

Felton women arrested in connection with New Year's brawl

by Colleen Lilly
Two Felton area women have been arrested in connection with the early morning New Year's brawl at Revelation Rob's on Route 13 in Harrington.
The brawl, which began just before 2 a.m., left three men hospitalized.
Robert D. Lankford, 28, of Lake Forest Estates in Felton, was run over by a car after the brawl. He is being treated for a fractured ankle, a fractured vertebrae and numerous cuts and contusions at Milford Memorial Hospital.
Christine G. Lankford, 24, the wife of Mr. Lankford, was arrested and charged with two counts of assault, two counts of possession of a deadly weapon and one count of disorderly conduct.
She allegedly stabbed Frederick Galloway, 30, of North Madison, Ohio, and Jerry Petrowski, 28, of Meadow Acres, Magnolia.
Mr. Galloway was treated and released from Milford Memorial. He had been stabbed in the right arm. Mr. Petrowski was treated and admitted to Kent General Hospital for surgery of a stab wound to his right arm.

Ms. Lankford was released on $40,100 secured bond, according to State Police Spokesman John M. Miller.
Lisa E. Drago, 25, of Riverdale Estates in Felton, was also arrested in connection with the brawl.
Ms. Drago allegedly ran over Mr. Lankford with her car. She's being charged with first degree assault.
Ms. Drago was committed to Woodshaven Women's Prison in default of $10,000 secured bond.
Police are continuing their investigation into the incident.
Numerous stories about how the incident began are circulating. Mr. Lankford's version recounts having been hit on the head by an unknown object, after witnessing two men fighting, one of whom offered $500 to anyone who could beat him up.

Another version recalls Mr. Lankford swinging violently at the man who wanted to be beaten up. In this version, the man refused to pay Mr. Lankford the $500.
Some witnesses say Lankford was not run over, but instead jumped on Ms. Drago's car, kicked in the windshield and was thrown over the top of the car. Allegedly, Mr. Lankford held onto the rear bumper of the car and was dragged around the parking lot before Ms. Drago put the car in reverse, and backed over Mr. Lankford.
Still another story says Mr. Lankford offered anyone in the bar $500 to beat him up.
Robert Revels, Jr., owner of Revelation Rob's was unavailable for comment on the incident. He did tell The Delaware State News that he was not responsible for anything happening outside of his bar.

City to receive decision about BCIF Grant

by Colleen Lilly
The City of Harrington will find out on January 14 whether it will receive $58,127 in Bicentennial Community Improvement Funds (BCIF) for the proposed construction of the new City Hall, new Harrington Library, police department and administrative offices.
The BCIF grant program was authorized by Governor Michael N. Castle and the Delaware General Assembly for the purpose of providing matching funds for capital improvements related to Delaware's Bicentennial Celebration. Priority has been given to capital improvements which would not have occurred without grant assistance and to projects which enhance a community's historic and cultural heritage.
In the City of Harrington's application to the state for bicentennial funds, Kate Lyons of the Department of State, said Harrington listed the property adjacent to Delmarva Power & Light on Liberty Street as the proposed location for the new City Hall.
According to Ms. Lyons, the application had to be received on or before December 15, 1986 to be considered for funding. The City of Harrington's application had been received on or before that date.
The evening of December 15, the Building Commission presented its recommendation of the Liberty Street site to the Harrington City Council. The Council voted that evening to accept the proposed site for the proposed city hall.
If the city chooses to change the site of the proposed city hall, Ms. Lyons said, "I don't see it as a problem if they choose a different location."
She said she would have to be made aware of the change and of any monetary differences in the cost of the property to ensure the project still meets the state's requirements.
Although citizens of Harrington could have opposed the proposed site of the City Hall complex, through a referendum vote, the Council would not have been bound by a referendum because either provisions relating to referendum results in Harrington's

Charter are non-binding on the Council or the Council has voted against having such a referendum vote.
A referendum, which can not be overturned or outvoted by a government, allows the citizens to have a say in how a city is run and in issues concerning them.
If the state accepts the grant, Ms. Lyons said, funding for the project will be granted to Harrington as the city spends the money.
"We oversee how the money is spent. As far as building codes, the city is responsible for that," Ms. Lyons said.
Ms. Lyons said that under the terms of the Bicentennial Community Improvement Funds agreement, groups receiving grants have until December 7, 1987 to complete their projects.
She said the groups "don't receive money until they spend money. They are reimbursed along the way."
If accepted the grant for City Hall will then go to the state architectural accessibility board to make sure the proposed building will have access to the handicapped.
In general, Ms. Lyons said projects that wouldn't receive funding would be those which did not meet the applicant and project eligibility requirements and those in which the group could not produce matching funds for the project.
The City of Harrington has already received a grant of $58,128 toward the project. They will find out on January 14 if the state approved funding of a supplemental grant of $58,127 for the project.
If approved the City will have to match more than $116,000 in funding for the proposed City Hall.
"The only reason they wouldn't get funding is competition," said Ms. Lyons.
The state has $304,000 available in Bicentennial monies. According to Ms. Lyons, thirty nine applications totalling $7,299,094 have been submitted for approval.
Since the bicentennial funds only amount to $304,000, projects not approved will either need to seek

Magnolia man nominated for Air Force Academy

by Colleen Lilly

After a year at Valley Forge Military Academy, 19 year old Daniel E. Flynn, Jr. of Magnolia may be getting his wish to go to the Air Force Academy.

Mr. Flynn, the son of Daniel and Rita Flynn, tops U.S. Senator Joseph Biden, Jr.'s nominations to the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colorado.

"I want to be a fighter pilot and this is the best way to go about it," said Mr. Flynn.

Out of four nominations last year to the Academy, Mr. Flynn received backing on all counts from Senator Biden (D-DE), U.S. Senator Roth (R-DE), U.S. House of Delegates member Tom Carper and a presidential nomination.

Last year, though, Mr. Flynn was not chosen for the Academy, and was instead given a Falcon Scholarship to Valley Forge in order to prep him for the upcoming year.

Mr. Flynn should find out between now and May whether or not he's been appointed to the Air Force Academy.

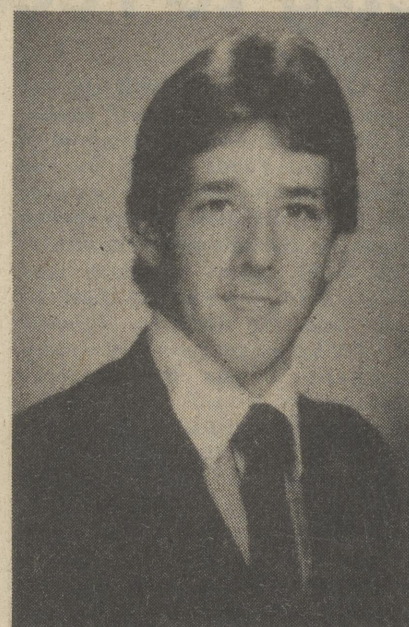

If his appointment doesn't come through, he plans to go into the Air Force ROTC and study aeronautical engineering so he can fly commercially.

Mr. Flynn is a graduate of Caesar Rodney High School.

Among Senator Biden's alternative nominees to the Air Force Academy are area residents Laura Mae Alexander of Felton and Christopher E. Pfeifer of Milford.

Senator Biden also named Heath Chasanov of Bridgeville and Paul McKinney of Greenwood as alternate nominees to the Naval Academy.

Senator Biden's nominations to all four military academies, including the U.S. Military and the Merchant Marine Academies, were made from a field of 65 applicants on the basis of recommendation from his Academy Selection Board, comprised of six private citizens chosen by Senator Biden.

additional outside funding or reapply for Bicentennial funding for next year. No reapplication deadline has been set yet because Ms. Lyons is uncertain of the amount of state funding available next year and because this year's approved grants haven't been announced yet.

Ms. Lyons anticipates the state will allocate approximately $1,000,000 to the Bicentennial funds next year.

If the City of Harrington does not receive its grant, it does have the option to use already granted funds and seek the additional money elsewhere or to scale down their proposed City Hall project. Any changes the City decides to make must be reviewed by Ms. Lyons to make sure the project still meets the eligibility requirements.

The committee reviewing all fund applications will meet at 9 a.m. January 14 in the Townsend Building Cabinet Room of the Delaware Department of State.

She was raped then driven back to 8th and Shipley Street and forced out of the car. The woman had been harassed on a bus by the same males two days earlier. The men appeared to be in their mid-20's, all wearing wool caps.

A motion was made to have James L. Webb, Paving Co., place two inches of crushed run stone on Lovers Lane to change the mud situation until spring, when regular paving can be done. A motion was also made for Mr. Webb to fix the specific pot holes within the town limits.

A special meeting will be held January 26 at 7:30 p.m. to award the trash bid. It was reported some signs are completed for the town and can be picked up next week.

Our President announced the water drought lifted, but complaints about brown water were received. Flushing was proposed, depending on weather.

There will be an Executive meeting January 15, concerning the Police Dept. and the water ordinance.

It was decided that the portable Motorola radio will be sent back to the manufacturer to check it over; and a report will be sent back if it is serviceable.

The Town Board also plans to have Sam Bickling check all doors at the Town Hall for leaks and to give an estimate for repairs.

Harrington Day Care Center - Wonderful year comes to a close

The year 1986 has brought about some changes for the Harrington Day Care Center located in St. Stephen's Episcopal Church on Raughley Hill Road. This year we have seen our enrollment increase dramatically and hope the New Year will continue the trend.

We have also seen the departure of a very dear friend and employee during 1986. Mrs. Ida May, one of our beloved Foster Grandparents, died this year. Mrs. May had been a valuable employee of the Day Care Center for many years. She will truly be missed by the children and staff of the Center.

Foster Grandparents provide a unique service to our Center. They provide the children with an abundance of love, encouragement, and companionship. They are very dedicated to the work they do. Mrs. Effie Raughley, Mrs. Harriet Robinson, Mrs. Dorothy Hicks, and Mrs. Thelma Dixon are our other foster grandparents who have made innumerable contributions to our Day Care program.

Despite some changes that have occurred in 1986, one fact still remains constant - the support of the parents and Board of Directors of the Harrington Day Care Center. We could not have had a successful day care program without their input. They have encouraged us through their letters, cards, visits and confidence in our abilities to work effectively with the children enrolled at the Center. Their support included their attendance at our Annual Christmas Program and Party held on December 18, 1986. We were delighted to have seventy (70) parents, friends and Board Members present at our program. The parents also donated baked goods, candies and ice cream for the party. Thanks for attending the program and for all the wonderful gifts the staff.

For those of you who don't already know the purpose of the Harrington Day Care Center, let me restate it for you. Our main objective is to provide a

Local Interest by Barbara Stafford 284-4939

The landscaping class at Lake Forest High School has been working on a project for their courtyard that has changed the appearance of that area. The only thing left to do is putting in the trees and spraying for bugs, which will be done in the spring. The work was stopped because of the cold weather. The whole class worked very hard to get the courtyard done and many thanks go out to Mr. Testerman for being such a good teacher and friend. GOOD JOB TO ALL THE STUDENTS IN THE CLASS!

Hope everyone had a wonderful holiday and to the school children, a wonderful vacation.

Mid-term exams are coming up soon after vacation and the Sophomores will start their scheduling for their Junior year and then the Freshman for the Sophomore year.

Before the Christmas break there were many parties put on by the different classes; the two biggest were the Office Education Association (OEA) and the Future Farmers of America (FFA). All had fun and there was plenty of food.

Spartan comeback falls short

by Mike Dill
 Dover High School took a 10-0 first quarter lead and survived a furious late Lake Forest rally to take third place in the annual Dover Holiday Tournament.

After James Hicks and Chuck Bell combined for 10 first quarter points to cut the lead to 18-10, the Spartans hustled and scrapped to end the half only down 31-28.

Tony Bray nailed a jumper two minutes before intermission to cut the lead to 29-20. Chuck Bell made two free throws. Steve Sipple hit a jumper, and Bray drove for another basket to make the score 29-24. Floyd Homes added the final basket of the half when he grabbed a missed foul shot and hit a basket at the buzzer.

At the start of the second half, Dover jumped back out to a 43-32 lead on two baskets by Bernie Floriani and Chris Lawrence. The Spartans then went to work to cut the lead again.

Spartan guards Tony Bray and Ray Smith spearheaded the comeback charge. Bray drove the lane for a basket, then Smith added a basket off a rebound and a jumper from the outside to cut the lead to 45-38 going into the fourth quarter.

At the start of the quarter Chuck Bell drove for a layup, James Tiggs added a basket off a rebound and James Hicks added two foul shots to cut the lead to 47-44 with 5:36 left in the game.

Dover then opened up a six point lead before Smith, Bray and Hicks added baskets to cut the lead to 54-53 with 2:56 left in the game.

"I really believe we should have pushed the ball more when we were down by one", said James Hicks.

"We should have took the ball inside and tried to draw some fouls."

Bernie Floriani sparked Dover as they pulled away with two baskets and Chris Lawrence added two foul shots when Spartan center Chuck Bell fouled out.

After suffering the narrow loss, the Spartans remain upbeat and loose as they await the start of the regular season this week.

"I think we need to set up more when we get out of control", said Spartan center Bell who finished with 15 points.

"We have to have more control at the end of the game and also watch the clock."

"I really think everybody learned in this game. When we started coming back, we were really starting to click."

"By the start of the season we should be in pretty good shape."

Small Business Angle

SMALL BUSINESS MUST PLAY POLITICS

It is a good thing for this nation that many old soldiers never die or refuse to fade away. In fact, there is a long and honorable list of those who have served in battle, emerged victorious and then channeled their energies into improving the government they fought to preserve. Soldiers such as George Washington, Andrew Jackson, Teddy Roosevelt, and John F. Kennedy. Another old soldier, Dwight D. Eisenhower, succinctly said, "politics should be the part-time profession of every citizen."

Politics — what a dirty word. Just the mention of the term causes many people to flinch or turn a deaf ear or worse, complain.

The political process has always appeared frustrating for those unwilling or uninterested enough to get involved. There is a sense of dissatisfaction, of helplessness and vulnerability. Small-business owners in particular have traditionally viewed politics and government as threats to their innovativeness and a burden to their progress.

The old axiom that "you get the government you deserve," holds a lot of truth. It is akin to the "you get what you pay for" chestnut so freely used by the business world.

Do we have the government we deserve? Yes. It is that simple. The U.S. is very unique in all the world's socio-political structures. Our participatory democracy allows us to get as active in the political process as we like, or it also offers room for us to be as complacent and as apathetic as we dare.

Why do taxes, regulations, accounting requirements, forms and more forms threaten to overwhelm American entrepreneurs? Because we allow those we elect to place such stumbling blocks in our way. We allow that to happen by not participating in the political process.

Why aren't small- and independent-business owners more active in politics? Myths. Persistent myths that become convenient excuses. Here are a few to consider: First, all politics emanate from Washington and state capitals. Second, politicians are leaders. Third, government has a monopoly on power and truth. Finally, the media keeps government and politicians on the path of righteousness.

A close look at these myths will reveal that none is true, but they all have become good excuses for those citizens who aren't willing to sacrifice the time, energy and money it takes to jump in and make government work better.

Myths? No, excuses. Politics emanate from your own backyard, not state capitals or Washington, D.C. Politicians are leaders — if the people who put them in office demand that of them. Government, many times, is the last place you can find power and truth. Finally, the media — like any interest group — should not be expected to steer government and politicians in any direction.

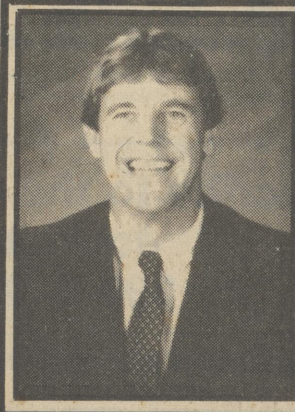

Whether we like it or not, each of us is government and therefore we have a responsibility to ourselves and our neighbors. We have an obligation to know what issues affect our communities and to determine how these issues are dealt with at all levels of government. We have an obligation to identify leaders, encourage them to run for public office and to support them in their campaigns.

Now, for the ultimate obligation — accepting the challenge of leadership. Remember, another old saying about how to get something done right? Yes, do it yourself.

Some say it takes a bit of arrogance to hold yourself out for public scrutiny. I say it takes courage and conviction to run for public office.

We are a nation of extraordinary people. Farmers and other small-business owners, just plain-folks framed our Constitution. For over 200 years, people much like them have been an integral part of our political process. We are those people and we must reassert our role in that political process.

The small-business owners of America, more than any other group, should feel the call to become more deeply involved, and committed, to the preservation of our democratic, free enterprise society.

"Exclusion"

The issue of academic eligibility has raised some eyebrows in light of developments the past several months at the University of Maryland.

It is nothing new. For years, there are those who have trumpeted the virtues of students attending school for instruction in the Three R's, "Reading, Writing and Arithmetic." There certainly is merit in this. For, take the academics out of the school experience, and you have moved the very backbone of our education system.

However, take students out of the schools and you lose the very reason for their existence. It is obvious that students will receive no instruction in the Three R's if they are not there.

Students come to our schools not always prepared for the learning experience. Some are more enthusiastic about participating than others. Is it not true that schools must do everything possible to keep students enrolled until all efforts to find the key to exciting their interest is exhausted?

For some students, the environment for keeping them enrolled may be the extracurricular programs. Coaches and advisors make excellent counselors. Many benefits, often those most sought by business and industry, may be found in these programs. Sacrifice, teamwork, cooperation, dedication and commitment are more than just words in successful programs.

A philosophy that the programs are not an end in themselves but rather a means to an end must underscore these experiences. These must be used as a springboard for employment, college acceptance or college scholarship opportunities. In short, they must look to promote the best interests of the students involved.

Still, students must understand that the most important role they play in the schools is as scholars. They earn the right to participate through attention to their studies.

Caution must be exercised in developing academic standards for participation. To do so must send an important message to those who toil in our schools. Moderation must insure that the standards are not developed so as to circumvent the very purpose for which they are designed, to develop students in both mind and body.

Exclusion does not benefit either students or society. Those who suffer the most are our students.

Laundered cash is lifeblood of underworld drug sellers

by U.S. Senator Bill Roth

The war against drug abuse is being fought on many fronts. One of the most promising avenues to eradicating illegal drugs is a clampdown on money laundering. Cash, in great quantities, is the lifeblood of this nightmarish industry.

Drug abusers buy their contraband to satisfy their addiction, but drug traffickers are plainly in it for the money. The overall profits are so vast, drug kingpins have developed sophisticated systems to launder their money so that it can be used in legitimate enterprises.

The Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, which I chair, has just completed a five year investigation of underworld financial activity of enormous proportions, estimated by a Justice Department official in the range of $40 billion to $150 billion a year in narcotics money alone. We found definite links between organized crime, drug trafficking and the use of the banking system to turn ill-gotten profits into legitimate investments. Money laundering is a growing global industry in which some of America's banks have been unwitting accomplices.

In a comprehensive report on money laundering, my subcommittee showed that criminal shifting of sizeable sums has been helped by lax enforcement of the Bank Secrecy Act, which requires banks to report all cash transactions of $10,000 or more. Major crime figures sometimes send millions of dollars to banks overseas where local laws prevent U.S. law enforcement officials from getting access to bank deposit records. This money can then be transferred back to the United States and used in business endeavors.

My subcommittee found a frightening number of cases in which U.S. bankers failed to report cash transactions. The Bank of Boston, for example, was fined $500,000 in 1985 for failing to report transfers to foreign banks, mostly to Switzerland, that totaled $1.2 billion. We found other cases in which bankers in Puerto Rico took bribes to look the other way as crime figures transferred tens of thousands in cash for negotiable bank certificates.

Since our 1985 hearings bankers have become more keenly aware of the connection between federal reporting requirements on cash transfers and actual drug trafficking, drug addiction and ruined lives. U.S. Treasury officials are now more vigorously enforcing the Bank Secrecy Act, thus interfering with the enormous cash pipeline that fuels the underworld infrastructure. And partly because of the scrutiny my subcommittee has raised about this problem, our government has successfully negotiated agreements with several foreign governments to open their formerly ironclad secret bank account information to U.S. authorities.

I believe that this concerted effort to cut back on the underworld's mega-profits may be our most useful attack on America's drug problem.

Partners in Social Security

by I.S. Levitt, District Manager Social Security Administration, Dover

An unbreakable partnership was cemented between the Federal Government, employers and American workers 50 years ago during the Great Depression. It made a profound statement in helping generations of Americans build economic security through Social Security for themselves and their families. Beginning in January 1937 reported wages were recorded on workers' earnings records, and future benefits would be computed based on these wages.

Social Security has grown significantly since then and is now an integral part of the American way. Today 95 percent of all employees and self-employed people are protected under Social Security. It has evolved from an infant-old-age insurance program to one that pays retirement, disability and survivors monthly benefits to over 37 million people.

There were skeptics who said it couldn't be done. They claimed it would be impossible to maintain lifetime earnings records for millions of workers, and they were wrong. Today, Social Security has one of the largest and most modern record keeping operations in the world. By using the computer, additional systems continue to further improve service and efficiency.

Employers and workers can be proud of their roles in helping to promote financial independence in America. The billions of dollars in Social Security benefits paid each year pumps spendable income into local communities and strengthens the entire economy.

Social Security helps level the impact of recessions, promotes retirement with dignity and allows many older Americans to remain financially independent and that's a hard record to beat!

STALIN'S TORCHBEARERS

By Edwin Feulner

The 20th Century's totalitarian mass murderers have understood that if you're going to sin, sin big. The more persistent and more monstrous your sin, the sooner the West will get over its indignation and resume yawning.

This principle has been at work for nearly seven years in Afghanistan. When they invaded Afghanistan in December 1979, the Soviets doubtless miscalculated the determination of the heroic Afghan resistance. What they correctly calculated was the minimal price the West would make them pay even if they resorted, which of course they hastened to do, to the ultimate totalitarian tactic: genocide.

To be precise, in Afghanistan their tactic is "migratory genocide." It being impossible to kill all Afghans (even with the latest in chemical-biological weaponry), the next best thing is to drive as many as possible out of their homeland. Estimates are that the Soviets have killed more than a million Afghans, and driven more than 5 million into Pakistan and Iran.

History shows that, for the Soviets, this may be merely warming up. But already the Afghans they've murdered or driven out total more than a third of the nation's pre-invasion population. Countless thousands of others are wounded, starving and homeless thanks to the Soviets' scorched-earth tactics.

Recent reports on human rights violations in Afghanistan—by Amnesty International, the respected British publication Janes Defence Weekly, and the United Nations—are depressingly similar to such reports from previous years. Despite Soviet efforts to seal off Afghanistan from foreign observers, there is massive testimony from a wide array of sources not only of the scale of Soviet slaughter, but of its viciousness.

An example, by no means untypical, from a recent New York Times story on the U.N. report: "... witnesses (reported) four instances in which chemical weapons, presumably gas, were used, and as many cases in which phosphorus and napalm bombs were employed. . . . In Garabad, in Konduz Province . . . witnesses said, soldiers executed 30 people in mid-August in retaliation (for supporting the freedom-fighters), kicking children to death and disemboweling a woman and cutting off her breasts." The Soviets prefer carrying out such acts in front of the victims' relatives, the better for terrorizing and demoralizing what remains of the populace.

Now for your pop quiz: Against what country did Congress recently pass economic sanctions? (Clue: It's the very country liberals castigate as the foulest blot on the planet.) Answer: South Africa.

Second question: With what country has the United States, over the last couple of decades, gradually expanded its economic, cultural, and scientific relations? Answer: the Soviet Union.

Third question: Why? The answer here would take us too far into the social psychology that animates the liberal mind, always fanatically resistant to evidence and reason.

In a sane world, the Soviet Union would be a pariah state condemned as the moral equivalent of Hitler's Germany. But spinelessness and stupidity continue driving the Free World toward accommodating and appeasing Moscow.

The U.N., though it has repeatedly condemned the presence of "foreign troops" in Afghanistan, has never so much as mentioned the rather significant fact that the troops are Soviet.

The U.N. even refused to translate into four of the five official U.N. languages that part of the recent report on Afghanistan that listed Soviet atrocities. The U.N. said it was trying to "economize," an activity in which it had never before shown any interest.

The author of the report, Felix Ermacora of Austria, objected. Rosanne Klass, director of the Afghan Information Center at Freedom House, told the Washington Times, "I think surely (the U.N.) could have found ways to economize in matters that are not a question of life and death for millions of people."

But don't you understand, Rosanne? If we rile the Soviets with so much as shrill rhetoric, let alone take any action against them of the sort we've taken against the global menace of South Africa, they might not sign any more of those treaties that have done so much over the years to prove how deeply, deeply committed they are to world peace and human rights.

Police investigation on-going in death of local man

by Colleen Lilly

Police in Columbia, South Carolina are investigating the circumstances surrounding the December 1, 1986 death of Harrington resident, Dwight Marlin Ross.

Mr. Ross, 34, died of cardiac arrest, which had been the result of a severe closed head injury.

On November 23, Mr. Ross was taken from the Columbia City Jail to Richland Memorial Hospital for treatment of a head wound.

"We have no idea how he got a head injury. There was no indication of a fight," said Captain Crump, confinement officer at the Columbia City Jail.

Mr. Ross, a self-employed handyman, who had been traveling, was arrested November 21, 1986 for trespassing at the Greyhound Bus terminal in Columbia, S.C.

"He was arrested as a result of a complaint from the Greyhound Bus Company," said Chief Brendan Galvan of the Columbia City Police Department.

According to the police report, Mr. Ross was arrested at 7:30 a.m. November 21, 1986 for trespassing, after having been warned not to loiter by a police officer.

"The suspect had been loitering around the terminal three days before being arrested," said Chief Galvan.

Captain Crump said an investigation is underway to try and determine how and when Mr. Ross received his head injury.

"It's possible the head injury was sustained before he was arrested," said Captain Crump.

Mr. Crump, who had been found semi-conscious in his cell by another inmate, was scheduled for a bond hearing and trial date November 24, 1986, the day after he was taken to the hospital.

Hazel Pitts, the mother of Mr. Ross, first heard about her son's head injury when the Richland Memorial Hospital called her November 29.

When Mrs. Pitts arrived in Columbia Sunday, November 30, 1986, her son was in a coma. The next afternoon at 5:40 p.m. Mr. Ross died.

The last time Mrs. Pitts had heard from her son had been in September, when he was traveling in Tennessee. "He liked to travel a lot. The last time I heard from him was September 23, and then the next time was when the hospital called," she said.

Mrs. Pitts believes the head injury her son received was the result of being beaten while in jail. She said the hospital wouldn't tell her anything about the death.

She believes more is involved with her son's death than is being told. She also said she was told the case was closed; and she would have to get a private investigator to look into the situation.

If Mr. Ross had been sentenced for trespassing, the maximum penalty he could have received would have been 30 days in jail and $210 in fines.

Mr. Ross was buried in the Williamsville Cemetery in Houston, Delaware.

'86 season one of records and first-times

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C.--The 1986 Winston Cup season will be remembered as one of records and first-time occurrences.

A record 13 drivers won Winston Cup events during the 29 race, ten-month, coast-to-coast season, including the youngest and oldest ever to enter the Winston Cup record book.

Three drivers won their initial NASCAR Winston Cup races and track and event qualifying records fell to the Rick Hendrick Motorsport blitzkrieg.

Seven-time champion Richard Petty made his 1,000th start at Michigan International Speedway.

Other teams showed signs of jelling at the end of the season, marking them as potential winners of the 1987 Winston Cup.

Miller American Buick teammates Bobby Allison (49) and Bobby Hillin, Jr. (22) shared the distinction of becoming the oldest and youngest drivers ever to win Winston Cup races.

Allison won the Winston 500 at Talladega in May and Hillin emerged from the pack in the July Talladega 500 to score his initial Winston Cup win.

In addition to Hillin, Rusty Wallace took his first Winston Cup victory early in the season at Bristol and then nailed victory number two at Martinsville.

Kyle Petty, picking his way through the debris and wreckage at Richmond when Earnhardt and Darrell Waltrip wrecked while duelling for the lead (taking Rutman and Bodine with them), became the third driver to win his first Winston Cup race in 1986.

The "pleasant surprise" list includes the Winston Cup winning Wrangler/Goodwrench team of Earnhardt and car owner Richard Childress. Although considered a front-line, contending team, few thought the group would win the Winston Cup. In a pre-season media contest to pick the Winston Cup titlist, Earnhardt gathered only 21 votes from the hundreds of media members who participated.

Also in that category was the Wallace-driven, Raymond Beadle-owned Alugard team. Led by Barry Dodson, the team kept Wallace consistently in the top ten throughout the season, finishing sixth in the final standings and earning more than $550,000.

A third entry was the Hendrick-owned, Harry Hyde-led Folger's Coffee Chevrolet driven by Richmond. Not many gave this effort much of a chance for success in '86, and called Richmond and Hyde "The Odd Couple" because of the obvious differences in age and lifestyle.

All the team did was win seven races, eight poles and finish third in Winston Cup standings, after not receiving a single vote in the media's champion contest.

Drivers disappointed with their performance this year included Cale Yarborough, in his final year with Harry Ranier and J.T. Lundy. Cale did win one pole position but failed to win a race for the first time since 1972.

Another entry in the "unpleasant surprise" category was Harry Gant and his Travis Carter-led, Hal Needham-owned Skoal Bandit team. Gant not only failed to win during 1986, but failed to make the top ten in the final standings, a long slide from his 1985 third place.

Neil Bonnett, fourth in the 1985 final standings, fell to 13th this year but succeeded where Gant and Yarborough failed. Bonnett won at Rockingham in the 27th race of the year.

Three teams appeared to be sorting out early-season problems as the 1986 year came to a close. Buddy Baker had solid top five performances with his Crisco Oldsmobile after hiring crew chief Doug Richert late in the year.

Richard Petty and Dale Inman appeared to be working their old magic toward the end of 1986, with a second place at Atlanta and other strong runs. Could the team be laying the groundwork for Petty's eighth Winston Cup in 1987?

Kenny Bernstein's Quaker State Buick, with Joe Ruttman behind the wheel, finished the season with a flourish, running regularly in the top ten. Bernstein's new engine program scored a fifth place in its first outing at Riverside and with front-running Shepherd replacing Rutman for 1987, this could be a team to watch.

Hendrick's teams shattered qualifying records throughout the season at Winston Cup tracks. They didn't win the poles at the headline-grabbing tracks like Daytona and Talladega -- Bill Elliott and Cale Yarborough's Fords took care of that -- but Hendrick stalemated Richmond and Geoff Bodine claimed 16 of the 25 other pole positions.

The two Chevrolet drivers occupied the front row seven times during the season and the $30,000 Busch Pole bonus for the driver with the most pole positions went to the final race before Richmond claimed the money. The award was decided by the number of second-place qualifying positions after Richmond and Bodine tied with eight poles each.

In a year of speed, 17 new track records were set in qualifying while an additional six event records were set during the season.

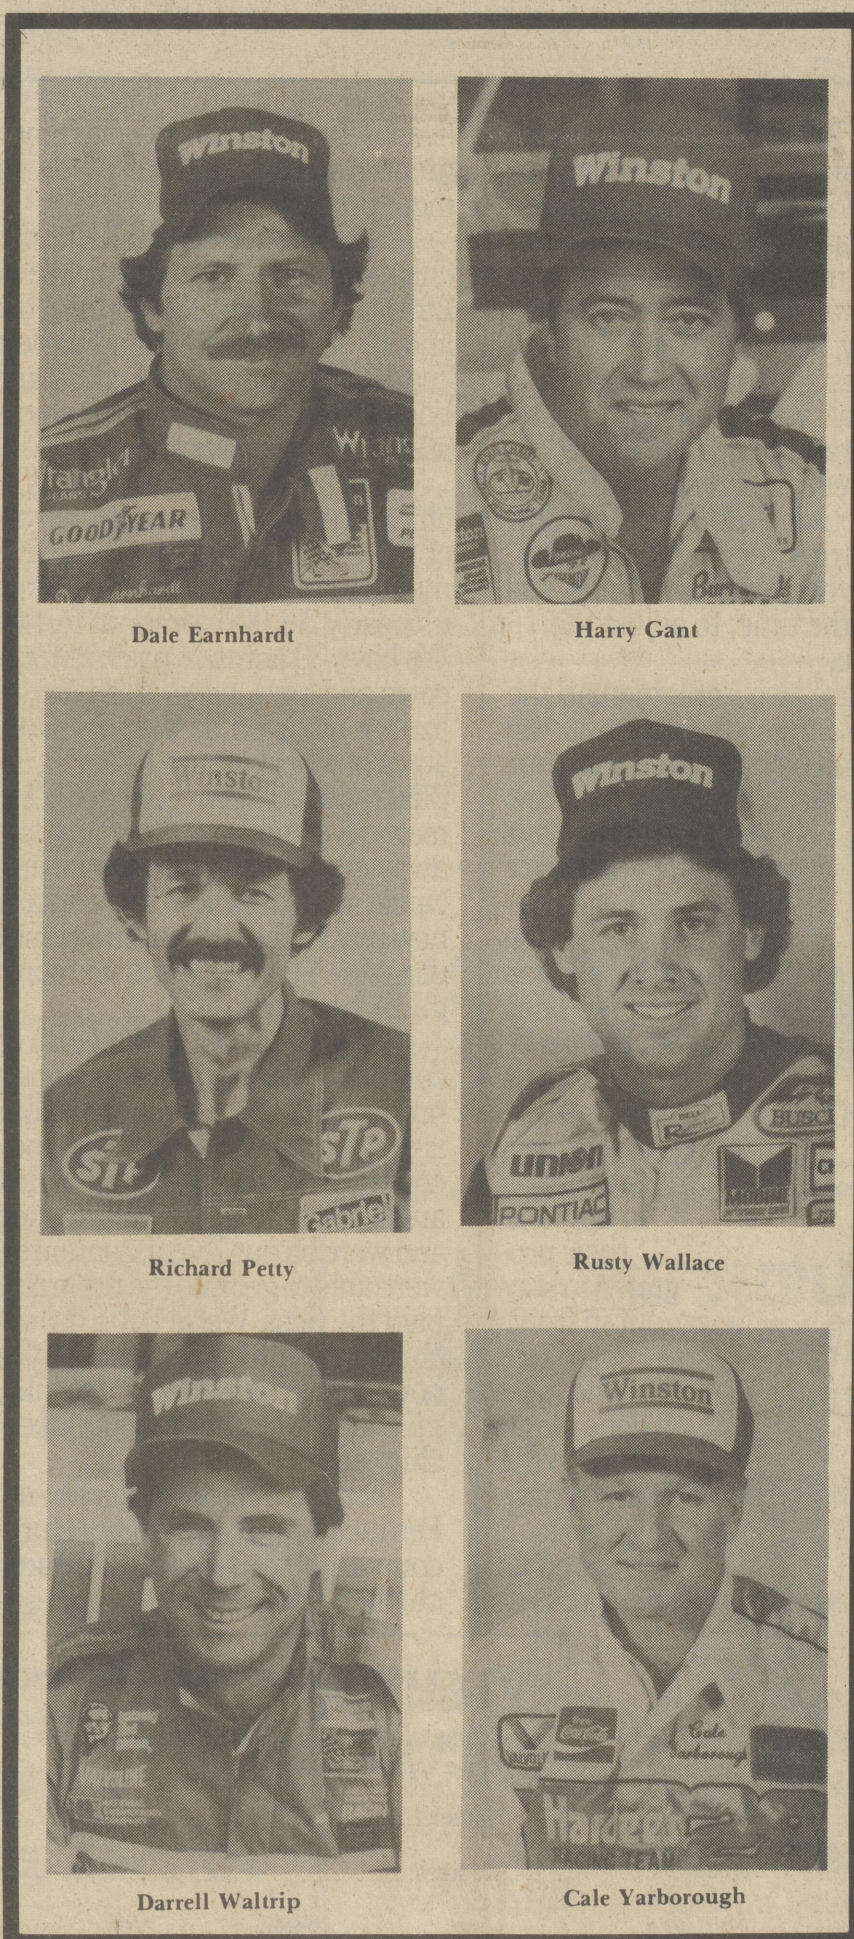

One of the new track records was set at Watkins Glen, where the Winston Cup Series saw competition for the first time since 1965. More than 85,000 fans turned out to see the NASCAR stars compete on the 2.3 mile road course. Richmond won both the pole and the race in the inaugural Budweiser at The Glen.

No driver was able to win the Winston Million, the $1 million bonus claimed by Elliott in 1985. In fact, no driver won the $100,000 consolation bonus posted by R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. for the first driver to win two of the four Winston Million events.

But Elliott thrashed the 'cream of the crop' to win The Winston at Atlanta in May and take home $240,000. Benny Parsons won the Atlanta Invitational, an event staged for 14 drivers selected by popular vote by racing fans.

Although no one won the Winston Million, the top-20 drivers in the final point standings shared motorsports' largest point fund, $2 million.

Dale Earnhardt won the mid-season leader bonus of $150,000 and then claimed the season-ending jackpot of an additional $400,000 awarded to the Winston Cup champion. It was his second championship and his winnings for 1986 totaled $1,768,880.

For the first time in history, three drivers went over the $1 million in winnings. Darrell Waltrip won approximately $1.1 million while Elliott ended the season over $1,049,000.

Richmond missed becoming the fourth driver on that plateau by less than $27,000.

TRW expands autosports program

CLEVELAND, OH--An expanded AutoSports Program for 1987, building on the success of its participation in the 1986 season, has been announced by the Replacement Parts Division, TRW Automotive Aftermarket Group. Robert W. Sundwick, director of marketing for the division, said that TRW has renewed sponsorship commitments to the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) Winston Cup series, the National Hot Rod Association (NHRA) and the International Motor Sports Association (IMSA).

"We are pleased to join in partnership with these three sanctioning bodies once again in 1987," Sundwick said, "as we continue to build the TRW AutoSports Program. Our goal in this effort is to foster increased excitement and competitive energy for American auto racing while providing a strong research and development environment for TRW engine and chassis parts."

Features of the 1987 TRW AutoSports Program include continuation of a number of popular competitive awards for drivers and mechanics as well as sponsorship agreements with Jack Roush Racing in the IMSA GTO/GTP series and with champion drivers Joe Amato and Bill Walsh in NHRA competition. Briefly, the 1987 program includes:

NASCAR--National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing, Winston Cup Series--

*TRW Mechanic of the Race Awards, introduced by TRW in 1986, will once again offer a bonus of $1,000 at each of the 29 Winston Cup races in the coming season.

*TRW Mechanic of the Year Award, also entering its second season, is given to the one mechanic who has made the most valuable contribution throughout the year. TRW awards the winning mechanic a $20,000 prize.

*TRW Mechanics Hall of Fame, announced last season, will be established in February 1987 at the Motorsports Museum in Talladega, Alabama. The first nine inductees, selected from active, inactive and deceased categories will be honored in the first of what will become an annual event.

*Research and development programs, testing TRW engine and chassis parts under demanding superspeedway conditions, will continue in 1987.

NHRA--National Hot Rod Association--

*TRW Sportsman All-Stars Competition, now beginning its third season, will award an increased purse of $54,000 to champions in NHRA's eight Sportsman racing categories.

*TRW Grand Nine-Ninety competition, sponsored by TRW since 1985, rewards NHRA Super Gas drivers who achieve a perfect 9,900-second elapsed time during final round eliminations at NHRA national events. The $1,000 TRW bonus posted at each event is accumulated, if unclaimed, until a driver hits a perfect time.

*TRW 900 Club, which generated grassroots excitement during its first season in 1986, provides non-cash awards for perfect runs at NHRA divisional events in Super Comp, Super Gas and Super Street competition.

*Co-sponsorship of the two-world-class teams fielded by Amato Racing will feature renewed sponsorship of Top Fuel great Joe Amato in his TRW/Hurst/Keystone Automotive Warehouse dragster and a new partnership with three-time Top Alcohol world champion Bill Walsh.

IMSA--International Motor Sports Association--

*TRW Mechanic of the Year Awards programs in four IMSA racing series have been renewed for 1987.

*Associate sponsorship of Jack Roush Racing entries in the Camel GTO/GTP series adds a strong new dimension to TRW's involvement in IMSA competition, teaming up to provide valuable trackside research and development.

*Contingency awards in Camel GTO series, renewed for 1987, will once again reward teams racing with TRW rack and pinion steering components.

As a major supplier of engine and chassis parts and a worldwide leader in automotive technology, TRW has a long history of involvement in auto racing activities. "Our 1987 AutoSports program represents an important commitment by TRW to the excitement, competitive spirit and technological opportunities offered by participation in American auto racing."

Bud Moore named "Mechanic of the Year"

Bud Moore, a legend in NASCAR Winston Cup competition, is the winner of the $20,000 TRW Mechanic of the Year Award sponsored by the Replacement Parts Division, TRW Automotive Aftermarket Group. The cash award and a portrait of Moore in action was presented at the Annual Awards Banquet held in New York on December 5, 1986 at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

The Mechanic of the Year Award was established in '86 by TRW to recognize the men who make the wheels turn and keep them turning. Moore, the first recipient, is crew chief and owner of the #15 Motorcraft Thunderbird driven by Ricky Rudd. The Rudd team's Motorcraft Thunderbird entry ended up in fifth place in total points in the Winston Cup competition with 3,823. The team was sixth in 1985.

Moore was winner of the TRW Mechanic of the Race award twice during the season for the First Union 400 and Delaware 500 races. He was awarded $1,000 for each of these wins. A total of 22 mechanics shared in these awards during 1986. During the season, a panel of judges observed and rated each mechanic's contribution to his team's success and ability to work effectively with his peers, sponsors, manufacturers and track officials.

A separate rating system awarded points to mechanics in the Mechanic of the Year competition. The criteria for this award also included team performance and race results.

"Chickens Come First"

A former Perdue serviceman talks about chickens and growing for Perdue.

"I would give up everything, but I would keep my chickens. Our Perdue chicken houses are the only thing we can count on for a steady income and cash flow. If we didn't have chickens, we couldn't farm. In fact, we support ourselves so well with our chickens that farming has become a hobby.

"I approach raising chickens the same way I serviced them. I think the biggest thing about growing chickens is spending quality time in the houses. To me, having the proper ventilation and controlling your temperature is 75% of growing chickens. But this means day and night monitoring. The majority of chicken producers walk through their houses 6 times a day, but many don't step foot in the houses after dark. Those 12 hours are half your growing time. If your temperature slips off 15, 10 even 5 degrees, it can really affect your productivity. We keep our temperature alarms very tight and I get out of bed when the alarm rings, regardless to the time, to adjust the temperature.

"We have also implemented the changes Perdue has made over the years and have profited from our efforts. Over the past few years systems have changed, the number of flocks you get has changed, the age the birds go out has changed, the feed has changed, the ventilation, the houses themselves. Perdue makes these changes to upgrade their programs to stay out in front. People like us who have gone along with the changes have no regrets. It has saved us fuel, increased liveability, given us an easier environment to work in and has made us more profit.

"The income we make from chickens allows us to farm. We have 200 acres of corn, 130 acres of beans and 70 acres of wheat and barley.

"We also raise beef cattle and hogs. The income from our chickens lets us continue farming.

"As far as fertilizer costs go, a chicken producer can really get ahead of the game. Right now the chicken manure I take out of our houses saves us nearly $6,000 a year in fertilizer. We have 70 acres of pasture for our cows and have never used any fertilizer or nitrogen on them. On the 70 acres of wheat we use no spray, no fertilizer, no nitrogen—only chicken manure. Next year I'm going to do away completely with fertilizer because scientists now know exactly how much chicken manure we should use each year. There is no more guessing game.

"Finally, about Perdue. It's one company that really cares about producers. The servicemen come around, they work with you and encourage you to do your best. And they are flexible. When we first started out and were on our 7 year guarantee, we were able to get into the program that paid the best. We've been growing chickens with Perdue for 7½ years now and as I said before, I would give up everything, but I would keep my chickens."

For more information about Perdue's broiler program, return the coupon or call 301-543-3000 and talk chicken with Perdue.

Give yourself a raise-raisin' with Perdue.

I'd like to meet with a Perdue housing representative and talk chicken.
