HARDWARE MEN ELECT MILFORD MAN PRESIDENT

Del-Mar-Va Association Names J. Pierce, Of Milford, To Head Organization

MEETING WAS HELD AT SALISBURY

J. P. Pierce, of Milford, was re-elected president of the Del-Mar-Va Implement Dealers Association at the closing session of its one-day annual convention at Salisbury on Wednesday.

Others elected were: vice-president, John E. Patterson, Cambridge; secretary, Harry C. Bradford, Snow Hill; directors, Calvin D. Lynch, of Ridgely; Sylvester Preston, of North East, Md.; E. S. Walls, of Church Hill, Md.; E. S. Hubbard, of Cambridge, Md.; C. E. Hayman, of Princess Anne, Md.; and O. K. Custis, of Craddockville, Va.

Approximately 100 farm implement dealers from Delaware and the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia gathered for the convention at the Wicomico Hotel, in Salisbury.

The sessions were the most successful ever held by the organization, President Pierce said on Wednesday night.

An appeal to become merchants instead of peddlers, was made to association members by C. D. Lynch, of Ridgely, a speaker at the morning session. He based his talk on "fair trade allowances," urging the dealers to keep their business on a professional standard.

Cooperation also was urged by Mr. Hayman, of Princess Anne, who spoke on "cruel and disastrous" competition. The main address of the afternoon, by R. W. Williams, Chicago, dealt with profitable service and repairs of farm implements.

Grant Wright, of Philadelphia, executive secretary of the Eastern Federation of Farm Equipment Dealers Association, also spoke.

J. Harvey Burgess, of Harrington, was a speaker at the banquet. A program of music by Lee Webster closed the program.

LAWYER FOR ROAD BODY NOT NAMED

Many matters were acted upon and discussed at a meeting of the State Highway Commission at Dover, Tuesday afternoon. Road matters as well as items concerning the State police were considered during the meeting.

Maintenance of ten streets in the city of Wilmington will be assumed by the State Highway Department according to action by the commission. No action was taken on the appointment of an attorney and the legal matters will be handled by the Attorney General's office for the time being.

Chief Engineer W. W. Mack was authorized to arrange for a meeting of the State Highway Department with the U. S. Engineers concerning a new crossing at St. Georges. No date has been set for the hearing, but the commission directed that Mr. Mack urge a crossing that will facilitate the movement of traffic.

The chief engineer also was directed to take measures toward closing the Woodland road, which crosses the property of the duPont Company at Seaford. Another road will be built later circling the property.

Elimination of a railroad crossing at Walnut street in Newport also was approved. A road parallel to the tracks will be built.

The commission voted to send George Grotz, a private of the State police in charge of safety work, to Rutgers University for a special course in highway safety.

A delegation from the Chamber of Commerce, of Milton, asked that the roads in that town either be rebuilt or repaired. The matter was referred to the chief engineer after it was explained that repairing of several of the roads already has been approved.

The commission has approved construction of a radio tower at Georgetown similar to that already installed at the State police station at State police station at State Road. The cost was estimated at $10,000.

A total of $10,000 was voted to the Delaware Safety Council to be used by the council as provided by law. The money is to be taken from fines for highway violations.

The chief engineer was authorized to advertise for bids for erection of two flag poles at Christina Park. One will fly an American flag and the other will fly a Swedish flag recently presented to the State.

Legislature Passed First Bill

By unanimous vote the Senate Monday, passed Speaker Frank R. Zebley's bill to authorize the Delaware Steeple chase and Race Association to increase by 1 1/2 per cent its "take" on money bet on races at Delaware Park, Stanton. It is specified that this extra money shall be used to liquidate the association's indebtedness, improve the park, and increase purses. By changing the purses it is estimated the best horses in the country will be attracted to the park, larger fields will be made possible, and as a result attendance will increase, which would give the State greater returns in taxes. It was the first measure passed by the two branches of the Legislature. It will now go to the Governor for his consideration.

House on Boulevard for rent, now occupied by J. Bertman. All modern improvements; hot water heat.—H. M. Black.

LEGISLATURE CALENDARS CONTAIN 90 MEASURES

The Legislative calendars on Wednesday morning contained a total of ninety measures of which fifty-four were in the House and the remaining thirty-six were in the Senate. In addition the Senate calendar contained five House bills while the House calendar contained four Senate bills awaiting action.

In the House two House measures and one Senate measure were reported out of committees and ready for action while in the Senate two Senate measures and three House measures were reported out of committees and were ready for action.

There has been only one bill passed by both branches, it providing for increase of fees retained by operators of Delaware Park.

Most of the measures introduced in either House thus far are routine measures and the usual appropriation measures that are presented at each session. Action on these appropriation measures will probably be delayed until after the joint Legislative budget committee completes its work on the general appropriation bill.

No new measures pertaining to the Republican plan of government reorganization have appeared. Substitute measures for the "ripper" bills changing the Highway Commission and transferring control of the Motor Vehicle Department to the new Highway Commission, have been presented in the Senate and may be acted upon by that body this week.

These measures were passed by the House on January 26th and the substitute measures will be returned to that body following their approval in the Senate. After the House acts upon them, they will be sent to the Governor who is expected to veto them and then the battle to pass these measures over the Governor's veto will get underway.

The Joint Legislative Budget Committee continues to face an arduous task. While at present they have public hearings on requests for appropriations scheduled up until February 17th, their work will continue much longer than that period.

The Budget Committee is faced with the uncomfortable situation of having more budget requests than there is estimated revenue and the question of where to cut and the amount of cuts to be made, in order to escape the necessity of finding additional revenue through new taxation, will require much deliberation.

COLORED BOYS ARE CHARGED WITH FUR THEFT AT DOVER

Dover police arrested three young colored boys charged with the theft of a quantity of furs, valued at fifty dollars from the storage house of Gross Brothers on Saturday night. Those arrested were Donald Stark, Harold Murray and J. Woodall.

Chief of Police Farr, with Patrolman Moore and Collins, conducted a search on Monday and found the furs hidden under a chicken house at the home of Murray on Queen Street. Magistrate John P. LeFevre held the trio over five hundred dollars bail for court, and in default of bail they were lodged in jail.

Several weeks ago Clark was paroled for a period of three years when he was brought before the court on a charge of stealing a quantity of liquor from the store of Billy Watson, Inc. Murray is serving eighteen months on parole as a result of being implicated in a series of robberies around the railroad station about a year ago. Woodall has no previous police record.

PINBALL AND OTHER GAMES ORDERED JUNKED BY COURT

Resident Judge Charles L. Terry, Jr., in the Court of General Sessions Saturday, granted Deputy Attorney-General William J. Storey an order to destroy a number of gambling devices taken in wholesale raids recently by State police in several places in and near Smyrna. One place raided was in Frederica.

The devices consisted of pin ball games and other games of a gambling nature. Mr. Storey requested the order which was granted.

Charles Carter was sentenced to three months' imprisonment after having pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny of a number of chickens from a farmer near Milford.

Herman Durham was paroled for three years after having pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny of coal was sentenced to four months' imprisonment.

Orban Noble, charged with forgery, was ordered to return to the court on March 4. Judge Terry ordered Noble's plea of guilty to be stricken off.

HI-JACKING

Too much praise cannot be given the Democratic members of the General Assembly in taking the position of refusing to vote for legislation requiring three-fourths majority for its passage.

They are interested in all the citizens of the State of Delaware and believe in any kind of legislation that will make for the best interest of the people of the State. And, believing as they do, are unalterably opposed to any kind of legislation that can in any way be construed as "Hi-Jacking" or "job-grabbing".

In 1936 the Democratic Party was successful in electing a Governor who in turn became a member of the Highway Commission in accordance with an Act passed by the Republican Party during the Administration of ex-Governor Buck. If the legislation was proper then, it remains proper at the present, and the mere fact that a Democratic Governor was elected does not mean that the legislation passed under a Republican regime has, in the twinkling of an eye, become wrong. There is not any more wrong with the legislation now than when it was passed. Proving to an electorate that the Republican members of this Assembly are not interested in legislation but in jobs for themselves.

Why the hurry in passing such vicious legislation? This question is being asked throughout the length and breadth of the State. Why did Mr. Benson, Majority Leader of the House, refuse to have copies of this proposed law printed so as to give the people a chance to know what was being passed. There is only one answer, and that is that they are afraid for the public to know the real nefariousness of the Act.

When a Democratic governor was inaugurated he appointed a Democratic Secretary of State, who, by virtue of legislation enacted under a Democratic administration, became Motor Vehicle Commissioner of the State of Delaware, having charge of issuing titles and registrations for motor vehicles. If the legislation was right when it was adopted and continued to be right while the Republicans were in power, it cannot be so terribly wrong now under a Democratic administration. So, the Republican majority in the Legislature is throwing aside all ideas of legislation for the benefit of the State and are going ahead without allowing the people to know what they are putting through by refusing to have copies of these bills printed so as to enlighten the people. This legislation is being passed solely for the purpose of grabbing a few more jobs for their partisan workers.

The question might arise; why do they want control of that Motor Vehicle Department? Is it because they wish to issue certain drivers licenses without requiring financial responsibility and thus hold over the heads of those so accommodated a bludgeon to keep them in line for their particular party in future campaigns?

The Democratic members of the Legislature know this and are willing to use extreme measures to halt this hi-jacking and job-grabbing in the Legislature. That is the reason the Democratic members of the Legislature will not vote for any appropriation for any cause whatsoever if this legislation, and more of like material, is passed.

They believe in assisting the Fire Companies, the hospitals and others that need appropriations authorized by the Legislature out of the State Treasury. But, if the constituents of the Republican Party in the various communities represented by the Republican members of the Legislature are willing to allow their members to indulge in job-grabbing and political hi-jacking, which we do not believe they will, it will necessitate them going without funds for the next two years.

The Thrift of ABRAHAM LINCOLN

When Abraham Lincoln was a lawyer in Springfield, Illinois, his annual earnings were only $1,500 to $2,000, largely because of his low fees. In one of his letters he writes: "If the case is as stated I will handle the case before the Supreme Court for ten dollars."

Yet Lincoln made regular deposits in a local savings bank over a period of 12 years. He saved one-half of his $25,000 salary as President. He left an estate valued at $110,974.62—equal to $500,000 today.

C. Houston Goudiss Offers Timely Advice on Keeping Children Well in Winter; Warns of Several Dangers

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

ONE of the ways by which her community judges a woman's success as a mother is by the health and well-being of her children. If they are energetic, rosy-cheeked normal boys and girls who have a high resistance to infections, such as the common cold, and if they display the good dispositions that we usually associate with buoyant health, then the verdict of friends and neighbors is usually that of a job well done.

To help her children maintain top health and vitality, a mother must constantly be alert to the various factors that help produce this ideal estate. And at the same time, she must likewise be on guard against the common conditions that may contribute to lowered resistance, especially fatigue and improper diet.

preferable to one too-bulky garment. Feet and hands should, of course, be well protected.

Don't Overheat the House

Only a little less serious are the consequences of dry, overheated indoor air. It is unfortunate that so many people keep their rooms entirely too warm in winter. This not only widens the gap between indoor and outdoor temperatures, but may be extremely irritating to the delicate membranes of the nose and throat. Most authorities consider an indoor temperature of about 68 degrees Fahrenheit satisfactory.

Is Your Child Lazy?

We often hear mothers complain that their children are lazy in cold weather. . . and they seem to have less pep and energy than in other seasons. If by that they mean that their children are less active, it may be that this can be attributed in part to the bleak, shorter days that do not always invite outdoor play. But sometimes a child displays such a reduction in his activities as to appear indolent. Then the mother must seek the physical or emotional factors that may be responsible. For true laziness suggests a body that is not functioning normally.

Quite possibly the child's diet is not meeting his bodily requirements. An undernourished child usually tires easily and is disinclined to exert himself. The food may be adequate as to quantity, but not as to quality. For example, a diet that is too highly concentrated, contains too little bulk or cellulose, may cause a tendency to faulty elimination. This, in turn, is frequently responsible for lassitude. The remedy is often a simple dietary change—the addition of a salad to the daily diet; or possibly the use of stewed dried fruits in addition to a fresh fruit or fruit juice daily. Of course, the child should also have two servings of vegetables besides potatoes, one of which should be of the green leafy variety. Also a quart of milk daily; breads and cereals, at least half of which may preferably be the whole grain variety; an egg daily or at least three or four weekly; one serving of meat, fish or chicken, and another serving of a protein food, such as cheese. Some form of vitamin D should be included in the diet of young children, especially during the winter months.

It is also most important that children follow a daily routine that includes plenty of time for sleep. And for younger children a daytime nap is usually advised.

Children Need Healthy Mothers

Mothers must give attention to the children's health. But let them give some consideration to their own. The tired, nervous mother is very apt to transfer some of her own fatigue and nervousness to her child. So in arranging your child's rest periods and diet, in looking after proper habits of elimination, make sure that Mother, too. . . and better still every member of the family. . . follows this same sound health program.

Questions Answered

Miss B. W. J.—As a rule, no special consideration need be given to the amount of sulphur in the diet. That is because sulphur in food is found almost entirely in the form of protein, and in a well-balanced diet which supplies sufficient protein, the requirements for sulphur will be adequately met.

Winter Hazards

It has been said that in winter the body is on trial—and this is as true of children as of adults. Extremes of temperature require adjustments on the part of the body, and in most parts of the country, children are called upon constantly to switch their environment from a house which is all too frequently overheated to an outdoor temperature that may be below freezing.

While cool, outdoor air is stimulating to children in normal health, some children withstand it much less successfully. This is particularly true of those who are improperly nourished; who are over-fatigued or suffer from poor circulation.

When it is very cold outdoors, it is wise to have children come in from their play periodically to warm up. And if a child appears to suffer from the cold unduly, it is wise to have a physician check up on his health.

Guard Against Frostbite

Over-exposure must be avoided, particularly in cold, damp weather. For under these conditions, doctors warn, there is always a danger of frostbite. They say that whenever the temperature falls below 3 degrees Fahrenheit, children should not be permitted to play outdoors. If they do, the cold may act upon the tissues so that part of the body is deprived of its blood supply. This is most likely to occur in the fingers, toes, nose or ears which thereupon become frozen. The combination of wind and low temperature is especially dangerous and frostbite frequently occurs at temperatures up to 14 degrees Fahrenheit when there is a strong wind.

Mothers should be on guard against frostbite when the temperature is below 24 degrees Fahrenheit, however, and at all times during the winter, see that children are warmly clad. This need not mean that they are so bundled up as to preclude the possibility of active play. Suitable clothing consists of garments which provide warmth and protection against dampness, without restriction at any point.

Two layers of wool, such as that provided by a woolen sweater and playsuit are considered

To Blanch Nuts.—To remove thin brown skin covering from nut meats, cover the meats with boiling water and let them stand.

Baking Apples.—Apples should be slit with a sharp knife in three or four places before baking, so that the skins do not wrinkle up while in the oven.

When Washing Glass.—A little starch added to the water used for washing windows, mirrors and glassware not only helps remove dirt but gives a lasting polish.

Fillings for Baked Apples.—Variety fillings for baked apples might be: brown sugar, jelly, jam, maple sugar, raisins, nuts, figs, prunes, dates, coconut, mince meat or sausage.

A Darning Hint.—When darning silk stockings in a place where the mending does not show, use a fine needle and one strand of silk for darning one way, making sure that every little stitch is caught to prevent laddering. For the other way use two-ply skein wool.

For Baby's Safety.—Never try to carry baby in one arm and some other hard-to-manage article in the other when going down stairs.

The New Frying Pan.—Boil a few potato parings with a little water for a few minutes in the new frying pan. Food cooked afterward in the pan will not be so apt to stick.

Rearranging Furniture.—When rearranging furniture in a room, new ideas may come easier if all the pictures, mirrors, wall hangings, plants, lamps, cushions and other small articles are moved to another room.

THE RIVER of SKULLS by George Marsh

The eyes of Heather shone like sapphires as Alan reached them. She danced around the fire, her wavy golden hair tossing about her head, while her father reached a big hand to grasp Alan's in a fierce grip.

"All aboard for the caribou, Alan, my boy!" roared the giant. "Now shed those worries of yours! We'll soon have meat and skins for clothes, old kill-joy!"

Even the dogs grew excited at the feverish activity at the camp. Everything left behind was cached safely out of reach of wolverines. Then the impatient Napayo and Noel started with rifles and light packs, while John and Alan waited for the aid of the moonlight to make their way with the canoe and the heavy packs up the trail through the spruce and around the gorge.

Rolling away before them reached the white moss hills studied with boggles, Alan handed the binoculars to Heather who focused them on the distant tundra while he held her rifle. As she stood like a statue slowly searching the skyline, his eyes feasted on the tumbled gold of her hair, in its wayward luxuriance, then followed the nape of her strong, round neck to the collar of her patched shirt and the skin coat worn over it.

He reached swiftly and placed his hand over her mouth. "I'm not sad, Heather!" he cried. "I'm glad that I'm here with you—glad you hear that! Do you understand? It's you, Heather! Only you count!"

"Why do you still carry her picture?" "It went into the fire, long ago. It's you, Heather! I've been carrying in my heart!" He impulsively reached to take her in his arms, but she stepped away from him.

"She shivered as if suddenly cold. "It's only because I'm here, with you, Alan. You're lonely—you only think you've forgotten her. If we live—get out of this terrible country, you'd be sorry, if I believed what you say now. No, it's because you're lonely. You'd only be sorry!"

He smiled as his gray eyes met hers. "You mean everything to me! Everything! Getting out with the gold means little to me, now! It's bringing you out, safely, that counts."

Without answering, she started back over the caribou path toward the river. Her moccasined feet seemed uncertain to the man who followed. Hour after hour, the two men slaved at the poles, pushing the canoe up against the hard running water. Heather was somewhere behind with the dogs when they turned a bend where the river broadened into a long reach of quiet water and Alan shouted, "Look ahead there! We've struck them, John! We've got our meat and clothes, now."

Above them, splashing the water in all directions, four caribou plunged into the stream and started to cross. Antlered heads, backs, white rumps and tails out of water, the frightened deer drove across the current as if propelled by engines. Seizing his rifle, Alan dropped to a knee, while McCord steadied the boat with his pole, and fired as the deer reached the shallows. Again, as they left the water in a wild panic, he fired and two bucks wavered, stumbled and, reaching the beach, fell.

"Red meat for supper!" cried McCord. "That's good shooting, boy! From this distance in a canoe, good shooting!"

"We've struck them, now!" answered Alan. "There go two more above! We'd better camp here and wire up the dogs, John. Noel has probably got plenty of deer above here and the dogs might turn the deer to the west. They'll be coming for days!"

That night Noel and Napayo appeared at the camp. It was only the vanguard of the migration, the Naskapi told them. The big herd had not reached the river. It would be crossing for days and they could select the fittest for meat and the best fawns and yearlings for clothing as they passed. He and Noel had already shot, dressed and skinned a number from the scattering bands and placed them in a cache upstream.

While the rest of the hungry hunters revelled in deer chops, Noel and the Naskapi roasted the head and tongue, the best part of the animal in the opinion of the Indians.

The following day in small bands the migrating caribou continued to cross the river headed for the protected valleys and wooded country far to the south. Stationed along the river shore at the well beaten paths leading down from the tundra, the hunters chose their deer, avoiding the old bulls whose white manes and great antlers distinguished them from the younger animals. By night they had enough chocolate-and-white fawn skins for their winter clothing and sufficient meat to be cured and brought back to the camp. But Alan and John were anxious to see the main herd which Napayo assured them was following these scattered bands—a compact mass of literally hundreds of thousands of traveling caribou, larger than the mythical buffalo herds that once roamed the western plains. So, leaving the Indians McCord, Alan and Heather went back to the barrens.

As they left the scrub of the valley and came out on the open tundra above, to gaze over the rolling moss-covered plain reaching away mile after mile to dim hills on the horizon, McCord gasped.

"Look at those deer!" In every direction bands of caribou dotted the white moss tundra, always moving into the light breeze that blew from the west. On the skyline of an adjacent rise were standing enjoying the breeze that gave them relief from the pest of flies. Everywhere the amazed eyes of the three hunters gazed they met moving groups of deer. Does with their parti-colored fawns, yearlings, old stags, all moving up-wind as is their invariable habit.

The three traveled on farther

"There go two more above!"

from the river watching the moving deer when suddenly, out of a little valley, rushed a band with their peculiar, high knee-actioned trot, snorting and grunting as they came.

"Hear the click of their hoofs, Heather?" cried Alan. "They always make it when they travel."

"But, don't they see us? Why, they're going to run right over us!" exclaimed the excited girl, as the band of deer approached.

The two men smiled at the girl's apprehension. "Watch them when they get our scent. You'll see some antics!" replied Alan.

Suddenly, as the band of approaching deer, whose eyesight is poor, crossed the scent of the hunters, they recoiled as if by word of command. Several young bucks rose on their hind legs and pranced back and forth, snorting loudly. The band scattered and retreated, then bunched again, and, led by a cow, finally charged across the tainted air that so frightened them, and were off over the tundra.

"Hear their hoofs click, Heather?" "I should say so! But aren't they beautiful creatures! It's a pity to shoot them, Alan!"

"Yes, but without them the Indians would starve and freeze. And so would we, this fall!"

The two men and the girl watched the scattered groups of deer heading for the river crossings. Then, in the afternoon, the van of the great herd appeared. As far as they could see with the glasses marched the battalions and regiments of the army of caribou, on their annual journey from the vast highlands west of Ungava Bay to the sheltered valleys of the south—one of the zoological phenomena of the world.

For hours the absorbed McCord, Alan and Heather watched the marching thousands, like great herds of cattle; bulls, cows and fawns, all moving into the breeze. Over them hovered circling ravens and a golden eagle hung high in the sky. On a hilltop off the flanks of the main herd, Alan's glasses revealed for a space the slinking shapes of a family of white wolves watching for a straggling fawn or yearling.

For, like ghosts, the wolves follow the migration south and, again north, in the spring. And nearer, from the graveled summit of a ridge, two shaggy animals with long bodies and bear-like heads, a pair of wolverines, the most hated beast in the north, viewed the spectacle.

Then for days the hunters toiled at the camp on the river, preparing for clothing as they passed. He and Noel had already shot, dressed and skinned a number from the scattering bands and placed them in a cache upstream. While the rest of the hungry hunters revelled in deer chops, Noel and the Naskapi roasted the head and

CHAPTER XIV

It was deep in September and each morning, now, a film of ice reached out from the shores of the bars where John and Alan still worked with sluice and shovel and pan while the others were busy sewing hooded coats, breeches and leggings, sleeping-bags and smoke-tanned moccasins for use on the snow; pounding pemmican and storing it in bags, and stringing the bows of snowshoes with rawhide. The narrow, ten-foot toboggan sled with its wrapper of deer skin and the dog-harness, hung in a tree waiting for the long trail up the Kokoak with its load of 20-pound bags of yellow dust and nuggets and still more precious food for man and dog. Before the water grew too cold and silt ice stopped them, John and Alan worked on the eddies in the gorge and filled two more skin bags with large nuggets and flake gold.

Flurries of snow, now, frequently filled the frosty air. The last of the geese and swan had passed south-west. The "Moons of the Long Snows" had again come to the land of the Naskapi.

Late in September, when light snow blanketed the barrens, Napayo again went on a mission up the Kokoak to look for signs of McQueen or the Naskapi. Fear of an ambush of the dog team on the river ice, later, was constantly with them. A week passed and the Indian did not return. Another week, and each night around the fire in the spruce, the faces of the waiting men and girl grew more grave, for the boy had won his way to their hearts.

"If Napayo does not show by tomorrow," said Alan, "Noel and I'll take the dogs straight over the barren to the Kokoak and follow it up a day or two. The snow is begin-

"The Iron Serpent"

HELLO EVERYBODY: Well sir, we've had two or three yarns in this column about strong men who have been in danger of being crushed to death by huge snakes twenty or thirty feet long, but Jim Evvard of Brooklyn, N. Y., went up against the great-granddaddy of all the reptiles. Jim's snake was three hundred and sixty feet long. It was made of solid steel links ten and a half inches long and five inches wide. It was the great anchor chain of an ocean-going steamer—and when you get one of those babies wrapped around your neck, they're worse than any python or boa constrictor that ever lived.

It was on February 5, 1918, on the army cargo transport U. S. S. Hatteras that it happened. Jim Evvard had joined the navy as a radio operator in 1917, and here he was on the Hatteras, somewhere out in the Atlantic ocean.

The Hatteras had sailed a week or so before, from Hampton Roads, Va. A few days out of port she had run into a bad storm that had wrecked her steering gear and left her wallowing helplessly in mid-ocean. The captain had dropped both of the ship's three-ton anchors. They helped very little—but that's beside the point. The point is that those anchors were down. If they hadn't been, Jim would have had no adventure. He'd have won no ten-dollar bill. And we'd have had no story.

When Morning Came the Storm Subsided.

Once the anchors were down, they had to stay down until the storm was over. While the gale was raging, the ship pitched and rolled so violently that it would have been dangerous to try to pull them up. But on the morning that the storm subsided, the crew rigged an emergency gear and began to hoist them aboard.

To our horror the chain was running wild.

That's where Jim Evvard comes into the story. Jim was a radio operator, but in a pinch, aboard ship, everybody turns to and lends a hand. And Jim was sent down into the chain lockers with a lad named Piercy and another lad named White, to lay anchor chain.

I guess that sort of calls for a word of explanation. The chain lockers on the Hatteras were a couple of rooms eight feet square, just below deck, up at the bow of the ship. They were used, of course, to stow the anchor chains in while they were not in use. Up on the deck, a big winch was hauling in the starboard anchor, and as the chain came in, it was passed through a hole in the deck, down into the chain locker.

Well, sir, if that chain were just allowed to lie in the locker any way it landed, it would tangle and smother next time the anchor was dropped. It had to be laid in a neat coil as it came down, and that's what Jim, and Piercy, and White were doing down there that fateful February day that Old Lady Adventure had picked out to give three sailors the scare of their lives.

A Choppy Sea Made Footing Insecure.

By that time, all three of them were pretty tired. The chain, with its big ten and a half inch links, was heavy. The sea was still choppy, making their footing none too sure. But they worked away at the port chain until the coil rose high in the locker. Finally the chain stopped coming in. They could tell by the size of their coil that the anchor was up and out of the water and ready to be heaved on deck.

The three lads had stopped work, and leaning, each in a different corner of the cramped locker, bracing themselves against the pitching and tossing of the ship.

"We were waiting for orders to go back up on deck," says Jim, "but the order was slow in coming. Imagine our surprise when we saw the anchor chain begin to pay out again. It moved slowly at first, and then quite rapidly. After several seconds of watching it increased its speed, we realized to our horror that the chain was running wild!"

And those lads had good reason to be horrified. Great loops of heavy chain began whipping in long swings, striking the sides of the locker. Faster and faster it went, wider and wider were the loops that lashed out on all sides.

"It was swinging with terrific force," says Jim. "If it hit us, it would break our bones like cardboard, or crush our skulls as if they were egg shells. And there we stood, not daring to move out of our corners—wondering when the flying mesh of steel was going to whip in after us—wondering when a chance lurch of the ship was going to throw us off balance out into the path of that whirling mass of metal.

The Noise of the Links Was Like a Death Knell.

"The din was terrific. Our prison was small, and we could feel the wind on our faces as the chain fell. In wider and wider arcs it swung. The links, as they hit the walls, sounded like the beats of a death knell to all of us. I wanted to faint, but I didn't dare. Powerless to do anything at all, I kept my mind on the one thing that might save me—standing right where I was in the scant protection of the corner of the room afforded me."

Loop after loop whipped its way around the little locker and spun on up through the hole in the top. Only a few more of those loops to go now. Then they'd all be safe. Jim watched those last few loops go, and breathed a prayer of thanksgiving. They WERE safe. Over in their own corners stood White and Piercy, chalky-faced, but unharmed. Then they called to the officers up on deck, who by that time, doubted if any of them were alive.

The cause of the trouble, they had found, had been Old Man Neptune himself. A roll of the ship had thrown over the anchor chock, and another roll had caused the engineer to slip and throw the anchor winch out of gear.

"The anchor had to be raised again," says Jim, "but we weren't sent down to lay the chain. The next three men had better luck than we did."

Coming of the Punch Bowl

The punch bowl succeeded the bowl of wassail which was the night-ly ritual of the Saxon warriors in early England. It was their custom to drink from a brimming bowl passed from hand to hand with the salutation, "Wes hal" (Your health).

Later the wassail bowl was used at great feasts only: All Saints' day, Twelfth night, and especially at Yuletide, when, filled to the brim, it was passed from the lord at the head of the table to the wandering minstrels at the foot.

Breadfruit Guarded

In Samoa, where the breadfruit is so important, a native would plait some coconut leaflets in the form of a sea-pike and hang one or more such effigies from the trees. No native would dare steal from a tree so guarded, for if he did, a sea-pike would mortally wound him the next time he went fishing.

Montreal Largest Inland Port

Montreal is the largest city in Canada and the largest inland port in the world.

Sixty Days to Make Hat

In Jamaica, British West Indies, it takes about 60 days to produce one native hat. The palm, from which these rakish-looking head-pieces are made, flourishes on Jamaica's north shore. The tree grows wild and in great abundance, is about eight feet tall, and has broad, fan-like leaves. Young leaves, fine in texture and almost white when dried, are selected for the best hats. Cut when green, they are spread out to dry and bleach, as linen is laid in the sun.

Bears Good Fishermen

Bears feed chiefly on small rodents, fruits, berries, bulbous roots, grubs, ants and fish. They are expert fishermen who take up their positions at the side of a rippling mountain stream, spot their prey and swipe it out of the water with their paws.

Warmth Speeds Up Nerves

It has been found that nerve currents are speeded by warmth. Chemicals also affect body electricity.

A Bit of Embroidery For Small Son's Suit

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS "DEAR MRS. SPEARS: Those pages of embroidery stitches in your Book 2 have interested me greatly. I can never remember from time to time how to do even feather stitching. It is ingenious the way you show how to make each kind of stitch, and I turn to your book often. I have a small son now four and a half years old, and have always enjoyed making his clothes and trimming them with little touches of embroidery. Do you think he is too old for this? B. H."

You still have a year or so if you keep the suits smart and boyish. I am sketching an embroidered trimming idea for you here. The thread should match the color of the trousers. Mark an outline for the embroidery with pencil as at A. Work over this with tiny chain stitches as at B; then make larger chain or loop stitches as at C and D.

Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroideries, contains 48 pages of step-by-step directions which have helped thousands of women. If your home is your hobby you will also want Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Order by number, enclosing 25 cents for each book. If you order both, a crazy-quilt leaflet with 36 authentic patchwork stitches will be included free. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

SAFETY TALKS

Rural Traffic Accidents Increase

Traffic accidents in rural districts are mounting by leaps and bounds. Since 1924, the National Safety Council says, rural vehicle fatalities have increased 172 per cent. In cities over 10,000 population they went up but 30 per cent.

Of course, the council points out, a large part of this increase may be the result of much-increased rural travel. But most traffic authorities believe, however, that the more favorable city record can be traced to the more effective traffic control measures in municipalities.

In 1937, the loss of life to traffic accidents in rural districts and cities under 10,000 population was 27,400. In cities over 10,000, there were 12,100 killed.

While collisions with pedestrians constituted the major fatal accident problem in cities, rural districts had their greatest difficulty with collisions between two or more motor vehicles.

So Simple... Yet So Complex!

Few things are simpler than making a telephone call. Yet few things are more complex than making that call possible. For there are some 19,000,000 telephones in this country that can be connected with yours. We never know which one you'll ask for next. Yet we must be ready to make any connection quickly, clearly and accurately.

And we do that 227,000 times a day in Delaware alone! That requires millions of dollars worth of intricate equipment. Plus more than 400 highly-trained people. And careful, experienced management. It requires unending research, standardized manufacture and a high-grade personnel with the spirit of service.

The result is Bell Telephone service—fast... accurate... reliable. Nowhere in the world can you find its equal.

Americans know that it pays to use the telephone. It gets things done in a hurry. It eliminates waste motion and saves money. It gives you pleasant, personal, two-way contact with almost anyone, anywhere. Perhaps you should use your telephone more—for profit and pleasure! The Diamond State Telephone Company.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Sapp attended the funeral of Mrs. L. D. Calk Sr., of Woodside, on Wednesday.

Mrs. Everett Hall was a Milford visitor on Wednesday.

Marian Collins, of Dover, visited Harrington friends on Tuesday.

Edward Derrickson who is ill in the Milford Emergency Hospital is improving.

The Delaware Teacher's Association will hold a meeting at the Harrington High School on Friday, Feb. 17.

Robert Jones is ill at his home here. The Cupid Ice Cream store has closed for the winter.

Jacob Fine, a resident of Harrington for many years, has sold his store here, to Clarence Needham. Mr. Fine, who was forced to sell because of poor health, will soon enter a hospital in order to undergo an operation.

Grover Lord, Fred Lord, City Manager Hopkins and Patrolman Charles Tatman, of the Harrington Police force, attended an ice hockey game in Philadelphia on Wednesday night of this week.

Mrs. Addie Satterfield, a well known resident of Harrington for many years, died on Wednesday evening of this week in the Milford Emergency Hospital, as the result of a fall which occurred at her home on Weiner Avenue. Mrs. Satterfield was for many years connected with practically all civic and social movements for the betterment of this community, as well as being a most ardent church member. Funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at the M. E. Church, Harrington, at 2 o'clock. The body will lie in state at the Harrington Funeral Parlor on Friday evening, and also before the services, which will begin at 2 o'clock. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mary Lazarus, of Philadelphia, Pa., and Mrs. Margaret Schwartz, of Smyrna. The Rev. Green will officiate.

WILL MAIL CARDS TO CAR DRIVERS

Applications for new operators and chauffeurs licenses will be placed in the mails by the Delaware Motor Vehicle Department during the coming week-end in an effort to have all application cards delivered by the beginning of next week.

The department plans to start issuing the new licenses on February 15th and will continue to issue them as long as applications are received.

The present operator's and chauffeur's licenses will expire at midnight on February 28th and every effort will be made by the department to have all new licenses issued, for which applications are received, before the expiration date in order to prevent the necessity of an extension of time for use of the present licenses.

A total of 115,000 applications will be mailed by the department and of this number 79,000 will be for operator's licenses and the remaining 36,000 for chauffeur's licenses. This is the largest number of applications ever handled by the department.

COUNTY COMMITTEE ATTEND CONSERVATION MEETING

For the purpose of discussing plans with reference to a 1938 agricultural conservation program for Delaware, members of the state committee and of the three county committees, along with representatives of the extension service of the University of Delaware, held a conference on Tuesday in the office of W. Fred Rickards, state supervisor of emergency crop and feed loans for the Farm Credit Administration. Kent county was represented at this conference by R. Harry Wilson, H. Clifford Clark and Lawrence E. Cain, members of the county committee, C. Arthur Taylor, president of the state committee, and County Agent Russell E. Wilson.

The objective of the agricultural conservation program was explained by W. G. Finn, director of the East Central Division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, who also outlined the plans for conducting the educational phase of this farm program throughout this section of the United States. In order that all farmers in each county may have the opportunity to become better acquainted with the purposes of this conservation program, the county committee in cooperation with members of the district committees will arrange community educational meetings at which the details of this program will be explained.

In all probability these educational meetings will be supplemented by a series of small group meetings in addition to contacting individual farmers, and in this manner it is planned to place this information before every farmer in the county. Approximately 2,100 farms in Kent county were included in the 1938 agricultural conservation program, and it is expected that a larger number will participate in the program this coming year as numerous inquiries are being received at the county extension office in regard to this farm program.

Members of the county committee and field supervisors in Kent county are making every effort to complete the compliance work in connection with the 1938 program in order to clear the way for starting the 1939 program within the next few weeks.
