A Frontier Paul Revere JAMES WATSON WEBB was the famous editor of the New York Courier and Enquirer who also had a career as a politician and diplomat. But he deserves more honor for a daring exploit which he performed as a young man on the Illinois frontier. The scion of an old New York family, Webb ran away from home at the age of 17 and went to Washington where he persuaded John C. Calhoun, secretary of war, to give him a commission in the

In October, 1821, young Lieutenant Webb was sent to join the garrison at Fort Dearborn. In the middle of the winter John Kinzie, the Indian agent at Chicago, reported to the commander that the Sioux and Foxe Indians were plotting to surprise and massacre the garrison at Fort Snelling the next spring.

Colonel McNeil immediately called for volunteers to carry the news of the plot to Fort Armstrong (near Rock Island, Ill.) so that word could be sent up the river to Fort Snelling. Lieut. Webb offered to make the journey. Accompanied by a sergeant and a Pottawatomie guide, he set out early in February. He intended to go first to the post of a French trader on the Rock river and there secure a Winnebago guide. But when he reached the post he found the Winnebagoes holding war dances. So Webb and the sergeant cautiously circled around the camp and headed toward Fort Armstrong.

The weather was bitterly cold and the two men faced the danger of perishing in the raging blizzard. But in spite of this they reached Fort Armstrong in safety. As a result of their trip, the commander at Fort Snelling so reinforced his post that the Indians did not dare attack and a possible massacre was averted.

A Safety-Minded Adventurer

THE Colorado river was referred to as a "mysterious monster" until Maj. J. W. Powell made the first authentic survey of its canyons in 1869. It lured many daring adventurers to their death both before and after his first expedition.

Strangely enough, Powell was a scholar and not an adventurer by purpose. Even when he made his successful journey down the river, it was his methodical preciseness rather than engineering or navigating ability that brought success.

The Colorado descends an average of more than eight feet each mile and makes this drop by a series of rapids. It rages through canyons with perpendicular walls that often tower several thousand feet.

Powell never ran into anything dangerous when he could avoid it. Being a geologist and not a navigator, he beached his boat and sent men along the cataract walls to reconnoiter the rapids ahead before he attempted to descend them. Powell's methods were so successful that he is one of only a few who ever made expeditions down the Colorado without losing a single life.

He traveled the Colorado from the Green river in Wyoming to Virgin canyon below the Grand canyon, bringing back the first authentic information about that natural wonder.

Although he was a professor of geology at Illinois Wesleyan university and had had no navigating experience before his first venture, he designed boats that became models for Colorado river work.

Major Powell was a paradox-a cautious man whose motto was 'safety first" and yet he was one of America's greatest adventurers.

'King' Strang

IN 1847 James Jesse Strang—and the first two names are in the proper order!-led a colony from Voree, near LaCrosse, Wis., to the Beaver islands just west of Traverse bay in Lower Michigan. There he set up a "kingdom" over which he ruled with an iron hand. He was a picturesque figure with his flaming whiskers almost as red as the kingly robe he wore.

Not only aid he dispense his own cruel brand of justice to the people in his colony but he constantly made war on the Irish fishermen on the mainland and often pillaged their homes. Finally he became so bold that President Fillmore issued a warrant for his arrest on a charge of treason for setting up an independent government within the United States. For some unknown reason he was not found guilty and returned to his "kingdom." But his downfall was not long in coming. He made a law that all women were to wear short skirts with baggy bloomers. When Mrs. Thomas Bedford refused, her husband was flogged for upholding her refusal. This was a fatal mistake. For Bedford and another man who had been flogged at the same time, waylaid their hated monarch and shot him. He was taken back to die of his wounds at Voree and the people of his "kingdom" were driven away from their island by the inhabitants of the Michigan mainland.

C. Houston Goudiss Offers Practical Help in Planning Meals That Avoid Hidden Hunger: Illustrates Right and Wrong Methods of Menu Building

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

A GENERATION ago, homemakers approached the prob-lem of feeding their families with but two objectives: to put weight on their children and to send adults away from the table with their appetites appeased. If the child failed to gain satisfactorily, or if his teeth were crowded and subject to decay, he was said to "take after his Uncle Abner"

Planning Meals Scientifically Today we know that a definite relationship exists between food consumption and bodily activity, and that normal individuals can usually control body weight by regulating the amount of fuel minerals and vitamins play a powerful part in building and mainhealthy nerves; and that we can build resistance to disease, defer old age, and even lengthen the span of life by choosing our food, not merely for its appetite appeal, but for the qualities that contribute toward what nutritionists term a balanced diet.

The Balanced Diet

Every modern homemaker therefore owes it to her family not to plan meals at random, but to factors that science has determined to be essential for top health. There is a series of the device health. These include: protein for building and repairing body tissue; carbohydrates to produce quick heat and energy; fats, a serve a food rich in vitamin C—more compact form of fuel; min-the tomatoes, and add a bulky erals, which serve both as builders, and as regulators of body processes; vitamins A, B, C, D, E and G, which act as regulators, and help to prevent the various deficiency diseases; water, which serves as a vehicle by which food lose or bulk, required for the normal functioning of the intestinal

Since baked beans contain both protein and carbohydrate, we omit potatoes in the third menu, and raw vegetable by way of the salad.

Restoration of the Garden at Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's Home, Will Begin This Spring

Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson, third President of the United States.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

@ Western Newspaper Union. THERE'S a new "restoration" program on in Virginia. This time it is not an entire town, as was done at Williamsburg, historic Colonial capital, nor a building, as was the case of the law office of James Monroe at Fredericksburg, but it is none the less interesting for it is to be done at one of the great patriotic shrines of America — Monticello, near Charlottesville, the home of Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence and third President of the United States.

The restoration at Monticello is that of Jefferson's garden which long since disappeared and it will be made possible through the recurrence of Garden week in Virginia, when more than a hundred famous estates, most of which are privately owned, are opened to the public by their owners.

The week of April 24 has been set aside for this event, which is held under the auspices of the Garden Club of Virginia, the organization that is sponsoring the restoration of the Monticello garden. Each year thousands of garden lovers from every part of America flock to Virginia for the garden week event, when the Colonial gardens not open to the public at any other time are shown by their owners. A small fee is collected and this money goes to the restoration fund of the Garden club.

The plan to restore Jefferson's garden at Monticello came about in this way: Fiske Kimball, authority on early American architecture, unearthed the original Jefferson drawings, now preserved in the Coolidge collection at the Massachusetts Historical society, while serving on the restoration committee of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation, owners of Monticello. Over a long period of years the committee, consisting of Dr. Edwin M. Betts, professor of botany at the University of Virginia, and considered the foremost authority on Thomas Jefferson as a botanist; Milton L. Grigg, Charlottesville architect; R. T. Halsey of the Metropolitan museum, New York, and Dr. Charles Moore of the Fine Arts commission of Washington have been aiding Mr. Kimball put together the information essential for the restoration.

Due to the meticulous notes and drawings of every detail of Jefferson's full life and its work, unearthed by various researchers and fitted into the restoration pattern, the committee announced recently that it is now prepared to embark on "the most faithfully accurate restoration possible in America.

Drawings for the garden restoration and the research still essential is being carried on by Grigg & Johnson, Charlottesville architects. Execution of the work is to be under the direction of Mrs. Allen Perkins of Charlottesville, former president of the Garden Club of Virginia, and Mrs. Delos Kidder.

The restored Jefferson garden will include some three acres known to the committee as the east garden and will include replacement of all the trees known during Jefferson's lifetime.

Plans call for long elliptical paths, bordered with plantings of native wild flowers and evergreens, because Jefferson was interested in determining the decorative possibilities of using wild materials which he considered more beautiful than formal arrangements usually found in the pretentious gardens of Virginia.

One of the most interesting features of the restoration will be the replacement of the two fish ponds, small oval pools, the size of which Jefferson carefully computed on the basis of the average annual rainfall and the amount of water which this would yield to keep his fish in fresh water.

In carrying out the research it was found that Jefferson wrote in praise of the splendid ideas for garden development in a now rare volume published by Thomas Whatly in London in 1777. A copy of this volume was secured and it was found that the garden as executed at Monticello was described in almost minute detail, the description apparently influencing Jefferson so favorably that he adopted most of Whatly's recommendations for what was considered the ideal garden.

A Herd of Pigs 'Saw America First' When They 'Toured' With De Soto 400 Years Ago

Four hundred years ago this year a herd of pigs went on a "See America First" tour. Unlike later tourists who go because they want to, these early "tourists" went because they had to. They were driven and they probably went none too willingly. Be that as it may, the record of their cross-country journey from the Everglades in Florida to the Ozarks in Arkansas, through a thousand wild and hostile miles of forest, prairie, mountain, flood, swamp, snow and summer heat, is one of the most amazing in American history.

In 1539 Hernando De Soto, who had been made governor of Cuba so that he might use that island as a base of operations in conquering and colonizing Florida, arrived in Tampa bay with nine vessels. On board were 600-odd soldiers, 350 horses and 13 hogs, the latter being for the use of the colonists he planned to establish on the Florida peninsula or Heading northward from the bay, De Soto's expedition marched slowly onward in an amazing arc of zigzags which resulted in its touching at least seven and perhaps 11 of our present southern states, traversing mountains and the great Mississippi river, before the weary survivors, riding in boats of their own wilderness manufacture, and clad principally in the skins of wild animals, were finally to reach safety in Mexico four years later.

An Amazing Sight. At the start of the expedition in Florida and Georgia, apparently on into both the Carolinas, and seemingly over the mountains to somewhere near Chattanooga, the moving column must have been an amazing sight. First came the armored cavalry in its glittering splendor; behind limped the infantry, sore alike from battles and blisters; while somewhere between or around the two scampered a squealing, reluctant treasure of pork-the rapidly multiplying herd of hogs —and its herders. And from the hilltops and forests along the way peered savage eyes that had never before beheld horses, or pigs, or firearms, or white skins, and that sometimes visioned the rider and his horse together as a single shining animal.

Sometimes the party was well fed by friendly or frightened Indians; sometimes it was halfstarved - one such occasion. seemingly somewhere in Georgia, finally compelling apparently the first dressing and serving of pork in the present continental area of the United States (1540). Even then, however, each man was allowed only half a pound of meat per day, to sustain him until more grain, nuts, or roots were found: for in general the rapidly growing reserve of pork was still being saved, "with infinite labor,"

Alabama; then northwestward across the state of Mississippi. In each of these sections a desperate battle was fought with the red men, whose teeming straw village the Spaniards set afire in each case (winter of 1540-41); but in the end the invaders lost in the flames not only a collection of pearls, the only riches so far obtainable, but also most of their ammunition, saddles, and clothing, and many horses, and all but 100 of the hogs (the herd had recently numbered 500).

After a 30-day delay for building boats to cross the Mississippi, the expedition began a year of wandering in Arkansas (perhaps entering Missouri and Oklahoma, too), finally returning to the banks of the Mississippi with the plan of building ships to return to Cuba for reinforcements. Here De Soto died, however (May, 1542; three years after the landing at Tampa); and the hog herd, now increased to 700, was auctioned off among his men, who thus ate pork much more often, but started observing religious mer was, therefore, spent in a westward trek which apparently reached halfway across northern Texas. But the approach of autumn on the seemingly limitless Texas plains sent them trudging back to the Mississippi to begin building ships. They used the shawls of the Indian women for sails, and turned into spikes and anchors their firearms, their captives' chains, and such bits and stirrups as remained. The remaining hogs and most of the surviving horses were turned into meat for the voyage.

After a desperate 16-day battle with hostile river Indians in their much swifter canoes, and after six weeks of feeling their way around the Texas coast, 311

From the many attempts on that piece of gingham, two flower groups had almost as much life and charm as the modern Mary Ann, age nine. These were neatly framed and lend a gay note at each side of an old mirror.

NOTE: Book 1, Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, gives full instructions for ninety embroidery stitches with many sketches showing ways to use them. You and your children may have happy hours with this fascinating hand work. Book 1, SEWING, for the Home Decorator, contains 48 complete lessons for making slipcovers, draperies, bedspreads and many other things for the house. Books are 25 cents each. If you order both books, crazypatch leaflet, reviving interest in this oldtime hand craft, is included FREE. Address, Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Jefferson Wrote First Guide Book to Europe

Hitherto unknown letters of Thomas Jefferson, written while he was American ambassador to France, were acquired a few years ago by the Library of Congress.

The Jefferson letters show the author of the Declaration of Independence in a new role—that of a Puritan disgusted with the manners and morals of the upper and longing for the more moral atmosphere of America. They were written to Thomas Lee Shippen, who was planning to attend college somewhere in Europe. Despite Jefferson's distaste for European morals, he took the trouble to write out for young Shippen a "guide book"—perhaps rates of the taverns, and the temper of the people.

the new Jefferson letters was the one in which he advised American young men to stay in America for their education since they could get a better one here than in

He enjoyed society, but he did not relish the intrusion of idle, curious fellow countrymen who came to stare and finger. Capt. Edmund Baker, for 20 years Jefferson's overseer and man of business, said that Jefferson's visitors "ate him out of house and home."

LILLIES OF PEACE

AN EASTER VACATION

The bare fields of January give no outward hint of the stirring life beneath. Yet, Natures million fingers are even then working busily on the white garments of Easter lilies.

So does Faith spring ever anew in the soul of man; its white flowers survive and bloom even on the volcano's edge, defying the rumbles of war and desolation

On this Easter the Christian world again affirms its faith in the divine destiny of man, and in the final triumph of right over wrong, of life over death

Regardless of Price the Same

Personalized Service

Every year we conduct funerals in every price range—funerals for those in the most moderate circumstances and for people of wealth. But in every instance the same expert care, the same thoughtful attention to detail, characterizes each service. The only difference lies in the selection of the merchandise.

The family alone decides what shall be the cost of the funeral.

This is not, however, to hint that the undersecretary is any-thing less than 100 per cent American. He was born in New York City 46 years or so ago. President Roosevelt's own Groton and Harvard shaped him, and he is at home in four or five clubs that insist on looking up candidates in the Doomsday book of the Revolution of '76. Frank J. Taylor, president of the American Merchant marine, returns from the canal to New York with the same idea. He says congress should spend $300,000,000 to widen the canal for both commercial and national defense reasons. Mr. Taylor's career is Brooklyn's favorite "boy who made good" story—from $1 a day to $35,000 a year, which is the possibly vulgar epitome of such careers in this day and age.

He was an orphan lad in a Manhattan slum, at work at 12 as an apprentice at Robbins dry dock in the Red Hook section of Brooklyn. He rose in politics, in the state assembly for 12 terms, sheriff, commissioner of records, welfare commissioner and comptroller of New York City.

Retiring from the last office in 1937, he went to Florida, but the steamship owners tracked him down and burdened him with this $35,000 job. He fights government intrusion on private enterprise, but says the shipping interests will co-operate effectively with the United States maritime commission.

Defense

On January 1, 1936, Japan scrapped her 5-5-3 naval treaty with the U. S. and Britain. Subsequently an arms race started on both land and sea, precipitated each time Der Fuehrer or Il Duce made an aggressive step. In the U. S., even loud-mouthed congressmen were loathe to think of defense in terms of actual invasion until self-righteous Germany swiped Czecho-Slovakia and Memel. Two weeks later congress got down to talking cases passing an unprecedented $513,188, 000 army appropriations bill in jig time after war talk like this in the Admitting Japan's secret naval program was one reason, President Roosevelt approved two 45,000-ton super super-battleships to cost $95,000,000 each, bigger than any vet conceived and capable of squeezing through the Panama canal with two feet to spare on either side. One good reason: By showing that the U.S. is able to out-arm any other nation, Japan might be forced back into a limitation treaty.

Present U. S. strength includes 15 capital ships (one nearing obsolescence) ranging from 27,000 to 33,000 tons. Six more are authorized. Britain has 15 capital ships in the same category, plus the 42,-000-ton Hood and nine other boats underway. Last Japanese report (in 1936) showed 10 capital ships, none over 33,000 tons, and three under construction. Vague rumors since then indicate about five new super dreadnaughts of excessive tonnage. Treaty or not, both Britain and the U.S. feel obligated to maintain a 5-5-3 ratio even though the world's third largest sea power sets the pace.

Though the house approved an $816,513,000 agriculture appropriations bill ($499,500,000 of which is for soil conservation benefit payments) the measure was far more significant for two exclusions: (1) Parity. Not included in the

Find Joker in Department of Agriculture Appropriation Bill

It's the Soon-to-Be-Famous Food Stamps and Here's How Advanced Thinkers Think It Will Work; Billion Dollars Is All They Want.

about the drain upon the federal treasury resulting from department of agriculture operations. The totals were questioned; many persons wondered whether the politicians were justified in voting that much money to the department because there was little to show in the way of results. That is, congressmen could show very little except the packages of seeds sent out to their

It was in those days, however, that the department of agriculture was seeking to operate effectively. Farming was not regarded by the folks who used to run the department as a subject for politics. The departmental officials were going about their business, rendering assistance in the form of advice and promoting better farming—when the farmers asked for it. I was reminded of those days recently when the house appropriations committee brought out for consideration the appropriations bill for the department of agriculture for the fiscal year that begins next July 1. A Rip Van Winkle who could have slept through the last 10 years | See Possibility of Creating would have believed, truly, that he was in another world. The new money bill for the department contains a total of more than $1,000,-000,000. The measure, indeed, ranks as the third largest appropriations bill of this year when altogether there is likely to be almost $10,000,-000,000 appropriated.

There were some other odds and ends embracing items of 20 or 40 or 90 thousand dollars, amounts so small that men almost smirk because they have forgotten how to speak in such limited numbers. Then, and here is the joker which is hidden away. I really should not say "hidden" because no reference is made in the agriculture bill language. The joker is that there are almost countless millions of other dollars with which the department can play around, including approximately $100,000,000 of money for use in getting rid of farm surpluses. That is the money from which Secretary Wallace and his advanced thinkers will draw funds for the soon-to-be-famous food stamps.

The country got its belly full of blue eagles before the NRA was plowed under. But the undistinguished, yet befitting, end that came to the NRA blue eagle has tions commissioner. processors and packers of farm How Wallace's Men Think Blue Food Stamp Will Work

I must write a little bit about that blue food stamp, about how the advanced thinkers think it will work, before I report on the main department of agriculture appropriation

It seems to be Secretary Wallace's idea of a more abundant life to designate certain farm products each week as being "surplus" and to help get them off of the glutted market by making them available for relief workers' kitchens. The first trial of the scheme will be limited to six cities. In those areas, the relief supervisors will be supplied with books of blue stamps. They are rather pretty stamps, too. Each WPA worker will get a book of stamps of a specified value. He can take those stamps to his gro-

There ey for them. Thus will the surplus was some talk even in those days | stocks of food products be reduced and the remainder will bring better prices. Or so say the advanced thinkers.

When I read the explanation of the program that was sent me by one of Mr. Wallace's publicity staff, the first thing that struck me was the extreme discrimination that will result. It is easy to see. Take any man who is trying to hold down a private job. It may be paying him only $50 a month, or about the same as the relief worker gets. Naturally, he would like to be making more money. Who wouldn't? But he sticks on his job and stays off of relief. Then, when he gets paid he goes to the grocery store to buy some food. He pays cash, and gets his food.

About the same moment a relief worker walks in, orders the same list of groceries, perhaps, and pays for them out of a stamp book. It appears to me that the hard bitten private worker is going to find little solace in remaining on his job. It strikes me he-and millions of others-are going to be resentful of

A Lot of Bootleggers

There is another phase of the picture which was mentioned to me by Representative Hope of Kansas, one of the ranking members of the house committee on agriculture. He suggested that the blue stamps are going to create a lot of bootleggers. For example: the relief workers are not permitted to buy liquor with the stamps. They won't be redeemed if they are used to buy anything but food. However, Mr. Hope could see no reason why a relief worker couldn't use the stamps to buy liquor from a liquor store and the liquor store owner might possibly be a crook. It is possible, you know. He might own a food store, too, or he might have an understanding with a food store owner who would take the stamps at a few pennies discount. What is to stop such procedure? It's your guess.

The whole thing strikes me as being so silly as to defy one's powers of imagination. It is dealt with here at such length only because I regard it as typical of a great many things that are going on within the department of agriculture for which more than $1,000,000,000 is soon to be appropriated for a year's opera-The blue stamp scheme is destined to fail, even as the plowing under of crops and the slaughtering of 6,000,000 pigs was doomed a-bornin' and as the limitation of crop production was certain to flare back on those who were sucked into

It seems probable that the country ought to rebuild the wild life stocks that have been wantonly destroyed in the days when people could go out and shoot ducks or deer or what have you without thought of the morrow. It is a program for which considerable justi-

But it is to be noted that most of these items are small. Neither the department of agriculture administration nor the members of the house and the senate have seen fit to do more than maintain them. I have seen the inmates of the capitol squirm and fuss and scowl about some of them, while swallowing the items reaching into hundreds of millions with the greatest of glee.

As I said, it was not so long ago that department of agriculture appropriations were regarded as huge if they totalled 40 millions. As far as I can see, agriculture is no better off today than it was in those years. Of course, a very great number of farmers have learned that the beautiful phrases like "the more abundant life" and such, are meaningless. But I venture the assertion that the education has been rather expensive.

From all of these things it is surely made to appear that there are some large Ethiopian gentlemen in the wood pile. When the politicians and the advanced thinkers joined hands to manage agriculture, just then federal expenses for the department of agriculture began zooming upward.

AUTHOR OF 'IT HAPPENED ONE NIGHT'

SYNOPSIS

Kelsey Hare, young architect convalescing from a breakdown, meets Martin Holmes, struggling author, in a storm on a lake near Moldavia; N. Y. Caught in a downpour they seek shelter at Holmes' estate, "Holmesholm," which by its air of decay gives evidence of its owner's financial embarrassment. Kelsey suggests renting a room and settles down there. Finding Holmes studying a newspaper picture of a Park avenue debutante, Kelsey learns that a story by Holmes has been rejected in a $15,000 contest run by Purity Pictures, A. Leon Snydacker, president, for a novel suitable for picturization, in which the winner of a Mystery Beauty contest will star. Kelsey buys the manuscript from Holmes and rents his house. One of the conditions of the deal is that Kelsey adopt Holmes' pen name, "Templeton Sayles." After Holmes departs on a trip, a telegram arrives for Sayles which Kelsey leaves unopened. Glunk, odd man servant, places the debutante's picture on the mantel. The Park Avenue Van Strattens, at breakfast with their niece Marion, are horrified to find her picture in the paper as one of ten remaining contestants for the Purity Pictures award, and learn that Liggett Morse, admirer, has entered Marion's picture on a bet. She is threatened with being taken abroad until the "scandal" dies down, and decides adventurously to go through with the contest. lown, and decides adventurously to go hrough with the contest.

"Am I late?" she inquired perfunctorily. "Only an hour," said a sweet little voice. "Cool as a hog on ice," grumpily commented somebody.

A rounded young thing rose and slouched across the room. She was a little fluffy, a little flashy, a little untidy, and distinctly beautiful. She appraised the newcomer with sleepy eyes in the depths of which were golden gleams.

"Hello, kid."

"Hello," with a smile. On the end wall ten photographs were set in a large frame. The golden girl examined them. "You're 3245—D," she identified. "What's the name?"

"Marion Van Stratten." "Pretty good name. Goes with your type. "I'm glad you think so," smiled its owner. "It's the only one I've got." She liked the candid, steady look of the other girl and the quirk at the corner of her mouth. "Oh? I thought it might be a monaker. Mine's Gloria Glamour. English fashion, with a u." A worried-looking man popped in and said hurriedly: "Ladies, report back at 2 p. m. Mr. Snydacker is detained in conference." "But my notice said eleven o'clock," protested Marne to the retiring and unhearing official rear. All the rest maintained the glum silence of pessimism. "You got here at noon," pointed out Miss Glamour. "Where do you have a kick coming? Not used to waiting for 'em, huh? Make 'em wait for you. Swell, if you can get away with it. Let's eat." Marne assented, and followed her companion to a near-by restaurant where a number of people stared at them. Until the luncheon was over, her opposite merely chattered. At the end, she leaned across the "What'll you take to bow off,

"Bow off?"

"No-o-o. I don't know that I exactly need it." "Well, I do. To keep ahead of the sheriff. This has been a bum season for the beauty business and I'm a beauty girl." "Yes; I can see that."

"What I mean is, beauty contests are my line. But this is the biggest thing I ever tackled, and a win would put me where I want to be. Only I won't win."

'Why not?" "Because you will."

"But it's too absurd," cried the other. "Look at those girls in there. What possible show would I have—" "You got this far, didn't you?"

"On my photograph. And that was an accident.' "Mebbe. Now lissen, kid. Until you busted into the game I figured myself a right smart bet. This field

"I thought they were lovely. Of course, you're lovely, too," Marne hastily amended.

"Mebbe," allowed the other dispiritedly. "But you got something none of the rest of us has got. That's what's going to count. You got class. I've heard about this bird, Snydacker. He's a sucker for class. Class'll smack him down every time. He'll spot you the length of the room. You wait and see. But I wish I could figure out which way the wheels go 'round in that nut-

In the time which it took him to smoke two cigarettes he had compiled a satisfactory, even a brilliant social record for his subject, which lost nothing by being largely a work of the imagination. Mr. Snydacker read it with approval. Back in the human exhibit room there was another period of waiting, this time forty minutes beyond the appointed hour, after which another worried official peered in, said, "All here?" and vanished. "Ready, ladies," intoned a voice. Every one stood up as the great man entered picture expert, I'm a Bulgarian garage collector.' He rounded out the character sketch of his employer. A. Leon was thirty-five years old, when he was lifted out of the routine of being something obscure in the mixing department of the Persuader factory by the unexpected windfall of Uncle Peckett's fortune. The effect of the millions was to inspire in him a lofty if not wholly logical opinion of himself as a man of large affairs. He aspired to be glorified as an industrial leader, and also to shine socially, and to his innocent soul the motion picture business seemed to combine these opportunities. So he bought a moribund minor company, renamed it, and with the sublime courage of complete ignorance, made himself producer-president. Three constant principles motivated the start of his career: speed, sensation, and publicity, and the greatest of these was publicity. His mental processes were rapid, violent, and beyond all human calculation. One of his few practical moves was to pick up Moby Dickstein, ex-camera-man, ex-director, and ex-general-utility man, and endow him with the title of Personal Assistant to the President in charge "You got me. Do you need this of Press Functions and Publicity.

"Gotta get back to the Big Boy," said he, setting down his empty glass and yawning. "See you later,

In his luxurious sanctum A. Leon Snydacker awoke from the conference which he always took just after a heavy luncheon, rose, stretched, wriggled out of his orange silk dressing gown and pressed a button. Moby Dickstein was there at once.

"Afternoon, Bwana," said he, using the honorific title which he had bestowed upon his principal, what time the young millionaire had returned from a week's stop in Cairo. bringing with him an almost lifesize photograph of himself in a triumphal attitude, surrounded by dead (and stuffed) lions.

A. Leon smiled benignly. "Has that tenth beauty got here yet?" 'Sure, Bwana. They're all here." "How late was she?"

"About an hour." The magnate frowned. "That's Number 3245—D, ain't it? The girl on horseback?"

'Right-o, Bwana." "She looks like she'd have her nerve with her," mused the magnate of Purity Pictures. "Take-it-orleave-it sort. Her name is Miss Marion Norman Van Stratten. I had the photograph traced.'

"Snappy work, Bwana. She's a humdinger, all right."

"There's a big game hunter named Van Stratten," said A. Leon Snydacker reverently. "Scoopy Van Stratten. An-er-acquaintance of Beside them stood a fattish young mine. Met him at the-er-international matches. Polo, you know.

A. Leon Snydacker crossed his feet and stood gracefully leaning upon his implement of sport and class, in an attitude of pensive re-"I would have waited longer than this," said he in a solemn tone, "for you. Darr-ling!" he concluded, ogling her with the confident eye of the conquering male.

"Who? Me?" said Marne, upon whom the florid endearment produced much the effect of a bomb, bursting in air.

"You, indeed. Who else? You, you, you, you! The type I was prepared to spend years and millions in seeking. And here you are, fallen right into my arms."

"Not exactly," protested Marne and suffered a severe dig from Gloria's admonitory elbow.

Still rapt in his vision, A. Leon stalked across to the mounted photographs. "I knew you were the type the minute I set eyes on this photo. One in a million. One in a nundred millions. The type preeminent, only a thousand times more so. Darr-ling," he appended in afterthought.

"Would you mind not calling me that?" said Marne. "Why not?" he asked, and there

★ Charlie Is Taken Down ★ Politics Promotes Ann

★ Orchestra Leaders All

— By Virginia Vale —

DEOPLE in New York are still talking about Charlie McCarthy's first week there. In fact, a new aristocracy sprung into being; its members were the people who had actually gone to the first broadcast (tickets were scarcer than hen's teeth), and they are still high-hatting their friends who couldn't get in, and running perfectly good luncheons and dinner parties by insisting on telling about how cute

"You simply have to see him to appreciate him," they declare, which is rather hard on the people who have never seen Charlie and probably won't get a chance, as Edgar Bergen is too busy for personal appearances.

Charlie's kidnaping, one evening, by the amusement editor of one of the newspapers, very nearly stirred up a lot of trouble. The famous little man is insured for $2,500. Bergen was so worried that after Charlie's reappearance he took to taking Charlie apart and hiding him in sections.

Ann Sheridan has sort of crept into stardom by the back door, although she deserves the promotion. It's "Naughty but Nice" that stars her, and studio politics are involved. For this is Dick Powell's last for Warner Brothers, and it's an old studio custom to play down the departing star, since advertising him just means that you're promoting property that will soon belong to somebody else.

So the charming and hard-working Ann gets big billing in this one, after five years of doing her best with whatever roles came her way.

Katherine Hepburn is doing very well indeed in her new theatrical venture, "The Philadelphia Story," although it has not, at this writing, been given the acid test of presentation in New York. Apparently Miss Hepburn still cherishes some affection for the screen; she has bought the film rights to the play and will do it herself before the cameras eventually.

Nowadays it seems that everybody who can't get a job feels that the answer to the unemployment problem is becoming an orchestra leader. Prize fighters, millionaires, tap-dancers, movie stars—all are more than willing to step in front of a band and wave a baton. But it's a rare thing for a man who works with his hands to become an orchestra leader-Russ Morgan is about the only exception to the rule. He's an ex-coal miner, you know. He worked in the Nanticoke Mine, near Scranton, Pa., until the foreman fired him for playing a trombone in his spare time. The foreman happened to be his father.

Today he is one of the top bracket orchestra leaders. Before he was twenty-one he had written arrangements for such famous musical men as John Phillip Sousa and Victor Herbert.

If you're considering writing for radio here's something to remember. Due to the threat of federal censorship, radio stations are leaning over backward in their efforts not to offend. The Federal Communications commission, which is in charge of renewing broadcasting licenses every six months, has hinted they will frown on the following forms of radio fare: fortune telling, astrology or similar sciences. solicitation of funds, except for recognized worthwhile charities, misleading statements, defamatory statements, obscenity, programs offending religious or racial groups, over-melodramatic children's programs, liquor advertising, too much advertising and too many phonograph records.

Helping Seeds Along

THE first step toward insuring germination of seeds is proper planting. In exceptionally dry weather, however, even properly planted seeds may not germinate. It is advisable in such a case to prepare the dry soil for the seed. Water freely, as though you had a crop growing. Allow the water to soak in and when the soil has good moisture content, begin your planting. You must be careful. of course, not to plant in wet, muddy soil. Excessive rainfall, on the other hand, may make the soil so moist as to cause rotting of planted

While few vegetable seeds require special treatment to assist germination, numerous flower seeds can successfully be treated. according to Gilbert Bentley, flower expert of the Ferry Seed Breeding Station. He advises as follows: Nick the seed coat of lupin, moonflower and morning glory; remove the rough outer coating of nasturtium, momordica, castor bean and sand verbena; soak canna, lily, job's tear and sweet pea seeds in water for 12 hours before planting.

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
