

Council names Bill Smith interim city manager

HARRINGTON. It has been nearly six months since Harrington has had a full time city manager in place. Since the resignation of George Volenik as the city manager, Harrington has had one other in the position but again as a part-timer. That person was Dawson Shahan who was a part-time city manager spending part of his time as the city manager and the remainder of the time as the Supervisor of the waste water treatment plant.

The council voted unanimously in favor of hiring William F. "Bill" Smith as the interim city manager. A public meeting will be held Wednesday night (tonight) at City Hall to introduce Mr. Smith to the public.

Mr. Smith served the city, as a city manager in the early '50's. "I served under Fulton Downing and Dr. Hewitt Smith", said Mr. Smith.

Mr. Smith said when he was the city manager for Harrington he received $85 a week. "I asked them (the council) for $100 and you might have thought I was cutting off their arms", he said. "That was years ago and that is all behind us now. The important task before the city is to get on with business and pull together", he added.

In other matters the council approved a $200,000 grant for improvements to the sewer plant, the purchase of a tractor and trailer to haul sludge, and the retrofitting of sludge tanks. The city's portion of the grant will be $30,000. The federal government will put up $150,000 and the state will contribute $20,000. It is projected that work will begin at the sewer plant sometime this fall.

Mr. Joseph Adamo addressed the council with the idea of annexing part of his farm in the city limits or "...if that can't be done I would like to know if I can get water and sewer services", said Mr. Adamo.

Mr. Adamo has a 73 acre tract which he plans to subdivide and develop on the Roughley-Hill Road.

The way the matter was left was Mr. Adamo would consult with county officials, draw up plans for development, and seek engineering advice regarding the cost of the project. The council advised Mr. Adamo to consult with Mr. Michael Thompson who had addressed the council and those assembled at the start of Monday night's meeting regarding a grant.

In other matters, the council approved the second and final reading for the rezoning of the Richard Shultie property on Liberty Street across the street from the Meatland store from R-1 to C-1 for a barber shop and beauty salon. Mr. Shultie will need a variance granted because the rear of his building which will be an extension of the present building comes within 5 ft. of the alley. The zoning calls for a 7 ft.

allowance. A variance meeting will be set following the election next week.

The council voted to send the zoning request by Mr. and Mrs. Gene Currey to the Planning and Zoning Commission where he is requesting a zoning change to the second floor of the Harrington Dry Cleaners. Mr. Currey is purchasing the property to enable him to put 6 apartments on the second floor of that building. The present zoning on the entire building is commercial. There is no provision for split-zoning, according to Mayor Farrow. The Mayor suggested that the council might want to adopt an amendment to the planning and zoning map to legally enable this to take place.

Citizen and former council member from the 6th Ward, Donald Jarrell, indicated that there were other properties in the downtown area which have the so-called split zoning naming Taylor's Hardware and the Harrington Journal building, where apartments exist on the second floor above the commercial establishment. The Mayor suggested at the end of the discussion that an amendment is proper. "It is something that needs to be done. It is something that should be done, for each case turns on its own merits. This way all would be protected and the off street parking would then be taken into consideration.

The council approved the installation of in-ground gasoline tanks at Steller's Market, formerly Quillens, so long as the installation complies with state inspections, fire marshal's requirements, and other state organizations. The motion was made by Councilman Temple.

The council approved running sewer and water to the property of Viola Scott on Reed Street, directly behind the car wash as per the plan by the Kent County Community Development project.

The council also approved extending an invitation to representatives of the Kent County Department of Elections to supervise the upcoming election to be held on February 16th for Ward 2 in Harrington.

The council granted approval to Mr. Raymond Gagne to install a soda machine in front of his store "The Lunchbox" which would sit partially on his property and the library's property. He also agreed to construct a barricade on each end of the library and his store to seal off the passageway between the two buildings. There has been a build up of trash in that area in recent months.

There will be a workshop meeting on February 22nd when former city manager George Volenik will be present to give a report on grants and new businesses coming to Harrington. That meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Plot thickens as Gibson tragedy unfolds

by Bonnie Algier-Mitchell

DOVER. Richard W. Lynch, Jr., 26, accused, along with his wife Joyce Lynch, of the gruesome, double murders of Joseph and Beverly Gibson, appeared in the Court of Common Pleas Monday for his preliminary hearing. Lynch, shackled at the ankles, appeared frail and quiet as Detective Richard A. Ashley of the Delaware State Police detailed events from the time of the Dec. 23 murders to Jan. 7th, the day kidnapped infant, Matthew Gibson was found at the Lynch's Broad St., Houston, Delaware residence.

Ashley recalled the conditions of the scene, the Gibson's residence located on Rd. #215 west of Wyoming approximately 7:35 a.m., Dec. 24th. Beverly Gibson was found inside the couple's Pontiac Grand Prix clothed in a nightgown and robe, which were blood stained from the apparent gunshot wound to the left side towards the back, and barefoot. She was clutching a white diaper and the keys were in the ignition.

As he approached the mobile home, Ashley stated he saw the cement steps were blood stained with body tissue on them. Joseph Gibson's body was seen on entry, clad in cut-off sweat pants and flannel shirt, a large hole in the back of his head and also in his chest, apparent gunshot wounds. According to Det. Ashley after investigating and securing the scene the bodies were removed to Nanticoke Memorial Hospital, Seaford for autopsies. The autopsies were performed by Dr. Judith Tobin, State Medical Examiner, who attributed Joseph and Beverly Gibson's deaths to hemorrhaging due to gunshot wounds. Bullets were removed from both bodies, 2 each—.38 or .357 caliber, "I'm not sure," commented Ashley.

When first questioned on January 7th, the date the Lynches were arrested, the couple maintained that Joyce had given birth to a son on Dec. 23. The child had been named Richard W. Lynch III. Ashley said.

According to police, later statements conflicted and another statement given by Joyce Lynch implicated Richard Lynch in the shootings.

Ashley's lengthy testimony before Judge Merrill C. Trader, Kent County

Richard W. Lynch was brought to the Court of Common Pleas early Monday morning for preliminary hearing. Judge Trader ruled there was enough evidence to hold him over for the grand jury in March. Lynch is accused of murder and other charges in the Gibson case. Photo by Don Mitchell.

prosecutor David Jones and Stephen Potter, Wilmington defense attorney painted quite a picture. One of a couple, unable to have a child, and wanting a "Christmas baby" so desperately they would even kill for it. Records from Milford Memorial Hospital revealed Joyce Lynch in April 1978 had a complete hysterectomy, Ashley stated.

Even though Joyce Lynch was unable to have a child, she began telling relatives and friends she was pregnant last summer, and wore maternity clothes up to the time of the "birth".

While Beverly Gibson was a patient at Kent General Hospital from Dec. 15, when Matthew Gibson was born, to Dec. 17, Richard Lynch allegedly visited the maternity ward, according to Ashley's testimony.

Ashley said a woman who was visiting a patient during the same time period told police she noticed a man with long dark hair and a beard looking at the babies in the nursery.

This woman later identified Richard Lynch from a photographic line-up, Ashley said.

Richard Lynch gave police different versions of the birth of the child before and after his arrest.

Lynch told Det. Ashley before his arrest on January 7 that he watched the midwife perform the circumcision on his son shortly after his birth and that he had wrapped the umbilical cord himself.

At Troop 3 he changed his story, Ashley said during the preliminary hearing Monday.

Lynch told police that the baby was actually born in the Milford free clinic.

Lynch stated that because the couple wanted the child to be born before Christmas, labor was induced Dec. 21 and the couple was to return in two days. Lynch was very descriptive about how the doctor induced labor, Ashley said.

Lynch also told another version of how Joyce left their Houston home around 9 p.m. on Dec. 23 and took the .357 caliber Magnum with her for protection against the blacks hanging around the Milford clinic, Ashley said.

Lynch said that Joyce feared someone would kidnap the baby as she left the clinic, and that in fact she did struggle with two blacks over the child as she left.

Lynch told police that Joyce arrived home with the boy baby at about 2:30 a.m. clothed only in a diaper, inside Joyce's coat. The baby had blood on his nose and feet. Joyce had blood on her hands. She told him she had fired the gun twice and dropped it on the ground where the cylinder came open and spilled the shells, Ashley said.

When police examined the gun at the Lynches' home, it smelled of fresh gun oil and appeared to have been recently cleaned, Ashley said. Richard Lynch told police he had cleaned it a couple of weeks before.

It was also revealed that a neighbor of the Gibsons heard shots and saw a dark sports car, loud exhaust that looked like the Lynches' black Trans Am speeding away from the Gibsons' trailer.

Another neighbor heard voices and gunshots coming from the direction of the Gibson's trailer and heard a woman cry, "Oh my God!"

The Lynches gave police different accounts of how the murders occurred and how they got the baby...their final statements placing the blame for the murders on each other.

Investigators are still waiting for results of FBI ballistics tests on the .357 caliber Smith and Wesson Magnum revolver located at the Lynches home. The revolver is believed to be the murder weapon.

There were also two sets of handwritten directions to the Gibson trailer found at the Lynches residence...one in a bag of trash, along with the infant sleeper identified as the one Matthew Gibson was wearing at the time of his abduction...the other in Joyce Lynch's purse.

Judge Trader ruled late Monday afternoon that Richard W. Lynch, Jr. would be bound over for the grand jury, with formal indictment coming around the first week of March.

As Time Goes By...

Carole Fleetwood weds Christopher Baker

In a candlelight ceremony at the Union Methodist Church in Bridgeville, Carole Ann Fleetwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald L. Fleetwood of Bridgeville, and Christopher William Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Baker of Greenwood, exchanged their wedding vows.

The nuptial ceremony took place on Saturday, January 2, 1988, at six o'clock in the evening, with Rev. Harold Walton and Pastor Clifford Lones officiating the double ring marriage service.

A program of nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Kim Lank and Mr. Buddy Millman, accompanied on the piano by Mr. Chris Andrews. Organist, Mr. Bill Pritchett, provided the processional and recessional music.

Escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a white satin gown featuring a high illusion neckline and leg-o-mutton sleeves. The fitted bodice was adorned with venise lace and seed pearls. The full skirt flowed from the slightly dropped waistline into a full cathedral length train hemmed with Italian lace.

The train was adorned with spouseauro, Italian cut-out lace, and venise lace appliques. Her matching headpiece featured a crown of seed pearls with a stylish pouff and shoulder length veil. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, stephontis, and white button poms, accented with seed pearls, red berries, and ivy.

Mrs. Lisa Sturgis of Greenwood was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Susan McDonald of Easton, Maryland, Mrs. Kim Christie, sister of the groom, of Brick, N.J., Mrs. Theresa Baker, sister-in-law of the groom, of Greenwood, Mrs. Lynn Willey of Bridgeville, and Miss Amy Wright of Harrington, cousin of the groom.

All the attendants wore floor length red satin gowns featuring long sleeves, bateau necklines and low cut V-backs accented with a rosette. Their headpieces were a cluster of red roses with sprays of seed pearls and ivy. All carried lighted pewter hurricane globes accented with ivy, red berries, white poms, red roses and sprays of seed pearls.

The flower girl, Alison Willey of Bridgeville, wore a white long satin gown with a white lace pinafore. She carried a white wicker basket filled with miniature red roses, white poms and lighted white fire lights.

Mr. David Sturgis of Greenwood, served as best man. Groomsmen were Mr. Greg Wright and Mr. Ron Wright, cousins of the groom, of Harrington. Mr. Dan Lones of Harrington, Mr. Mark Baker, brother of the groom, of Greenwood, and Mr. Don Christie, brother-in-law of the groom, of Brick, N.J.

The ring bearer was Jeremy Larimore of Harrington.

The groom wore a full black dress etoile with white bowtie and cummerbund, and a white rose boutonniere. The groomsmen and ring bearer wore identical full dress tailcoats but with red bowties and cummerbunds, and red rose boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a royal blue floor length gown and a corsage of white and silver roses. The groom's mother chose a teal gown with a corsage of white roses.

The guestbook and program attendants were Mrs. Kane Correll and Miss Melissa Workman. Acolytes were Miss Karen Lofland and Miss Rani Adams. Packets of birdseed were handed out by Misses Julie and Jennifer Larimore.

A buffet dinner reception followed the ceremony at the Bridgeville Fire Hall. The wedding cake was by Mrs. Ellen Messick and flowers were by Countryside Florist. Music for the evening was provided by Mr. Alex Vaughn.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at the Colony Inn in Harrington.

The bride and groom are graduates of Woodbridge High School and are students at the University of Delaware.

After a honeymoon in Florida, the couple is residing in Newark, Delaware, where they have resumed their studies.

Days Of Our Years

by Bonnie Algier-Mitchell
30 YEARS AGO
FEBRUARY 14, 1958

A long-standing Kent County Democratic feud has flared into an attempt to unseat the county chairman, Vernon B. Derrickson.

There is little likelihood that the attempt will be immediately successful since the Derrickson control is strong and is reverently spoken of in Democratic circles as being the only county organization in the state capable of delivering a solid 60-delegate convention vote at will.

The Greenwood club ran into 6 very determined ball players Friday night as the Harrington squad played a fine team game. Coach Dick Jeffers praised the entire squad and felt that without everyone's effort the upset would have been impossible. The rebounding Dave Coady, Wilson and Hendricks was fine. Bill Manship and Jack Porter again sparked the squad with some fine shots and defensive work. The boy who came into his own on the hardwood Friday night was Donald Garey—11th grade guard who played a very good floor game for the squad.

Many improvements will be made at the Kent & Sussex Fairgrounds, T. Brinton Holloway, secretary and general manager of the Fair association, said Monday. He added the Board of Directors had approved the recommendations of the Improvement Committee and that the next step would be the appointment of a Building Committee by the president of the Fair association, Jacob O. Williams.

The improvements approved were as follows:

New toilet facilities at west end of grounds.
Replacement of 40 stables known as the Conway and Saunders, ell, at west entrance of fairgrounds with modern barns.

A half-mile training track within a three-quarter track now in use. This improvement was thought necessary because the dirt roads, in the vicinity of the fairgrounds, would be blacktopped in time.

To fence entire Fair property.

To rebuild track and street lighting system.

To buy new truck and small, new tractor.

To paint all buildings, including cement stables, the paddock building, the poultry building, cement stables, and any other buildings that need painting.

The Board of Directors will contract with Anderson Patrol Service to handle ticket collections at gates and grandstand for the 1958 fair.

Greenwood...Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Donald O'Bier who are the proud parents of a baby girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dennis Jr. and sons were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allison Davis at a spaghetti supper Saturday evening.

Lewis K. Wroten, a city foot carrier at the Harrington Post Office who has been employed there since June 1954 received the Post Office Department's Superior Accomplishment Award, a check for $250, issued by the Philadelphia Region. Postmaster Howard Dill presented the award at a Post Office ceremony on Feb. 8.

Mr. Wroten received the award for his voluntary contribution to all facets of the service and his consistently unquestionable daily performance in his assigned duties.

Joseph Booth, Fleming, 93, of 301 Vernon Rd., died last Friday in Milford Memorial Hospital after a short illness.

He was a member of Temple Lodge No. 9, AF&AM, Milford, and Trinity Methodist Church.

Surviving his widow, Mrs. Florence E. Fleming, formerly of Bridgeville, whom he married in 1921.

Services were held Tuesday afternoon at McKnatt Funeral Home, 50 Commerce St., with interment in Bridgeville Cemetery. Masonic services were held at the funeral home Monday night.

Mr. Fleming was born Jan. 12, 1875, at the Vernon Road address and had resided there all his life excepting three and a half years in Philadelphia and New York City as a street-car conductor. He was in the former city in 1907-08, and then in the latter city.

Residents in the Bridgeville-Greenwood Consolidated School District Saturday defeated by a margin of almost 3-1 a bond issue for a new district high school.

Although considerable opposition developed openly in the district last week whole school officials were urging residents to approve the issue, board members had apparently not expected the overwhelming defeat.

Benjamin Hughes Jr., President and Chairman of the Board of the First National Bank of Harrington, has been appointed to the Federal Reserve Nominating Advisory Committee by the Delaware Bankers Association.

Hughes was appointed to the board of the 1st National Bank in 1968, and was elected President in 1976.

Harrington Mayor Arthur B. Cahall has been nominated by the local Jaycee chapter for Outstanding Young Man for the state of Delaware. If chosen, he will compete nationally for the Ten Outstanding Young Men of the United States.

Trash, or the removal of it, was the main issue at the Harrington City Council meeting Tuesday night.

Council members agreed that the trash ordinances need to be revised, and this item was placed on the agenda for a further meeting.

Concerning the trash problem, Councilman Gary Homewood stated, "The city will have to admit to its past errors and start fresh."

Bobby VanVorst celebrated his birthday last week.

On Monday, the members of the New Century Club of Milford held a covered dish luncheon in celebration of the 90th anniversary of the club. It was organized February 14, 1898 with Mrs. Jonathan Willis as the first president. The present Club House was purchased in 1905 for the sum of $1,250 plus $20.00 ground rent. It was completely paid for in 1912. An oil burner was installed in 1947 for $323.25. We now have 101 members with Mrs. Beulah Sockrider, President.

The program for the day was very interesting. Mrs. Penny Shockley, Teacher of the Year for Delaware, spoke of her experiences as Teacher of the Year. She is an elementary teacher in the Lakeview Middle School but at the time of her nomination she was a teacher at the Lula Ross School. The Milford School District is proud to have one of their teachers to have the honor of being Teacher of the Year for

St. Stephen's Church offers Shrove Tuesday pancake supper

Members of St. Stephen's Church are working hard to prepare for their annual Pancake Supper on Tuesday, February 16th. The supper is held each year on Shrove Tuesday, or the day before Ash Wednesday. The supper will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. in the church's parish hall. Tickets are available at the door or from a member of the church.

In the year 1000, Aelfric, an English abbot, decreed that "in the week immediately before Lent, everyone should go to his confessor and confess his deeds, and the confessor shall so shrive (absolve) him as he may then hear by his deeds what he is to do. Shrove Tuesday takes its name from the tradition of confessions and absolution (shriving).

In order to prepare for the forty-day Lenten fast, households were cleaned of all animal fats. So, on the day before Ash Wednesday, in many homes, pancakes were made and cooked in the fat. It is also possible that pancakes were part of the Shrove Tuesday tradition because they are easy and quick to make and would permit Christians to stop whatever they were doing and run to church at the tolling of the church bell.

In some parts of England today, Shrove Tuesday pancake races are held. Women, dressed in traditional costume, with aprons, run a race with a pancake balanced on a pancake turner. During the race, the participants must flip the pancakes several times. At the end of the run, the local vicar blesses the runners and the pancakes.

The early Shrove Tuesday pancakes were made from four symbolic ingredients, eggs for Lenten sacredness; flour for the staff of life; salt for wholesomeness and milk for innocence.

At St. Stephen's Church, wholesome pancakes, sausage, scrapple, beverage and dessert will be served - all you can eat.

Prospect United Methodist Church

Are you happy? If you are a follower of Christ then you should be happy today. God's happiness is a present happiness, not an 'I will be happy when' happiness. Rev. Holliday's sermon was entitled "God's Kind of Happiness" and was followed by Holy Communion. Hyland Webb assisted Rev. Holliday in serving communion and ushers were Earl Everline, and Sonny Shultie.

Barbara Hanson gave the children's sermon reading from a book titled God's Letters. Barbara's cousin, a doctor in Massachusetts, wrote to several celebrities asking if they believed in God and if so, how did God make Himself known to them. The book, God's Letters, contained the answers the Dr. received. Celebrities such as Pearl Bailey, Mel Blanc, Phyllis Diller, Ralph Edwards, Art Linkletter, Betty White, Roy Campanella, Maureen Reagan and Senator Robert Dole all replied they did indeed believe in God. Others who replied in the negative included Andy Rooney.

The choir sang "Maybe Today." Scripture was read by Herman Zeider. Offertory ushers were Jean Miller and Leila Matthews.

Our prayer list this week: Lindy Lucas, Harry Sullivan, Robert O'Hop's daughter, Ethel Tharp, Sonny Shultie, Lyman Wroten, Karen Melvin, and the Baker family.

Family night: Wednesday, Feb. 17 at 6 p.m. Services will follow the meal at 7:30 p.m. Come out for an evening of food, fellowship, and worship.

Sunday School at 8:45 a.m. Worship Service at 9:45 a.m.

Happy is that people, whose God is the Lord. Ps. 114:156

Pastor William Dore.
"Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"
Esther 4:14 Try to make time to read this Old Testament book this week. The book of Esther is the stirring account of a beautiful woman, part of the king's harem, stepping forward in faith and preventing the genocide of the Jewish people.

At Sunday's service, little Kristin Renee Thomas was baptized. Parents are Richard and Robin Thomas. Maternal grandparents are Morris and Joyce Willey. May the Lord bless this family in their Christian life.

Also Sunday, our acolytes were consecrated. Several have served faithfully already, while several are new to this position. Pray for these fine young people, that they may serve the Lord with joy and grow in his Love.

Next Sunday's service will be a Hymn Sing rather than our regular order of worship.

The Christian Peace Express will meet right after Sunday's service for a Valentine Party.

Birthday wishes this month go out to Guy Winebrenner, Jean Harrington, Mildred Welch, Eric Olson, Marge Olson, Beth Huck, Duane Huck and Lona Huck.

Bible Study with Pastor Dore will resume this evening at 8 p.m.

A Communion Service will be held on the evening of Ash Wednesday, February 17.

Sunday, February 14, is the date of the remembrance of our Lord's Transfiguration. It is written in Matthew 17 that our Lord was transfigured ("His face did shine as the sun and his raiment was white as the light") before his disciples Peter, James and John. It took place eight days after the Lord told them of his suffering, death and resurrection which were to come. Moses and Elias also appeared, and Peter suggested that three tents should be erected in honor of such glorious company. A voice from a bright cloud said to them, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased. Hear ye him."

Serving next Sunday--Acolyte: Mark Breeding, Nursery: Guy & Evelyn Winebrenner and Christy Olson. Greeters: Mr. Thomas Peck and Mr. Charles Peck.

Coming Up:
Wednesday, 8 p.m.--Bible Study.
Thursday, 6:30 p.m.--Choir Auxiliary.
Sunday, 12:00 Noon--Peace Express Party.
Wednesday, 7:30 p.m.--Ash Wednesday Service.

Young Spartan wrestlers held their own in lopsided matches

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr.
LAKE FOREST HIGH SCHOOL. "Despite lopsided scores...our young guys wrestled very well", said varsity wrestling coach Tom Shaffer on the two losses last week to Dover and Smyrna.

"Dover is a much more experienced team and ranked first in the northern conference...mainly due to their program and the fact they have 9 seniors on the varsity", added Coach Shaffer. "We only have 2 seniors and 1 junior in our line-up", continued Coach Shaffer. Right now with the squad hurting through the loss of three key wrestlers to academic deficiency, the team is forfeiting those pound classes. "And as a result we are for the most part wrestling 9th and 10th graders", he said. "When you run up against a team like Dover which has prior wrestling experience...even a year means 15 matches and tournament play...it means a lot", he added. "...you can easily see what 9 seniors can mean to you...and they have that every year", he continued.

Again the large enrollment the strong junior high program is a big advantage. The Spartans never backed off from the Dover team. They were aggressive in both the Dover and Smyrna matches. In the Dover match in the 103 lb. class Freddie Johnson got a technical fault "He built up a 15 point lead (15-0) and that's the same as a pin...worth 6 points", said Coach Shaffer. John Moyer lost his 112 lb. match, "...but he wrestled very well...I thought" said Coach Shaffer. The score was 11-5 "...with John controlling him in the entire 3rd period...but could not put him on his back", said Coach Shaffer.

Darryl Allen in the 119 lb. class was pinned in :50 sec. "Again it is an example of a young wrestler going up against an experienced one", said Coach Shaffer.

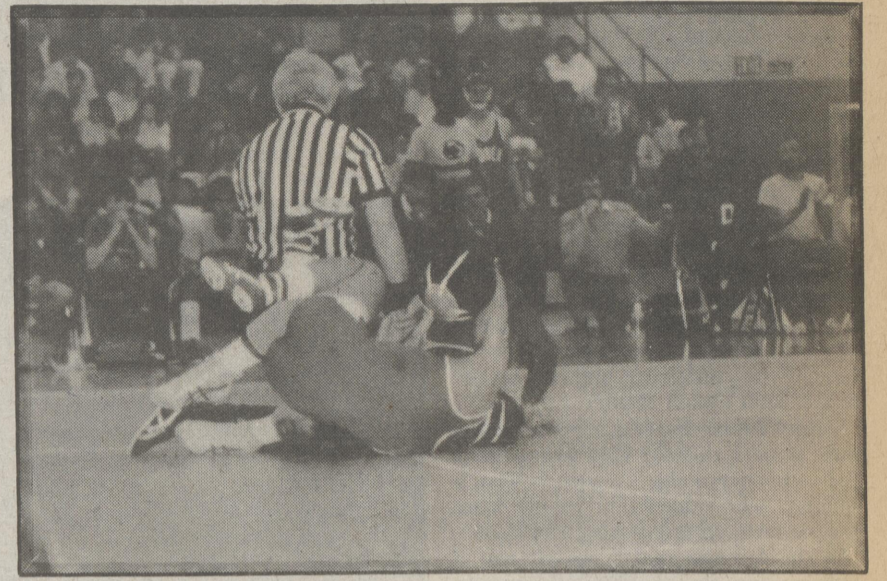

The 125 lb. class was forfeited normally wrestled by Steve Porter. Steve Coppick lost in the 130 lb. class 13-8. "He was up against a more experienced wrestler. Steve was behind 7-1 came back...and nearly got credit for a pin", said Coach Shaffer. Coppick said later that he thought he had the man pinned as did Coach Shaffer, but the ref was on the other side of the two wrestlers and could not see the pin. I can understand that", said Coach Shaffer.

Larry Keller was pinned in 3:07 of his match (135). "Larry got an escape in the 2nd period...but the Dover kid was a very experienced wrestler...and Larry is only in his 2nd year", added Coach Shaffer.

Phil Collison (lost) by technical default 17-2. "A senior vs. a sophomore and one of the better wrestlers in the conference in that weight class", said Coach Shaffer. The Dover wrestler was 1st or 2nd in last years ratings according to Coach Shaffer.

We forfeited the 145 lb. class which is normally Tracey Johnson's class. Tracey, undefeated, would have been going against conference champ of '87-'88. Alex Winchester (152) lost by technical default 17-2. "Same story 9th grader going against a senior. He made mistakes but he was aggressive and was not intimidated...and really went after the guy", added Coach Shaffer.

My Old Man wins; Triple for Beckwith; Twin Trifecta hit at Dover Downs

DOVER, DE—My Old Man, with new driver Larry Manges, broke a string of four straight second places by winning the co-featured tenth race at Dover Downs on Sunday (February 7). Ironically, the winning 2:00.2 was the slowest time of the year for the five-year-old bay gelding owned by Vic Keeler of Smyrna.

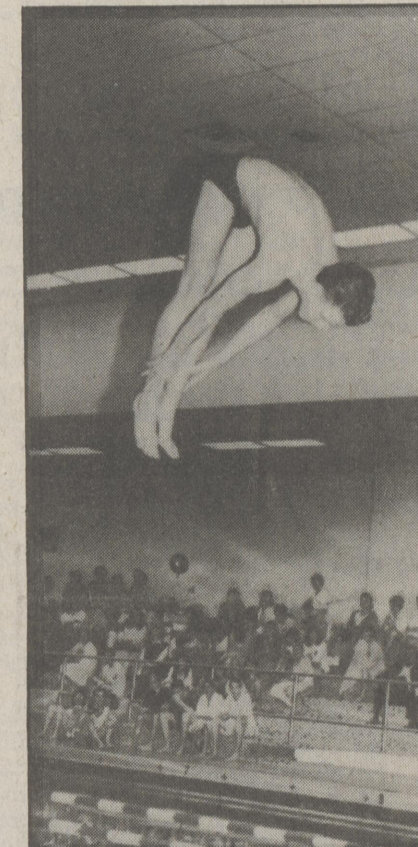

The co-featured eleventh race went to Trendy Shoe (Archie Peel) in 2:01.3. H H Cobra (Bob Shahan) was victorious for the fourth straight time at Dover Downs in the twelfth race.

Mark Beckwith recorded a driving triple with wins in Sunday's fifth, seventh, and ninth races. Clifton Green and Bob Kinsey each drove two winners during the day.

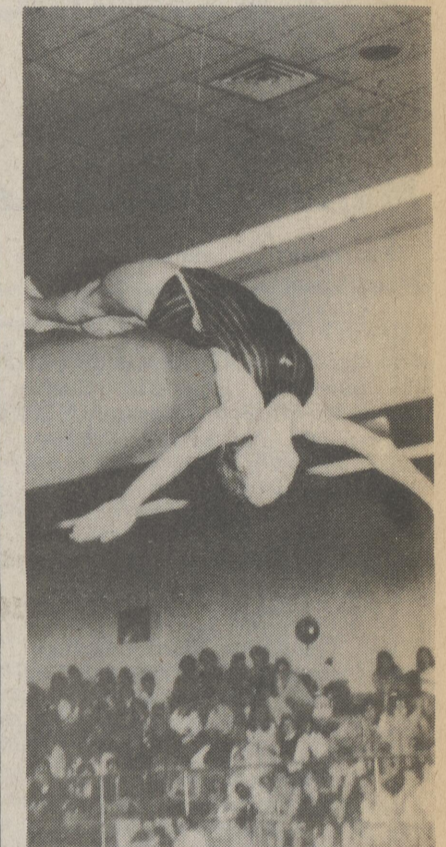

The Twin Trifecta was won for the third time during the current meet at Dover Downs. A single ticket holder hit the jackpot for $29,117.10, second highest payoff of the meet. The last Twin Trifecta winner, on January 15, collected over $73,000.

In observance of the Washington's Birthday holiday, Dover Downs will present a 13-race program next Monday afternoon, February 15, with free general parking and admission. Post time for the special matinee card is 1 p.m. The regular Tuesday program will be held, with post time at 7:30 p.m. Racing continues at Dover Downs every Tuesday, Friday, and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 1 p.m. through March 26.

Lake Forest varsity cagers drop close one to Dover

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr.
LAKE FOREST HIGH SCHOOL. The Lake Forest Spartan varsity basketball team played poorly against a Smyrna five hitting 21 out of 82 from the field. "It was one of our very poorest showings all year. I don't know what happened except the guys are just not concentrating, because they missed lay-ups and foul shots", commented head coach Bill Falasco.

Coach Falasco also misses the services of one starter lost to academic grades.

From the foul line, the Spartans were 11 out of 18. Tony Bray led the Spartan scorers with 20 points and 4 steals. Ray Smith had 3 steals and Mac Holmes pulled down 9 rebounds. Jason Tiggs dumped in 5 points.

"We were getting the shots just not making them. We shot enough to swamp Smyrna...but we just couldn't hit", added Coach Falasco.

The final score was 63-52. In the Dover game Dover held on to win 55-53. Mac Holmes had 17 points with 13 rebounds "...and played one of his better games. When we get a good game from Mac we are usually right in there", said Coach Falasco.

Tony Bray scored 11 points and had 6 steals.

"We lost it on the foul line. Where we shot so well against Smyrna from the stripe we fell down against Dover hitting on 9 of 22.

The Spartans now are 5-8 over all and 3-7 in the conference.

Terrain Giddens has missed the better part of 4 games due to an ankle injury, which has continued to hamper the Spartan attack.

Lake Forest girls varsity keeps rolling on two wins

by Harry G. Farrow, Jr.
The Spartan girls varsity basketball team improved their record to 13-1 overall and 9-1 in the conference.

The Spartans smothered their opponents but last week with a 59-32 romp over Smyrna and a wipe out on Thursday over Dover.

The Spartans find themselves perched on top of the Southern Conference with Indian River in close pursuit with two losses.

The Spartans invade Indian River this week which should be a good game, for everything is on the line for Indian River. They are in a must win situation.

At their last meeting early in the season, the Spartans came away the winner by 15.

In the Smyrna game, fouls became the game theme. "Our foul shooting was off again. We were 12 for 28", said Coach Pat Dyal-Borowski.

The Spartans managed to get their game on line in the 3rd quarter scoring 17 points. Arlene May had 6 steals and 14 points with good back up from Evette Hicks who had 13 points and 10 rebounds.

In the Dover game, which was another run away, everyone got a chance to play. "Dover only had 6 players. We put on the full court press scoring 17 points to their 7 in the first quarter—which got us off flying", said Coach Borowski.

Arlene May scored 9 in the first quarter.

"We got an outstanding defensive game from Melanie Pelton. She is real good at denial defense", added Coach Borowski.

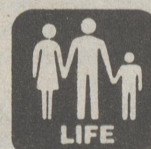

Melanie held Dover's top scorer to 11 points—"just four in first half", said Coach Borowski.

The Spartans are getting real solid playing out of Tara Dixon. "Tara is fast becoming a real good basketball player. She's got the confidence, that is what it takes", said Coach Borowski.

"She has sure hands and good eyes. She has made the switch from inside where she got a lot of those easy chances to the wing. Now she has to take those 10 and 12 footers", added Coach Borowski.

"We know with Tara that we can move her around. She comes to play. When Evette (Hicks) or Africa (Bell) get in foul trouble she can fill in for them too. So...she is becoming a good team basketball player. I think she will continue to develop", concluded Coach Borowski.

Kevin Wix (160) won his match 8-6. "Kevin was behind 6-4 in the final period and scored 4 points to win it. I think Kevin was stronger and in better condition...which made the difference...plus Kevin is getting better", added Coach Shaffer.

We forfeited the 171 and 189 lb. classes. In the heavyweight class undefeated and untied Marvin Hicks was tied by the Dover wrestler. "Marvin scored first and then the guy just stayed away from Marvin. It was clearly a stall...but this referee (Rogers from Georgetown) did not see it that way", said Coach Shaffer. According to Coach Shaffer, the Dover wrestler stepped out of bounds 32 times "...but he refused to call it" said Coach Shaffer.

"I asked several refs about the situation and they all said they they would have called it a stall...but it is too bad this had to happen to Marvin...because I think he is just the best in the conference and maybe the State," said Coach Shaffer.

I don't know another ref that would have done it the way it was done. It is just inconceivable", added Coach Shaffer, who added that in the State tournament upstate refs will be used.

In the Smyrna match which was a victory for the Eagles of Smyrna "...again the young wrestlers came through for us", said Coach Shaffer. "We wrestled well but Smyrna is a conference champion and they have the depth and experience", added Coach Shaffer.

In the 103 lb. class Freddie Johnson won his match 6-2 "...which is the closest match Freddie has had all year" added Coach Shaffer.

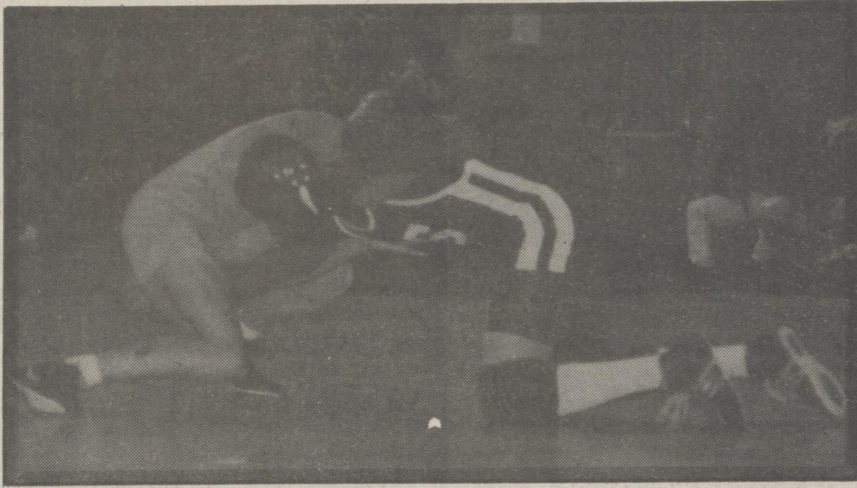

John Moyer lost 11-2 in the 112 lb. class. "Again it was a 9th grader wrestling an upperclassman", said Coach Shaffer.

Darryl Allen lost by technical default 15-0 in the 119 lb. class.

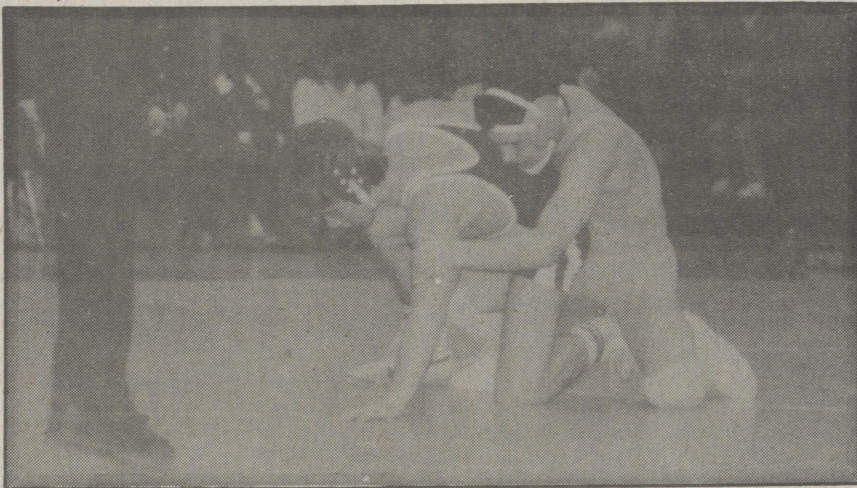

The 125 lb. class was a forfeit.

The 130 lb. class Steve Coppick lost 15-0 to a real good opponent.

In the 135 lb. class Larry Keller lost 14-

1. "Larry is in his 2nd year and was up against a more qualified wrestler and was beaten by take downs," said Coach Shaffer.

Phillip Collison lost 9-0 in the 140 lb. class. "He was up against a tough opponent, but Phil has come a long way and shows real good promise for the future," he said.

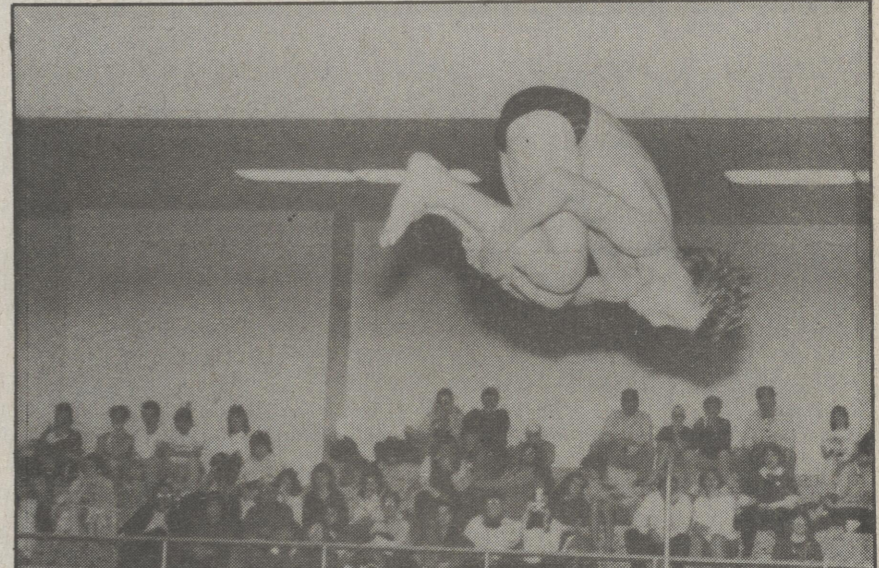

There was a forfeit in the 145 lb. class. In the 152 lb. class Alex Winchester was pinned in 3:17 (mid-way through the 2nd period). "Again it was a 9th grader up against a more experienced wrestler who was conference champ", said Coach Shaffer. "Alex got the initial take down...but he could not continue that effort," added Coach Shaffer.

In the 160 lb. class Kevin Wix lost 7-3. "It was close...but it was a case of a sharp kid vs. Kevin, who needs just a little more experience when it comes to a team like Smyrna...who have been conference champs", added Coach Shaffer.

Restrictor plate causes huge horsepower drop

The engine builders for NASCAR's Winston Cup race teams face a formidable task this week in Daytona Beach: how to overcome the loss of some 200 horsepower.

The sanctioning body mandated a reduction in speeds for 1988; last season qualifying at the two fastest tracks, Daytona and Talladega, topped 210 mph. With ever-improving engine technology, tire compounds and aerodynamic research, speeds would continue to climb without a major adjustment to NASCAR rules. Rather than tinker with spoiler sizes or other devices that might have adverse effects on the cars handling, NASCAR took dead aim at the sport's engine builders.

Their weapon: a flat metal plate bolted between the carburetor and engine intake manifold. Where the four holes in the bottom of the carburetor have a diameter of 1 and 11/16", each NASCAR-supplied and serial-numbered plate has openings of just one inch. This restricts the air/fuel flow and has greatly reduced effect on horsepower.

Defending Michigan Bearing/McCord Gasket NASCAR Engine Builder of the year Lou LaRosa is with the Dale Earnhardt Chevrolet team.

"Most of our engines are coming off our dynamometer at around 405 horsepower," LaRosa estimated.

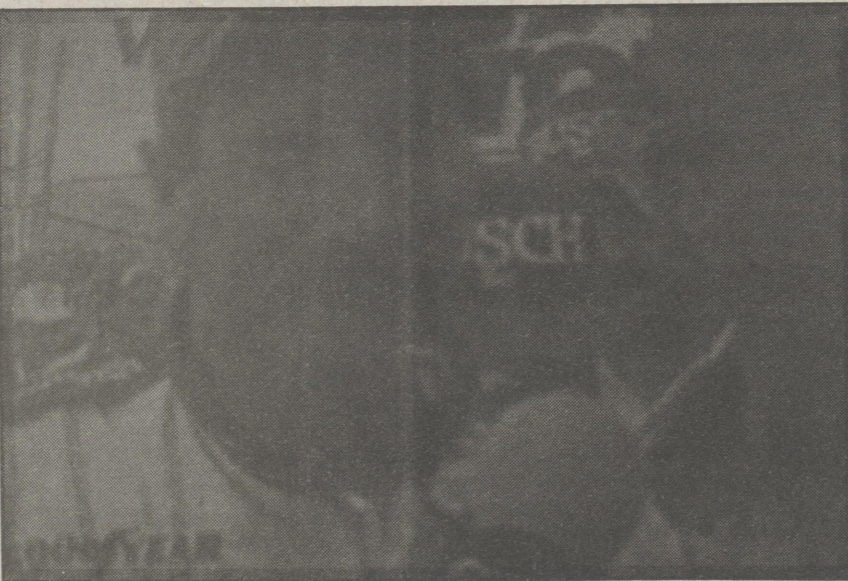

"That's a little more than 200 horsepower less than last year's engines, or this year's without the restrictor plate.

Randy Dorton, the 1986 Michigan/McCord Award winner confirmed LaRosa's estimate.

"An even 200 horsepower", says Dorton, "That's what the plate is costing us, and we have been working non-stop this winter trying to find ways to make some of it back up."

The Ford engines appear to be in worse shape than the Chevrolets. The Ford V-8 has a different intake manifold and cylinder head design so it breathes differently.

One major engine builder who assembles Ford and Chevy engines says his Fords are coming in at 20 horsepower less than his Chevrolets.

Dale Earnhardt was smiling to the tune of $75,000, not to shabby for 16 mins. work. Earnhardt won Sunday's

Earnhardt takes the Clash

by Don Mitchell

DAYTONA BEACH, FLA.--Sunday's Busch Clash was started by country singer, songwriter Hoyt Axton saying those immortal words, "Gentlemen start your engines." This years pole sitter Geoff Bodine was also favored to win, but Dale Earnhardt had different ideas.

Bodine led the first six laps, there was a shuffle on the backstretch and Earnhardt came out in the #1 spot and dominated for the remaining fourteen laps.

Staying in first place was no easy task for Earnhardt due to the fact that the father and son team of Davey and Bobby Allison fell into Earnhardt's draft, bringing Geoff Bodine and Bill Elliott along with them. There was a time during the last few laps when Davey

Allison made a couple of challenges, but his Thunderbird just could not pass the "Man in Black."

The "Man in Black" is Dale Earnhardt's nickname now that he has replaced the familiar blue and yellow #3 with a shiny, black and silver #3 Monte Carlo SS.

If the Clash was a sample of what's to come in Sunday's Daytona 500, NASCAR racing fans are going to get a heck of a show.

Top five finishers in the Busch Clash: Dale Earnhardt-Monte Carlo SS; Davey Allison-Ford Thunderbird; Bobby Allison-Buick Regal; Geoff Bodine-Monte Carlo SS; Bill Elliott-Ford Thunderbird.

Washington and Lincoln were giants

by William T. Ficka

February sees the celebration of the birthdays of two giants among men, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln—two American heroes who earned the undying love, gratitude and admiration of their countrymen.

Washington was born Feb. 22, 1732 in Pope's Creek, Westmoreland County, Va. He was actually born on Feb. 11, but in 1750 as act of the British Parliament discarded the Julian calendar and adopted the Gregorian calendar in its stead.

At 16 Washington surveyed Shenandoah lands for Thomas, Lord Fairfax. His first military skirmishes came as a lieutenant in 1754. These battles grew into the French and Indian War, in which he served as an aide-de-camp to General Braddock. On July 9, 1755 at a battle near Fort Duquesne, Pa., two horses were shot from under him and four bullets pierced his coat.

In 1758 he was elected to the Virginia House of Burgesses from Frederick County. In the same year he resigned as commander-in-chief of the Virginia forces.

His shining hour came in the Revolutionary War when he took command of the Continental Army on July 3, 1775. For six grueling years of war, Washington would be the mainstay and symbol of hope for the colonists.

Charles E. Eliot, the late president of Harvard, wrote that the colonists "fell into a despondency from which nothing but the steadfastness of Washington and the Continental Army...saved them."

He faced some 40,000 superbly trained British and Hessian soldiers. At no time did Washington have more than 20,000 men in his command. At times he had less than 2,000, some of whom were 60-year-old farmers and 16-year-old schoolboys. Unable to engage in orthodox combat, Washington became a master of stealth and guile, of what today would be known as guerrilla warfare. He would conduct hit-and-run raids or fall back slowly and then strike unexpectedly.

At Princeton the British saw campfires on the rim of a hill and thought Washington's troops were camping there for the night. While the campfires burned Washington marched his men around the other side, surprising and defeating a large British detachment at dawn.

When he forced the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown in 1781, the war was finally over. Washington longed to retire to Mount Vernon and take care of his fields and farmlands.

But the people who needed him in war now needed him in peace. On Feb. 4, 1789 he was unanimously elected president, getting all 69 electoral votes. Although he was considered one of the wealthiest men in the new nation, he was actually "land-poor" and had to borrow 600 pounds from Richard Conway of Alexandria, Va. to finance his trip to New York for his first inauguration.

The new nation was in financial chaos. Paper money had depreciated to zero in value, no taxes were being collected, Vermont had declared itself an independent country, and other states had said they would never join the Union. Many thought they would be trading one tyranny for another. Washington laid these fears to rest by pushing the Bill of Rights through the Congress.

John Jay was appointed Chief Justice, a new civil service was created, taxes were levied, and a sound currency was established. Washington assembled a cabinet consisting of Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, Henry Knox, and Edmond Randolph.

After serving a second term, Washington retired to his beloved Mount Vernon. When he died of a throat infection on Dec. 14, 1799, the new nation mourned him for months.

General Henry "Light Horse Harry" Lee, father of general-to-be Robert E. Lee, delivered the funeral oration. He summed up the common man's sentiments when he said Washington was "First in war, first in peace, first in the hearts of his countrymen..."

Today Abraham Lincoln is probably the most beloved of all our presidents. Beloved by both historians and the common man. But it wasn't always that way.

Among the accusations hurled at him were: he was illegitimate, a drunkard, an atheist, a socialist, an advocate of free love and Negro worship. His wife was said to be a Confederate spy who stole military secrets lying around the White House.

Even Lincoln's incomparable Gettysburg Address didn't escape abuse. The Chicago Times called it "...an offensive exhibition of boorishness and vulgarity...Let us trust in Heaven it is not typical of our national degeneracy..."

When Lincoln was assassinated, The Herald, of Dallas, said, "God almighty ordered this even or it never could have taken place." The Tri-Weekly Telegraph of Houston said, "From now until God's judgement day, the minds of men will not cease to thrill at the killing of Abraham Lincoln..."

Lincoln was born in Kentucky in 1809. His father was a journeyman carpenter and farmland. The family moved to Indiana in 1816, and then to Illinois in 1830. Lincoln was now 21-years-old. Nothing in his early years presaged the

"Moonlighting" Income Is Taxable

Taxpayers who earn income from a second job by working at night or on weekends must report their earnings on their federal income tax returns, the Internal Revenue Service says.

Some examples of "moonlighting," which produces income that must be reported, include an office worker who doubles as a babysitter in her spare time, a newspaper reporter who writes free-lance articles, a public school teacher who tutors for pay, or a construction worker who picks up extra money doing home repairs on weekends.

Income from any source is taxable, the IRS emphasizes, whether it is received in cash, property or services, unless it is specifically excluded by law.

Even if a taxpayer does not receive a Form W-2, Wage and Tax Statement, from an employer, income from moonlighting jobs must be reported on the tax return as wages or salaries. The taxpayer should also be aware that he or she may have to pay estimated tax if little or no tax is withheld on the income from moonlighting jobs.

If an employer indicates that a Form W-2 will not be issued, the taxpayer should keep his or her own record, including dates, names and addresses of employers, type of employment and amount of income. Because employers are required by law to issue a Form W-2, the taxpayer should also notify the IRS.

Some people who do work in addition to their regular jobs are considered self-employed, not employees. Examples may include free-lance writers and repair persons who set their own schedules and work out of their own homes. These people also must report their income. Generally, they use Form 1040, Schedule C, Profit or (Loss) From Business or Profession. If they have at least $400 net earnings from self-employment, they must pay self-employment tax, a form of social security tax.

The IRS points out that, if an employee incurs expenses in producing income, such as union dues or uniform expenses, they may be deducted as miscellaneous deductions on Schedule A of Form 1040, if the taxpayer itemizes. Beginning in 1987, certain miscellaneous deductions are deductible only to the extent they exceed two percent of adjusted gross income.

For more information on reporting taxable income and deducting work-related expenses, the IRS offers free Publication 525, Taxable and Nontaxable Income, and 529, Miscellaneous Deductions. These publications may be ordered by calling 1-800-424-3676.

TAX TIPS

New Capital Gains Rules Will Affect Farmers

Although long-term capital gains now generally are taxed at the same rates as ordinary income, an exception applies to certain sales of dairy cattle, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

For tax years beginning in 1987, the 60-percent deduction for long-term capital gains is repealed. All capital gains, whether short-term or long-term, will be treated as ordinary income. However, the highest tax rate that can be imposed on the gains is 28 percent.

The 60-percent capital gains deduction will be retained for certain gains from the sale of dairy cattle under the milk production termination program accounted for in 1987, the IRS says, if the sales were made under a valid contract with the U.S. Department of Agriculture. For more specific information about this provision, request free IRS Publication 225, Farmer's Tax Guide, by using the order blank in the IRS tax return package or calling 1-800-424-3676.

Capital losses are still allowed in full against capital gains. If the losses are more than the gains, up to $3,000 of the excess loss is allowed. The amount of the allowable loss is the lower of $3,000 ($1,500 if married filing a separate return), or the excess capital loss. Capital losses not deducted in the current tax year may be carried forward to future tax years. Excess long-term capital losses no longer have to be reduced by 50 percent before being applied against ordinary income.

Child and Dependent Care Credit Can Aid Working Parents

Parents who pay someone to care for a child or dependent while they work or look for work may qualify for a special tax credit, the Internal Revenue Service says. This Child and Dependent Care Credit may be taken not only for payments to babysitters and day-care centers but also to certain relatives paid for this service.

This credit is available to married couples who both work part-time or full-time or are actively looking for work, and file jointly. If one spouse works full-time and the other works part-time, is a full-time student or is disabled, he or she is also eligible for the credit, according to the IRS.

The credit may also apply to a divorced or separated parent who has custody of a child who is under 15 or physically or mentally incapable of self-care, even though the parent may not be entitled to a dependency exemption for the child. The parent claiming the credit must, however, have custody for a longer period during the year than the other parent. A married person living apart from his or her spouse for the last six months of the taxable year is eligible for the credit if a separate return is filed.

Percentage Varies
The credit is from 20 to 30 percent of eligible expenses, depending on the taxpayer's adjusted gross income. The maximum credit that may be taken is limited to $720 for one qualifying person and to $1,440 for two or more qualifying persons.

To qualify for the Child and Dependent Care Credit, a taxpayer (1) must have been gainfully employed or in active search of gainful employment when the expense for the child's or dependent's care was incurred, and (2) must have paid over half the cost of maintaining his or her household, which included one or more qualifying individuals. A qualifying individual is a dependent child under 15 years of age or a spouse or dependent who is mentally or physically incapable of self-care.

How to Claim
To claim the credit, taxpayers can file Form 1040A, using the worksheet in the Form 1040A tax package to compute the amount of the credit. Taxpayers who file Form 1040 may also claim the credit, even if they do not itemize deductions. These taxpayers compute the credit on Form 2441, Credit for Child and Dependent Care Expenses, and attach this form to the Form 1040.

Additional information is available in IRS Publication 503, Child and Dependent Care Credit, and Employment Taxes for Household Employers, which may be ordered by filling out the order blank in the tax package or by calling 1-800-424-3676.

Tax Law Requires Reporting of Cash Received
Any person who, in the course of a trade or business, receives more than $10,000 in cash or foreign currency in one transaction, or in two or more related transactions, must report the payment to the Internal Revenue Service, the IRS says.
This requirement applies to every business person, whether a lawyer, farmer, broker, jeweler, car dealer or yacht broker, who receives payments made with more than $10,000 in cash.
The transaction is reported on Form 8300, Report of Cash Payments Over $10,000 Received in a Trade or Business, which must be filed with the IRS by the 15th day after the date of the transaction. A statement must also be provided to the person making the payment by January 31 of the next year.

Washington and Lincoln were giants

great events that lay in store for the young man. He had only one year of formal schooling. He earned money splitting rails, chopping firewood, and clerking in a country store. But he had an unquenchable thirst for knowledge and a driving ambition.

A Springfield lawyer, John Stuart, helped Lincoln study law. Stuart later took him in as a partner. Lincoln later formed his own law firm of Lincoln and Herndon.

Lincoln entered politics when he was elected to the Illinois state legislature. In 1847 he was elected to Congress but lost his reelection bid. In 1855 he was unsuccessful in his bid for the U.S. Senate. The following year saw him lose the race for the Republican vice-presidential nomination.

His political career up to 1858 was far short of spectacular. It was in this year that Lincoln displayed the qualities that would carry him to the White House.

In a series of dramatic debates with Stephen A. Douglas in the race for the U.S. Senate, Lincoln gained nationwide attention. His skillful attacks on Douglas's views on slavery won him friends in the North and enemies in the South. Those below the Potomac would never forget the speech in which he said, "A house divided against itself cannot stand. I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free."

Although he lost a close election, Lincoln was now an important national figure. Talk began circulating about his chances for the presidency.

In 1860 Lincoln won the presidential nomination of the new Republican Party. In the election he capitalized on the split among the three Democrats, Stephen A. Douglas, John Breckenridge and John Bell.

When the votes were tallied Lincoln had 1,866,452, Douglas 1,375,157, Breckenridge 849,781, and Bell 588,879. Combined, the Democrats had a million more votes than Lincoln, which made him distinctly a minority president.

When the Civil War began on April 12, 1861, Lincoln ordered a blockade of Southern ports. His moderate stand on slavery persuaded the border states to remain in the Union. On Jan. 1, 1863 he issued the Emancipation Proclamation, freeing all the slaves in the Confederacy.

The terrible war roared on, reaching a bloody climax in the Battle of Gettysburg July 1, 2, and 3, 1863.

It was Nov. 19 that dedication ceremonies for a national cemetery were held in Gettysburg. Edward Everett, statesman and orator was the main speaker. Everett spoke for two hours and Lincoln delivered his now famous Gettysburg Address in three minutes. Everett's speech has been long forgotten, but Lincoln's 266-word talk is generally conceded to be one of the world's great oratorical masterpieces. H.L. Mencken, the most exacting of literary critics, said, "The Gettysburg speech is at once the shortest and the most famous oration in American history. Put beside it, all the whoopings of the Websters, Sumners and Everetts seem gaudy and silly. It is eloquence brought to a pellucid and almost gemlike perfection—the highest emotion reduced to a few poetical phrases. Nothing else precisely like it is to be found in the whole range of oratory. Lincoln himself never even remotely approached it. It is genuinely stupendous."

A series of late summer victories for the Union Army enabled Lincoln to win reelection in 1864.

Lincoln's top general was Ulysses S. Grant. Grant was known to take a drink or two. When a temperance advocate told Lincoln that he should do something about the general's drinking, Lincoln said, "If you can find out what brand Grant is drinking, I'll buy a case of it for my other generals."

On April 9, 1865 the fierce fighting came to an end when General Robert E. Lee surrendered to Grant at the Appomattox Court House, Va.

Six days later Lincoln was dead, the victim of an assassin's bullet. He was shot in the back of the head at Ford's Theatre in Washington by actor John Wilkes Booth.

Lincoln voiced his philosophy in the words "With malice toward none, with charity for all..." He not only voiced the philosophy, he lived it to the very end.

If it weren't for Washington and Lincoln there might not be a United States of America. Washington was a major force in forging the new nation, and Lincoln was the guiding light in preserving that nation in its darkest hour.

Debunkers come and go, but the golden glory of Washington and Lincoln remains untarnished.

Conservative Caucus of Lower Delaware to view Schafly video

The Conservative Caucus of Lower Delaware, at its next monthly meeting will present a 60-minute video-tape by Phyllis Schafly in which she depicts the dangers inherent in the proposed "Constitutional Convention" (con-con), ostensibly presented to force Congress to enact a "Balanced Budget Amendment". This tape will also feature Mrs. Schafly at her continued best as she enumerates the "educational" factors that are playing such a big part in the endeavors of many to undermine the family as the basic unit in our society.

Mrs. Schafly is America's foremost Attorney on Constitutional Law. She is, also, president of Eagle Forum, an educational organization dealing with home, family, education and the laws and proposals effecting these institutions. In addition, she has been appointed by President Reagan to serve as a member of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

The meeting will be Saturday, February 20th, at the CKRT Post 7, American Legion, Harrington, at 2 p.m., and the meeting is open to the public.

Mrs. Schafly presents views that no American should miss. The Caucus, there fore, urges that all make a concerted effort to attend and to bring as many friends as possible.

Governor proclaims Heart Month, Kicks off residential campaign

WILMINGTON. With the proclamation of Delaware's Heart Month, Governor Michael N. Castle kicked off the American Heart Association of Delaware's annual Residential Campaign February 1. This month, over 2,500 volunteers will aid American Heart Association of Delaware in raising money to help fight America's No. 1 killers, heart attack and stroke. Their goal this year is to surpass last year's $60,000 and raise over $64,000 by visiting neighbors personally, sending

"Dear Neighbor" letters, distributing AHA literature and encouraging support for the Association through contributions. Contributions fund projects including research, education and community service programs. Cardiovascular diseases kill more people every year than all other causes combined. For more information on how you can help, contact the American Heart Association of Delaware at 734-9321.

Governor Michael N. Castle (front) is joined by representatives of the American Heart Association of Delaware, as he proclaims Heart Month. Representing the

Senatorial Report

by Sen. Ruth Ann Minner
18th Senatorial District

After much soul-searching, many conferences with my family, friends, and supporters, and with mixed feelings of humility and optimism, I have decided to seek another term in the State Senate.

My optimism arises from the fact that I have nearly unanimous support of the committee members of my political party in every election district in the 18th Senatorial District, a support I have consistently enjoyed throughout my legislative career and for which I am extremely grateful.

My humbleness arises from the fact that, despite all the progress we have made since I entered the General Assembly in 1974, so very, very much more remains to be done.

For the past two years, for instance, I have been deeply involved in the Governor's Environmental Legacy Task Force. Although the Governor has recommended some steps toward implementing the final recommendations of the Task Force, I want to remain in the legislature so that I can play a part in enacting the full scope of efforts needed to protect our environment and quality of life to insure that those Delawareans who come after us will have a legacy which we can point to with pride.

I also have been involved in the preparation and enactment of land use and transportation bills which chart a promising future for comprehensive land use planning by counties. But I want to see these new concepts through to their implementation and be on hand to help steer the planning toward a goal desired by us all—a balance between development, agricultural land preservation, and environmental considerations; a broad approach to solving our problems rather than the spot solution of individual problems requiring political clout.

Other unfinished business includes the urgent need for more and better research, production, and promotion of Delaware's agricultural products and immediate help for those farmers being backed to the wall by economic pressures; a prenatal clinic in Milford and expanded services for the first 60 months of a child's life.

I could go on and on, but I want to get to a matter that has been the subject of some speculation—my health.

My surgery was successful and my latest doctor's report indicates that I am as healthy and physically mobile as most other females my age.

The auto accident of 1983 is far behind me and I look forward confidently to good health in the future.

I also look forward to working with and for the citizens of the 18th Senatorial District for another four years.

One bad apple

by U.S. Senator Bill Roth

They say that one bad apple doesn't spoil the whole bunch but it can certainly create a big mess. This was very evident at hearings which I held recently in the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations on the alleged role of Panamanian General Manuel Antonio Noriega in money laundering and drug trafficking.

The hearing was based on an 18-month investigation by my staff into allegations of involvement of high level Panamanian officials in drug smuggling and money laundering. At the hearing the Subcommittee heard testimony from a U.S. Customs officer and a convicted drug smuggler. The investigation found that Panamanian officials, including the most powerful one in the country, General Noriega, have apparently been making lots of money by helping drug smugglers and money launderers ply their trade.

Testimony by Steven Kalish, a drug smuggler now serving a prison term, was particularly enlightening. Kalish told the committee that the volume of cash in his drug operation reached a point where they could not even keep up with it by using counting machines. At this time, he sought out a banking haven in Panama to hide his illegal drug profits. Kalish testified that he soon was introduced to General Noriega and paid him $300,000 cash to "show how serious I was about doing business in Panama." The relationship between Noriega and Kalish grew closer with time. According to Kalish's testimony, they became business partners.

Noriega used Kalish's Lear jet, and Kalish made a number of payments to Noriega to extend his privilege of using Panama as a safe repository for his money and a base of operations for his smuggling activities.

Frankly, it is no secret that for some years now Panama has provided a safe haven for the world's wealthiest narcotics traffickers. Easy creation of secret corporations and strict bank secrecy laws guarantee protection and anonymity to money launderers. However, I must say that the role allegedly played by Noriega and other Panamanian officials, as revealed at the hearings, is nothing short of outrageous.

I have long believed that money laundering is a key element in the international drug trade. The testimony of both of the U.S. Custom Official and Kalish, the convicted drug smuggler, strongly reinforced my belief. We must therefore, do everything in our power to stop it. I shall continue to urge the U.S. Congress to adopt severe sanctions against foreign countries where top officials are priming the pipeline of illegal drug profits. Where evidence of criminal involvement exists, such officials should be indicted and prosecuted. In fact, shortly after my hearing, a grand jury in Miami indicted General Noriega. If we are truly involved in a war against international drug trade, then we must get the message across to corrupt foreign officials that their conduct will no longer be tolerated.

Ethics and bottle deposits

by Richard R. Mayer

We seem to have abandoned ethics in our public lives. Bottle deposit laws, which in many parts of the country require mandatory deposits and mandatory payment for returned bottles, are a good example.

I shop in my home town at Sulli's Supermarket. Actually it's not too super, as supermarkets go, but it's convenient and reasonably pleasant. I don't recall ever having been pressured to buy something I didn't want, and certainly Joe Sulli has never threatened to call the police if I didn't purchase a particular item.

Yet, under our state's bottle deposit legislation, I am in a position to do just that to him -- threaten sanctions if he doesn't buy from me the bottles I offer at five cents apiece. That I can't do.

It is said that this is merely the refund of a deposit made at the time of purchase, or that it helps improve the environment. Both arguments fail.

The bottle is mine, to do with as I wish (calling the five cents a "deposit" doesn't change that). I may use the bottle at home for a flower vase, bust it up, give it to a friend, or sell it. So when I tender it to Mr. Sulli for a "refund" I am really asking him, under state coercion, to buy something he may not want. That is unfair.

So far as littering is concerned, that's my problem, not his. Yes, I may toss out the bottle along the street; but that's a fault of mine, not the grocer's.

And if we look more closely we see that littering is mostly a problem with "public" lands, not property which is privately owned. Most people don't throw empties onto their own lawns; for those who do, let them live that way. Nor is it much of a problem in such places as shopping malls, churches, theaters, and social clubs. It usually isn't done there; if it is, the owner cares enough to police it.

Littering is a problem only on such government-controlled lands as highways, parks, and schools. And that is because we have lost respect. The public doesn't care about common lands anymore and state officials don't care enough to pick up litter on their own.

We also hear that the beverage industry realizes a windfall from unclaimed deposits. This may be true, but that's not the issue.

The problem is not with the merchant, and it is not between the merchant and me. Rather, it is between us and the state which requires the merchant and me to do what neither of us wants -- otherwise there would be no need to coerce both "deposit" and "refund."

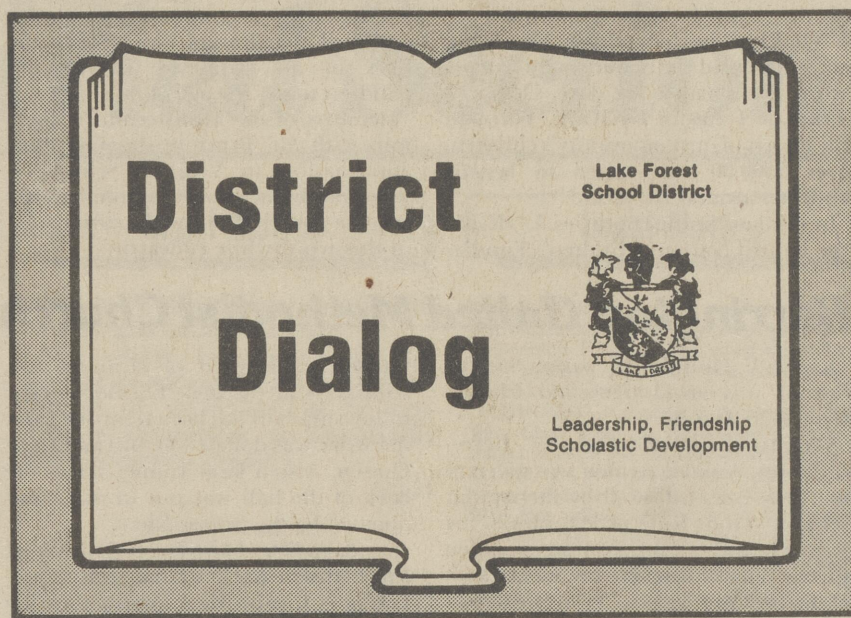

And it is an ethical problem, a question of what is fair and honest. The merchant may not represent my ideal of virtue; indeed I may feel it a rip-off when he tacks on the extra five cents to the price. Still, it was not his idea to begin with. Should I thus do the same to him just because I have the chance? Should I demean myself to the point of calling the cops if Mr. Sulli doesn't buy back from me the bottle he doesn't want? After all, he was thoughtful enough to make available the refreshment I sought in the first place.

No, in my case I have a choice; and I should consider what is fair.

Five cent bottle deposits may not rank with abortion or terrorism as ethical issues. Still, it is a matter of ethics and as such is important. Are we to say only do what we see as right in larger matters? Or that for a nickel I'll do what is rather uncivil? Will we draw the line on harder issues or larger amounts if we won't in the case of five cents?

I think not.

Mr. Mayer is a surveyor living in Schuylerville, New York. This article is from the February 1988 issue of The Freeman.

"Placed at Risk"

by Dr. James H. VanSciver
Superintendent

Newspapers, educational journals and the airways have been deluged with articles and reports dealing with students "at risk."

To accept this term leads one to believe that children, are, at birth, "at risk."

There are those who would contest this, claiming that it is not birth but societal factors which "place" students "at risk." To accept this philosophical point leads one to the position that there are modifications which may be enacted in society which may lead to less pressure to force our youth into a position which is "at risk."

To be "placed at risk" for whatever reason places not only the individual but also the society in jeopardy.

As pointed out in Dealing with Dropouts: The Urban Superintendent's Call to Action, published in November of 1987 by the Office of Educational Research and Improvement (U.S. Department of Education), "In the next decade, most growth in the school-aged population is expected to occur among the poor, blacks and Hispanics--the groups where members now are most likely to drop out. In this trend all Americans have an interest, for it could affect the economic futures of us all. In 1950, 17 workers backed each retiree's social security; by 1992, just three workers will back each social security check--and one of the three will be a minority group member."

And, for the individual, youth "placed at risk" tend to be more likely to drop out of school, at a rate of an estimated 632,000 during the 1985-86 school year, for an average of 3,789 each school day. For those who make this decision the economic repercussion may be significant. "Males who drop out are estimated to earn $441,000 less during their lives than male high school students. Recent research suggests that General Educational Development certificate-holders do not fare as well as regular high school students in the labor market or at higher education, which may indicate that the two credentials are not equal. In 1986, the unemployment rate for young adult drop-outs from 16-24 years old was double that of high school graduates."

Also, "Seventy-one percent of prison inmates never completed high school."

The toll is high ... for both the individual and for society. The impact may be everlasting.

Both our schools and communities must come to grips with the dilemma of our youth who are "placed at risk."

Contra aid: what next?

by Congressman Tom Carper

Last week, after twelve long hours of debate, the U.S. House of Representatives voted not to approve a new $36 million contra aid package by a vote of 219-211. That vote was not an easy one for many in Congress, including myself. A majority in the House agreed with all five Central American presidents that, at this critical juncture in the peace process, President Reagan's package of lethal and non-lethal aid was not the right prescription for freedom and democracy in Nicaragua.

The question a lot of people are asking now is "if not the president's plan, what?" To begin with, let's be clear that the defeat of the Administration's proposal doesn't signal the end of our country's involvement in moving Nicaragua towards democracy and a free economy. Now that the dust has settled from last week's vote, the hard work begins to develop a bipartisan consensus for our foreign policy in that region which will do just that. In the weeks to come, I'll be working with the House leadership to craft a humanitarian aid package that will complement the Arias peace plan, something the Administration's proposal didn't do.

What should the next contra aid package look like? I have put forth a proposal that would provide the contra $10 million in strictly humanitarian aid over the next four months while the cease-fire talks, already under way between the Sandinistas and the contras, continue. That humanitarian assistance would be closely monitored to ensure that no military aid is mixed in with the food, clothing, and medicine we provide to keep the contras alive.

The aid we provide should be coupled with U.S. participation in multilateral talks with the Sandinistas and the four other Central American nations on a variety of security issues which are not addressed by the Arias plan. These issues include a ban on all foreign military bases in Nicaragua, the removal of foreign military advisers there, and the reduction of the size of the armies of each of the Central American countries.

The Speaker has assured me, as well as others in the House, that a vote on a new contra aid package will take place before the end of February.

The alternative package now being developed should serve as an incentive to both the Sandinistas and the contras to negotiate in good faith at the cease-fire talks. The slim margin of last week's vote should also send a strong message to President Ortega of Nicaragua: The Sandinistas' progress in meeting the terms of the Central American peace plan must continue. They must not reverse course. To do so invites another escalation of the war, something no one wants.

The Congress will not hang the contras out to dry. We have an obligation to feed and clothe them, and we will do so. But as long as the Sandinistas continue to act in good faith, the U.S. will act in good faith as well. That's the real message in last week's vote, and it should be the foundation for our country's Central American policy in the months ahead.

A laff a day...

by William T. Ficka

I bought my wife a penthouse for Christmas but she doesn't like it. She said she prefers Playboy.

The hotshot vacuum cleaner salesman was working the rural area and planned on having a great day with the gullible farmers. At the first farmhouse the woman invited him in. When she realized he was selling vacuum cleaners, she said, "But we don't have any..."

"Forget the money," said the salesman. "We have an easy payment plan." He then took a bag of black dirt from his pocket and emptied it on her carpet.

"If this vacuum doesn't suck up that dirt in two seconds, I'll eat it," he said. Giving him a spoon, the woman said, "Start eating. We don't have any electricity."

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

After reading about the award for Superintendent of the Year of James VanSciver the question arises "Who voted?". Are we talking an award for accomplishments or merely for high profile.

The article mentions that Mr. VanSciver has made great strides in staff morale. Have you talked to an employee lately? Morale is at its lowest point in years and not just because of salaries. Drug and alcohol abuse programs are very important but Lake Forest is certainly not the first to institute such programs.

Mr. VanSciver's recent comment that Lake Forest is going to have the best athletic program leaves one wondering if this is to be at the expense of basic education. The problems faced by our students in not being prepared for high school should certainly rate a higher priority than an upgrading of the athletic program.

If we are going to make awards in our education system let's make them for true accomplishments.

Yours truly,
Doris W. Draper

Kennedy confirmation shows system works

by Joseph R. Biden, Jr.
United States Senator

Last week, President Reagan called to thank me for the work I had done as Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee in reviewing the Supreme Court nomination of Anthony M. Kennedy.

The Senate had just unanimously confirmed Judge Kennedy to fill the seat created by the retirement of Justice Powell last year. I was honored and proud to receive the President's words of thanks. For me, they marked the end of a long and productive process where the Senate thoroughly exercised its Constitutional duties of advice and consent.

The Judiciary Committee held extensive hearings on two nominees and examined at length and in depth each nominee's judicial philosophy and vision of the Constitution. These hearings helped identify the judicial qualities that we seek in a Justice of the Supreme Court: openmindedness, fairness and a recognition that Constitutional interpretation must continually evolve by building upon the basic commitments and judicial advances of the past, not by fighting against these advances.

Judge Kennedy's record and testimony demonstrated what those judicial qualities mean in practice. They mean a Supreme Court Justice who holds, in his words, "no complete cosmology" of Constitutional interpretation, but instead carefully approaches the fact of each case within the framework of a consistent respect for precedent.

They mean a Justice who sees interpretation of the Constitution not as a search for the immediate political agenda of the framers, but as a renewal of an ages-long commitment to basic principles: a recognition that, in Judge Kennedy's words, the framers "were willing to make a statement that society should be changed," and "were willing to be bound by the consequences of their words" in making that bold statement.

They mean a Justice whose commitment to basic principles is clearly expressed when he says, and I quote, "that the concept of liberty in the Due Process Clause is quite expansive, quite sufficient to protect the values of privacy that Americans legitimately think are part of their Constitutional heritage." This is no grudging admission, but an avowal of faith in our 20th century tradition of expanding liberty, a tradition marked out by such Justices as Harlan, Frankfurter, Cardozo and Powell.

There is no guarantee that Judge Kennedy will meet all our expectations. However, it is my hope and sincere belief that the new Justice is an individual whose views are still evolving, and who will grow in sensitivity to the plight and the rights of minorities and other groups facing discrimination in our society.

The confirmation of Justice Kennedy has demonstrated that the doomsayers were wrong; that the Senate's examination of Constitutional and judicial philosophy in the course of advice and consent need not lead us to specify a political result or to demand ideological conformity. Instead, through that examination, we have shown once again how well our Constitutional system works, and how, once again, the nation has emerged the stronger for it.

BORK II: BERNIE SIEGAN

By Edwin Feulner

The hounds are baying again. As legal expert Patrick McGuigan puts it: The American left has "to have a target and it's Bernie's turn."

Bernie is 63-year-old Bernard H. Siegan, a caring, polite, soft-spoken intensely intellectual legal scholar at the University of San Diego—the same school where another prime target of the left taught law, Attorney General Edwin Meese III. Siegan has been nominated by President Reagan for a seat on the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in California, and "movement" leftists are frothing at the mouth.

The nomination has been pending since February 1987. The same American intellectual "giants" who defeated—but try-as-they-may never managed to dispirit or humiliate—Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork now have decided to go after Siegan. Why? Because he is an unapologetic libertarian.

What is this libertarianism business that we heard mentioned so much during the Bork hearings? Put simply, a libertarian believes in the primacy of individual liberty. Put another way, libertarians maintain that you have the right to swing your fists wildly in public; but your right to flail away ends at the tip of my nose. The same rules, they believe, should apply to public discourse and other endeavors. Do, and say, and think as you please, so long as you don't hurt somebody else.

Let me say it now: I've known Bernie Siegan for a lot of years and he is one of the most thoughtful, decent people I have ever met. Ever. He is not some goose-stepping, bomb-throwing neo-Fascist nut.

But as Washington Post writer Ruth Marcus pointed out recently, the Siegan hearings, like those for Bork, will center on "ideology rather than character." The thought-control troopers of the left are mad as hell because Bernie Siegan marches to a different drummer. He believes in individual freedom and individual responsibility, rather than state control of our lives. He believes in constitutional law and precedent—that, in his words, "the obligation of a circuit court judge is to follow what the Supreme Court says," not to impose "Bernie Siegan's will."

What's wrong with Bernie Siegan then?

Nothing, of course, other than the fact that he is the kind of principled guy that won't use the bench to endorse the political agenda of the left.

In other words, liberal activists around the country believe he's the wrong kind of guy for the court: too smart, too thoughtful, too independent, too willing to challenge the conventional intellectual wisdom.

Bernie Siegan—indeed, the American people—deserves better than this and the federal bench deserves Bernie . . . a man dedicated to preserving the individual freedoms that are so vital to the American way of life.

Lake Forest Ministerium

The President of the Lake Forest Ministerium, Mr. Lawrence Kates, recently received a certificate and letter from Lawrence E. Bruce, Jr., President of the United States Committee for UNICEF. The letter from Mr. Bruce complimented the children and parents who participated in last October's Trick or Treat for UNICEF. Through the efforts of our community's children, over $300.00 was raised to benefit children around the world.

In 119 developing countries, UNICEF, the United Nations Children's Fund, is improving the lives of children. UNICEF provides community services in such areas as health and nutrition, education, water supply, sanitation, and women's programs. Immunization and oral rehydration alone saved the lives of an estimated 1.5 million children under the age of five last year. Members of the Ministerium wish to join with Mr. Bruce in showing their appreciation to Virginia Schweiger, who coordinated the effort, and all the parents and children who participated in this worthwhile endeavor.

Keeping up with the Klines

by Rebecca Moore

It's been quite a while since we heard from the Klines—you know, our expectant family, all of whom are waiting anxiously for the arrival of baby number six. Let's check in with them, and find out just how things are progressing.

Vicki has just recently entered her last trimester. It's just three months until her due date of May 5th. Baby Kline is doing very well. He/she is about twelve inches long and weighs one and one half to two pounds. Were he/she born at this time, chances of survival would be slim. But Baby Kline appears to be quite content to remain inside Mommy for the time being. Vicki is visiting her obstetrician every three weeks, and her pregnancy is proceeding with all normalcy. The most encouraging indication that Baby Kline is doing well, is the heartbeat which the doctor listens to on every visit. The heartbeat is far more rapid than that of a fully-grown person; in fact, there seems to be a tendency for girl babies to have a more rapid heartbeat than boy babies. At this point, however, no one is speculating as to the gender of the baby—it's just too early. And the Klines don't want to know in advance whether the new addition will be a boy or a girl. They like the element of surprise. Kenny and Vicki are undecided about names for the new little one—we'll just have to wait on that one.

In any family, there is never a dull moment, but when there's five children around, this just adds to the activity and excitement. Timmy, the oldest, is in the Talented and Gifted program at Allen Frear Elementary School in Rising Sun. In addition to this, he is following in his father's footsteps, and learning to play the trumpet. Kerri is in third grade and Stacey is in first. With only two years between them, Kerri and Stacey are like best friends. The Klines live on a street with few neighbors, so the children have learned how to play well within their family. Kerri is blonde and delicate; Stacey has brown hair, the most gorgeous brown eyes and freckles scattered across her face. Gregory is headed for kindergarten in September. He is a very sociable little guy and is real excited about attending school. Vicki thinks having four children in school will take a little getting used to, but with a new baby to keep her busy, the adjustment will pass quickly. Cyndie will be two years old on March 31st. She is very talkative and loving and protective of Mommy. Each child has his or her own personality, and is special in their own way. I wonder what number six will be like. The three older children are all involved in the youth group at their church. Every Thursday evening, three Klines can be found at Faith Community Church, taking part in a program called AWANA. The program combines fun with Bible study and memorization, and requires considerable effort on the children's part if they want to do well in it. Timmy, Kerri, and Stacey all do exceptionally well in it, and this is quite a source of pride for them. Stacey and Kerri also have very good singing voices and are part of The King's Kids—the children's choir at the church—as well as taking part in special music in some of the church services.

Most of the Kline's activities revolve around the church. Vicki recently retired as president of the Women's Fellowship. Kenny is a church deacon and he also uses his abilities on the trumpet in church services. Just before Christmas, the church put on a Christmas concert. It had a Victorian flair, and many of the participants were dressed in period costumes. Kenny strode down the church aisle in a tall velvet hat, a long, red, tiered cape, then proceeded to the front platform and played a trumpet solo.

Somewhere, in his already-hectic schedule, Kenny has found time to attend college. He is currently attending Wesley College and majoring in Human Resource Management. He hopes to eventually earn his bachelors degree. Classes are held on Monday and Thursday nights, and Wednesday nights see the Klines at church for prayer meeting. Friday and Saturday nights are family nights for the Klines. They don't have to do anything special—just being together as a family is special.

A few weeks ago, sadness came into the Kline's lives. Vicki's grandmother passed away. This was quite difficult for Vicki, and our sympathies are with her.

Looking at the Klines realistically, it's hard to fathom a family of eight. Food bills have got to be outrageous, not to mention clothes for them all; but perhaps the most staggering financial obligation looms ahead in the future—college education for six children. Not everyone is qualified for scholarships, and colleges get more and more expensive with each passing year. College for one child is bad enough—but six? Is Vicki concerned? Not in the least! Talking to the Klines, one thing becomes quite clear—these people have a great deal of faith. "If the Lord wants the children to go to college, they'll go," Vicki told me. The Klines are doing their part by being as frugal as possible, and they do believe the children should help out with summer jobs; but, as with everything in their lives, the children's futures are in God's hands.

May the fifth is just around the corner—no more arctic temperatures or snowstorms—bringing with it the arrival of rhododendrons and daffodils, and a new baby for the Kline family. The sixth time is just as special for the Klines as was the first, and the excitement is growing with each passing day. Soon, the hazards of pregnancy, labor and delivery will be a thing of the past, and a new, soft, pink miracle will curl up in a crib in the Magnolia home and be surrounded by the love of two parents and five brothers and sisters. What an incredible miracle of creation a baby is! It won't be long now!
