elections, two council members were elected solely by write-in votes.

It's true that no candidates had filed for those council seats. But informal opinion from the attorney general's office has indicated in other instances that local charter rulings against write-in votes are unconstitutional.

Actual numbers in the election were as follows:

Mayor - Alfred G.B. Mann - 131; J.

Edward Taylor (write-in) - 1. (Mann won a second term).

Citizens question city hall plans at annual meeting

by Barbara C. Brown

Over 60 Harrington citizens turned out Friday night to participate in the annual Citizens Meeting held at the fire hall. The sixty sat quietly through year-end reports by the mayor and various city department heads. They applauded as candidates for council were introduced and as outgoing Councilman Dr. Vincent Lobo was lauded for his nine years of service. But what they really wanted to talk about were the city's plans for a new (or renovated) city hall. There were also those who were still angry with Conrail over railroad crossing tieups.

The waited-for city hall question came up as Councilmen Ray Gagne and Curtis Melvin presented a brief report on the Building Committee's efforts to plan for new city headquarters. The city rents its current quarters from the Harrington Volunteer Fire Company. The councilmen said the fire company has long range plans for use of the property. They felt the city must make long range plans, too.

The councilmen reported they had considered a large number of city properties before narrowing the choice to two alternatives - a new building on Liberty Street or a renovated building in downtown Harrington.

Gagne reported the results of an opinion poll mailed to some 900 city residents the previous week. The poll asked citizens to indicate their preference for the Liberty Street location (estimated cost $140,000) or the renovated older building downtown (estimated price tag $135,000). Although the letter which accompanied the opinion poll did not mention a specific older building, the cost quoted was the city's estimate for the purchase and renovation of the "Smith building on Commerce St. across from L & D Electronics and Burton's Sport Shop. Gagne said the poll was circulated just to get input on a location for a new city hall. A public hearing and a referendum on a specific proposal would have to be held later.

According to the report on the poll, 88 respondents preferred the new building on Liberty Street, and 34 chose the uptown location. When pressed, city officials said 28 of those who answered checked neither location. Some wrote letters. But the majority, about 750, chose not to return the poll at all.

The council members said the major reason behind the poll was getting "input" from city residents. However, they appeared somewhat disgruntled when a petition bearing 125 signatures was presented by Liberty Street resident Carol Ann Porter. The petition asked that other alternatives to the city's needs be sought. It said, in part, "We.....are 100 percent opposed to the costs suggested for relocation or replacement of a new city hall." Mrs. Porter explained that the petitioners were not opposed to planning new city quarters, but they thought other cost options could be explored. They did not feel the city's questionnaire offered a real choice.

Mayor Mann offered the opinion that the petition was out of order and not relevant to the question at hand. He was overruled.

Councilman Ray Gagne dismissed the petition by saying that the time to register an opinion on a City Hall was at a referendum.....not by running around and getting signatures on an opinion. Several citizens disagreed.

Gary Harrington said criticism should be offered constructively.

The Reverend Tull, commenting on the questionnaire mailed out, said, "You're not really giving us a choice...."

Gary Homewood pointed out that the petition "did just what you're asking for" (give citizen input on the city hall question). He said "It's rude for the Council to respond in the way that they have to this."

Councilman Gagne offered an apology directed at the Reverend Tull.

In other comments and questions on the city hall plans:

-Sue Ellen Dennis asked if there were a reason for vacating the rented quarters now and wondered if there were any pressure from the fire company to move. City councilmen said there was no immediate pressure from the fire company, but that they felt they must develop long range plans. Fire company president Gary Harrington said the company had no specific plans for the immediate future, but he hoped to make use of the property some day. He said the fire company and the city had signed a lease for the rental of the building until September.

Another citizen wondered about the size of the new facilities. The answer was 2400 square feet for the building. Ronnie Hughes, in a query about the options, asked, "How many other houses are for sale in town?"

Anne Paladino pointed out that the Building Committee had been offered the opportunity to look at #1 Commerce Street (the old Harrington Journal Building), but that no one had ever come to take that look. She said Harry Farrow had offered the city the use of the building free of charge. Councilman Melvin said the offer was made on a temporary basis, and that was why the city had not pursued it.

Railroad Crossings - Still a Problem?

Following the city hall discussion attention focused again on tieups at the town's railroad crossings, several citizens said the blocked crossings are still an inconvenience and a possible safety hazard.

Sue Ellen Dennis reported a long tie-up in the late afternoon before Christmas. Councilman Gagne reported he had discussed the particular occasion with Conrail's Joe Morris who had convinced him that it was a one-time attempt to clear the tracks before the holidays. However, Mrs. Dennis said several other occasions had been reported by various people.

Ray Gagne offered the observation that most of the problems with Conrail had been cleared up. That included, he said, the irritation of noisy engines left idling within town limits. Not so, said former Mayor William Minner who reported a recent occurrence and said he got a rude reception over the phone when he called the railroad station to complain.

Another citizen, Don Adams agreed with Mrs. Dennis about the continuing inconvenience of closed crossings.

Small business consultants make debut at DTCC

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr.

GEORGETOWN, DE - Last Wednesday the Small Business Development Center was opened at the Southern campus of Delaware Technical and Community College. The official office will be in the University Parallel office complex of the college. This will be a program funded by a federal grant from the Small Business Administration. The statewide center is headed by Charles (Chuck) Maass*. His assistant will be David Park who will offer counseling services in Georgetown the 1st and 3rd Wednesdays of the month and Dover the 2nd and 4th Mondays of the month.

The program is designed to provide a system which delivers comprehensive management assistance to the small business community. "We are interested in helping those just starting a business as well as those who have been out there for a few years who have a few problems that we want to help solve for them", said Maass. In addition to Maass and Park, the program has the availability of SCORE personnel, which are retired executives, University of Delaware Faculty, Delaware Law School Faculty, graduate and senior business students, and private consultants.

The hours will be from 10 a.m. on the designated days until they have finished. "We want the consultations to be long for each client. We feel 12 hours is a minimum for each client and we want to be able to follow up each case at the end of a year", said Maass.

On hand at the opening ceremony from Sussex County government were Sussex County Administrator, Joe Conaway, George Purpur, Finance Director for Sussex County, and Robert Martin, Economic Director for Sussex County as well as representatives from the media. Joe Conaway pointed out that Sussex County was very interested in having the Small Business Development Center come to Sussex County "...to aid small business here. We at the County government level appropriated $2500 toward the funding process for the center. We wanted it for Sussex County," said Conaway.

"Many small businesses just starting out fail for a lot of reasons," said Chuck Maass. "With these people available for regular consultations, corrective measures if used in time can prevent many failures. On the other hand it might be impossible to correct certain situations to make a business go, so we would explore all avenues, and if nothing worked, we would advise the business to close to prevent losing more money," added Maass.

The turnout was exceptionally good for the new venture. "We were there right up to 5 o'clock," said David Park who will be on the job consultant for Kent and Sussex Counties. From the quick response by those who came on the first day, the indication is that the future looks good for this organization.

The Small Business Development Center is located at Suite 005 Purnell Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19711. For Kent and Sussex Counties, there is a toll free number 1-800-222-2279.

*Charles Maass has been in business management for 25 years. He was formerly associated with Reeves Industries, Inc. of New York City. Thiohol, Burroughs Corp, a chief executive officer for a small corporation, Director of Admissions at a small college, joined the faculty at the University of Delaware in '79, became Director of the Small Business Development Center in September '82, and he teaches a few courses each semester at the University of Delaware.

Tull withdraws before election

by Barbara C. Brown

The Reverend Joseph Tull surprised the gathering at Harrington's Annual Citizen's Meeting Friday night by withdrawing from the race for City Council in the Third Ward. Tull asked that his supporters get behind Daniel R. Coleman who remained the only contender against former Harrington Police Chief Edward Layton. Tull had filed for election because he said there were concerns in his area that were not being brought before the Council.

In the First Ward, veteran Council member Jack Wyatt was seeking a fourth term. His opponent was former Council member Wilson Bradley.

Mayor Alfred G.B. Mann was unopposed in his bid for reelection.

Schools asked to return energy $$

- Lake Forest - $92,000
- Milford - $90,000
- Woodbridge - $45,000

by Barbara C. Brown

The state's schools were asked last week to return voluntarily 25% of their state appropriated energy funds for 82-83. The request made in a private meeting last Thursday between state Finance Secretary T. Dennis Sullivan and school officials is just one step in efforts to erase a projected $28.6 million budget deficit. The 25% return on energy funds would net the state a total of $3 million.

Governor duPont had first asked school officials to come up with a refund totaling 2% of their entire state allotments, a total of $4 million. Because a large part of that money is tied up in salaries under contract and debt service funds, that plan would have placed unusual stress on the operating budgets remaining for the schools. Much of the money has already been spent. The request for returning 25% of the energy funds was made in lieu of the first proposal.

The state's 19 school districts have been asked to return the funds voluntarily. The Governor does not have the power to force them to comply. However, he could ask for state legislation if they do not agree.

Local school officials contacted last week commented on the effect the request may have on their districts.

Lake Forest: Acting Superintendent Melvin Luff said the district would have to send back in excess of $92,000 to make up the 25% return of state allocated energy funds. Luff said there are a lot of variables in assessing the effect that will have on school programs. The biggest of those variables is the weather. However, Luff anticipated that the move would leave the district $60 - 80,000 short in funds for its energy needs. Even with an average winter, he said, that would mean the district would have to dig into local and state funds designated for other purposes to make up the difference. That would have an impact on educational programs greater in some areas than in others. Luff said the district would "have to hold onto everything we've got" that is not already spent or is not vital to the day to day operation. He also thought it might be necessary to borrow some money against anticipated revenues. However, Luff said the feeling is that this is a bonafide state emergency and that the schools should cooperate.

Bids to install new water line requested

by Barbara C. Brown

The Harrington City Council Monday night approved a motion to request bids on the installation of an eight inch water main on Gordon Street. The main would make city water accessible to the site where a motel-restaurant complex is to be constructed by Colony Inn, headed by Francis Silicato. Installation of a fire hydrant in the area would also extend fire protection.

Mayor Alfred Mann projected the cost for the 8 inch line could run about $20,000 and speculated the city might have to borrow funds. A four inch line, he said, would only cost around $10,000 or $12,000. But the four inch line would not make the increased fire protection possible.

Before the Council recorded a positive vote on the motion, member Robert "Bobby" Quillen asked how long it would take the city to realize a return of the cost of installing the water line through taxes. No definite time was cited. However Mayor Mann did say the company had agreed to metered water service and to connecting to the sewer on Liberty Street at its own expense.

The Council also approved a motion to hire a consultant from Betz-Converse and Murdock to study problems at the Wastewater Treatment Plant. Mayor Mann said he had "not much faith" in the consulting engineers," (E.H. Richardson Associates) who designed the system. Mann wanted another expert to take a look at the plant and any continuing problems before the city signs its final acceptance of the completed project. He received a go-ahead with a cost limit of $5,000.

In other business, the Harrington Council -set Monday evening, January 17, as the date of the first in a series of workshops to discuss revision of the town's charter. The workshop is open to the public.

-discussed a get tough policy toward homeowners who are dragging their feet with regard to cleaning up trash or demolishing old buildings.

-approved a motion to get Shanahan Artesian Well Company to pull and inspect the pump in city water well #2.

Water system makes plumbers out of council members

by Barbara C. Brown

There is nothing in the Frederica Town Charter that lists holding a plumber's license as one of the prerequisites to running for Town Council. Nor does it say that a council member's spouse must be adept at running the chlorinator that serves the water tower. But it all helps.

Actually, none of the four members who now serve on the Town Council - Helen Powers, Virginia Simpler, Rosalie Cline and Tom Wilmore - is a plumber. However, they all learn fast, and Wilmore's wife Karen has become the community's unofficial chlorinator operator. She personally checks the system that pumps chlorine into the water supply, replenishing it when necessary. Sometimes that means she and a three year old daughter make trips to the building near the base of the water tower as often as every two hours. The frequency depends on the water demand. For some reason, she says, Wednesdays have been especially busy.

Helen Powers or others must also make frequent tests at various locations to see that the chlorine in the water is sufficient to retard any growth of bacteria. Frederica had a problem in the late fall, but it was quickly brought under control.

Checking the chlorinator and running the tests are probably mild chores in comparison with what Mrs. Powers and some council members went through last winter when they were called out to help locate and dig up frozen water lines. (Mrs. Powers says she will not do that again this year.)

The Town may be looking for someone who could be on call to take care of minor plumbing problems. Former mayor and council member Ezekiel "Zeke" Dill probably has the most extensive knowledge of the community's somewhat jerrybuilt water system. He knows where to turn things on and off and in what sequence. Dill has been faithful in coming to the town's assistance when needed, but he doesn't want to take on the job of standby plumber.

At its January meeting last week, the Council discussed looking for someone who would be qualified, willing and able to be on call.

It was further suggested by Member Tom Wilmore that the town get an engineer to assess the entire water system. Although a new ten inch main was installed on some streets a year or two ago, most residents in the area remain hooked up to an old, and in some places, deteriorating 2 inch line. There are also still places in town where individual residences do not have individual cutoffs. That means a problem at one home may mean inconvenience and loss of service to others. No formal motion was made on either suggestion.

-Two Leaks Near School-

In the meantime, there are now two leaks instead of one in the two inch line near Lake Forest East Elementary School. The town would still prefer that the school district tap into the new ten inch line so that the two inch line there could be capped off. That would forestall digging up the street to make repairs. But the district has indicated it is not ready to spend the money to tap into the new line, Council members may attend the next meeting of the Lake Forest Board of Education to present their case.

For now, Mayor Helen Powers says Teal Construction, the Dover firm which installed the ten inch line, has been asked to look at the situation.

Milford: Superintendent of Schools Dr. Michael Woodall said returning 25% of the state appropriated energy funds would mean a $90,000 cut for the Milford District. But he said information so far indicates that the winter has been 20% milder. If that trend continues, Woodall said, the district should absorb the loss of funds without too much cause for alarm. He pointed out that if the funds are unused for energy by the end of the fiscal year, the money would have to go back to the state anyway. It cannot be used for purposes other than energy costs. The 25% return request he said amounted to asking that the money go back earlier. But should the winter turn severe, Woodall admitted, it would pose a problem that might mean the district would have to curtail other programs to come up with energy dollars.

Woodbridge: Dr. James B. Pressley, Superintendent of Schools, said the request would mean the Woodbridge School District would have to return about $45,000 of the funds set aside for energy. He said the fact that it has been a mild winter thus far is "the only saving thing I can see." A lot would depend on the weather in January and February. Pressley foresees some belt tightening and the necessity, perhaps to return "conservation awareness" to the level it reached during the energy crunch of years past. That might even mean depending less on petroleum and "wearing more clothes." He said if the weather gets really bad, the request might also mean the district would consider taking funds from other areas to pay for energy needs.

However, Pressley pointed out that the district is always conscious of energy and the need to conserve. Along those lines Woodbridge over the past couple of years has put in new boilers in the heating plant at the Greenwood school and new burners at the high school.

DSP Pinning Ceremonies

A formal promotional ceremony was conducted at the DSP Training Academy in Dover, Delaware on Thursday, January 6 at 10 a.m. Families and friends of the promotees were present for the ceremony. The Honorable Pierre S. duPont IV, Governor of the State of Delaware, gave the opening remarks and congratulated the promotees on their promotions. Governor duPont, Secretary of Public Safety, the Honorable Henry J. Decker and Colonel Daniel L. Simpson, Superintendent of the Delaware State Police conducted the pinning ceremonies. A total of 35 troopers received their new ranks, including Superintendent Simpson who pinned on the rank of Colonel. Charles E. Venable received the rank of Major and Edward F. Martin III and James R. Neal, Jr. received their new rank of Staff Captain. A total of 12 troopers were promoted to Lieutenant and 12 troopers received the rank of Sergeant.

Following the ceremony, a luncheon was held at Johnathan's Restaurant to honor the promotees.

STATE POLICE PROMOTIONS

Among the State Police officers whose promotions were formally recognized in pinning ceremonies at the Delaware State Police Training academy in Dover last Thursday were the following:

Milford Fitness Center offers dual programs Heart Assoc. Benefit set

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr.
MILFORD, DE - In September of 1982, the physical fitness center in Milford opened its doors. The center is equipped with a weight room, three raquetball courts, locker rooms and lounge.

The center is divided into two separate parts. One side is known as the Nautilus Fitness and Figure Center. This section deals with the weight lifting program. The other part is known as the Milford Fitness and Raquetball Club. As the name implies, you play raquetball, and you stay fit.

One of the most popular and widely received fitness programs in the country today is that known as Nautilus. A shell shaped cam is the root of the name. The cam is a machine part that controls the size and arrangement of the weights. Just as the shellfish from which the name nautilus originates casts off its shell and grows a new and larger one as it grows, so the nautilus program participants graduate to larger cams. As the cam gets larger there is more resistance enabling the participant to build more strength and muscle tone. These are also known as isokinetic exercises. Isokinetic is short for maximum resistance through a full range of motion.

Before a member is signed up for the course, "there are certain questions we ask them and a brief fitness test. We are not doctors of course, but there are certain things we can do in preparation for the course," said Bob Brosmer, who is the manager of the Nautilus program. "Jogging is good for you, but with the Nautilus program...all areas of the body are dealt with in one shot," added Brosmer. Twenty eight National Football League teams are in the Nautilus program. According to Brosmer this is proof of their faith in the program.

There are five major components of fitness. They are as follows: muscle strength, muscle endurance, cardio vascular (heart and lungs), flexibility, and weight control. "The traditional way of building one's body and staying fit was mainly just muscle strength. You could use the barbells, do bench presses...and develop a breathing program designed to build up your chest and lung capacity," said

Brosmer. There are twelve major muscle groups. They are hips, thighs, calves, waist, back (upper and lower), chest, shoulders, and arms. "The Nautilus program addresses itself to all of those areas, and gives you that added dimension for just 90 minutes a week", said Brosmer. Nautilus is not a franchise. It is a manufacturer. "Anyone desiring to purchase the equipment can do so by contacting the Nautilus Company in Florida. The only problem is that the cost per household is sort of prohibitive. The cost would be around '40,000," added Brosmer.

The membership fee for Nautilus programs is $300 per year. "We have about 285 members right now...and we are picking up new memberships every month," said Brosmer. The annual fee includes the use of the sauna, towels, lounge and it also includes the right to use the other 2000 clubs around the world.

The Nautilus Center has one director, Bob Brosmer, a native of Washington, D.C. and a graduate of Salisbury State Teacher's College in physical education. Keith Gilger is the assistant manager, Suzanne Landon, Cheryl MacLelland and Kim Brosmer are members of the staff. The facility can handle 20 members exercising at one time. The club offers a free workout by calling 422-6500 for an appointment.

On January 28, 29 and 30, the Milford Fitness Center and Raquetball Club will present a Heart Association Raquetball Tourney. For more information call 422-6500.

The other half of the Center is the Milford Fitness Center and Raquetball Club. This part of the physical plant has three raquetball courts. "There was a need for winter recreation here in Milford, and it is a good way to lose weight," said Gary Martin, the manager of this section. Individual memberships are $60 per year. For a family, the cost is $85 per year. "We have about the same number in memberships here as there are in the Fitness Center," said Martin. "You lose weight because it is like hiking 6 miles for every hour that you play raquetball." Ages of members range from 22 to 45, "and we have one member who is 70 years old."

New co-op rates in effect under bond

New electric rates, representing a portion of a pending rate increase request, went into effect under bond last month for the customers of the Delaware Electric Cooperative. The new rates add about $2.70 to the monthly bills of customers using 750 kwh/month.

In October of 1982, the Co-op made application to the Commission to increase annual revenue by $1.8 million. In its application the Co-op stated that revised rates were needed to keep pace with the cost of providing service, particularly in the areas of maintenance and extending service to new customers. The Commission and its consultants are now in the process of reviewing the Co-op's application and will hear oral testimony from its officials and consultants. A final decision will not be rendered before spring. In the meantime, State law permits public utilities to place a portion of their requested new rates in effect under bond and subject to refund pending the outcome of the full case.

PSC Orders One-Time Credit to Co-Op Customers

In February of 1983, the bills of some 30-thousand Co-op customers will be marked with a one-time credit which totals about $1.1 million. The million dollar credit is the result of decreases in the wholesale price of electricity

We have no intention of using the Harrington Fire Company as scapegoats.

We are not, as you insinuate, playing politics - (for the pay we get, you must be joking.)

You state in your letter that the choices we offered "seem exorbitantly high." The suggestions we offered (as stated in our letter) would affect your property tax rate by six cents per one hundred dollars of assessment. I'm disappointed that you chose to believe street talk rather than contact a councilman for the facts. The fact is, and I repeat, the effect on your property tax rate would be six cents per one hundred dollars of assessment.

The DP&L overcollection of the Co-op accounted for $598,000 of the total and was one of the side effects of the F.E.R.C. decision* to reduce the size of a Delmarva Wholesale rate increase request. In the wake of the F.E.R.C. decision, DP&L's wholesale prices had to be adjusted, meaning the Co-op was deserving of a refund.

The remaining $530,000 of the $1.1 million credit resulted from a reduction in the price of electricity, specifically from reductions in the price of generating electricity which was due largely to falling oil prices and to the completion of the Edgemoor coal conversion project. Changes in the price of DP&L electricity to the Co-op are typically adjusted through a mechanism known as the PCA or "power cost adjustment" mechanism. The above cited factors however, were not anticipated and occurred after the PCA had been set.

Despite mid-year corrections in the PCA, it was still too high by the end of 1982. So, in addition to ordering an immediate refund (which included interest) of the $1.1 million, the PSC set a new (negative) PCA factor to be applied to the first part of 1983 in order to prevent a similar overcollection.

Over The Backyard Fence

Consult-A-Shopper

by April

As I was unpacking my groceries the other day, a neighbor stopped by for a cup of coffee. As she watched me put my week's rations away, she noticed a lot of "black and white" labels on several of the items I had purchased. "What is that?" she asked. I replied by telling her that these grocery items were "generic brands". "How can you eat pork and beans unless they are Campbell's?" she asked. I replied again, "Have you tried any of the generic brands?" Apparently she had not, for if she had, she would discover that many of these grocery items are equal in taste and quality to many of our famous brand named items.

For example, I always buy the generic trash bags at a savings of about 30% of the cost of Hefty or Glad trash bags. I find them just as strong and durable as either of the brand named bags. I mean, after all, who is going to come into your house, go into your cupboard, and make fun of your black and white labeled trash bags. (Well, maybe a couple of my friends, but who cares?) Have you ever tried the pancake syrup? It may be a little thinner than most syrups, but it is delicious in cooking, especially baked beans, barbeque sauce, etc. I save 50% of the regular cost of brand name syrup.

When it comes to pasta items, such as macaroni, noodles, spaghetti, etc. you can save about 30% of the cost. The only difference I see in these items is they are a little darker in color than the famous brand name pastas. The taste and texture is the same.

How about carbonated sodas for the heavy drinkers in your family? I cannot fool them with the cola, but the ginger ale, root beer, orange and grape are equally as good as the Nehi brand I used to purchase. There is about a 40% savings on these items. I saved over half of the cost on a 1 lb. can of pepper, and I defy anyone to find a difference in the generic brand and McCormick's.

You can save 50% on a 3-lb. bag of rice, and I find the texture and taste of this rice to be superior to the famous brand named rices, although the color may be a little darker. The generic sheets of fabric softener are a real bargain at a 40% savings of the cost of Bounce, and I find the scent more pleasant than the famous brand named fabric softener.

I am not fully satisfied with the cake mixes, although the brownie mix is delicious. My family can vouch for the potato chips, as they devour about three bags a week. I have never gotten any stale generic items, as they seem to move very quickly from the shelf.

There are only a few of the generic brands that I was not satisfied with. They were the canned peas and corn, although the canned tomatoes, beets, and sliced potatoes I found to be superior. I do not care for the 3 lb. can of shortening because of the fact that it is part animal fat. I must say I prefer the Crisco brand over the generic brand.

In this day and time, with the economy the way it is, why not give these "black and white" labels a try. Most of these items are manufactured and processed by famous brand name companies such as Campbell's, McCormick, Pillsbury, etc.

Wouldn't it be great to cut your grocery bill down from $100 a week to $75 a week? You could take your husband out for a steak dinner on Saturday night with the $25.00 savings.

Try it, you'll like it!"

Now we are into a New Year. What a grateful people we should be here on Delmarva that we have not had our homes flooded or buried under tons of snow. Truly we are blessed, and I feel ashamed when I hear someone complain of the foggy drizzle or the cold north wind. True, it is not ideal, but it beats seeing everything you've worked for covered in water.

I'm still enjoying my Christmas cards. I love and appreciate them all. Many of our friends wrote special messages of love and friendship which I treasure. One from my friend, Janet, had a tender message of love inside and on the outside there was a winter scene with a bunny and a squirrel, a blue jay, a grosbeak, and two cardinals. In the corner was a quotation from Shakespeare: "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin." An antique card from my friend, Linda, who works in our shop was a big teddy bear riding on an old rocking horse. To look at him was to laugh. I think teddy bears have more personality than dolls, really. My daughter collects them.

Here is a "Prayer for January". "Heavenly Father, the warmth of joyful Birthday songs I sang to welcome your Baby Son is still on my lips as I step forward to greet this newborn 1983. Let me hold fast the fresh clean gladness of this new beginning. As the infant year grows by days and weeks and months, let us grow in faith and grace and deeds."

I was brought up with the old saying that "Necessity is the Mother of Invention", and I still find it to be true in solving my many problems. I looked at the lovely chunk of eye of the round roast beef left over in the refrigerator and thought what a lovely beef stew it would make. Of course stews have to simmer an hour or two. To leave it would be asking it to boil dry. The old grandmother rocker in the kitchen is fine to drop down in for twenty minutes while the potatoes are finishing, but it would not be very kind to my arthritis for a long stretch.

A new idea came to me. Since I have to plan mostly oven meals that do not require watching, why not make the stew in oven. I'll bet you have done this for years possibly. Anyhow, I cut up the beef into small chunks, added a big chopped onion, two fat carrots, a package of frozen peas, a dollop of catsup and a good dash of A-1 steak sauce, added sufficient water and left it to do its own thing.

After a couple of hours I found everything tender, so I put it up on the burner, added some gravy for flavor and thickened it to my notion. I will probably always make oven stew from now on.

Carper takes oath of office

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Thomas R. Carper, elected last November as Delaware's lone member of the U.S. House of Representatives, took his oath of office January 3 in the House Chamber of the U.S. Capitol here.

Carper, 35, who defeated incumbent Thomas B. Evans, Jr., is the first Democrat to hold the seat in 16 years. He had served as Delaware's state treasurer since 1976.

Carper's parents, Richard and Jean Carper of Seminole, Fla., attended the ceremony, along with Carper's wife, Diane, and her parents, Emerson and Ruth Ann Isaacs of Greenwood, Del.

"As I was sworn in today as Delaware's only member of the U.S. House of Representatives, I was truly honored by the trust Delawareans have shown in me, but also sobered by the condition in which the nation -- our nation -- now finds itself," Carper said following the swearing-in ceremony. "This is a grave time in American history. Over 11 million Americans cannot find a job. This year's federal budget deficit will reach almost $200 billion. And the nation's Social Security system will run out of money later this year unless Congress takes prompt action to save it. We of the 98th Congress have some tough decisions ahead, and we must summon the political backbone to make those difficult choices. We must set political backbone to make those difficult choices. We must set plausible priorities acceptable to both parties and reach compromises that demonstrate both prudence and compassion.

"Now I know this may sound a lot like a pie-in-the-sky, idealistic goal, but I believe it's possible if we put aside party differences and instead put in some good, old-fashioned hard work and a lot of common sense. As only one of 435 members, I obviously cannot instigate change alone, but one of my primary objectives will be to help foster that essential spirit of bipartisan cooperation to help get this country back on the track."

Delaware's U.S. Senators Joe Biden and Bill Roth both attended a reception honoring Carper following the ceremony. The reception, held in a conference room of a House annex building near the Capitol, attracted almost 150 supporters and colleagues.

The Congressman's office in Wilmington and Washington opened January 4. The Wilmington office is located in Suite 5021 of the J. Caleb Boggs Federal Office Building and the Washington office address is 1020 Longworth Federal Office Building.

Carper also plans to open a Dover office, perhaps as early as next month. "He is the first congressman in recent memory to staff a downstate office."

Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill [right] swears in Delaware's new Congressman, Thomas R. Carper.

LF swim team opens first season

Lake Forest's brand new high school swim team opened its initial season with meets against St. Mark's on January 6 and Archmere on January 8. Although some of the swimmers have experience in the Lake Forest Community age group swim team, this is the first year there has been a high school swim team in competition with other high schools. It is expected that the initial years will be devoted to gaining experience and building competitive strength as young people grow up from the age group teams to participate.

At home against Caesar Rodney the Spartans kept within striking range in three quarters of low scoring. In the final quarter they pushed to within 3 points of the lead before falling back to a 12 point deficit.

Filion wins title

COLUMBUS, OHIO - Herve Filion, a member of harness racing's Hall of Fame and the sport's leading driver in career wins, has added his 12th North American dash-winning Championship to his unmatched set of driving accomplishments.

The 42-year-old native of Quebec turned back a strong challenge from 21-year-old Walter Case, Jr. to claim his 12th driving crown in the past fifteen years. Filion wound up with a total of 495 victories, with Case's final tally at 471.

Case, a driving sensation from Maine, had led Filion by a slim margin throughout most of the season, but Case saw his lead evaporate after the Maine season closed for the year on December 5. Filion raced at Freehold (N.J.) Raceway in the afternoon and Yonkers (N.Y.) at night, making up the ground on Case and then passing him with two weeks to go in the season.

The top 20 drivers for 1982 in terms of dashes won are:

1. Herve Filion 495

Sconce named Harness Horse of the month

COLUMBUS, OHIO - Sconce, a three-year-old pacing filly who equalled a world record for her division at Pompano Park, has been named Harness Horse of the Month for December by the United States Trotting Association.

A three-year-old daughter of Silent Majority out of the Sampson Direct mare Candelabra, Sconce is trained by Wilson Witten, Jr. for Weco, Inc. of Louisville, KY. Mickey McNichol has been her catch-driver in recent starts.

Sconce shipped into Pompano Park in early December and immediately took over the filly and mare class, setting her world record in her Florida debut, the first round of the Orange Blossom Pacing Series. McNichol kept Sconce on the rail to the stretch, then shook clear and paced to a 1:55.3 victory, tying the world record of champion race fillies Fan Hanover and Three Diamonds. Ironically, Fan Hanover was eligible to the Orange Blossom Series, but she was retired before the series started.

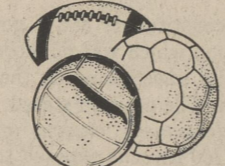

Honorable mention for Horse of the Month honors goes to the amazing Rambling Willie, who on December 26 set the American record for most victories in a career. The iron-tough 12-year-old pacer was guided by Bob Farrington to a 2:02 victory at Maywood Park, shattering the old mark he shared with Lenawee Creed with his 120th lifetime visit to the winner's circle.

Open letter to the citizens of Harrington,

I am 38 years old and have lived in the city of Harrington for 35 years (probably much longer than some of our city officials). I attended my first (but not my last) "Annual Citizens Meeting" on Friday night, January 7th, 1983. I attended this meeting because I felt a need to express feelings of mine and a few other Harrington citizens to discuss a questionnaire that was mailed out to over 900 residents in this city. This questionnaire was a poll to count the number of residents that would like to see a new city hall erected out of the downtown area at a cost of $140,000 to the taxpayers as opposed to the renovation of a downtown building which would cost $135,000. We were told at the meeting that a count of 88 for a new city hall and 34 for renovation of a downtown building was received. After a question was brought up whether there were any other questionnaires returned with a vote for neither new nor renovated one of the city officials said that 28 were returned with nothing marked. I also heard one of the city officials mention that a few letters were received, but we did not get an accurate count on these.

If I mailed out over 900 questionnaires and only received a total of 150 back, I would question the questionnaire. Wouldn't you? We were informed at the Citizens Meeting (and I use the term loosely) that this questionnaire was not a question of price, but a question of downtown or out-of-downtown facilities for our city hall. Why, then were the prices even quoted on this questionnaire? Are we citizens all fools? Would we choose an old building for $135,000 or a new one for $140,000? Well, of course, we would choose a spanking new one (which just happens to be out of the downtown area) for $140,000. Many people returned these questionnaires and were under the impression that they only had two choices (what choices?). Many of us felt that the questionnaire was unfairly stated.

A few of my constituents and I got together a petition which was no more binding than the questionnaires that were mailed out. The petition stated:

We, the [undersigned] citizens of Harrington are 100 percent opposed to the costs suggested for relocation or replacement of a new city hall. We strongly feel that the city's needs can be better served at a much lesser cost to the taxpayers. We feel alternatives must be sought.

When I tried to present this petition to the council, I was told by the mayor that it had no bearing on the subject in question (which at the moment was the questionnaire that was sent out). A couple of the councilmen seemed to misinterpret the contents of this petition. Maybe they did not bother to listen to it or to read it again when I presented it to them. I repeat, as I did at the meeting, that we, the citizens of Harrington, are in no way opposed to a new city hall. We feel that the city's needs can be better served at a much lesser cost to the taxpayers. I was told that I went to all the trouble to get those 125 signatures on this petition and that I had agitated the citizens of Harrington by doing so. It was no trouble. The people who signed this petition may be questioned to see if they were agitated. The only agitated people I saw were a couple of the city councilmen and the mayor. I was totally shocked at the attitude of Councilman Gagne, Councilman Melvin and Mayor Mann when presented with this petition.

We, as citizens of Harrington, should make it perfectly clear to these men that this was a "Citizens Meeting", and although our names were not on the agenda for the evening, we had every right in this democratic country to air our views. I think these men have forgotten who elected them.

Sincerely,
Carol Ann Porter

Open letter to the citizens of Harrington,

I served on the City of Harrington Council from February 4, 1974 to January 1983. In serving with various Councilmen and Mayors, it has been my observation that these men met the needs of the City at the time and laid the ground work for each subsequent council and mayor. I'm sure former Mayors William Minner and Arthur Cahall and their councils feel a sense of pride for their contributions and leadership to the City of Harrington and rightfully so.

For several years Harrington Councils considered reassessment, a new City Hall, upgrading our water

This would increase property taxes as follows:

Assessed Valuation	Tax Increase
$10,000	$6,000
$15,000	9.00
$20,000	12.00
$30,000	18.00

Your annual property taxes would increase by $13.04. This is exorbitant? We do not plan to move City Hall to Liberty Street. We offered this idea to the citizens to get their opinion.

and sewer systems, streets and signs rewriting the charter ordinances, personnel policies, job descriptions and long term planning. Expertise, time, finances and taxes (were) a deterrent.

EPA forced the city to upgrade its sewer plant at a cost considerably higher than anticipated due to inflation. Inflation also forced the city to reassess property and remove itself from the trash business.

As I stated before each Mayor and Council has met the needs of its time. Mayor Mann and the present Council are no exceptions. Mayor Mann and Councilman Ray Gagne proposed new budget procedures - line item budgeting.

If you ride by the City Hall on Saturday and Sunday, you may find Mayor Mann researching and writing the city charter, personnel policies or job descriptions. The documents were authored by Mr. Mann and presented to the Council to add to, delete from or change. The ordinances are being authored by the town solicitor Harry Terry for Mayor and Council approval.

The council feels fortunate to have at this time a person with Mayor Mann's expertise in city administration, sewer and water systems. The sewer plant has not been fully accepted by the city due to problems found by Mayor Mann and Councilman Wyatt. Once we accept the plan as satisfactory it would be the taxpayers' cost to do any modifications or repairs.

For the improvements in the appearance of properties and buildings in the City of Harrington, we can thank the efforts of Councilmen Bobby Quillen and Richard Henry, and Mr. Earnest Gallo for our building inspector.

Through the efforts and planning of Councilman Curtis Melvin, a new utility building 40 x 60 at the value of $36,000.00 was constructed at no cost to the taxpayers of the City of Harrington.

Long term planning has been recommended by Mayor Mann and instituted by Council. Water level gauges have been placed to measure available water and possible shortages in our wells. Mapping the town's sewer and water system is phase I of our program. Studying the water supply and distribution system is phase II. This is needed for future growth and development of the City.

Councilmen Curtis Melvin and Jack Wyatt informed the Council that there was not sufficient water pressure in the fire hydrants to service Lake Forest Elementary and W.T. Chipman due to the size of the old rusting pipes. Councilman Jack Wyatt was instrumental in informing Council and the Mayor that we were eligible to apply for up to three hundred thousand dollars from the Community Development Grant to service this area with a water system.

The mayor and council have undertaken a tremendous work burden for themselves, in the best interest of the City of Harrington.

I have personally found serving on the City Council representing the Third Ward and the City of Harrington to be rewarding and educational. I feel fortunate to have had the opportunity to serve.

City of Harrington
Att: Building Committee
Fleming Street

January 3, 1983

Dear Building Committee Members:

I find it impossible to respond to your questionnaire simply by checking option #1 or #2. I feel in doing this, my response could possibly be interpreted as an expression of my wishes in the matter of a new location for City Hall.

Please understand my awareness of the need for relocating our city offices. Council has my admiration for making do with so little for so long. My voice is not of dissent, but rather to fully understand what the needs are. If Council plans on replacing present facilities with somewhat larger and more modern ones, then both proposals seem very costly. I know a family can have a modest six room pre-fabricated home built for approximately $45,000. Adding extra space and some options, I would think a presentable City Hall can be designed within the framework of this concept. I'm sure the cost would be considerably less than the two figures quoted. If that idea is unrealistic, perhaps one of the following is more acceptable.

A: The former Peoples Bank building. Conveniently located in the downtown area, air conditioned, parking, a vault and probably built like a fortress.

B: Several homes for sale in the city. Resale prices are comparatively low and with some modification and alternations a suitable City Hall may be found as well as preserving one of our lovely older homes.

I for one would like to know exactly what the City of Harrington's needs are in this matter. Only then can I agree or disagree with any proposals.

Respectfully submitted,
Anne Paladino

Harrington, DE 19952

January 4, 1983

Dear Sirs:

I feel great concern regarding the form I received in the mail asking my choice of location for a new city hall. How can you justify asking a taxpayer to blindly make such a commitment? Surely steps have been taken by council to have arrived at this point. What are they? Has all your research filtered down to a Liberty Street location or a downtown location with a price tag of $140,000 or $135,000? There must be better options than that.

I suggest council sit down and sharpen their pencil and come up with a better proposal than that which has been offered. If that seems too difficult, a committee of taxpayers who perhaps are more experienced at biting the financial bullet, should take over the responsibility of solving this problem.

Let's not jump into anything we cannot afford. Extra taxes have a way of hanging on. Harrington's population growth over past years should give us an indication of our needs as well as who will be footing the bill.

I am urging all taxpayers to be present at Friday night's meeting and make their wishes known.

Sincerely,
W.C. Ashley

[Note: this letter was received too late to publish in last week's paper, consequently, the Friday night citizen's meeting has already been held.]

Mayor Mann
Town Council
City Hall
Harrington, DE 19952

Dear Mayor Mann and Council Members:

I do not understand your letter, which requests me to have an opinion on the choice of buying a new building or renovating an old building on Commerce Street for a new City Hall.

When I asked other homeowners and residents of Harrington what they thought of the choices offered, they too had a feeling of frustration in being asked to vote for a choice without knowing the facts behind your selection of sites for a City Hall. Surely, voters are entitled to know all the facts that motivated a choice of two sites, and to ask if another alternative is not only possible, but can be accomplished with less cost to the taxpayers of Harrington.

I have a feeling that our dedicated Fire Department is being used in this matter as a scapegoat in a game of politics. Surely the members of the Fire Department, being taxpayers themselves, and also interested in the best for our city, would not wish the Councilmembers to rush the taxpayers into a decision detrimental to their interests. While we need a new city hall, we also need to think of tax costs. The choice you are asking us to make seems exorbitantly high in face of all the rising taxes on owners and tenants of Harrington. Surely there are other alternatives available.

May I suggest that the city invite a consultant to speak at an open meeting concerning future traffic patterns, renovation of old buildings and the plans of the councilmembers to move.....City Hall.....to Liberty Street? The City Manager did very much for the city of Salisbury, which is growing each day and adding revenue to its city without unduly taxing the citizens. Could we not ask a man of this ability in planning to tell us how he did it, then make adaptations to suit our own needs and planning? In this way, no ill feelings can be generated and I feel that citizens will be supportive, if not eager to improve the city of Harrington, not only adding a new city hall, but also other businesses and more employment and prosperity.

Sincerely,
Ruth M. Hughes

and all the facts and figures presented to the citizens. If and when such a public hearing takes place, I will personally make you aware of the time and place.
