

"Where do you want City Hall?" Council asks.

Jaycees may circulate questionnaire

by David F. Coady
 After deciding that more study time was needed before adopting an interim budget, Harrington City Council set 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, November 1, as the date for another Workshop session. Council then turned its attention to a permanent location for City Hall. Council discussed ways of obtaining public input for a new location.

Councilman Jack Wyatt said that he believed that most people would prefer a new building, but Mayor Mann retorted that most people believe that a new building can be constructed for under $100,000. "I had one person suggest that a new building could be constructed for less than $20,000," Mann said.

Council discussed holding another referendum on whether to construct a new building or not. City Solicitor William Walls pointed out that this is not necessary.

"The only reason you need a referendum is for the authority to borrow the necessary money. If you had the money, a referendum wouldn't even be necessary," Walls said. Walls explained that City Council has the authority to buy or construct whatever it wants with regard to a City Hall. Council then discussed the possibility of conducting some sort of straw poll to find out what was the most popular idea for a new City Hall.

Tom Lyons asked how the Jaycees could help the council. "We are here to serve the community," Lyons said of the Jaycees. "I can't speak for everyone in the organization, but I'm sure that most would be willing to help out in some way," Lyons continued. Further discussion led to the idea of preparing a questionnaire to be circulated door-to-door by volunteers such as the Jaycees.

"We once sent out a questionnaire with two proposals. One to construct a new city hall and the other to buy a renovate an existing building down town. A petition was circulated against both proposals. The petition had more signatures than the proposal had respondents," Gagne said.

Curtis Melvin pointed out that the Council must approve any plan at a regular session of Council. "We can find out if the Jaycees would be willing to help before our next Council meeting," Councilman Richard Henry retorted. Lyons agreed to poll the membership to find out if they would be willing to assist in circulating a questionnaire on behalf of City Council and to report back to council on November 1.

Some of the questions suggested for the questionnaire were: 1. Construct a new building. 2. Buy and renovate an existing building. 3. No new City Hall. Both Mayor Mann and Councilman Jarrell said they felt it was wonderful that an organization such as the Jaycees was interested enough in the future of the city to offer assistance.

Eleutherian Mills-Hagley Foundation spearheads banking regulatory conference

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr
 THE SODA HOUSE, GREENVILLE, DELAWARE - With local banks participating, the Eleutherian Mills-Hagley Foundation last Thursday and Friday held a two-day conference entitled most appropriately "The Regulatory Roller Coaster: The Past and Future of American Banking." The Harrington Journal was present.

With recent changes in the banking industry, especially in Delaware.... now cited as the trend setter in banking concepts, and in particular Harrington where the J.C. Penney Co. purchased all stock in the First National Bank of Harrington within the past two months enabling the J.C. Penney Company to acquire the charter of the national bank, made the conference a timely program. The rapidly changing events involved in banking for the present has caused a great deal of controversy.

Dr. Edward G. Boehne, President of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia gave the keynote address on Thursday evening which keyed the underlining theme of the conference. He praised the Foundation for staging the conference with reference to the relevancy of the subject matter to the nation as a whole "...but in particular for Delaware...which has been in the forefront of banking change," he said. He had these further predictions. He said he feels the basic business of banking is likely to remain the same for the next 100 years as it has in the last....banking is an intermediary role between borrowers and savers, and additional service offerings while important, will not change. "It is basic", he added. He also predicted that "while regulations would become less...they will not disappear". The third prediction had to do with revolutionary changes in banking services. Dr. Boehne also predicted a continued increase in automatic teller machines. He foresees more bank mergers with the net result being less banks. "There will be a rapid increase in the use of ATM's because of the point-of-sale concept where a customer in a grocery store, gasoline station or department store makes a buy, inserts the credit card in the terminal at the location with the immediate result being that the person's bank account is immediately debited. The end result is that the bank gains due to time saving from high cost of processing paper.... while the customer benefits from not having to write a check". The use of electronic technology will change the distribution system of banking services in the next decade. The trend will be toward "computers" of all kinds. Small banks will not be able to afford a computer, but they can buy time on one or what they refer to in the industry as "...borrowing time" on the computer.

Although the method banks will conduct their business in the next decade, it is also true that banks in order to survive and render more services it will be necessary for banks to seek more ways in which to provide a wider array of services. "There are some today that are providing discount brokerage services, and desiring to get into securities underwriting. But banks need to get into the field of insurance....(for after all they are involved in the insurance field. However, there are a lot of road blocks there, which would preclude banks at the present time from getting right into that field. I feel it would be a natural thing for banks to do", he said.

The conference by and large used as a focal point the "New Deal" administration both before and after that period of time to show how the banking regulations have been on a "roller coaster" so to speak. It was during those troublesome times in this country as Dr. Boehne, so adequately pointed out, that the regulations in the 1930's structured the banking industry

"...in order to restore confidence in the midst of economic calamity", he said. There was then a more important need for regulations than concepts in banking as evolving today through innovative banking programs, more services for bank customers, more efficient methods in banking through

by David F. Coady
 "The communist must build a wall to keep their people inside but still they try to break out to freedom". These were the words spoken by President Reagan at the Berlin Wall in May 1982. It was also the second day of confinement for Austin S. Stockman. Stockman was court martialed in May 1982 for attempting to smuggle an East German family to freedom in the West.

His court martial lasted a total of two hours. The charge was transporting personnel not in possession of proper papers. Stockman admitted to entering East Berlin on March 25, 1982 for the purpose of smuggling back through the checkpoint an East German family of three. He made it through the Soviet checkpoint without any problems but then was stopped in the neutral zone, a no-mans land, between the East and West sectors of Berlin.

"I was stopped by a Russian Colonel who asked for my papers," Stockman said. He (the Colonel) wanted to search the car that Stockman was driving. Without proper authority this act is illegal in the neutral zone. Stockman claims that proper authority was not given but the search was carried out anyway. The East German family of three was found hidden between the back seat and trunk. Stockman was arrested by American authorities and the East German family was turned over to Soviet authorities.

A total of four Army personnel were involved in the smuggling attempt. Two men received Article 15's (Commanding Officer's punishment) and Stockman and one other were court martialed for their action. Stockman claims that in two previous cases for the same offenses, that five Article 15's were given out. This was the first time that an American GI was court martialed for aiding East Berliners in escaping to the West. Stockman was given, by West German civilians, 1800 Marks (approximately $900) for expenses for his part in the operation.

"I was asked by my roommate if I wanted to help," Stockman said. He also had two German friends that were involved in the operation. Stockman did not believe that any other American Government agency was involved in the operation. "No one ever mentioned any agency name during conversations," Stockman said.

At his court martial in West Berlin on May 4, 1982, Stockman was given one year at hard labor, forfeiture of all pay and allowances, reduced in rank to Private (E-1) and given a bad conduct discharge. He served a total of 110 released in the room and soldiers must put on their gas masks after the gas is released.

Stockman is originally from Ellendale and graduated from Milford High School in June of 1979. He joined the U.S. Army just two days after graduation. On December 15, 1979, he married the former Valerie Moore of Harrington. They reside outside Harrington. Stockman is employed by Mohawk Electronics of Milford.

Steve Welch, President of Mohawk Electronics supports Stockman in his appeals. "He is one heck of a good person," Welch said of Stockman. Welch described Stockman as a good and reliable worker.

"I can't be a judge from the legal sense, but I believe he thought he was doing the right thing morally. Personally I think he should have gotten an Article 15 and the whole thing forgotten," Welch said.

Stockman's other problem is that his Battalion Quartermaster has lost all of his kit (possessions) both civilian and military. Congressman Tom Carper's office has been cooperating with Stockman in both his appeals and in trying to obtain reimbursement for his lost kit. State representative G. Robert Quillen is also assisting in the case.

Milford woman dies in trailer fire

A Milford woman who lived in a mobile home outside Milford died early Monday, October 17, 1983, when flames engulfed her trailer.

A spokeswoman for the state fire marshal's office identified the woman as Dorothy Mae Todd, 44 years old, a clerk at the Chicken Man Convenience Store in Milford.

Todd was dead on arrival at Nanticoke Memorial Hospital in Seaford of smoke inhalation.

The fire was reported about 1:25 a.m. and was extinguished in about 30 minutes by members of the Carlisle Fire Company of Milford, which discovered the woman's body. The spokeswoman said the fire, which started in the kitchen appeared to be accidental. Deputy fire marshals are trying to determine what started the blaze.

Before working at the convenience store, Todd worked at Country Pride Chicken in Milford.

She is survived by a son, Michael G. Reynolds of Ellendale; a daughter, Donna F. Littleton of Milford; her mother, Frances Millman, also of Milford; two brothers, James Mitchell and Alvin Mitchell, both of Milford and a sister, Ruth Rambo of Houston.

Graveside services were 11 a.m. Wednesday at Odd Fellows Cemetery, North Walnut St.

Looks like another caper in Harrington

These men with boy's brains are operating like little children. The takeover against good people of Harrington, spending tax payers dollars to make themselves comfortable and at ease.

This White Elephant as it was called was forced upon the people without any consideration for the elderly. These elderly property owners of the town of Harrington do not like it a little bit. I have spoken to over a hundred good people and all are outraged over the whole set up. We the people who have contacted most everyone who owns their own property, will tell you folks of Harrington, we will not sit still for the total blunder brought upon us here in this town. Some one will have to pay dearly for this blunder. I could really tell you folks lots more "but can't now." The owners of said property on Center St. are partly to blame for this bulldozed blunder and I do mean these strong words, just anything at all to get the job done, which was a big blunder on the owner's part, of course, as the saying goes, all is fair in love and war. But this is not so with the people of Harrington. But so many of these good people are afraid to speak out against the outrage of the thing that has already happened.

Already several people have called me up and told me they had to walk way down to Center Street to pay their water bill. It was a burden on these older people who don't have any way to go only on foot. Also these people have told me of the "carpet job". The talk was a complete carpet only $35 C's. New offices for the people in on the know.

I have been told our City Manager has herself well fixed in a new office. Also, I hear where one of the workers got scared, he thought the place was haunted, of course, that's all hearsay. Ha! Ha!

I also hear they will have a grand opening soon and the entire public will be invited to just look around. Won't that be nice for the people of Harrington.

So a good night to the wonderful people of whom I have met this past week or so. I do believe that the people who signed the petition will get the job done.

I have visited over a hundred homes and I'm sure all those people can't be wrong.

Our mayor and all the rest of the blundering council members and the so-called City Manager should all just resign.

This would save a lot of blunders around and money. These people have got to be stopped some way. We can not get a word from the Better Business Bureau or the The Greater Harrington Chamber of Commerce. Not a word has been spoken as to what they may think or care.

Yours truly,
Citizen Charles A. Price

A Tricentennial View of Frederica

An "Old Photo Contest" is being sponsored by the Dover Public Library for 19th and early 20th century views of Frederica. Entries must be received no later than Tuesday, November 15th and will be returned to owners after photographing. Cash prizes of 15, 10, and 5 dollars are offered for the most interesting old pictures.

These photographs will illustrate a local history slide program of Frederica, an exhibit, and a booklet, A Tricentennial View of Frederica, to be published by the Friends of the Dover Public Library early in 1984.

Frederica, formerly Johnny Cake Landing, was an important Kent County port before the advent of the Delaware railroad in 1857. Shipbuilding was one of its most important commercial pursuits and vessels built there were sent to all parts of the world.

"A Tricentennial View of Frederica" will be part two of "Six Tricentennial Views of Kent County" to be presented over the next two years at not only the library, but also in each community studied. A second showing of "A Tricentennial View of Leipsic" will be offered at the Leipsic Fire Hall on Wednesday, October 26th at 8:30 p.m. Presentations for Milford, Murderkill Hundred (to include Camden, Wyoming and Star Hill), Harrington, and Dover will be offered over the next two years. Professionally produced slide-tape kits will be available for loan to schools, clubs, and other organizations following the live presentations.

This project is funded by a grant from the Delaware Humanities Forum, an affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities. For more information contact Sue Jamison, 736-7030.

Dover contractor cited by the Division of Consumer Affairs

Fred A. Voshell, Dover area land developer, has been ordered by the Delaware Division of Consumer Affairs to stop certain business practices alleged as fraudulent and deceptive. The Division has issued a Cease and Desist Order to Fred A. Voshell, individually and as president of Liberty Lumber and Concrete, Inc., Route 1, Box 802, Dover for misrepresentations in connection with the sale and development of a mobile home lot.

According to Division Investigator, Gail Skeen, prior to June 29, 1982 Mr. Voshell advertised the sale of improved mobile home lots in Parris-Villa, Woodside, Delaware, one of which was contracted for by a Frederica couple. Voshell agreed to sell and improve the lot and to relocate their mobile home to the site and connect it to the necessary utilities. On July 1, 1982 the couple paid $1,500.00 to the violator for the sale of the lot with improvements with the understanding that settlement would occur by September 1, 1982. This was not done. Since February 1983, the couple has made repeated and continued requests for a refund of the $1,500.00 to no avail. On September 8, 1983 Mr. Voshell met with Investigator Skeen and promised to refund the money by October 9, 1983. The refund was not paid.

The Cease and Desist Order was issued by Frances M. West, Director of the Division of Consumer Affairs and Acting Secretary of the Department of Community Affairs. It may be appealed to the Consumer Affairs board within fifteen (15) days of being served.

Highlights from the 1983 Miller High Life 500

PIT NOTES - "I don't know whether to laugh or cry," said NASCAR driver Darrell Waltrip shortly after Sunday's Miller High Life 500 at Charlotte Motor Speedway.
 Waltrip's emotional confusion resulted from the mixed results of his afternoon behind the wheel of the #11 Junior Johnson Chevrolet.
 His initial frustration grew out of his three-second, $5,550 loss to Richard Petty. His frustration became acute hours later when he learned that despite two serious rules infractions (illegal tires and oversize engine) which were punished by a $35,000 fine and loss of 104 Winston Cup points.
 Waltrip's satisfaction came from chopping 24 points off Bobby Allison's lead for the Winston Cup Driver's Championship and from helping his Pepsi crew win its second straight Ingersoll-Rand Proto National Pit Crew contest.

 Backed by seven near-perfect pit stops totalling four minutes 36.25 seconds, Waltrip's crew beat Terry Labonte's crew by 30.23 seconds. Bill Elliott's team finished third, only 6.02 seconds behind. All three teams made seven stops, six of them during caution periods.
 In checking the statistics of Waltrip's pit crew victory last month at Darlington International Raceway, Ingersoll-Rand officials noted that Junior Johnson's men used only 23/100th of a second more time at Darlington to complete the same number of stops. "How's that for consistency?" Waltrip said.

Tomaino, Gentile, and Dauncey garnish Wall finale wins

WALL TOWNSHIP - Jamie "the Jet" Tomaino of Tinton Falls closed out the regular season Saturday night at Wall Stadium as he captured the thirty-five lap modified feature.
 Allentown, PA's Ed Lilly jumped out into the lead on the start of the feature as Tom Mauser of Farmingdale and Tony Ferrante Jr. of Franklin Square, N.Y. filed into second and third.
 The first of only two yellow flags came out on lap seven as Mauser came together with the frontstretch fence ending his evening of racing. On the restart, Lilly again took command of the race as Tomaino quickly charged into second, and by lap eleven he past Lilly and went into the front spot.

 Tomaino quickly pulled away from the field as Lilly continued to run in second and Eddie Bohn of Freehold ran in third. On lap thirty, the red flag came out as Ferrante became a victim of circumstance rolling over the beautiful Ferrante & Co. #X2. Luckily, Ferrante was uninjured and on the restart, Tomaino easily bested the remaining field to take home the win.
 Lilly held on for second place money as Blewett finished third, Jerry Cranmer of Trenton fourth, Ed Brunhoezel fifth, Bohn sixth, Jim Reed seventh, and Frank Reynolds of West Belmar eighth.
 In the thirty lap sportsman feature, Tony Gentile of Bronx, N.Y. recorded his second win of the season on the Don-Glo #22.
 On the start of the race, Tom Comerford Jr. of Neptune, paced the powerful field of sportsman, but on lap four mechanical woes hit the #76 as he hit the fourth turn fence giving Sal Moschella Sr. the lead.
 Moschella tried to end a long string of bad luck, but this night was not to be the night as something let go in the engine department sending the car to the infield as Gentile inherited the lead and the eventual win.
 In for second place money was Tony Ciccone of Edison as Ed Senkewicz of Lake Parsippany was third, Chris Allen of Old Bridge fourth, and Pat Patterson of Princeton in fifth.
 In the twenty five lap modern stock feature Harold Dauncey beat fellow Briertown resident Lee Taylor to capture the win. Third spot went to Steve Springsteel of Woodbridge as Bob Howard of Matawan was fourth, and Jack Ely of Manasquan finished fifth.
