The recommendation that a single emergency number be established first came from the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and the Administration of Justice in 1967.

The following year American Telephone and Telegraph Company announced that the three-digit number "911" was being made available nationwide as an emergency telephone number.

In the same year, Delaware initiated a major effort to establish communication centers in each of the state's three counties. The project was supported by state funds and a grant from the National Highway Safety Bureau. In September 1976, Seaford implemented 911 for police and fire service in the 629 telephone exchange.

After a feasibility study, New Castle County established the service in December 1980. Kent County agreed to provide the service in April 1983, as did Sussex County County in May of this year.

When Workman cut the ribbon on Sept. 25, Delaware's pioneering effort was made official.

Lady driver excels at Harrington

Betty Gill talks, the men at Harrington means business. Raceway all listen. And well they should. After 3 weeks of racing at the Harrington oval, Gill is the top rated trainer and the second leading driver of the Meet. And who would have times ask if I've ever considered guessed? Short takes on area news

Elliott gets good news

DOVER - Dave Elliott, the embattled insurance commissioner was delighted with the report released Friday by Marna C. Whittington, Finance Department secretary and Stephen T. Golding, state budget director.

Elliott has been the target for media criticism in recent months as a result of a state audit calling attention to irregularities in the insurance department's accounting procedures.

Whittington's report indicated the irregularities are minor ones that could be found in any agency. Carelessness in paper work for expenditures and the department's lack of an internal procedures manual appeared to be the causes of the alleged violations, according to the report.

The brouhaha stemmed from a report released by state auditor Dennis E. Greenhouse nursing school in Kentucky that she met her husband, Ernest and in addition to producing race horses, they found the time to produce six children during their 30-year marriage. Two of the children, Dawn and Dwayne attend school in the Lake Forest district, while all of the others are actively engaged in harness racing. One of her daughters, Debbie, is married to a horseman racing at Pocono Downs in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania. Her son, William, is racing at the Meadows in Meadow Lands, Pennsylvania, while two other sons, Dennis and Dan each have a racing stable at Harrington.

Elliott said the review was a "vindication of the accusatory comments of the state auditor.'

Although Gill's love of horses is evident, she's the first to admit that it's not always been a bowl of cherries. During her 16 years of racing, she's raced from one end of the United States to the other (including several provinces of Canada) at over 30 tracks. She compares racing to a roller

The Republican Elliott continued to question the political motivation of the Democratic Greenhouse.

Whittington and Goldberg also expressed concern "regarding the appearance of the state accounting manual being used as a 'political instrument.' We are confident this is not your intent," they wrote.

Referring to accounting practices in the insurance department, Whittington wrote, "...in every instance, if he had done the paperwork right, they would have flowed right through the system."

Elliott referred to them as "minor accounting" problems that are being resolved. He said he is now putting together an internal procedures manual.

Lions flea market benefits high school

MILFORD - The Milford Lions Club hosted a flea market Sunday on the grounds of the Milford Middle School for the benefit of the Milford High School academic program.

The activities were originally scheduled for Saturday but were rained out. About 20 flea market tables featuring craft items, books, record albums, and bric-a-brac of all sorts were set up for the bargain hunters. Funds were also raised through an auction featuring items donated by local merchants.

Woo leads Robinson in radio poll

A poll concerning the Lieutenant Governor's race in Delaware was taken by WILM Newsradio in Wilmington on September 26th.

The results of the poll have S.B. Woo, the Democratic nominee for the state's second highest position, leading Battle Robinson, his Republican counterpart, by ten points (55% to 45%). A total of 112 people participated in the tally. The poll, taken as part of a daily series called "The People Poll," urged people listening between 6:35 and 8:00 am to telephone the station with an answer to the question: "Who would you favor in the race for Lieutnenat Governor? The station conducted the Poll without promotion an effort to prevent candidates' organizations from trying to influence the results.

Conservative Caucus backs Burris

The Conservative Caucus of Delaware Political Action Committee announced its endorsement last week of Republican candidate John Burris in the U.S. Senate race against incumbent Democrat Joseph R. Biden, Jr.

William D. D'Onofrio. spokesman for the committee, described Biden as "part of the entrenched liberal power structure in this nation that has been responsible for policy failure after policy failure."

"When you understand", said D'Onofrio, "that it is Congress that appropriates every dime spent by the federal government and what that spending will be for, and has oversight over those expenditures, and that it is the U.S. Senate that has the power of confirming or denying presidential appointments to the policy-enforcing bureaucracies and departments and the judicial system, then you understand that it is Congress that must shoulder the blame for policy failures."

"Upon entering the U.S. Senate in 1972", continued D'Onofrio, "Joe Biden, with increasing impact, became part and parcel of a liberal mindset that has endangered our national security by pandering to those whose goal is to destroy us, played havoc with our economy through socialistic schemes, and substituted true civil rights under our Constitution with enforced equality of result."

The TCCPAC spokesman concluded, "We believe that John Burris is the needed conservative alternative to the liberal antics of Joe Biden. We hope Delawareans will support John Burris as our state's contribution to the ensuring of a meaningful change of direction in Washington."

Abbotts Mill was placed on the National Register of Historic Places in Nature Education Society (DNEC) as a center for environmental activities in 1981.

Antique horse-drawn carriages, provided by Nutter Marvel, carried festival-goers on tours of the sylvan beauty of the surrounding countryside. Although a mill has stood on the present location since 1808, the existing structure was built in the 1880's. The last miller, Ainsworth Abbott, purchased the mill in 1919. Pols and press get wet at Governor's Fair

by William T. Ficka

When Gov. Pete du Pont took office eight years ago, his wife Elise felt she "wanted to do something to open up the house.'

Thus was the idea for a Governor's Fair originated.

In those eight years, the governors's Fair has become one of the bestplanned, best-attended public functions in the entire state.

Saturday was no exception.

Thousands of people flocked to Woodburn," the governor's house on Kings Highway.

Sunny skies and temperatures in the low eighties on the first day of Autumn favored fairgoers as they toured the grounds taking in the many offerings and attractions.

Potters, candlewickers, needleworkers, basket weavers, tinsmiths, violin makers, and dollmakers displayed their crafts in mock shops along "Main Street U.S.A.", which was the theme of this year's fair.

Entertainment ranged from Michael Jackson and Boy George songs to gospel singing and barbership quartet harmonizing.

Milford celebrates 12th Annual Harvest Festival

by William T. Ficka

Milford's 12th Annual River Harvest Festival attracted large crowds September 21 and 22 as it offered countless events, ranging from a cow-milking contest and an antique car show to flea markets and a Fishing Derby.

Sunny skies favored festival-goers as they strolled the streets taking in the sights and sounds.

Walnut street was closed off between 6 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Saturday to reserve the site for the many booths and activities, including the sidewalk sales of the downtown merchants.

Displays covered a wide area, extending from the A & P Shopping Center to the Milford Plaza Shopping Center.

Entertainment was provided by the "Milford Rock Ensemble," from Milford High School; "Past Tense," a country and western band; the "Dia-mond State Twirlers," a local square dance club; and the Delaware Clowns. Barbecued chicken cooked by the Milford Jaycees was available by the bushel or platter in Bicentennial Park. Among the firsts chalked up by the Milford Chamber of Commerce were the Chainsaw-Log Sawing Contest and Klunkers Korner, a used-car sale, with area car dealers participating.

A highlight of the festival was the cow milking contest for politicians.

Putting the most milk in a soda bottle in a three minute period and walking off as winner was George Carey, running for state Rep.-36th District.

just deserts for this dastardly deed when their Sussex County counterparts put them into the drink. Carl Allen, Republican candidate for Kent County Sheriff, came out looking like an English Channel swimmer.

Politicians of both parties were on hand to meet and greet prosepective voters.

S.B. Woo, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor was there with his wife, Katy, as were John Burris, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, and his wife, Linda. Among others attending were U.S. Rep. Tom Carper, U.S. Sen. Bill Roth, G. Robert "Bobby" Quillen, incumbent state Rep.-30th District, and Ed Ruyter, running for state Rep.-29th District. The governor and his wife greeted hundreds of well wishers.

A friendliness and frolicsome spirit prevail at these Governor's Fairs. People put political differences aside

The spirit of the day is exemplified by Elise's invitation to her opponent, Democratic U.S. Rep. Tom Carper. He called her to verify the invitation.

"They had sent an invitation and I was afraid they might have just slipped up and sent last year's guest list," Carper said.

"I wanted him to come," Elise said. Even the politicians on their rounds of handshaking seem to put partisanship on the back burner for this one day. It was a great idea Elise gave birth to eight years ago, and the tradition should continue when her husband steps down as governor.

Castle has pledged to continue the fairs if elected in November.

But regardless of who wins in November, the spirit of good fellowship generated at the Governor's Fair is a quality too valuable to be set aside.

And where else can you get to see a newsman scrambling out of the St.

the lunch gang had a late breakfast, so I will have time to talk a bit. I am basking in a great sense of accomplishment this week, which is in direct opposition to the week just passed. Last week was a bit hard to get through. Our Teddy left to start his career in the service, and our Gary had to be away attending a school session regarding his work.

All day Monday I sweltered in the lima bean patch, trying to help Dad fill our orders. Tuesday, I spent doing apple sauce for the freezer, ten quarts of it. When I started on the second basket of apples this morning, it was hot and humid, and I plowed along on sheer willpower. But suddenly, as often happens in Delaware, the wind shifted to the east and brought a stiff, cook breeze sailing in the kitchen windows. Then I knew I would make it. I put the apples through the food mill, deeply of that refreshing, salty air, and I look forward to the end of the canning and freezing season soon. Then baking, which I love. I have lots of recipes stacked up for bread, rolls and coffee cakes to try when the winter winds howl and the kitchen is cozy and warm.

My friends always seem to marvel at the number of things I do, but I am

It is noontime here at Trail's End, but thinking of all the things I do not do anymore. I have not made hot dog relish, tomato puree, chili sauce, catsup, canned pears with maraschino cherries for salads, green tomato, mincemeat, or apple pies.

> On my last visit to the garden I did communicate with a praying mantis. She oblingly sat on my hand while we had a bit of conversation.

> Cooking is one of my favorite things, but I do have to cut corners wherever I can. Last night the family had its heart set on fried chicken and mashed potatoes for dinner. I was too tired to do the chicken the traditional way. My mother-in-law was a famous cook (although I felt that I could beat her on pie crust and hot biscuits). But I could never quite come up to her fried chicken. "Mis' Anne" Hatfield could do a platter of fried chicken that looked like a magazine picture, just the right shade of golden brown and just crispy enough without being hard. But you have to stand there for an hour and a half, turning and turning.

> I have never had much luck with oven fried chicken either. So, I devised my own shortcut. I brown the pieces of chicken real brown in hot fat, then I add a small amount of water in the deep iron pan, cover with a tight lit and put it in a 375 degree oven and bake for about an hour or longer if the pieces are large. This is very good fried chicken and doesn't require watching.

Jim Blades' Lake Forest Cross-Country Spartans defending Group II State Champions scored lopsided victories over Dover 15-46 and Laurel, which was a perfect 15-50 whitewash. Mike Melvin was the individual race winner against Dover running the 5,000 meter (3.1 miles) Killens Pond Course in 18.37. Danny Haines, Kevin Pelton, Mark Tozer and Eric Payne were next in line before the first Dover finisher Franklin. Mark Whidden, the transfer from Parkside High in Salisbury, MD is on the comeback trail after leg problems caused him much precious time off from early season conditioning and competition. Whidden was seventh with John Caskey tenth.

Other Spartans to do well were Mike Mosley, Scott Torgeson, Henry Foy, Paul Meding, Alvin Hudson, Jeff Hodgson, Todd Kremer, Pat Caskey, David Dix, and Robbie Burgholzer. Kenny Foy returned to the form that stamped him as a fine prospect at Chipman School the last two years.

Foy, the last Spartan, in the season opening Lake Forest Invitational ran the same course more than two

Mr. O'Brien first appeared on the harness racing circuit in the early '40's. He recorded 4,285 career victories and $20,443.094 in earnings.

His mark remained through the '82 season. Most of O'Brien's fast times were recorded through time trials. A spokesman at USTA said "he was just excellent at that. He could keep a horse alive...and Wall Township - Gil Hearne of Jacobstown brought home the victory Saturday night as he won the First Annual Gamblers Race at Wall Stadium. The win was Hearne's second victory in a row behind the wheel of the Truex Racing #59.

Starting on the pole for the fifty two lap feature, Jamie Tomaino quickly jumped out into the lead as Tony Siscone and Hearne ran second and third. The first yellow of the event came out on lap seven as Frank Guerreri spun in turn four. On the restart, Tomaino once again grabbed the lead as Hearne moved into second dropping Siscone back to third.

The second yellow was displayed on lap nine for a spinning Ray Everham, and within one lap on the restart Hearne outran Tomaino for the lead. Once out front, as in last weeks event. it was hard to track down the five time champion as Siscone sat in the runnerup spot with McCann moving into third as Tomaino pulled out on lap fifteen.

The top three kept their positions in tack up until lap forty four when McCann and Siscone came together sending Siscone to the infield. Unfortunately, before the yellow came out, Siscone lost a lap, and never had the opportunity to regain it as Hearn went on to win the event ahead of Tony Hirschman. Finishing third was Vinnie

Green and McCann was fourth.

In the thirty lap sportsman feature, it was Don Ling once again in for the win. Taking the lead onlap thirteen, Ling was never seriously challenged as he won convincingly over second place finisher, Bob Cramer. In for third was Martin Truex as Bill Stephens was fourth and Steve Golembeski, fifth.

Jack Ely of Manasquan captured his first ever twenty five lap modern stock feature as he lead the event from start to finish. In for a close second was Alan Brenner as Harold Dauncey was third, Brian Scisco fourth, and Lee Taylor, fifth Verwys captured his eighth Bill street-stock feature of the season.

"Ford is really where I got started. If In 14 starts, Yarborough has won four it hadn't been for Ford, I might not pole positions, the same number as even be in the racing business. I feel Ricky Rudd, and Darrell Waltrip. Bill some loyalty, and I feel the product is a Elliott and Harry Gant have each won good product. There's no doubt in my three pole positions. The Pole award is mind we can win with it".

Yarborough has three victories in 1984, including his second consecutive Daytona 500 triumph. He has won more than $4-million, making him one of just four NASCAR drivers to reach that milestone.

Yarborough predicts the same kind of success next year.

"I drove Fords for Banjo Matthews and for the Wood Brothers teams early in my career. I know the cars are winners," Yarborough said. "With my ability to drive the cars and Waddell's ability to build the motors and oversee the preparation, I know we will be competitive from the first time out in the new Thunderbirds. (This means they are looking to win the 1985 Daytona 500-Raceweek).

"The deal between Ford and Ranier Racing is not for money but rather for parts and pieces. It's the same deal that Ford has with the rest of its NASCAR Winston Cup teams." Waddell Wilson Champions (IROC) series which was held earlier this year and featured a field of top international drivers com-peting in identically prepared vehicles. While Yarborough now is one of the most successful drivers in NASCAR Grand National racing, breaking into the business was a struggle for him. In his first Grand National start, in 1957, he placed 42nd and earned $100. He didn't finish a race until 1962 and by 1964, married and with a family started, he threatened to quit racing. But, he was invited by the late John Hairman to move his family to Charlotte, N.C., and work in the Holman and Moody Ford shops doing odd jobs. Then, he got the big break---a ride in a Banjo Matthews factory Ford.

That alliance with Ford led to the Wood Brothers team in 1967 and a total of 10 superspeedway victories before Ford Motor Company disbanded its teams and withdrew from the sport in 1970. Now, with three Winston Cup titles and 81 victories. Yarborough has limited his schedule to 16 races a year, making more time for his family. "I wouldn't run for the championship if they guaranteed it to me," said Yarborough. "I've done that and just don't have time to do it again.'

> Yarborough will drive a 1985 Ford Thunderbird in 16 races during the 1985 Winston Cup season.

The 1985 Thunderbird will be fielded by Ranier Racing/W.I.N., Inc., owned by Kentucky businessmen Harry Rainer and J.T. Lundy. The team, managed by Waddell Wilson, will prepare the cars in its Charlotte, N.C. shop.

The announcement that Yarborough would switch to Ford was made Sept. 6 in Dearborn, Mich. by Phillip E. Benton, Jr. vice-president Sales Operations, Ford Motor Company North American Automotive Operations.

"We are delighted to have Cale driving a Ford next year," Benton said, "not only because he is one of the all-time great stockcar drivers, but because he has recorded many of his 81 NASCAR victories in Ford products, particularly back in the late '60's when he was establishing himself as one of the very best."

"I have watched Ford's resurgence in stockcar racing during the last two years. We feel we can continue the Ranier Racing winning tradition with the switch to the Thunderbirds.'

"The deal between Ford and Ranier Racing is not for money but rather for parts and pieces," explained Wilson. It's the same deal that Ford has with the rest of its NASCAR Winston Cup teams.

For Wilson, one of the premier engine ing Racing." builders in NASCAR Winston Cup racing, it is also a "return home.

"I learned many of the tricks of my trade building Ford engines," Wilson said. "With the new parts and pieces that Ford and Special Vehicle Operations(SVO) have developed during the last year, I'll now have the opportunity to help develop those and other new engine parts for the future. It's going to be a challenge and we're looking forward to it.'

Yarborough, who lives in Sardis, S.C., with his wife and two children, is the only driver to win three straight Winston Grand National championships (1976,1977, and 1978). In 1968, Ford named him "Man of the Year" IN AUTO RACING. He was Olsonite Driver of the Year in 1977.

But Yarborough's limited schedule is by no means a compromise in his desire to win.

"The fact that Ranier Racing runs a limited schedule and not the full 30-race season indicates thay are running to win every time they go on the track," said Michael Kranefuss, director of Ford's Special Vehicle Operations.
