

Harrington Police Chief and Councilman Jarrell disagree on coverage

by Harry G. Farrow Jr.
HARRINGTON — At the regular meeting of City Council on Monday night the issue came up again regarding police coverage. "I thought the council had indicated that you (police department) were to provide 18 hour coverage," asked Councilman Donald Jarrell. "That's right. We are," stated Carl McLroy, Harrington Police Chief. Councilman Jarrell went on to explain that coverage from 10 a.m. to 2 a.m. the following day is only 16 hours of coverage. "How do you account for that. The way I count that is only 16 hours of coverage," stated Jarrell. "We are giving you 18 hours of coverage," answered McLroy. "Can you count? That is only 16 hours," stated Jarrell again. "But if you look at the streets, it shows that there are two shifts where there is one hour overlapping on these shifts. That gives you the 18 hours coverage," said McLroy. "No...oh no. That's not what the council had in mind when we set down the 18 hours of coverage. In that case we could work three men on an eight hour shift...and that would give us 24 hours of coverage," said Jarrell. Councilman Temple then entered into the discussion. "Basically he (Jarrell) is right. But things have been lax in the police department possibly going back 20 years. (McLroy has been Chief for 10 years approximately.) But we need to make some changes," said Temple. "The police department is doing a halfway decent job...but I find there is no discipline. We need to follow rules and set up procedures so that we here on the council have better control of the situation," added Temple. Temple in attempting to soften the blows to the police department of which he is the police commissioner said "...that really is up to council to set the rules for the police department to follow." The Chief has reasonably stated his case to be that he is directed by the charter of the city, which states that he is an "administrator or supervisor".

The city solicitor, William Walls, offered this advice to the council "that in the final analysis the council governs (through their seat at the council table) with the power of the vote." It has also been pointed out by Walls that the council needs to give directives and set policy or rules that they want followed. This week the hang-up was "man-hours versus shift hours."

Temple has now proposed a log to show where every man in the police department is at all times, and also has called for maintenance log for the vehicles. Last week John Horseman was called to Clark Street to ticket a car which was illegally parked. "He got into a scuffle with one of the people who was associated with the car. They fell into the side of the new police car and damaged the side. It will cost about $120, but the gentleman who Horseman arrested will pay for the damages," said Temple.

Harrington City employees seek pension plan

by Harry G. Farrow Jr.
HARRINGTON — Harrington city employees are seeking a pension plan. A qualified individual will speak to a workshop meeting on the 17th of this month in order to explain the responsibilities of the City and the employees. There is a three member team appointed to study the plan. Police Chief Carl McLroy is chairman. Councilmen Wyatt and Jarrell also sit on the committee.

Councilman Jarrell became slightly upset on Monday night when he discovered that a meeting had been held in which he was not notified. "The last meeting I attended was in November," shot back Jarrell. "Has there been one since then...and if so then I was not notified," said Jarrell. "This is just another one of those secret meetings between the chairman and another member of the committee," shouted Jarrell, as he became very intense.

Harrington Council approves water and sewer on Elizabeth Street

by Harry G. Farrow Jr.
HARRINGTON — Harrington Council on Monday night at their regular city council meeting approved water and sewer to be placed along Elizabeth Street. Councilman Coleman made the motion that the City put the lines in at their expense. The materials will cost approximately $956. Coleman also requested that the City use city employees for the labor required to put the line in the ground. Councilman Jarrell requested that a 1" line be installed. Outside labor was estimated to be approximately $1,500.

Hi-Grade has requested a zoning change to their property immediately to the west of the dairy on Clark Street, and the two lots to the immediate rear of the dairy. They have requested a zoning change to C-3 which relates to commercial development.

Council also approved an early warning system by way of a telephone line that ties into the Burris plant from the City wells. In cases where the City loses power, this early warning system will tie to the guard house at the Burris plant in Harrington along Reese Avenue to let the Burris people know of the problem. The City will be required to bear the cost of installation and pay a service fee each month thereafter of $46.

The Mayor nominated Elwood Brown, a public accountant in Harrington, to fill a vacancy on the Planning and Zoning commission.

Lake Forest girl wins scholarships

by William T. Ficka
Bambi Biggs, of Felton, a senior at Lake Forest High School walked off with second place honors in the American Legion Oratorical Contest held at Fox Post in Dover on February 12.

The second place finish won an American Legion District 3 scholarship for Biggs, in addition to a $200 scholarship awarded by American Legion Post #7 in Harrington. Biggs finished third in the Oratorical contest last year.

Biggs' topic for the contest was "Adolescent Rights to the Constitution."

"I received a lovely plaque for participating in the contest. I have it hanging on my wall as a reminder of the special event," said Biggs.

After the contest, Biggs gave her presentation to all academic and general underclassmen, hoping to encourage better participation in the district next year.

"I feel a strong need for a preliminary contest in our school to prepare the contestants for the regional level," said Biggs.

Walter Perdue, of Harrington, Americanism chairman of Post #7, said he hopes to have Biggs at the next Legion meeting. Perdue coaches and helps prepare the entrants in the contest.

"Mr. Perdue made me feel welcome and allowed me to understand the true meaning of the American Legion

Government gives you $2.85 a day for each kid

by William T. Ficka

Can you support a child on $2.85 a day? Of course not. Yet that is all the $1,040 tax exemption allows you.

The income tax was first proposed in 1862, repeat, 1862. That was 124 years ago. The cost of living at that time was calculated at $600 a year. Which is exactly what the philanthropists in Washington allowed us to deduct until several years ago.

In 1867 the income tax was abolished, and wasn't revived until 1913 when the politicians managed to sneak it back in as a hidden rider on a tariff bill. The cost-of-living allowance was set at $3,000. Remember, that was 73 years ago.

We now come to the Great Depression. Even during those dark days, our fathers were allowed $1,000 a year for each dependent.

Today, in 1986, we are allowed only $420 more than our great-grandfathers were back in 1862.

Ask the next 100 people you see if they think this is an outrage. Ninety-eight will say yes. The other two we can leave to their psychiatrists.

While he waits for his benefactors in Washington to wake up, the working man must remember to give his wife two-eighth-five a day for each youngster. That will feed, clothe, house and educate the child.

Then the forgotten man can go to work and pray that the kid doesn't get sick.

The Parent's Advisory Committee gave sound advice when it recommended that the Lake Forest School Board should not have a tax-increase referendum this year. Right now, such a referendum would be about as welcome as a keg of beer at a W.C.T.U. meeting.

The Bill of Rights: A legacy of freedom

EDITOR'S NOTE: More than half of the early state constitutions included Bills of Rights, and when it came to write the federal constitution in 1787, many thought that it, too, should include a Bill of Rights. Among those was Thomas Jefferson, who wrote to James Madison that "a bill of rights is what the people are entitled to against every government on earth...and what no just government should refuse..." The idea that a Bill of Rights was necessary was one that the Americans had inherited from the English republican tradition; yet in America it took a new shape. In this article Professor Malcom considers the similarities and differences between English and American Bills of Rights.

If Britons and American are two peoples divided by a common language, they are also two peoples divided by a common passion for liberty. In 1775 Edmund Burke reminded Parliament that it was precisely because American colonists were "not only devoted to liberty, but to liberty according to English ideas and on English principles" that they were so obstreperous.

Burke's plea for reconciliation was belated, but his insight was accurate. Not even the costly war between mother country and colonies shook American admiration for English principles of liberty and English strategies for preserving them. This was evident when the new American constitution encountered vigorous public opposition until its proponents agreed to add a bill of rights similar to the English Bill of Rights of 1689.

In 1788, as in 1688, some statesmen counseled that listing rights was neither wise nor necessary: common law and the structure of government afforded adequate protection. Framers of six state constitutions agreed, persuaded that no bill of rights was needed in a republic whose citizens had never relinquished their rights.

Nevertheless, prudence prevailed; the majority of state constitutions and the federal constitution followed the English example. But whereas Englishmen had merely guarded their liberties from the King, Americans protected their rights from their own elected representatives. The strategy of listing rights and some of the listed rights were alike, but the English and American lists are not identical. A comparison can provide a clearer notion of our legacy and of American originality.

The similarities are striking. Both bills of rights confirm basic legal protections. In identical language each stipulates "that excessive bail ought not to be required nor excessive fines imposed nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted." Each includes provision for trial by jury, the right of citizens to petition the government, and reference to other "rights and liberties" beyond those specifically guaranteed.

The differences are of two sorts: some result from protections covered elsewhere in law or government; others reflect a genuine divergence of view. Of the first type are the American failure to list the need for frequent meetings of the legislature and for legislative power over taxation, both included in the body of the Constitution. Similarly, the English fail to protect citizens from unreasonable searches and seizures, a liberty already guaranteed in their laws. The English forbid kings "dispensing" with laws not to their liking; American never gave presidents that prerogative.

On the issue of elections both documents rely heavily on existing custom. The English state that "Election of Members of Parliament ought to be free," leaving specifics to interpretation. The American Bill of Rights ignores elections, but the Constitution defines the electorate for the House of Representatives as that same electorate which chooses the lower house in each state.

Both nations insisted military power rest in the hands of citizens. To this end they both placed armies under civilian control, maintained militias, and permitted citizens to be armed. The English Bill of Rights required parliamentary approval for a peacetime army within the realm, and guaranteed Protestant subjects the right to have arms. The American Constitution had given Congress budgetary control of the army and power over state militias, and the president command of both. To reassure those who feared this power might be misused, the American Bill of Rights affirmed that "a well-regulated militia (is) necessary to a free state" and that the right of "the people" to keep and bear arms would not be infringed. A separate article limited billeting of soldiers in private homes.

More notable, and probably more familiar, are instances where American rights go beyond English antecedents. The English, for instance, claimed freedom of speech only "in Parliament." Americans insisted upon general freedom of speech, and liberty for the press. A second departure was in the realm of religion. In 1688 Englishmen had just thwarted an attempt "to subvert" the official Protestant faith and install Catholicism in its stead. They were anxious to protect Protestantism, although they did act to eliminate extraordinary ecclesiastical courts. Americans, on the other hand, were alert to the threat posed by a national religion, and not only forbade a federal establishment but also any interference in the free exercise of religion. This difference in attitude toward religion was reflected in the right to have arms included in each list. Whereas the English limited the right to Protestants, the Americans extended it to "the people."

The American constitution has proved a brilliant scheme for the preservation of a free society. This is due, in no small part, to the wisdom of "the people" who insisted that their precious liberties be entrusted not to the good will of a particular ruler or rulers, or to implied protections, but to a list of rights embedded in the enduring fabric of government.

High school exchange students need host families

ASSE International Student Exchange organization has a need for local families in the Smyrna, Capital, Caesar Rodney, Lake Forest and Milford School Districts, to serve as hosts to a young high school student.

All of the students speak English and are 16-18 years of age. They are supervised by a local ASSE representative who will help the host family select a student that has something in common with the host family.

The host family should be able and willing to provide room and board for the school year 1986-87. Exchange students are self-sufficient and provide for their own needs, clothes, entertainment, etc. ASSE accepts full medical and liability coverage of their students.

If you are interested in hosting any of these students or if you would like more information concerning ASSE, please contact the local ASSE representative, Cathy and David Williams, at 697-2205.

"...like a dedicated athlete...a dedicated politician never gives up..." In the eleven years that I have owned The Harrington Journal (where has the time gone), a candidate has never gotten the endorsement from me. Listed as an "independent" newspaper, I have tried to balance out the equities...and believe me that makes an old man out of a young boy real quickly.

I would like to take time out to at least tip my hat to Sara Williams. When she ran amuck with the school administration over her untimely resignation from the school board...and when her attorney obviously told her a court battle would be drawn out...even with a split of authority on "when the resignation actually takes place." I give her an "A-plus" for swinging around and filing to run for the seat she held prior to resignation.

You know a politician...and I think you have to have a little bit of that in you to even run for a seat on any school board today...never says die. A politician never gives up, or a politician loses when he decides to quit.

I think Sara's move was quite clever. I like that in a person...any person. On the other hand it would seem that anyone involved with the affair directly related to our school board finds an adversary situation to exist.

"...washing cars might not have been the single issue..."

There are two things which are very close to Bill Myers' heart. They are the Town of Felton and the Felton Fire Company. They are a tight knit group in Felton. They may do a lot of arguing among themselves, but let an outsider enter into the fray, and he would soon find just how fast they can get together.

Bill Myers has been a part of both organizations for longer than most of us can remember. Always the first one up in the morning and on the job...was true when he worked for the Bond Bread Company down here in Harrington, and seemingly the last one to go in his home and lock his door behind him.

He has seen both organizations grow. And let's face it, the Felton Fire Company has grown faster in the last 10 years than any fire company around that I can compare it to. It wasn't all Bill's doing to be sure. But...there is another central issue that bears bringing out, and that simply stated is that both organizations are solvent. Very solvent...and that's more than some of the rest of us can say. I would think that neither organization owes anyone anything.

But it is becoming increasingly hard for fire companies to operate "free of charge." When you say water to wash cars is disrupting things, you don't believe that's the entire issue. When the Felton Fire Company or any of our other fire companies in the Lake Forest School District go out in the country to fight fires...whose water is it? Who is paying for the water to put out fires in the Felton District. That's right, the citizens of Felton. So maybe there was more to the issue which apparently swung the election away from Bill Myers. I don't exactly know...just guessing...I guess.

Now all of us have to face these issues of rising costs to run our little towns. Harrington is in the same boat. The more services we try to provide the more it is costing the taxpayers. Most of our people who live in the Lake Forest School District live on a fixed income. You raise their taxes or raise their water and sewer rates...which could happen in both Felton and Harrington, and you are going to get a squawk from the citizens. Only natural thing to happen. When it comes right down to it...we are all looking right down and into the barrel of a gun.

Fire companies such as Felton and Harrington were organized in the beginning to protect the families and homes of the citizens of the community. In the beginning they did not venture out too far. When it became possible to do so, they did that and extended the protection a little further.

So...when we think about the issue of free fire protection and free water maybe...just maybe we take things for granted. It is a good reason to contribute to the local fire companies when they have their fund drives going on. This way they can stay in business and continue to provide those valuable services to our citizens.

Maybe with Bill Myers, it is the Lord's blessing the election worked out the way it did. But whether it was free water, car wash or just what...we will never know, because in the final analysis, Bill Myers will take the rap alone.

You can help me too...so that I can continue to bring more services to our Lake Forest School District residents by subscribing to or buying The Harrington Journal. This way not only will I be able to bring more to you through the paper, but my family and I can come off bread and water.

Be thinking of you at the next fire company fund drive.

Double dipping in farm programs?

by Congressman Tom Carper

There's something inequitable -- not to mention contradictory -- about supporting farmers for not growing crops of which we have surpluses (like wheat), then allowing those same farmers to use their idled land to compete with vegetable growers and other farmers who do not rely on federal price supports.

That's the opinion of the Delaware Potato Growers who visited me in Washington recently. And I agree with them. These farmers don't mind competing with other vegetable growers on the open market, and they seem to do a pretty good job of it without federal price or income supports.

Ask them how they feel about competing with "opportunistic" vegetable growers who already receive federal support for NOT growing wheat, feed grain and rice crops, however, and they'll tell you what they

A Slick Trick To Raise Taxes

By Richard H. Fink

Remember waiting in gas lines during the 1970s? Did you ever dream then that someday the politicians in Washington would be complaining that the price of oil was falling too low, and would be scrambling to prevent it?

Well, it's true now. And it could become the biggest ripoff of the century. It's the start of an attempt to rob American consumers of the benefit of the workings of the free market, which was unleashed by efforts to increase oil supplies through decontrol of prices about five years ago.

The world has gone from energy crisis to oil glut since 1980. And this dramatic development has contributed mightily to stabilizing prices on virtually everything we buy, which had been spiralling upward during the 1970s, partially because of rising energy costs.

Decontrol of oil prices spurred domestic oil producers to engage in vigorous exploration, which helped enlarge our supply of oil and reduce our dependence on foreign sources. Moreover, squabbling among the OPEC nations (a natural function of the market as some producers tried to increase incomes by undercutting others) has virtually fractured the once-imposing cartel. Finally, a host of new nations began exporting oil as prices skyrocketed, increasing the number of available suppliers.

All of this has caused the price of a barrel of foreign oil to fall from $40 to only $15 today, recouping much of the ground lost after the 1973 Arab oil embargo, which started the ball rolling on higher fuel prices.

Well, your senators and congressmen are just drooling over the potential tax revenue they could amass to spend on their pet programs if a $5 per barrel tax was slapped on imported oil. They are looking favorably at such a tax because they hope you won't notice it. They hope you don't follow developments in the world oil markets very closely, and that you wouldn't notice that gasoline and home heating oil prices don't continue dropping, even though the price of oil does.

And they're being encouraged in this plot by some domestic oil producers that want to frustrate the free market and keep their prices higher than the world price. They are using spurious "national security" arguments to prevent you from reaping the benefits of falling oil prices at your local gas station.

I think it would be a national scandal if American consumers were ripped off in this way by big-spending politicians and a few oil companies. And what's more, I think it would be an economic catastrophe.

According to a recent Citizens for a Sound Economy study, a $5 per barrel tax on imported oil will cost American consumers almost $20 billion in higher prices. That works out to almost $300 annually out of the pockets of an average family of four.

Moreover, by foregoing the benefits of lower oil prices, we would reduce economic growth by one percent. This will cost roughly 400,000 jobs.

Besides, despite congressional claims that they would use the money raised by the tax to reduce federal budget deficits, there's no guarantee that the deficit would be reduced if such a tax was imposed. More likely, the politicians and special interests would only waste this money creating even more government giveaway programs.

Consumers ought to raise their voices now to prevent this shocking theft by Washington. Otherwise, they'll be victims of a slick trick to increase taxes and perpetuate wasteful federal spending.

(Richard H. Fink is President of Citizens For A Sound Economy, a 250,000 member Washington-based citizens' organization.)

Manfred Hanover

Manfred Hanover February Horse of the Month

COLUMBUS — Off the strength of five consecutive victories in February, Manfred Hanover has added February Harness Horse of the Month honors to the title he captured in January. Manfred becomes only the third horse to win back-to-back Horse of the Month honors since the U.S. Trotting Association started the award over five years ago, joining Cam Fella (October-November, 1983) and Boomer Drummond (February-March, 1984) in that select club. Manfred Hanover won a leg of the Su Mac Lad Trotting Series at The Meadowlands in 1:57 4/5 over a good track. He next annexed the $68,500 final of that series on February 10, trotting in 1:57. Manfred Hanover was then shipped to Hawthorne Racecourse in Chicago, where on three days rest he went out and trotted the fastest mile in Hawthorne history, 1:58 2/5.

Boating class offered

A new class designed for the Delaware Bay boater will be offered on March 17 and 19, 1986, at the Kent Vo-Tech School, Woodside, DE from 7 to 9 p.m. As one of the most important aspects relating to boating safety, radio communications is often a neglected safety tool aboard many pleasure boats operating in the Delaware Bay.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 12-08 is very pleased to offer this course with instruction from the 1984 Olin Marine Safety Award recipient, Mr. Edgar Dodenhoff, who is devoted to boating safety through the use of radio communications. His knowledge and experiences will be very educational and interesting for boaters interested in learning more about radio communications.

Points of discussion will focus on the different types of radio equipment, the proper use of radios, how to get help in time of distress, the do's and don't's, plus other areas of class interest.

To pre-register, please contact Kent Vo-Tech at :697-3257 or Edgar Dodenhoff at 335-3758. (Pre-registration is not required). The class is offered at no charge. All that is needed is an interest in safe boating and radio communications.

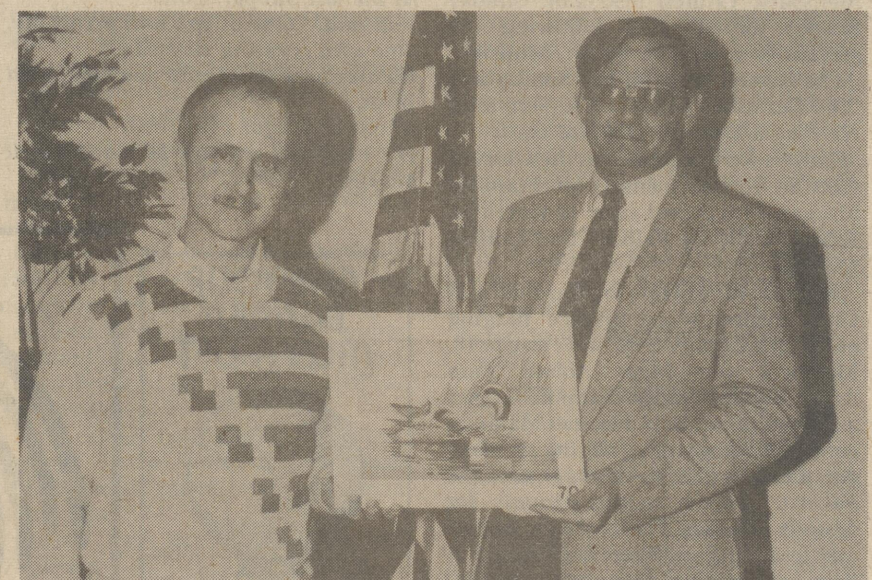

Summer jobs for young people

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will host a non-residential Youth Conservation Corps (YCC) Camp this summer, employing a total of 6 youths. The youths will be employed at Bombay Hook National Wildlife Refuge near Smyrna, Delaware.

The camp will be non-residential with youths living at home and commuting daily to the refuge. The camp will be operated for eight weeks starting June 23 and ending August 15.

The YCC Program is designed to provide meaningful summer employment for young people and to accomplish needed conservation work on public lands. Participants in this youth program will perform a variety of refuge work projects outdoors.

YCC is open to youth from 15 through 18 years old. Application forms may be obtained from local high schools or directly from the refuge. Application forms must be returned to the refuge by April 15, 1986. Questions concerning the program may be directed to Assistant Refuge Manager Charles Pelizza at 653-9345.

Elliott has high hopes at Atlanta

TV Coverage

HAMPTON, GA — Bill Elliott and his Ford Thunderbird were the talk of the racing world in 1985 as he won a record 11 super speedway races, the Winston Million and a record $2.4 million.

But so far in 1986, Elliott and his Coors/Melling Ford have had to take a backseat to the new General Motors cars. Is this a permanent power move or will Elliott return to the driver's seat beginning with the Motorcraft 500 at Atlanta International Raceway on March 16?

"I don't think you are going to see Bill or anyone dominate this season like he dominated last year," said Terry Labonte after capturing the Goodwrench 500 last Sunday in his Oldsmobile.

But Labonte doesn't agree with those members of the NASCAR Winston Cup fraternity who say Elliott and the Fords are in for a long and frustrating year. "Bill is still going to be awfully tough, and he will win some races," says Labonte. "But we have caught him. The new sloped-back window on all of the General Motors cars has allowed us to run as well in the corners as he did last year. That was his big, big advantage last year. None of us could stay with him in the corners."

Elliott agrees that the cars to beat this year are the new GM cars. "I never did think we had that much of an advantage last year," says Elliott. "Like I kept saying last year, we had a real good combination. Everything just worked well for us."

The redhead from Dawsonville, Ga., knows that the Atlanta race will go a long way toward telling how the rest of the year will be for the Fords since the 1.522-mile speedway is regarded as a "Ford track."

"Fords just seem to run well there," adds Elliott. "It is a handling race track since it seems to be mostly corners with short straightaways. The key is how well you run in the corners, now how quick you can come off the corner."

Elliott won both races at his home track in 1985, and he will be trying to become the first driver to win three straight Winston Cup races at Atlanta.

"It's still too early to really say how this year is going to be for us since we wrecked in both of the first two races and Rockingham was the first one we finished," continues the 30-year-old.

Geoff Bodine won the first leg of the Winston Million, the Daytona 500 in his Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS last month. If Bodine can win two of the other three legs — the Winston 500, the Coca-Cola 600 and the Southern 500, he will pocket the $1 million from Winston cigarettes.

If Elliott does win his third straight race at Atlanta, he will snap a streak of nine different winners in nine Winston Cup races dating back to the Goody's 500 last September at Martinsville, Va.

But if someone like Richard Petty, Neil Bonnett, Benny Parsons or Bobby Allison wins the Motorcraft 500, the sport will tie the modern day mark of 10 different winners in 10 races. This record was set in late 1983 and early 1984, beginning with the National 500 at Charlotte and ending with Northwestern Bank 400 at North Wilkesboro, N.C.

Qualifying for the Atlanta race begins at noon on Friday, March 14. The 500 will get the green flag at 1:30 p.m. on Sunday with ABC-TV broadcasting the Winston Cup event live.

DRAG RACES

DELMAR, DE — Using only one horsepower, Caesar Rodney races to the finish line with news that his state has ratified the U.S. Constitution.

It is 1787 and Delaware becomes the first state to join the union, the United States of America.

In 1986, on the first weekend in April, the only dragway in "The First State" will be the setting for another first — a major National Hot Rod Association (NHRA) event.

Charles E. Cathell, Vice President and General Manager of the U.S. 13 Dragway, said $50,000 in cash and contingency prizes will be at stake during the inaugural running of the First State National Open here April 5-6.

"Many of the top names in racing have appeared at our dragway in the past 22 years, but this NHRA Division I meet will be something special," he said. "We're expecting at least 350 entries and people from all over the East Coast."

Cathell said he's glad he added two new staging lanes this fall. "Now," he said, "we can easily accommodate this many racers and the spectators can enjoy nearly non-stop action."

Competitors at the First State National Open will have a chance to set a national record in 187 different classes, according to NHRA Division I Director Greg Xakellis.

Cathell believes other recent improvements at U.S. 13 Dragway, located near the Delaware-Maryland line on Route 13 South, will legally enhance a participant's chance for a national title.

"In 1983, we constructed 175-foot concrete launch pads at the starting lines. They provide the ultimate in traction," Cathell said.

"We also installed a new timing system and digital scoreboard that use a state of the art computer and microprocessor to give both the racer and fan more information that's easier to read and understand."

Modern-day Caesar Rodney's with lots of horsepower will probably appreciate the latest improvement to the U.S. 13 Dragway's dueling quarter miles — new asphalt surfaces.

"We completely resurfaced both lanes after the 1985 season. The asphalt compound we used is just quick as the old one but the drivers are going to get a lot smoother ride in '86," Cathell said.

The facility also features a modern three-story timing tower — complete with a VIP lounge for sponsors, special guests and the media — that was constructed in 1982 after fire destroyed the original one built in 1963 by track owners U.S. 13 Dragway President William J. Cathell and his wife, Juanita.

Lawson runs away with Daytona 200

Yamaha's Eddie Lawson won the 1986 Daytona 200 by Arai Superbike Race by a winning margin of almost one minute over Suzuki's Kevin Schwantz. Setting new records in single lap time practice, 15-lap/50-mile qualifying and the 57-lap/200-mile final event, Lawson was the man to beat all week long in the opening event of the American Motorcyclist Association (AMA) Camel Pro road racing series.

Jay Springsteen

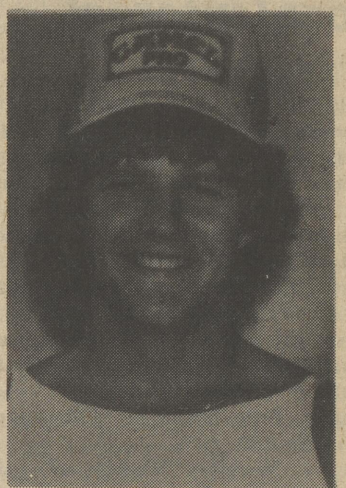

Honda's Freddie Spencer, expected to be Lawson's main competition during the week's activities, did not show up as a result of a serious sinus infection that kept him back in his Shreveport, Louisiana home. Lawson's only major threat in the final race came from Honda Teamster Wayne Rainey, who rode with the Yamaha pilot in the early going. But tire problems caused Rainey to take an early pit stop for a tire change. That effectively took him out of the challenge for the lead. Later on things got even worse as his factory Honda began jumping out of gear on the high-banked oval.

Third place finisher Schwantz was dealing with a worn rear sprocket on the closing laps that caused his chain to jump on the rear wheel as he accelerated out of every turn. Fortunately, he had enough of a lead over Honda's Fred Merkel to back off and still maintain his position until the finish.

In Formula Two action, West German's Anton Mang raced unchallenged in the 100-mile final event. Spain's A. Pona made a tremendous charge to finish second place after being held at the starting line for being late to the grid.

In Battle of the Twins Grand Prix action, Marco Lucchinelli came back after his second place finish last year to win this year's event over England's Paul Lewis. Last year's winner Gene Church finished third on his Harley-Davidson.

Fred Merkel

The next stop on the Camel Pro Series tour will be a TT dirt track race at Gardena, California's Ascot Park Raceway on April 5th. The next road racing event will be on May 16-18 at Sears Point (near Sonoma) California.

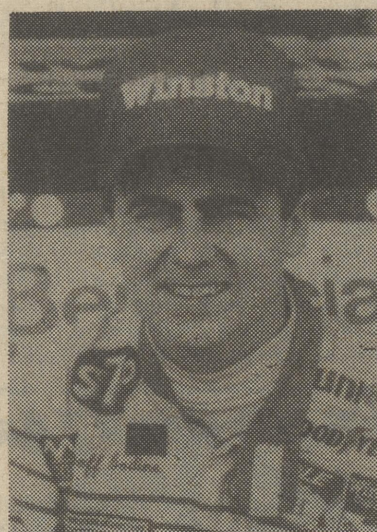

Darlington got Bodine started

Winston Cup races at Old Darlington Raceway have taken on a new significance for Geoff Bodine and the Levi Garrett/Hendrick Motorsports team.

Bodine's first Daytona 500 victory in the debut of his Charlotte-based team, managed by Gary Nelson, also doubled as the first leg of the Winston Million, a bonus program which also includes the Winston 500 at Talladega, Ala., the Coca-Cola World 600 at Charlotte and the storied Southern 500 at Darlington.

First, though, Bodine is thinking TranSouth 500, which is scheduled April 13 at Darlington, as perhaps a preview of the Southern 500, which is scheduled for the first time in its tradition-steeped history on August 31 this year.

"I have a place in my heart for Darlington," said Bodine, a Chemung, N.Y. Yankee transplanted in little Julian, N.C., near Greensboro. He alluded to his victory in a Sportsman race at Darlington 1982 which led to Winston Cup team owner Cliff Stewart of High Point signing Bodine to drive his car. Bodine responded by winning Winston Cup rookie of the year. "It was my first big break in the big league," Bodine said.

Bodine has been on the rise ever since, joining Rick Hendrick's operation and teaming with master crew chief Harry Hyde to become one of the most successful first-year Winston Cup teams with three victories.

Darlington true to its moniker

As far as Richard Petty is concerned, Darlington Raceway has been true to its moniker, "Too Tough To Tame."

The STP/Pontiac driver has won a record 200 Winston Cup victories and over $6 million in prize money, but Petty's luck at Darlington Raceway has been downright rotten.

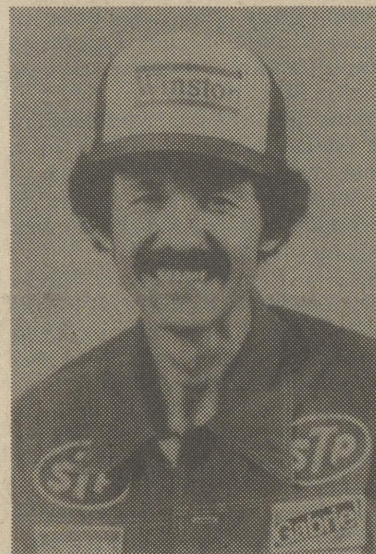

Although he won the TranSouth 500 in 1966-67 and the Southern 500 in 1967 he hasn't won at Darlington since.

In 1959, Petty's first test at the egg-shaped 1.366-mile oval, he was leading the race and blew a tire.

In 1962, Petty was leading the race and his battery went dead. "That never happened anywhere else."

In the 1970 TranSouth 500 race, Petty was involved in what is considered the worst accident of his career. He hit the fourth turn wall and began cartwheeling down the front stretch. He rolled his car at least seven times before finally coming to a stop near the start-finish line.

What does bother Petty is that he hasn't won at Darlington since they rebanked the track in 1969. "I was always one of the guys who got around the track good and the changes they made to the track made it more competitive," he said. "They really made it a whole new track. They left the fence and changed everything else inside."

Cayuga County makes changes to track dimensions

Many changes have been made to the Cayuga County Fair Speedway for the 1986 racing season. In addition to changing the weekly format, the speedway itself will have a new look.

In order to provide both the drivers and fans with better racing, turn two will be pushed out and widened. This will make turns one and two much broader and the backstretch will be widened for passing.

In the past, the racing out of turn two and down the backstretch was always tight but with the improvements that have been made, it will make for better racing.

"Barefoot" Bob McCreadie will be out to defend his track title but will have to contend with the defending Miller Beer Mr. DIRT Champ Jack Johnson and a host of others. The new layout will be debuted when the DIRT Modifieds take to the track on opening day for the running of the B.R. Dewitt 40 lap opener on April 20th at 2:00 p.m.

Now for the information tip for this week: How Gramm-Rudman will affect Medicare. (taken from a press release from Mr. I.S. Levitt, District Manager, Social Security Administration, Dover). In case you haven't noticed, Gramm-Rudman-Hollings are in town, and their arrival does not bode well for people on Medicare. The federal law which bears their names sets in place certain cuts in Medicare reimbursements which could mean greater out-of-pocket expenses for Medicare beneficiaries.

For instance, Beginning February 28, 1986 all Medicare Part B medical insurance payments will be reduced by one percent. Part A hospital insurance coverage, skilled nursing and home health care are also affected. Gramm-Rudman impact will depend on whether the doctor or other provider accepts assignment under Medicare. If assignment is accepted, the doctor will receive 80% of the approved charge, minus one percent. The patient, however, will only be responsible for the 20% not paid by Medicare. For a translation of how the law affects you, call your nearest Social Security Office. Services received before February 28, 1986, are not affected.

That is it for this week...looking forward to being with you all again next week with more...Harrington Senior Center News.

Martinsville Speedway

MARTINSVILLE, VA — When the NASCAR Modified stars head South soon, all the drivers will be aware that for the first time in 15 years, there will be no clear cut favorite in the chase for the national driving title.

Since 1971, the Modified crown has spent every off-season in Rome, N.Y., worn either by Jerry Cook or Richie Evans. Cook, now the NASCAR Modified director, won the title in 1971, 1972, 1974, 1975 and 1976. Evans interrupted Cook's domination in 1973 and then proceeded to capture a record eight consecutive championships running from 1978 through last year.

Evans already had his ninth points title locked up last fall when he was killed in an accident during a practice session prior to the Winn-Dixie 500 at Martinsville.

The trip South to Orange County Speedway in Rougemont, N.C., for the season-opener and to Martinsville Speedway one week later for the running of the $152,705 Miller 500 Classic will be even more important this year than in the past since it will give everyone an idea of who will be the men to beat in the championship chase.

All of the drivers who finished in the top ten a year ago, including Jeff Fuller, Brian Ross, Jamie Tomaino, Doug Heveron, Jimmy Spencer, Jerry Cranmer and Corky Cookman, in addition to McLaughlin and Kent, are expected to make serious runs at the title. And Kent says a darkhorse candidate to slip in may be Reggie Ruggiero, who took a page out of Evans' book by dominating the Speedweeks events in Florida, winning seven of nine races at New Smyrna Speedway.

While Ruggiero was pleased with his Florida efforts, he did admit that running for the championship is an entirely different ballgame.

"We're gonna go for it but it will be tough," Ruggiero said. "The name of the game is to finish. Martinsville is tough and you have to finish to win."

"You can pick out any number of guys, who can win the title like Jamie Tomaino, Jeff Fuller, Brian Ross and Jimmy Spencer. It will be wide open. But when you run for the title, you have to finish all the races whether you win or not. A couple of bad finishes and it's about all over."

The Miller Time 50-0, a triple-header for Modifieds, Grand Nationals and Late Model Stocks, will take the green flag at 12 noon on Sunday, March 23.

Hagerstown Speedway postponed again

For the second week in a row, Hagerstown Speedway was unable to start their 1986 racing season due to the weather. Two snowfalls during the week followed by below normal, cold temperatures kept the infield and pits buried under snow.

Hagerstown will try again next Sunday, March 9th, when the Late Models will join the super Sprints in a double feature program.

It will be the first start of the season for both the Sprints and the Late Models. Drivers in both divisions will be starting the chase for the lucrative point fund that has been established in all think in no uncertain terms. They view it as something akin to double-dipping -- these "newcomers" would receive federal money for not growing feedgrains and then could turn around and cash in on other crops. Our vegetable farmers fear that this subsidized competition could lead to even more overproduction of price-depressing surpluses in their non-supported, nonprogram crops. This problem resulted from a U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) interpretation of provisions in the 1985 farm bill. Because we have surpluses of crops like wheat, feed grain and rice, the USDA will provide income support -- through so-called deficiency payments -- to farmers who idle a certain amount of land and refrain from planting these crops. Unfortunately, the USDA also determined that these farmers could plant so-called nonprogram crops -- like potatoes, tomatoes and beans -- on the idled land.

Double dipping

That just isn't fair. I supported legislation which the U.S. House of Representatives took up on March 6 that corrects this faulty interpretation. Basically, the bill restricts the authority for wheat, feed grain, upland cotton and rice producers -- those receiving income supports -- to plant nonprogram crops on newly idled land. The corrective legislation provides that the Secretary of Agriculture must require the newly idled acres to be devoted to conservation uses or to nonprogram crops that would not increase the cost of price support programs or affect farm income adversely. In this way, Delaware's vegetable growers would be protected from the adverse economic impact of overproduction; but, there would still be flexibility to plant idled acres with crops that are in shorter supply or that might be needed to supply raw materials for nonindustrial uses.
