

Temporary City Manager named — Volenik offered consultant job

by William Robertson
HARRINGTON — A temporary city manager has been selected to fill the position left vacant by Mr. George Volenik, who resigned on August 14th. The council, in a special meeting on Monday night, voted to appoint Mr. Dawson Shahan of Magnolia to fill the position. Mr. Shahan is currently on the city payroll as Superintendent of the Waste Water Treatment Plant. As acting City Manager, he will receive a one-step increase in pay. Along with Shahan's appointment, the council agreed to hire Mr. George Volenik as a consultant for the City of Harrington. Volenik would be responsible for looking after the grants and projects he started before he resigned. Councilman Jack Wyatt said the projects that Volenik would be responsible for included a $400,000 water project to benefit the Delaware State Fairgrounds and the city; a $100,000 rehabilitation program on houses on the east and west sides of town; and a $185,000 project to correct the cracking around the footing of the water tower. Wyatt said the reason he wants Volenik is because he is aware of the work going on in the town and he knows about the grants. While the council was in favor of appointing Volenik to the position, it met with some opposition from Councilman James Temple. Temple said, "If George Volenik didn't have time to be the city manager, then how can he be a consultant for the city?" Despite Temple's opposition, Volenik's appointment passed five to one and the council will contact Volenik to see if he will accept the position. If hired, Volenik will be paid $15 an hour for his work, but once a full-time city manager is found, Volenik would be relieved of his duties, according to Wyatt. The council will begin advertising for a city manager in The Harrington

Journal, The Milford Chronicle, The State News, and The News Journal. According to Gary Dodge, Harrington's City Solicitor, it may not be until the first of the year before the City of Harrington will be able to select a city manager. The council currently has one application for the city managers job, but no details were disclosed.

Public Hearing on Hughes' lands and Workshop render long meeting for Harrington Council

by William Robertson
HARRINGTON — A public hearing was held on Monday night prior to the workshop meeting. At the public hearing the second reading was heard and the public had an opportunity to be witness to the rezoning request by Hi-grade Dairy to have the lands on the east side of U.S. 13 northbound lane at Porter Street from R-1 zoning to IMP (Industrial Park). The site will be the future home of the processing plant of Hi-Grade Dairy, which currently has its plant on Clark Street. The reason for the move was to enable the Dairy to expand its present operations, for they have outgrown their present location according to owner Ben Hughes, Jr. There was no opposition to the rezoning request, and the matter will now be placed on the September regular meeting agenda for final disposition by the council. The public hearing was followed by a workshop where most of the discussion was taken up with the matter of either abandonment giving a quit-claim deed to a certain alley on the Franklin Hendricks lands adjacent to the Fairgrounds Road or sometimes called West Street extended. Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks seek to have the alley extinguished one way or the other. City Solicitor Gary Dodge, presented the legal theory that it would be practical from all sides if the alley were deeded to Mr. Hendricks. Mayor Farrow had raised the question whether the alley was publically dedicated and if so whether a conveyance could be made. Mr. Dodge is to research this point and make a finding at the next regular meeting. The alley serves no real value, for it cuts through the lots in question for a separation, which if anything would impair the sale of the lots. Currently the alley is nothing more than what appears on a plot, which if recorded would create a problem. The Mayor also suggested that if the alley could be conveyed would it be possible to do it by resolution of the council rather than by ordinance. If the former, it could be done at a meeting whereas an ordinance would take two public readings rendering the settlement of the lots at least 60 days in the future. The resolution could be done at the September meeting. Mr. Dodge's opinion would include a legal opinion on the matter. Councilman Coleman made a motion which was passed by council to have Senate Bill 282 withdrawn from the State legislature as a charter amendment. The section of the bill which deals with "Committees" vests the Mayor with the power to "appoint" such standing or ad hoc committees as deemed advisable". Mr. Coleman said this was not the original intent of the council. Mayor Farrow has promoted the need for standing committees which can be fact gathering bodies for the council. He favors one councilman to be the chairman of such committee as a liaison to the council. The Mayor has also favored the right and power to rest with the Mayor in this appointment. The other two sections of the bill which the council had wished changed were those dealing with the number of years a city solicitor must have practiced, and the council has decided to leave the 3 year requirement. The other proposed charter change was the residency requirement of the city manager, which says the candidate must become a resident of the State within 3 months of his appointment and may live outside the City limits with approval of council. Councilman Temple has advocated that the city manager become a resident of the city. The council voted to accept the JCPenny National Bank's proposal for a mortgage on the new city hall. The bank will lend the city $120,000 for construction of the new city hall.

Harrington Rotary extends membership to two women

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr.
HARRINGTON — At the Rotary meeting on August 13th, the Harrington Rotary Club, which boasted prior to that evening 13 members extended invitations to two persons to be members of the club. These new prospects were not just ordinary members from the business community in which Rotary thrives. These new prospects were women. Overtures for several years had hinted that men's clubs some day would no longer be regarded as the sacred vow whose all male membership needed preserving. The new members are Rev. Susan Mills, Vicar of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Harrington and Jennifer M. Asbury, a Position Classification Specialist at Dover Air Force Base. Rev. Mills has been the Vicar at St. Stephen's since 1983, Chaplain of Delaware Hospice from 1983-1986 and a member of the Diocesan Liturgical Office since 1984.

She has served as Chaplain to Episcopal patients at St. Vincent's Hospital. She holds a degree from Indiana University in Music. Prior to becoming a priest, she was a secretary at the United National Industrial Development organization in Vienna, Austria. Mrs. Asbury is a native of England. She and her husband, a retired U.S. Air Force officer make their home on Center Street in Harrington. Rev. Mills and Mrs. Asbury are the first women inducted into Rotary District 763 which includes the entire Delmarva Peninsula from Wilmington south. District Governor, John Culver, Jr. of Salisbury, in reacting to the news of the new members said, "Harrington Rotarians are showing lots of insight in trying to improve membership which is a constant demand on each club." Mr. Culver, in regular life, is a broker of industrial toxic waste. As District Governor he is in charge of 31 clubs with a membership of 1,462.

Harrington Police still waiting for police cars

by William Robertson
HARRINGTON — It has been over three weeks since the Harrington City Council approved a budget of $150,000 for the Harrington Police Department making money available for them to purchase a new police vehicle. Now that the money is available, the police department is waiting for a response from the council on just how many vehicles it can purchase. According to acting Harrington Police Chief, Sergeant Jeff Cook, the state has already sent a letter to the city asking how many police cars they may be needing. Cook said he would like to see the town have three police cars to meet with the growing needs of police protection within the community. Councilwoman Sue Ellen Dennis was supposed to give Cook an answer during the council's Aug. 4 meeting on how many cars he could purchase. "She never did," according to Cook. Cook needs an answer soon because of the time restrictions put on the state bid process for police vehicles. The bid process allows police departments throughout the state to purchase the vehicles they need, but the bids are only accepted for a short time and the process happens only once a year. "If you miss the acceptance period for bids, you have to wait another year to try again for a vehicle," Cook said. When the council approved the budget for the police department, $12,000 was set aside for a new vehicle. "A police car is a large item and there is a great deal involved", Cook said "and that's the reason I am waiting for the council's approval." Currently the police department is using two family style cars which are not technically considered standard police vehicles. "One car (a 1980 Chevy) has 100,000 miles on it and should be put out of service," according to Cook. The other car, a 1985 Ford is the newest vehicle the department has with 35,000 miles on it and an engine that has been rebuilt twice. Cook said when the council decides on

Ben Ewing wins over Kenneth McDowell in special election

BRIDGEVILLE. J. Benjamin Ewing, a retired Delaware State Police Lt. Colonel, easily won over his opponent, Kenneth McDowell, 1,798-1,265 Saturday in a special election as a result of the untimely death of B. Bradford Barnes, who at the time of his death was House Speaker. Ewing, 56, was a close personal friend of Speaker Barnes. As a newcomer to the election ranks, he easily won in his first try for public office. Mr. McDowell, 33, is a long time Democrat party worker, and is vice-chairman of one other state committee. In assessing the election, Mr. McDowell admitted that he would not have run against Mr. Barnes' widow, Peggy, had she decided to seek the vacant office. Ewing received the support from Mrs. Barnes, which the McDowell camp admitted might have been his Waterloo. The turnout was high throughout the district voting places, and in particular in Bridgeville, the homes of each candidate. Although the Democrats are heavily registered in this district, Ewing's camp was counting on the popularity of Barnes. The win Saturday in this special election assures the Republicans of a slight edge in the Delaware Legislature, which Gov. Castle was concerned enough about to campaign heavily for Ewing. Mr. McDowell drew heavily on the rank and file of Democrats including presidential aspirant Sen. Joe Biden. With the election for the vacant seat settled, the legislature can now begin the process of selecting a new House Speaker. With Ewing's win he now becomes a potential aspirant for the post, although his lack of experience might be a factor. Looming as a candidate with great potential is Harrington's native son, Rep. G. Robert (Bobby) Quillen, who was mentioned previously when Barnes was selected. Quillen remains as a favorite for the Speaker's post.

Felton organizes first Historical Society

by William Robertson
FELTON — With the Town of Felton being considered for the Historic Register, a group of people in town have decided to form the first Felton Historical Society. Mrs. Joyce Jefferson, who proposed the idea of organizing a society, said a meeting date has been set for Wednesday, September 16 at 7 p.m. at the Felton Railroad Station. Anyone interested in joining or working for the Felton Historical Society is encouraged to attend the meeting. Mrs. Jefferson has also asked the Greater Harrington Historical Society to be present at the first meeting to help guide them in organizing the society and its committees. The Greater Harrington Historical Society has already offered the Felton group a copy of its by-laws as a guideline to use until the group can establish its own, according to Jefferson. Mrs. Jefferson is not the first, however, to try and get a historical society organized in Felton. Mrs. Edith Hemphill did a considerable amount of research on the town and published a book about the history of Felton. Mrs. Hemphill hoped the book would make people interested in the town's history and hopefully they would organize a historical organization. At that time, however, the idea didn't work because the council wasn't too interested and the society didn't have a place to hold meetings, Jefferson said. A few years later, Mr. Don Jacobs acquired the Felton Railroad Station for the town and the society. When organized, the society will have a place to conduct its meetings. The town council has also become more interested over the years, and asked Jefferson if she would organize the first meeting. Mrs. Jefferson feels that the reasons behind the organizing of the historical society are the number of people interested in preserving the town's history, and since the town is losing its senior citizens who know the history of Felton, the society would like to talk to these people and record their knowledge so that future generations can learn about the town's past. The historical society also has a number of homes in town to preserve including the railroad station, Don Jacobs home, formerly the Mary Fountain House, a Victorian style home on the corner of Sewell and Church streets and the only 100-year-old brick home in the town located on the west side of Main Street. Mrs. Jefferson said some of the older homes that would have had historical value have been demolished over the years to make way for newer buildings, so the society wants to preserve what historical buildings are left. Until the group can meet on September 16, however, Mrs. Jefferson said they can't do anything.

Harrington Library to participate in Harrington Heritage Day on September 19

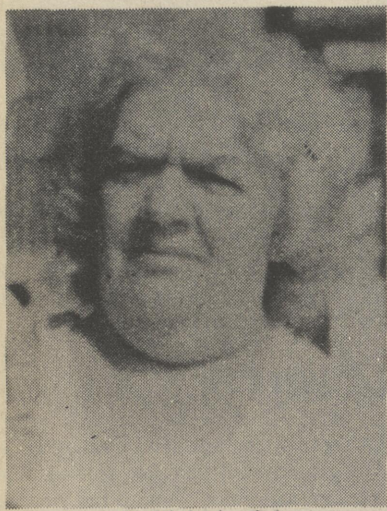

The Harrington Public Library is once again setting up plans to furnish the Heritage Day shoppers with barbecued chicken. They will set up shop this year behind the Library on Dorman Street. This activity is one carried on by the Friends of the Library to help support their ongoing programs. They will also have a used book sale and plan to sell jewelry this year as a new venture. The library is an asset to the town and your support is appreciated by all those who work so hard to help make it happen. Next to the library will be the Trooper Dan car for the enjoyment of young and old alike. Trooper Dan is sponsored by Conley's Insurance. He gives many safety pointers to youngsters. Inside the library will be an ongoing movie all day sponsored by Conrail Corporation called "Operation Lifesaver" and is on safety around trains. Almost all towns need train safety, for there are few who are not affected by the train. It seems that the library area will be a busy one on September 19th, Heritage Day, so don't forget to travel to that end of Commerce Street.

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr.

MILFORD. A buffet reception was held Sunday in the Carlisle Fire Hall in Milford to celebrate the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. & Mrs. Reynolds Kates of Harrington.

Their daughter Shirley Mackert and son-in-law Sam Mackert, Jr. together with their sons David and Greg planned the affair which drew 265 in attendance.

Mrs. Jana Hood was the soloist, and she sang "If I Had My Life to Live Over" with other music by Sandy Wilkins & Steve Johnson, all of whom are members of Calvary United Methodist Church in Milford.

Mr. and Mrs. Kates are both retired, she from the Ace Dress Co. in Harrington and he from the State Highway Department where he worked for 40 years. He remains active in the Harrington Lions Club.

The couple was married in Denton by Rev. Turkington in 1937. Bill and Bernice Parker stood up with them.

Bentley Brothers 3-ring circus comes to Harrington

With 3 big rings of fun, excitement and suspense, Bentley Brothers International 3-Ring Circus, sponsored by the Dover Knights of Columbus, is coming to Harrington Fairgrounds on August 29, with afternoon and evening performances.

The all new 1987 edition of the circus presents two hours of non-stop family entertainment with great circus talent from Europe, USA and Mexico, with astounding feats, amazing routines and death-defying acts.

H. Thomas Bentley, who has performed for circuses throughout the world for fifty of his sixty years, and his partner Charles L. Clancy bring their international cast of performers to town for a revival of traditional family entertainment. This show is headed by Carol Marcon, the world's only female Tiger trainer, who will step into the steel arena with one of the world's rarest beasts...a "Liger". This curious mix of African Lioness and Bengal Tiger has been in the Bentley Menagerie for over a year, and is one of the only five ligers in the world today.

The sky high above Bentley's 3 rings will be filled with excitement as Germany's Winn Family exhibits their skill and daring on the Death Wheel. The Hans Winn Troupe also takes to the highwire on foot, as well as on the motorcycle, drawing gasps from audiences from Munich to Los Angeles. Insurance agents have been known to hide under their desks when ever the Winn Family comes to town!

The Flying Caballer's will fill the sky, spinning, twisting and soaring on the Trapeze. Among the many graceful maneuvers the Caballeros will perform include the quadruple somersault, featuring Rubin Jr., the 16 year old wonder of the air. This is an aerial feat that few performers dare to attempt. The Caballeros will be joined in the sky by Princess Morningstar, Aerioletta and Alejandro, whose solo trapeze acts round out the Bentley's world class aerial displays.

Back on the ground, showman Walter Stimax will parade his clever chimpanzees, those natural clowns of the jungle, while Miss Diane present her Canine Revue. Other featured acts include Valerie, the baby African Elephant, Miss Diane Moyer presenting her Royal Spanish Stallion, and from Corsica, the Rubino Troupe display dexterity, unsurpassed agility and split-second timing on the teeterboard.

Also included in the program is the famous Loyal Family, featuring Timothy Loyal and his daring somersault from one galloping horse to the back of the other. This feat cannot be properly described without hearing the crushing sounds of the Giant Belgium horse hooves, as they narrowly miss the performers moving gracefully around the ring.

Between heart pounding thrills in the circus are those Masters of Mirth, the Bentley Brother's contingent of clowns and their ever-present Tom Foolery, led by Bruce Warner.

So come one, come all for a thrilling revival of a traditional family circus. The sights, smells and sounds of this show will have you reaching behind you to check for your father's knee.

how many cars he can purchase, he wants the vehicles to be fully marked so people will know a police car when they see it in their neighborhood.

At the present time, the department only has one marked car, according to Cook.

"Trying to get new vehicles for the department has been an ongoing battle, and other officers in the department have started to express their concerns over the condition and safety of the vehicles," Cook said.

While waiting for the council's response, the department has taken another possible avenue for raising money to purchase a vehicle. The council did agree that a separate account for the Special Enforcement Unit Fund (SEU) could be established. This account would allow any monies over $45,000 which is a budgeted item to be set aside and used towards the purchase of a vehicle.

Another item Cook would like the department to have is new weapons.

The department is currently using a .356 handgun, but they would like to change over to a 9-millimeter handgun.

The reason Cook wants the change is because the state police have gone to the 9-millimeter and it has become the choice weapon with other police departments in the state, according to Cook.

Cook is currently trying to arrange to have some experts on guns come to Harrington and demonstrate a variety of weapons for the council and describe the difference between them.

At a special meeting held on Monday, August 24, councilman Watson Brown brought the matter about the police vehicles back out on the floor.

The council instructed Brown to ask Cook to bring the council some prices on police vehicles and they would review them for consideration.

Until then, he hopes the two vehicles he has now will hold up until a new one arrives.

School safety starts with the driver

The beginning of the school year is hectic for everyone, according to the Delaware Motor Club, AAA. Drivers pressed for time and children hurrying to or from school make an unpredictable combination. One moment of carelessness could be tragic, notes the motoring organization.

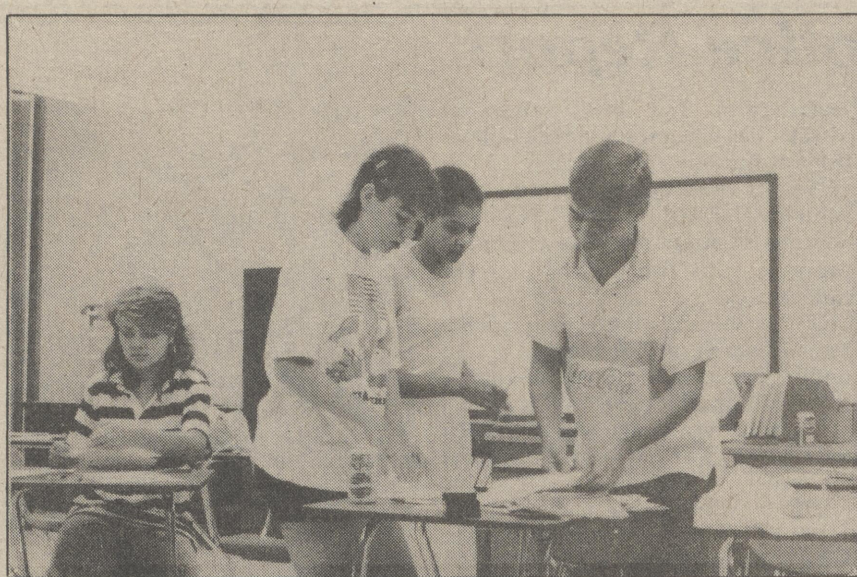

The Delaware AAA suggests that children using the traffic system for their daily school journey must cooperate with other users. Pedestrians are interacting with vehicles at intersections and along roadways; bus riders are exiting the bus and crossing streets; and cyclists are sharing the road with motor vehicles. In each case, the youngster must abide by certain rules in order to be safe.

However, the major responsibility for reducing potential accidents rests with the motorist. Children are impulsive, make spur-of-the-moment decisions, and may have little experience walking in traffic. Safe behaviors learned at school and reinforced at home may be forgotten, if only briefly, in the momentary excitement of meeting a parent, catching up to a friend or running to get out of the rain. Drivers must stay alert for such situations wherever youngsters may walk or congregate.

The "Schools Open — Drive Carefully" message is being conveyed by the Delaware AAA across the First State in a variety of formats including posters, bumper stickers, brochures, and lapel stickers. Serving more than 57,000 members throughout the State, the Delaware Motor Club is a Division of Keystone Automobile Club.

Lake Forest students (L-R) April Knight, Christine Trzeczak, Kim Gibbs and Richard McGinnis prepare for the 1987 Homecoming game and parade set for October 10th. This year the parade will be held at Bowers Beach and the game against Delmar will begin at 1:30 p.m.

An international program administrator at the University since 1982, Ms. Williams served first as the Title XII program coordinator and has been in her current position for the past two years. She has worked on international programs involving faculty and staff, serving as liaison between the University and professional, private and government agencies. She also has coordinated training programs for foreign students and visitors and promoted development education at the University and in the community through seminars, workshops, internships and language training programs. Before coming to the University, Ms. Williams was a research assistant for former Delaware Gov. Pierre S. duPont IV.

The approximately 4,000 members who attended the convention also celebrated their 1986-87 accomplishments, which included recruiting 10,749 new members, bringing the total membership to 745,210, and raising $2,926,697 for their cancer aid and research program.

Other highlights included the presentation of a $5,000 cancer research grant to Tulane University; the introduction of the Outstanding Junior Girl and the Voice of Democracy winner; a display of the top five winning entries in the Young American Creative Patriotic Art Competition; and several joint activities with the VFW, such as the parade down Canal Street.

The election and installation of the 1987-88 national officers concluded the convention. Newly-elected National President, Joan Katus of Wasilla, Alaska, introduced her theme, FOR THE PEOPLE, which is taken from President Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address and reflects the Auxiliary's own motto, "honor the dead by helping the living."

Mrs. Katus asked the members to continue working FOR THE PEOPLE of America by conducting drug abuse awareness seminars, citizenship classes for aliens, and numerous other activities which serve the community and promote patriotism.

Asbury United Methodist Church

Pastor William Dore
Sunday School is at 9:45 a.m. with Morning Worship following at 11:00 a.m.

"Blessed by the name of the Lord from this time forth and for evermore! From the rising of the sun to its setting the name of the Lord is to be praised."

Sunday morning's message stems from the downfall of King Belshazzar in the book of Daniel. He was weighed in the balances by God and found wanting. Likewise, when we are weighed in the balances we all fall short of the glory of God, except for the divine presence of Christ Jesus to make us adequate in His sight.

Baptized into the faith Sunday was handsome, little Kenneth Gary Teste. He and his family traveled here from Alaska. Parents are William and Elaine Teste. Proud maternal grandparents are Eleanor and Gary Homewood. May God bless you as you return to your home in Alaska and as you rear this child in the Christian faith.

The "Father's Day Tomato Contest" has ended with the first ripe tomatoes brought in by Bob Wilson. Runner-up was Bill Walls, Jr. Congratulations men!

We welcome the several visitors that were able to be with us for worship. Songs of praise were offered by Donna Miller and Sue Ellen Dennis during the service.

Asbury's Tape Ministry makes cassette recordings available to shut-ins or others desiring a copy of a particular service. If you wish to make use of this resource, contact Elwood or Betty Brown at 398-4450.

Pete Oakley - Delaware's leading golf pro

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr.

When it comes to winning professional golf tournaments in Delaware and the events that make you the #1 golf pro in the state...then Pete Oakley is the man of the hour.

Oakley, who is the professional in residence at the Shawnee Golf Club in Milford, Delaware this summer, won his 3rd Delaware Professional Open Championship.

In 1980 on his way to his first Delaware Open he shot a course record 66 just 14 strokes under par. He turned the trick again when on the second day he fired another 66 which established the then modern day record of back to back 66's.

"This was one of my finest golf moments, because I had 10 straight birdies that day", said Oakley recently from his office at the Shawnee Country Club.

Oakley has had some finer moments like leading the PGA tournament in 1975 after 4 holes. "That was a big thrill for me even if it only lasted just 4 holes. Nonetheless it makes for a good golf story", laughed Oakley.

The Delaware courses have been good for him because he shot a hole in one on the 15th hole at Rehoboth Country Club in last year's Delaware Open championship. "It so happened that a photographer was on hand to film the event, and it made the front page of the sports section in the next day's newspaper," he said.

Oakley has played in 3 PGA and 3 US Opens making the cut just once. "The year I played in the PGA at the Riviera Country Club at Pacific Palisades in '83 I shot a 149 and the cut was 144. Last year I missed the cut by 2 shots in Inverness.

If Oakley has a handicap which might curtail his effect as a PGA touring pro it is the fact that he is slight in stature. Although Chi Chi Rodriguez is small in stature compared to other touring pros, off the tee Rodriguez has always clubbed the ball approximately 300 yards. "I just have not been able to average much more than 240 yards where touring pros average about 260 plus off the tees", said Oakley. "This is the big difference as I see it between me being on the tour or choosing other roles that golf affords you. You need strength, stamina, dedication, and hard work, which goes with anything, to not only succeed on the tour...but to remain there too", added the likeable Shawnee golf pro.

Most pro golfers can succeed at the game if they have an outstanding putting game. "Putting has always been the best part of my game...but in my case putting is not a problem. Maybe the desire of doing what I am doing as a club pro suits me," he said.

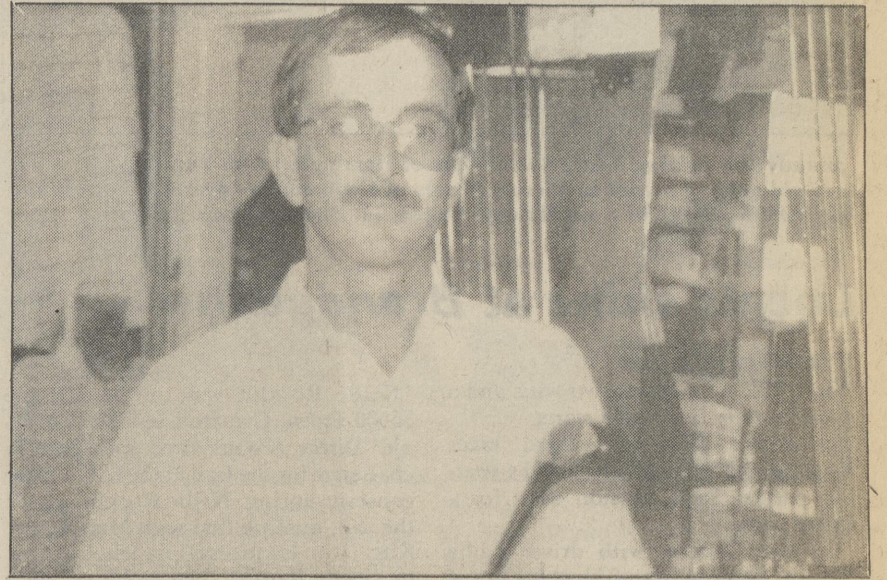

If you ask Pete Oakley about his adopted state of Delaware (he is a native of Falls Church, Va.) he will readily tell you that "...I love it here. I anticipate staying here at Shawnee and growing with this club". Oakley is married to the former Sandra Morgan of Lewes. They have two sons, Zachary (5) and Jeremy (3). The Oakleys make their home in Lewes.

Pete Oakley is not recognized for his personality and easy going around the Shawnee Country Club, but he is fast becoming recognized as an outstanding teaching pro. He had advanced many a player beyond his or her expectations.

Oakley is looking to the next big tournament which for him is the PGA tournament for club pros. It is called the PGA West, held in Palm Springs, California golf course. It carries a purse of $100,000 and the course over the years has been good to Pete Oakley. Last year he shot a final round of 70 over a course that most golfers regard as being very difficult. "There is water at every hole, the greens and fairways undulate, and of course it hits long...real long", said Oakley.

Last year the final round of 70 earned him a tidy $4,000 for his efforts, got him an invitation back this year and also an invitation to this year's PGA which was held 3 weeks ago in Florida. Pete did not make the cut in that event, "...but it was lots of fun. The heat you might well remember was pretty hot here. You would not believe how hot and humid it was in Florida", added the Delaware pro. Oakley said he has played that course for the past several winters when the family winters in Florida. "...but it never gets that hot down there in the winter".

Larry Nelson was the big winner this year in the PGA which did not make Oakley unhappy. "Yeah...he was a former member of the (PGA) mini tour which I played in 1973-74. Larry (Nelson) was also a member of that tour which a lot of aspiring touring golfers play before hitting the big time", said Oakley.

"The mini-tour is for fairly big stakes. The tournament purses usually run around $40,000. It is like the minor leagues. You play there until you get good enough to move up", said Oakley.

The very affable and most outgoing Pete Oakley is not one to forget those who helped me the most along the way to becoming a golf pro. "I guess the one guy who straightened me out a lot in this game was a protege of Bob Toskey and he was Charlie Staples. He was a pro around Philadelphia. Just a great individual...a great merchandiser who taught me this business of golf and golf promotions, and he taught me the golf swing. This I came to learn was a very vital part of the game", said Oakley. The wide open field of golf prepares many aspirants in many ways. Pete Oakley is hitting his stride as a club pro, but who knows, you might some day hear about him on golf's senior tour. For the guy who enjoys life and what he is doing, you can't count Pete Oakley out in anything. He has become a great inspiration to his students, which too is part of the game.

Locals shine at Brandywine Raceway

by Price Kellar

WILMINGTON, DE--Racing at Brandywine the week of August 10-16, featured the third installment of the Delaware Owned Late Closing Series. Purses for the events are provided by the Delaware Department of Agriculture and the funds for those events come from the State's portion of the takeout on wagers. All three Delaware harness tracks enjoy State subsidized Delaware Owned Racing. The Series gives Delaware Horsemen an opportunity to compete for large purses as an incentive to improve the quality of racing in Delaware.

Thursday night featured two $4,000 divisions of Delaware owned Trotters. Frosty's Heart just got up to score a neck victory in the first division. Reinsman Bob Shahan moved the winner out at the half mile pole, then slipped into the two hole behind fraction setting Classy L. Frosty's Heart came off the wood in mid-stretch to pull along side Classy K, and those two battled to the wire, Frosty's Heart just bested Classy K in 2:05.4. DG's Trotter was third.

Carol and Joe Hollandsworth of New Castle own Frosty's Heart, a 4-year-old gelding by Frosty Lad. Arthur Allen handles training duties.

Keystone Halo trotted to a new lifetime mark 2:03 in the 2nd division. Morgan McInnis, the 4-year-old gelding's regular driver and trainer, was in the winner's bike, and he sent Halo to the lead at the half. From there it was clear sailing as Halo came home in an impressive 59.4 to draw off by 2-1/2 lengths. Impressive Ann led to the half, then followed the winner home to place. RC's Scottish Lad showed. Keystone Halo is owned by Jeanne McInnis and Marvin Warner of Greenwood.

Friday night's Delaware Owned feature spotlighted 2-year-old pacers. Pop Pop's Tie came out of the pocket at head-stretch to brush by Tortola and score a 1-1/4 length victory. The altered son of Bonded Yankee set a new lifetime mark, and became a season's leader gelding at Brandywine with his 2:01.3 score. Tortola had the lead at every call but the important one, and finished second. Jef's Visionary came from far off the pace to show in the $4000 event. Bob Shahan was in the winner's sulky for Owner Victor Pizzala of Georgetown. Brenda Lewis trains Pop

Super Saturday stalwarts certain to scorch Delmarva Downs Surface

Delmarva Downs presents Super Saturday on August 29. Race Secretary Rick Bonekemper has assembled the best array of talent ever witnessed on the Eastern Shore.

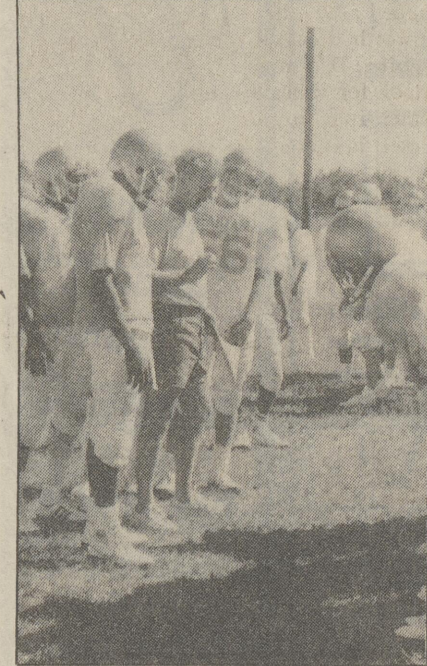

Go Get Lost (John Hogan) gets top billing in the $10,000 Maryland Invitational Trotting Championship. The Wayne Lynch-owned, Art Wirching-trained Speedy Somolli colt finished fourth to Mack Lobell in the later's record-shattering Hambletonian victory. Go Get Lost won the $100,000 Statue of Liberty trot at The Meadowlands & has amassed $211,533 in seasonal earnings. Breena Almahurst (Markku Vartiainen) set a new track standard in her last start. The Speedy Crown offspring trotted to a 1:57.3 tally, eclipsing the mark for her age, sex, and gait at Freestate on August 21. Paulsboro Trotter, the current record-holder at Delmarva Downs; Keen Interest, who has banked over $100,000 lifetime; and TW Happiness, trained and driven by the venerable veteran

Rheo Filion, are also likely participants.

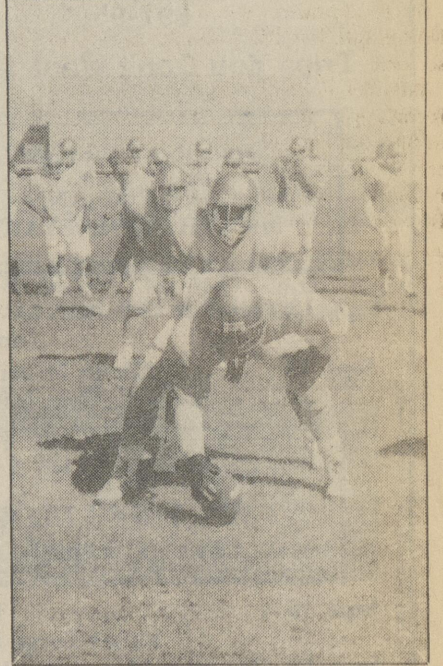

Donovan, to be reined by Kevin Lare, looks to make it two-for-two in the $10,000 Invitational. The gelded son of Abercrombie paced to a 1:55.1 score on July 4. Lucky Combo, second to Donovan in that affair, is expected to pose a serious threat. Multiplexor, Whata Exceller, Nation's Dream, Proven Choice, Crave, and Its Courton are also scheduled to appear.

The Maryland Standardbred Race Fund (MSRF) has scheduled three events. In the three-year-old filly pacing segment, Ultimate Power and Yankee Mimic, both of whom were triumphant on these shores in respective divisions in the two-year-old category last year, return to the shore. Local flavor is added by Courtesy of Time, Green Run Breeze and the popular Marland Mandy.

Pop's Tie, who sports two wins and a show in only five career starts. Saturday's first and third races matched Delaware owned 3 and 4-year-old pacers. Each division went for a $4000 purse.

Go Bye Connie, with driver Eddie Dennis, came on from fifth at the top of the stretch to score a one length win in the first division. The 4-year-old mare went in 2:02 for owner Nelson Reed owner-trainer Ronald Reed of Dover. Pacesetter Sir BJ slipped to second. Turbo Charged got by four competitors in the lane to show.

Le Prince came off a rail trip to improve his life standard to 2:01 in the second split. Pres Moore, Jr. guided the 4-year-old gelding to the new mark for Anna Lamparski of Dover. High Hope Leslie was second, back 3-4 lengths. Guglielmo was third.

Driver Jeff Cameron, trainer Eric McEwan, and the Rocklin Stable of Paradise, PA. combined for a big Saturday night. Stablemates Rita Rocklin and Nellie Rocklin each took one of Brandywine's co-featured Filly and Mare Opens to produce a double against the best lady pacers on the grounds.

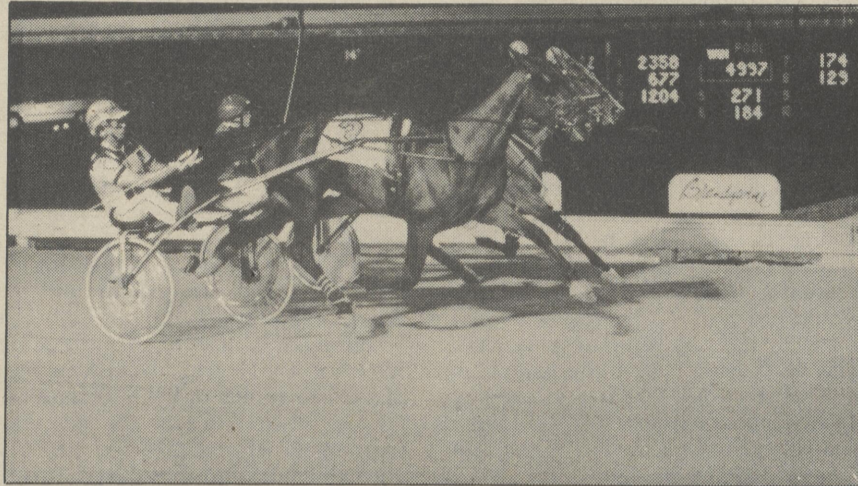

Rita Rocklin pulled to the outside at the three-quarters, then wore down the early leaders to eek out a nose win in the $5500 Open. Cameron drove the 4-year-old Escort-sired mare to a 1:58.1 mark. Beyond Belief was a hard closing second. Meta Escape set the early fractions and slipped to third.

Nellie Rocklin was the best in the $6500 Open. Cameron sent the 4-year-old Direct Scooter-sired mare up to challenge for the lead at the half. Under constant urging, Nellie Rocklin sat off the rail, dueling first with Miss Scarlet Kitty (who led the early panels, but tired to finish fourth) then holding off a determined Marland Mandy. Nellie pulled out a neck win in 1:58.2. Marland Mandy was second. Scarlet Sister was third.

Sunday racing, as a matter of course, yields some fast miles. This Sunday was no exception, as Ty Cobb, Beast Boy Jackson, and Megavolt lit up the board with sub 1:59 miles.

Ty Cobb was back for a third successive trip to the winner's circle in the Claiming Handicap for $15-20,000 pacers. The big Hot Hitter-sired gelding took his normal wire-to-wire route to a 1:58.3 mark. Bill Buckley co-owns and drives the steadily improving 6-year-old for trainer Kathy Delker and owner Glen Rodgers. Ty Cobb could have been claimed for $10000 on June 14 of this year. Since that time, he has rolled to five wins and three seconds and earnings of $12,447. Call him the one that got away; he won his last trip for a $20,000 claiming price.

Beast Boy Jackson was scratched lame last week, and the forced vacation from the racing wars must have been just what the veterinarian ordered. The rejuvenated No Nukes colt went wire to window in an impressive 1:57.1 this week.

The race was a $3100 conditioned event in which Beast Boy clearly figured to be the best, if he was sound. Soundness questions were answered when teamster Joe Holloway sent the 3-year-old to the lead over a 28 second first quarter. The half came in 58.4 with the winner pacing easily, and at the 1:28.1 third quarter Beast Boy turned it on to come home 2-4 lengths on top. Request sat in the pocket throughout to finish second. Wooffer Karama A. was third. Backcourt Stables of Rumson, NJ. owns Beast Boy Jackson. Joe Holloway is the trainer of record out of the David Rovine Stable.

The best pacers on the grounds met in Sunday's $7000 Open. Megavolt went three wide in the last turn then overpowered early leader Croquemonsieur to score a 1-3/4 length victory in the big race. R.L. Farrington left the gate with Megavolt under wraps and sixth at the 28.4 first quarter. Still sixth at the 58.2 half, the eventual winner was tipped to the outside flow for room to race. The field tightened by the 1:28.1 three-quarters and Megavolt was pushed another horse wide to find room to ramble. Once three wide, the gelding let loose with a monster brush and came home the best in 1:57.1. Croquemonsieur hung on for second. Pappion was third.

Megavolt has nine victories in 21 campaign starts. Sunday's notch boosted his 1987 earnings over $34,000. Milo and Marcia Folley co-own the Nero-sired 4-year-old along with trainer Dick Farrington.

Shahan sews up driver championship

WILMINGTON, DE---Bob Shahan has sewn up his first Leading Driver Championship at Brandywine. The Harrington, DE native has a comfortable margin of twenty-five over his closest rival Presley Moore, Jr. Shahan became the first driver to win 100 races this season, last Thursday. Moore, meanwhile is on the threshold of clinching the leading trainer honors for the season. Bob Kinsey is his closest challenger.

Thursday night will be Men's Night. All men, and their escorts will find free admission, when they arrive that evening. A Double Feature is slated for Friday. At 6:15 p.m., David Rovine, who directs the winningest stable in the sport, will be guest for a special "Own A Harness Horse Seminar." If you ever have wanted to know more about owning your own trotter or pacer, this is your chance. The public is invited to attend.

Also on Friday, one lucky fan will drive home with a brand new Mercury Sable or Cougar from Winner Lincoln Mercury of Wilmington, DE. There will be a drawing following the eight race. Gates will be open for free admission after the sixth race. The contest winner must be present at time of the drawing.

Post time is 7:30 p.m. each night, Tuesday through Sunday until their meet's closing program on Labor Day, Monday, September 7. Officials at Brandywine Raceway have announced that they will apply for "similar dates for the 1988 Harness Racing Season."

Vice President and General Manager, David E. Hooper, said, "We have asked the Delaware Harness Racing Commission for dates that will start in late March and continue through Labor Day of next year."

Brandywine has shown a slight improvement in attendance during the current season which continues each Tuesday through Sunday until Labor Day, September 7, but the track has suffered from a decline in wagering. Hooper says, "We instituted a number of promotions during the season. An upswing started early in July & a full month of promotions for virtually every night of the week helped us continue the upswing in August." He went on, "Simulcasting of Meadowlands Races to Garden State Park (in Cherry Hill, New Jersey) has hurt. Even though it doesn't show in the attendance, many of our "biggest bettors," only show up on Sunday night (when there is no racing in New Jersey).

The Delaware Harness Racing Commission grants racing dates for the three harness tracks in the state, Brandywine, Harrington and Dover Downs.

"A must see ... a bravura performance ... an impassioned alarm," wrote Dan Hulbert of the Dallas Times Herald.

R. Bruce Elliott stars in the performance.

Castle seeks federal disaster relief for Delaware farms

Governor Castle announced recently that he has requested that farmers in all three Delaware counties be declared eligible for federal Drought Emergency Assistance because of extensive crop losses this summer.

Castle said he had written to Richard E. Lyng, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture (USDA), requesting that the USDA take immediate steps to declare a drought emergency in the state. The designation makes farmers eligible for low-interest federal loans.

"The combination of heat and low rainfall has been disastrous for Delaware farmers," Castle said. "We estimate that the agriculture community has lost nearly $30 million this year, and the potential for further losses is great."

Last year similar drought conditions cost Delaware farmers an estimated $40 million.

The request for disaster relief was recommended by Delaware Secretary of Agriculture William B. Chandler Jr. after receiving a report from the state Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

ASCS reported that "drought conditions, while not as disastrous as last year, are causing significant damage to crops throughout the state in scattered localities. Many individual producers' income and livelihood are seriously threatened by the effects of the dry, hot weather."

An estimated 61 percent of state farmers have sustained crop damage of 30 percent or greater.

Kent and Sussex Counties were hardest hit. Kent County had suffered $9.8 million in crop losses by the first week in August and Sussex County $12.2 million during the same period. New Castle County losses were over $3.6 million.

The official estimate takes into account losses projected since the damage was assessed.

Repeated Georgetown wins for Fitz, Capie, Fields and White

by Don Allen
GEORGETOWN—At the Taylor and Messick Farm Equipment shops in Harrington, De. they say "Nothing runs like a Deere". John Deere that is, but after the performances turned in at the Georgetown Speedway on "Taylor and Messick Night" August 21st, feature winners Glenn Fitzcharles, Tom Capie, Oscar Fields and Richard White Jr. may have a different opinion. Friday night marked the final appearance of 1987 for the United Racing Club Super Sprints at the Georgetown Speedway and two time Georgetown winner, Glenn Fitzcharles made it three in a row on the "Fast Half-Mile" in the club's twenty lap main event. "Fitz", who currently leads in the URC season points as well as in the Taylor and Messick Delaware State Sprint Car Championship series points, came from the rear of the field to take the lead from Don Wolfe on lap nine as the pair entered turn three. From then on it was another flawless run for the DDK Enterprises #26 answered "Fitz's" every command.

moved around Daggett one lap later and began to power away.

Capie moved into the top five on lap nine behind Pinter, Freddy Brightbill, Garry Gollub and Daggett. Lap ten saw the caution displayed and on the restart Capie soared past Brightbill and Gollub to claim second.

Pinter's lead only lasted two more circuits. On lap 14 Capie eased his machine to the outside and nosed him out at the stripe. The pair ran wheel-to-wheel for the next five laps but with just five to go, Capie put a lock on the lead and roared to the winner's circle for a misty-eyed celebration with wife, Melissa and crew.

Finishing in the top five were Pinter, Gollub, Short and Toreky, in that order.

As of August 14th, Capie had moved into second in the Georgetown season points standings with 1121 points, to leader Bob Toreky's 1280; a margin of 159 points. His win coupled with Toreky's fifth place finish has closed that gap even more.

FIELDS SCORES EIGHTH WHEN MURRAY BREAKS

"He's a good man to race with. Anytime you can race side-by-side for that many laps with a good driver like Phil it make it all worthwhile." Those were Oscar Fields' reflections on his ten lap duel with Phil Murray in the twenty lap Limited Late Model main.

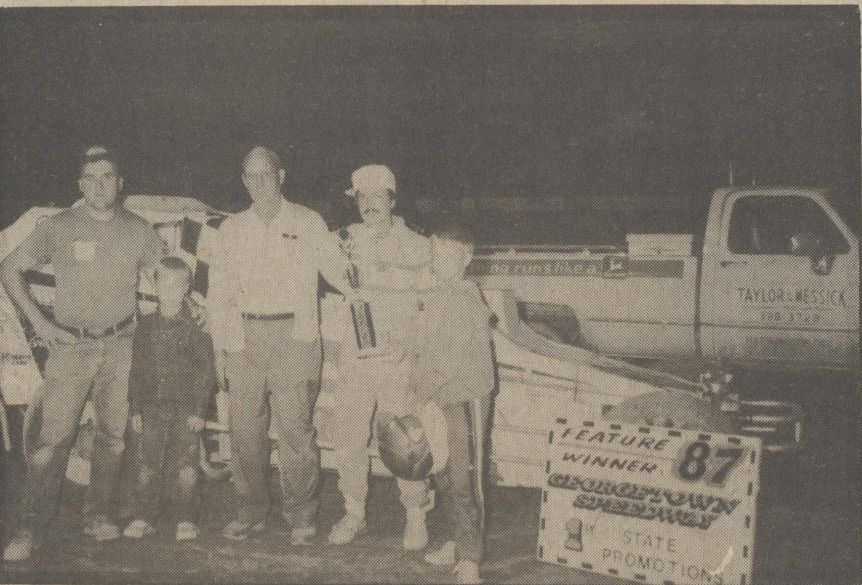

Murray had taken his Murray Motors, C.P. Townsend Farms Pontiac to the lead around Ryan Bloom on lap three. Fields had started just behind Murray in ninth, but got caught in an early race tangle and had to fall to the rear. At the halfway mark Fields' Bodie's Dairy Markets Camaro claimed second and that's when the show started.

The two leaders flashed by the stands lap after lap with just inches between them, had it not been for the failure of a stabilizer bar, the race would have been Milford's Bud Coverdale let 'em know he was back Friday night, as he brought his D&D Dismantling/Hemlock Nurseries/Bud's Auto Body #19 in for the win.

As the action got underway an early caution came out for #60 Bob King & on the restart the field was Bud Coverdale, Greg Coverdale, Todd Wise, Butch Harrington, and Scott Walls.

The battle was on between the Coverdale mounts when King (60) and Jack Kohland (9) got tangled and Kohland got into the wall out of turn four.

When racing action was resumed Harrington's Todd Wise took over the second spot and came on to challenge for the lead. Greg Coverdale in third and rookie Scott Walls in fourth.

With just one lap to go Todd Wise could taste the win but just couldn't get a bite on Coverdale's mount as Bud brought his Suzuki powered Micro into victory lane after a six weeks absence. In second was Todd Wise (X), Greg Coverdale (17) third, Scott Walls (16) fourth and Butch Harrington taking the fifth spot.

by Charlie Brown
DELMAR, DE—Chip Slocum made his first trip to the Delaware International Speedway a profitable one by winning the D&D Dismantling sponsored Diamond State 50, Wednesday night. Alex Beaumont captured the late model main with Oscar Fields taking the limited lates and Mark Byrum the street modifieds.

Johnny Bennett Jr. jumped on top in the modified 50 lapper with H.J. Bunting following into second and Kenny Brightbill taking third. Elvin Felty spun on the first lap to bring out the yellow.

On the restart, Bennet stayed in control with Brightbill taking second. Bunting held on to the third spot with Jeff Patilla and Pete Visconti moving into the top five. Brightbill moved by Bennett one lap later to take the lead. Ron Keys slowed to a stop on lap eight with a flat, bringing out the yellow.

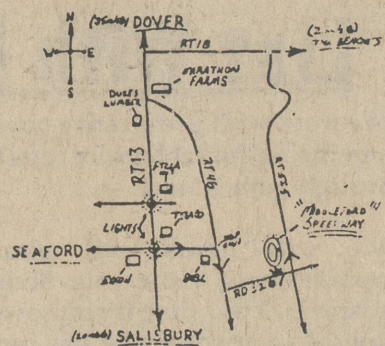

Harold Bunting moved into the top five on the restart from his 14th starting Murray's. With the checkered just two turns away, sparks appeared under the Pontiac and Phil struggled to maintain control. Oscar gave him plenty of racing room and slipped by out of turn four. Phil held on for second followed by Bill Penuel, Bloom and Cordie Warrington to round out the top five.

WHITE GRABS FOURTH CHECKERED IN LAST LAP DASH

Richard White Jr. made it a last lap dash for the cash in the ten lap Street Modified nightcap. White picked up his fourth Georgetown season win and reinforced his current lead in the Street Mod points battle by winning out over a three car duel for the lead between his Sussex Electric Chevelle, the Joe's Paint and Body Shop Monte Carlo of "Dizzy" Sockriter and the Chicken Shack Monte Carlo piloted by C.R. Robinson. The battle lasted for more than half of the race without a single caution period. From lap four Robinson was the leader of record after inheriting the point from the wrecked car of Herschel Moore. The front three buzzed the speedway with the rest of the field in hot pursuit, but on the last lap Robinson and White were able to pull away from Sockriter and as they exited turn four, White went to the outside to cross the stripe just inches ahead of Robinson. Sockriter came home in third followed by Ronnie Robinson and Ira Hitchens to round out the top five.

spot. Bobby Wilkins slowed to bring out the yellow on lap twelve with H.J. Bunting and Freddy Brightbill leading to the pits. On the restart, Harold Bunting shot into second behind Brightbill, as Wayne Weaver and Felty moved into the top five.

Bunting's engine started to sour and Bennett moved back into the runner-up spot. By lap 20, Slocum had moved from his 15th starting spot into the top five. A flat tire on the 20th lap dropped Felty once again from the top five.

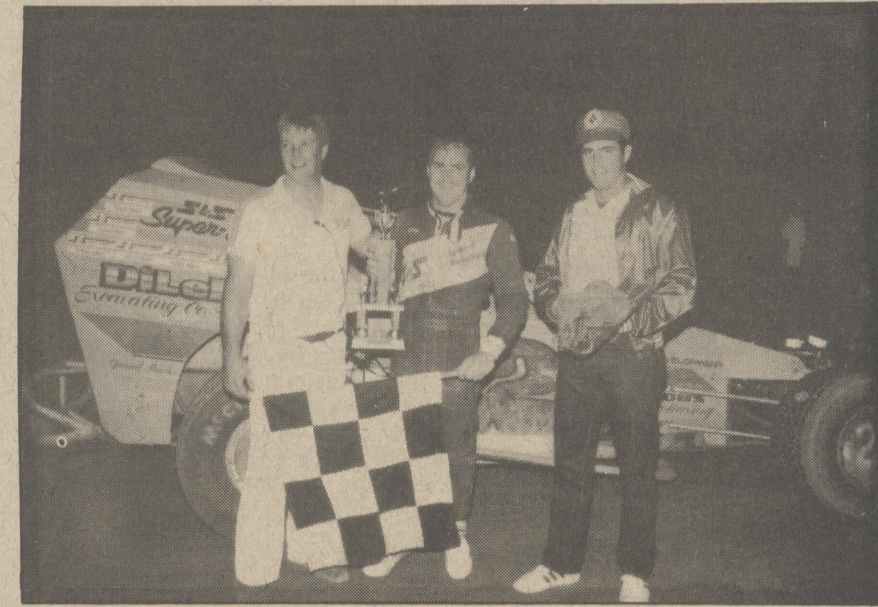

Slocum moved into the top three on the restart but Weaver battled the spot back. At the half-way point, Slocum moved back into third and Keys moved into the top five. Keys worked into fourth by the 30th lap but slowed to a stop on lap 38 to end his charge.

sight. Hill retired from the battle at the half-way mark. Browning was able to close to within about two car lengths but it was Beaumont taking his fourth straight checkered, his sixth overall at Delaware International this season. Second through fifth were Browning, Joey Carey, Duane Rust, and Morris Tucker.

It was a wild final lap but Oscar Fields held on to win the limited late model main. The leader Fields, broke an axle coming off the second turn on the final lap and collected second place runner, Phil Murray. The two glanced off the wall and remained in the same order. Doug Beach charged in and came up just half a car short at the finish. Murray finished in third with Jamie Eichholz and Bill Penuel rounding out the top five.

URC readies for Western Tour August 28 and 30

WEST LAWN, PA.—The URC super sprints will be heading west next weekend with a visit to the Lernerville Speedway in Sarver, Pa. on Friday night August 28. On Sunday night, August 30, URC will invade the Sharon Speedway, located in Hartford, Ohio. This will mark the first visit by URC to both fine facilities and a fine representation is expected.

Lernerville Speedway is a half-mile semi-banked oval and offers weekly sprint car racing. The Sharon oval follows the same layout as well, also featuring weekly Sunday night sprint car racing.

For the URC competitors, the driver with the best combined finishes from the western tour will also earn a guaranteed starting position in the October 31, Northeast Sprint Championship at the Flemington Fair Speedway. This Championship event will offer a forty lap feature race, an event won in 1986 by Glenn Fitzcharles.

As the URC season begins to dwindle down, the month of September still holds several race dates and they include the Delaware International Speedway on September 5, Grandview on Sept. 6 and Flemington on Sept. 7. The Bridgeport Speedway will host URC on September 11 and the Taylor & Messick Delaware State Sprint Title will be decided on September 19 at the Delaware International Speedway.

Racing briefs . . .

Slocum moved by Bennett to take second and began to work on the leader Brightbill. Slocum edged his small block powered machine under Brightbill for the lead on lap 41. On the same lap, Felty had once again worked into the top five but spun to a stop.

Chip began to pull away as Bennett and Brightbill battled for second. The final yellow came out on lap 47 when George Hartman spun. Slocum had no trouble handling the field on the restart and went on to his first win ever at Delaware International. Bennett recorded his personal best at the track in finishing second with Kenny Brightbill third, Bob Parks fourth and Ricky Elliott fifth.

Mark Byrum collected the bonus in winning his first in the street modifieds. Byrum took the lead at the start and held off the late race challenge of Richard White Jr. to take the win. White finished in second with Jimmy West, Tommy Elliott and Bob Pritchett rounding out the top five.

Heat races were won by Visconti over Bennett and Freddy Brightbill with H.J. Bunting taking the second over Kenny Brightbill and Harold Bunting. The consi was won by Slocum over Elliott and Parks.

Alex Beaumont took the lead on the first lap and never looked back in the late model main. Hal Browning and David Hill tried to keep Beaumont in

Pearson: We're gonna change things

DARLINGTON, S.C.—Larry Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., has become one of the best superspeedway racers on the NASCAR Busch Grand National Series. Everywhere, that is, except at Darlington International Raceway, where he will compete in the Gatorade 200 on Saturday, September 5.

"At all of the superspeedways on the Busch Series, I've gotten to where I can run pretty well," said the 33-year-old Pearson, the 1986 Busch Series champion. "I've had some good finishes at Daytona, Charlotte, Dover and Rockingham."

"But, for some reason, I just can't get it all together at Darlington," he said. The driver of the Chattanooga Chew Chevrolet is not alone, as many other top-notch racers have had difficulty with the 1.366-mile track that's "Too Tough To Tame." Consider the case of Richard Petty, the most winning NASCAR Winston Cup driver ever, who hasn't won a race at Darlington since 1967.

"I hope I don't have to race 20 years before I win at Darlington," said Pearson. "Maybe things will get better this time around. It's getting kind of embarrassing, especially at home."

And likely so, as Larry's father, the legendary David Pearson, owns more Winston Cup wins at Darlington than any other driver.

"He doesn't give me too hard of time about it, but he's sure tried to help me figure out how to get around Darlington," Pearson said.

The 200-mile Gatorade 200 at Darlington will provide another challenge for Pearson. In addition to racing the tough race track, he will face competition from all of the top Busch Series regulars, including Jack Ingram, Brett Bodine, Tommy Ellis, Tommy Houston and Dale Jarrett.

Also in the race will be top drivers such as Mark Martin, Mike Alexander, Brad Teague and Jimmy Hensley. The Gatorade 200, which will be a Daytona/Goody's 300 Invitational Series event, will also be a combination race including the new NASCAR Busch Grand National North Series. Several top Northern drivers are expected to compete as well.

The Gatorade 200 will get the green flag at 1 p.m. on Saturday, September 5. On the next day, the NASCAR Winston Cup Series will be featured in the Southern 500, beginning at 1 p.m.

Allen Bradford was at his best in the final round of Quick 16. Bradford faced Karl Martel of Dover in the final with both drivers behind the wheel of '68 Camaro's. Bradford was the quicker of the two off the starting line and ran right on his dial-in with a 10.09/129.6. Martel hit his dial-in on the nose also with a 9.88/131.5. It was the first win of the season for Bradford.

Making it to the semi-finals were Steve Hurley of Hebron, Md. and Johnny Ennis of Pocomoke, Md. Hurley ran a 10.28/129.3 in his final run and Ennis ran a 9.41/143.3. Quarter-finalist were Brent Bounds of Snow Hill, David

Foxwell of Cambridge, Vernon Russell of Dover, and Benny Parks of Salisbury. Harry Tschop took his "Imposter" Firebird to his third win of the season in Combo. Dear Editor:
I commend those trying to find out what ails the dolphins. Men like this are real heroes and more power to them and less power to those who inflict pain with guns and bows.

How about it?

Adele W. Zencak

Dear Mr. Farrow:
Not in the sense of custom only, but with a genuine appreciation of our pleasant association during the Delaware State College past academic year, the Office of Public Relations sincerely appreciates all the courtesies you and your staff have extended to us. Because it gives us pleasure in telling you we appreciate your cooperation and interest, we hope our good relationship will continue.

Dear Editor:
It's time for much stiffer penalties for drunk driving and speeding and time to just forget pushing a mandatory seat belt law down our throats.

Look at statistics in Maryland and New Jersey, who have had the seat belt law in force, they have a much higher death rate there.

As of Aug. 19th, there were 90 this year and 88 last year, deaths on Delaware's roads. But of the 90, 47 are alcohol related.

We phoned Gov. Castle's office and were appalled at the answer we received. The Governor is definitely for the Mandatory Seat Belt Law and a secretary said he expects it to come up 3 or 4 more times. It's already been defeated 4 times. How much of our tax money has been spent on this? It has now come to harassment of the people.

Legislators, please hear what the people want, instead of bowing down to the Governor's office, auto & insurance lobbyists, Mr. Ianni and Mr. Steiner's departments.

You have tried every trick in the book now. On June 30th, one Republican legislator voted no to legislation she has faithfully supported vigorously. Why? She knew there was not enough votes in the Senate to pass it, so she voted no to allow it to come back up in a special session. It indeed has come to harassment of the people.

Lets get to the source of the problem in earnestness. Let the weight station open day and night near Smyrna. Trailer trucks can be slowed up and checked for alcohol at the same time.

This is the 200th year of the Constitution which begins "We the People." The people's voice will be heard. When you leaders refuse to hear us, it's time for the Delaware citizens to remove you at the polls.

Thank God for you legislators in Kent and Sussex Counties who did not bow down to the dictators, those saying you must. This is America, not Amerika.

God keep us free, in the land of the free and the home of the brave.

BORK-BASHING EXPOSED

By Edwin Feulner

How many more intellectual drubbings must liberals take? Their peace-at-any-price foreign policy has been exposed as an inducement to totalitarian aggression, and their welfare-statism as a contributor to the very poverty it was supposed to alleviate. Now they must brace for a drubbing that, unless I miss my guess, will be equally humiliating.

Before the end of the confirmation controversy over President Reagan's nomination of Robert Bork to the Supreme Court, one of liberalism's most embarrassing secrets will likely be more fully exposed than ever. The secret is that, despite all their rhetoric about championing The People against fat cats and special interests, today's liberals are too often anti-democratic elitists.

So many of modern liberalism's pet policies, far from reflecting popular sentiment, have flown in the face of it. Examples are endless—forced busing, reverse-discrimination quotas, abortion on demand, and many policies in the areas of church-state relations, pornography, and criminal justice.

My point here is not to argue for or against any of those policies, but simply to call attention to the root question on which any constitutional democracy stands or falls: Who decides which policy issues and in what fashion? The Constitution's purpose is to answer that.

As every schoolchild should know (but today probably doesn't), the Constitution vests ultimate power in the people. They have the right not only to amend the Constitution but even to draft a new one. They make policy through representatives they elect and can vote out.

The judicial branch's role is not to legislate, but to provide an additional check to prevent the other two branches of government from running roughshod over our rights. For example, no matter how unpopular an individual's views, the majority cannot trample his constitutional liberties, such as free speech. The court's role is to hold up the red flag if our lawmakers try. And that is the extent of its role, as the Constitution makes clear.

Consider what the consequences would be if nine justices, appointed for life and accountable to no one, could go beyond determining the constitutionality of policy and assume Congress' role of making policy. That practice would be oligarchical, not democratic. Unfortunately, that is exactly the kind of power the Supreme Court has assumed over the last generation.

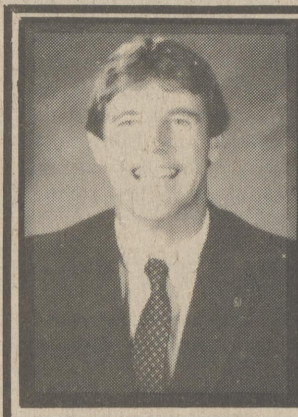

Liberals still make eloquent references in speeches to the sanctity of the Constitution, but pin them to specifics and it's clear that all they really care about is pushing their policies by the handiest means available. All's fair, so if Congress won't do your bidding, try the courts. Winning is all that counts. Pay no mind to the rules of the game.

Consider all the bile liberals have emptied on Bork. They've made no attempt to conceal their fear that his confirmation would be hazardous to the policies they want enacted, by judicial fiat when necessary. That's why Bork's impressive academic and legal background counts for nothing with them. What horrifies them is that he believes in democracy, not in an oligarchy of judges.

The principle we've lost is basic to constitutional democracy, under which policy is not made by imposing the personal preferences of nine unelected people, even if they fancy themselves to be geniuses compared to the rest of us. In democracies policy is not imposed; it is arrived at and implemented through institutions whose power derives from the consent of the governed.

I look forward to a helluva show. Few spectacles are more entertaining than the shock and horror liberal Democrats exhibit when faced with someone who really believes in democracy.

(Feulner is president of The Heritage Foundation, a Washington-based public policy research institute.)

"Great Communities, Great Schools"

"Great communities make great schools and great schools foster great communities," wrote Ronald D. Stephens, Executive Director for the National School Safety Center in the Spring 1987 issue of School Safety. "A community affects the attitudes, aspirations, curriculum, and climate of the school, while the school dramatically affects the community through its priorities and in the type of programs, service, and community involvement it fosters.

"Great schools share one characteristic; a high level of positive interaction and involvement with the community. This is accomplished through athletic events, cultural programs, planning sessions, public forums, adult education and other school events. The level of impact a school can have upon the community is limitless."

Educators in Lake Forest School District couldn't agree more. We also would carry that involvement one step further and submit that regular interaction between the home and the school regarding student progress is an excellent vehicle for community involvement. Whether it is school initiated or promoted by the home, this communication is the foundation from which all else flourishes.

Stephens continues, "When people share, people care. When schools share their problems as well as their successes with the community, the community becomes involved. With involvement comes ownership and support for the school system. There is a simple formula for success — P-C-S — participation leads to commitment and commitment leads to success. Participation means more than just doing, it means being involved in the planning, the evaluating, executing and changing where appropriate.

"On the other hand, communities should not wait forever for schools to make the first move. Since education is a local responsibility, it is incumbent upon communities to make their schools the kind of schools they want them to be. The most dramatic way to accomplish this is to insure that the schools have appropriate leadership working with a committed staff, involved parents, business and community leaders who care — involvement is the key."

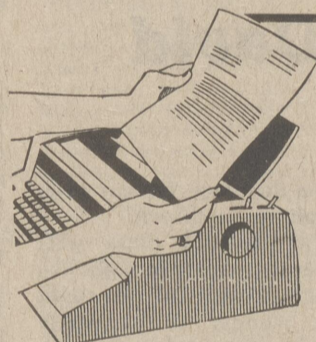

Involvement is the key. Those who promote a meaningful educational experience for our youth extend a hand to all community members to take part in this fulfilling process.

"It's time to begin planting the seeds that will insure America's greatness into the next century. The strength of America must be constantly renewed and reinvigorated by investing in our nation's youth. The opportunities are too great and the costs too high to do anything less," wrote Stephens in concluding his remarks.

Great communities, great schools; great schools, great communities.

Everybody participates; everybody benefits.

See you in school.

We Invite You To Submit Your Letter to the Editor

If we can't support our grandchild we will lose him. What can we do?

ASK MR. BERKO

Dear Mr. Berko: My son has left his wife and child and can't be located. My husband and I have been taking care of his wife and child. My daughter-in-law is a dope addict and doesn't work. She disappears for long periods and is in and out of drug programs. My husband is a veteran, collecting 100% disability so it is very difficult to support the child. Social Services has suggested that we put the child up for adoption but we love the child and would rather go without than give him up. The VA says that they will not give us any extra money for the child. Can you suggest anything that could help us?

—Mary P., Kailua, HI

Dear Martha: We have several suggestions, none of which will cause you to give up the grandchild you love. First, if you adopt the child legally, he will have the same status as if he were your natural son and the VA will increase the dependency portion of your husband's compensation. If your pension income is less than the amount for eligibility for food stamps and ADC (Aid to Dependent Children) you can receive help from these programs. In addition, if your daughter-in-law is medically unable to work, she can collect under the ADC or welfare. Because she is an addict, you may be able to have her checks made out in your name or in both your name and her name. If the checks or stamps go directly to your daughter-in-law you can be sure she'll use the money for dope not for support of her child. Speak to the VA and make arrangements for the adoption. It can be done with little or no cost through a legal program. Contact your city hall or the Social Service worker you spoke of for the legal help, food stamps and financial help for your daughter-in-law.

Dear Mr. Berko: I have just received a large amount of money from some family property that was sold. I'm retired and have other assets. My wife and I don't need the money. I understand that if I give the money to my children for their use and the grandchild's education. I will have to pay a gift tax. This doesn't seem fair since I paid tax when I received the money. How can I give them the money and pay as little tax as possible or, better still, none at all.

—Jack S., St. Simons Island, GA

Dear Jack: Each year you and your wife can give $10,000 each to any individual without paying any gift tax. Thus you can give $20,000 to each of your children and grandchildren. I don't know how many children or grandchildren you have, the amount you wish to distribute or your age. But with two children, their spouses and two children each you can give $160,000 each year tax free. That's almost a million dollars in five years. Incidentally, the recipients are not liable for any income taxes on this money.

Dear Mr. Berko: I am a third generation American but I would like to search my mother's family roots in Czechoslovakia during my two-week visit there next spring. What advice can you give me?

—Elvira C., Woodland, CA

Dear Elvira: Write Jiri Savka, Visa Department, Czechoslovak Embassy, 3900 Linnean Ave NW, Washington, DC 20008. He will send you literature that was prepared especially to help in genealogical inquiries.

Mr. Robert L. Berko is co-author with Monroe Spiegel of Consumers Guide to Home Repair Grants and Loans which lists over 4,000 sources of grants and subsidized loans for people in all income brackets, along with sample applications, advice in handling the money, hiring a contractor and negotiating contracts. For a copy of this 188 large-page book send $7.95 (plus $1.50 postage) to Ask Mr. Berko, PO Box 336, South Orange, NJ 07079-0366. Questions on any subject can be sent to the same address.

Senatorial Report

by Senator Ruth Ann Minner

It looks like I'm going to have my work cut out for me over the next few weeks with public hearings on Governor Castle's so-called Quality of Life legislation on land use, planning and zoning, and orderly development. At present, the Senate Highways and Transportation Committee plans hearings on the package of 20 bills while the House of Representatives stubbornly insists on holding its own hearings on the package, half of which it already has passed.

Since I've been serving for almost two years on the Governor's Environmental Legacy Task Force and serve on the Senate's Highways and Transportation Committee, I guess I was destined to be in on the public hearings.

Of course, I would have preferred that the Governor waited until the task force recommendations were made rather than have his package of bills introduced in a flurry in June. I fail to understand the need for haste in this important area.

When the Task Force report has been made public, and with the benefit of the public hearing input, I believe we can put together a compromise set of bills which may even improve of the Administration's Quality of Life package.

Interestingly enough, many of the Governor's bills seemed to have been developed as a result of informal discussions among task force members, passed on to the Administration by members serving on the task force subcommittees.

In my opinion, it would have been wiser for the Administration to wait for the Environmental Legacy recommendations on land use and the environment before introducing the package of bills. Such a delay may have avoided the impression given in the news media that the Senate and House are making the land use bills a political football.

In any event, the Senate hearings are tentatively scheduled for Sept. 16 in Legislative Hall, Sept. 23 at Del Tech South, Sept. 29 in Wilmington, and Oct. 1 in Newark.

We expect a huge turnout of witnesses as well as citizens who want to sit in because of the critical nature of decisions affecting land use, transportation, development, and orderly growth.

Roth: Trade Bill a constructive step in right direction

by U.S. Senator Bill Roth

In Washington, cutting the U.S. trade deficit has been a subject of great debate in recent months. It is a complex issue. There is not one answer to this problem and there are no jiffy-solutions. However, the Senate recently passed an omnibus trade bill which is largely a constructive and balanced step in the right direction.

Although I did have some reservations, I voted for this bill because the core is comprised of a series of legislative proposals on trade which I have been pressing. For example, included in the bill were my proposed reforms for the Trade Adjustment Assistance program, which helps workers who lose their jobs because of imports. Under my reforms, workers could continue to get the benefits now available to them under TAA but in order to receive them they would have to participate in retraining unless it is inappropriate.

The bill also contains a proposal of mine to tighten current law which permits the President to restrict imports, if those imports are threatening an industry critical to U.S. national security. I was also successful in pushing a measure to improve the protection of American patents, copyrights and trademarks against imports which infringe these intellectual property rights.

Other proposals of mine which were incorporated into the bill include: a provision to strengthen the law to make sure management and labor use import relief granted by the government to make the industry more competitive; measures endorsing a new round of multilateral trade negotiations, particularly to open markets in goods and services and to stop unfair foreign practices in agriculture; and a resolution urging a Joint Executive/Parliamentary Trade Summit to address trade tensions between the U.S. and Japan.

The House of Representatives has also passed a trade bill, so now we must form a conference committee to reconcile the two bills into one. I look forward to participating on the conference committee to help ensure a strong trade bill -- one which the President can sign with a clear conscience. However, I am reserving my right to vote against the product of the conference committee, depending on the outcome.

As I said, the Senate trade bill is a constructive piece of legislation, but it alone will not solve our trade deficit. To reduce that deficit will also require firm action to cut the federal deficit and a new willingness on the part of our trading partners to both open their markets to American products and also buy those goods.

Social Security is here to stay

by Congressman Tom Carper

Every year, I receive literally thousands of letters and phone calls from Delawareans with questions and concerns about the federal government.

Quite a few of these inquiries are about social security, and in increasing numbers, whether social security will be around long enough for those who paid into the system to receive the benefits they've been promised. If you're one of the doubters, the answer might surprise you.

In 1982, the year I was first elected to the U.S. House of Representatives, Congress and the nation were bitterly divided over the future of Social Security. The Old Age, Survivors and Disability Insurance Trust Fund (OASDI), which millions of Americans rely upon for monthly social security benefits, was at the brink of bankruptcy. Leaders of both political parties were unable to agree on the most equitable means of salvaging the system.

A special bipartisan commission was formed that year, and the commission proposed a fair, reasoned, and balanced plan to keep social security going. It was a plan which called for sacrifices from everyone. For example, those just entering the work force were asked to postpone their retirement until they are 67 rather than 65. Those already receiving benefits.

Not everyone likes all the reforms that the commission proposed, but with the promise of a system that would remain solvent well into the next century, Congress adopted the commission's recommendations, and the president signed them into law in 1983.

Less than four years later, the results speak for themselves. By the end of 1986, the OASDI Trust Fund had grown from having only about two weeks of reserves on hand to having three months worth of benefits in reserve. Though most experts agree that this is still not enough of a cushion, the health of the system continues to improve.

The 1983 reforms call for the social security payroll deduction (FICA) to increase slightly from its present level of 7.15% next January, and to increase again by a small amount in 1990, leveling off at a rate of 7.65%. According to the Congressional Research Service, the long-term result of the 1983 reforms will require no further changes in the system -- including the need for tax increases -- until well into the next century.

If existing forecasts prove correct, the surplus in the OASDI Trust Fund will peak in the year 2032. After that year, the post World War II baby-boom generation will be fully retired, and the system's monthly income will begin to fall short of its costs. But the surplus in federal securities that the trust fund will have collected by then will provide the system with the money it needs to pay benefits until the year 2051.

Before 2015, of course, some future Congress will need to take action to once again ensure the future solvency of the social security system, but the country should not face the kind of prices situation we faced in 1982.

Congress and the president don't always have great success working together these days. But their collective efforts, and the sacrifices made by almost every American, have not only preserved social security, but made it a healthy system again. That's good news for retired Delawareans and those still working. Social Security is here to stay, not only for the generation presently receiving benefits, but for their children and grandchildren as well.

Let's go home, boys

By Rebecca Moore

Several weeks ago, we decided to go camping over in Chestertown, Maryland. Heading over Route 290, just west of Suddlersville, we noticed a huge flock of birds rising in a solid mass from an open area behind a house.

"What kind of birds were they, Becky?" my hubby asked.

"Oh, I don't know—probably just a bunch of blackbirds," I replied thoughtlessly. My mind was on other things.

"I think they were pigeons," David continued.

"Pigeons? For crying out loud, David, who ever heard of pigeons in rural Maryland? There's no tenements or flat-topped buildings here and this certainly isn't the zoo." My television concepts were getting in the way.

"Well, they sure looked like pigeons."

We arrived at our campsite, and the flock of birds was promptly forgotten. But on our return trip, we passed that same house and out front was a large sign with the name "Dixon" and a large pigeon painted on it.

"Look at that, Becky. They were pigeons! The sign proves it." Fortunately, my husband is not one to say "I told you so!", but, as usual, he was right. My television concepts were wrong. There are pigeons in rural Maryland. But these are certainly not your average, run-of-the-mill birds, and finding out about them was a fascinating experience!

Jesse Dixon is a busy man with an interesting hobby. Living around the corner from Dixon's Furniture Auction in Crumpton, Jesse is the son of the auctioneer, and is, himself, an auctioneer. Watching Jesse in action is a confusing experience. It's beyond me how anyone can talk that fast one minute for auctioning and the next minute talk at a normal speed. Jesse just laughs—auctioning is not unusual or fascinating to him; it's all in a day's work. What does fascinate him is the 130 birds he has in his barn behind his house.

Interest in pigeons dates all the way back to 3000 B.C. when the ancient Egyptians began training them. As recently as World War II, pigeons were used to fly messages from one place to another. Even today, pigeons are used by the Lockheed Corporation to send microfilm from plant to plant. The homing pigeon is a special breed of pigeon whose roots can be traced to Europe, where pigeon racing is an extremely popular sport. You can't take any old pigeon off some city street and expect him to find his way home. It's only the homing pigeon that has this peculiar capability. So homing pigeons have been around for a long time and are still useful in these days of advanced technology.

Every evening, once the weather gets warm, Jesse Dixon meanders out to his barn and releases his winged beauties for their daily romp. This is more than just a good time—it's part of the bird's training. Baby pigeons don't have much of a babyhood. When they're just twenty-five days old, their training begins. Each bird is banded according to its birthdate. Older birds begin racing in the spring; babies born after the first of the year are not legal for racing until the fall of the same year. Training involves taking the birds to local liberation areas, usually within twenty-five miles of home, and releasing them. Somehow, most of the birds find their way back home.

This ability to get back home is without explanation. Pigeons have been the subject of thorough, intense studies for years, but still, no one fully understands how they can manage to navigate so precisely. One explanation is that the birds recognize trees, mountains, or rooftops, just as we recognize landmarks. But this does not explain their ability to fly home from unfamiliar liberation areas and over equally unfamiliar terrain. Others claim that pigeons have a built-in compass or a form of magnetism which draws them home. Science is baffled. I really prefer to think that pigeons are just one of the billions of miracles of Creation and that they prefer their cozy loft to some tree out in the middle of Timbuktu.

When spring comes, pigeon racing season opens. Jesse is a member of the Fly Way Club—a new pigeon club based in Maryland and Delaware. Members of this and other clubs get their birds all ready during the week because, come weekends, the excitement begins. Each owner is allowed fifteen entries. Pigeons are banded with a special rubberband called a countermark, put in crates, taken to Baltimore and placed in the back of a specially-designed truck. The birds are then driven to the designated liberation site. The owners go home and wait.

Local pigeons are liberated as far away as Atlanta Georgia. From this distance, even with a good wind behind them and traveling at the amazing speed of 60-65 miles per hour, the six hundred miles between Atlanta and the Eastern Shore is an over night trip. Pigeons do not fly at night. They find some place for a little "R and R" (roost and relaxation), but they're off again at the crack of dawn.

Meanwhile, Jesse and his competitors sit at home and wait, watching the sky. With Jesse is a complicated silver box containing a clock, lots of gears, and print-out paper. When his first bird arrives at the loft, Jesse removes the countermark from the bird's leg, encloses it in a metal capsule, drops it in a slot in the clock box and turns the crank on the top. This records the exact time of the bird's arrival on the print-out paper. It is this paper that actually determines the winner. The entire clock is taken to the race officials who open it themselves. Prior to the race, all clocks have been sealed and synchronized by race officials. Since all lofts are different distances from the liberation site, the number of yards per minute. It's all a rather complicated business.

There are always losses during the races, as some pigeons never return home. Owls and hawks see pigeons as easy targets for a quick supper. In fact, it is the hawks that prevent training from starting before mid-spring. Seems that hawks migrate back to the Eastern Shore in February and March when little furry creatures are still hibernating. With nothing else to eat, the hawks prey on local pigeons. So the little homebodies are kept safe in their lofts until rates and mice make their appearance.

To those whose interest in pigeon racing is more than a mere pastime, the rewards are great. Large races in different parts of the country can bring first-place awards of up to $40,000.00 But if this sounds like a fascinating hobby to you, be warned: pigeon racing is not an inexpensive sport. Just an average pigeon sells for $250.00. Multiple winners have been sold for as much as $12,000.00. Pigeon feed is not cheap, and of course, there's club dues and the fees charged for each race. So unless you've got some bucks to invest, perhaps armchair quarterbacking would be more your style.

Homing pigeons are amazing creatures. Some of us couldn't find our way out of a closet, but these little guys fly home over hundreds of miles of unfamiliar land. What a humiliating thought! Maybe next time you get the urge to call someone a "bird brain", you'll think twice.

For more information concerning pigeon racing, please contact Jesse Dixon at 301-928-5270, or Greg Clark at 301-438-3700.

Youth Services held at Calvary Wesleyan

On Sunday evening at Calvary Wesleyan Church, a youth service was held to honor the church's youth, as well as remembrances of David Welch, who was killed on Friday, July 31st, 1987.

Mrs. Mildred Morris of Felton and Mrs. Rhonda Hitchens of Harrington wrote special poems to honor the youth of the church.

Mr. Welch's Sunday School class wrote memories and reflections of their association with Mr. Welch.

Also honored were those attending Teen Camp. They were Brad Turner, Greg Griffin (Best Counselor), Gordon Griffin, Roger Collison (Best Camper), Joshua Tarburton, Gracie Bradford, Amy Voshell, Mark Collins, Dawn Collins, Mark Cannon, Michael VanNess and Michelle VanNess.

by Mildred Morris

God Bless you dear young people, we love you every one. We love to hear you sing and pray and have clean and wholesome fun. You see we once were young like you, but now some are old and gray but we still pray Gods best for you and keep you in the narrow way.

We also want to let you know that we appreciate the auction and the selling of our beautiful church plates. So we say a great big thank you although a wee bit late.

We know it is a battle for you teens to keep true today with drugs and sex and alcohol to draw you all away, but keep your eyes on Jesus and stay in the church and pray and use your talents for the Lord, you will find it will surely pay.

You see, when we belong to Jesus, no matter what our age, we have love and respect for everyone from the infant in the cradle to the old folks near the grave.

We may not be able to run and hop and skip like we did when we were young. Well that's what I have found and you know that some days it may hurt for us to get around.

So let's all stick together and keep faith in Gods Dear Son and then when Jesus calls us and our work on earth is done, we will have a home in Heaven at the setting of life's sun. Where we will never shed tears of sorrow and no more sad goodbyes, but we will live forever in our mansion in the sky.

Our Young People

by Rhonda Hitchens

We need the youth so our church can grow, they are our inspiration.

Their joy and vigor, laughs and sorrows are part of our congregation. They keep us up to date, with the things, our eyes sometimes can't see.

And remind us of the youth at night, when we close in prayer—earnestly.

You see the youth needs our love and pride, it makes them stronger christians.

They have to witness to a closed ear world and pray their family and friends will listen.

So be proud of our young adults and always take time to be there and hear.

Because someday they will be on their own, and they will be somebody's Peer.

Memories of Mr. David Welch

by Members of Mr. Welch's Sunday School Class and presented by Lisa Wamsley

The following statements and remarks I will be presenting will be from the hearts of our youth group as we recall some pleasant memories of our friend, who went to be with the Lord recently, Mr. David Welch.

He was a good man whom we all loved very much. He was a good Sunday School teacher and he had a good sense of humor.

One youth recalls that because he always talked a lot in class, Mr. Welch let him teach the class. Another youth recalls Mr. Welch could keep them straight on rules about sports. Mr. Welch loved to play ball. Another said Mr. Welch was a good listener when we wanted to talk but knew when to stop us.

As most of the girls recall he could get their attention by poking them in the side. You could always count on him to be in Sunday School most of the time. He rarely had to have a substitute. Mr. Welch always would tell people to put a smile on their face. He was never afraid to speak out in church.

His Sunday School class will remember that he recently brought in a cake he bought from a sale the night before. We wonder if he really understood why we weren't too hungry to eat cake at 10:00 in the morning?

We all loved him very much and sadly miss him but we realize he is with the Lord. He was a fine Christian example and never afraid to tell anyone about church. He was a good friend to all who knew him.

This is why we would like to remember him. For this reason, we as a youth group, placed a rose arrangement and plaque in his memory on the communion table. This rose arrangement and plaque, after the service, was given to his wife Nancy, and children Davey and Tina with all our love.

Also placed on the communion table was a flower arrangement given in memory of David from Jerry and Elizabeth Miller.

The Delaware Department of Transportation (DelDOT) announces that a Design Public Hearing will be held for the proposed construction of the Early Action Sections of the US Route 13 Relief Route from north of Smyrna to south of Dover. The Hearing will be conducted in a workshop format on two consecutive evenings beginning at 4:00 p.m. on September 28, 1987 in the Kent North Vo-Tech High School, Denney's Road, Dover. On September 29, 1987 the Hearing location will be moved to the Clayton VFW, Post 8801.

The proposed improvements for the US Route 13 Relief Route will provide a new 18 mile, four lane divided freeway with limited access locations. The new alignment will begin at the Dover Air Force Base and end at the Smyrna Rest Area. There will be an interchange located at the main gate of the Dover Air Force Base, Route 113 south of Dover, Denney's Road and south of Road 12.
