

Harrington to soon accept bids on City Hall complex

by Colleen Lilly

The City of Harrington will soon be contracting out for bids for the proposed construction of the new city hall, library and police department complex.

Harrington has already received $83,128 in a grant from the Bicentennial Community Improvement Fund (BCIF) committee toward construction of the facility. In turn, Harrington must match the state's grant with an additional $83,128.

According to City Manager George Volenik, the BCIF committee is "anticipating they would get additional funds in March." Harrington is seeking an additional $33,000 from the state to complete the project. The additional $33,000 would be matched by the city through bank loans, as would the $83,128 Harrington already received. The total cost of the project is anticipated at approximately $232,000 in state and local money.

The BCIF committee is waiting for the state legislature to approve additional funding for statewide projects related to Bicentennial Improvements that enhance the community's cultural and historical heritage.

At Monday night's regular Harrington City Council meeting, which had been postponed from last Monday because of the snow, Mr. Volenik said the city originally queried four different contractors to get an estimate of the approximate cost of building the proposed facility.

According to Mr. Volenik, "the figures ranged from $110,000 to $185,000 for the structure itself."

"For grant purposes, we applied in toto for $250,000 in our preliminary application for funds. Subsequently, the bicentennial committee depleted some things from our plans," Mr. Volenik said.

Mr. Volenik said the city is now ready to go to bid and that already there are 10 interested contractors who have requested all bids be sent to them.

The city hopes to break ground on the project by the end of March, and as Harrington spends money on construction, the state pays it the funds from its grant.

Mr. Volenik said the committee does have the right to take away funding for the project if changes are made and it appears the city doesn't know what its doing.

"They have cautioned others not to disturb or jockey with their plans," he said.

The Harrington City Council passed a motion to accept the most recent $25,000 grant from the BCIF committee construction of the city hall complex. Mayor Harry G. Farrow, Jr. signed the acceptance forms for the grant which the city received in mid January.

Because the city will soon contract out for bids, Mr. Volenik said, "At this point, we now have a need to expend monies."

Among the expenditures will be the buying of the city hall plans at $15 a set, reproduction costs of the plans and the cost of a review by an engineer. The grant allots approximately $5,000 in engineering fees, but Mr. Volenik recommended the fees not exceed $1,000 at this point. The Council fully approved not spending any more than that.

Several citizens questioned the Council as to where funding to pay back the city loan for the city hall complex would come. Councilwoman Sue Ellen Dennis anticipated the funding to pay back the loan would come from the rent currently paid for the city hall building on Center Street and from the revenues the city will receive from Diamond Court Apartments.

According to Mr. Volenik, Harrington will be getting a loop in the city's water system this spring. He said the money should come from the state entirely. The city sewers may also be on the agenda for rehabilitation.

In other Council action, Tom Englehardt of the Planning and Zoning Committee gave the committee three recommendations on rezoning requests. When a request for a zoning change comes before the Council, the Council passes it on to the Planning and Zoning Committee for a recommendation; the committee in turn sends back a recommendation to the council who either approve or don't approve it. A public hearing is then held on the matter.

A rezoning request from St. Bernadette's Church on Liberty Street was made to change the current residential property adjacent to theirs into commercial property, contingent on whether the city buys the property for the proposed city hall complex. The Council approved the change from residential (R1) to commercial (C1) for St. Bernadette's.

The Council also approved the zoning request of the Eastern Petroleum Properties on the south side of Route 14. The change that was approved was a move to rezone the property from residential (R1) to an industrial manufacturing park (IMP).

Not approved by either the Planning and Zoning Committee or the Council was a request to rezone the properties at 224 and 226 Weiner Avenue from residential (R1) to residential (R2), which means to apartments. The change was denied since the homes in that area are mainly R1 zoned.

Council James Temple questioned the move and voted against the request to deny the change. Mr. Temple pointed out that denying the change might be disadvantageous to the city in the future. Especially if other home owners in the area decide to convert their homes into apartments, a move that would mean more revenue for the city.

Mr. Temple also pointed out that five homes in that area already have apartments in them. These homes, like the ones at 224 and 226 Weiner Avenue, were allowed to keep their R1 status because of a grandfather clause in the zoning regulations.

A public hearing on the zoning changes will be held at 7 p.m. March 9. The hearing will precede the normal Council meeting.

Harrington will be moving ahead with getting a warning system for its well fields. The Council approved a motion to allow Mr. Volenik to test the systems and chose one. The Council

Kent General to open addition; offer tours

Kent General Hospital will offer tours of its new Patient Care addition Monday through Wednesday, February 23, 24 and 25.

Tours will be conducted 1 to 8 p.m. Monday, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both Tuesday and Wednesday. The addition should be entered via the new entrance off the Patient/Visitor Parking area, where a tour guide will meet interested visitors.

Dennis E. Klima, Hospital President, said the $19.2 million addition culminates over two years of construction, and three earlier years of planning by Kent General's board of directors, management, employees and medical staff.

The four-level addition includes state-of-the-art special care units on the third floor, a family-centered obstetrics facility on the second, a new Medical/Surgical unit and meeting rooms on the ground-level, and a

Carper addresses area concerns at Felton town meeting

by Colleen Lilly

Support for an increased minimum wage and several environmental issues were among the concerns area residents brought to U.S. Congressman Tom Carper at Saturday's town meeting in Felton.

Mr. Carper, who spoke with residents in the Felton and Georgetown areas this past weekend and in Wilmington Monday, said, "My favorite way to communicate with people is town meetings."

One of Mr. Carper's younger constituents raised a question about whether Congress intended to change the current minimum wage which has stood at $3.35 per hour nationwide for the past six years.

Congressman Carper said Senator Edward Kennedy had been holding hearings on the possibility of a gradual increase in the minimum wage, first to $3.85 per hour and then to $4.35 per hour over a two year period.

The question of declining American competitiveness in the world markets seems to be a factor in any proposed wage increase, as well as, how the rate of inflation would be affected by such a change.

Mr. Carper said, "There is something to be said for competitiveness," but also added that industries paying minimum wage were not involved. The electronics industry which pays considerably higher than minimum is losing the battle against foreign competition.

An inflationary increase of almost one percent would initially be seen in economy, Mr. Carper said.

Among the problems currently seen with a minimum wage of $3.35 is an abuse of the welfare system. Mr. Carper said for some employees making an usual wage of $6,700, "It's just as easy to get aid, why go to work?"

Sludge and foul odors in County worry residents

by Colleen Lilly

Residents who turned out at the South Bowers fire hall last Thursday to learn more about the foul odors coming from the Kent County Waste Water Treatment Plant near Frederica heard more about area sludge and about how farmers are kept in the dark about its possible risks.

Sludge, the matter that's left over after being processed by the treatment plant, is given to farmers as an inexpensive substitute fertilizer.

J. Ross Harris Jr., an extension agent with the University of Delaware, told a group of more than 125 residents sludge contained nutrients, metals, organic matter and pathogens.

The problem with the sludge remains with what is actually in it and how Kent County should deal with it.

"The key is to find safe and sound methods to handle it," Mr. Ross said.

"We are all part of the problem. The question is what do we do with it? There are only three places to put it, in the air, in the water or on the ground," Ross said.

The Kent County plant produces 15 tons of sludge per day, according to Kenneth L. Eckard Sr., wastewater facilities manager at the plant. He said the average application rate per farm is two and a half tons of sludge containing 75 pounds of nitrogen.

Jack Peterman, spokesman for the Clean Air Committee which organized the public meeting, said part of the problem with sludge being spread on farm land is the land should not be used for growing vegetables.

Mr. Peterman said companies, such as Campbell's and Del Monte, will not accept vegetables grown on soil that has contained sludge.

"I'm not for or against people putting sludge on their land. People renting have no right to have it put on your ground. Somebody should give you all the ups and downs before you decide," Mr. Peterman said.

Michael H. McGrath, a Delaware Department of Agriculture representative, worked on a committee that drafted a set of guidelines for sludge disposal in 1985.

The Solid Waste Advisory Committee's guidelines included testing procedures for the waste, analyses of plant tissues and plans to inform farmers of what's in the sludge they put on their land.

"After two years, no action to date has been taken regarding them (the guidelines)," said Mr. McGrath. Bob Zimmerman of the water resources division of the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control (DNREC) said the regulations weren't put in place at the decision of John E. Wilson III, secretary of the DNREC.

Mr. McGrath said Mr. Wilson has now decided to rewrite the regulations the committee had put together. "The public should question this move," he said.

Currently, Delaware has a moratorium on getting permits for new sludge sites. Permits already existing were extended, providing no problems existed with the sites. The moratorium will remain in effect until next fall.

"Delaware farmers are experienced and competent enough to make their own decisions. We need to put those regulations in place," Mr. McGrath said.

"These guidelines would protect us. There's nothing outlandish in them," said Mr. Peterman.

Mr. Zimmerman said part of the reason the guidelines developed weren't acted on came from a change in who administers the program. "Solid waste regulations didn't adequately cover sludge," he said.

Sludge, which had been covered under the solid waste regulations in the Division of Air and Waste Management of the DNREC, was moved to the water resources division for coverage.

Mr. Zimmerman said that "there were problems with implementation" of the suggested guidelines. "One key factor was resources. We did not have those resources," he said.

In addition to not having the money or manpower available for the guidelines, Mr. Zimmerman said another problem with the proposed regulations was the "practicality of some of the requirements."

"In sum total, the secretary decided to redraft those regulations," Mr. Zimmerman said.

While an advisory committee including members of the Department of Agriculture and the Solid Waste Authority were part of the original document drafting, the DNREC will be drafting the new regulations concerning sludge spreading and disposal.

Mr. Zimmerman said agencies outside

Lake Forest School Board to petition Levy Court

by Mike Dill

The Lake Forest School Board in an attempt to bring tax revenue to the school district, will be petitioning the Kent County Levy Court to bring industrial development to the district. The reason for the petition is the zoning set up by the county's Land Use Plan that has the middle part of Kent County, the Lake Forest School District, as agricultural and recreational land.

School board President H. Earl Roberts feels that there should be a balance between agriculture and industry in the district. "I believe that there should be a balance between agriculture and industry in our school district. I also do not think that we (the school district) should be excluded from development in the county," said Roberts.

Roberts stated that most of the industry in the county is in northern Kent County and in the Milford area. Roberts also cited that there is a sewage trunk line running from Felton to Frederica that could encourage industrial growth in the district.

Industrial growth in the district would mean more tax dollars for the school district. So in an effort to bring industry to the district, the school board will draft a letter to send to Levy

Court in an attempt to have the zoning changed. The letter will be drawn up at the next workshop.

Another issue the board dealt with is the sixth grade problem between Lake Forest North and Lake Forest East Elementary Schools. Currently there are Frederica area students attending North Elementary in Felton. By keeping this year's fifth graders at East Elementary, crowding at North Elementary should decrease. The school board stated that this decision is well supported by the Frederica townspeople.

The issue of students, especially high modern food services department below ground-level. A sheltered patient drop-off entrance is now on the State Street side, leading to a lobby.

Kent General will name its new health education and conference rooms the General Foods Conference Center, and its new obstetrics department will be named the Playtex Family Centered Birthing Suite, to honor the two local corporations for major financial donations to the building fund.

Approximately $2 million of the building costs were raised through the Campaign for Special Care, administered by the Kent General Foundation. Financing of the balance was arranged through the Delaware Health Facilities Authority through tax-exempt bonds. Total projects costs include nearly $2 million in major movable equipment and approximately $500 thousand in renovations of existing facilities. Current Maternity, Special Care and Dietary departments, approximately 27 years old, will be renovated and converted for use by expanding service departments. One of the designated renovations, involving the Junior Board Gift Shop and Snackbar, is scheduled for completion in time for the tour days.

Construction involved 11 major contractors, with McCarthy of St. Louis, Missouri as the construction manager. The other 10 are of Delaware, Maryland, and Pennsylvania. They are J. Roland Dashiell & Sons of Salisbury, Md.; Allen Tyler of Cambridge, Md.; J & W Electric of Dover; Joseph T. Richardson of Harrington; Charles Shaid of Philadelphia; W.B. Venables of Laurel; Delmarva Acoustical of Salisbury, Md.; Commercial Flooring of Montgomeryville, Pa.; Marble Craft of Wilmington; Essbar Kitchen Equipment of Wilmington; and General Elevator of Salisbury, Md.

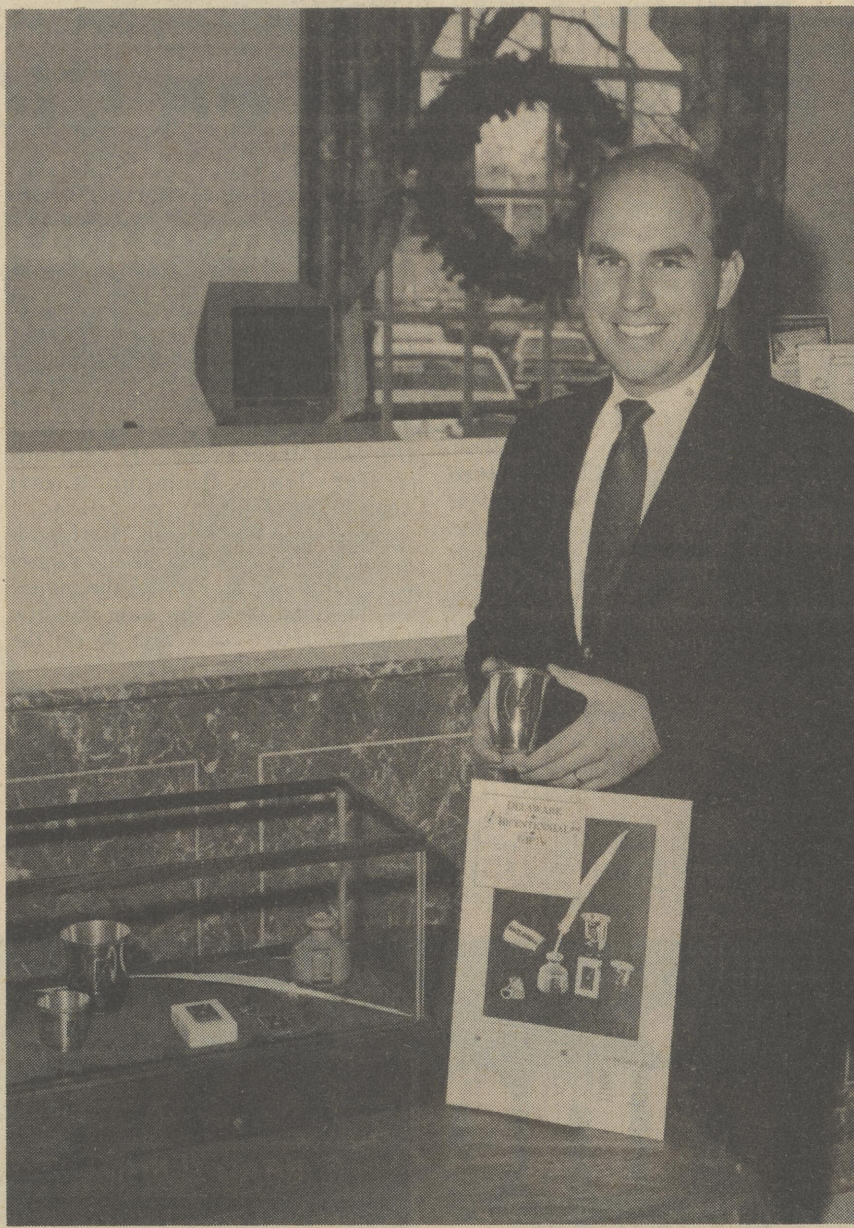

These 11, along with several minor contractors, have employed many area residents in all phases of the construction.

Coordinating with the general contractor for the Hospital are Terry V. Feinour, Senior Assistant Administrator, and Michael H. Karolczak, Director of Plant Operations. Special Projects Coordinator Charles H. Meredith is responsible for furnishings and equipment, and Infection Control Coordinator Vera M. Svitich is acting as Relocation Coordinator.

Three patient care departments, along with the Central Supply department, will relocate in the coming weeks. Dietary Department moved into its new quarters during December and began serving employee meals in the new dining room. Visitors will again be invited to use the new cafeteria when the addition is occupied.

A Building Opening Task Force, appointed by Mr. Klima and headed by Mr. Feinour, has planned the tour days and formal dedication activities. Task Force members are Senior Assistant Administrator Victor Ribaud; Assistant Administrator for Nursing Services Barbara Santucci R.N.; Director of Development H. Newton Hudson; Director of Planning and Marketing Paul E. Lakeman; and Director of Communications Dolores Solberg. Planning also involved community board members Hazel Carlson, Bruce Tobey, Douglas Bennetti, Eleanor Condy, Gregg Hammer, D.V.M.; James B. McClements, M.D.; and Mary Jane Willis.

For further information on the open tours, or to schedule a group tour, contact the Hospital's Communications/Public Relations office at 674-7013.

Kent Sussex Industries to offer Bicentennial gifts

During the bicentennial year, the Bank of Delaware will be host to a very unique exhibit. In select branch offices throughout the state a handsome line of commemorative bicentennial gifts is on display. This limited edition series has been endorsed by the Delaware Heritage Commission, and is available exclusively through Kent-Sussex Industries (KSI), a non-profit, vocational rehabilitation facility in Milford.

The line includes a set of eight ounce pewter cups, two ounce pewter cup, ornamental inkwell and quill pen set, marble paperweight, and pewter keychain. Each item carries the official Delaware Bicentennial logo.

The items are not for sale in the Bank of Delaware, but KSI has order forms available in all branch locations. These gifts will be available during the entire bicentennial year.

In other news: Dr. Vansciver is looking into the possibility of a golf team coming to the high school.

The school board denied a request by the Delaware State Fair for a tax exemption. The taxes paid by the fair each year is $400.

The board approved guidelines to financially assist students on school related trips.

The board set the date for school board elections for Tuesday, May 12, 1987 at Lake Forest North Elementary, Lake Forest East Elementary, and W.T. Chipman School.

The board also approved the district secretary for personnel work, a permanent position.

W.T. Chipman student in honor band

On February 7, auditions for the Delaware All-State Junior High Band were held in Middletown. The best 7th, 8th, and 9th grade band members from throughout the state competed to earn a place in this prestigious ensemble. On February 11, the audition results were received by W.T. Chipman Band Director, Brent Pandel. The All-State Committee selected Chipman band member, Danny Voshell, as a snare drummer in the eight member percussion section of this year's All-State Band.

Lake Forest students to spend ten days in Europe

On April fifteenth, a lucky group of Lake Forest students, teachers, and parents will be on their way to Europe for ten days. The group will be led by Mr. James Boyd, who has taken many groups to Europe in the past as French teacher at Lake Forest High School. Now as the Guidance Counselor at Chipman, he plans to do it again! The adult travelers are: his wife, Victoria Boyd (science teacher at Lake Forest High School), Tim Young (social studies teacher at Chipman), Gal Vogelien, Bill and Linda Braswell, Charlyne Hughes, and Betty Jane Cahall. The student travelers, all French students at Lake Forest, are: Ginny Crouch, Gidget Smith, Bill Hill, Rodney Collins, Jeff Williams, Carol Cahall, Tonya Braswell, Earle Dempsey, Kate Vogelien and Tracy Hughes.

The group will be spending a total of 10 days in Europe. After an overnight flight to London, they will be treated to a complete city tour of London with visits to such famous sites as St. Paul's Cathedral, the Houses of Parliament, Big Ben, Westminster Abbey, and Buckingham Palace. A day excursion is planned into Shakespeare country. Stratford-upon-Avon, Shakespeare's birthplace, will be visited, as well as Oxford.

After a couple of days in England, they will cross the English Channel to France. They will visit the Mont St. Michel, the famous medieval abbey built on a rock in the English Channel. On the way to Paris, several castles will be toured as the group swings through the Loire Valley. The travelers will end the trip with three days in Paris. Here, they will visit the Eiffel Tower, the Louvre, Notre Dame Cathedral, and certainly check out a Paris sidewalk cafe! A trip to Versailles, the 17th century royal palace of Louis XIV is also on the busy itinerary.

Assuming the trip will be as successful as past ones have been, the lucky travelers will return home tired, but with a set of memories which will always stay with them.

Jaworski re-sets for LF meeting

Ron Jaworski, quarterback of the Philadelphia Eagles, was scheduled to appear at the February 2, 1987 meeting of the Lake Forest Board of Education. Due to a skiing accident, he was not able to appear.

He will be present at the April 13, 1987 meeting at Lake Forest High School's auditorium beginning at 6:30 p.m. He will discuss a new and innovative program, Beyond Athletics, which is designed to assist the athlete through the transition to dealing with non-athletic experiences.

The public is welcome.

Harrington to soon accept bids will go on Mr. Volenik's recommendation.

Three companies in the Dover area sent the city bids on their systems. Mr. Volenik said the bids from Dover Radio and Talbot Communications were "literally the same." He will be testing the effectiveness of both systems, which have an approximate start up cost of $649 and monthly charges of $17.

The warning systems would allow the city to be alerted about low water pressure in the system.

The Council also approved the annexation of 42 acres of land which will now become part of the city. At the request of William Simpson and the Delaware Development Office, the William Simpson property will become part of the city.

Mr. Volenik would not say who has bought the land, but did say the city can anticipate a request to put a 150 foot building in the space known as the William Simpson farm. Once plans are solidified in Dover Friday, Mr. Volenik said he'll release the information.

Fourth Annual Career Fair at Dover Mall

Kent Countians will have an opportunity to see first hand, the quality of the vocational technical programs being offered to students from the five high schools in Kent County.

A career fair will be held at the Dover Mall, Saturday and Sunday, February 21 and 22. Hours: on Saturday will be from 10:00 a.m. until 9:00 p.m. and on Sunday from 12 noon until 5:00 p.m.

Featured at the Career Fair will be demonstrations, exhibits and prizes. Students will explain and demonstrate the tools, equipment and materials they use in their preparation for the World of Work. This is an opportunity to learn how Vocational Education can prepare todays young people to be more useful productive contributing members of the world in which we and they live.

In addition to Kent County Vocational Technical Schools, others participating in the Career Fair are: the United States Army, Delaware State College, Delaware Technical & Community College, Wesley College, and Wilmington College. Come to the Fair at the Dover Mall, Saturday, February 21st and Sunday, February 22nd.

"This Is Where The Real Good Money Is"

An experienced chicken producer talks about the benefits of Perdue.

"At least twice each year I'm approached by other companies wanting me to switch. I always turn them down because I have no reason to switch companies. I'm perfectly satisfied with Perdue and with the money I'm making.

"I have found by listening to Perdue's suggestions and implementing their ideas, I make more money. If anybody can find a better way to grow chickens, it's Perdue. And, I feel that with Perdue, whatever you spend to make improvements or changes pays off in the long run. I've always been in the top three producers since I've been with Perdue—and that's where the real good money is.

"I've been growing chickens for more than 18 years. When I started we did everything by hand. Now with all the automated systems and the new dry drinkers, I spend no more time in my 5 houses than I used to spend in one. And, Perdue has helped us every step of the way including putting chickens back in the houses for us with every new flock.

"The move I made to Perdue five years ago was one of the better moves I have ever made. As I said, I'm perfectly satisfied."

For complete details on the Perdue broiler program send in the coupon or call 301-543-3000 and talk chicken with Perdue.

Sunday Worship service at Houston United Methodist Church 9:30 a.m. Sunday School for all ages immediately following the service 10:30 a.m. Rev. William Dore, minister.

Last Sunday's message was "Close Enough To Touch". The Youth Choir sang a song with some solo parts. The Senior Choir sang "Great Is The Lord". Michael Abbate celebrated his birthday on Wednesday. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Abbate entertained family members for ice cream and cake to celebrate.

Mrs. Edna Sapp entertained family members for dinner on Sunday.

Mr. Andrew Simpson of Charleston, West Va. was the weekend guest of Mrs. Ella Simpson.

Congratulations to David Lee Moore and Mark Allen Dufendach for making the Dean's List at the University of Delaware. Fall semester.

On Wednesday evening fifteen members of Houston Church attended the Venison dinner served by the Methodist Men of Houston and Asbury Church. It was held at Asbury Church. It was very delicious. Following the dinner we had a hymn sing.

On Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mitchell and Roberta enjoyed Children's Night at the Colony Inn with a nice dinner and a visit from Tulip the Clown. On Saturday morning Roberta entertained her parents at a dance observation class at Dance Dimensions of Milford, where she is a student.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Towers attended the Anniversary luncheon of The Captain Jonathan Caldwell Chapter of the D.A.R. on Saturday. It was held at Geyer's Restaurant. On Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Towers were entertained at dinner at the Sail Loft by their son and family, Dr. and Mrs. Wesley Towers and Laura and David. The occasion was to celebrate Harry's birthday.

Next Saturday, February 21, the chicken salad, noodle soup and hot rolls bake will be held by the Auxiliary of the Houston Fire Co. Do plan to come to buy the goodies we will have.

Wedding Bells

Candace and Robin Chambers

Murphy - Cahmbers wed

Candace Marie Murphy and Robin Edward Chambers were united in marriage on November 15, 1986, at 6:30 p.m. at Wesley United Methodist Church in Dover. Rev. Alvin J. Willink and Rev. George C. Godfrey officiated the double ring ceremony. The parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Murphy and the parents of the groom are Mrs. Harriett B. Chambers and the late William A. Chambers. The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Mary A. Clark of Harrington and the groom is the grandson of Mrs. Clara C. Judy of Harrington.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore her mother's Victorian style wedding gown made of chantilly lace. The full-tiered skirt flowed from a dropped waistline into sheer chantilly lace cathedral length train. The bride wore a matching cathedral length veil adorned with silk roses which was made by the groom's mother. She carried the groom's family Bible which was adorned with a cascade of silk miniature red and white roses, lilies, plumosa fern, and baby's breath.

The matron of honor was Karen F. McNatt, sister of the bride of Pensacola, Florida. She wore an Eve of Milady red and white satin gown and carried long-stemmed white roses.

The bridesmaids were Denise M. McNelis, friend of the bride of Ocean, New Jersey; Shawn L. Edwards, sister of the groom of Dover; and Susan Eliason, friend of the bride of Dover. They wore matching red satin gowns and carried long-stemmed white roses.

The flowergirls were Elizabeth N. Book of Dover and Jenna R. Kohland of Milford. They wore white taffeta tiered dresses trimmed in red satin ribbon and carried white baskets with miniature red and white roses, carnations, and baby's breath.

The groom wore a black tuxedo accented with a black bow tie and cummerbund. The best man was Raymond F. Book, III, friend of the groom of Dover. The groomsmen were Randy R. Chambers, brother of the groom of Dover; Paul P. Edwards, brother-in-law of the groom of Dover; and Scott R. Brown, friend of the groom of Canterbury. They wore black tuxedos accented with a red bow tie and cummerbund.

The guestbook attendant was Debbie Franceschini of Wilmington. The soloist was Connie Jamieson and the organist was George F. Wiltshire, both of Dover. The wedding coordinator and florist was Wendy Aycoth of Felton.

The reception was held at Maple Dale County Club and the music was provided by Alex Vaughan.

The bride and groom honeymooned in Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

The bride is employed with the State Auditor's Office, State of Delaware. The groom is a certified public accountant and a partner with the firm of Eikenberry, Lank & Co. in Milford.

The bride and groom are residing in Dover.

New Century News

The Harrington New Century Club met on February 12, 1987 at 9 a.m. for their annual Prayer Breakfast. Rev. William Dore from Asbury Methodist Church gave the Blessing.

We had fourteen members from the Avon Club of Felton as our guests. Also present were Representative Robert Quillen and Mayor of Harrington, Mr. Harry Farrow.

After the breakfast, Rev. William Dore gave a Biblical reading and message of women in Biblical times and today. His special message was enjoyed by all.

Following the message, Mayor Harry Farrow read The Proclamation of The General Federation of Women, declaring April 24, Federation Day. Representative Robert Quillen presented our President, Mrs. Gardner Kersey with a new Delaware State Flag for our club house.

After the Prayer Breakfast, a business meeting was held. Our next meeting will be Thursday, March 12 with Mrs. Clarence Carlisle, Chairman. Home Life, will be giving a program on Arthritis.

Don't forget our Fashion Show on April 1, and our Reciprocity Tea on April 23.

The Delaware Theatre Company to present "The Middle Ages"

A.R. Gurney Jr.'s comedy, The Middle Ages will preview at the Delaware Theatre Company, on February 19 and 20 and will open on February 21.

The Middle Ages, one of Gurney's most hilarious comedies, takes place in the stuffy trophy room of a men's club "where half the fun is keeping people out." In a series of short scenes, taking place from the mid-40's to the late 70's, the play portrays Barney Rusher's rebellious coming of age and his struggle to avoid being locked into the life-style of his White, Anglo-Saxon Protestant social class.

John Abajian is playing the part of Barney, the irreverent son. Eleanor, the love of Barney's life, is being portrayed by Kay Walbye. Richard Voigts will play the part of Charles, Barney's conservative father. Myra, Eleanor's

SENIOR CITIZEN ALERT

Here are two questions that have been asked concerning Medicare supplement plans.

Will my Medicare supplement plan cover medical expenses that are more than the amount approved by Medicare? No, unless they have a DOLLAR stop loss clause that guarantees the most you will be responsible for. BEWARE OF PLANS THAT SAY: IF THE DOCTOR DOES NOT ACCEPT THE MEDICARE APPROVED AMOUNT THE PATIENT IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE DIFFERENCE!!!

What areas are not covered by Medicare and Medicare supplements? Normal nursing home care is not covered by Medicare or any Medicare supplement plan.

If you have any questions stop by the office or give us a call, No obligation of course.

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church

On Tuesday, March 3, from 5 to 7, the parishioners of St. Stephen's Church will serve their annual Shrove Tuesday Pancake Supper. The public is cordially invited. Tickets may be purchased from members of St. Stephen's or at the door.

Shrove Tuesday, Fat Tuesday, Mardi Gras, or Pancake Day, falls this year on March 3rd. Pancake Day is a centuries-old traditional holiday. Even older than Pancake Day are the pancakes for which it is famous and the reminder that this is the last day of feasting before the Lenten fast begins.

The pancake was the first known form of cooked bread. People in the neolithic age created a food which was destined to be a world favorite. They made on their hot stone "griddles" the world's first pancakes from ground wheat and corn. Our ancestors discovered that this moistened ground grain baked on stones made a delicious meal. Pancakes delight the people of the world to this day.

It wasn't until 461 A.D. that fasting during the Lenten season was practiced widely. In that year, St. Leo decreed that Christmas should "fulfill with their fast the apostolic institution of the forty days". St. Leo (known as "the Great") took interest in the affairs of all parts of the church. He was the one who persuaded Attila, the Hun, to spare Rome. After Leo's decree, the custom of fasting during Lent spread rapidly. Its annual observance was ordered by the church in the ninth century. Pancake Day, as we know it today, originated in the year 1000. At that time, an English abbot, Aelfric, set forth the proclamation that "in the week immediately before Lent, everyone should go to his confessor and confess his deeds, and the confessor shall so shrive him as he may then hear by his deeds what he is to do." This proclamation by the Abbot resulted in wide observance of "Shrove Tuesday", which soon became, in addition to a time for confessing sins, a day of merrymaking in many parts of the world. Shrove Tuesday soon became known as Pancake Day. In old England, housewives flocked to churches on the Tuesday before Ash Wednesday to be "shriven" or absolved of their sins. At the tolling of the bell in the morning, it was customary for the housewife to drop whatever she was doing and hurry to confession. Since this was also the day for feasting and eating pancakes in the small towns, these holiday cakes soon became known as "shriving cakes" because they were made on the day the people were "shriven" of their sins.

These early pancakes were made of four symbolic ingredients: eggs for Lenten sacredness; flour for the staff of life; salt for wholesomeness and milk for innocence. The English cooks made their pancakes according to this formula. These ingredients will be included in the recipe for the pancakes at St. Stephen's this year. The community is cordially invited to join us for this annual event.

The Lake Forest Community Swim Team

Lake Forest Community Swim Team has action-packed weekend

by David Hartzel

The weekend of February 6, 7, and 8 brought plenty of action to the Lake Forest Community Swim Team. On Friday night the hosting Lake Forest team handed a 307-129 defeat to the Shomen Swim Team from Chestertown, MD. The Lake Forest team set four new pool records. Joel Burbank set a new record in the boys 13 and over 50m breaststroke. The 10 and under boys set two new marks in the 100 medley relay (Wes Wood, Scott Blades, J.J. Soriano, John Reeve) and the 100m freestyle relay (Wes Wood, Brian McCloskey, Billy Killen, Scott Blades). The twelve and under boys team of Jason Dean, John Chambers, T.J. Soriano, and David Moyes finished the record breaking with a new mark in the 100m medley relay. Double winners for Lake Forest were Kelly Rawding, Ann Hollister, Wesley Wood, Angie Mason, T.J. Soriano, and Amy Draper. Single winners were Alyss Lange, Michael Crockett, Devon Borgia, Jason Monroe, Maggie Mason, David Hartzel, Rebecca Griffith, John Chambers, Nick Drauschak, Scott Blades, Brad Maynes, Elizabeth McCarron, and Jill Schrock.

Friday's swim meet with Shomen proved to be a good warmup for Lake Forest. On Sunday, February 8th, the New Wave Team traveled to Widner College to participate in the Pioneer Swim League II Championships. Coach Dennis Davis was quite pleased with his team's showing. Many of his swimmers finished among the award winning positions. Results were as follows:

8 and Under Boys

Success in big city for country boy, Walt Callahan

Walter Callahan has spent half of his life working at a career that he learned from his elementary school bus driver.

That bus driver trained standardbred horses and encouraged the youngster to work with him after school. At the age of 17, Callahan began his own stable with a $500 purchase he shared with his father.

"Her name was Dream of Susan and she was a cheap mare, but we won races with her down at Harrington, Georgetown and Ocean Downs", said the 36-year old bearded trainer. "I moved up in the world a little when I started with a few more at Freestate and Rosecroft in Maryland.

"Since the Meadowlands opened, I'd ship three or four up during the winter for a few races but never had the stock good enough to stable up here," Callahan said. "This year, I'm up here with nine horses and we'll stay until we can't make any more money."

Callahan works mainly with claimers and admits to rarely spending more than $20,000 on a horse.

"I'm not a big money person and neither are my owners," said the trainer. "Actually, I've gotten burned on my two 'expensive' horses."

"I bought one pacer from New Zealand for $20,000 and did absolutely no good with him. Then this guy calls me about another horse for sale at $30,000. I said, 'I just lost money on a horse from New Zealand, why do I want to buy another more expensive one?' said Callahan. "The guy said, 'Well this one's better--he's from Australia.'"

"So I talked it over with my wife and discussed it again with some owners and decided to buy him--lost money on him, too," said Callahan.

With his small stable at the Meadowlands and a few babies and layoffs on the farm in Maryland, Callahan still wanted to break into catch-driving during the current meet. "I had been driving at the smaller tracks like Dover Downs," said Callahan. "In 1985, I won my 1,500th race as a driver but it is a little tougher up here."

"I've known Bill O'Donnell and John Campbell for years and I'll tell you, there's a big difference competing with them," Callahan said. "They get out there and they are smart about what they do, they don't just go out there and go as fast as they can, like some of the drivers that aren't so seasoned or successful. It's great to be out there with them--totally professional."

When Callahan left Dover Downs the day after Christmas to ship his stable to the Meadowlands, he was leading driver at the small track. He's only won three races from 39 drives since then, but will not give up.

"The money is too good here to pass up," said Callahan. "And besides that, the management is great. It is a lot different up here than down on the farm where I live, where the nearest store is 4 or 5 miles down the road and it is a country life, but I'll stick it out up here as long as I can make some money."

In the Pocket

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr.

Saturday at Hawthorne in the Suburban Downs Pacing Derby worth $60,800 it was Ritmo with Dave Magee doing the driving, winning in 1:56.3 over Joss and Be My Choice. Bronze Hill was fourth and Stensive was 5th. In the race a unique racing incident took place. Charge Plate, who was the favorite, driven by Randy Jacobs, had the right line break shortly after leaving the gate. In the process the bit also broke in two (parts). Jacobs lost control of Charge Plate. Doug Larsen who was driving Stensive reached over and grabbed the left rein as they went through the clubhouse turn. Mid-way up the backstretch, Jacobs recovered and vaulted from the sulky to the back of Charge Plate bringing him under control. Larsen's efforts prevented a possible bad accident. Larsen, after helping Jacobs took off after the field, caught them and took over the lead but faded in the stretch to finish 5th.

The final in the Acquirious was held on Saturday at The Meadowlands worth $51,500 which went to Keystate Hanover in 1:56.3 with Ray Remmen doing the driving over Southern Gentle man and Awesome Hanover.

There was an Invitational Pace at The Meadowlands on Saturday worth $35,000 won by Pershing Square with Ray Remmen driving in 1:55.2 over American Freedom and Jonny A. Heritage.

Monday at The Meadowlands in the Su Mac Lad 3rd leg worth $30,000, it was Manfred Hanover with Mary Jordan winning in 1:58 over Franconia and Dick's Bell. The later had won the previous two legs.

Emory leads Bucs past Spartans

by Mike Dill

Milford High School's senior center Andrew Emory scored 28 points, ripped 12 rebounds, and blocked six shots to lead the Bucs to a 74-49 victory over Lake Forest.

The 6'9" Emory, the tallest player in the Henlopen Conference and bound for William and Mary College, dominated the entire game by altering shots and dishing off excellent passes.

The 6-6 Bucs jumped out to a 40-21 halftime lead and the Spartans could not close the gap.

Chuck Bell led the 1-10 Spartans with 12 points and James Tiggs had 11. James Hicks had eight points and Steve Sipple added five.

Milford girls nip Spartans

by Mike Dill

The Lake Forest girls' basketball team rallied from 12 points down late in the game, but Milford hung on for a 53-51 victory.

The Spartans trailed 52-40 with three minutes left in the game and turned loose full court pressure to pull to 52-51. Milford's Connie Johnson was fouled and put on the line with a chance to ice the victory.

Johnson could only make one of the shots, giving the Spartans a chance to tie with seven seconds left. Unfortunately, the Spartans could not get a shot off before the final buzzer.

Tara Dixon had a game high 16 points for the Spartans, including 10 in the final quarter when the Spartans had their 11 point run. Melanie Pelton had 10 points and Arlene May added eight points for the 9-3 Spartans.

A salute to small racetracks like Harrington Raceway

Special to The Harrington Journal

by Jerry Connors

It's no secret that harness racing is suffering in certain areas. Several tracks have announced that they will not sponsor harness racing in 1987, and several others are "on the fence" about hosting the sulky sport this year.

Some have speculated that the future of harness racing lies at the biggest tracks, near the metropolitan centers--New York, Chicago, Detroit, Toronto, and so forth. These places have a big enough population base to generate dollars in admission and concession revenues, in addition to their large wagering totals, and they also can serve as "simulcast host" tracks, sending first-class racing to smaller communities.

That scenario has its merits, but it ignores one basic truth--the major leagues of harness racing depend upon the smaller tracks, such as Harrington Raceway, to develop the stars of the sport's fast lane.

Very few harness horses and horsemen are "born" stars. Most of the top-level competitors in racing are born with great potential, but it is potential that needs seasoning against raceway competition. Ask a horseman about prepping a horse with no chance to be a star in the baby races at the big tracks, and you're likely to hear about the number of youngsters that "crashed" along the way.

One very prominent recent example of the need for smaller raceways as training grounds for young horses is the pacing mare Sales Girl, sold recently at The Meadowlands for $275,000. Sales Girl made her racing debut at Harrington Raceway on September 17, 1985, winning in 2:08.1. She raced for only $960 that night, and probably didn't compete against any stars (past, present, or future), but that race was undoubtedly an important part of her racing education. She would go on to race several more times as a two-year-old at Harrington.

On September 25, 1986, at the famed Red Mile in Lexington, all the talk was about Anniacrombie, and how she looked awfully tough in the $73,210 Bluegrass three-year-old filly pace that day. But who came back to the winner's circle? None other than Sales Girl, who started her racing career at Harrington. Her winning times at Lexington? 1:53.4 out, back in 1:54.1.

The record books show several other recent examples. Whit It Wood used perhaps the greatest mile in the history of Harrington Raceway--a 1:59.1 qualifier, by a trotter--as a springboard to the free-for-all ranks at The Meadowlands and New York. And of course Harrington's own Trotting Queen, Perfect Beauty, used the fairgrounds oval as a base for her racetrack exploits.

The "small track development" phenomenon is not, of course, limited to just horses. Driving Sales Girl to victory that day at Lexington was a lefthander from nearby Smyrna, Eddie Davis, who has won over 4,000 races, led the standings many times at Brandywine, Liberty Bell, and Dover Downs, and is currently among the leaders at The Meadowlands. Where did Eddie Davis drive his first race? That's right--Harrington Raceway.

One could go on and on, listing horses and horsemen (and for that matter, officials) who have gotten their education at Harrington. And then multiply Harrington by Dresden, and Sydney, and Lebanon, and Bangor, and a host of so-called "small tracks." The influence is tremendous, and will continue to remain so.

It's plain to see that there will always be a place--a very important place--in harness racing for the smaller harness racing ovals.

"Awesome Bill" takes the Great American Race

by Bonnie Algier-Mitchell
 "Gentlemen, Start your engines!"
 What excitement those guys behind the wheels of 1987's entrants in NASCAR's Daytona 500 must have been feeling as they did just that.

It seemed to be a safe race, with only 4 cautions for 15 laps during the race. This is hard to believe with speeds of 200 mph being turned by lap 10. No one was prepared for these speeds. Some cars were also not prepared for the overcast, cool weather either.

Darrell Waltrip's #17 TIDE Chevrolet was one that was set up to run a sunny, hotter track, and with the clouds the cool track was not as slick, making the car "run tight", according to his crew chief.

This years race was one they said took a driver with skill, due to the speeds, which changed drafting cars considerably.

Ten years ago a driver could get a good draft from 200 yards back, now the air pull is about 75 yards, so the driver had to drive the race more and was not able to depend on the draft so much.

The driver with that skill was "Awesome Bill", Bill Elliott in the #9 Coors/Melling Thunderbird, taking the checkered with an average speed of 176.263 mph. It was the second fastest Daytona race and took a record purse of $204,150.

Geoff Bodine, defending champ, in his Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, lost the race with only 3 laps to go. His car ran out of gas. Bodine said around lap 155, "It's worth a shot", as he and his crew decided not to pit, hoping to draft, and hoping the fuel would hold out. It didn't.

Elliott ran the race with little work being done to his car. At about lap 115 he pitted and his crew changed his right tires and made adjustments to the right rear chassis.

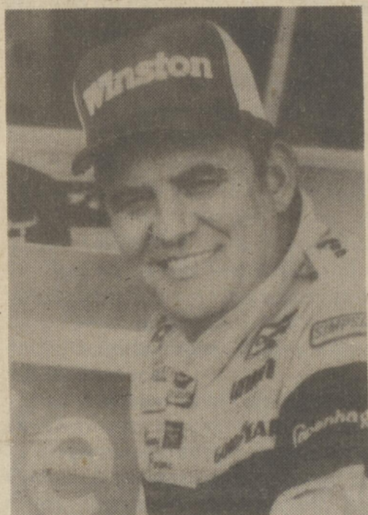

Later in the race his chassis was loose and he got just what he was waiting for, a yellow flag. His crew got him in and out in a matter of seconds.

Elliott, who doesn't usually show much emotion, was waving proudly as he climbed out of his car. "The crew did it", Elliott said. "We were out front when it counted."

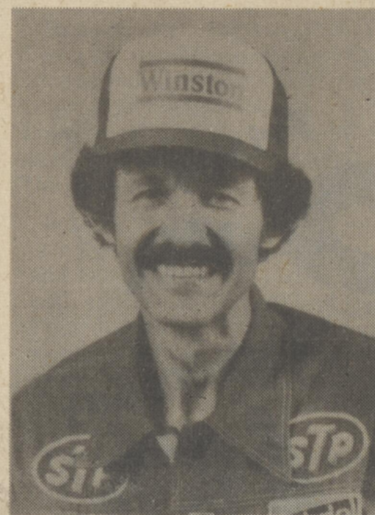

Finishing in second was Benny Parsons, who was only trailing by six seconds, and third was Richard Petty.

Results of the race are as follows:

- DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Results Sunday at the Daytona 500 NASCAR stock car race, with type of car, laps completed, money won, reason out, if any, and winner's average speed in mph:

Danny Johnson picks up second Volusia win

BARBERVILLE, FL... "Dangerous Dan the stock car man", Danny Johnson scores his 2nd win of the week at Volusia County Speedway on Wednesday night. The victory came on the third night of the DIRT Modified Winter Tour.

The race was a real dog fight between the top two point getters, Johnson and defending series champ Jimmy Horton. Horton held the top spot for the first 4 laps before Johnson got by him on the outside to gain the lead. But Horton never gave up to race tight together for the remainder of the 30 lap event.

By the 16th lap the top five consisted of D. Johnson, Horton, J. Johnson, Chuck McKee and K. Brightbill. They remained that way until the 25th circuit when Brightbill ran into problems in the Blue Hen Racing #30 and was forced to retire. That moved a strong running Davey Wenger into the top 5.

McKee, in his best showing of the week, kept the heat on the #12A of Johnson. McKee, in the #19 moved by Johnson with 2 laps to go to take over the 3rd position.

Meanwhile the battle was hot and heavy between Horton and Danny Johnson for the lead. Horton pressured Johnson relentlessly lap after lap, trying to get by him on the inside and outside. Johnson however was up to the challenge and continuously fought him off. On the final lap, Horton got a wheel underneath but Johnson shut the door and went on to the win in his #27. Horton settled for 2nd and McKee an impressive 3rd, Jack Johnson 4th and Wenger a solid 5th.

Billy Pauch, Billy Schinkel, Doug Hoffman, Toby Tobias, Jr., and Bobby Wilkins rounded out the top ten.

FLORIDA NOTES...The Johnson win puts him on top of the point standings over Horton.

WYUS 930AM will broadcast the following race: February 22, Miller 400 from Richmond Fairgrounds Raceway 12:45-4:45 p.m.

Danny Johnson takes opening night honors at Volusia County

BARBERVILLE, FL... Danny Johnson put the Fingerlakes Livestock #27J into victory lane on the opening night of the CLM Lubricants DIRT Modified Winter Tour at Volusia County Speedway. It was Johnson's 1st win at the Florida speedplant.

Jack Johnson was the race's early leader in the #12A. Johnson jumped in front from his outside pole starting position and had a fierce battle with Danny. The two were side by side for several laps before Danny slipped by.

The next man to mount an attack was Jimmy Horton. Horton moved into second on lap six with Pennsylvania "Hotshoe" Kenny Brightbill close behind. Horton and Brightbill went at it lap after lap until lap 10 when Brightbill moved around the outside to take over second and set his sights on Danny Johnson.

While those two battled for second, Johnson opened a slight lead over the pack. Meanwhile the man on the move was Bill "The Kid" Pauch in the #126. Pauch had moved from 17th to 5th in just ten laps and put the heat on fourth place runner John Ewell out of Forney, TX. Pauch got by Ewell on the 18th circuit with Ewell dropping by the wayside just two laps later.

That moved Doug Hoffman into the top five in the #125 Olsen Eagle. Hoffman battled with Pauch for a few laps before taking over the fourth spot. With Danny Johnson in command, the battle of the evening continued to be for the number two spot between Horton and Brightbill. Brightbill tried every trick in the book to get around Horton and as the two crossed the line it was Horton finishing second by less than a bumper. Brightbill settled for third with Hoffman coming home fourth and Pauch fifth.

Rounding out the top ten was Jack Johnson, Davey Wenger, Chuck McKee, Alan Johnson and Mark Flury. Heat wins went to Danny Johnson, Jack Johnson, and Kenny Brightbill, while Bob McCreadie won the consolation.

FLORIDA NOTES: Alan Johnson was the first of the DIRT Modified drivers to run a new style body, that being a Chevrolet Monte Carlo...Seven of the top ten finishers were in Olson Eagles but the winning car was a 1987 Troyer Chassis. This was the first of five races at Volusia.

OFFICIAL ORDER OF FINISH:

Jimmy Horton takes race on night 2

BARBERVILLE, FL... Defending CLM Lubricants Modified Winter Tour Champion, Jimmy Horton picked up the win on the 2nd night of the 1987 tour at Volusia County Speedway.

For the 2nd night in a row it was Jack Johnson jumping out to the early lead in the B.R. Dewitt #12A. Johnson held the top spot until a lap 5 restart when Horton took over for good. Johnson slipped back to fourth behind the hard charging Billy Pauch and Danny Johnson.

As Horton opened up a 10 car length lead over the field, the battle for the 2nd spot was between Pauch and Danny Johnson. The two drivers battled lap after lap until Danny got by on lap 17. At the checker, Horton by a comfortable margin over Danny Johnson who just nipped Pauch at the wire for second. Jack Johnson was fourth and McCreadie finished 5th. Hoffman, Brightbill, Billy Schinkel, Tim Dwyer and Bobby Gerhart rounded out the top 10. Heat wins went to Kenny Brightbill, Jack Johnson, Jimmy Horton and Bob McCreadie, with Chuck McKee taking the consolation.

FLORIDA NOTES...4 heats were necessary for the large field of cars...Danny Johnson and Jimmy Horton are tied for the point lead after two races.

OFFICIAL ORDER OF FINISH:
 Horton, D. Johnson, B. Pauch, J. Johnson, B. McCreadie, D. Hoffman, K. Brightbill, B. Schinkel, T. Dwyer, B. Gerhart, C. McKee, J. Ewell, M. Flury, D. Moore, C.D. Coville, T. Tobias, Jr., P. Lotier, B. Torrisi, D. Tobias, E. Dotson, M. Terry, R. King, A. Johnson, G. Wright, B. Wilkins, K. Tremont.

Miller 400 featured at Richmond

RICHMOND, VA—Following over a week of intense activity over the high banks of Daytona, Winston Cup racing moves to Richmond, preparing for the February 22 Miller High Life 400.

Richmond marks the opening of the short-track season, and will be the first time its '87 offerings will be unveiled. Although most of the teams have run testing sessions during the winter months, most of those sessions have been on the ultra high-speed Daytona and Talladega ovals.

Friday of the 3-day Richmond schedule will be as important as any single day during the season. Not only will the drivers have to dial-in the short track equipment for the very first qualifying for Sunday's Miller High Life 400.

Starting at Daytona, with few exceptions on the 29-race '87 schedule, the Winston Cup drivers will be given only 1 lap to qualify, instead of the better of 2 laps they have received in the past. Positions 1-20 will be established during Friday's time trial session.

Joining the Winston Cup drivers for the season opening weekend of NASCAR racing will be the Late Model Stock Cars, familiar to most mid-Atlantic race fans.

In 1987 the Late Model Stock Cars will be offered the largest purse ever posted in the NASCAR division where 30 starting positions for the Saturday event will be offered. Drivers will be competing for nearly $25,000.

The Late Model Stock Cars, too, will be getting their first track-time of the season. They will also be given 1 lap for the first 30 starting positions.

Sunday's Miller High Life 400 is the 19th annual offering of the event.

Farm inputs costs declining in 1987

Farmers can look forward to an improving profit picture in 1987, according to industry experts. The price farmers will be paying for many of their inputs such as herbicides, fertilizer, machinery and fuel are expected to continue on a downward trend or at least hold steady.

Overall, speculation is it will cost less to farm in 1987 than it did in 1986. One manufacturer, Monsanto Agricultural Products Company, announced the price of Roundup herbicide, one of the nation's largest selling herbicides, reduced prices for the second year in a row. It's a move company officials believe will cause many farmers to rethink their weed control practices.

Arnold Donald, Roundup marketing director, said, "Lowering the price of a product that controls or suppresses more weeds than any other herbicide, and is used on almost every farm, is bound to help farmers be even more cost efficient in 1987. Farmers recognize value and when value is improved, farmers benefit."

In the area of fertilizer prices, Jay Vroom, executive vice president of the National Fertilizer Solutions Association, predicts a good year for both farmers and fertilizer producers. He said fertilizer prices should stabilize and remain near their present low levels

Psychiatric Nursing available to homebound

Kent General Home Health Care now makes available psychiatric nursing services in the home, in collaboration with the hospital's Department of Psychiatry. The announcement was made jointly by Linda Kogon, R.N., Home Health Care Manager, and Brenda Burt, R.N., Coordinator of Mental Health Programs.

Although the hospital offers both outpatient and inpatient psychiatric services, Mr. Burt said, "there are patients with acute or chronic psychiatric difficulties who, until now, were unable to be reached because of their homebound status."

A trained psychiatric nurse will visit each patient referred by a physician, in order to assess needs, offer supportive counseling and evaluate the effectiveness of prescribed medication, Mrs. Burt explained.

Mrs. Kogon said the Home Health Care staff "will work closely with the referring physician or agency, as well as the psychiatric department, in carrying out the best possible care plan for each patient."

Home Health Care, which originated during 1985, currently offers speech, physical and occupational therapy in addition to skilled nursing and personal care. Questions regarding Home Health Care may be directed to Mrs. Kogon at 734-0599. Inquiries regarding psychiatric services at Kent General should be directed to Mrs. Burt at 734-0580.

Lower DE gets Rape Crisis Program

CONTACT-Delaware announces the extension of its Rape Crisis-CONTACT program to Kent and Sussex Counties, to be fully operational by early summer.

Rape Crisis-CONTACT is a volunteer organization which provides services to victims of rape, their families and friends.

Included are:

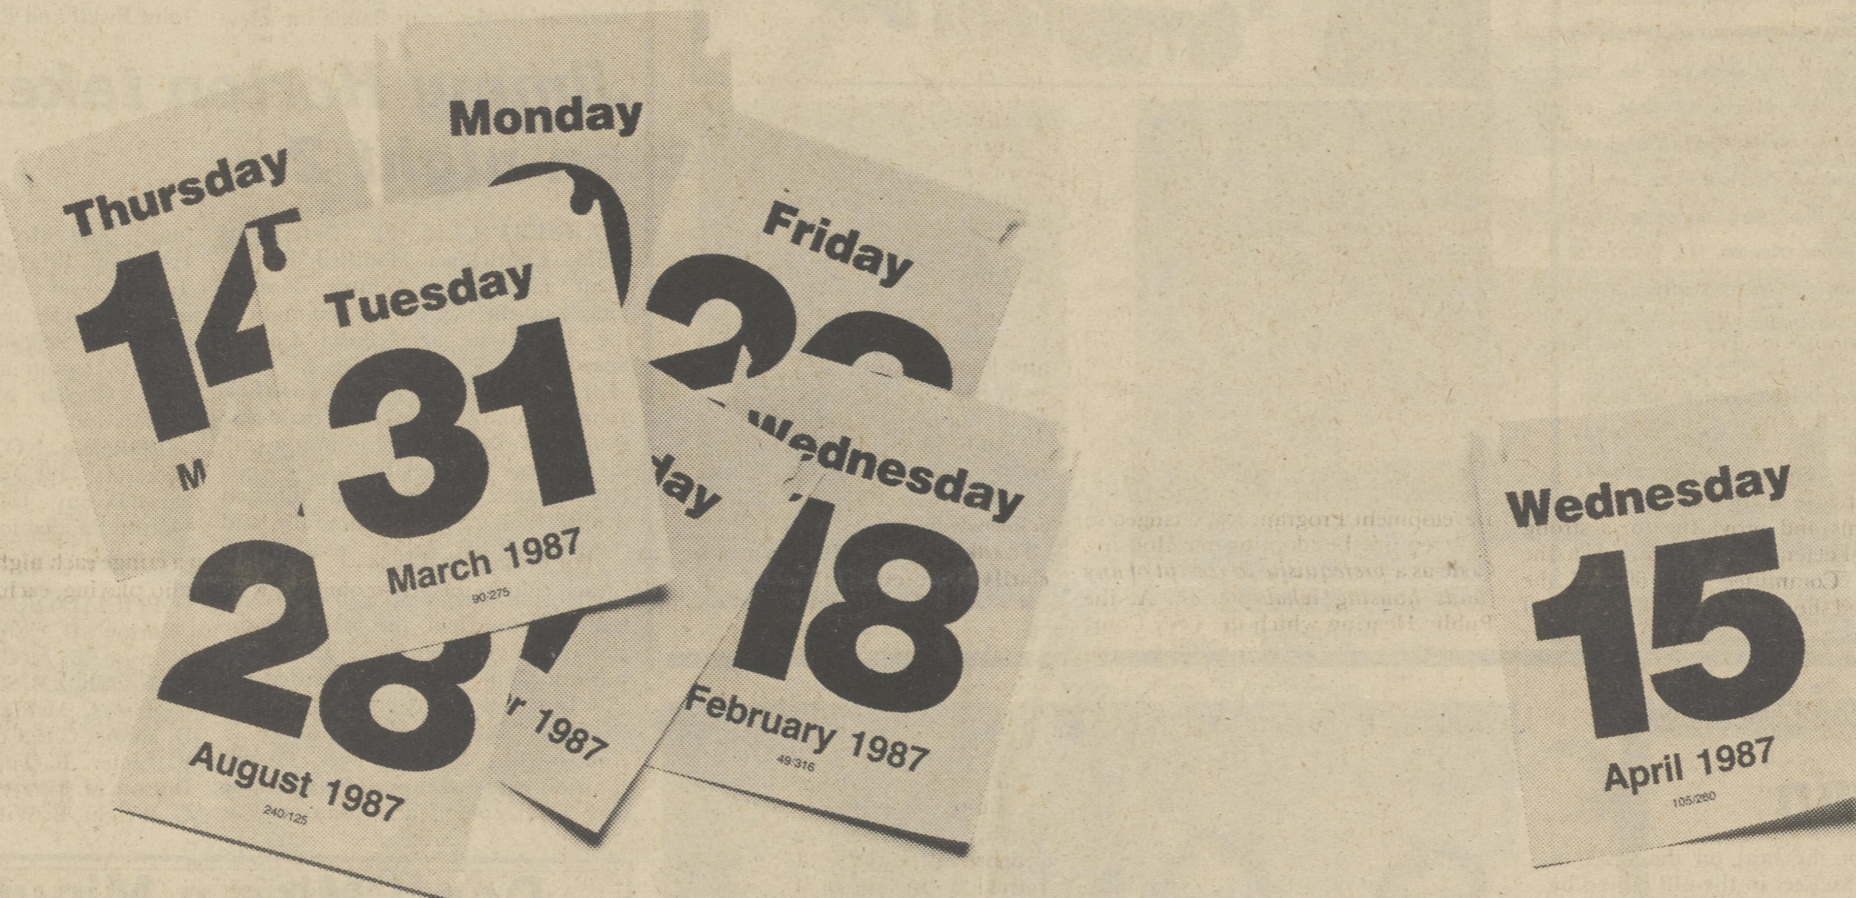

1) 24 hours telephone counseling with crisis intervention capability;

2) Accompaniment and support through the legal and medical systems;

3) Short-term individual, group and family counseling for victims and significant others;

4) Public education and advocacy.

Betty Metzler, Coordinator for Lower Delaware, will provide information and programs upon request. Please write to: Rape Crisis-CONTACT, P.O. Box 61, Millford, DE 19963 or call 422-2078.

Pay Less.

Day in and day out, the new Sussex Equity Line is the smart way to borrow. Based on the equity in your home, the Sussex Equity Line offers an attractive interest rate (currently 9½%)* and convenient repayment terms. You may qualify to borrow from $5,000 to $100,000 to fix up the house, pay for education expenses, buy a car, consolidate debt, or any other good reason.

In addition, from now until March 31, 1987, you will pay even less because all fees associated with obtaining a Sussex Equity Line have been waived.

Deduct More.

There's one day in particular when you'll really appreciate the Sussex Equity Line. Under the new tax law, interest deductions on many kinds of consumer loans are being phased out. However, the interest on a Sussex Equity Line will be fully deductible for home improvements, medical expenses, and education expenses. Interest for any other purpose will be deductible up to the amount of the purchase price of your home, plus improvements.

Stop by or call one of our convenient branch offices and ask about the Sussex Equity Line.

PUBLIC FORUM

From the Mayor's desk

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr.

Not since the days of Book Harrington's Hardware store when people met to discuss the topics of the day, has there been so much discussed as there has been in recent months over the proposed new city hall.

Discussions such as this can be good particularly if we bear in mind that there needs to be a mutual respect for how each feels about this highly controversial and complex subject.

True a building committee was formed and a decision was reached to build the new city hall on Liberty Street next to Delmarva Power, but the controversy over the location and cost continue to be in hot debate.

For most people in this area the often used adage is that you pay as you go, and don't go in debt unless you absolutely have to do so. Projected income from taxes on proposed industry, it is felt, will be sufficient to carry the payments on the new structure.

There are those who ask me why do I propose other sites when the building committee of which I was a member voted the Liberty Street property as the chosen location.

It is my feeling that I should respect the opinion of others as I would have them respect mine. Fellow members of the Council and former Building Committee members for the most part have differing ideas about this subject matter.

My feeling has always been that City Hall should be in a location close to the present business district and well exposed to the public who pass through our fine community and for the local citizens as well. This decision would for the most part entail buying an existing building and tearing it down, which I was always informed would be too costly.

What is too costly? It could possibly be more costly to taxpayers who have to bear the burden of paying for it, but it might not be termed costly if the new structure were paid for through private funding from donations and solicitations.

If the burden of paying for a city hall could be shifted from the citizens to private industry, it might not be costly. I favor such a proposal. I feel, where possible, the citizens should not have to pay for the city hall. The plan would be therefore for the private sector to build the building, lease it back to the City, and at some point in time in the future turn the title over to the City.

Now...this is my opinion, and not that of the Council. My opinion does in no way mean a condemnation of the Council for not favoring such a plan. This is my idea for what it is worth.

Sticking to our guns on deficit reduction

by Congressman Tom Carper

As I open my first set of town meetings in 1987, one topic that's sure to be discussed is our nation's nagging federal budget deficit problem.

That budget deficit was a staggering $220 billion last year. This year, it's expected to drop to $170 billion. Though this 23% drop in the deficit is encouraging, both the Congress and the President agree that we have a long way to go toward balancing the budget, and the toughest part of our job is still to come.

Last week, I testified before the House Budget Committee to urge that Congress adhere to the deficit reduction target for fiscal year 1988 that we mandated for ourselves when we passed the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law in 1985. That target would require that Congress and the President bring the deficit down to the $108-$118 billion range in next year's budget. That's still a large deficit by anyone's standards, but it will keep us on track with the Gramm-Rudman goal of a balanced budget in 1991.

The task of meeting the FY88 target is complicated greatly by the disparities between the budget priorities of the President and many Members of Congress. Though I believe that the budget the Reagan Administration sent to Congress in January was less unrealistic than some of his previous budgets, many of the budget priorities contained within it are still off the mark. For example, the Administration proposes significant increases in the Pentagon's budget and foreign aid, while at the same time it would cut drug enforcement and education programs. The Administration has also used some overly optimistic revenue projections to meet the Gramm-Rudman target.

In order to resolve some of the budget priority differences which exist between the President and Congress, I have called for a "budget summit" between Reagan Administration officials and congressional leaders to develop a basic blueprint for lasting deficit reduction.

It is my belief that we can meet our Gramm-Rudman target with a combination of spending restraint and increased revenues, while at the same time protecting vital domestic programs and providing for a strong national defense. I recommended to the Budget Committee that 60% of the projected shortfall for the coming fiscal year be made up through spending restraint, while the remaining 40% would come from new sources of revenue. The President has proposed a 50/50 ratio.

The spending restraint will require an across-the-board freeze in many components of the budget, and closer scrutiny of individual programs. We will need to do a better job of weeding out domestic programs whose functions are duplicated by other federal, state or local government activities, just as we need to stop buying certain weapons systems that add little or nothing to our national security. On the revenue side, we need to make more widespread use of user fees. We may also need to look at other options such as the possibility of increasing the federal surcharges on gasoline and cigarettes. A penny increase in the federal tax on gasoline alone could raise $1 billion to be put toward deficit reduction.

It's unlikely that anyone will be altogether pleased with the tough decisions Congress must make to meet our FY88 deficit reduction goal. Those decisions will require some sacrifices by everyone. But a failure to do so will make balancing the budget by 1991 virtually impossible, and threaten our nation's future economic prosperity in the process.

Roth seeks reform of worker program

by U.S. Senator Bill Roth

If anyone close to you has ever lost their job, you know the suffering and anguish involved. A person laid off due to poor economic or trade conditions, is faced with supporting themselves and others in their family, and at the same time faced with looking for a new job or even reevaluating what they are qualified to do.

It's particularly disturbing when a company is forced to let workers go because they cannot compete with the flood of foreign imports. The Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA) program was created to help this type of unemployed worker.

The recent "trade shock" our country is experiencing has demonstrated the need for this program and also encouraged support for reform of the Trade Adjustment Assistance program. The shock is the result of the U.S. global trade deficit, the flood of imports that have hurt the full range of American businesses and the increasing difficulty of assuring that trade takes place on a level playing field.

For many years, I have been calling for reform and reevaluation of the TAA program and I recently reintroduced a bill to accomplish this reform. Last year, my proposal received overwhelming bipartisan support and passed the House and Senate. My legislation was incorporated as part of the budget reconciliation act in the last session, but unfortunately, the final act did not include all my reforms.

My bill would provide a new benefit of $4,000 for retraining for each worker hurt by trade, to help create new work opportunities. It also requires training for workers in most instances so they may receive additional cash benefits. The program would be expanded to include workers in independent firms so they, too, may receive benefits. The additional expenses of the program would be funded by a small import fee, capped by statute at one percent. That was, those who purchase imports can contribute to the aid of those negatively impacted by imports.

Some may say that the U.S. trade deficit may finally go down next year. But nonetheless, the avalanche of imports continues. Imports now compete with nearly the full range of U.S. production. A reformed TAA program will give American workers who are suffering because of foreign imports meaningful help until troubled industries can become competitive.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I regret that Anne Palidino found it necessary to distort facts and confuse two different and distinct issues included in my letter to the editor.

A few years ago when I served the State of Delaware as the County Administrator for the Division of Social Services for Kent County, a group of Kent Countians and I formed a committee. The group was concerned about the amounts of Federal Funds available for community development and that the citizens of Kent County were not receiving their fair share. The funds were primarily being utilized by New Castle and Sussex Counties as Kent County had no agency to receive and administer the funds. I was chosen as other members of the committee to make our concerns known to Levy Court. Levy Court was receptive to our concerns and a feasibility study was completed. With this information Kent County Agency for Community Development was established.

In the beginning the project involved very low income homeowners whose homes were rehabilitated free of cost. I and other citizens urged the agency to broaden its program which resulted in the 3% loan program to homeowners and later loans to homeowners to renovate rental properties.

With the above information I'll let Anne form her own conclusions as to my involvement and her 3% loan.

It was very unfortunate that Anne felt compelled to respond to my letter before presenting it to the public. Some may review her actions as politics. I and others view it as lack of professionalism.

To the citizens of Harrington, especially citizens of the third ward, my response to Anne was written as a citizen of the United States. However, if Anne feels that she does not wish to be represented by me that is her prerogative.

I want the citizens of Harrington to know that I have written only the truth. Also, that I will not respond to further comments of Anne Palidino in this paper. Other means will be used to respond to any questions you may have. If I write anything else for this paper it will involve my conversation with its owner.

Incidentally I retired from State Services as the Director of Child Protective Services March 1985.

Daniel R. Coleman

Dear Mr. Farrow:

Two "Letters to the Editor" appearing in the February 11, 1987 Harrington Journal addressed housing rehabilitation projects administered by my office. There appears to be confusion with regard to the role of the Town Council and Mr. Coleman played in obtaining the projects which are now being enjoyed by the residents of Harrington. Let me provide clarification in this matter.

Two years ago Councilman Coleman was instrumental in proposing that Harrington apply for housing rehabilitation funds through the Delaware Community Development Block Grant Program. The entire Town Council is to be congratulated for that successful initiative, and their subsequent actions which have resulted in projects to improve the quality of entire neighborhoods through housing rehabilitation.

Last year the Delaware Community Development Program was changed so as to require the adoption of a Housing Code as a prerequisite to receipt of any funds housing rehabilitation. At the Public Hearing which the Levy Court of Kent County held in Harrington, Councilman Coleman presented supporting testimony for the Housing Code and housing rehabilitation loans (the so-called 3% loans) which could be used to help landlords cope with the Housing Code requirements. Because of this supporting testimony, and the testimony of others, the Housing Code for Kent County was adopted.

Because the Harrington Town Council unanimously agreed to adopt a local Housing Code or the Kent County Ordinance by July 1, 1987, housing projects (including 3% loans) were allowed to be undertaken in Harrington.

In short, Harrington is the beneficiary of housing rehabilitation (both grants and loans) because of actions taken by both the Town Council and the Levy Court of Kent County. The public would be ill served if this point was not made and the leadership role of Councilman Coleman was not acknowledged.

Thank you for this opportunity to clarify the record.

Very truly yours,
S. Michael Thompson
Director

Speaking out on SB 68

Dear Editor:

A new seat belt bill was introduced in the State Senate January 29th. This is the third go around to mandate the use of seat belt in Delaware. The proposed bill is known as Senate Bill 68. It stipulates that:

--Failure to buckle-up will be a primary offense. This means that a driver who is not buckled-up will be cited for failure to buckle-up.

--Mitigation of damages is imposed. This means that if one is injured or killed when not buckled-up then payment on a bodily injury claim can be voided or reduced on the basis that the driver was negligent by not obeying the seat belt law.

--Violators will be fined $25 and subject to a Magistrate Court cost of $17.50. This means that each violation will cost a total of $42.50.

Our Coalition advocates buckling-up by choice. We object to the passage of SB 68; to the range and severity of the proposed penalties, and to government intrusion in personal matters. We contend that an individual's freedom of choice is a basic tenet of our United States Constitution and object to further erosion of this tenet.

If we are to defeat SB 68, we must speak out. Send your Senator a postcard voicing your opposition. Write a letter to the editor or your local newspaper. Call a radio talk show. Ask others to do the same. The people of Massachusetts and Nebraska spoke out against their mandatory seat belt laws and got them repealed. It pays to speak out!

Senator Minner's column

By Sen. Ruth Ann Minner

I'm a little late, but I would like to congratulate the Governor's Task Force on Vocational Education for its excellent report and recommendations released in December.

Vocational-technical education in Delaware is at a crossroads, and the task force has made reasoned and reasonable recommendations on which road we should take.

However, it is my considered opinion that, while the task force made a broad-based and excellent use of interviews in all segments of education from students to administrators, there was one class they apparently did not include in their investigation. I refer to ex-vocational and integrated high school students who are the only ones who knew whether present programs did them any good or not.

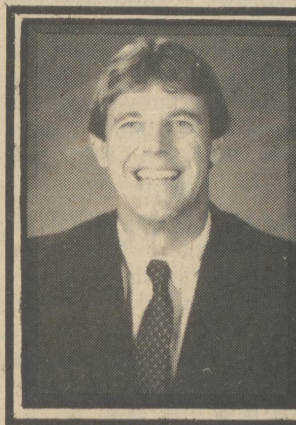

Only a vo-tech student who has become a member of the work force knows how effective his Delaware high school education was. Only an academic student who has been in the work force for a year or two knows how effective his vo-tech options may have been.

The task force recommended that Kent

County school administrators have a year to devise a system for vocational-technical education they can live with. The administrators are taking this seriously and have set up a group headed by Superintendent Mike Woodall of the Milford School District, a very capable administrator. It is my understanding that the group plans to hire a consultant and honestly seek a final solution to the vo-tech problem.

The problems inherent in full-time vo-tech schools are quite obvious. Students are reluctant to give up their present high school loyalties, especially as they involve school football and other sports teams. Students in the academic track may be denied the educational opportunity inherent in their option to choose such courses as commercial or industrial arts as electives if these courses are offered only in full-time vo-tech schools.

WE in Delaware have always had a viable vocational school program, and I don't think anyone would like to scrap it. The task force has made some excellent recommendations. Now we have to crank them into the county systems without too much disruption.

Illiteracy or Lazy Grammer

Much has been written lately regarding the sad state of literacy in America. Commissions have been formed, grants funded and a general beehive of activity has been growing in recent months with regard to the issue.

Some of the attention has focused on schools, some on the home, some on the pressure on our borders, a pressure increasing daily as those living in other countries yearn for a better way of living.

Language is a function of society. Dictionaries today contain words that did not exist in past generations. Word usage and pronunciation in various parts of our country sometimes varies greatly depending on the local way of life.

Fred West, a retired professor of English and author of The Way of Language, writing in the October 13 issue of U.S. News and World Report, attacked what he felt was an overuse of jargon in our country.

"With the appalling cloud of illiteracy shadowing America's people," said he, "we would do well to attack some basic causes instead of throwing more money into more grants for more studies."

"One of the basic causes is the jargon of our communication media."

Like Orwell's thought-reducing good-ungood of 1984 Newspeak, the use of positive-negative in every conceivable and inconceivable context by everyone from our fluent TV newscasters to our government spokespersons is reducing our capacity to think."

I would take West one better.

The jargon to which he refers is further reduced by what may best be classified as "lazy grammer" by many in our society. Not the inability but rather the unwillingness to properly enunciate each word, each syllable has become so commonplace that the incorrect is often mistakenly identified as the proper use of the language.

This concept of "lazy grammer" finds its way into improper word usage, destroying either the content of the written and spoken word, the application of correct grammatical rules or both.

When accepted on the grand scale as it is today, the first step has already been taken in making a major transition in one of the major components of a society, its language.

For those with a keen ear, I join you in a cringe each night as we watch the news, each ride in the automobile with the radio playing, each appearance of a public speaker.

Good grammer, is like good music. You have to work at it.

A step in that direction might send a message to our youth that our language is important. Do you think that might put a dent in illiteracy?

Biden Report

Bill to introduce nuclear safety board

by U.S. Senator Joseph R. Biden, Jr.

Over 11,300 of us Delawareans live within the 10-mile emergency planning zone for the Salem nuclear power plant in New Jersey. When we think about it, I'm sure we all appreciate the fact that Delaware firefighters and other public health and safety officials have a solid, well-tested plan of evacuation and emergency preparedness in the event of a nuclear accident.

Of course, every American community within that range would have a tried and true emergency plan, right? Not necessarily. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), in the last few days, has drafted a rule change that would allow the start-up of two controversial nuclear power plants on the East Coast, over the objections of state and local authorities within the 10-mile radius. The NRC's proposed rules would allow the utility to draft an emergency plan, but not require a demonstration, would reduce the emergency planning zone to one mile, and would require only that the utility give copies of the plan to all affected governments.

It's one more good example of the fox guarding the chicken coop. Ever since the Nuclear Regulatory Commission was created back in 1974, the NRC has had the dual responsibility of regulating nuclear power and investigating itself when there is a nuclear accident. This latter responsibility represents a conflict of interest and in my opinion needs to be corrected.

That's why one of the first bills I introduced this year would create an independent Nuclear Safety Board for investigating accidents at nuclear power plants and other nuclear facilities. In effect, my plan would simply take the Office of Analysis Evaluation of Operational Data, which is now part of the NRC, and use it as a base for building an Independent Nuclear Safety Board. This restructuring can be done easily, simply and at no additional cost to the taxpayers.

The Nuclear Safety Board would function in much the same way as the National Transportation Safety Board, which has the responsibility of investigating aviation crashes and other transportation disasters. Like the NTSB, the Nuclear Safety Board would have additional powers to review and access ongoing procedures in the nuclear industry and the power to formulate safety improvement recommendations.

In fact, the Nuclear Safety Board could make recommendations on just such vital issues as the 10-mile emergency planning zone and the importance of state and local input on matters of the safety and health of their citizens.

The explosion and fire at the Soviet Union's Chernobyl nuclear power plant taught us a grave and sobering lesson of the risks involved in nuclear energy. While the international nuclear community seems to be taking the lessons of Chernobyl to heart, the American industry seems to focus its resources toward explaining the differences between the Chernobyl plant and most American ones. The record for American nuclear plants is not one that should let us assume that the same result could never happen here.

Because the nuclear plants at Salem are so close to Delaware's borders, they present a potential danger to the health and well-being of our citizens here at home. It is critical that the NRC be monitored in an impartial manner by an independent safety investigation board. It is imperative that our nuclear safety and performance standards be raised, and that they are met day in and day out.

I've been working on this issue long before Chernobyl and apart from emergency planning zones. In 1985, the Brookhaven National Laboratory conducted a study which was mandated by a Biden amendment adopted by the Senate in 1984. This study sharply criticized the NRC's accident-investigation procedures and recommended reforms. The study stopped short, however, of calling for creation of an independent safety unit.

I don't plan on stopping short. In order to get his legislation passed, I have joined forces with Rep. Morris K. Udall (D. Ariz.), chairman of the House Interior Committee. He has introduced the same measure in the House of Representatives. Working together, we plan to make sure that nuclear accidents will be investigated by an independent impartial board than by the NRC itself.

the church school. Those recognized were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence (Judy) Voshell, Jr. with their children Mike and Amy, Mr. and Mrs.

Mickey (Jan) Mervine and children. Janna and Camie. Also JR Kimmey and Cindy Chapman were honored.

Sludge and foul odors in Kent County of the DNREC will be contacted about the regulations but timing is a major factor in the redrafting of the regulations because of the state moratorium.

"We want to get a set of regulations in place as soon as possible," Mr. Zimmerman said.

The DNREC is looking to present a draft of the regulations to the public for consideration in mid to late May, with the actual adoption of the redrafted rules in September.

In addition, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is also working on new regulations involving sludge. Mr. Zimmerman said the EPAS expects to put its new regulations into effect at the end of 1987 or the beginning of 1988.

Among the chemicals found in the waste coming from the Kent County plant in 1986 were DDT, chlorine and thiodane, according to Mr. Peterman. DDT was made illegal in treating crops in 1973.

"Where is it coming from? We need to test for toxic chemicals," Mr. Peterman said.

Currently, Mr. Eckart said nothing is being done to treat the waste materials coming from the plant. The sludge is thickened with polymers and stabilized before being tested for nutrients as required by disposal permits. No tests are done on the toxicity of the sludge.

Area residents also questioned the quality of the water being discharged into the Murderkill River from the waste treatment plant.

Walter Simpson, a resident attending the meeting, along with Dr. William Masten of Milford, brought samples of the water discharged into the river to the meeting.

The five Mason jars of water Mr. Simpson brought to the meeting contained all types of plastic debris, styrofoam and other inorganic materials.

"They said you'd be able to drink the discharged water," Mr. Simpson said.

Mr. Peterman wanted them to know he decided not to bring the samples of water he collected because he was unsure of how safe they were, but he did bring a wire netted cage that two area residents had placed in the water thirty feet below the plant's discharge pipe. The wire cage contained an assortment of paper debris and plastic debris stuck to its wiring. He said the netting had been in place for about 10 hours.

Mr. Eckart said that in going to the water, "I never came up with anything like that."

He said every week the plant operator "personally checks" the water.

To dump the discharged water into the Murderkill River, Mr. Zimmerman said an operational permit is required by the federal government. The federal permit puts limits on the amount that can be discharged, makes the plant assure the quality of the waste and sets the standards for how often the county must take samples of the wastes.

A sludge disposal permit for the state is also required to establish the quantity to be disposed and to establish how the site will be maintained.

Kent County submits a monthly report to the DNREC about the flow, temperature, chlorine amounts, suspended waste particle amounts, bacterial amounts and the amount of readily degradable organic material being put into the Murderkill.

Mr. Zimmerman said the County takes samples of the water and its contents five days a week. The state tests the river once a month. Toxic chemicals are not among the things for which the state tests.

"The sampling of such complex materials is not done on a routine basis," said Mr. Zimmerman.

The study, which found DDT coming from the waste, was conducted randomly by Kent County, Mr. Zimmerman said. He said the County contracted the Technical Services Lab of the DNREC to conduct the tests. "Testing is extremely expensive," he said.

Mr. Zimmerman said the Murderkill River is not classified as a drinkable water supply, but as an industrial water supply and a secondary, not primary, contact recreation supply.

Secondary contact recreation means water can be used for boating and fishing, but not for swimming and drinking. In the fresh water areas of the Murderkill above Frederica, the water can be used for agriculture and primary contact.

Mr. Zimmerman said the debris the area residents found in the water shouldn't be there. "I don't feel they

(the debris) should be coming out of the discharge," he said.

He also said the county was looking into the matter.

Mr. Eckart said a new system was put on line at the plant to neutralize odors in the waste. Since its installation on December 16, 1986, he said the DNREC hasn't received any odor complaints. Nineteen complaints surfaced in November 1986.

Odor and other concerns will be investigated by the DNREC, said Bill Lawrence of the department's enforcement division. He said the department receives about 2,500 calls a year and all are investigated. The number to report concerns is 1-800-662-8802.

Mr. Zimmerman said the DNREC couldn't demonstrate how the effluent discharged from the plant affected the Murderkill River. "We can not demonstrate any impact of the discharge on the river," he said.

He did say further biological studies were to be conducted with chlorine in the river. He anticipates the studies to be completed in spring.

Mr. Peterman said the odor emanating from the plant has not stopped. "It's not an odor that started yesterday. It's off and on," he said.

He said the smell of raw sewage three weeks ago was so bad a person could have gagged from it. He said the incident was reported to the DNREC, but all of the field investigators at the time were out working on cases and could not immediately come and investigate.

"We only have the past to build on for the future. We have to start working together. They (the plant) need to police themselves. When something's wrong and we know about it we have to let them know," Mr. Peterman said.

Mr. Peterman suggested the Kent County Levy Court, which runs the plant near Frederica, build a house on the facility's property so the odor problems would be treated.

"If they lived there on the property, they would take care of the problems there," he said.

He said the County would then have the opportunity to see "how the rest of the community lives."

New Director of Dietary Services named

Nidia C. Gamba has been appointed Kent General's new Director of Dietary Services. Among her first challenges will be to manage the department's move into its new state-of-the-art facility.

Ms. Gamba, who completed a bachelors degree, as well as graduate work in nutrition, at Pennsylvania

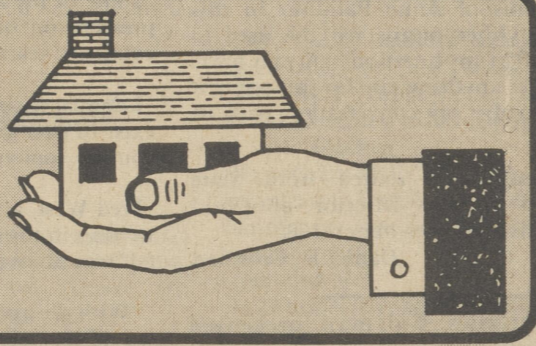

State University, is employed by the Marriott provides food service management for institutions throughout the United States and Canada.

Ms. Gamba has been with Saga, acquired this year by Marriott, since 1980. She comes to Dover from Carol Woods Retirement Community in Chapel Hill, N.C. where she was Food Services Director. Prior to that, she was Director of Nutrition Services at Riverside Hospital and Assistant Director of Food Services at Cokesbury Village Retirement Community, both of northern Delaware.

Congressman Tom Carper addresses area concerns at Felton town meeting

The congressman had his constituents vote on the issue as though they were in Congress. The majority agreed a gradual increase in the wage would be the most acceptable solution to the problem. Mr. Carper said he also supported such an increase.

While the issue also arose at the Georgetown meeting, Mr. Carper said the Kent County reaction was unexpected. "The strong support for an increased minimum wage surprised me in an area so conservative," he said.

With Congress' recent override of President Ronald Reagan's veto of the Clean Water Bill, Delaware's environment has become a top priority for the federal government.

The inland bays of Sussex County are slated for clean up with money from the Clean Water Bill.

Two citizens wanted to know the status of the toxic waste Superfund clean up sites in Delaware. Fifteen areas of Delaware were chosen for clean up.

Nationwide, Mr. Carper said six sites have been totally cleaned up, but that the $1.5 billion allotted for the fund in 1980 was insufficient for all clean-ups. He said the Congress last year passed another Superfund act to continue what began in 1980.

Mr. Carper said he pledged to work with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) on toxic waste reduction. The issue of off-shore incineration of wastes was not a top issue right now.

Having met with the EPA last week, Mr. Carper said, "Ocean incineration is a dead issue."

While the issue of what to do with toxic wastes has yet to be settled, Mr. Carper said he strongly supports the community's right to know what toxic chemicals are being admitted into the air.

"Within three years, states have to come up with a plan to safely dispose of wastes," Mr. Carper said.

He said he would be adding amendments to current legislation, which "will make it expensive for people who want to dump it (toxic waste)."

"It's a tough issue. Nobody wants wastes in their backyard, the best thing to do is to collect less of it."

"There are no perfect ways to dispose toxic wastes. The key is to try to find ways to minimize the risks," Mr. Carper said.

One partial solution to the problem might be energy through trash conversion, where some wastes are recycled for energy. Mr. Carper said Wilmington's Pigeon Point waste plant has facilities for recycling trash and other wastes for resale energy purposes.

Through these town meetings, Mr. Carper and his staff find out the priority issues his constituents have on their minds.

"I do them to learn. Unless we talk to people, we're wasting your tax dollars," he said.

In relation to the Iran arms scandal, area residents wanted to know more about the key issues in the affair that are just surfacing, such as what happened to the money involved and who gave Colonel Oliver North the orders for the arms shipments?

"The notion of selling arms to Iran makes no sense. It guarantees more hostages will be taken. I don't know why this country wants to help Iran in the war with Iraq," said Mr. Carper.

Mr. Carper said the U.S. was "helping the wrong side." He said Congress intends to drop the amount of aid to the Nicaraguan Contras by the amount diverted in the arms sales.

One citizen told Mr. Carper he thought the new tax laws catered to the rich and not the middle class.

Deductions for IRAs, Mr. Carper said, would remain the same for people making under $40,000 a year, while upper income families would not be allowed to deduct the $2,000 allowed annually.

"The idea is to encourage low and middle income families to save for their retirement," said Mr. Carper.

"What we're saying for those using tax shelters--sorry," said Mr. Carper.

The new tax laws, according to Mr. Carper, are trying to ensure that people making the same income are paying the same taxes.

Another issue put before Mr. Carper by a Milford liquor store owner was a concern about the possibility of the Dover Air Base might sell liquors.

"It's going to put a drain on smaller liquor stores in Dover. They're estimating total sales at $1.5 million the first year," the merchant told Mr. Carper.

Mr. Carper said he would remain neutral on the issue, providing any proposed package store for the base open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

Other restrictions Mr. Carper would like to see placed on a package goods store would include not undercutting area merchants more than 10%. Surveying area stores for their prices and buying alcohol from in-state distributors.

Mr. Carper thinks shortened hours for a base store would not dramatically hurt area liquor stores who do much of their business after 6 p.m. weekdays and after 3 p.m. on Saturdays. Most of his audience agreed the base should have its own package goods store.

Another issue that surfaced at Saturday's Felton meeting was the status of Congressional raises. President Reagan vetoed a proposed increase in Congressional raises that would have proposed increase to $135,000 from $77,000. Instead, a three percent increase was given to Congress.

Mr. Carper would like to see the members of Congress get "an annual adjustment like federal employees."

He said Congress may rescind the three percent raises given. "I think $77,000 is a reasonable level of compensation. I wouldn't feel quite so strong if it weren't for the deficit," he said.

Mr. Carper said Congress should set an example for the rest of the nation in this time of deficit. He said last year members of Congress cut back their own budgets and froze employee salaries.

People provided housing by the Housing and Urban Development office of the federal government may soon have to undergo more stringent regulations in reporting their income when applying for housing if legislation drafted by Mr. Carper passes.

The HUD Income Verification Act of 1987 would provide the housing authorities with accurate data relating to a person's salary. Under the bill when a person applies for housing assistance, he will have to also give his social security number on the application. The number will be used to cross reference wage information to the individual.

"People who don't fully report their income are a big problem. We work on an honor system," Carper said.

Mr. Carper introduced this legislation last year and will reintroduce it in 1987 in hopes of recovering some of the $200,000 lost from HUD in false housing requests.

endeavor," said Mrs. Janet Durig, Vice President of the Board of Education. "We are fortunate to already own the land on which to build; and a new, modern building can provide our students with an environment for learning those skills so necessary in today's highly-technological society," Mrs. Durig added.

Newly-appointed Superintendent of Schools, J. Alan Ferner, said, "I had been impressed with the Woodbridge Board of Education's commitment to their schools and community prior to my arrival, and this just solidifies my respect for the group. This referendum will also provide a chance to improve the Greenwood school which will enable us to get rid of the temporary classrooms which are not suitable for instruction."

The voters will have a chance to decide this issue on May 19, 1987.

Deadline announced for Bicentennial community improvement projects

The deadline for applications for the Bicentennial Community Improvement Fund will be Monday, March 14, 1987. Applications will be accepted at the Office of the Secretary of State, Townsend Building, Dover, until 4:30 p.m. The BCIF Committee will hold a meeting to review applications and make awards at a date to be announced in April.

Over the past two years, the BCIF committee has made over 80 awards in excess of $2,300,000 to municipalities, and community based non-profit organizations for capital improvement projects to commemorate the bicentennial of the United States Constitution.

The BCIF grant program was authorized by Governor Michael N.

Castle and the Delaware General Assembly, for the purpose of providing matching funds for capital improvement related to Delaware's 1987 Bicentennial Celebration. Priority has been given to capital improvements which would not have occurred without grant assistance and to projects which enhance a community's historic and cultural heritage.

Woodbridge School District to build new high school

BRIDGEVILLE—On February 12, 1987, the Woodbridge Board of Education unanimously approved a special referendum for the purpose of constructing a new high school for the district. This recommendation culminates a long process of planning and investigation by the Board of Education. The district has engaged French and Ryan, Inc. to do a planning study for the district which was presented to the Board and public over a period of time that began in March, 1985. The options of the plan were thoroughly investigated by the Board, and they have decided that the best dollar and educational value will be accrued from building a new high school.

very pleased that we have at long last made a commitment. We have maneuvered students back and forth in our buildings, and have used every possible combination of grade structure grouping in those buildings. None of these combinations have been satisfactory to our students, staff, or community."

Currently, the Woodbridge District operates with grades K-6 in the Greenwood Elementary School; and the High School, located in Bridgeville, houses grades 7 through 12. The elementary school has an enrollment of 961 students which is far beyond the optimum capacity for the building. Classes for students are being held in what were, at one time, locker rooms in that building which, at one time, was Greenwood High School.

Roth calls for better testing of military purchases

WASHINGTON--America's military establishment should take immediate steps to implement recent weapons testing reforms in order to avoid repeating costly mistakes of the past, Senator William V. Roth (R-Del.) said recently.

Roth, a frequent critic of careless defense spending, cited a General Accounting Office report he requested that indicates the Pentagon's test procedures aren't always adequate to discern costly design flaws before full production begins. "All too frequently we discover design flaws and performance shortcomings after full production begins, which is a major cause of costly modifications. Somewhere between the drawing board and full production we need to know where our problems are," Roth said. "The GAO study clearly shows there are still problems in weapons testing procedures. With the Packard Commission's recommendations, along with new weapons testing reforms, the Pentagon is now in a position to tackle these problems," Roth added.

The military routinely conducts weapons testing, Roth noted, but often fails to discover critical performance shortcomings because of long-standing problems in test planning, test conduct and the evaluation and reporting of test results. "There are immense pressures within the defense establishment to proceed with billion-dollar systems once development is underway," Roth explained. "These pressures develop a life of their own, and the casualty can be short-cuts in testing as momentum builds and completion schedules are compressed."

For example, the armed services in some instances cut corners in testing, using equipment and procedures of the contractor involved, rather than conducting realistic, independent tests of their own, according to the GAO. "If our weapons testing fails to replicate battlefield conditions, our soldiers face needless combat peril, and the American taxpayers pay more for costly fixes that could have been avoided with thorough up-front testing," Roth charged. Examining recently deployed weapons systems to determine whether testing indeed useful, the GAO uncovered glaring examples of critical compromises.

-- To assess combat capability of the F/A-18 fighter aircraft, the Navy used contractor equipment, procedures, transportation, stocking and response systems not fully representative of the rigors of fleet level maintenance and supply responsiveness.

--The Army's test report on the Multiple Launch Rocket System did not adequately describe the significance of a problem with the ammunition resupply trailer; the vehicle tipped over when carrying a full load of ammunition when traveling at normal speeds.

The GAO researched testing inadequacies as far back as 1970, poring over all reports issued with cases of testing discrepancies. Examples from those 63 reports include:

--32 historical cases where testing was unrealistic because it did not adequately replicate the operational environment.

--Approximately 25 historical cases where test objectives, criteria, and plans were incomplete, unclear, even absent before testing began.

--27 cases where test resources were limited or not available.

--22 cases where test reports did not contain the most current, complete, or accurate data on the performance of major systems before production.

Recently disclosed problems with the B-1B strategic bomber, notably failures with the electronic countermeasure devices on the plane, led to this year's Air Force budget request for an additional $600 million for further B-1B development. Such performance problems illustrate what can happen without adequate testing prior to weapons deployment, Roth said.

"There's no question about it, we can't afford to ignore design and performance shortcomings with our nation's major defense systems," Roth said. "We must build on the recent recommendations of the President's Blue Ribbon Commission for Defense Management (Packard Commission) calling for operational testing on all weapons, beginning in advanced design and continuing through full scale development. This includes rigorous operational testing on the first units that come off the limited production line," he explained.

Roth was a principal sponsor of a 1983 law creating an independent Office of Operational Test and Evaluation at the Pentagon, a function he described as critical. "An independent testing office provides the essential check and balance to an unavoidable program advocacy within the military services for particular weapons," Roth stated. This law established crucial oversight by vesting authority for testing in the independent OT & E office and away from the Defense agencies involved in direct weapons development and acquisition.

Insurance companies required to disclose profits and losses

Delaware Insurance Commissioner David N. Levinson announced today promulgation of a regulation governing all insurance companies writing property and casualty insurance in Delaware which are now required by law to disclose their profits and losses in Delaware and across the nation.

Insurance companies will report annual experience on losses, paid claims, reserves, commissions and advertising expenses to the Delaware Insurance Department on the basis of nationwide figures as well as Delaware data.

"Delaware has adopted the most comprehensive disclosure act in the country," Levinson stated. "This sweeping report of precise financial information will give us an accurate picture of how Delaware loss experience compares with profits and losses nationally and whether Delaware insurance premiums are fairly calculated.

This supplement to company annual statements was enacted by the Delaware General Assembly in June 1986 after being proposed and supported by the Delaware Trial Lawyers Association.

Levinson said he was pleased with the cooperation between the Bar Association and the industry in developing the regulation being announced today. "The many public hearings and meetings we had with both the industry and the Trial Lawyers were highly productive," said the Commissioner. "We believe that the regulation being issued today provides a fair balance between the ability of insurance companies to provide data and the 'right to know' of the legislature and the public."

Department of Health and Social Services and the DSBA promotes better legal services for the elderly

The Department of Health and Social Services' Division of Aging and the Delaware State Bar Association (DSBA) have entered into an innovative agreement aimed at promoting better delivery of legal services to the elderly. The agreement is only the second of its kind in the nation between a state bar association and a state unit on aging.

Under the agreement, the DSBA and the Division of Aging are to:

-Apprise each other on the undertaking of any projects and to share information which may affect the delivery of legal assistance to the elderly.

-Explore the possibility of periodically developing a publication which will benefit the elderly and/or attorneys serving the elderly.

-Include each other in educational and training seminars and workshops as well as exploring the possibility of jointly sponsoring such activities.

-Work cooperatively to promote public understanding of the legal needs of the elderly.

-Work cooperatively on outreach to the elderly, such as informing them of services available and providing information on legal problems and issues.

According to Division of Aging Director, Eleanor Cain, "This agreement puts in writing what is basically already being done, but hopefully it will provide the impetus for better communication and create an atmosphere of cooperation that will ultimately benefit the elderly."

China's ambassador to speak in Delaware

The Ambassador from the People's Republic of China, His Excellency Han Xu, will speak on "China's Economic Reforms" on Thursday, February 19, 1987 as part of a three-day visit to Delaware.

After his speech, The Ambassador will welcome questions from the audience on a variety of topics, including recent events in China.

The speech at the Rotary Club of Wilmington will mark the first in a series of events in which the Ambassador will be participating during his three-day visit to Delaware between February 19-21. The Ambassador, his wife Qiyun Ge and Embassy First Secretary Su Guang will be here at the invitation of Lieutenant Governor S.B. Woo.

A limited number of tickets for the luncheon speech are available for public purchase on an individual basis. It will be held at the Hotel DuPont during a Rotary Club lunch meeting between 12 and 2 p.m.

Lunch will be served promptly at 12 p.m. Tickets are available on a first-come, first-serve basis at the reception desk of the Hotel DuPont. Telephone and mail reservations will not be honored.

The Ambassador's schedule is being arranged by Lieutenant Governor Woo, who has known the Ambassador for the past decade. They first met when the Ambassador was a Deputy Chief of Ambassadorial Rank in the Liaison Office of the PRC in the United States before the formal establishment of relations between the U.S. and the P.R.C.

Lite and lean may mean fat and salt in convenience foods

What you see isn't always what you get when it comes to convenience foods. Some of these popular products are labeled in ways to make you think you are buying healthy, low-calorie meals. In reality, some of these products may contain either a high-fat, cholesterol or sodium content or a combination of all.

"Although there are nutritious and low-fat, low-cholesterol convenience foods on the market, it pays to carefully read the labels to determine if that 'lite' or 'lean' frozen dinner is really good for you," advises Marianne Brady, R.D., chairman of the Diet-Nutrition Committee of the American Heart Association of Delaware.

The American Heart Association cautions consumers about the bottom-line effects of some of the convenience foods. Many have a high fat content, especially the saturated kind. An increased risk of cardiovascular disease is attributed to excessive intake of fats. Many of the 300 calorie convenience meals contain much more fat than recommended by the AHA. Reading food labels is especially useful if you are on a fat-controlled diet.

"If the fat content of the dinner is 12 grams, for example, you'll be eating 108 calories of fat from a 300 calorie meal (1 gm. fat equals 9 calories). This 'lean' dinner contains more than 30 percent fat," said Brady.

The American Heart Association recommends that total fat in the diet be limited to 30 percent of daily calories. Unfortunately, many Americans are including more than 30 percent fat content in every meal every day.

Another important factor in reading these products' labels is to note the type of fat used in the product. If safflower, sunflower, corn, partially hydrogenated soybean and cottonseed oils are listed in the ingredients, they're a better choice since these oils contain primarily polyunsaturated fat, the kind that tends to lower cholesterol.

If lard or animal shortening are used in the product, animal fat is part of the ingredients. This type of fat contains both cholesterol and saturated fat. Daily cholesterol intake should be no more than 300 milligrams.

The convenience foods low in fat, cholesterol and sodium are not under a single brand name, nor are they necessarily the most expensive brands.

"Smart shoppers know it only takes a few extra seconds to read product labels in order to find nutritious convenience foods that are truly 'lean'." By scanning the labels, you can save more than calories," Brady said.

Farm input costs declining in 1987

"The domestic supply of fertilizer may decrease slightly in 1987 as some plant production is reduced," he said.

"Such a reduction could have a stabilizing and strengthening effect, which should help stop further declines in a market that has already dropped about as low as it can reasonably go, he said. For the '87 season at least, Mr. Vroom feels farmers will benefit from a stable market.

Farm machinery costs should either stay at their present low levels or go lower. Emmett Barker of the Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute said equipment prices are down over the last three years.

"It's less expensive for farmers to buy equipment now because manufacturers are competing for fewer buyers. "Competition has driven down prices, which should result in lower equipment costs for farmers," he said. Peter Heffernan, economist with the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, said farm expenses have been trending downward.

"Decreases in production expenses, coupled with improvements in the livestock market and in large government payments will work to offset lower crop receipts, improving farm income," said Mr. Heffernan.

Despite these bright projections, land prices have continued their slide during 1986; and Heffernan thinks land values will continue to go down for awhile.

Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago statistics show midwestern land prices dropped nearly nine percent from January through September 1986. That trend is likely to continue, he believes, at least through the first quarter of 1987.

"The market is highly variable," he explains, "and while there may be pockets of stability or even areas where land prices rise, overall continuing declines are expected, at least in the Midwest."
