by William Robertson
HARRINGTON—To the residents on Vernon Road and Commerce Street, the installation of another double-wide has become an unwelcomed addition to the community.

The double-wide was quickly installed without notice last week after Harrington City Manager, George Volenik, denied reports of one moving within town limits. He denied the reports to the press on Monday, April 20, and yet on the same day he told Clarence Welch, a resident of Vernon Road, that a double-wide was moving in on the property, Welch said.

Welch said, "I called Volenik Monday and asked him what was moving in on the property and he said, 'a double-wide.'"

When Welch was asked what he thought of the double-wide being across the street from his home he said, "My home was built in 1917 and it looks a lot better than that double-wide does. It just doesn't look right where it is because Harrington isn't a mobile home community and the only place it would look right is in a mobile home park. "I also don't care what city hall calls it, it looks like a mobile home to me," Welch stated.

Mrs. Grace Welch of Welch's Seed Service said she was never told about the one that moved in next door to her on West Street and she was never told about the one moving in on the corner of Route 14 and Commerce Street.

"The town doesn't have a building code so what can you do to stop something from moving in. I also think that Volenik used evasive tactics during the matter," Welch said.

Mrs. Louise Apt of Commerce Street stated, "I really think it was done underhandedly, and its presence will definitely downgrade the community." "The city council should have been open to the public about it and it should have put property transactions in the newspaper," Apt said.

According to Apt, "Franklin Hendricks, who owned the property, told me a month ago at a church meeting that he was going to take the property and divide it up into lots. I foresee him trying to put some type of trailer park out there." Franklin Hendricks, who currently has his home up for sale, which is adjacent to the double-wide, used to own the property. Hendricks said, "I don't feel the double-wide will have any effect on me trying to sell my home."

Mrs. Arnett Potter of Commerce Street was upset with the whole thing and said, "If this town lets people put whatever they want in it, its going to turn into a dump. The person who is running this town right now is running it right into a hole."

Mrs. Anne Paladino of Commerce Street said, "If this is the way its going to continue in Harrington, I may as well put one on the lot next to my house and generate some income to offset the cost of living in this fair city."

"At the present time I can walk one block in either of two directions and see a trailer, so it may as well be on my own land," Paladino stated.

Earl McColey of Reese Avenue said when he was on the council only two mobile homes were allowed in town and they were located at the school house. An ordinance was to be made to prevent any others from coming within town, but with the council we have now it just does whatever it wants."

Councilman Daniel Coleman, who is in charge of the ward where the double-wide is located said, "I didn't know it was moving in. When asked why he wasn't notified about it moving in, Coleman replied, "Sometimes I'm notified about things and sometimes I'm not, but I'm not sure if the charter actually requires me to be notified."

Coleman also said he has had only one complaint about it being where it is, but he also had other residents tell him they didn't mind it being where it is.

The response the press received from residents in that ward and others contradicts the assessments made by Coleman.

Also at the present time the city does not have a building code, according to Mayor Harry G. Farrow, Jr. This means that any type of building could be constructed or moved into the town without restrictions applying to it. The mayor did say that the city council is in the process of developing a building code.

Alex Vogel objects to church property sale

HARRINGTON, Alex Vogel, 78, and his three brothers and two brothers-in-law built St. Bernadette's Catholic Church in Harrington.

"Three brothers and myself worked continuously on the church, and two brothers helped out on weekends. When the crops came on we would stop working on the church until we had harvested what we had to harvest", Mr. Vogel said last week. He also added that his older sister's husband and his brother also worked on the building of the church.

According to Mr. Vogel, there is a real need presently for a new church. "I think we should consider building a church three times the size of the present one. There is only standing room now for services", he added.

Reflecting on the early days when he was just a small boy, Mr. Vogel said the family attended church in Milford. "This was in the horse and buggy days and we could not always go to church because of the weather, the distance, and other things which interfered", but he added that his father and mother were avid church goers.

St. Bernadette's Church was built approximately in 1952 to serve an overflowing congregation at that time. Mr. Vogel raised two very important points. According to him, there is a present need for a bigger church. The new church should be placed on the church property in such a manner that it faces east and extends to the west.

"Right where the church (Parish Committee) has selected a site for the new city hall is where a parking area should be for the new church. If the church sells this lot to the city it would cause problems when the new church is constructed", said Mr. Vogel. "The property should not be sold", he said most emphatically.

The other point made by Mr. Vogel was that two members of the church or the Parish Committee are associated with the City Council. Councilman Jim Boyd is a member of St. Bernadette's Church and sits on the town council. Mr. Leonard (Tom) Englehardt is a member of the Parish Council and a member and Chairman of the city's Planning and Zoning Commission. "I feel this is unfair and is a conflict of interest", added Mr. Vogel. "The need is there for a bigger church and I am totally against selling any property now belonging to the church. I am convinced that very soon the church will need all of the property which it owns on Liberty and Dixon Streets", he said.

Welch named Outstanding Citizen by Chamber of Commerce

by William Robertson
HARRINGTON - The Chamber of Commerce of Milford sponsored a recognition dinner last Friday evening at the Colony Inn to honor Mrs. Grace Welch, wife of Carroll Welch Jr., as Harrington's Most Outstanding Citizen.

The presentation of the award was made by Milford Chamber of Commerce President, Jack A. Nylund. The award recognized Mrs. Welch for her outstanding and ongoing contributions and community involvement within the City of Harrington.

Mrs. Welch, with tear filled eyes, thanked the members present at the dinner and said, "I don't really deserve this award because there were so many others that helped me as well". Also present at the recognition dinner was Paul Brown, Dean of Goldey Beacom College, who told members about Goldey Beacom's future plans for a new college building in the town of Milford.

Currently, a definite site has not been decided on, but when one is, the building will consist of four rooms and will offer up to 70 classes a week, Brown said.

Goldey Beacom is a fully accredited, multi-level institution which offers specialized training in the business field. The college has a placement rate of 96 to 97% and it is looking forward to opening a new branch in Milford, Brown said.

Bill Walls resigns as Harrington City Solicitor

by William Robertson
HARRINGTON—After five years of service to the Harrington City Council, Bill Walls, City Solicitor, turned in his letter of resignation Monday, April 27, to Mayor Harry G. Farrow, Jr.

In his letter of resignation to the mayor, Walls stated that his resignation would take effect as of Monday, April 27.

Walls stated in the letter that he was resigning because, "I have noticed over the past several months a deterioration of the city government, and I can no longer effectively represent the city. The various factions of council members, and the display of persons attitudes towards each other, make it nearly impossible to represent the city as one collective body."

Though Walls has resigned from the Harrington City Council he will still continue serving as city solicitor for three other towns.

Mayor Harry G. Farrow, Jr. said he is currently seeking somebody to fill the vacancy left by Walls.

Historical Society prepares for Dedication

On Sunday, May 3rd, the Greater Harrington Historical Society will see its dream come true, with the dedication of the Harrington Historical Museum with ceremonies beginning at one o'clock.

The Museum, located at 110 Fleming Street, Harrington, has been the focus of the Society's efforts for the past several years. On May 3, it will be opened to the public for tours following the dedication ceremonies.

Melvin Wyatt will serve as Master of Ceremonies and the program will include interesting speeches by Herman C. Brown, of Dover and Mrs. Kim Hitchens of Harrington. Kenneth McKnatt, President of the Harrington Historical Society will bring greetings and The Honorable G. Robert Quillen will make the formal dedication. Refreshments will be served following the ceremonies.

In the event of rain, the festivities will be held in Collins Hall of Asbury United Methodist Church, a short distance away.

The Museum building was the former site of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church. The congregation of the church had worshiped in the building from 1876 until 1960, with several periods when it was closed or used by another church group. In 1981, Mr. and Mrs. John Satterfield of Harrington purchased the building and presented it to the Historical Society. Through the past several years the Society has concentrated on a complete renovation of the building and replacing the original Rose Window from the church in the front wall of the structure. The window, which was completely reroled and repaired was placed in the museum just last week.

The public is invited to take part in the ceremonies on May 3, from 1 p.m. to 4:30.

Hattie Thomas honored by many at retirement banquet

by William Robertson
FELTON—It was a very special night for a very special person as Mrs. Hattie E. Thomas of Harrington, better known as "Miss Hattie", was honored by Senators, Representatives, State Fair officials, friends and family at a banquet held in honor of her retirement from the Delaware State Fair.

The banquet was held at the Felton Fire Hall and over 300 people attended to pay tribute to Miss Hattie, who was recognized by many for her dedication, hard work, and caring during her more than 40 years service to the fair.

Mr. Dennis Hazzard was the spokesman during the banquet and he introduced a number of guest speakers who read letters from those who were unable to attend, or they reminisced among the many fond memories they had of Miss Hattie's never-ending ability of trying to help anyone who needed help.

Almost every speaker at the banquet had one thing in common in all their speeches about Miss Hattie, and that one thing was how she cared so much for so many.

Friends of Miss Hattie came as far away as Florida to be with her at her retirement banquet. Those who could not attend sent telegrams and letters, which were given to her in a scrapbook to keep and cherish.

The Delaware State Legislature presented a resolution in Miss Hattie's name, which was unanimously approved by both the House and the Senate.

Officials of the Delaware State Fair

Miss Hattie Thomas

presented Miss Hattie with a street sign that had her name on it. The sign will replace the New Street sign presently on the fairgrounds. Also, a bench will be installed on the fairgrounds in honor of Miss Hattie.

She was also presented a painting of the building she worked in for more than 40 years and a check was given to her for $1,500 to do with as she pleases. After the speeches and the presentation, Miss Hattie was given a standing applause and was congratulated by many and given well wishes for a happy retirement.

Earl Yoder devotes 6 years to chapel's restoration

by William Robertson
HARRINGTON—A lot of time and hard work has been put into restoring St. Stephen's Chapel located on Fleming Street and two of the many people who spent countless hours on repairing the building were Earl Yoder and John Satterfield.

Yoder has been working on the chapel, now a museum, for the past six years.

When Yoder began work on the chapel it had red siding and asbestos shingles on it, the steeple was closed in, and the asphalt shingles on the roof were worn out.

When Yoder began work inside the church, he carefully took each piece of molding down and numbered it in order to put it back in the same spot when he was finished with the needed repairs.

Some pieces could not be saved due to decay, so Yoder skillfully used a magnifying glass to reproduce the details in newer pieces of wood to replace those that were unusable. He was also able to save part of the woodwork behind the stage. Those pieces that could not be saved, Yoder remade himself to match the original.

Not only did Yoder save as much of the original structure as he could, he was also responsible for duplicating the window in the vestibule and restoring the entrance doors to their original appearance.

John Satterfield is credited for providing the electrical work in the building and also, he and his men put the new floor joists under the chapel. The men constructed tunnels from the front end of the chapel to install the joints. Currently the chapel has three floors, Yoder said.

Yoder has restored other buildings with the oldest one being built in 1783 and is owned by Dan Link. Yoder said this is the first church he has ever redone but, "It's been fun putting it back together again."

Point of View

Should there be a mandatory seat belt law in Delaware?

Pearl Stewart, Harrington
 "I think there should be a mandatory seatbelt law because there are a lot of deaths on the highways and people don't wear them unless someone tells them to."

Donna Legates, Harrington
 "I don't think there should be a mandatory law. If you don't want to wear seatbelts you shouldn't have to. It should be left up to the individual to decide."

Kathy Williams, Greensboro
 "Everyone should have to wear seatbelts. There was only one time I didn't wear mine and the road was wet and the car slid. The whole time it was sliding, I thought to myself I don't have on my seat belt. Now I always wear them."

Allyson Coppock, Harrington
 "I think there should be a mandatory law because seatbelts are safe & they're a good thing to wear."

Frederica man discovers unknown grave site

by William Robertson

FREDERICA — Walter Savage of Frederica made a surprising discovery while digging a trench for a powerline when he stumbled upon a bundle of human bones.

Upon making the discovery he contacted Daniel R. Griffith, chief archeologist for the Bureau of Archeology and Historic Preservation. The bundle of bones recovered consisted of a long bone thought to be an arm or leg bone, a pelvis and a skull which were found about four feet in the ground.

From the appearance of the site where the bones were found, it appeared to be an intentional grave, Griffith said.

While exploring the area, Griffith hopes to find some physical evidence to date the site because trying to radiocarbon date the bones would be quite expensive.

Frederica was settled in the 1700's, but the bones were found in a grave site that extends underneath an existing structure which would make them at least 100 years old.

Due to the wet weather last week, the excavation has stopped until the area can dry out. Griffith hopes to resume the excavation for more findings by today.

Griffith advises anyone wanting to visit the site to wait at least another week.

Students express ideas on Harrington

Recently three girls from Mrs. Myer's fifth grade class at Lake Forest South Elementary won awards for their essays on what they thought of Harrington.

The essays were judged by the Greater Harrington Historical Society, and the 1st place essay will appear on the dedication program.

The winners and awards are: Kim Schiff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Schiff, a $50 Savings Bond; Barbara Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy, $10; and Heather Beauchamp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Beauchamp, $5.

Following is the essay submitted by each girl.

How I Feel About Harrington

by Kim Schiff
Chug chug, clang clang
The train is blocking the tracks.
I see old buildings and old big homes.
Skyscrapers and hurried crowds it lacks.
Small town, friendly people
What a peaceful place to live.
Where people all know each others' names,
And to one another help they give.

Whirr, whirr, whirr
How fast the fire and police department arrive.
Volunteers rush to the scene.
Not much traffic, easy to drive.
In the summertime the State Fair comes.
What a fun time it is for all!
The sun shines on green lawns and tall trees.
And the game for all is baseball.
When I grow up
And it's time to move away,
I wonder if I won't come to say
This is really where I want to stay.

Harrington
by Barbara Murphy
Harrington, Harrington is so sweet, no other town, town can compete.
With its beauty all around,
people enjoy coming to town.
Its State Fair is beyond compare, of any state anywhere.
There's no charge or tax to pay,
Everyone just shows up on Heritage Day.
Harrington is noted for its race track.

On the big day the stands are packed.
When you're hungry and want something to eat,
Our famous restaurants can't be beat.
Harrington is noted for its history,
Some of its houses have been here for centuries.
Harrington is more than just a town,
It's my hometown.

Harrington
by Heather Beauchamp
I think Harrington is a nice place to live. It is a small community. Harrington is a clean community. We have a good school system. There are several churches to choose from. There is a variety of eating places. These are just a few advantages.

There is a lot of things to see and do. There is the Taylor and Messick Museum. The Delaware State Fair is held each year in July. Also there is the Harrington Historical Museum and the Railroad Tower Museum. These are just a few reasons why I like Harrington.

State honors top students

Top students from Delaware public high schools will be honored by government and education officials at the State Superintendent's Scholars' Dinner scheduled for May 21 at the Dover Sheraton.

The boys and girls were selected by their principals for being the exemplary scholars of the Class of 1987 and for winning awards of state, regional, or national significance.

State Superintendent William B. Keene said the dinner is meant to recognize the students for their achievements and to encourage them to continue to strive for excellence.

"Their accomplishments show that those students have developed splendid work habits and discipline and have learned to exert themselves in pursuit of a goal," Dr. Keene said.

"These qualities of mind and character will prepare them to succeed in whatever endeavor they choose. They reflect great credit upon the help the students have received from their families, friends and neighbors, as well as upon the high level instruction given by their teachers."

Speakers at the dinner will include Gov. Michael N. Castle, and Charles E. Welch, president of the State Board of Education.

The students will receive certificates and a special medallion struck for the occasion.

Listed by school district, the scholars are: Lake Forest School District - Derek Dill; Milford School District - Scott J. Dickerson, Catherine E. Fisher and Ronda Webb; and Heth Chasanov of Woodbridge High School.

National Teacher Day to be celebrated

"A very special day for some very special, but often unheralded, people is coming up May 13, 1987," Lake Forest School District Superintendent Dr. James H. VanScliver reports.

"That is the day when we will celebrate National Teacher Day, a day set aside to honor our teachers for their contributions to our community."

"Teachers here at Lake Forest are proud of the work we do," says Vicky Boyd, President of the Lake Forest Education Association. "We want our community to share that pride."

According to Boyd, the local National Teacher Day celebration is part of a state and national teacher celebration developed by the National Educational Association.

Lake Forest Education Association members will be taking the opportunity of National Teacher Day to highlight and honor their colleagues for classroom success on behalf of Lake Forest students.

"I spent 32 years working for the Federal Government in Washington, DC. And when I retired, I put my training as a Certified Public Accountant to work, carefully analyzing different investments. I was going to make sure I would get the highest return possible.

"When I looked into several farming possibilities, the Farm Credit Administration advised that certain agricultural endeavors were risky propositions for people like me with limited experience. But growing chickens, they said, proved to be financially sound. Like any CPA, I spent a long time studying all the information I could get my hands on. Finally, I agreed with Farm Credit's findings, and I concluded furthermore that growing chickens for Perdue offered the best return for my money.

"I started out knowing nothing about chickens, so I expected a lot of surprises. But the biggest surprise I got was the degree, amount, and the quality of help I received from Perdue. They monitored the chickens' health, programmed the diets, ordered feed, and made sure the houses and systems were in top condition. Whenever I had a question or problem, I knew I could count on them 24 hours a day. And later, when I felt more confident, they continued to help. They even installed a computer to help with my flock management!

"I'm very pleased with Perdue. They're the reason I'm in the chicken business today, and they're the reason my business is a success. I have two houses now, and I'm in my tenth flock. When you add the income of that together with the tax credits, accelerated depreciation as available, and Perdue's professionalism, you get an excellent and safe investment!"

Old Dover Days to center around State's Bicentennial celebration

DOVER — Once a year, on the first weekend in May, the City of Dover opens her homes and gardens and historic buildings to visitors. Old Dover Day 1987 will center around the 200th anniversary of Delaware's ratification of the U.S. Constitution. Delaware was the first state to ratify and one of only three to ratify unanimously.

Much of the activity leading to the Ratification centered around Dover's historic Green, which was laid out in its present confines in 1717, as a market and meeting place. The Green has played an integral part in housing the statesmen, legislators, lawyers and merchants who helped to build a state and a nation. Many original homes and buildings still line the perimeter of the Green which today is the center of activity for Old Dover Days. This year, Old Dover Days will begin with a bicentennial parade of marching bands and horsedrawn carriages winding through Dover's tree-lined streets and ending at the Green where the traditional opening ceremonies take place.

The house and garden tour begins at 10 a.m. and continues throughout the day. Visitors, greeted by hostesses in period costumes are offered the unique opportunity to tour locations seldom open to the public. The private homes and gardens are a credit to their owners who spend months preparing for the influx of visitors on Dover Days. Numerous other activities such as maypole dancing, colonial games, a dog show, a craft show and displays, the Governor's tea and a variety of musical performances will also take place throughout the day.

This year's Old Dover Days promises to be one of the most memorable since it centers around the states bicentennial celebration.

Sponsored by the Friends of Old Dover, proceeds from Old Dover Days are used for the beautification of Dover. Dover Days tickets are available for advance purchase by writing to The Friends of Old Dover, P.O. Box 44, Dover, Delaware, 19903.

For further information, please contact Frankie Miller or Gigi Dux, Publicity Co-Chairman, 99 Kings Highway, P.O. Box 1401, Dover, Delaware, 19903, (302) 736-4271.

Harrington New Century Club News

by Kaye Sapp

On April 23, 1987, the Harrington New Century Club held a Reciprocity Tea with Mrs. Gardner Kersey presiding.

Our program was about the History of the Harrington New Century Club, which is celebrating it's 78th year. Narrating the History of the Club was Mrs. Joseph Brinster, reading the minutes of the first meeting and telling how the club was originally started and how the club has, through the years, helped with various community projects.

Also enjoyed by all was a very special slide presentation of Harrington by Mrs. Carroll Welch, from the Greater Harrington Historical Society.

The officers from our club wore Bicentennial dresses to greet the members and invited guests, who shared our Reciprocity Tea.

We held a 50-50 drawing, which was won by Mrs. Ruth Ann Bosworth of N. Jersey, daughter of Mrs. James Moore.

We will be having a very important business meeting on Wednesday, April 29, at 1 p.m. We ask that all members please try to attend!

Weldon Harcum, 11, suffered a broken arm, leg, fractured ribs, and possibly internal injuries late Tuesday afternoon when a bull charged him. He is in the Milford Memorial Hospital.

Young Harcum had gone with a younger brother to drive the cattle to the barn when the bull attacked him. He carried a pitchfork which held the animal off for a short time. It was stated that had not the bull been dehorned, the lad would have been killed.

Weldon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harcum of near Houston.

A plate-glass window was broken, late Saturday evening or early Sunday morning, in the recently opened furniture store of Paul Callaway on U.S. 13 a mile north of town.

Callaway said the window, valued at well over $100, was broken by beer bottles. He added tire tracks indicated the bottles were thrown from a car. State police are working on the case.

General Manager George C. Simpson said Wednesday the change in name, made at a directors meeting Thursday, April 13, was made mainly to clear up the track's charter.

The Harrington Lumber and Supply, Inc. which took its name shortly after the Downing family of Milford purchased it in 1942 has been sold to the lumbering Harmon family of Maryland.

State Police from troop 5, Bridgeville are searching for the person or persons who blasted Harrington Police Chief, Ed Layton's home outside Harrington with several shotgun blasts in the dark hours of Saturday morning.

Layton is also wondering who fired the shot & says "I have no idea who it might have been", he said at least two shots were fired, maybe more, and the damage done was the shattering of six windows in his home with duck loads from one or more shotguns.

State police recorded the complaint from the Chief at 2:05 a.m.

Layton says when it all started he was in bed and slid off into the floor. He said he reached up for the telephone and called for the troopers for help.

According to police, there are no suspects.

THE EIGHTH COMMANDMENT THOU SHALT NOT STEAL (Exodus 20:15)

Me steal, Lord? Surely you don't mean me. For I do believe I've never consciously taken property unlawfully. Ashtays?

Well, perhaps some little things like that. But never many, and anyway, that's common practice.

It's always seemed appropriate for ashtays to be "appropriated". Late?

Yes, I was late yesterday, but that's hardly highway robbery.

No, I hadn't thought of someone else's time as something priceless gone to waste. Never, ever, to be replaced.

Yes Lord, Yes. I'm beginning now to see the different things that I can steal, unwittingly.

Teach me now, before I go astray again; that larceny's not just black and white - it also comes in gray.

Harness Horse News

In The Pocket

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr.

Jim Campbell's got three reasons to reserve seats now for the $1 million Meadowlands Pace on July 17, and they are standing in Barn 3B.

Run The Table, Payson's Brother, and Dictionary have already proven themselves to be made of the right stuff, according to Jim Campbell.

"I'm in a good position," said Campbell. "There are three horses in my barn right now that I'd have to consider contenders for the Meadowlands Pace."

The Haughton Stable's eighty horses may be trickling in, but once they've all arrived at the Meadowlands, expect a wave of top performances.

This week, fifty more head of standardbreds will be making their way up the East Coast with barn 4 their destination. A star-studded group it is, with Don Miller and Ernie Gaskin handling four barns worth of top pacers and trotters.

Heading the list of three-year-old pacers is LPG Association's Parker Almahurst, who sustained a fracture in his right knee last year but has already won this year at Pompano in 1:59.

Hambletonian notes: Neapolitano, a son of Super Bowl out of Noble Sara, is a top prospect from the Haughton Stable. Setting a track record at Pocono last year of 2:00 3/5. The colt is good gaited, and has all the making of a Hambletonian horse.

Standing out in the crowd of qualifiers last Tuesday was Besieged, handled by Tommy Haughton. Sporting a "spider" across his nose, and a pair of grey sunglasses, Besieged was being schooled to accept dirt in his face, though he led all the way to win the qualifier in 1:59 3/5 and never had a chance to feel it.

The Haughton's two-year-old crop includes trotters by Joie de Vie and Speedy Crown, and pacing fillies by Ralph Hanover, Sonsam, and Raven Hanover, the latter out of a half-sister to Follow My Star.

"We trained 57 two-year-olds at Pompano this winter," said Haughton echoed by Don Miller and Ernie Gaskin, assistant trainers. "There are so many, it's really difficult to say right now who is the best of that group."

"It really doesn't seem fair that only my name appears in the program as trainer," said Miller. "Ernie has been with the Haughtons for 10 years and works on the horses on a day-to-day basis."

Originally from Cincinnati, New York, Miller attended Cornell University in the engineering program for three semesters. His father, Dr. Albert Miller, a former USTA director, owned horses, and his brother, Doug also trained for Haughton before going on his own.

Tangling with the top fillies and mares in the country has become almost a routine for Follow My Star. The four-year-old Governor Skipper mare first opened the public's eyes with her 1:57 score in her pari-mutual debut in the Debutante Stakes as a freshman and has been performing in the best company since.

After being voted Two-Year-Old Pacing Filly of 1985, big things were planned for 1986. Unfortunately, a foot problem hampered much of her early season and she only managed to start eleven times.

"Her front left foot has always been a problem. We have to be careful in treating her. She has a boil-like bruise at the bottom of her foot and constant hitting the ground will aggravate it. It doesn't take much to stir it up," said Bruce Nickells, her trainer.

Nickells took matters in his own hands and had a special aluminum egg-bar shoe made for her.

"This shoe covers the boil and she doesn't strike the ground with it. She appears to be much better than before," said Nickells.

What's in store for the Governor Skipper-Circle Home mare for 1987? Nickells reports she will be bred to Nihilator in May, and plans call for her to race in the Opens and Invitational at the Meadowlands. In addition, she is eligible to several major stakes.

His counterparts and fans, too, sit in awe as they watch John Campbell gracefully guide a horse in a race at Meadowlands.

He's a driver always in control whether it is an ordinary race or a million dollar one.

He's a Joe DiMaggio type," says Bob Heyden, the Big M's statistician.

But one discovered recently that there is a different side to the Canadian-born linesman. And when you learn of it, it would come as a big surprise. This other side of Campbell came to light a couple weeks ago.

It happens once a year that Campbell, the cool fellow, changes his disposition. Hockey is responsible for Campbell stepping out of character. Coming from hockey country, it's no surprise he's an addict of the game.

"I'm a crazy at the games," he'll tell you. "I'm a fan in every sense of the word."

Two weeks ago he notified owners and trainers he was taking off a couple of days. He had to make a trip to Detroit, Mich., to watch some hockey. He was an invited guest of close friend Mel Bridgeman, the ex-New Jersey Devil, now playing for Detroit Red Wings.

Campbell watched the first two Red Devils-Chicago Blackhawks playoffs. "If people think I have no emotion, they should have seen me at those games," noted Campbell. "I went wild, I had a great time."

Born in London, Ont., John's early hockey favorite was the Toronto Maple Leafs team. He lives in New Jersey now, so he has changed allegiance and is a Devils season ticket holder.

"I made it as far as a junior in hockey," he says, "but then came a choice between harness and hockey. I wasn't good enough to continue hockey, so that was that."

Only the second driver in the history of harness racing to pass the $50 million mark in purses for his career-Herve Filion is the other, Campbell is gunning for his fifth Big M driving title. He has led the track's standings almost from the first day of the meeting.

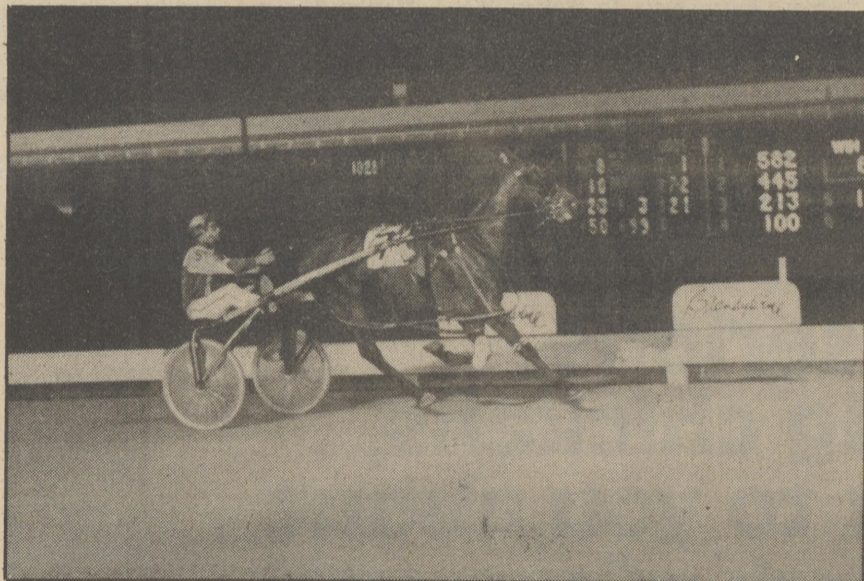

Joe Fowler, popular sportscaster for FOX TV's Washington affiliate, WTIG-Channel 5, was the winner Saturday night in Rosecroft Raceway's leg of The George Plimpton Celebrity Challenge Series. The series was founded in 1986 by The North American Harness Racing Marketing Association. Top stars participating in Rosecroft's race included: series host, George Plimpton; fashion designer, Oleg Cassini; ex-Oakland Raider quarterback, Ken "The Snake" Stabler; Connecticut Senator, Lowell P. Weicker; and Washington Redskin, Mark May. Their goal was to raise $5,000 for charity.

Fowler's win was worth $2,000 for his favorite charity, The March of Dimes, and qualified him for The Plimpton Challenge Final to be held at Saratoga Raceway on Friday, August 14. A win in the Final will be worth an additional $5,000 for the winner's charity. Other charities represented by celebrities in Rosecroft's race received $1,000 each.

No major stake races of any consequence over the weekend. The major trot was held on Monday night at The Meadowlands. The $25,000 Featured Trot was won by Dicks Bell over Whip It Wood, Franconia, Romeo Lauxmont, and Pizzelle. Dicks Bell was driven by Ray Remmen in 1:57, the four race win streak of Whip It Wood was snapped. The favorite in these parts from Milford, DE drew the eighth post, and was hung on the limb the entire mile. The Herman C. Brown owned Pizzelle driven by veteran Eddie Davis drew the fourth post was last at the sixteenth pole but passed three horses before the wire. "She went a good race probably had the best trotters in the country right there", added Brown. Brown also added in defense of Whip It Wood, that he probably went one of his best races "hung the entire mile". Jate Lobell qualified at The Meadowlands on Saturday for this Friday's major race zipping the mile in 1:55.3. The undefeated 1986 champion will make his 3 year old debut this Friday at The Meadowlands in the $68,000 added New Jersey Sires Stake. Drivers standings are as follows: 1. Mike Lachance (209); 2. Terry Buter (164); 3. John Campbell (157); 4. Bill O'Donnell (153); 5. Herve Filion (149). The new leader in money winnings is Bill O'Donnell with $1.665 millions.

King Charles unleashed a powerful 1:58.2 performance to turn back eight rivals in the Tuesday night 2nd round of The Stepping Stone Series at Brandywine. Jody Stafford guided Joseph Yellan's 4-year-old Niatross gelding to this third win in four career starts this season. Photo by Jack Bungarz

State eyes Bridgeville referendum

When Bridgeville voters go to the polls May 4 to turn thumbs up or down on more funding for a new sewage treatment plant no one will be watching the outcome closer than Division of Water Resources officials. "EPA, the state and the town of Bridgeville have already invested $300,000 in the project," said Gerald L. Esposito, the division's deputy director. "It's in everyone's best interest for the town to come up with the extra money to pay for construction of the plant that has been designed. If the referendum doesn't pass, the money already expended will be wasted, and redesigning a new plant won't be grant eligible. The town may wind up paying all costs of redesigning the system."

"It will also take at least a year and a half for the town to get back to where it is now, with a design and ready for bids," Esposito said. "If construction started tomorrow, they still probably couldn't meet the July 1988 federal Clean Water Act deadline for upgrading the plant, but they could come close."

This is the second sewage treatment plant referendum for Bridgeville in four months. When bids for the new plant came in higher than the amount previously okayed by townspeople, a referendum was held by the Bridgeville commissioners to get approval to borrow more money to make up the town's share of the difference. The voters said no.

The May 4 referendum was scheduled to give Bridgeville citizens a chance to reconsider.

"Ultimately the average household cost is going to be the same, whether Bridgeville builds the plant that is already designed or a scaled down version," Esposito said. "The state's primary interest is meeting the July 1988 deadline for the upgrade. But if the town is forced to scrap this design and pay for another one it will be like paying Cadillac prices for a Chevrolet when you could go ahead and get the Cadillac at the same cost."

Earnhardt makes it four in a row in Sovran 500

MARTINSVILLE, Va.—Dale Earnhardt, who thrives in victories and luck, was almost apologetic Sunday after coming up with his fourth straight victory.

Earnhardt, seemingly locked in a battle for second place, charged past a spinning Geoff Bodine and into the lead just 17 laps from the end of the Sovran Bank 500.

Bodine, with about a five-second lead over Earnhardt and Rusty Wallace, was bumped off the track into the infield grass in a tangle with Kyle Petty in turn two on the half-mile Martinsville Speedway oval.

Earnhardt, the defending Winston Cup champion, now has six victories in the first eight races of the NASCAR stock car season. The best previous start was five wins in the first 10 races, a feat accomplished six times, the last in 1975 by Richard Petty.

Luck has been Earnhardt's ally most of the season.

He won last month at Darlington when Bill Elliott ran out of gas while leading on the last lap. Two weeks ago at Bristol, Tenn., Earnhardt was involved in a controversial accident with Sterling Marlin, which knocked the race-leading Marlin into the wall and out of action, but left Earnhardt's Chevrolet intact.

Earnhardt attributed his success to lots of luck. He said Bodine was really worked up and doubted he could have beaten him. Dale announced that the front end was out of line due to hitting a curb.

Bodine, who seemed well on his way to ending a 26-race victory drought, stretching back to last May at Dover, Del., was working hard to keep his emotions under control following the race.

He said he was really hurting (feelings) as a result of being knocked out of the race.

Bodine, who lost the season-opening Daytona 500 to Bill Elliott when he ran out of gas late in the race.

The winner, who averaged 72.808 mph and won $50,850, crossed the finish line for his 26th career victory 2.82 seconds ahead of Wallace, while Bodine recovered to take third. Phil Parsons was fourth, the last driver on the lead lap, followed a lap behind by Terry Labonte and Bill Elliott.

Labonte, who broke his shoulder blade in a crash last month at Darlington, S.C., drove all the way in his first race since the accident.

The last driver to win four in a row on the NASCAR circuit was Darrell Waltrip in 1981. The all-time record is 10 in a row in 1967 by Richard Petty.

Only six cars remained on the lead lap at the halfway point, with Earnhardt, Wallace, Elliott, Bodine and Waltrip taking turns in the lead and Parsons contending strongly.

Waltrip, who has yet to finish in the top five since joining a new team at the start of this season, was running a strong third before retiring suddenly on lap 360 with an oil pressure problem.

There were 11 caution flags, a lot of fender-banging and spins but no serious incidents and no injuries.

The last of those caution flags came out on lap 366 when Bobby Allison spun.

The leaders all pitted during that caution period and Bodine came off pit road with his first lead of the day. It stayed that way until lap 484.

Morgan Shepherd, who started from the pole, led the first 34 laps before tangling with the slower car of Steve Christman, as Shepherd tried to get past in turn No. 2. Both cars were able to continue, but Shepherd never again was able to get to the front.

Wallace, Bodine and Phil Parsons were on the lead lap. Labonte, Elliott, and Schrader were two laps down. Bobby Allison and Neil Bonnett were three and four laps down respectively.

Rudd retired on lap 440 with rear end failure. Morgan Shepherd went out on lap 396 with engine failure as did Darrell Waltrip on lap 360. Richard Petty broke a timing chain, Dave Marcis with rear end problems and Harry Gant with rear end problems on lap 186. Gant, who has always run strong, seems to be fading.

Dale Earnhardt lead in points, the 76 Point Fund, the Stewart-Warner Track Force award, the True Value Hard Charger award and the Gatorade Circle of Champions. Looks like a Dale Earnhardt year, and he isn't even a Brewer.

Father and son dominate Sunday at U.S. Dragway

by Charlie Brown

DELMAR, DE—Sterling Clough of Marion, Md. and his son Stacy Clough of Wyoming, DE captured the two top division at the U.S. 13 Dragway Sunday. Michale Durham was the winner in Pro Bike and Alonzo Manokey won Hot Rod Trophy.

Sterling Clough was the winner in "Quick 16" for the first time in his altered. Clough took advantage of a red light by Karl Martel and ran a 11.02/96.2 to Martel's 13.68/73.2. Quarter finalist went to Bob Johnson, Wayne Anthony, Frank Lecates and Bruce Anthony.

Stacy Clough was the quickest off the tree to win Combo Eliminator. Clough ran a 15.84/76.59 to defeat runner-up Riley Williamson who ran a 11.73/120.1. Semi-finalist were Ronnie Bishop with a 11.25/118.2 and Garry Donaway with a 12.42/103.4. Quarter-finalist were Bill Groton, Jim Mayers and Wayne Wilson.

Bowden broke on the line.

Hot Rod Trophy Eliminator was Alonzo Manokey with a 12.60/109.3 over John Merritt who ran a 13.21/105.6.

The finals from last weeks rainout were run with Harry Tschop winning Super ET. Tschop ran a 10.87/114.3 over Bill Groton who posted a 11.97/109.6. Bob Johnson was the semi-finalist with a 10.65/125.87.

Heavy Eliminator was captured by David Fleming over Tom Griffith. Fleming ran a 12.15/111.2 to a 13.47/99.7 by Griffith. Stacy Clough was the semi-finalist with a 15.86/83.7.

Hot Rod Trophy Eliminator was Mark Benson with a 13.49/100.1 over Leon Johnson with a 12.8/106.

Lee Dean with his 7 second Firebird, Joe Clark in his Camaro and Frank Iacono in his Thunderbird will be just a few of the screaming Pro Stocks that will be qualifying at 12 noon. Also on the program will be the $1000 Super ET, Heavy ET, Pro Bike and Hot Rod Trophy.

Parson, Baker close gap on Fords at Talladega

Buddy Baker

Phil Parsons

TALLADEGA, AL--Phil Parsons and Buddy Baker topped the first week of intensive pre-race testing at Talladega by posting the fastest laps ever run in General Motors cars as preparations continue for the May 3rd Winston 500.

Baker was the first to crack the 210 mile per hour barrier, clocking 210.462 mph in his Olds last Thursday afternoon. Parsons followed with 210.739 in his Oldsmobile. Bobby Allison's qualifying run of 209.274 mph in the Miller Buick for last year's Winston 500 is the current official mark.

Parsons made his run on a repaired engine.

"That was the same engine that we used for qualifying at Daytona when we ran only about 205," revealed Parsons. "When we got back to the garage, we discovered that it had had a cracked head all along, and we didn't know it."

Bill Elliott, who had posted 214.660 here in January, clocked 211.717 in his Ford. Fords driven by Elliott, Kyle Petty and Davey Allison, have posted the three fastest practice times so far this year.

In the 208 range were Rick Wilson in an Olds and Ricky Rudd in a Ford, while Labonte hit 207 in a Chevrolet and Yarborough posted 206.5 in an Olds.

Drivers and crew chiefs alike noted that a fluctuating barometer and strong winds kept them from posting very quick times. Baker, in particular, was affected by the wind.

"Every time I'd come off of the banking in turn two, that crosswind would hit the car, and I'd go 'Whooooaa!'," said Baker. "That's a real thrill at more than 200 miles an hour."

also be part of the agenda.

Sunday 4:00 p.m. starting time rain dates are in effect for all these dates with the exception of the final Sunday of the month of May. That date, May 31st, finds another spectacular program of open competition big block modified racing slated. Budd Olsen Speed Supplies will sponsor this day with the winner of the modified main receiving a $100.00 gift certificate from BOSS and a huge trophy. The big blocks will also have a unique chance to run for $500.00 edition of the "Fans Favorite" for 1987. The small block modifieds card will be topped by two 20-lap feature races which have proved so highly popular with the faithful supporters of racing at this usually velvet smooth and tacky half-mile clay oval. The small block modifieds return on Fridays May 15th, 22nd, and 29th for regular shows that include $500.00 in win heat races and a 25-lap main event. As is the case for each and every Friday night race at East Windsor Speedway through September the late models and street stocks will

New look at new Egypt Speedway season opener Sunday May 3

NEW EGYPT, NJ — When the mother and son auto racing directorship team of Tessie and Jimmie Grbac begin their newest campaign of doing such at the New Egypt Speedway on Sunday afternoon, May 3rd, at 1:00 p.m. they will surely be presenting what you could call a big and interesting new look aimed at making their operation even more exciting to the fans.

For the initial time in this duo's colorful career the Grbac family will be moving the small block modified division into the number one attraction replacing the rapidly diminishing big block modifieds. A move that has become so prevalent on the local dirt track racing circuit in recent years has now taken over the fast one-quarter mile paved oval.

The small block Modified Affordable Division offers a much more affordable alternative to the highly expensive and immaculate big block racer. Yet a M.A.D. car is very similar in appearance to these long-time favorites.

What is most important though is they present constant side-by-side racing action and loads of passing, not follow the leader one groove racing. That is what the fans pay their hard earned entertainment dollars to see and that is what New Egypt Speedway management is striving to give them in 1987.

A big 100-lap "Spring Fling" feature race paying an attractive $1,000 to win starts the new season off Sunday, May 3rd, for these small block racers. To make things even more interesting, big block favorites John Blewett, Jr. and Doug Wolcott have already landed small block riders for this lucrative event and others are expected to follow in their steps.

Joining the small blocks for the opener will be the late model street stocks running a 30-lap feature race. The potent mini-modifieds begin their new season with a 20-lap main. Rounding out this hectic four division racing card is the new budget type street stock division.

Monmouth County Cable Television (Channel 34) will be on hand opening day to video tape the day's entire proceedings. They will be shown at a later date to the homes of its over 65,000 subscribers. They will also return on Sunday, May 17th to video tape the starting at 11:00 A.M. Budweiser Mud Hop Series. This day will find the "Mud Man" monster truck crush a Winebago motor home formerly used by this cable television company in a feat never attempted before.

Prior to the May 3rd race, the speedway will be open from noon till 4:00 p.m. on Saturday, May 2nd for a free-to-the-public practice session. All four divisions that will also comprise the steady Friday evening racing card starting on May 29th at 7:30 p.m. will be allowed to work out the kinks in their new racing equipment.

New Egypt Speedway is located seven miles southwest of the well-known Six Flags Great Adventure Park. More details are available by phoning either (201) 545-0539 or (201) 247-2479.

Wall races into May with four features Saturday

WALL TOWNSHIP, N.J.-- Wall Stadium continues its 38th consecutive season of stock car auto racing this Saturday night, May 2, with 4 exciting divisions of racing action.

The high-powered modifieds, led by defending champ Tom Mauer of Farmingdale, will do battle in a 35-lap headliner with 22-cars taking the green flag.

Qualifying for all 4 divisions will kick off the action promptly at 7:00 p.m. with the pit gates opening at 4:30 p.m. and the spectator area opening at 5 p.m.

Dates to remember in May are the "First Jersey Insurance Night" on the 9th, Memorial Day Weekend "Twin 35's" for modifieds on the 23rd and 100-car Demolition Derby on the 24th and the "Mini-Indy Special" for the T-Q midgets on the 30th.

Roth urges and emergency U.S. - Japan summit on trade

WASHINGTON — In letters to President Reagan and Japanese Prime Minister Nakasone, Senator William V. Roth, Jr., R-Del., has proposed an emergency Joint Executive/Parliamentary Summit to address growing trade tensions between the United States and Japan. Unlike previous summits, Roth's trade summit would include members from the U.S. Congress and the Japanese Diet.

The trade summit would be held under the direction of the President and Prime Minister Nakasone. It would include members of the U.S. Congress and all factions of the Liberal Democratic Party in the Japan Diet, as well as representatives from the U.S. Executive Branch and from Japan's key ministries. These would include Japan's Ministry of Finance, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry, the Ministry of Agriculture, as well as the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. The express mandate of the summit, according to Roth, would be to establish mutually agreed facts and objectives for improvement in our trade and economic relations and to establish targets for achieving these objectives.

Roth outlined his idea to both President Reagan and Prime Minister Nakasone in letters sent last week: "It is clear that we are at a critical juncture in bilateral relations between the United States and Japan," Roth said. "Right now we are on a confrontation course...The situation between our two countries will become increasingly dangerous without a politically-agreed set of facts and objectives and a timetable for action...I believe we should not delay in moving the debate beyond the rhetoric and into substance.

"Meaningful negotiations must take place at the highest political level, at a special summit of political leaders from both our countries," Roth said in the letters. "Only in the context of such a summit can we get at the underlying issue on which our whole relationship depends--political will...If we do not change direction now, we are bound to witness further strain in our bilateral relations. On the other hand, if we bring our political leaders together for a fact-finding summit, our legislative branches can play a significant role in efforts to cooperatively resolve our differences."

Roth also revealed his proposal while

Senator Minner's column

by Sen. Ruth Ann Minner
18th District

There have been a lot of reports in the media lately about banking legislation and, judging from my mail and telephone calls, many citizens are confused about this "interstate banking" legislation.

I'd like to take this opportunity to reassure Delawareans that "interstate banking" won't have any noticeable effect on the day-to-day dealings between you and your friendly neighborhood bank.

The package of bills introduced in the General Assembly recently is designed to retain Delaware's competitive advantage with banks in neighboring and distant states.

Basically, the bills deal with three major areas. First, they authorize Delaware banks to deal in securities, which they presently cannot buy or sell. Secondly, the bills allow commercial banks to acquire or be acquired by bank holding companies in other states which have legalized interstate banking. And third, the bills authorize savings and loan banks, the so-called thrift institutions, to acquire or be acquired by out-of-state banks.

Delaware has become a recognized "Small Wonder" in the banking community because of the Financial Center Development Act passed by the General Assembly several years ago.

As a result of that legislation,

Delaware has lured more than a dozen of the nation's largest banks to set up credit card or other operations in our State. That law alone is credited with creating more than 20,000 new jobs in Delaware.

The proposed new banking legislation won't allow out-of-state banks to gobble up Delaware banks. Any action to take over or be taken over by a foreign bank will still be subject of a vote of the local bank board and the stockholders.

If the bills pass, you'll probably not be able to notice any difference in your daily banking transactions. Even if an out-of-state bank acquires a Delaware bank, about the only change that will be noticeable might be a change of name, like the Farmers Bank became Mellon Bank some years ago.

What the bills will do is allow Delaware to remain competitive with banks in other states, strengthen Delaware's position as a major banking center, and bring in additional revenue.

I'm hopeful this column will set some of fears expressed to me to rest.

For those of you who may have missed me, I've been in Johns Hopkins Hospital to have a rib and some floating splinters removed. My doctor assures me that the extreme pain I've been suffering will be a thing of the past and that I'll be as 'ornery as ever in a couple of weeks.

Thoughts from Washington

The future of NATO

by U.S. Senator Bill Roth

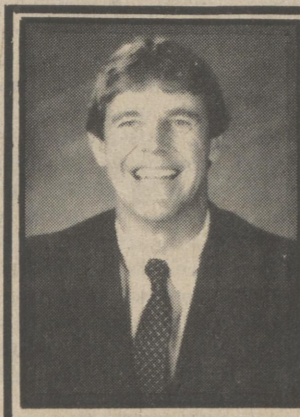

Lately, the news has been filled with stories about arms control negotiations between the U.S. and the Soviet Union. Talk of a potential reduction in medium and short range missiles in Europe has also brought about speculation as to what this will mean to the future of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). NATO has kept the peace in Western Europe for forty years; it has been the basis of security for that region of the world. As part of the Western Alliance, it is important that the U.S. maintain this valuable relationship.

In keeping with that thought, I recently lead the Senate Delegation to a meeting of the Standing Committee of the North Atlantic Assembly, the parliamentary body of NATO. I was appointed by the Standing Committee to chair a special committee to direct this "NATO 2000 Project", an in-depth study on the future of NATO. I plan to focus on several key areas in undertaking this study. They include increasing the contribution to the defense changes in NATO's military structure. I am pleased to say that the Standing Committee approved my proposal and we can now proceed with further work on the "NATO 2000 Project."

The NATO 2000 Committee will draw on a variety of sources to conduct the study. At least a dozen U.S. and European experts in security to conduct the study. At least a dozen U.S. and European experts in security issues will be asked to contribute assessments of all pertinent issues. We will hold hearings in the U.S. and Europe to hear ideas of current and former top officials and academics on NATO's future. In addition, we will ask both critics and defenders of the Alliance to submit statements for examination. My committee will meet several times over the next two years before publishing a comprehensive report in 1988.

I have consistently urged that our NATO allies must pick up a larger share of the defense costs of Western Europe. In fact, in 1984, Senator Sam Nunn and I were successful in persuading the Europeans to pay more of their share of NATO's defense by pushing legislation to that effect. I plan to make cost sharing of NATO's expenses a crucial consideration of this study.

With the growing debate on the future of NATO, especially the U.S. role, the NATO 2000 study will serve in laying the groundwork, on which to base decision affecting the future of NATO.

Performance and Potential

Joe Paterno, legendary football coach at Penn State University, is given credit for coining the phrase, "You can't play potential."

In education, we may take that statement one step further. "It is extremely difficult to measure potential."

We try to do it all the time. We use standardized tests or teacher-made tests. We measure students' knowledge and rank them with all others who took the test. This is called norm-referenced testing. We also simply measure how much information students are able to give back to us. That is called criterion-referenced testing.

These measurement tools don't always do an adequate job of revealing performance. They are less likely to act as a crystal ball and predict an individual's future.

In terms of performance, the test administrator knows not whether all students had adequate rest, a wholesome meal, a disagreement with a friend, a flat tire, lost a job, or recently had some other form of significant emotional experience. All or any one of these factors could drastically skew the results of the test. A final, and perhaps most important variable is the effort the student puts forth during the test. For reasons particular to the individual, some students would rather not do well. While the results of these measurement tools are, at best, questionable, they are none-the-less used to make important decisions regarding the future of our children. What class to take next, post graduation plans, what type of employment to recommend. Tests, as well as personal interviews, staff recommendations and considerable thought are all part of the process of making decisions regarding our youth.

If it is true that it is difficult to measure performance in this manner, to attempt to define potential is indeed a risky business.

Students must assist in this process. By controlling as many of the external variables as possible and by "giving their best" during test time, they provide for educators the information which will most help in planning for the future.

For educators, it must be understood that these tests are measures of performance and subject to criticism at that. They are least likely to be valid predictors of the future. They are just one of a myriad of factors which must be taken into consideration when making these important decisions.

Is performance a valid predictor of potential? Is potential a valid predictor of performance?

One wonders how Joe Paterno would react to that.

Capital punishment -- fact or fiction?

For decades, the United States has followed the lead of England regarding capital punishment, England had all but abolished it, whereas in the U.S. 39 state have it on the books. Of the 39, only a handful have carried it out, and that is only in the last couple of years.

England is where we get law which is the Common Law...the basis for all law.

This summer England will in some capital offenses return to capital punishment. In recent years crimes of a capital nature have soared in England, and the feeling that capital punishment must be returned.

The basis for opposition to capital punishment is simply that it is anti-Christian. I think this is the real opposition to this form of punishment.

The argument that in some capital offenders, capital punishment or life without parole is necessary, because some of these offenders would never again be able to return to society.

This whole matter came before our eyes just prior to the Easter holidays when John Hinkley applied for a parole without supervision. Hinkley, you remember, is the attempted assassin of President Reagan. In this case it was apparent that the hospital administrative staff felt compelled to succumb to the wishes of the few. The hospital...St. Elizabeth's...could not stand up under the pressures.

It seems fortunate now that someone continued to fight his release, because what has emerged are letters to convicted murderers Manson and Bundy, where he seemed to be sympathetic to their cause as though he was subscribing to what they had done...or in the alternative "accomplished". These bits of incriminating facts together with the photos of Jody Foster indicated that he should not now or ever be released from confinement.

This is the problem which many in the position of supervising inmates or some of those in society that certain convicted capital offenders can never be returned to society.

The recent capital case before the Supreme Court challenging racial discrimination across the country regarding those who are death row was denied in a 5-4 decision by the high court. In Maryland 16 of 18 defendants are black and in Delaware there are currently 5 on death row four of which are black.

The Supreme Court case last week was a Georgia case in which McCaskey, the defendant, who was black, had shot and killed an Atlanta police officer during the course of a holdup attempt.

It was a bad case to prove racial discrimination, because regardless of race, color, religion or national origin...if you commit a capital offense such as killing a law enforcement officer, the penalty should be death.

This is where the decision making becomes more rigidly defined. The death penalty should be imposed in those cases of "...an exotic nature...". The question here becomes, should the penalty be imposed in the case of a minor.

In Delaware today, if a jury finds the defendant guilty of a capital offense regardless of age, the defendant is subject to the death penalty. Who could or would execute an eight year old or a 10 year old?

Again, this could revert back to life without parole situations. In Maryland within the past month, the death penalty for minors has been changed. You must have reached your age of maturity.

Hats off to our citizens

The Harrington Journal wishes to extend congratulations to Mrs. Carroll (Grace) Welch, Jr. for being named "Harrington's Outstanding Citizen" on Friday night at the Colony Inn in Harrington.

The combined chambers of Milford-Harrington Chamber of Commerce presented the award to Mrs. Welch.

The award was well over due to Grace Welch. Her outstanding devotion to promoting the City of Harrington goes back further than her involvement in "Heritage Day". She has always been one who talked up this community and its citizens.

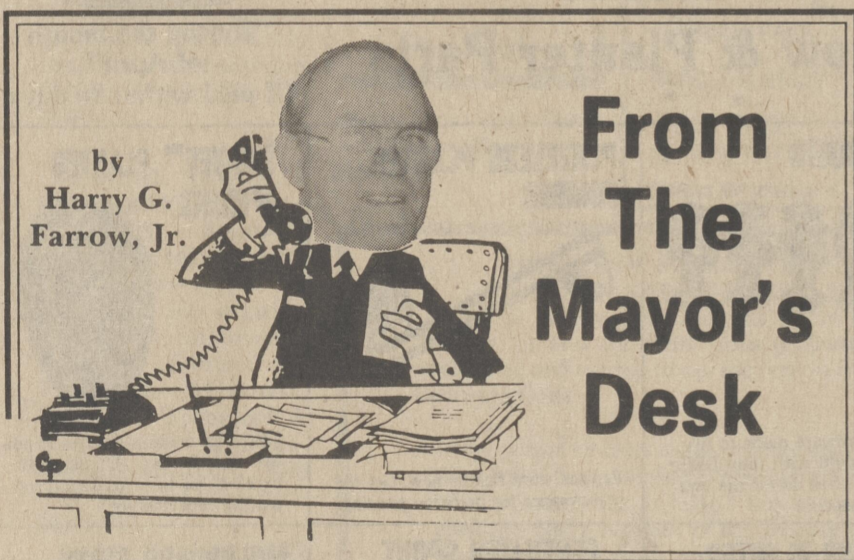

Again, congratulations to Grace and her family for this fine tribute. This Sunday, The Greater Harrington Historical Society will hold an open house and dedication of the Museum on Fleming Street.

It is truly a beautiful monument for the future as a remembrance of the past which many of us hold so dear to our memory and hearts.

The cornerstone to this fine building lies with John and Pauline Satterfield of Dorman Street. Mr. and Mrs. Satterfield bought and donated the building which was the Episcopal Church in Harrington for many, many years.

Regardless of the reasons for the Satterfields completing this endowment for our future, it took someone like them to step forward and do it. I salute them for this finest thought, and may they enjoy the Museum as much as the rest of the community and the outside world will also.

Thanks again.

From The Mayor's Desk

Recent developments in the City concerning "trailers, double-wides" and the like have created a heated discussion on this matter. This very thing involves a matter of the City adopting a "...housing code" in order to control the type of housing which is constructed in our City.

For many years, the council was supposed to adopt a housing code. Until last Monday's workshop, the council had not moved toward a plan. The City will follow that for the most part passed by the State. It is mandatory that the City have a housing code by the 1st of July 1987 or the State's version would become law.

The housing code which is under consideration relates to "residential" only. It has to do with rental properties and properties unoccupied being offered for sale.

This important legislation should have been passed long, long ago. It is also the type of material for which a subcommittee should be formed for the purposes of research and recommendations back to the council. This is not to say the council should not carry on their own independent research...for they should. I feel more bodies and more minds should be involved in this very thing to come up with better input. In many cases it is too much work for one body like the council to undertake.

We need to move forward and get jobs like this completed instead of letting them hang fire. We should avoid a situation where we are forced to do something. The City should endeavor to avoid these pitfalls.

I am still asking the community to submit names for service on various committees. If you are interested in serving, please call me.

We invite you to submit

Delaware cats

by Rebecca Moore

Several weeks ago, a feline frenzy descended upon Dover. We were treated to a cat show—the first of its kind in the area. For those of us who have difficulties resisting the sleek, four-legged beauties, this would be an opportunity to go and view what the local area had to offer, or so we thought. So we paid our money, and entered a large gymnasium. The room was crowded with hundreds of people, cages, judging stands, and popping flashbulbs. The occupants of the cages were not, as I had expected, local beauties, but were from all over the country, each bearing a pedigree, and a DO NOT TOUCH sign. This was the height of frustration for me, because a cat was meant to be "scratched", but I was barely allowed to look at them, let alone breathe my germs on them, let alone actually touch one of the exotic creatures. Oh, yes, they were incredibly beautiful, from the Persians to the Oriental Shorthairs—beautiful, but totally unapproachable. I understand the owners' position. These cats are expensive (a minimum of $200.00) and require a great deal of care to maintain their good looks—they're an investment, and who wants their investments fiddled with? I guess I'm just so accustomed to my good old Delaware cats that all this pedigree perfection got in the way of the pleasure I could have derived from the cat show.

I've had cats all my life. With one exception, all my cats have been Delaware cats, but I guess it's safe to assume that all cats, whether they be from Denver or Denmark, are just like Delaware cats. From Hunnis, (my only non-Delaware cat) to Teeny to Jordan to all those in between, cats have always been and always will be my passion. Teeny, my Siamese, was the only aristocrat snob I ever owned. I think I prefer the good old barnyard specials that come with a standard six-cylinder motor. This type of cat will never win a prize at a cat show, but I'll never have to worry about her sneaking out the door and messing up her pedigree, either.

Cats are not demonstrative, affectionate animals. They are, for the most part, strong-willed (ever try to teach one to stay off your curtains?) and independent...until it's mealtime. How often have I felt like some ill-fated individual floating somewhere in the south Pacific waters, watching the sharks circling around him; for every One of the many cats in the Cat Show is being purrfectly pampered by its owner.

The relationship between a cat and its owner can be a strong one and with a face like this cat has there's no wonder why.

time a can is opened, a burner turned on, or the refrigerator door opened, I am suddenly encircled by a mass of paws and purrs anxiously waiting for some morsel to drop. How do you explain to four expectant, furry faces that a can of Del Monte pears simply will not please their palates? Anyway, what little affection a cat demonstrates is strictly in their own time and usually towards someone who despises them. Picture this scenario: Ten local ladies are visiting your home to make plans for the up and coming strawberry festival. Nine are avid cat lovers, the tenth is an avowed cat hater. Enter one be-whiskered furball. He surveys the situation incuriously, pointing his nose in the air from time to time (cat haters must all emit the same aroma), and, quite predictably, ignores all nine bids for his attention, and gracefully alights in the uncharitable, unwelcoming lap of the one and only cat hater.

Consider this situation: How many times have you grown hoarse from your futile attempts at cajoling some gorgeous feline into your lap? All the "Here Kitty, Kittys" in the world fall on deaf ears if Kitty, Kitty is not in the mood, or you're not the possessor of a dish of ice cream.

At present, the cat population in my home numbers a total of four. Each has his or her own idiosyncrasies. Jerusha, my calico, is dreadfully moody, and has cornered the market on hisses and growls. Reuben must have left his purr at the vet's last time he visited. Resolve resembles a skunk, and has no time for human beings unless he's hungry, or he suspects you have something edible.

Harmony, our latest addition, is a beautiful tapestry calico, who has taken it upon herself to single-handedly, keep our vet in business. They all leave me various and sundry mole by-products strewn across the garage floor. They all possess an uncanny ability to know exactly when it's time to go out to the garage for the night, and they seem to vanish into thin air. They do not meow a warning at intruders; they do not display any form of loyalty; they do not pull a plow or provide milk for my table. They do, however, shed all over my furniture, present us with fleas, and leave anonymous surprises under my hutch cabinet and in my son's closet.

Have I flipped? Why do I have such a passion for my Delaware cats? Oh, the answer to that is really quite simple. For when Kitty is in the mood, what a pleasure it is to have that warm body of fur curl into a ball in my lap, gaze adoringly into my eyes, and produce that deep-seated, auditory indication of contentment. This occasional change of character is well worth the aggravation, and definitely worth waiting for!
