TWENTY SECOND YEAR

HARRINGTON, DELAWARE, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1936

NO. 22

EDWARD RASH IS ELECTED MAYOR OF HARRINGTON

Was Elected By Fellow Councilmen To Fill Vacancy Left By Wilbur E. Jacobs

TO RESPECT PEOPLE'S WISHES

In addition to changing the name of Harrington from the Town of Harrington to the City of Harrington, the last Legislature, in granting Harrington a new charter, gave the people a new form of government. It provides for Council representation from all sections of the City.

Under this new form of government the first election was held in January of last year. W. E. Jacobs was chosen mayor. Mr. Jacobs recently resigned owing to the pressure of business, his resignation becoming effective on November 3. City Council, faced with the problem of finding a mayor to fill the shoes of a man so capable as Mr. Jacobs, on Monday elected Edward B. Rash as mayor.

Mr. Rash is a prominent business man. In addition to being president of the Chamber of Commerce, he has taken great interest in the affairs of the community.

Mr. Rash, in a statement to the press (Harrington Journal) this week, states that he will only endorse those measures which he believes the majority of the people of the City are in favor of. He also thanks his brother Councilmen for the honor, the Councilmen electing him on Monday night of this week.

KENT FIREMEN TO INSPECT SCHOOLS

A committee to inspect rural school buildings in this section was named on Monday at a meeting of the Harrington Fire Department. The members are: David Harrington, Benjamin Emory and H. C. Tee. Plans for the addition to the fire house were inspected and the following building committee named: Grover C. Lord, Clarence Shockey, David Harrington and William I. Masten.

David Harrington and Benjamin Emory were named delegates to the county firemen's meeting at Houston, Nov. 18, with Clarence Shockey and C. D. Mills as alternates.

Nomination of officers resulted as follows: President, Frank C. O'Neil; vice-president, Brinton Holloway; secretary, Edward Harriet; financial secretary, C. D. Mills; treasurer, C. T. Harrington; chief, George W. Cain; fire recorder, H. C. Tee. Further nominations will be made at the December meeting.

BULLETIN GIVES "TIPS" ON SAFE DRIVING PRACTICES

"Tips" on safe driving practices are given in a bulletin prepared by the Delaware Automobile Association, A. M. A. with the inexperienced driver in mind, although, it is stated, they may be profitable also to motorists of long standing.

The bulletin follows:

"When approaching a curve on a slippery road, it is good driving practice to start braking before the car reaches the curve. Keep vehicle in gear and feed gas evenly while rounding the curve. Releasing the clutch under these conditions may send the car into a skid.

"The maximum braking effect is obtained by applying the brakes gently at first, then evenly and firmly. The competent driver never 'jams' them on realizing that such action may cause a skid, especially on a slippery road. In any event, the car stops quicker if the wheels do not slide. Tire marks on the highway show that this rule is often violated.

"Always apply the brakes with the car in gear. This gives double braking effect, because the decelerated motor is a powerful aid in bringing the car to a stop. Drivers who release the clutch simultaneously with application of the brakes put all the strain on the braking mechanism. Cars braked in this manner have a tendency to skid, but even if they do not skid or swerve they cannot be stopped as quickly as they can by braking in gear.

OLDSMOBILE NOTES

Oldsmobile's price announcement on its 1937 cars are featured by a reduction in price on all enclosed models in the eight cylinder line and also a reduction on the popular four-door touring sedan in the six cylinder line and also the four-door sedan, according to a statement released by D. E. Ralston, vice-president and general sales manager of the company.

"List prices at Lansing on the new Six begin at $685 and on the Eight at $785, Mr. Ralston said. "These new prices for 1937 are in keeping with Oldsmobile's basic policy of giving buyers all that is new and better at the lowest price.

Mr. Ralston pointed out that the new Oldsmobiles, both Eight and Six are bigger and finer in every way. Both have new and larger engines which give increased power with more economy. Both have longer wheel bases and stronger more rugged chassis. And both cars offer bigger, roomier all steel bodies for greater comfort and safety.

"In addition, the 1937 Oldsmobiles offer the latest in modern streamline styling. Both are entirely distinctive in appearance—different from each other, and different from anything else on the road. With all their new advancements and improvements, the new cars are priced to give the buyer the utmost in dollar-for-dollar value, Mr. Ralston stated.

KEYES NOMINATED FOR BANK DIRECTOR

The list of men who have been nominated by national farm loan associations in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia and West Virginia for election of Federal land bank director, was announced this week by Charles S. Jackson, President of the Federal and Bank of Baltimore.

A director to represent farm loan associations on the board of directors of the Baltimore bank will be elected during the course of the next few weeks as provided by the Farm Credit Act of 1933.

Elections are also being held in the other 11 Federal land bank districts at this time. Over 5,000 national farm loan associations representing approximately 600,000 farmer-members will participate. Some 210 associations will vote in the Baltimore district.

Nominees for director of the Baltimore bank are: Claire Groover, Lewisburg, Pa.; Edwin W. Humphrey, of Butler, Pa.; John H. Johnson, Gate City, Va.; Clarence E. Keyes, Farmington, Del.; Charles G. Massie, Lynchburg, Va.; Nelson Beck, Charlottesville, Va. The latter declined.

Directors of the Federal land bank are also ex officio directors of the Baltimore Production Credit Corporation, Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, and Bank for Cooperatives. Nominations for the district board of directors were made recently by the national farm loan associations in each district. The names of the ten persons in each district who received the highest number of votes have been placed on the ballots that are being forwarded to the association. The person receiving the highest number of votes will serve as a member of the board of directors in the district for three years beginning January 1, 1937.

The board of directors in the Baltimore and other districts is made up of seven members, three of whom are known as local directors and are elected by borrowers, and three are appointed by the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration, one of whom must be a land bank borrower; while the seventh, a director-at-large, is also appointed by the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration.

All directors are elected for three-year terms. The production credit administrations in the district will elect a director next year, the bank of cooperatives in 1938, and the national farm loan associations again in 1939.

All types of borrowers from the permanent institutions of the Farm Credit Administration are thus represented in the formation of local loan policies of these cooperative credit organizations.

In the Baltimore district, the farm loan associations which participate in the present election are the local agencies through which more than 26,000 Federal Land Bank and Land Bank Commissioner loans for more than $38,000,000 have been made since the Farm Credit Administration was organized in the Spring of 1933.

AUTO LICENSE CARDS TO BE ISSUED SOON

The work of preparing the 1937 automobile registration cards for mailing to automobile owners is expected to be completed within a few days.

The cards, it is believed, will be in the mails by Nov. 10.

Issuance of the new automobile license plates will start on Nov. 15, with the period between that date and Nov. 30 being taken up by issuing tags to persons who desire to retain the numbers they now have.

The State Motor Vehicle Department will not honor any requests for special numbers, other than the present numbers now held by the present owners. After Nov. 30, tags will be issued in their regular order.

The new tags will be of the same size and design as those now in use. The color scheme will be in reverse, with the tags having a blue color on a gold background.

COMPLETE TABULATION OF ELECTION IS ANNOUNCED

This week's issue of the Harrington Journal contains a complete summary of the results of the November 3 general election, rushed to us following a national compilation of statistics.

This tabulation is especially timely, since it provides the grand climax to America's straw poll mania, to the claims and counter claims that were hurled back and forth during the campaign, and to endless conjecture regarding Republican strength in California, for instance, against Democratic strength in Massachusetts.

It is the final answer... the real poll to end all polls! We suggest that you save it for future reference.

GHEEN TO BE SPEAKER AT C. OF C. BANQUET HERE

James E. Gheen, of New York City, is a public relations counselor, with a nation-wide experience and reputation as an after dinner speaker. As a philosophical humorist he has no peer on the public platform. Mr. Gheen has been abruptly described as a business man with a keen sense of humor.

His background of business training, newspaper work as a reporter, and a constructive columnist, and as a feature writer; fifteen years in the steel business in Coatesville, Pa., Buffalo, N. Y. and Bethlehem, Pa., and many years in the civic-commercial organization field, has fitted him to present an unique view-point on many subjects which are particularly appealing and interesting to business men and women.

As Secretary of the Chambers of Commerce of Bethlehem, Pa., Niagara Falls, New York and Albany, New York, and as Field Secretary of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce, he has made a splendid record. His experience as an organizer of, and counselor to, civic-organizations and trade associations, has familiarized him with the inside workings of these organizations, and also the technique and psychology required to produce lasting results. Mr. Gheen is considered one of the best Chamber of Commerce speakers in the United States.

His record of having spoken in thirty-five states and in Canada, to audiences of all sorts and sizes, in three hundred and fifty different cities and towns, is an enviable one.

The Scranton, Pa. Times said, concerning his first visit to that city, before the Chamber of Commerce, "Mr. Gheen's address was accepted as a record of the finest ever heard by a Scranton audience."

NOTICE

It is with sincere regret that we, the City Council, of Harrington, Del., reluctantly announce the resignation of Wilbur E. Jacobs, our City Mayor which took effect November 3, 1936.

We feel that in accepting this resignation we are losing an able and wise counselor, a good leader and an efficient worker, and a fair and impartial executor, one who has had the welfare of this City and the interest of his fellow-townsmen at heart.

Household Questions

Bits of leftover jelly are good used for stuffing baked fruits, topping baked or steamed pudding or spreading over chops or roasts just before serving.

A stick of wax and a brush of oil will do much to take the curse off furniture scratches. The wax will fill in the scars and the oil will darken the wax.

To make chiffonade dressing mix one tablespoon chopped onion, two tablespoons chopped cooked beets, two tablespoons chopped sweet pickles and one hard-cooked egg, diced, to one-half cup of French dressing. This dressing is tasty to serve on head lettuce or diced vegetable salads.

Candied ginger, diced and combined with chilled fruits makes a tasty cocktail.

When making bread and butter pudding, sprinkle each slice of bread with grated coconut instead of currants, and strew some on the top. This will make a change from the ordinary pudding and will be found very tasty.

BELGIUM RETURNS TO NEUTRALITY

King Leopold's Move Is Seen as Final Collapse of Collective Security System Under the League; Weakens French Alliances.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

KING LEOPOLD of Belgium has announced that in the future the policy of his nation will be to withdraw "from the quarrels of our neighbors." This edict is destined, it is believed, to set up for Belgium a neutrality comparable with that which she heroically tried to protect during the World War.

In diplomatic circles, the king's action is taken to mean the final collapse of the system of collective security under the covenant of the League of Nations which had most of the props knocked out from under it with the failure of sanctions against Italy in the Ethiopian incident.

Of course the whole idea of Articles X and XVI of the covenant is that all the signatory nations will pitch in together against a power that attacks one of them. The two articles are actually, in theory at least, the mainspring of the league.

Any neutral nation which sought to embrace the protection of the collective security plan immediately forfeited its neutrality. The general belief at the time the league was founded was that neutrality would be impossible for any European nation in the next war. Wilson himself was a subscriber to this belief.

Along with Belgium, the Scandinavian nations gave up their neutrality to enter the league. Switzerland entered only upon the condition that the league make her an exception and recognize her neutral position.

France Protects Western Front.

France, ever since the close of the World War, has been fearful of German revenge upon her, especially since the growth of the Nazi government under Adolf Hitler, whose militarized mind breaks the shackles intended for the Germans, as the losers of the war, like so many twigs.

Hoping to strengthen her protection against Germany, France added to her benefits of collective security by making a number of alliances with other powers, always with the "western front" in view.

No one can deny that, if France were to face a hostile neighbor of greater population and industrial power than herself with any sort of equality, these alliances were necessary. The crowning achievement in the French diplomatic campaign was the treaty with Soviet Russia engineered by Louis Barthou, since deceased.

This pact realized for Germany, whose territory centers the continent, the fear of an alliance of mutually hostile nations facing her on both the western and the eastern borders.

Alliances Weakened.

King Leopold's neutrality pronouncement was received with much joy in Berlin, because Reichsführer Hitler regards it as a sign of the breaking down of the French collective security alliances. It meant the breaking of an alliance between Belgium and France which had stood since 1920, and it reduced the length of the "hostile border" on Germany's west by one-third. If, as many informed persons believe, Hitler is interested only in defending the western border, and has no concealed notions of attacking nations beyond it, this should make his job that much easier.

The reason for Hitler's concentration of arms along the western borders, it is believed, is a sort of "compensation" for threats implied by French alliances with powers in central and eastern Europe. When Der Fuehrer militarized the Rhine zone he made more difficult the chances of France's aiding any ally in the central or eastern regions. The Belgian neutrality makes this more difficult than ever. Belgium had participated with France in the occupation of the Ruhr.

Under the old Franco-Belgian treaty of 1920, France could have moved forces into the Rhine region, but Belgium would not necessarily be obliged to. It would have been possible, however, that Belgium could have fallen under obligation to attack Germany without having been invaded by German forces.

Ruins of Nieuport, Belgium, Allied Stronghold on the Atlantic Coast After the Constant Bombardment by the "Big Berthas" of the German Artillery.

Belgian neutrality was held by Wilhelm II to be merely "a scrap of paper." Would Hitler hold it so today under stressed circumstances? Belgium is evidently hoping or believing that he would not. At least Belgium believes Germany less likely to invade now than under the 1920 alliance. With such a defensive alliance in operation, the situation might arise in which Germany would feel obliged to invade to protect herself.

Britain Backs Belgium.

With the "hostile" western front thus reduced, with Belgium likely to remain neutral should France move into the Rhineland, Germany is now able to concentrate power in the East to a greater extent.

Great Britain, it is certain, would hardly stand for an invasion of Belgium by the Germans. One of the most important phases of Hitler's foreign policy is a friendly relationship with Great Britain. This would literally go up in smoke were his armies to begin to move westward on the Continent.

Collective security in Europe today, if it exists at all, is dependent almost entirely upon alliances created separately by the powers and not those created by the league.

The sanctions against Italy, which turned out to be such a miserable "flop," might have been intended to show Hitler just what could be done if he acted up too obstreperously. If any nation stood to gain through the successful application of sanctions, that nation was certainly France. For she would then have had a real threat, as a member of the League of Nations in good standing, to wave in the face of any Nazi aggression.

League Loses Face.

Despite this, it is probably a fact that more than any other nation France was responsible for the failure of sanctions against Italy. To become really effective against Italy sanctions had to be universally enforced. And the one weak sister in the family of nations when it came to enforcing sanctions was France, hesitant and timid under the direction of Premier Pierre Laval. French application of sanctions was, at best, half-hearted.

When the French were attempting to do, of course, was comply with their obligations under the covenant of the league and at the same time keep the friendship of Mussolini. As a result of their stretching both ends of the band of allegiance, the middle broke, and France helped to bring about the failure of collective security, and meanwhile incurred Italian wrath.

Italy turned to Germany for friendship and the league lost its face as a result.

The smaller nations, once perennial neutrals, awakened to the sad realization that collective security was a beautiful theory. But in practice it was a pitiful picture. Neither their independence nor their safety was likely to be protected by it. As a matter of fact, this kind of security stood in a good way to get them into trouble.

The countries of Scandinavia lost no time in letting it be known in the League of Nations circles at Geneva that henceforth they were going to remain neutral, no matter what. Article XVI was no longer going to bind them into joining with other powers in applying sanctions to an aggressor nation. Now Belgium strings along with them.

Belgium, as well as the other smaller nations, may have had another reason for returning to neutrality. Belgium cannot help but have become alarmed at the new military strength of Germany under Hitler and his brown shirts. The rising growth of the German army must forebode something, they conclude, and if that something should come about, they want no part of it. Neutrality seems the most practical "out."

Russia Provides Scare.

With recent developments wherein the Russians seem bound on lending aid to Communists in Spain, while Germany looks on with suspicion, it is apparent that any nation which had an allegiance with France would feel uneasy as long as the Franco-Soviet alliance exists. Poland's pact with the French government is said to be about to fall apart because of the Soviet alliance, and it is believed that this same alliance was one of the chief instruments for making up King Leopold's mind to remain neutral.

There were some reports that King Leopold's declaration did not mean a complete severance of alliances with France and Great Britain, but was merely intended as an expression of "long-term" policy.

The king has declared: "Belgium's geographical situation compels us to maintain our military machine so as to dissuade our neighbors from using our territory to attack another state."

Suiting actions to the word, Belgium has made an additional appropriation of $100,000,000 for strengthening its defenses. Also, the length of military service required has been stepped up.

Last March, after the Hitler invasion of the demilitarized Rhine zone, Britain, France and Belgium entered into an agreement which provided for frequent consultations of the general staffs of each nation. The chief topic of conversation, naturally, is what to do in case Germany decides to move westward.

Britain's Interest Vital.

There are two ways in which France may look at the newly returned Belgian neutrality. If it includes strengthening of Belgian military forces as it seems to, then France should be thankful, for it will be just that much more difficult for Germany to invade France through Belgium, so this policy is no hindrance to them.

King Leopold might conceivably mean—although it is scarcely probable that he does—that if Germany were to attempt to reach Paris through Belgium, he would not permit French troops in his country.

Urges Farmers to Store Machinery

Equipment Should Be Under Cover to Prevent Damage in Winter Time.

By Prof. E. R. Gross, Agricultural Engineer, Rutgers University.—WNU Service.

Thrifty farmers have long recognized the value of storing their farm machinery after its season of use is over in a shelter that protects it from damaging effects of the weather.

Do not try to crowd machinery into a small space in the barn. Farmers who have tried to do this usually become discouraged over the extra labor of taking down the machines and outside storage is the result.

A simple structure of ample size which will keep out the sun, wind, rain and snow is all that is needed to house the farm machinery. Framing that is well braced and a good foundation are essential. Roofing and siding may be corrugated galvanized iron. Doors must swing or slide freely and be tight enough to exclude birds and animals. If high and dry, an earth floor treated with oil is not objectionable.

The cost of upkeep for a piece of machinery is often greater when such tasks as cleaning, listing, needed replacement parts on a tag tied to the machine, and repainting or varnishing to save the finish and prevent rust are done at the time of storing or in the winter.

Vetch Aid to Orchards;

Needs to Be Inoculated

Winter vetch is one of the state's best cover crops for orchards under bearing age, says W. R. Martin, Jr., of the Missouri College of Agriculture. It is not satisfactory in older orchards because the shade of the trees prevents any large production of a cover crop.

The most satisfactory seeding date is soon after the late rains begin. Normally, the seedbed should be prepared well ahead of seeding time. Best results are obtained if the seedbed is firm and free of weeds.

The vetch being a legume needs to be thoroughly inoculated before seeding. The use of soil in which winter vetch has been successfully grown is a satisfactory way of supplying this inoculation. When this is not possible, pure cultures of the proper bacteria can be obtained.

The crop will reach its maximum growth in early May. At that time its greatest value as a green manure crop can be secured by disking or plowing it under. By such a practice it is not unusual to secure a yield of organic matter equivalent to 15 or 20 tons of barnyard manure per acre. This will be in addition to the nitrogen added to the soil by the legume.

Facts on Milk Flavors

Although there are many factors which may affect the flavor of milk by the time it reaches the doorstep of the consumer, there are only two principal causes of off-flavors in milk at the time it is drawn from the udder. Perhaps the most common of these flavors is due to the feed eaten by the cow. Chief among the offenders in this group are weeds such as wild onions, ragweed, and bitter weed. Certain green forage and root crops such as rye and green alfalfa cause pronounced off-flavors in milk unless the grazing periods are properly spaced. Other green feeds affecting milk flavor are cowpeas, beef tops, rape, cabbage, turnips and kale, states an authority at the University of Kentucky.

Grinding Kafir

Grinding is a profitable practice in preparing some feeds for consumption by hogs, but it apparently is not economical in the case of kafir, offered in self-feeders. C. P. Thompson, animal husbandry specialist at the Oklahoma agricultural experiment station, found it took 440 pounds of ground kafir to produce 100 pounds of gain as compared with 438 pounds of whole kafir. Moreover, there was practically no difference in the daily gains of pigs self fed on whole kafir and those self fed on ground kafir.

Agricultural Hints

Sweden's Royal Academy of Agriculture is 125 years old.

The hog cholera germ spreads with extreme rapidity from farm to farm.

California's 1936 lamb crop—2,339,000 head—is 6 per cent over that of 1935.

More than 1,200 horses—almost equalling the number of trucks for the purpose—pull vegetable and fruit wagons in New York city.

The United States lamb crop this year is 9 per cent larger than last year.

Bruising is the most important single defect found in potatoes on the market.

Farmers in Massachusetts grow increased quantities of their forage needs on their own farms.

Although this year's corn crop in Argentina is below expectations, it is the third largest crop on record.

Future farmers may get light and heat for their farms by fermenting constalks and waste in back yard plants, and thus producing gas.

North Carolina tobacco farmers used sawdust during the 1936 drought months as a mulch for keeping soil cool and damp.

Calves should be permitted to run with the mother for three days after the cow freshens but the skim milk ration can be started after that period.

Wives, Know Yourselves!

Accurate Analysis Will Do Much to Overcome Difficulty in Wedded Life

SPEAKING on the question of trial marriages, a well known writer said, "There should be no need for trial when two people know their own abilities and have measured themselves accurately. Two people who understand themselves will never, I believe, have any difficulty living happily together after marriage."

That is a new slant on the question of success in marriage, supplements a woman writer of national fame. Not "Know thy husband"—or "wife," but "know thyself!"

And, come to think of it, isn't most of the discontent and dissatisfaction in marriage traceable to ideas of ourselves—that may be misconceptions, no less than our illusions about the other person?

How many women's dissatisfaction with their husbands has as its source the thought of all they gave up to marry him, all they "might have had" if they had married a certain other man?

How many women's discontent with the role of wife and mother springs from the thought of how much more fascinating pastimes they might have had if they had followed that career?

How many girls' impossible expectations of a fulltime lover and Prince Charming originates in an exaggerated notion of their own devastating beauty and charm?

If all discontented wives would look deeply into themselves, measure themselves, stop fooling themselves, many might discover that the other man they might have married is a self-nurtured illusion; that the career of their dreams is not a soft snap and a joy forever; but a grueling, exhausting job which might have worn them out if they had qualified for it, which they probably would have been unable to do; that they themselves are neither devastating beauties nor always charming, but women who are frequently disappointing and difficult to live with. They might discover and admit to themselves that they are greatly in debt to their husbands for many things that make life easier and better and more worthwhile—that they would not get along so well without them.

Then they might think more of doing their part of trying to make those husbands happy. And that effort on the part of one must inevitably go a long way toward a mutually happy and successful marriage.

Scotland Once Led in Witch Burning

Palm Given to Northland in Revived Discussion.

London.—Although several antiquarians have presented evidence in London papers giving the American colonies a clean bill of health in regard to repeated accusations that alleged witches were once actually burned there, a mooted question still remains and its discussion has mounted to fever attitude: What part of the United Kingdom was most culpable in this respect, England, Wales, Ireland or Scotland? Scientific opinion is making out a good case for Scotland, with a record of 4,000 executions, although one writer declares that strangulation (worryit), and not fire, was used as a mean of exit at the stake. Another writer, however, while admitting that strangulation was sometimes used, declares that the stake with fire was a much more popular form of execution, and he writes: "Rev. Dr. Lauchlan MacLean Watt, Glasgow, tells that in 1658 a warlock, duly condemned, was 'worryit' (strangled) at the stake on the Castlehill of Edinburgh. But in that same year four women were burned to death in the same place, all confessing their covenant with hell, while presently nine witches from Tranent all went the same way, with confessions in their mouths.

School Master Done to Death.
"Then there was the noted case of Dr. Fian, school master, Salt pans, 1591, who was first strangled, then 'put into a great fire' and burned on the Castlehill of Edinburgh.

"From the official records—and many are available—it is clear that of the 4,000 so-called witches burned in Scotland only a fraction underwent the minor horrible death by strangulation before the burning at the stake.

"But I shall confine myself to the case of Aberdeen, a dreadful example, where the records are clear and full, and where, in 1596-97 alone, 22 women and 1 man were burned to death. Says Kennedy, the annalist: 'They were, of course, condemned to the flames, and in order to make a due impression on the minds of the people their sufferings took place at short intervals at the Castlehill.'

Last Execution in 1722.
"These shocking occurrences went on in Aberdeen well into the seventeenth century, although the last person to be tried by a lord of justiciary was brought up at Dumfries Circuit court as late as 1709 and the very last person to undergo trial for witchcraft in Scotland was an old woman who was brought before the deputy sheriff of Sutherland and condemned, at Dornoch, in 1722.

"Not everybody in Scotland was pleased by the cessation of witch burning, and the repeal of the statute of King James authorizing the same, 1735.

"In 1743 the Associate Presbytery of Scotland—the noted Erskine Secceders from the Church of Scotland—declared that the penal statutes against witches have been repealed by Parliament contrary to the express law of God; and more singular still, even in 1815 Rev. James Paterson, M. A., minister of the upland parish of Midmar, Aberdeenshire, felt it necessary to issue a pamphlet, 'A Belief in Witchcraft Unsupported by Scripture.' It was printed by Chalmers, of The (still existing) Aberdeen Journal, a strange production, very rare.

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

The tourist motoring in Ohio will have his attention frequently directed to a sign attached to the rear of a large truck and bearing this inscription: "Blow your horn—the road is yours." The truck is owned by one of the large oil companies in Ohio, and the driver has been instructed to turn to the right the moment he hears the horn of an approaching car. "The road is yours." One seldom sees a finer expression of courtesy. Courtesy seems sadly lacking on many of the highways we travel. A driver will frequently park in a position that leaves little or no room for the car in the front or the rear to move out. "Just . . . I have room" is the common practice. Consideration for the safety of the public is of little concern, so long as one keeps within the law. Scores of automobile accidents can be attributed to lack of courtesy—which is simply a lack of respectful consideration of others. More courtesy on our highways will mean less accidents. "Be courteous" is a good motto to hang on the dash board of every car.

Courtesy may express itself in respectful consideration of others, no matter what the surroundings may be. In one large store in a prosperous section of a certain city the men remove their hats in the elevator when ladies are present. In another store less favorably located in the same city, the removal of hats is tabooed. Why this discrimination? Is not a lady always a lady regardless of the particular elevator in which she rides? The principle of courtesy should hold true and prompt a man to rise when a lady enters the room, whether the room be palatial or humble. Is courtesy dependent upon prosperity or poverty for its expression?

How much of the courtesy in our daily contacts is real; how much is artificial and conventional? The answer to this question reveals both true and false courtesy in nations as well as in individuals. Courtesy between nations is of paramount importance in producing mutual understanding and good will. Its natural use expresses a hopeful esteem for others and a fundamental

THE name American patchwork was given by the English to a certain type of piece patchwork evidently originated on this continent. It is a name unfamiliar to most Americans, although credit for the beautiful work is given to the women in the United States and Canada. American patchwork found its way from this continent to England in the latter quarter of the last century, somewhere about 1875 or 1880. In Great Britain it was attributed equally to the United States and Canada, both countries being in regard for the opinions of others. Courtesy is the conscience of diplomacy and the covenant of perpetual peace. The gift of the Statute of Liberty by France was an act of sublime courtesy. The same element was entirely forsaken when nations fought with nations in the last great war. Let us have more of the kindly spirit of courtesy in our international relationships.

Courtesy is not dependent upon education or inherited culture. It is a matter of self-discipline and innate development.

A ditch digger may be a gentleman if he has a genuine respect for personality. "Every inch a gentleman." A fine compliment earned not at a cost of money but by a persistent attitude of mind that listens when another speaks and remains calm when that speech is not the echo of his own mind. Courtesy is something more than an expression of conventional good manners. It is the outward expression of the soul within. The fruit of loyal nature and the gift of noble mind.

POULTRY

BANDING BIRDS TO SELECT BREEDERS

Plan Good When Trappests Are Not Used.

By J. C. Taylor, Extension Poultryman, New Jersey College of Agriculture, WNU Service.

Poultrymen eager to improve the laying ability of their flocks without the use of trappests can do so by following a system of banding, commonly known as the red, white and blue system.

The present accepted theory of the inheritance of egg production, as developed by Dr. F. A. Hays of the Massachusetts State College is based on early maturity, non-broodiness, intensity or rate of production and persistency of long-time production. Poultrymen who trappest their pullets can readily select from the records the birds that possess these important factors.

When trappests are not used, it is possible to select birds with the requirements of good breeders by a system of legbanding during the first laying year. When pullets are housed in the fall, those that show evidence of laying by having a bright red comb, width between the pubic bones and softness in the abdomen should be banded with a red celluloid leg band. Date of hatch should be known so that the early maturing birds can be identified.

Intensity or rate of production can be identified later, usually in January and February, by banding with a white band all pullets that show the loss of yellow color in beaks and shanks. Persistency can be identified with a blue band. Birds showing continual production in late August and September of next year by the absence of any molting are persistent layers.

During the spring and summer, any birds that go broody should be banded with a black band. Next fall, any poultryman who followed the system of banding described can readily identify the best producers and birds suitable for further consideration as breeders, selecting those birds with red, white and blue bands. Such birds will possess early maturity, intensity and persistency of production and non-broodiness.

Find Chickens Do Well on Barley Hogs Refuse

Scabby barley, which hogs usually will not eat, may be safely fed to chickens. It gives about the same results in the hen's ration as normal barley, a two-year experiment at the National Agricultural Research Center of the United States Department of Agriculture shows.

Rations containing 30 and 38 percent of scabby barley were compared in feeding trials with rations having the same quantity of corn or of normal barley. Hens on scabby barley laid just as many eggs and maintained their weight as well as those on the other two diets. The only noticeable difference was that birds fed the ration containing corn ate 10 to 13 per cent less feed for each egg laid.

When barley replaces yellow corn in the ration it is best to supply vitamin A by including either alfalfa-leaf meal or cod-liver oil. Barley contains little of this vitamin, if any.

Scab is a fungus disease which affects the quality of barley grain and reduces the yield. It is usually carried over from the previous year on corn stalks and small grain stubble.

Keep Turkeys in Open

Young turkeys should be allowed to roost in the open, in trees, or on perches, as, being out in the open, there is less danger of infection. If the turkeys are troubled with this disease, dispose of the entire flock early this fall and next spring purchase turkey eggs from a healthy flock, hatch them in an incubator and rear the poult in a brooder. Keep them away from barnyard hens in paddocks and there should be little difficulty in raising them free from blackhead.

Wheat Alone Not Good Feed

While soft wheat is usually considered more palatable for poultry, there is really little, if any, difference in the food value between hard and soft wheat. Wheat, however, should never be used alone in feeding poultry. Digestive disturbances are accompanied by loss of appetite and body depression. It is advisable, therefore, according to an authority, to mix wheat with corn and oats, using equal parts of each.

Popularity of Leghorns

Leghorns are among the smallest of the large breeds (as distinguished from bantams), the standard weights being six pounds for cocks, five pounds for cockerels, four and one-half pounds for hens, and four pounds for pullets. The Leghorn has a yellow skin and, with proper management, produces large quantities of white-shelled eggs. It holds first place on egg-producing farms, its popularity seems to be increasing.—Successful Farming.

Hens Like Variety

A complex ration for poultry gave a much greater egg production than the simple ration, according to results secured in an 11-month feeding test conducted by the poultry department, Louisiana State university experiment station. According to a chart kept of this experiment, the hens that were fed the complex ration began laying earlier and were more consistent, it was found, during the entire period.

Training in Simplicity

Let us bring up our children simply, I had almost said rudely. Let us entice them to exercise that gives them endurance, even to privations. Let them belong to those who are better trained to fatigue and the earth for a bed than is the comfort of the table and couches of luxury.

So we shall make men of them, independent and staunch, who may be counted on, who will not sell themselves for pottage, and who will have withal the faculty of being happy.

SYNOPSIS Keria Marsh, pretty, selfish and twenty, arrives home in Corinth from school and is met by her older brother, Hugh. He drives her to the Marsh home where her widowed mother, Fluvanna, a warm-hearted, self-sacrificing and understanding soul, welcomes her.

CHAPTER III—Continued "It's a shame when a woman is at the age when she can enjoy life most," continued Jerry, "and she is taken with something ghastly like that! My aunt was a wonderful looking woman too."

"Pale fires lit in her eyes, a revival of vanity. 'Wonderful? . . . Perhaps not now, but you should see my pictures taken when I was Ellen's age! I remember when I was young and lived in Ridley, Mr. Parkinson—later he became the lumber capitalist out west somewhere, Oregon, I think—used to call me the Rose of Ridley!'"

"Working?" asked Gavin in the first pause. "I have a job as storekeeper at the Arrow Steel Works," Jerry answered.

Lizzie changed to a more comfortable chair, and drawn by Jerry's deferential attention, recounted in a tangential flow stories of her activities before she had been stricken, of her two sons, Caleb and Gavin Junior, the trouble she had keeping competent help, and the hotels she had found most agreeable in Atlantic City.

It was almost twelve when she rose to go upstairs. She even shook hands with Jerry cordially. "Be patient," she admonished them. "I'll see what I can do with her father."

She kissed him. "We might sit here on the steps while you smoke a cigarette?" "How about two?" "Make it two," she answered laughing. She was proud, hopeful, unutterably happy.

The first Hugh Pendleton had come out from Connecticut in the year 1802, made his way with horses and an ox team over the hazardous mountain roads, and taken up land along the Penacook Valley in Ohio.

FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA: MORE POWER TO THEM

The girl—she weighed perhaps a hundred pounds, and was as pretty as a Shasta daisy—on that same afternoon had led a thousand-pound steer into the ring.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS THE other night I sat at dinner between a girl of fourteen and a boy perhaps three years older. It was a large dinner; it was served in a magnificent club dining room, and attended by perhaps eight hundred; it had speeches and music and flowers and fine food to make it formal.

They were cattle raisers; they were experienced stock hands at fourteen and seventeen. They leaned across me to discuss food and weight and what steers are in railway handling, and where they were going to get their calves or lambs or shoots to raise as possible prize-winners next year.

great deal of approval of the marriage of James and Fluvanna. There were local grievances—families whose sons had yearned for Fluvanna and been passed over. Although pride in clothes was Pendleton credo, James was thought to lean toward to great an elegance in dress.

Each of them had in some manner procured a young animal about a year, or ten months ago, a calf, a lamb, a suckling pig. Each had then assumed the responsibility of raising this animal for the meat market. Sometimes it was on Dad's stock farm, sometimes on a ranch given over entirely to fruit or wheat, sometimes on a three-acre place on the borders of a country town.

STAR DUST Movie Radio By VIRGINIA VALE

IT'S always interesting when a star stages a come-back; Karen Morley's is especially interesting, because she had to fight a battle, not with loss of popularity but with poor health, before she could win back the place she once had on the screen.

Shirley Temple is going to China, on the screen. She is making "Stow-away," part of which is laid in Shanghai, and in those scenes she is dressed as a Chinese girl.

Margot Grahame is one of the busiest girls in the movie center. She returned from England, her home country, September 6—and has just been cast by RKO for her third consecutive featured lead since that time.

Irene Dunne traveled to New York recently for one of her usual reunions with her husband. And of course, Joan Blondell and Dick Powell arrived there and were greeted by everything their company could think up that would attract attention to them—as if they wouldn't have attracted plenty just by themselves!

If you can invent a microphone that can kick, you'll make a fortune—or so says Martha Atwell, who directs some of our most popular radio programs—"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" for instance. She says that one of her hardest tasks is keeping actors from kicking the mike when they're broadcasting. And of course that delicate instrument registers every sound.

There's never a dull moment in a broadcasting studio where one of those amateur programs is going on. Phillip Lord launched his "We, the People" not long ago, and when one of the women began telling about her baby, who had been kidnapped, the poor soul began to cry and couldn't stop.

Everybody lost their heads, for a moment. "Then the executives told me," the Phil came to the rescue, talked to her, and finally calmed her down.

Betty Furness likes to make pictures, but she can't resist dashing back to New York every so often, to be entertained by the very social crowd of which she was part before she betook herself to Hollywood.

Gary Cooper's wife rates socially too, you'll recall, but she and Gary are so dignified when they are in New York that they aren't news. It's hard to remember the old days when his romance with Lupe Vélez was constantly dragging him into the limelight.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Dorothy Arzner, the famous woman director (now doing "Mother Cary's Chickens" with Ginger Rogers), relaxes between films by doing something different—studying astronomy, redecorating her house, or planting a new garden . . . Buck Jones recently celebrated his 19th anniversary in pictures and it is so popular that his "Buck Jones Rangers" club has 5,000,000 boys as members . . . Katherine Hepburn's "Portrait of a Rebel" has been changed to "A Woman Rebels," so that people won't think it's about a photograph of a Confederate soldier.

Foe of Black Widow Spider The mud dauber wasp, scientists state, is a natural enemy of the dreaded black widow spider. The wasp lays its eggs in the cocoons of the black widow so that when the wasp larvae hatch out they can feed upon the young spiders.

World's Largest Coin The "oban" of Japan is the world's largest gold coin. It measures four inches in diameter and weighs about four ounces. Needless to say it is not in very general circulation.

Cost of Sports The American people spend close to $1,000,000,000 a year on sports, "The Index" of the New York Trust company states in an article on sports as an industry. The gratified for nearly cost of sporting and athletic goods aggregates $500,000,000, country club dues and fees $200,000,000, while the estimated 250,000 paid admissions for sporting events is at least $125,000,000, the article says.

SEED WHEAT TREATMENT SURVEY IN KENT COUNTY

As a means of determining the results of the campaign in the treatment of seed wheat for control of stinking smut in Kent county, surveys have been made each fall by County Agent Russell E. Wilson through those local dealers and distributors who handle the dust material which are recommended for this purpose.

This has been one of the major extension products of the Kent county program of work for the past twelve years, and during this period several thousand bushels of wheat have been treated, with a correspondingly large acreage planted to treated seed each year.

Although the treating of seed wheat has become an accepted practice among the majority of farmers, their attention has been called each summer to the economic value of this practice in order that the stinking smut may be held in check in the production of clean wheat for the market.

The 1936 survey relative to the amount of dust materials used this year by the wheat growers in Kent county, will be completed within a few days, and from this information, will be calculated the acreage which was sown with treated wheat this fall. When this project was started in the summer of 1925, only 3,200 acres were planted with treated seed, but this acreage continued to increase each year until the maximum was obtained in 1928 when 39,600 acres were seeded.

During the past few years, however, this acreage has dropped considerably, as the smut has been fairly well under control and many farmers decided not to treat their wheat under the circumstances. Although this situation existed throughout the county, it has been regarded as essential that wheat growers continue this practice each year as a protection against the reappearance of this disease.

Until seed treatment became a common practice among farmers throughout the United States, heavy losses were experienced each year by the presence of smut in the wheat crop, and there was a correspondingly heavy dockage at the mills and grain elevators. This treatment however, has reduced this loss to a minimum, and every effort is being made to further reduce the prevalence of this disease and to hold it in check from year to year.

Aside from the seed itself, the only other sources of smut infection are old straw from a smutty crop of wheat and where a diseased crop of wheat has been threshed. Infection occurs at the time the seed germinates, and this is governed by existing temperatures and moisture conditions.
