On the agenda for Monday's meeting, Mayor Farrow had requested a special election be held in the 2nd Ward of Harrington, and the agenda called for a time, date and procedures to be followed for the election.

Mayor Farrow rescheduled Councilman Daniel R. Coleman voted against, and Councilman Jack Wyatt with success in getting a date for the did not appear at the meeting until special election to fill the vacant seat in shortly before adjournment...after the vote on the special election was taken. The special meeting held at 7 p.m. Councilman Coleman said he was Board of Elections as to whether or not a special election should be held in the 2nd Ward.

In the workshop which followed the special meeting, the discussion found it's way back to the topic of the election. Mrs. Marie Cunningham of 227 Commerce Street, Harrington, asked Councilman Coleman, who is her councilman, if he felt that he had had Temple, Jr., the council voted 3-1 with adequate representation or legal advice

Councilman Coleman said he wanted the opportunity to tell Mrs. Cunningham that it was the Kent County Department of Elections which made the decision to close out the election for Ward 2. When Mr. Porter's petition was ruled invalid by the council it left only Mr. Englehardt's name on the ballot and therefore, Mr. Englehardt was declared the winner.

Councilman Temple said "...let's tell the story the way it was. Mr. Darling (of the Department of Elections) told us (the council) in the emergency meeting that if we struck Mr. Porter's name he would have to close the voting machine. That's when I made the second motion to leave Mr. Porter's name on the ballot. Jackie (Wyatt) seconded the motion. On roll call vote Mr. Brown did not vote, you (Mr. Coleman) voted against. Mrs.

petition of Mr. William Porter from the motion was defeated." The final vote procedures, including the number of was 2-1 against leaving Mr. Porter's name on the ballot.

Now ... when Mr. Englehardt withdrew his name from the ballot there was no one on the ballot when the polls were opened. This is exactly how it happened. Had Mr. Englehardt remained on the ballot until the polls were opened and closed then it would have been a different story. But that wasn't the case", said Councilman

In the special meeting, Councilman Temple's motion read to hold a special election for the 2nd Ward on February 16, 1988 at City Hall, 110 East Center Street, with polls open from 12:00 noon to 7:00 p.m. Petitions may be picked up anytime after January 27th 1988 at City Hall. The deadline for filing petitions will be February 5th at 4:00 p.m., and that the petitions be accompanied with Minner voted no. I (Temple) voted yes certain sections of the charter relating to

In other matters discussed in the workshop, it was decided that a joint meeting with council, planning and zoning commission, and the owners of the property directly in front of the Hollywood Cemetery (Robert Minner, Sr. and Jr.) and other residents of the

The matter of Burris Foods was put on hold until Mr. Burris presents a legal survey of the property, which is contended as being outside the city

In another matter, the Mayor proposed that the council give some extra thought to selecting members of the Board of Elections. There will be a special meeting on the evening of February 15th at 7:30 p.m. for the sole purpose of selecting members to serve on the Board of Elections for the election which will be held the next day. February 16th 1988. The Board will be selected in accordance with the charter. In the recent city elections, it has been difficult selecting persons to serve on the Harrington Board of Elections. Mayor Farrow suggested that in the future the council lay down definite guidelines for the Board and that the members of the Board be charged with opening the election, signing citizens in to vote, keeping order, closing the polls. and taking the tally. The charter states that two members of council, not running for an office, and a resident of the city constitute the Board. It also states that citizens can comprise the Board. "Regardless who serves in this capacity, the Board should sit in an area which is designated...not in the public area. The Board members should not sit

Open Forum draws concerned citizens

by Bonnie Algier-Mitchell

HARRINGTON. In his opening statement at Thursday night's Open Forum, Mayor Harry G. farrow, Jr. said "the town must now move forward." He went on to thank the 50 to 60 persons for attending the forum, which included residents of Ward 2 and other interested residents of the city.

When the discussion was turned over to the residents, questions were in abundance. Most of the questions concerned the petition of Ward 2 candidate, William "Billy" Porter, why Mr. Porter's petition was thrown out and what the Mayor and Council intended to do to rectify the situation of a vacant seat in Ward 2.

The first questions came from Mr. George VonGorres, which pertained to the number of voters in Ward 2, the requirements of becoming a candidate and procedure for filing a petition. Mayor Farrow referred to the charter, which he said contained a lot of "gray areas" which don't go anywhere There is no clear definition on what to do if you have less than 10, or more than 25 signatures on the petition" said

The main issue at the meeting was the filling of the vacant seat in Ward 2. Mayor Farrow passed a petition throughout the group for their signatures, urging council to hold a special election for Ward 2.

Why did council refuse the will of the people and the candidates? Mr.

Englehardt had no objections to Mr. Porter's petition. Let them (councilmen) speak!" said one resident. Councilman Coleman replied, "get your charter and read it.

Former councilman Gary Harrington stated when he ran for council his petition contained more than 25 signatures. "Was you petition thrown out, Mr. Harrington, were you in the election?" questioned Councilman

James Temple. "Yes, I was. Mine was accepted," Mr. Harrington replied. A question came from Rev. William Miller asking...other than the charter, why did the councilmen vote against Mr. Porter's petition? "I voted for the petition. You can ask the other two here about their votes (Coleman & Wyatt)" said Councilman Temple. "I asked the City Solicitor if he would give a written opinion and he would not give one (written opinion) prior to the election.'

Temple said. Councilman Coleman first stated that he was "advised by the City Solicitor that the petition could be struck because it did not comply with the charter in that it had too many signatures". Former city councilman Donald Jarrell stated that the "...charter gives the City Solicitor the right to render a legal opinion, but the council must make the decision with their vote'

Mr. Jarrell also indicated that the City Solicitor, Mr. Gary Dodge, said .. someone should make the decision either the council or the election board. He (Mr. Dodge) indicated he recommended the election board as a was to diminate a possible conflict of interest since no one on the election board was running for re-election as was the case with the council".

Coleman grasped for an answer about his vote against the petition, finally stating..."I will not repeat my answer as to why I voted to strike Mr. Porter's petition." Councilman Jackie Wyatt made no comment.

'We have heard many valuable things here tonight. The councilmen have heard these things and now it's time for a special election in Ward 2," said Rev. Wm. Miller.

Mayor Farrow called a special meeting for the following night (Friday) at 7:30 p.m. for council to vote on an election for the vacant seat and to set election procedures.

Felton Community Historical Society meets

by Lola M. O'Day

The meeting was called to order on Monday, January 18, 1988, by Joyce Jefferson, president with five (5) members present. They were Edie Hemphill, Steve Childers, Dorothy O'Day, Rose Mary Sluter and two (2) guests from Frederica, David and Lorraine Forbes. They are interested in the making of a Historical Society in the town of Frederica. The couple are restoring their home and have found it very interesting in history, so now their idea "why not Frederica?

Mr. and Mrs. Forbes arrived at the meeting in Felton on Monday and explained what they were interested in, our President, Joyce, was very pleased and loaned them a copy of our Constitution and By-laws. Mrs. Jefferson also mentioned Mrs. Grace Welch as being very helpful in guiding Felton Society in our beginning. Edie Hemphill also offered some good suggestions and was happy in doing so. able to be present with us.

Felton Society now opened for suggestions on fund drives. Mr. Steve Childers gave the suggestion of a yard sale in the early spring, all donations given will provide the Historical Society with the proceeds helping to make it possible to grow. Edie Hemphill brought in a sample of a crock which she will investigate having painted - Delaware - 1787 - 1987 - on the crock as a memorabilia, very interesting and a good idea.

Linda Gannon visited the meeting showing a sketch of the logo for our Historical Society, a train with four (4) cars. Joyce Jefferson in describing the logo made it sound just beautiful.

We are sorry for the weather conditions, which were too dangerous to walk or drive in the dense fog. Hopefully our next meeting, February 15th, 1988, will see better weather and those ill will be well, and more will be

Services that the club renders to others are many. To mention a few: transportation to and from the hospital for club members who are ill, flowers to sick members and family, transportation for the blind to the annual State

The Lions Club is not a social club. However, we do have Ladies Night for the member's wives, bus trips and a family Christmas party for the kids. (Everyone has to have fun sometimes.) So, friends, when a Lions member approaches you for a contribution or a helping hand, try to oblige, for one day, we, the Harrington Lions Members, may be working to help you.

Heritage Day

If you are a merchant, you realize some benefit from Heritage Day, so please help, not only with donations, but with actual attendance to the planning meetings so that we may benefit from your ideas and knowledge. If you are a crafter, or a vendor, or a member of any one of the several clubs who benefit from Heritage Day, please help.

Last year we became a non-profit organization, incorporated, in order to be able to offer tax help to any contributors who might wish to help. We depend entirely on donations for our expenses. As the Day gets bigger, so do the expenses.

The Christmas Parade and Heritage Day are two of the biggest affairs in our community at this time, please come to the meetings and help make it better. It cannot survive with only five or six committee members to do all the work. Don't forget...February 16, at 7 p.m. at the Senior Center...See You There!!

Conservative Caucus shows Ollie North film

by William T. Ficka

A video documentary narrated by Oliver North was shown by The Conservative Caucus of Lower Delaware at its meeting Saturday at the Harrington American Legion.

Before showing the documentary, Dave Coady, Caucus chairman, urged that the name of the Southern Campus of Del Tech be changed to the John Williams Campus, in honor, of Delaware's late, great former U.S.

senator, who recently died. The documentary was produced in 1984 and features North displaying numerous slides while explaining the significance of each one. The dramatic documentary focused on Central American affairs in general and the Nicaraguan War in particular. It emphasized the disregard for democratic principles shown by the

Sandinista regime 'The Soviet Union is outspending us four to one in our own hemisphere.' said North, who became an instant American hero during his recent televised appearance before the congressional committee investigating the Iran-Contra affair. Slides showing ships from the Soviets and satellite countries making deliveries of tanks and heavy artillery to the deliveries," said North. North said there were more submarines quartered in Cuba in 1984 than Hitler had in 1941. "We truly did not know what was going on in Grenada until we got there. We later found out secret military agreements were made that would have supplied clothing and weapons for every man, women and child three

He said that 250,000 Nicaraguans fled the country in 1983. In that year more than "a million illegals came into our country. Some came by boat, some walked across. He said that history shows that whenever the Communists take over a country 10 to 20 percent of the people flee to another country.

"If the Communists take over in Central America, we can expect up to 10 million refugees," he added.

There are 175,000 soldiers in the Nicaraguan Army. Most of these men are not in battle, but are used to intimidate their neighbors, Costa Rica and Honduras, and further the revolution, according to North.

He said the boat lift from Cuba cost the American people $1.25 billion. "Hundreds of Nicaraguans are joining the resistance every week," said 'We believe a democratic outcome is achievable in Nicaragua if these people are supported," he added. One slide showed a whole village of people who had crossed a river to attend church services, a right they were denied

Another showed the scarred torso and arms of a Nicaraguan pastor who had been doused with gasoline and locked in his church while it was set on fire. He would prevent us from photographing miraculously escaped with his life.

The congressional committee displayed its infinite wisdom in not allowing North to show the slides on TV. Children in the TV audience whould have been scared out of a year's

Bus Safety advice given to Woodbridge students

School Bus Safety was the topic of Harold Hedrick, a Traffic Safety Representative of the Delaware Motor Club AAA, Division of the Keystone Automobile Club as he spoke to children at the Woodbridge Elementary School in Greenwood, and the Woodbridge Early Childhood Educational Center in Bridgeville last Monday.

According to the Delaware AAA, nationwide more than 21 million students are transported to and from school each day using 338,851 school buses. During a one year period, school buses in the United States travel more than three trillion miles while transporting students.

In Delaware, more than 1,200 school buses carry 79,550 students to and from school each day.

During his presentation to the students, Mr. Hedrick emphasized the importance of proper conduct on school buses and the need to follow the instructions of the school bus driver. Some of the advice given to the pupils by Delaware AAA Traffic Representative included: Leave home early enough to arrive at your bus stop on time. Wait for your bus in a safe place -- well off the roadway. Remain in your seat while your bus is in motion. Remain quiet and orderly. Be alert to traffic when leaving the bus.

Viola Fire Flies Reporter

In December, our 4-H Club had our monthly meeting and our Christmas party. Charles Carlson told us about the trip to Chicago (for woodworking) and also Fred Biggs told us about the trip to Kentucky (for poultry). After the meeting we all went caroling around Viola, then came back for refreshments, to exchange gifts and play a few games.

member is Destiny Kerstetter. "Welcome Destiny." Sherry Sharpe was our guest speaker. She talked about 4-H Kent County Junior Council and gave a slide presentation. Danny Carlson gave a demonstration on sanding. Our Club won a Blue Ribbon on the Christmas tree decorated and placed in Golden Years Manor. We also took 3rd place at Ethan Allen on our other Christmas

Do you know who you are? Do you the fatherhood of God. have an identity crisis? Somethimes we imitate others in trying to find our identity. Too often we begin life as an original and end up as a copy. We were created in God's image - in the likeness of God. Spiritually we were made for God. That is our identity. This was the theme of Rev. Holliday's sermon on 'Identity Crisis' on Sunday, Jan. 24.

Vivian Dill spoke of Paul's writing to Philemon and asked him to take Onesimus, the runaway slave, back. She mentioned Dr. Martin Luther King and how he stood for the rights of others. and how God protected Moses and used him to free the Hebrews from their life of slavery. In the closing of her children's sermon, Vivian said we were all to live together, peacefully and lovingly as brothers and sisters under

Harrington Baptist Church

Last Sunday, we were all blessed by the message brought to us by Brother Abe Ellison on Baptist Men's Day at the 11 a.m. service. He spoke on "Life of Dependency", Isaiah 51:6. During our life here on this earth we all depend on something. Life apart from Jesus Christ is nothing. We thank the men of the church for a job well done. The day was a blessing.

This Sunday beginning at 9;45 a.m. is Sunday School. We have a class for every age. Morning Worship is at 11 a.m., Acteens at 3:30 p.m., Children's Choir practice at 5 p.m., Adult Choir practice at 5:45 p.m. and Evening Worship at 7 p.m. If you are new in the community and without a church home, please be with us at any time. Baptist Young Women will meet at the church at 7 p.m., Monday, Feb. 1. Note the change of time for this meeting. Baptist Women will meet Tuesday, Feb. 2nd at 7 p.m.

Valentine's Day, but will also be Focus of WMU in the church. All ladies will be recognized during the Morning Worship service plus the singing of the WMU Centennial hymn. At the 7 p.m. service there will be a Centennial skit. After the service, a display of WMU material, with games and light refreshments, will be in the fellowship

The varsity girls basketball team was on the road last week, but they picked up two wins by downing Delmar 58-30 and Sussex Central 47-21.

Arlene May, the pint-sized guard, led the team in both games with game high totals of 16 points against Delmar and 15 against Sussex Central. Miss May was not only hitting on her per gameaverage for points but she maintained her average of steals per game with 5 and 6 respectively.

The Spartans are now 10-0 overall and 6-0 in the conference. They face a tough opponent this week in Milford and "I don't believe we have had our best game vet. We made a lot of mistakes in both games last week. I think we are capable of playing better caliber of ball than what we have played", said head coach Pat Dyal Borowski. The supermotivating coach indicated that the Milford game might bring out the best in her team. "Milford has a good team and they have not lost since we beat they will be tough", added Coach Borowski. In the Delmar game the foul shooting continued to plague the Spartans shooting 2 out of 10. Their team average Wesley last week and Teresa looked real now is approximately 33 percent. 'That's not good, and I can't figure it heavier girl who can get the rebounds. out...unless the girls have a negative She looked like she was real confident attitude about shooting fouls", said in her shooting. She still has that good Borowski. Her foul played at Lake Forest.

shooting average now is 47 -percent. Miss Pelton scored 10 in each game last

In the Delmar game, Delmar staged a stalling tactic. "It took the girls a while to figure out what was happening" said Coach Borowski. It was 24-12 Spartans at the end of the first half, and in the second half the Spartans scored 34 points to Delmar's 18. "We figured out that we could pass over the 1-3-1 zone defense.

In the Sussex Central game the Spartans came out fighting going 19-0 at the end of the first quarter. "The full court press we put on I think really scrambled them real good", said Coach

"As for our play...I think sometimes you play up to your level of competition, which means we played poorly." said the coach.

We played volleyball with them shooting 20 out 77 from the floor. So you decide for yourself", Coach

"I am still looking for a real good them in the Christmas tournament. So game from them...and maybe it will be against Milford. The team is loose and maybe too loose

Mr. Clifton January 18, 1988, a motion was came to Bridgeville in 1941 as a physical unanimously passed to name the education instructor and coach of all Woodbridge High School football sports. He served in the school district until retirement in 1970, with a three and one-half year interruption in his teaching duties while serving in the army during World War II. Mr. Clifton graduated from Lewes High School and West Chester State Teachers' College. As a student at West Chester, he lettered in three sports. Prior to his coming to Bridgeville, he served coaching stints at Beacom College and at Caesar Rodney

Football was the sport in which he was most interested and successful. In 1950, Coach Clifton had an undefeated season; one of his players on that team. Paul Myer, was an all-state selection. In 1953, his football team achieved an 8win, 1-loss season. One of the to join with the Board in honoring this outstanding members of that team, outstanding educator

Richard Lewis, made all state. In the 1950's, Coach Clifton initiated the annual Delmar-Bridgeville Thanksgiving Day game; and in 1960, his football team won the first Henlopen Conference Championship. Chesapeake utilities Corp reduces gas rates

As a result of an informal investigation made by the Delaware Public Service Commission. Chesapeake Utilities Corp.'s revenues were reduced by $248,488 or 2.38 percent, effective Jan. 1, 1988.

This reduction reflects the impact of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 that lowered the corporate tax rate from 40 to 34 percent, and the lowering of the Company's allowed Rate of Return on Equity from 14 percent to 12.75 percent. In view of the changing nature of the natural gas industry, the Commission ordered that this docket remain open for further consideration of rate design issues, such as the Purchased Gas Adjustment and its relationship to proper gas rate design.

The Commission was also concerned that if changes in gas rate design are necessary, the impact of the changes to the business and financial risk of the company are properly reflected int he allowed equity return.

DCCJ opposes mandatory AIDS testing of individuals in State custody

AIDS is a deadly disease which has makers are considering information already killed three inmates about an offender's HIV status when already killed three inmates incarcerated within Delaware's Department of Correction (DOC). Many more inmates are expected to develop the disease. Since this is an alarming problem showing a continued affect on the DOC and Criminal Justice System, the Board of Directors for Delaware Council on Crime and Justice has taken positions on a wide range of issues concerning The policy to test for the HIV virus is appealing to many people because it gives the illusion of being a method for preventing the spread of AIDS. Due to the inherent weakness in the test and the loss of confidentiality of those who test positive but are not exhibiting symptoms, mandatory testing of specific groups is inappropriate. As a result, DCCJ opposes mandatory testing of individuals in State custody. Many feel that by segregating those inmates who have tested positive for HIV, the risk of spreading the virus will be reduced. In reality, a policy mandating segregation will only compound the problems caused by overcrowding and further a false sense of security. AIDS is not a disease of high risk groups, but of high risk behavior. Therefore, the Council opposes segregation of those individuals in State custody who have tested positive for the HIV virus.

Some judges and early release decision determining incarceration and early release. Those offenders who have been tested and show positive will more than likely not receive equal treatment. It should not be assumed that an offender will engage in unsafe behavior. By educating offenders about AIDS---its transmission and prevention, positive behavior is encouraged within an individual. With these considerations, DCCJ feels that HIV status should not be used to make most sentencing or early release decisions. Education about high risk behavior should be made available by the Criminal Justice System and is the recommended approach.

A proven preventative measure of spreading AIDS is the use of condoms. However, the distribution of condoms in the institution is problematic because of the State law prohibiting sexual activity in prison. The AIDS Advisory Task force has recommended taking condoms off the contraband list to the DOC. By doing this, family or friends could bring them in for the inmate. Recognizing these factors, DCCJ would not oppose allowing condoms in the correctional institutions.

Estimated Tax:

Farmers Have Two Payment Options

Farmers get a break from the estimated tax requirements that apply to most self-employed persons, the IRS says, if certain requirements are met. People in business for themselves generally must make estimated tax payments four times a year, according to IRS, because unlike people who are employees, they do not have tax withheld from their income.

However, individuals who earned at least two-thirds of their 1986 or 1987 gross income from farming may either:

• Pay their estimated tax for 1987 in one at 1-800-424-3676.

installment by January 15, 1988 and file their 1987 return and pay any balance due by April 15, 1988, or

• File their 1987 return and pay all the tax that is due on or before March 1,

The IRS has two free publications which explain these rules: Publication 225, Farmer's Tax Guide, and Publication 505, Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax. They may be obtained by using the order blank in the IRS tax return package or calling IRS toll-free

Senatorial Report

by Sen. Ruth Ann Minner 18th Senatorial District

After spending two years as a member of the Governor's Environmental Legacy Task Force, I was pleased that Governor Castle devoted a significant segment of his State of the State address last week to environmental issues.

I was also pleased that the Governor pledged a commitment of his Administration to implement the first steps of the Environmental Legacy Program to preserve what is good about our state for future generations.

Those steps include launching a comprehensive management study of our beaches which would lead to an approach to preserving them that includes the entire shoreline rather than individual problems; overhauling our educational system approach to environmental matters by expanding the time and effort devoted to teach the next generation about the environment and their responsibility to it; and creation of a Scientific Advisory Committee to beef up the state's ability to tap the services of recognized environmental experts.

The Governor said he also plans to implement such other recommendations of the group as increased planning capability, better management of freshwater wetlands, and more dollars for hazardous waste

by Dr. James H. VanSciver Superintendent

It is not the critic who counts; not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat, and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs, and comes short again and again, because there is not effort without error and shortcoming; but who does actually strive to do the deeds; who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions; who spends himself in a worthy cause; who at the best knows in the end the triumphs of high achievement and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat.

The words of a great President, Theodore Roosevelt, in 1910.

Keep the lid off

by Jorge E. Amador

consumers won an important battle this fall when the House Representatives overwhelmingly defeated a proposal to limit credit card interest rates.

As rates for home mortgages and auto loans moved toward 10 per cent and even lower, the prevailing rate on credit cards held stubbornly above 18 per cent, and consumer activists grumbled. Alan Fox of the Consumer Federation of America blamed "credit card profiteers" for "irresponsible exploitation of credit card consumers.'

It was oligopoly, said some. "There simply is a lack of competition in the credit card business," asserted Tennessee Senator James Sasser. "A relatively small number of very large card issuers keep these rates artificially researchers found that in Arkansas, high." Because the free market wasn't where tough interest regulations dictate helping consumers, it was argued, the some of the lowest credit card rates in government had to step in to do the trick.

The regulator's arguments fell under the sheer weight of the evidence against them. In 1986. Americans held 731 million credit cards from 15,000 issuers. The largest single issuer, Sears, accounted for just 11 per cent of all credit cards balances outstanding at the end of 1985.

Citicorp, the largest bank card provider, had less than five per cent of the 186 million bank cards issued. Together, the ten largest issuers accounted for less than one-fifth of the bank credit cards in consumers' hands. Net earnings on credit cards have remained in the 3 per cent to 4 per cent range since 1984, not a rate likely to make profiteers salivate with delight.

Such characteristics of the credit card market hardly suggest lack of competition, limited consumer choice, or tight control by a few unresponsive institutions. Because credit cards are primarily a mail-order business, every consumer effectively can shop among hundreds of card issuers. Credit card programs compete aggressively on features such an annual fees, pertransaction charges, discounts and rebates on merchandise, and the length of the "grace period" before interest on a purchase begins to accrue. Still, why hasn't competition lowered the rates on our Visas and MasterCards? Isn't it the case that "the market won't be allowed to work by those with a stake in high interest rates," as Fox says?

The answer is that the market is already working. Some are indeed many will not because they want to make credit available to a wide, audience. Last spring, American Consumer advocates lost, but Express introduced the Optima card with a 13.5 interest rate. Some banks offer card rates as low as 12 per cent.

Leadership, Friendship

They can afford to do this because they offer credit cards primarily to low-risk customers with proven credit records. Optima, for example, is available only to those who already hold American Express charge cards, a group that must meet stringent credit requirements to begin with: Citicorp cut rates to "preferred" customers to 16.8 per cent while the rate for others remains at 19.8. According to Consumer Reports, Wells Fargo Bank dropped its rate three points to 17 per cent, "but only for customers who've have a Wells Fargo bank card for at least five years.'

In a 1979 study, Purdue University the United States, only five per cent of families with annual incomes under $6000 had bank cards. By comparison. in three other states with more liberal regulations, ten per cent of such families had cards. Overall, while 39 per cent of families in the other states held bank cards, only 29 per cent of Arkansas families did

Higher card rates have enabled banks to accept riskier customers and to offer credit to more people than ever before. Applicants with marginal qualifications and limited credit histories today can shop for banks in states allowing higher interest. With a national rate cap, millions of young and lowerincome Americans would lose all access

The introduction of Optima and similar low-rate programs created a segmented market serving a wide variety of consumers, including both higher-income, low-risk clients and lower-income, high risk customers. If you have a solid credit record, you have a selection of cards with low interest charges. If you don't, there are plenty of issuers who'll risk taking you on at a higher price.

Free-market credit cards give access to credit to people of all backgrounds, while rewarding those who pay their bills. Knowing this, House members wisely rejected the cap on credit card rates. Let's make sure they don't forget in the future.

Letter to the Editor

I read with interest in the January 18 Delaware State News that Congressman Tom Carper is "optimistic" about Commandante Ortega's sudden "willingness" to lift the state of emergency and, for the first time, participate in direct negotiations with the leadership of the United Nicaraguan Opposition and other Freedom Fighters.

With Ortega & Company publicly admitting that the real reason they have agreed to such unusual measures being their hopes that this will give our liberal Congressman enough ammunition to end Contra aid, we are once again faced with a decision. We can pretend we didn't hear that and cut off the only real hope for freedom in Nicaragua, the democratic resistance. Or we can pull our heads out of the sand and send full aid which will only continue to force Managua to the bargaining table.

Managua's well-documented communism and desire to spread it all over South America with Moscow's help ought to be enough for us. But, add in the fact that every single agreement the Sandinistas have ever signed has been broken and thrown in our faces must force even the most liberal to admit that negotiation without benefit of the dedicated democratic resistance forces will never work.

No communist government has ever allowed democratization to take place. Ortega is once again simply buying time to lick his wounds and further consolidate his death grip on the people. If we end all aid to the Contras, we will have opened wide a path for communism to spread north and south.

Dear citizens of Delaware, if you believe in democracy for all peoples. call Congressman Carper at 736-1666 and tell him you support his "yea" vote for full aid to the brave men and women who are fighting, not only for their country, but for all of us. Ask him to send a clear message to Managua. Moscow and Havanna; that we will not tolerate communist terrorism in South America.

> Sincerely yours. George W. Contant

Capitol Comments The struggle for peace in Central America

by Congressman Tom Carper Recently I returned from the five-nation summit of Central American presidents held in Costa Rica with renewed, but guarded, optimism on the prospects for peace and democracy in the region.

I was one of five House Democrats designated by Speaker Jim Wright as an observer to the summit. During our forty-eight hour stay, we met privately with four of the five Central American presidents, and with Alfredo Cesar, one. of the six-member contra leadership.

During the first of our two meetings with Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, we urged him to lift the five year-old state of emergency and to restore all constitutional rights to the Nicaraguan people. We also encouraged him to name Nicaraguan officials to negotiate a ceasefire directly with the contras, and to release all political prisoners.

At the meeting, Ortega outlined a number of smaller steps he was willing to take, and then returned to the talks. I was surprised, frankly, the next day when Ortega agreed to concessions which went a good deal further than he initially appeared willing to go.

I think there were several factors which compelled the Nicaraguan leader to make significant concessions: intense pressure from the four other presidents; Nicaragua's deteriorating economy and growing internal opposition as a result of the contra war: Soviet reluctance to increase their financing of the Sandinista economy and war effort; and the view conveyed by the congressional delegaton that further contra aid would likely be approved by Congress in February if Nicaragua was not in fuller compliance with the Central America peace accord. During our second meeting with Ortega, I told him that the future of contra aid was in his hands. To the extent that the Sandinistas take the steps they have promised to take, contra aid is likely to end. If Ortega does not come through on the commitments he has made, contra aid will probably continue, and with it, the bloodshed that Nicaragua and the entire region have known for too long.

Americans should keep in mind that the stated policy of our government in Central America is not to overthrow the government of Nicaragua through military means. Our obejctive is to bring pressure to hear on the Sandinistas until they adhere to the original promise of their revolution individual freedoms, a more democratic government, and an economy which allows every Nicaraguan the opportunity to prosper.

By February 3, the date the U.S. House of Representatives is scheduled to consider President Reagan's latest contra aid request, we will know whether the Sandinistas have lifted the five year-old state of emergency. We will know whether the civil and political rights guaranteed by the Nicaraguan constitution are being restored. And we will know whether a Nicaraguan official, or officials, have been named to participate in direct ceasefire talks with contra leaders.

If Ortega complies with the concessions he has made, the Reagan Administration should not seek additional lethal aid for the contras. Only aid which is necessary to keep the contras fed and clothed until they can be reintegrated into Nicaragua's civilian population, or resettled elsewhere, should be permitted as long as the peace talks progress.

If they do live up to their promises, Ronald Reagan should declare a victory for his policies and move to convene multilateral talks with the Nicaraguans and their neighbors. In doing so, we can begin to address important security issues not addressed in the Arias peace plan--the departure of foreign military advisors from Nicaragua, guarantees against the establishment of foreign military bases there, and specific reductions in the size of armed forces in the region.

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr.

The action of the council on Monday night to allow the 2nd Ward in Harrington to have an election in that Ward indicated to me that an attempt was being made to consider the will of the people. In doing so it allowed for a reaffirmation of the faith the people of this City, including in particular the residents of Ward 2, have in their government. The act of the council in fact restored the right...the very precious right...to vote. This sacred right is the single most precious right we have in I am very pleased the council saw fit to allow an election to be held for the 2nd Ward, because again the way we settle things in this country is through our right to vote. Again the decision of the council signals the makings of a good, reliable government for the City of Harrington. You can put this down and underline it too...that we have the beginnings of a government of the people.

Person-to-Person

A Great Adventure

by Rebecca Moore

Everybody loves a bargain. We all like to be able to spend just a little money and have something substantial to show for our expenditure. Otherwise, why would retailers spend such huge amounts of money on advertising? They know a sale attracts business. No matter how affluent we are, we still like to get something for next to nothing.

Some of us are better at finding a bargain than others of us. I met two people the other day who are so good at finding bargains, that they decided to turn bargain-hunting into a living. Come with me and meet the owners of Great Adventure Yard Sale.

Just south of the Woodside light, on the north-bound side of Route 13, you'll find a white ranch-style house with an interesting front yard. A parking lot and a building attached to the house and sided with garage doors take up most of the space which was once the front yard. Jim and Kathy Study live in the house, and most of their waking hours are filled with the business of running the biggest yard sale I've ever

Mr. and Mrs. Study are originally from Pennsylvania--a town near Gettysburg called Littlestown. They were married shortly after high school, and Mr. Study entered the United States Air Force. Much of his military time was spent here in Dover, and this is where they decided to stretch out their roots. After his four-year hitch in the Air Force was completed, Mr. Study went to work for Elliot Brothers Trucking out of Baltimore, Maryland. He drove the big rigs, and was on the road four to five days out of every week. Mrs. Study went to work at the Dover Animal Hospital way back in August of 1957, and she is still working there, taking care of the books and assisting the doctors in just about every way.

After twenty years and three months working for the trucking company, Mr. Study suddenly found himself in need of employment. The company had begun to experience some financial difficulties, and had to let go of some of its employees. Mr. Study was one of those. Having had yard sales in the past, and always having enjoyed visiting auctions, the Studys found themselves not just an interesting pastime, but a Visiting auctions in the area, the Studys began collecting merchandise. Weekends became chaotic, because all the merchandise had to be stored in their house--wall to wall merchandise-and hauled out to be put on display. It was obvious that something had to be done to accommodate all the goods porch enclosure running the entire length of the front of the house. But after a while, that still was not sufficient to handle the ever-increasing inventory. Next came the extension out from the garage. Still, more space was needed, so needs to be done. So the five of them a deck was attached to the side of the garage addition. It was interesting, over the years, to drive by the sale, and watch the almost-constant changes which took place. But more than just watching the changes, it was fun to go poking around in the incredible amount of goods the Studys have available.

I decided it was time to purchase some end tables for our living room, but I didn't want anything that really looked like an end table--I wanted something that was a little more original. Wandering around Great Adventure one morning, I found the perfect thing. Now, two unfinished barrells sit on either side of the sofa--just perfect for the country decor of our home, and at less than ten dollars a piece, were much easier on our wallets than fancy, furniture-store tables would have been. Lawn furniture, dishes, a magazine rack, clothes, a lamp--they've all wound up in our house after a visit to Great Adventure.

Visiting Great Adventure is just like shopping in a department store. If you need furniture, go to the far end of the front porch area. If you need kitchen goods, you'll find them in the garage area, arranged in an orderly fashion. Everything has its proper place. You won't find books mixed in with tools or children's toys together with coffee pots. The Studys take the time to organize all their merchandise so that similar items are always together--just like in a department store. If you're looking for something that is dirty or in a state of disrepair, don't bother looking for it at Great Adventure. Everything is cleaned before being put on a shelf, and that condition is maintained. All appliances are in working order before they are set out for sale. In fact, the Studys will guarantee anything they sell. If it doesn't work, they'll be glad to take it back. Now, how many yard sales will do that for you?

Operating Great Adventure is no easy task. It all starts with the purchase of merchandise at auctions and public sales. Each piece of merchandise is carefully scrutinized, cleaned and repaired. Then it is priced and put in the proper area for sale. All of this requires record-keeping, too, so the Studys can keep track of what has been sold. Saturdays and Sundays, when the sale is in operation, are the busiest days. A steady flow of business keeps the Studys busy from the minute the doors open until the last customer pulls out onto the highway. From April through December, weekends are wild. But the Studys are not totally alone during the busiest times. Mr. Study's mother, there were to be sold. So, first came a Florence, lives there with the Studys and she is their right-hand-man In addition to Mom Study, two senior citizens, Sarah Clarke and Frances Wessel, come over on sale days to help out with customers and with whatever keep things moving right along.

Great Adventure's popularity has increased right along with its size since its opening in 1981, and this popularity is not just with us local folks. The Studys have at least two families who come all the way down from New York just to shop at Great Adventure. But that's understandable. Life is expensive, so if you can get good, dependable merchandise at a good price, why not take advantage of it?

I once heard it said that so much of what we are revolves around what we do for a living. Take, for instance, Harry Farrow. He's the mayor of Harrington. and the editor of "The Harrington Journal". That's what Mr. Farrow does, but that's not who he is. Finding out who Mr. and Mrs. Study really are was just as interesting as finding out about what they do.

Walking into their home, I knew immediately that they were terrific people. Their home was beautiful. The family room was cozy and inviting with its brick wall, thick carpet and wood stove. The kitchen was decorated with geese, and would have pleased even the most finicky cook. I spent my time with the Studys out on the enclosed back porch. All around me were green plants, antiques, copper collectables, and a vast assortment of curiosityinstilling items. During our entire conversation, a little furball sat in Mr. Study's lap. This adorable ball of fluff was part poodle and part pomeranian and had the cutest face I'd ever seen on a dog. On a larger scale, Lady, the Study's Doberman Pinscher roamed at will about the house. Dobermans normally make me run for cover, but Lady was so gentle and easy-going, she was a pleasure to be with. Completing the trio of Study canines was a tiny Yorkshire terrier who was quite shy, and stayed in the background during my visit. The Studys have a fascinating lifestyle and enough stories to fill volumes. Talking to them was like reading a James Herriot book--their experiences during all the years at the animal hospital caused me to laugh (did you ever hear of anyone applying a plaster cast to the shell of a turtle?) and shudder, and run through an endless array of emotions. Sitting there, in such beautiful surroundings, with such interesting conversation, and gorgeous animals, I was happy as a clam!

The Studys run a terrific business, and they love what they're doing, but the business is only the tip of the iceberg. Getting to know them is the best part of their story. They're special people with amazing stories to tell and a slightly unusual lifestyle to lead. When April comes and Great Adventure again opens on the weekends, stop in and pay the Studys a visit. You will probably find a bargain, but mostly, you'll meet a couple of real nice people!

Jump start battery properly to avoid explosion

Parents who suspect that their child may have diabetes should have a blood During bouts of frigid weather, even glucose test given. It's fast and the initial test takes only a couple of good batteries sometimes don't work. And balky, weak batteries are a common winter problem. That's when > jumper cables come in handy. Jump starting engines is a common practice in this climate. But unless this is done properly, batteries can explode. When they do, battery acid splashes everywhere and sharp pieces of the battery become flying projectiles.

"Such explosions happen when the spark that occurs when you connect jumper cables meet hydrogen gas nerated by chemicals inside the battery," explains University of Delaware Extension safety specialist Ron Jester. "Usually this gas escapes gradually through vent holes and no harm is done. But sometimes a lot collects in and around the battery-especially the charging area. Then the potential for an explosion is very real." To reduce this hazard, the vent caps on some batteries have flame arrestors that keep the flame from getting inside and blowing the battery, should gases around it ignite. Unfortunately, not all batteries have this safety feature.

So how can you jump start a car without blowing up the battery? The trick, says Jester, is to keep the gases and sparks from getting together. * Use only the same voltage battery for jump starting. Shield your eyes and face from the battery at all times. Place a damp cloth over the vents of each battery before attempting a jump start.

the terminal on the dead battery that is avoid excessive drain on the booster connected to the starter switch or solenoid-this is the terminal that is not grounded

* Connect the other end of the first cable to the terminal post on the booster battery with the same marking--that is, positive to positive or negative to negative.

Connect the first end of the remaining jumper cable to second terminal on the booster battery. With the other end, make the final connection to the engine block of the vehicle with the discharged battery--as far away as possible from the battery and carburetor.

* Try the starter of the car with the discharged battery. If the engine doesn't and proper jump-start procedures.

* Connect one end of the first cable to start immediately, start the other car to battery

* Once the car with the discharged battery is started and running normally, reverse the hook-up sequence to disconnect the jumper cables. First, remove the other end of that same cable from the booster battery.

* Remove the second cable by disconnecting it from the booster battery first. Finally, unhook it from the weak battery

CAUTION: Never let cable clamps touch each other or come in contact with any moving parts of the running engines. Before trying to start a car this way, always check the owner's maunal for full details on its electrical system
