Calhoun property was under option by the City

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr.
HARRINGTON. On August the 6th of this year Mr. Leroy Calhoun owner and proprietor of L&D Electronics at 25-27 Commerce Street signed an agreement giving the City of Harrington an option to purchase the building at 25-27 Commerce Street.

The amount of consideration involved was a $1 option for the City to purchase the building for $35,000. The term of the option was for 90 days ending on or before December 1st.

One part of the option allowed the City a 15 day grace period if another purchaser approached Mr. Calhoun to purchase the property. On the other hand, if the option was not picked up by the 1st of December, it would by operation of law, expire.

The City Council nor the Mayor entered into the option agreement. It was stated as such that Mr. Calhoun was giving the City a $1 option to purchase the building for $35,000 by December 1st. According to Mr. Calhoun the negotiations were conducted through Mr. George Volenik, Harrington's City Manager. Council members who were interviewed said they knew nothing about the option, and for all intent it was not reported to the Council for their consideration.

According to Mr. Calhoun, he was told that other properties adjacent to his would be considered for the new City Hall. The properties were those of David Hands (the pool room), the Sport Shop, and the vacant lot of Dr. Townsend's lying between the Harrington Public Library and the insurance offices of Curt Conley formerly those of William H. Outten.

Mr. Hands nor the Smiths were contacted with the purpose in mind of purchasing those properties for a new city hall, which is further verification of Mr. Calhoun's feeling that the option would not be exercised.

"I felt at the time that the City was not going to go through with the option. It is possible that they needed an option on a property such as the one I own in order to qualify for the grant money", said Mr. Calhoun last week.

The City, through Mr. Volenik, has qualified for two grants from the Bicentennial commission in the amount of $116,000.00 to build a city hall. The city must match this amount in like kind. This would give the City $232,000 to construct a new city hall.

On December 15th a joint meeting was held between the "Building Committee" and the Mayor and Council. The Building Committee had been formed early this year to study out various proposals for a city hall for the City of Harrington. At the December 15th meeting the "Building

Tax Equity Plan on hold by Legislative Committee

by Colleen Lilly
How the Lake Forest School District will compensate federal and state funding losses caused by the Federal Tax Reform and deficit reductions on state and local governments prompted the Lake Forest School Board to investigate a revision in the local tax structure.

The school board's preliminary investigation, conducted by Board member, S. Michael Thompson, advocated changing the current tax collection system from a property-based system to one based on income in order to create an equitable situation for Lake Forest taxpayers.

In a memorandum sent to the Legislative Committee of the Delaware School Board Association, the Lake Forest School Board asks the committee to consider adding the tax equity issue to next year's legislative agenda.

According to the memorandum, "the Lake Forest Board of Education wants to investigate revising its tax collection from a property-based system to an income-based system."

Calling a property-based system inherently discriminatory because it favors some taxpayers and not others, the Board would like to see a revamping of the system through state legislation.

"What we (School Board) suggested is the legislative committee take a look at other ways of raising equity," said Mr. Thompson.

The Legislative Committee of the Delaware School Board Association, though, will not be studying the tax equity issue in the upcoming year.

"They (the Legislative Committee) did not accept it as a study issue. The Lake Forest District can't go much further with it," said H. Earl Roberts, president of the Lake Forest School Board.

Since the legislative committee explores statewide educational issues and other school districts are content with the property tax system, the issue has died.

Mr. Roberts explained the district will "learn to live within its means in the upcoming year."

He does hope funding to make salaries of all employees competitive with other school districts comes available, along with funding for building repairs.

In terms of funding, Mr. Roberts said the Lake Forest School District will be looking around for additional money available through the federal government.

The cost of educating each Lake Forest student is approximately $3,655.91 per year. Local taxes provide $295.55 for each child. According to Mr. Thompson, ninety percent of the money coming into the Lake Forest District comes from income taxes.

"The Lake Forest Board is trying to find a way to afford its schools. Philosophically, property taxes are not the most fair way to tax," said Mr. Thompson.

Property taxes may be working for other school districts, but the economic base of the Lake Forest area differs from other districts. Mr. Roberts explained that since the area has little industry and is primarily agricultural, the school board began looking for alternative ways to fund the school system. We're making the assumption property tax isn't going to work in the long run," he said.

Lake Forest, in suggesting an income based tax, was looking toward the future. Mr. Roberts said the trends against property taxes do exist and that the school board still needs to discuss alternative solutions with the public and with the school board association.

Mr. Thompson said an income tax to raise the additional funds may not be the only way to handle the situation. He said a combination of fundraising methods could be used.

The amount of money generated through property taxes has not changed since the last property assessment in Kent County, Kent County, which is currently undergoing assessment, was last assessed in 1966.

"The total value (of property) will definitely rise," said William Raynor, secretary of the Kent County Board of Assessment.

Reassessment, scheduled for completion in May 1987, will show all property increases in old and new housing throughout Kent County. Mr. Raynor explained that all additions to homes in the past twenty years will contribute to an increase in the property's value.

"All property will be fairly assessed and every property will be assessed," Mr. Raynor said.

Mr. Raynor sees the proposed change from a property based tax system to an income based system as "not feasible." He sees the income-based system as "sort of absurd" since only certain people will end up paying.

In a letter to The Harrington Journal on November 26, Mr. Raynor said people who would not be included in paying with an income based system include social security recipients, the unemployed, and welfare and disability recipients.

"The property tax system is the fairest system right now. Every square inch of land is accounted for," said Mr. Raynor.

Mr. Thompson, though, sees property taxes as ancient and believes property ownership does not accurately reflect the owners annual income. For example, Mr. Thompson points out homes owned by people with fluctuating incomes, such as farmers and those owned by people on fixed incomes are taxed the same each year through property taxes.

Another area Mr. Thompson said is unfairly taxed through property taxes is mobile homes. He said that when mobile homes are assessed for their value, the value of the property depreciates based upon its age.

Approximately thirty percent of the Lake Forest District's homes are mobile, according to Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Raynor explained that in assessment, while it appears mobile home owners and apartment renters do not pay property taxes, the owner of the property actually recoups the money paid in taxes through the rent he charges and in taxes paid by mobile home owners.

After assessment, Mr. Thompson said things would be more equitable. He said a new assessment would bring more fairness to property taxation.

"Things are going to change. If they've (the taxpayers) been paying a tax, they will be paying more money," he said.

Taxes collected as property taxes will be easier to collect, said Mr. Raynor, since they are based on land. He added that self-employed individuals can more easily shelter money if taxed on their income, than on their land.

Marc Tucker

Director of Carnegie Forum to speak at Lake Forest seminar

by Colleen Lilly
Questions about the future of American education and a possible restructuring of the nation's schools may be among the topics discussed with Marc Tucker, executive director of the Carnegie Forum on Education and the Economy, Friday, January 9, at Lake Forest High School.

Mr. Tucker will be meeting with Lake Forest District teachers and with the public from 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

"Marc Tucker is right on the edge of educational reform in this country. To have an individual of his caliber in our area is dramatic," said Lake Forest Superintendent, Dr. James VanSciver.

The Carnegie Forum, which published A Nation Prepared: Teachers for the 21st Century last May, is calling for a major restructuring of the American school system and of the teaching profession.

Since its release, the Carnegie report has been backed by two national teacher unions, the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) and the National Education Association (NEA) and by the Education Commission of the States (ECS).

The report advocates a radical, not incremental, change in the nation's schools. It proposes improving the quality of education by raising standards for teachers, strengthening educational preparation of teachers and encouraging communities to set goals for their school systems.

Lewis Branscomb, chairman of the task force which drafted the report, describes their proposed strategy as bold, but workable.

"A reform movement that restores our schools to the standards of 1950 is not good enough. We must design them for the economic and social America we'll face in the 21st century," Mr. Branscomb said.

Suggestions made by the Carnegie Forum include:

- Restructuring schools to make the best use of well qualified, certified teachers.
- Proposing a National Board of Professional Teaching Standards to maintain high standards for teachers.
- Phasing out the undergraduate education degree, and replacing it with an arts and sciences baccalaureate.
- Paying teachers competitively with other careers that require a comparable education.
- Allowing the citizens of a community to evaluate whether their investments in the reform have succeeded.

LF reschedules Referenda date to improve schools

Officials at Lake Forest School District report that a two-part referendum to make improvement in school facilities and improvements in staff salaries has been rescheduled from March 10 to May 26.

"We were unable to hold the referendum in March," reported District Superintendent, Dr. James H. VanSciver, "because, with the county going through reassessment, we would not know what the new tax rate would be. We want the people to know the facts. We want them to know what the cost will be and how it will help."

"In order to reschedule the date, we needed and received consideration from both the Kent County Board of Assessment and the State Board of Education. We may be a day or two late in submitting our tax warrant to the Board of Assessment and the State Board will have to hold a special meeting to certify our results."

VanSciver noted that the two-part referendum would include both a major capital improvement plan and a current expense vote which would increase staff salaries.

"Our building program has been given the highest priority by the state Board of Education," he continued. "That should be an indication of the tremendous need we have in that area. Also, our staff are among the lowest paid in the state and in our region. That makes it extremely difficult to retain and attract staff."

"Notice that we are talking about all staff, not just teachers. While it is terribly important to pay our teachers on a competitive salary scale, it is equally important to compensate our other employees at a higher level as well."

Plans are being formulated to inform the public regarding both the need and the cost of the referenda. The District staff will be mounting a major effort in the early spring to make the public

Basement waterproofer named in cease and desist order

A basement waterproofing contractor has been ordered to halt business practices which violate Delaware's consumer fraud laws. All Seasons Waterproofing and its owner, George A. Long, have been cited for consumer fraud and deceptive trade practices in a cease and desist order issued by the State Division of Consumer Affairs.

The State's investigation of All Seasons Waterproofing was prompted by complaints from three Delaware homeowners who hired the company to prevent basement flooding due to heavy rainfall and drainage problems. The consumers chose All Seasons Waterproofing based in part on the company's advertising claims to provide "24 hour emergency service", and on contractual promises that its work was unconditionally guaranteed to eliminate water penetration for the life of the home.

Soon after each of the three waterproofing jobs was completed, the homeowners experienced continuing flooding problems and called on the company to re-examine its work and seal the remaining leaks. Although appointments were scheduled for repairs and emergency service, All Seasons Waterproofing, repeatedly failed to appear as promised. When the company eventually returned to inspect its work, it failed to make necessary repairs and corrections in accordance with its guarantees.

All Seasons Waterproofing maintains a telephone answering service location at 1001 Jefferson Street in Wilmington, but has no permanent business quarters in Delaware. The company is headquartered at the home address of owner, George Long at 75 Hess Avenue, Woodbury, New Jersey.

Consumer Affairs Director Donald E. Williams cautions Delaware Homeowners to explore various remedies before hiring a basement waterproofing specialist. Williams says, "It's always wise to seek expert opinions and estimates from landscapers, building contractors, and plumbers who may suggest less expensive and more practical methods of solving drainage, flooding, wet basement problems."

The cease and desist order filed against All Seasons Waterproofing was issued by Williams and approved by Frances M. West, Secretary of the State Department of Community Affairs.

Committee" approved the specifications for a new City Hall as well as the site being the land (250'x250') adjacent on the east to Delmarva Power Offices.

The Council approved both 4-0 with Councilmen Temple and Jarrell absent from the voting.

Under the grant money from the Bicentennial Commission, construction for the new site must begin by March 20th or the grant money will be forfeited.

Most of the citizens in the City approve having a new city hall. Most of the citizens of the City feel the location of the new city hall should be somewhere in close proximity to the downtown district or somewhere along the main traveled route through the community which would be Clark Street and Commerce Street, which is also State Route 14.

The Building Committee had considered several options. The present location was considered but according to the City's building inspector, Mr. Ernest Gallo, the structure would not support the volumes of books for the library.

A plan was discussed in which Mr. Joseph T. Richardson, a local resident and one of the largest plumbing and electrical contractors on the Delmarva Peninsula, would construct an office building which would house in part the City offices, police department and the library as well as other offices. This was never consummated.

One other down town property was the John Satterfield property on Dorman St. This never received approval.

Mr. Brown seeks the seat to City Council for four major reasons: 1) to improve housing conditions in the

Lake Forest reschedules Referenda date to improve schools

It is of the utmost importance for the people in our district to know about this," VanSiver added. "We are not talking about schools. We are talking about our community. A solid school system is a major selling point for a community. It brings people into the community, contributes to the tax base, the economy and the civic organizations. In short, it helps elevate the standard of living for everybody."

"One part of the process for making this happen takes place in the schools, with enthusiastic people doing the job as best as it can be done. The other part takes place in the community, when the people demonstrate a vote of confidence through a referendum package which will provide for school the resources needed to underwrite the cost of doing that job.

"I remain confident that our people will support us in our efforts. They have continuously demonstrated both interest in and support of our schools."

W.T. Chipman students visit Observatory

Science students from W.T. Chipman Junior High got to see the stars on a recent field trip to the Mount Cubo Observatory.

The Science Club's mission in going to the observatory on December 8 was two-fold, research and education. At Mount Cubo, the students were acquainted with the types of telescopic instruments used to study the stars and with the stars themselves.

A brief slide show, moderated by Ms. Sharnow, told the students what celestial objects have and can be studied through Mount Cubo's telescopes.

The students were also given a planetarium presentation, where Ms. Sharnow explained the history and movement of the sun, earth and stars. She also outlined the pros and cons of starwatching in Delaware.

After the presentation, Chipman Science Club members got "hands on" experience using Mount Cubo's three celestial telescopes.

Ms. Moncure, Brandi Sheeler, Val Sullivan (hidden face), Ms. Sharnow and the "surprised" Jason Monroe get

"hands on" experience at Mt. Cubo's refracting telescope.

Although the students already knew the basic facts about each telescope, they were impressed to find out star gazing in lower Delaware is better than in Wilmington. Lower Delaware has optimal conditions for skywatching.

World Book donates encyclopedias

World Book/Childcraft, for the past five years, has been donating sets of encyclopedias to needy families across the United States. Through the efforts of Lucille Mann, a former teacher for forty years in Lake Forest School District and a sales representative with World Book for twenty years, a family at Lake Forest South Elementary School has recently received a new set of encyclopedias.

"Lake Forest South is honored to be a part of this program, one in which World Book has donated 7,500 sets of encyclopedias to families in the past five years, and have our families benefit from it.

"We applaud World Book for their willingness to help children in such a meaningful way."

Lake Forest secretaries to attend seminar

Eight secretaries at Lake Forest School District are scheduled to attend the Secretarial Seminar set for January 27 in Wilmington.

Presenter Mary Heideman will discuss topics such as "How You and Your Boss can be a Winning Team," "Going Home Feeling Good," "Turning Out Work Under Pressure," "Creating Stress-free, Harmonious Relationships" and "Enjoying the Rewards of Personal Growth and Job Satisfaction."

The seminar, which will last from 8:45 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. will take place at Wilmington's Sheraton Brandywine.

Attending from Lake Forest will be Shirley Biron, Louise Chalmers, Delores Collins, Deborah Jack, Phyllis Masten, Martha Tribbett, Donna Walls and Virginia Walters.

Lake Forest teacher is DSRA president

Lake Forest High School reading specialist Mary Jane Kee is the current President of the Diamond State Reading Association. And she's drawing rave reviews from her colleagues.

"She's quite a jewel," said James Sawyer, Director of Membership and Council Relations for The International Reading Association, of which the DSRA is an affiliate. "Mary Jane has devoted untold hours in carrying out the duties of her office in this volunteer organization. Communications from the field highlight the positive contribution the state association is making to reading, and much of this success can be attributed to the leadership which she is so ably demonstrating."

"DSRA's main responsibility," said Sawyer, "is to promote the understanding of the reading process in the state, to promote literacy. We also promote children's literature in Delaware."

Sawyer continued to praise Kee. "Many take part in professional organizations. But few are selected by their colleagues for a major leadership role."

In this position, Mary Jane is performing at a superior level and has gained the respect and admiration of all those who are fortunate to work with her."

Begin the new year with arthritis facts

Arthritis affects more than 95,000 adults and children in Delaware, many of whom do not know fact from fiction.

The myths surrounding arthritis can be very dangerous when they prevent people from getting proper medical care. Those who think arthritis only affects the elderly or who dismiss it as just "minor aches and pains" are as misinformed as those who think nothing can be done for people with arthritis.

In fact, some forms of arthritis can cause severe pain in all parts of the body and can lead to irreversible joint damage and deformity if allowed to progress unchecked. Today, more than seven million Americans are physically disabled, some of them because they went too long without proper diagnosis and treatment.

Only a trained physician can properly diagnose which of the more than 100 types of arthritis a person has and determine the best treatment. The person who sees a qualified physician in the earliest stages of arthritis and who follows the physician's treatment plan faithfully can expect to avoid many serious effects.

To get all the facts straight, write for the booklet, "Arthritis - A Serious Look at the Facts" available from the Delaware Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation. Call 764-8254 or 1-800-292-9599 or write the Arthritis Foundation, Delaware Chapter, 222 Philadelphia Pike, Wilmington, Delaware 19809.

A recent survey by the Arthritis Foundation shows that a surprising number of people who have arthritis do not follow their doctors' instructions.

A national survey found that 44 percent of people treated for arthritis and chronic pain do not take their medication as prescribed, specifically non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs). Most indicated that without consulting their physicians, they stop taking medications when side-effects occur.

Stomach upset was the number one reason people stopped taking their medication. In addition, 36 percent reduce drug dosage on their own and 10 percent switch medications without informing their physician.

The Arthritis Foundation suggests people talk with their physicians before discontinuing the prescription on their own.

Gab Fest

Christmases may come and go, but newspaper deadlines go on forever, so we cope even though our material is short.

Now the gifts are wrapped, the cards are mailed, and food is being prepared. Right now, in my kitchen are 75 mashed potato yeast rolls rising to be baked. My special gift from Dad this year was a new oven. You know I will really enjoy that.

Each family has its own customs and traditions that makes Christmas for them. We will again welcome friends and family at Ellen's home. We will have dinner and then we will have our little service with the Bible Story and prayer and lighting the candle in the window so that if the Christ Child comes down our street He will know that he is welcome in this house. We will exchange and open presents with those who will not be with us on Christmas Day. After our guests have departed, those of us who will remain overnight will sit around the fireplace and snack and try to guess what is in all the beautiful gifts piled under the tree.

On Christmas morning we will have a real fun time opening presents and then comes breakfast or rather brunch since it will be late and sometimes guests drop in for this also. I remember last year while we were eating breakfast, the snow started drifting gently down...just enough to make it Christmas card pretty.

My friend, the late Gladys Taber, used to say that just before she went to bed on Christmas Eve, she slipped out and looked out at the stars and whispered softly, "God rest you merry, Gentlemen!"

And now, I and my family wish each and everyone of you a Happy New Year.

Department of Insurance

Delaware Insurance Commissioner David N. Levinson announced at a national press conference in Washington, D.C., that the first Risk Retention Insurance group under the Federal Liability Risk Retention Act of 1986 will be chartered and located in Delaware.

The C.P.A. Risk Retention Group Corporation (C-PAC-O), whose charter became effective on December 2, will establish home office headquarters and executive office operations in Delaware.

"It is our intention to make Delaware the risk retention center of the nation for the good risk retention groups, significantly increasing the number of insurance jobs available to our citizens."

"In the interest of consumer protection, Delaware risk retention groups will be comprehensively regulated with high standards for capital and surplus prior to issuing policies, stringent periodic financial examinations to ensure solvency, and regular review of market practices. All insurance departments throughout the nation will know that Delaware risk retention groups will be well supervised."

"As our starting point in the establishment of this Delaware center of quality companies, there is no group that by tradition better symbolizes responsibility and conservative practices than certified public accountants.

"We are glad that the nation's CPA's chose Delaware as the best place to put their risk retention group. They have been cooperative with the Department and our Department has demonstrated its expertise in risk retention by expediting the group formation process for C-PAC-O."

"C-PAC-O plans to have 50 employees in its main office in Delaware, with the first 15 or so employees hired with the next 60 days."

"There are hundreds of associations considering the formation of risk retention groups. If our risk retention center development potential is aggressively pursued, hundreds, if not thousands, of new insurance jobs can be created in Delaware," Commissioner Levinson said.

One of the purposes of the Federal Liability Risk Retention Act of 1986 is to allow a trade association to form and operate as an insurance company that would provide liability insurance for its member companies. Under the act, the members of the group would collectively retain the risk of its individual members. Hence the name: Risk Retention.

American bird sculpture decoys to decoratives on display

The carving of duck decoys is a vital aspect of the culture and history of coastal America. The making of decoys was, until a few years ago, simply a workingman's craft, a practical way of making a living.

But today, decoys which sold for a few dollars earlier in this century are bringing thousands of dollars at art auctions. The carving of wildfowl has evolved from the utilitarian duck decoy to intricate and expressive pieces of contemporary sculpture. This evolution will be clearly shown in an exhibit planned for the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., January 30 to May 2. The exhibit is also being co-sponsored by the Ward Foundation of Salisbury, which operates the Wildfowl Art Museum at Salisbury State College.

"American Bird Sculpture-Decoys to Decoratives" will feature examples of the earliest working decoys, and intricate life like waterfowl sculptures.

The highlight of the exhibition will be the sculpture of a preening tundra swan carved in 1970 by Lem Ward of Crisfield, Maryland. The Ward Swan is considered Lem Ward's masterpiece; and is one of the featured pieces in the Ward Foundation museum. From January through May, those visiting the Smithsonian will have the chance to see it.

The development of regional styles of decoy-making will be traced in the exhibit. Decoys made in the New England tradition by carvers, such as Elmer Crosswell, will be featured, as well as carvers from the Delaware River and the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Contemporary carvings will include work by current World Champion Larry Barth, Pat Godin, Ernie Muehlmaut, John Scheeler, Gary Yoder, Bob Guge and Tan and Jett Brunet.

The exhibit's co-sponsor, The Ward Foundation, a non-profit organization formed in 1968 to preserve and perpetuate wildfowl art, sponsors the World Championship Waterfowl Carving Competition each April in Ocean City, Maryland.

For more information about the exhibit contact the Ward Foundation at 655 S. Salisbury Blvd., Salisbury, Maryland 21801.

Smyrna tops Spartans 67-57

by Mike Dill

Jay Garnett pumped in 29 points to lead Smyrna High School past the Lake Forest Spartans 67-57 in the first round of the annual Dover Holiday Tournament.

Garnett, who scored 40 points against Middletown earlier this season, electrified the capacity crowd with three slam dunks as the Eagles converted a lot of breakaways for baskets.

Smyrna, two time defending Southern Division champs, exploited the Spartans' weakness, the frontline. Besides Garnett, Smyrna also has forwards Kevin Dickerson and Tim Bothell who added 15 and 12 points apiece.

Spartan forwards James Hicks and Chuck Bell both played outstanding games, scoring 19 and 18 points respectively.

Smyrna built a 10 point halftime lead 41-31, and the Spartans tried to cut the deficit with a 16-12 run in the fourth quarter, but it was not enough.

The Spartans will now face Dover, 74-70 losers to Caesar Rodney, 6:30 Tuesday night in the consolation game.

Sowerby will coach east squad in sports fest

Delaware State women's track coach Fred Sowerby will be the coach of the East Team at the 1987 National Sports Festival slated for July 17-26 in Raleigh-Durham, North Carolina.

Sowerby, who was at the 1986 Sports Festival in Houston as the coach of the East Team's sprinters, now will be faced with directing the entire squad that includes some of the biggest names in collegiate track.

The honor for Sowerby comes at a time when he is busy taking bows for yet other triumphs. In November his Delaware State cross country teams capped matching (men and women) undefeated seasons with two more conference crowns, and about the same time that went into the books the two-time Olympian was inducted into the Murray State University Athletic Hall of Fame for his track heroics from 1970 to 1973.

A three-time NCAA All-American during that span, he was a member of the Olympic team in 1972 (Munich) and 1976 (Montreal) at 400 meters and at one time was the American record holder at that distance.

North Carolina Motor Speedway

ROCKINGHAM, N.C.--For the third consecutive year North Carolina Motor Speedway management has engaged work crews to prepare additional seating to keep pace with the increasing demand for choice seats for Winston Cup and Busch Grand National series automobile races at the high-banked, one-mile superspeedway. Six new VIP suites are under construction.

Located on a 345-acre tract 10 miles north of Rockingham and 20 miles south of the resort area of Pinehurst and Southern Pines, NCMS offers a garden spot for early-arriving campers and a haven of free parking for all comers on the perimeter of the scenic speed arena.

NCMS' original seating of 30,000 has been increased to near 35,000 in the Rockingham and Hamlet Grandstands with additions of two high-rise structures (1,500 each), 24 VIP suites (1,500), plus an assortment of top-of-the-grandstand box seats.

Infield capacity ranges upwards to 15,000 depending on how many walk-through tickets are sold. A full house would constitute around 48,000-50,000 and the speedway's parking lots would accommodate that many.

"Our reputation for staging exciting races (three photo finishes since 1983; seven cars on the lead lap in the 1985 Nationwide 500 and five in the 1986 finale) has really pumped up our advance ticket sales," said Frank Wilson, executive vice-president and overseer of work forces that included construction of concrete retaining walls, repaving of the racing surface and other areas, plus the new seating structures.

"Racing is by far the most popular spectator sport in the Southeast and people are coming from farther away than in the past because they are getting a close-up look at the sport on television," said Wilson. "Every race we have hundreds of new fans coming from Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and New England states. Most of them saw some television action and want to see more."

Wilson pointed out that both of NCMS' Winston Cup-Busch Grand National events are televised--the March 1st race by Special Events Television Network (SETN) catering to a national audience of 46,000,000 households on a delayed basis, and the October 25th event live on Atlanta's superstation WTBS.

The Goodwrench 500 will be the third race on the 29-race Winston Cup series following the Daytona 500 at the 2 1/2-mile Daytona International Speedway and a 200-miler at Richmond Fairgrounds' half-mile track.

NCMS' March event traditionally serves as the spring kickoff for race-hungry fans in the Carolinas-Virginia, Eastern Seaboard areas and its middle-distance track circumference offers tips as to who has early advantages on the championship trail. The big weekend is also highlighted by the Goodwrench 200 for Busch Grand National drivers and the Unocal 76 Pit Crew Championship on Saturday.

Painting presented to Watkins Glen Racing Museum

At a recent press conference held at the Montour House in Montour Falls, New York, noted Rochester artist Ted Williams and advertising executive Scott Perkins presented to Dr. David A. Ward, founder and director of the Watkins Glen Racing Museum, the first in a proposed series of original oil painting depicting great historical moments in road racing.

The idea for the series was developed by the three racing enthusiasts as a collaborative effort. Perkins, a long-time fan and Museum Board Member, said, "We felt the project would serve to give the Museum greater visibility among both racing fans and the general public." And, of course, the paintings will be reproduced, so anyone who orders one will be helping to support the museum building and expansion fund. To carry out the project, Perkins and Dr. Ward engaged Williams, an Upstate New York artist renowned for his illustration of racing, aviation, and commercial subjects.

The initial painting in the series depicts America's first Formula One Champion, Phil Hill, in the famous Type 156, shark-nose, 1-1/2-liter Ferrari Grand Prix car with which Hill capture the 1961 World Championship. The original painting will be on display in the Museum; and print reproductions, a limited number of which will be autographed by driver Phil Hill and artist Ted Williams, will be sold throughout 1987 to benefit the Building Fund of the Watkins Glen Racing Museum.

Other paintings in the series will be added to the Watkins Glen Racing Museum Collector's Series periodically.

Chief Justice at Valley Forge

by Albert Beveridge

Albert Beveridge was a U.S. Senator and an historian. This article was excerpted from his Pulitzer-Prize winning biography of John Marshall.

NOTE TO EDITORS-It is the Christmas season once again and an appropriate time to recall Christmases past. Perhaps the bleakest Christmas celebrated in American history took place in 1777 when American troops were stationed at Valley Forge. Most people have heard something about Valley Forge, if only in grade school history lessons; but many don't realize the true magnitude of the horrors that went on there -- or the heroic sense of humor exhibited by some of men in the midst of those horrors. As a holiday treat, the New Federalist Papers is proud to distribute a selection on Valley Forge taken from Albert Beveridge's Pulitzer Prize-winning biography of Chief Justice John Marshall. Beveridge shows that even under the most severe conditions, some men can triumph. John Marshall was such a man. Later to become one of the most celebrated Chief Justices of the Supreme Court, Marshall at Valley Forge was already exhibiting the qualities that gave him distinction later in life.

Gaunt and bitter swept down the winter of 1777. But the season brought no lean months to the soldiers of King George. It was a period of rest and safety for the red-coated privates in the city, where, during the preceding year, the Liberty Bell has sounded its clamorous defiance; a time of revelry and merry-making for the officers of the Crown. Gay days chased nights still gayer, and weeks of social frolic made the winter pass like the scenes of a warm and glowing play.

Not twenty miles away from these scenes of British plenty and content, however, rose the bleak hills and black ravines of Valley Forge -- where Washington's army had crawled some weeks after Germantown. On the Schuylkill heights and valleys, the desperate Americans made an encampment which says Trevelyan, "bids fair to be the most celebrated in the world's history." The hills were wooded and the freezing soldiers were ordered off in parties of twelve to build huts in which to winter. It was more than a month before all these rude habitations were erected. While the huts were being built the naked or scarcely clad soldiers had to find what shelter they could. Some slept in tents, but most of them lay down beneath the trees. For want of blankets, hundreds had "to sit up all night by fires." After Germantown Washington's men had little to eat at any time. On December 2, "the last ration had been delivered and consumed."

As Christmas approached, even George Washington became so disheartened that he feared that "this army must dissolve"; and the next day he again warned Congress that, unless the Commissary were quickly improved, "this army must inevitably...starve, dissolve, or disperse."

Two days before Christmas there was "not a single loaf of any kind to slaughter and not more than twenty-five barrels of flour." Men died by the score from starvation. Most of the time "fire cake" made of dirty, soggy dough, warmed over smoky fires, and washed down with polluted water was the only sustenance.

On the day after Christmas the soldiers waded through snow halfway to their knees. Soon it was red from their bleeding feet. The cold stung like a whip. The huts were like "dongons and...full as noisome." Tar, pitch, and powder had to be burned in them to

Rev. Falwell calls Conservatives to order

LYNCHBURG, Va.--Rev. Jerry Falwell has chided "turncoat conservatives" for their failure to support President Reagan during the current Iranian crisis. His commentary entitled, "Now is the time for all good conservatives to come to the aid of their President," appeared in the January issue of the Liberty Report.

Falwell also reprinted Patrick Buchanan's editorial on the same subject, which appeared in the Washington Post earlier this week. Falwell said, "It is nothing short of a national tragedy that so many conservatives have allowed one incident, about which we know so little at this moment, to create mass defection."

"Conservatives owe everything we are and have achieved in the 1980s to one man--Ronald Reagan."

"If Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale had inhabited the White House for the past six years, the Iranian situation and the diverting of aid to the Contras would certainly be no issue. Central America would already belong to Moscow and Havana, and Iran would not need any arms from the United States."

"Whether one agrees or disagrees with the White House position on this issue should in no way affect our commitment to the greatest President of modern times and the man who will be remembered as the person who saved America from military, political and economic ruin."

"But the sin of the right is--we have been silent."

Falwell urged readers to launch a massive letter-writing campaign in support of the President. He encouraged the sending of telegrams and letters to members of Congress and particularly to the newly chosen Senate Select Committee.

Need, was there not, at Valley Forge for men of resolve so firm and disposition so sunny that they would not yield to the gollm of these men, for spirits so bright and high that they could penetrate even the death-stricken depression of this fetid camp with the glow of optimism and of hope?

Such characters were there, we find, and of these the most shining of all was John Marshall of the Virginia line -- later to become a celebrated Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. He was a very torch or warmeth and encouragement it appears; for in the journals and diaries left by those who lived through Valley Forge, the name of John Marshall is singled out as conspicuous for these comforting qualities.

"Although," writes Lieutenant Philip Slaughter, who, with the "two Porterfields and Johnson," was the messmate of John Marshall, "they were reduced sometimes to a single shirt, having to wrap themselves in a blanket when that was washed" and "the snow was knee-deep all the winter and stained with blood from the naked feet of the soldiers," yet "nothing discouraged, nothing disturbed" John Marshall. "If he had only bread to eat," records his fellow officer, "it was just as well; if only meat it made no difference. If any of the officers murmured at their deprivations, he would shame them by good-natured raillery, or encourage them by his own exuberance of spirits."

"He was an excellent companion, and idolized by the soldiers and his brother officers, whose gloomy hours were enlivened by his exhaustible fund of anecdote...John Marshall was the best tempered man I ever knew," testifies his comrade and messmate.

So starving, freezing, half blind with smoke, thinly clad and almost shoeless, John Marshall went through the century-long weeks of Valley Forge, poking fun wherever he found despondency, his drollery bringing laughter to cold-purpled lips, and, his light-hearted heroism shaming into erectness the bent backs of those from whom hope had fled. At one time it would be this prank; another time it would be a different expedient for diversion. By some miracle he got hold of a pair of silk stockings and at midnight made a great commotion because the leaves he had gathered to sleep on had caught fire and burned a hole in his grotesque finery.

High spirits undismayed, intelligence shining like a lamp, common sense true as the surveyor's level -- these were the qualities which at Valley Forge singled out the boyish Virginia officer from all that company of gloom. Just before the army went into winter quarters Captain-Lieutenant Marshall was appointed Deputy Judge Advocate in the Army of the United States, and at the same time, by the same order, James Monroe was appointed aide-de-camp to Lord Stirling, one of Washington's generals.

Such was the confidence of his fellow officers and of the soldiers themselves in Marshall's judgement and fairness that they would come to him with their disputes and abide by his decision; and these tasks, it seems, the young Solomon took quite seriously. He heard both sides with utmost patience; and having taken plenty of time to think it over, rendered his decision, giving the reasons in writing. So just after he had turned his twenty-second year, we find John Marshall already showing those qualities which so distinguished him in later life as a Supreme Court Justice. Valley Forge was a better training for Marshall's peculiar abilities than Oxford or Cambridge could have been.

Another issue which got my attention this past year was the problem of drug abuse in this country. Through my investigative subcommittee, I conducted hearings on "crack" cocaine, money laundering by drug dealers and the sometimes glamorous portrayal of drug use in television and movies. This year I supported legislation passed by Congress to increase penalties for drug dealing and to outlaw money laundering by drug dealers, the sale of drug paraphernalia used by addicts and the use of minors in drug trafficking. There is much more to be done to combat drug abuse, but I think Congress has taken some important steps forward this year.

1987 will bring with it tax reform for this country. The Senate Finance Committee, of which I am a member, spent countless hours on this legislation which will impact every taxpayer in the country. Although I was very disappointed with the final bill, many portions of the bill got my strong support. They included the reduction in marginal tax rates, the closing of tax shelters and the minimum corporate tax. I also worked to have a special rule put in the tax bill to retain incentives for banks to purchase tax exempt bonds. This will promote many new jobs and construction projects in Delaware.

I did have some major problems with the tax bill, however. In the end, I found I could not vote for the final bill. It will not promote economic growth and the creation of new jobs. It unfairly limits IRAs, which will make it more difficult for people to save money and plan for their retirement. In addition, middle income families with two working spouses will not get as much tax relief as families making three times as much!

Federal funding for many important projects in Delaware was approved this past year. For example, Delaware will receive funding for an erosion construction project to help stop the erosion of the shores of the Indian River Inlet. The runway at Dover Air Force Base will also be extended with the help of federal money. A longer runway will mean the C-5s can take off with a much heavier load.

These are just a few of the highlights of an eventful year. In retrospect, I feel a sense of accomplishment. I would like to wish all Delawareans a safe and happy holiday season.

"Resolutions"

This is an interesting time of the year. With the New Year celebration, we often spend considerable time reflecting on the events of the past and pondering, if not planning, the events of the future.

It is a time for reflection evaluation and planning, two of the three important components of an effective education system. Implementation provides the vehicle for the incorporation of that planning into action. Reflection (evaluation) follows and the process continues on and on.

The resolve with which people commit to implement those plans most often is indicated this time of the year through New Year's resolutions.

"I'm going to lose ten pounds."

"In two weeks, I will have read a book!"

"Exercise is important. I'll run a mile a day!"

"I'm going to be more kind to my neighbor!"

As the days turn to weeks, the weeks turn to months and finally a new year is once again just around the corner, it might be best to test the resolve with which we committed ourselves to last year's resolutions by evaluating our performance.

Chances are the scale now groans under the weight of an additional five pounds rather than a loss of ten, the book is back on the shelf with a bookmark stuffed somewhere in the middle of the first chapter, that mile-a-day has been transformed into a bag of chips, a glass of softdrink and a cozy chair in front of the television set and our neighbor is more nasty than ever to us, particularly since we regularly mow the lawn so as to blow all the cuttings directly into her flower bed.

"What's missing? A commitment, motivation, a realistic goal?"

More often than not, it is simply a matter of changed priorities. The resolution just isn't that important any more.

That gets us finally and most importantly to the art of schooling. If this business of education is the most important process our youth will experience, we simply cannot afford to let other matters take a higher priority.

The commitment we make to education as a vehicle for community betterment cannot be compromised.

It is a New Year's resolution we cannot afford not to keep.

Roth joins President's call for public disclosure of committee findings

WILMINGTON--Senator William V. Roth, Jr., R-Del., a member of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, issued the following statement in support of President Reagan's call for public disclosure of the findings of the committee regarding the Iran arms sales affair:

"As a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, I have listened to testimony surrounding the Iran-Contra affair. The committee has compiled many facts, yet, there is still more to be learned.

"In my opinion, the facts concerning the Iran arms sale and the circumstances surrounding it must be brought out as quickly and thoroughly as possible. I strongly support the President's call for public disclosure of

A look back at 1986

With 1987 fast approaching, it is a good time to reflect on the happenings and accomplishments of 1986. It was a year filled with both joy and sorrow. Looking back, landmarks that come to mind include the tragedy of the space shuttle accident, the progress towards arms control at the Iceland Summit and the anniversary of the Statue of Liberty.

1986 was also a busy year for me and the 99th Congress. In retrospect, the legislation which gave me a great sense of accomplishment, yet probably received the least amount of attention, was my bill to crack down on child pornography. As Chairman of the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, I held hearings on the subject and found there were some loopholes in existing child porn laws. My legislation, which is now law, makes the advertising of child pornography illegal and makes it illegal to transport young boys across state lines for illicit purposes. Current law only covers the transport of young girls.

Another issue which got my attention this past year was the problem of drug abuse in this country. Through my investigative subcommittee, I conducted hearings on "crack" cocaine, money laundering by drug dealers and the sometimes glamorous portrayal of drug use in television and movies. This year I supported legislation passed by Congress to increase penalties for drug dealing and to outlaw money laundering by drug dealers, the sale of drug paraphernalia used by addicts and the use of minors in drug trafficking. There is much more to be done to combat drug abuse, but I think Congress has taken some important the intelligence committee's report. Furthermore, I would support a public vote by the members of the committee on the President's request.

"It is crucial to make the American people aware of what happened so they can evaluate what occurred. While some aspects of the investigation may not be released in order to protect intelligence sources and methods, I believe everything which can be released publicly should be released. Public disclosure is critical if we are to put this incident behind us and move ahead in government.

"We cannot afford to have an immobile government. The best thing is to get the facts out, get it behind us and move on to the other problems facing our nations."

Conservative Caucus presents Speaker of the House with Conservative agenda

Establishment of a State-Wide Paramedic Service; A state Veterans' Cemetery; Jury Instruction; English as the official State Language, were some of the proposals that The Speaker of The State House of Representatives, B. Bradford Barnes heard at the December meeting The Conservative Caucus of Lower Delaware.

Representative Barnes concurred with most of the suggestions stating that, "if a person wanted to become an American citizen, he should become fluent in the English Language." "A Veterans' Cemetery has been approved and will be forthcoming", Rep. Barnes stated. One member of the audience stated that the Veterans' cemetery will definitely be located at Lum's Pond.

The Caucus Chairman, David Coady, spoke against passage of a mandatory seat-belt law, pointing out that both Massachusetts and Nebraska have rescinded their mandatory seat-belt laws.

Rep. Barnes stated that he was a Conservative First and a Republican Second. "I have been a Conservative since I was active in the Goldwater-Miller campaign of 1964", Barnes said.

A video, entitled, "Revolution and Betrayal; 'The Onslaught Against South Africa'" will be shown by the Caucus at its next regular meeting, Saturday, January 17, 1987, at CKRT Post #7, American Legion, Harrington, at 2 p.m. The 60 minutes video is narrated by the editor of "African Digest", Donald S. McAlvany.

The Biden Report

by Senator Joe Biden

The retirement of just one more federal employee would seem to be, in most cases, a matter of no great moment. But when that retirement threatens to curtail flight services at the Salisbury-Wicomico Regional Airport, it becomes a matter of more than passing interest to those who fly along the Delmarva Peninsula.

That's why I have written to Federal Aviation Administrator Donald Engen about the staffing levels at the Salisbury-Wicomico flight service station.

Early next month, the third staff member in three months will retire, reducing the number of fully qualified flight service specialists at the airport to five -- not enough, I am told, to maintain the current level of flight services there.

I have also been informed that the Federal Aviation Administration intends to close the Salisbury flight service station altogether if the automated facility at Leesburg, Virginia, comes on line. But even that leaves a potential gap in flight services on the peninsula.

Until it becomes clear that the automated facility at Leesburg will meet the "as good or better" standard of operation, I believe the FAA should take steps to make sure the Salisbury flight service station can continue to provide its needed and frequently used information. Otherwise, Delmarva aviation may suffer reduced service and safety for an extended period of time, and that could have an adverse effect on the economy of a region that is important to both Delaware and Maryland.

I have asked the FAA to come up with alternatives that will maintain the current level of flight service at Salisbury, and that is asking no more than that the federal aviation agency meet the responsibility it was created for -- to make flying a safe, efficient service, in Delmarva as everywhere else in the country.

SMALL BUSINESS SAYS 'NO' TO TAX INCREASES

Most of us are still trying to figure out exactly how the new tax law will affect us. But in Washington, leaders of the incoming 100th Congress are already trying to figure out how to change it!

In his first official statement after being nominated as Speaker of the House by his Democratic colleagues, Rep. Jim Wright (D-Tex.) suggested that Congress might reduce the deficit by delaying tax cuts for the rich, meaning those who will pay a top personal rate of 38.5 percent in 1987. A few weeks earlier, House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski (D-Ill.) also suggested raising the yet-to-be-tried tax rates to reduce the deficit.

There is no reason to tamper with the new tax law. To his credit, President Reagan has pledged to veto any effort to raise the rates, the keystone of tax reform for most small-business owners.

A mechanism for reducing the deficit -- the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings legislation -- is already in place. So far, despite the loss of a key part of that legislation in the courts, Congress has followed the basic Gramm-Rudman-Hollings formula and cut spending, reducing the deficit as the authors intended.

Admittedly, reducing the deficit by as much as $40 billion (next year's target) through spending cuts and economic growth will be difficult. The president says that any further cuts in defense spending would weaken his bargaining power for arms reductions. Cutting Social Security and other entitlement programs would help, but that's politically risky. Some Republicans say they lost in November because of their opposition to Social Security cost-of-living increases.

Money for "entitlement" programs and the military accounts for three-fourths of the budget. Interest on the debt amounts to another 15 percent. That leaves less than 15 percent of the budget to attack. But this non-defense, non-discretionary portion has been slashed heavily over the past five years (down from 25 percent in 1981.)

That is why some in Congress, seeing so much of the budget labeled untouchable, are already arguing that we don't need to slash spending by $40 billion. They would raise taxes instead. Others will say that there is no reason to worry about the deficit. They cite Congressional Budget Office figures showing that the deficit is declining steadily as a percentage of GNP.

The federal government made some real progress in 1986. Still, our competitive position abroad is weak, and there are convincing arguments that until more progress is made to eliminate domestic red ink, the United States will not substantially improve its trade imbalance.

Small-, independent-business owners have a big stake in the way Congress addresses these problems in 1987. It is the smaller firms that have been creating the jobs and providing the modest growth which has sustained the economic recovery.

The leaders of the 100th Congress should be very careful about tampering with the tax code to pay for their spending programs. That's the old business-as-usual approach, and small-business owners have had enough of it. Congress should start with an across-the-board budget freeze, then attempt to cut or eliminate other programs as necessary to meet Gramm-Rudman-Hollings targets. Above all, Congress should give the new tax law time to work as advertised.

John Sloan is President of the National Federation of Independent Business, representing more than half a million small-business men and women.

768 call Delaware helpline; eye physicians treat blinding diseases

Potentially blinding eye disease can be treated effectively if detected early, a fact that 768 elderly Delaware residents have discovered through the National Eye Care Project (NECP).

Volunteer Delaware ophthalmologists have uncovered: 115 cases of cataracts, 11 cases of glaucoma, 25 cases of macular degeneration, 5 cases of diabetic retinopathy, among elderly Delaware residents who have called the toll-free Helpline 1-800-222-EYES (3937) to receive assistance through the NECP.

The public service, which offers medical eye care to the disadvantaged elderly at no out-of-pocket cost, is sponsored by the Delaware Academy of Ophthalmology and the Foundation of the American Academy of Ophthalmology.

The NECP is available to U.S. citizens or legal residents, age 65 or over, who are not currently under the care of an ophthalmologist, and who have not seen one within the past three years.

Since the Delaware Helpline opened on June 2, more than 768 residents have called, resulting in more than 565 referrals of elderly patients to local volunteer eye physicians for medical examination and possible treatment for sight-threatening eye diseases.

More than 140,000 elderly Americans have called the toll-free Helpline number, since the project opened in January. Amazingly, about 34 percent of those examined by ophthalmologists report that they had never before had a comprehensive medical eye examination. For another 20 percent, it had been more than five years since their last eye examination.

"We want elderly people to know that failing eyesight in their later years can be prevented or lessened through early diagnosis and treatment," said Joshua Kalin, MD, president of the Delaware Academy of Ophthalmology. "We are now able to repair or even replace certain parts of the eye by using sophisticated surgical tools and important new drug therapies."

Periodic medical eye examinations are particularly important, said Dr. Kalin, to detect potentially blinding eye disease, which has no early warning signs. Nationwide, about 1,600 cases of glaucoma have been diagnosed and treated through the project.

After calling the toll-free Helpline, an elderly person will be mailed the name of a volunteer ophthalmologist who will treat the patient, regardless of his or her ability to pay, and who will accept (for this project) Medicare or insurance assignment as payment in full. If hospital care is needed, the ophthalmologist will work with a local hospital to make care available. Hospital charges, eyeglasses and prescription drugs are not paid through the program.

More than 7,000 ophthalmologists are participating in the NECP. The Helpline is open weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in all states except Hawaii, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Sharon Brown to join Biden staff

Sharon Brown, Press Secretary to U.S. Representative Tom Carper, will become Deputy Press Secretary to U.S. Senator Joseph R. Biden, Jr., when Congress re-convenes in January, Carper and Biden announced recently.

Brown will be in charge of press relations for the Senator's personal office, including his work on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and liaison with the Delaware press. She will formally assume her new post January 6.

Biden's Press Secretary, Peter Smith, will be moving to the Senate Judiciary Committee to concentrate on directing press operations there. Senator Biden will assume the Chairmanship of the Committee in January.

Rep. Carper said, "Sharon has been a great asset to me and our entire staff, and I know she will serve Senator Biden equally well. It's a tremendous opportunity for her to be able to work with someone of Senator Biden's standing and reputation. I wish her all the best in this new job."

Carper said a successor to Brown has not yet been named, he said his Administrative Assistant, Ed Freel, will handle all press inquiries until such an announcement is made.

Brown, 34, has served with Rep. Carper for the past two years. Previously, she was Director of Public Affairs for the National Conference of State Legislatures, Press Secretary to U.S. Reps. Morris K. Udall (D-Ariz.) and Howard Wolpe (D-Mich), Deputy Press Secretary to U.S. Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) and a writer for the Fayetteville, NC, Observer. A native of North Carolina, she is a graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Journalism.

Teens offered chance to produce TV program & win trip to Sweden

Minneapolis, MN -- The International Children's Television Committee announced a nation-wide essay contest designed to find four teenagers to produce "This Is My Country", a video documentary to be seen by Swedish teens, about life in the U.S. The essay topic is "My Life in the U.S.". Contestants must answer the following question in 200 words or less: "If you were to produce a TV show about your life in the U.S., what would you include and why?"

The four winners will help write and produce the program under the supervision of a professional TV producer. In addition, the documentary will highlight a day in the life of each winner. When completed, the winners will travel to Sweden to present the program to Swedish school children. They will be accompanied by a teacher/chaperone to be chosen by random drawing. The documentary, designed to foster international understanding between the two countries, has a similar sister project being conducted in Sweden.

Children aged 13-16 are eligible to enter. Entries should be sent to: International Children's Television Committee, P.O. Box 35354, Minneapolis MN 55435. Entries must be postmarked no later than February 15, 1987.

Health Beat: Diabetes

"Each year Type I, insulin dependent diabetes strikes between 7,000 and 8,000 young people in the US," reports Grafton Reeves, MD, president of the Delaware Affiliate.

"Most new cases of this disease develop in children between 5 and 16 years of age, and occur between November and March", he said.

"One of the biggest concerns," Dr. Reeves added, "is that during this period, the symptoms of diabetes may be confused with those of flu or gastroenteritis by physicians or emergency room personnel."

According to diabetes medical experts, during this four month period, approximately 4,000 or more children and young adults may develop this chronic disease for which there is treatment but no cure.

Unusual thirst, frequent urination, nausea, and rapid weight loss are the major symptoms of this form of the disease.

"The Delaware Affiliate of the American Diabetes Association urges that if you have these symptoms you should be checked by a qualified physician," emphasized Dr. Reeves.

If this serious form of diabetes is not detected and treated, it can result in diabetic coma and death.

In addition to increased thirst and urination, symptoms of a diabetic reaction include vomiting, abdominal pain, fatigue and shortness of breath.

For further information on diabetes and its treatment, contact the Delaware Affiliate of the American Diabetes Association, 2713 Lancaster Avenue, Wilmington, or phone 656-0030.
