

COMMERCE BODY GROWING IN SIZE AND STRENGTH

Although Only One Month Old,
Organization Now Has A
Membership Of 58

CONTACTING TWO TEXTILE MILLS

At the regular monthly meeting of the newly organized Harrington Chamber of Commerce, held last night over the First National Bank, it was disclosed that the chamber, though only one month old, already has a membership of 58. Fourteen new members joining up at last night's session.

The names of the new members follow: Harrington Cleaners, Ira Downes, J. A. Swain and Son, Richard Bullock, Parks' Restaurant, Satterfield and Ryan, Archie Feagan, Harrington Milling Company, Dr. R. J. Emory, Harrington Hardware Company, Taylor's Hardware Company, Wheeler's Radio Store, B. L. Robinson, and Salmons' Furniture Company.

President Ernest Raughley opened the meeting and gave a short review of the progress the city has made in the last twenty-five years, and stressed the fact that the citizens should not be satisfied with present conditions, but should keep on trying to make our city a better place in which to live.

A. B. Parsons, secretary, after reading the minutes of the last meeting, also read two communications from firms wanting to locate here. The firms from whom the letters were received, are textile mills and would give employment to a considerable number of men.

After hearing reports from the various committee chairmen, a committee was appointed with Jehu Camper as chairman, to build and erect two signs advertising the city on the main highway, one to be placed just north of town and the other on the south side.

The agriculture committee, W. J. Paskey, Sr., chairman was instructed to make a survey of the strawberry acreage around Harrington and to try to arrange to have buyers here during the coming berry season.

The next meeting of the Chamber will be held on Thursday, June 16.

KENT 4-H CLUBS TO HOLD RALLY IN DOVER, ON MAY 21

4-H Club members in Kent county are working at top speed to be ready for the annual club rally that will be held on the grounds of the Elizabeth W. Murphy School on Saturday, May 21st. A large number of the girls have enrolled for the style show. Clothing club girls model the dresses that they have made during the year.

Judges for this year are Mrs. Helen McKinley, assistant director of Extension work, University of Delaware; Miss Louise Whitcomb, Home management specialist; Mrs. Howard Deakne, local leader of the Smyrna Wide Awakes, and Miss Jane Newcomb, Newark, Delaware.

Interest in the roll call response is usually keen. All club members enjoy attending the Junior Short course at Newark and the award for the best response by some original stunt, song or yell is a scholarship for this event. The judges for the stunts are Miss Pearl MacDonald, Extension Nutritionist; Miss Anna B. Moore, Sussex County Club Agent; Mr. Russell E. Wilson, Kent County Agricultural Agent; and Miss Majorie Starkweather Director Y. W. C. A.

At 11.00 Miss Mildred Lindeberg of the Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Association will give health dramatizations.

The 25th anniversary program will begin at 1.30 with greetings from Dewey Sapp of Houston, the first Delaware boy to enroll in club work. Other club members and leaders of earlier years will contribute to this part of the program.

A popular part of the program, the games and soft ball tournament are in charge of Miss Marjorie Etarkweather and C. E. McCauley.

Of interest to many Kent County boys will be the truck load of pure bred Poland China and Duroc Jersey gilts which will come down from the University of Delaware Farm to be distributed to those fortunate enough to be receiving them. The purchase of these animals is made possible through the Kent Chapter of the Link, Club treasuries and some boys are buying their own.

The Willow 4-H club will have sandwiches, cakes, ice cream and milk drinks for sale.

In case of rain the rally will be held in the Dover School Auditorium.

For sale—1 Horse. Safe for an old man or boys. Come and see him work.—T. Lane Adams.

Building lots for sale, facing highway; 60 feet width, 150 feet deep. Also land for sale or rent for tilling.—Annie and Laura Fleming.

HOLLANDSVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Moore entertained as week-end guests, relatives from Frederica and Dover.

Mrs. Emma Brown, of Harrington, who spent a portion of last week with her daughter, Mrs. Fletcher Price, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Paskey were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. Frank Jester, last Sunday.

A meeting of Manship Ladies' Aid Society was held at Manship Church last Friday evening. Important business was discussed.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Jester entertained as week-end guests, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Belderbeck and daughter Christine, of Riverside, N. J., and Franklin Jester, of Philadelphia.

Mother's Day services were held at Cedar Grove Church last Sunday, in charge of Rev. Mary Garrett. The services were well attended and much enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. William Brittingham of Masten's, entertained at dinner last Sunday, Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Detwiler, of Philadelphia; Mrs. W. S. Cooper and daughter Martha Mae, of this place. Other visitors of the day were: Mr. and Mrs. Olo Brittingham and son Olo, Jr., of Felton; Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds Brittingham, of Greensboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Theron Martin, of Sacramento, Calif., have returned to their home after a two week's visit with Delaware relatives and friends. Mrs. Martin was formerly Mrs. Anna Peck Edwards, a school teacher of this place. Her many friends welcomed gladly her return.

Miss Janice Eloise Blades and mother, Mrs. Lambert Blades, accompanied by Mrs. Ratie Peck, of Harrington, attended the graduation exercises of Wilmington Homeopathic Hospital, held at the New Century Club building, Wilmington, on Tuesday last week. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Edna Ruhl, of Philadelphia, for a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Hughes entertained on Monday, the former's mother, Mrs. Amy E. Hughes, of Felton.

STATE HIT HARD BY HEAVY FROST EARLY THIS WEEK

Freezing temperatures brought a heavy frost early this week that destroyed the Delicious apple crop in the Milton section and caused undetermined damage to farm crops in Sussex County and upper Maryland.

The Bureau of Markets reported that orchards covering 1,000 acres north of Milton were blighted by the frost of Monday morning. The apples were well developed and well formed but were unable to withstand the 35 degree temperature, the bureau said.

The entire crop of one of the larger orchards, a 600 acre tract, was destroyed by the heavy frost. The damage to the cream of the Delicious crop will have a material effect on later markets, the bureau reports.

Truck farmers in the Laurel section suffered untold damage farmers reported. Tuesday was the coldest May 15 on record in the state's fruit belt.

Hundreds of acres of cucumbers, cantaloupes and watermelons are believed to be a total loss because of the damage done by the temperature's drop to the point where ice formed.

Crops that were not ruined outright will be delayed about a week in maturing farmers said. Tomato plants left uncovered withered under the cold blast.

Farmers reported that sweet potatoes to beds left uncovered were severely frozen. Plants already set in fields were killed.

Many farmers began to replant their fields again to be assured of a watermelon crop. Some difficulty was met in securing seed as most dealers had closed out their stock believing the planting season was over.

Farmers in the Milford farming areas managed to staff serious damage by sprinkling their crops with water before they were touched by the hot sun.

Reports from Seaford are that white potatoes were badly damaged by the frost and that potato, cantaloupe and cucumber plants were turned black.

It is not believed that strawberry crops were damaged to any extent since the berries are well matured. Home grown berries of the Blackmore variety appeared on the markets several days ago.

The U. S. Weather Bureau substitution at Ridgely, Md., viewed the situation with alarm as the temperature dropped off to 35 degrees Monday. A survey will be made to determine the full extent of damage.

987 STUDENTS TO RECEIVE DIPLOMAS IN RURAL SCHOOLS

A total of 987 students will graduate at the high schools in rural Delaware this year, according to figures compiled by the State Board of Education. This number is an increase of 75 over last year when the total number of graduates were 912.

The largest graduating class will be at Henry C. Conrad high school, Richardson Park, near Wilmington, where 146 students will receive their diplomas. The next highest will be at Newark where 80 will graduate. Rehoboth Beach with 8 graduates will have the smallest class.

The number of graduates at other schools in the rural part of the State are as follows: Special school districts: Claymont, 49; Alexis I. duPont, 42; New Vastie, 43; Smyrna, 41; Dover, 63; Caesar Rodney, 49; Harrington, 38; Milford, 51; Georgetown, 40; Lewes, 37; Seaford, 46; Laurel, 51.

Schools under State Board control: Delaware City, 10; Middletown, 28; Felton, 21; Greenwood, 22; Bridgeville, 21; Milton, 21; Millsboro, 12; John M. Clayton, 11; Selbyville, 19; Lord Baltimore, 17; Delmar, 20.

CHARLES L. TERRY, SR., VICTIM OF HEART ATTACK

Charles L. Terry, Sr., 76 years old, father of Judge Charles L. Terry, Jr., died suddenly Friday evening at his home in Camden of a heart condition. He had been a leading fruit grower and broker in Kent county for over 45 years. He was a director of the Baltimore Trust Company and took an active part in advancing the interests of the fruit industry. Mr. Terry was a colonel on the Governor's staff during the administration of Robert J. Reynolds.

In addition to his son, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Terry, and another son, Max Terry, Dover lawyer. A brother Rev. Thomas E. Terry, for many years connected with the Wilmington M. E. Conference, died several years ago. Funeral services were held Monday from the home at 2 o'clock in charge of Rev. E. F. Thompson of Christ Church, Dover, with interment at Barratt's Chapel.

The pallbearers included directors of the Baltimore Trust company of which Mr. Terry had been a member for many years. They were: Dr. I. J. MacCallum, J. H. Hudson, Ralph W. Wine, J. A. Frear, Sr., C. W. Johnson, Arley Jackson, Jr., Peter W. Collins, Frank W. Richardson and Ralph Emerson.

RETENTION OF CCC CAMPS FOR DELAWARE SOUGHT BY GOV.

Governor Richard C. McMullen will go to Washington soon to confer with Director Robert Fechner of the CCC and other government officials in an effort to have Mr. Fechner's decision to discontinue the camps set aside.

He revealed these plans Monday to State Forester W. S. Taber during a conference in Dover in which Mr. Taber stressed the importance of the State's retaining the forestry camp at Redden.

The Governor asked Mr. Taber to prepare material and reports to be submitted to the officials at Washington. It was learned from authoritative sources that other State boards interested in retaining the camps have also been asked to make similar detailed reports on the need of retaining the camps.

CHILD FOOD SPECIALIST ADDRESSES STATE ASSO.

Miss Marjorie M. Heseltine, specialist in nutrition, Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C., visited the State Board of Health Tuesday. This was one of her regular consultation visits to observe the progress made in the field of nutrition in Delaware, and to discuss plans for future developments.

Miss Heseltine arrived Monday evening in time to speak before the meeting of the Delaware Dietetic Association at Wilmington. The subject of her talk was "Nutrition and the Health of the Mother and Child."

Miss Heseltine expressed satisfaction with her findings in viewing the nutrition program of the State Board of Health and added that they in the Children's Bureau in Washington "expect a lot from Delaware because Delaware was one of the first to realize the need of nutrition service, and on of the first to grasp the opportunity to have it when funds became available. Obviously there has been substantial progress, and continued progress may well be anticipated."

During her visit with Miss Charlotte Spencer, nutritionist for the State Board of Health, Miss Heseltine discussed various activities of the past year and they together decided what to emphasize during the forthcoming 12 months. Miss Heseltine brought out the need of even greater public education in the use of the protective foods, of which an abundance are grown in Delaware.

TWO MEN ARRESTED WHILE MOVING STILL AT WOODSIDE

Arrest of a man on the Petersburg-Woodside Road early Tuesday morning with a fully equipped still on his truck may lead, State Liquor Commission officials believe, to stopping a practice which has made enforcement of the state liquor laws difficult in lower Delaware since last fall.

Murrell Wilkinson, 38, of near Woodside, who police say was driving the truck was stopped by state police for passing a stop sign near Woodside.

Police found the truck carried a fully equipped 50-gallon still in the back. They say the still was being moved from the home of Roy W. Knight, 35, of Petersburg.

Corp. John H. Conrad and Private Joshua Bennett of the state police went to Knight's home where additional distilling equipment was alleged to have been found. They also seized a quantity of liquor. Knight was arrested on a charge of possession of liquor and equipment for distilling liquor, and Wilkinson on a charge of transportation of the equipment.

Richard T. Cann, executive secretary of the liquor commission said that commission inspectors have received reports of light trucks being used since last fall for shifting stills from one location to another to confuse the officials.

Knight and Wilkinson were arraigned before Magistrate John P. LeFevre of Dover, on Tuesday.

Strawberry Shipments This week

Shipment of Delaware strawberries is expected to get underway during the coming week, according to information received at the office of the Bureau of Markets at Dover which was to the effect that the week from May 18th to 25th would see shipments start from all Delaware shipping points. Advanced estimates on the berry crop place it at the largest seen here for some years. Delaware growers report that the crop this year is free from disease and that weather conditions were just right for the berries to be large and numerous.

NO AID YET FOR STATE GROUPS

Final adoption of supplementary appropriation measures, providing funds for hospitals, volunteer firemen and other agencies throughout the State, came to another standstill on Monday when Gov. Richard C. McMullen vetoed seven measures providing for these appropriations.

Various actions on these measures were scattered throughout the Legislative session as the Republican majority members refused to withdraw their "ripper" legislative program and endeavored to jockey around the constitutional provisions governing these appropriations when the Democratic minority members refused to vote for them after the Republicans insisted upon enactment of their "ripper" program.

Passage of the measures vetoed by the Governor marked the third attempt of the Republican Legislative majority to provide for appropriations without withdrawing their "ripper" program. They have met with failure on every move.

Their first move was the attempt to pass measures in the regular manner. (Continued on page 4)

LAUREL WOMAN WINS $25 IN PRESS-PUBLICITY CONTEST

Mrs. Paul E. Gordy, of the Laurel New Century Club has been awarded the $25 cash prize for first honors in the national press and publicity contest sponsored by the New York Herald-Tribune, leading metropolitan newspaper, in cooperation with the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Announcement of the local winner as well as the other two award getters was made by Mrs. Allen Bangs, director of the Herald-Tribune Bureau for Club Women, who announced the prizes at the San Francisco General Federation convention.

Mrs. Gordy's entry, was a news story on the local club's plan to purchase a wheel chair for some worthy person. It was judged Delaware's best by the committee of judges made up of staff members of the New York Herald-Tribune.

Second place in the national contest went to Mrs. William J. Phelps, of the New Haven, Conn., Woman's Club, with third place to Mrs. Miriam Odett of the Yuma Arizona district of the State federation.

Mrs. Gordy's selection was from among entries submitted by club women in 39 states and Alaska, the largest number to be considered for the awards since the Herald-Tribune established the contest three years ago.

HIGHWAY BUREAU LAW TO BE ARGUED IN COURT JUNE 12

Judges Fix Date In Case Attacking
The Legality Of Revamping Measure

BOTH PARTIES EAGER FOR RULING

Argument on the question of the constitutionality of the measure which reorganized the State Highway Department was fixed for June 12 by Judges Richard S. Rodney and Frank L. Speakman this week.

The argument will be heard in quo warranto proceedings instituted by Stewart Lynch, Democratic attorney on relation of the Attorney General's Office, against former State Senator Donald P. Ross, Ralph W. Emerson, and Charles D. Abbott, named in the bill as new members.

State Rep. Henry M. Canby, attorney, representing the respondents in the action, waived issuance of the rule asked in the petitions for appearance of the respondents. Lynch will file his brief by June 2; Canby will file an answering brief by June 9, and both will submit final briefs by the day of the argument, the court stipulated.

The quo warranto papers charge that the members of the old department are the duly constituted members. They are: Charles W. Cullen, Frank V. duPont, J. Henry Hazel, Andrew F. Faderl, and Gov. Richard C. McMullen. Regardless of this, Emerson, Ross, and Abbott, joined by Mr. duPont, sought last Wednesday to usurp the offices and powers rightfully belonging to the old board, it is alleged.

The petition was accompanied by an affidavit by Chauncey P. Holcomb secretary of the old board since Dec. 5, 1937, who told of the meeting of the Republican members in Dover on Wednesday and electing Mr. duPont as chairman and Ernest Muncy as secretary, and then of his refusal to turn over to Mr. Muncy the records and other paraphernalia of his office because he had been advised by counsel that the new law is unconstitutional.

Both the Democratic and Republican parties are anxious to secure court decision on the new law as speedily as possible. The argument had to be deferred to June 12 because of the crowded calendar in Superior Court.

The new law, naming three new members of the department, transferred control from the Democrats to the Republicans.

DENTAL HEALTH WEEK TO END ON SATURDAY

Delaware Dental Health Week was originally scheduled to terminate on Saturday, May 6th, but through the whole-hearted cooperation of the dentists it stretched into the present week, it was stated today by Miss Margaret H. Jefferys, Director of the Division of Oral Hygiene, State Board of Health.

As originally planned, dentists throughout Delaware were to give free and complete treatment to a large number of indigent children, as a practical means of observing Dental Health Week. These children were to be recommended by the oral hygienists and the school nurses, aided by teachers and principals. To complete this program, many of the dentists found it necessary to make engagements with the children extending into this week.

It is understood that more than one hundred of these children have been given "dental starts," with all of their cavities filled, necessary extractions made and their teeth cleaned. It is hoped that this will result in their keeping their teeth clean and that their families will be aroused to the

ADVENTUROUS AMERICANS

By Elmo Scott Watson

Long-Haired Sheriff

COMMODORE PERRY OWENS, born in Tennessee in 1852, went to Texas in the early seventies and spent 11 years there as a cowboy before becoming foreman of a cow outfit in New Mexico. He wore his hair long—almost to his waist—and carried his six-shooter on his left side, the butt pointing forward. Old timers in the Southwest were doubtful whether such a "show-off" had "real sand."

They found out he did have when, singlehanded, he killed three Navajo Indian cattle thieves. Then the people of northern Arizona decided he was the man to clean up the outlaws in their section and elected him sheriff of Apache county in 1887.

He broke up a band of 16 cattle rustlers after killing Ike Clanton and Tombstone fame and two others and capturing his brother, Finn Clanton, leader of the gang.

But his greatest feat was his single-handed fight with four members of the Blevans gang, one of the factions in the famous Pleasant Valley war. In this fight, which took place in Holbrook, Perry killed three of the four, including Andy Cooper, one of Arizona's most dangerous gun-fighters. It was one of the most desperate encounters at close quarters in the history of the state, not even excepting the famous fight at the O. K. corral in Tombstone.

Refusing re-election as sheriff, Perry became a special agent for the Santa Fe railroad, later express messenger for Wells-Fargo and then a United States marshal. He gave up his man-hunting work in 1900 and became a business man in Seligman where he died in 1919.

First in Yellowstone Park

WHAT an adventure it must have been for the first person who saw the Yellowstone! John Colter, who for three years had served in the famous Lewis and Clark expedition, was the lucky man. He had just left the party and established himself with the expedition of Manuel Lisa from St. Louis who traveled up the Missouri river to trade with the Indians.

A fort was established at the Big Horn and John Colter was sent ahead to notify the red men. With courage typical of that period, he began his lone expedition into territory never before trod by even the most courageous trappers and pioneers of the time.

Informed by the Indians that ahead lay a territory that was bewitched and that they would not penetrate it, his curiosity and his adventurous spirit impelled him to explore it. He was well rewarded for records show that, in 1809, he went through and then completely encircled what is now Yellowstone national park.

Alone, he saw before any other person, the boiling springs, towering geysers and strange mineral deposits. Not only was he a pioneer among white men, but more adventurous than even the red men, being years ahead of them in risking existence in a land where the earth trembled and groaned, spouted fire and hissed steam.

When Colter returned, he told such an amazing story of smoking pits and the smell of brimstone that the men of the fort laughed at him and told others what they thought were ridiculous stories of "Colter's Hell." It was several years before anyone else had the courage to verify his discovery.

First Arctic Explorer

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN is famous for a long list of achievements but one more should be added to the list—that of patron of the first American voyage of Arctic exploration.

Early in the eighteenth century the English parliament offered a reward of 20,000 pounds to anyone who proved the existence of the fabled Northwest Passage to Asia. A British expedition set out in 1746 but failed to find it.

Then Franklin helped outfit the 60-ton schooner, Argo, which set forth in 1753 under the command of Capt. Charles Swaine. Sailing in March, the Argo encountered ice off Cape Farewell, but finally succeeded in entering Hudson's strait in the latter part of June.

Here the ice packs were so high that Swaine was forced to give up the attempt to penetrate further westward and to turn back to the open sea again. He then carefully examined the coast of Labrador before returning to Philadelphia where he arrived in November.

The next year he made a second voyage of discovery in the same vessel. Again he was unsuccessful and returned in October with the loss of three men, who were killed on the Labrador coast. But even though he had failed, he had won the right to the title of "First American Arctic Explorer" and, as Carl Van Doren, Franklin's latest biographer, says: "Here were the beginnings of a long chapter in the history of American adventure."

Sights of London

There are hundreds of things to be seen in London. Among them are Westminster abbey, the houses of parliament, Buckingham palace, St. James' palace, Hyde park, Regent's park, Trafalgar square, Piccadilly circus, Fleet street, the Cheshire Cheese, the Strand, St. Paul's cathedral, and London tower.

Lowell, Ambassador to London
James Russell Lowell, the poet, became United States ambassador to London in 1880.

Mrs. Fussbody—Clean it again. There's an epidemic of burglary in this neighborhood and I'd hate to have it go out looking like it does.

Wrong Idea
"How do you like the new filing clerk you hired?"
"She does splendidly with her nails, but has no apparent interest in my letters."

Nodders

Deacon—Well, Dr. Jones, I hope by this time you are making many new friends in the church?
Reverend Jones—I think so, thanks, though as I was preaching last Sunday I thought I had more nodding acquaintances than friends.

Beats Anything
Orchestra Drummer—I'm the fastest man in the world.
Violinist—How's that?
Drummer—Time flies, doesn't it? Well, I beat time.

Mixture
Lady Customer—I see this medicine is advertised as good for man and beast.
Druggist—Yes.
Customer—Gimme a bottle. I believe it's the right combination to help my husband.

How it Started
Husband (hurrying to get dressed for a party)—Ouch, I bumped my crazybone.
Wife—Well, just part your hair on the other side and it will never show.

A Few Little Smiles

SMUGGLER!

With a portfolio under his arm, a diplomat passing through the customs at Dover endeavored to walk past the official.
"Excuse me, sir," said the officer, respectfully, "but have you declared that case?"
"No," was the reply. "I'm traveling under diplomatic privileges, and these are important dispatches."
"Well," answered the customs officer, "the neck of one of your dispatches is sticking out of the case."

Has That Effect

"Some people thirst after fame, others after wealth, others after love," said the romantic young man, with a sigh.
The object of her affections was not in the same mood, however.
"And there is something all people thirst after," she said.
"Yes?" asked the lover, eagerly.
"Salt fish!" was the crushing reply.

MODERN VERSION

Actor—The next line is: "A horse! A horse! My kingdom for a horse!"
Manager—But, my dear fellow, that will scarcely be understood in this day—make it an automobile!

Good Guess

"Did you go to the doctor the other day, John?"
"Yes, I did."
"And did he find out what you had?"
"Very nearly."
"What do you mean, very nearly?"
"Well, I had $5.00 and he charged me $4.50!"

Words of Action

"Which is the better," inquired the young patriot, "to be a silver-tongued orator or a practical politician?"
"It depends," answered Senator Sorghum, "on your personal ambitions. Some people desire the last word and others are concerned solely about the first ballot."

It Shouldn't Matter!

"Say, what do you call this?" demanded the petulant customer of the waitress. "Is it beef or mutton?"
"Can't you tell?" she asked.
"No, I can't!"
"Well, then," said the waitress, "why worry about it?"

Too Many Bites

Benevolent Old Man—Don't you think fishing is a cruel sport?
Angler—I certainly do. I've been sitting here five hours and never had a single bite, and I've got three wasp stings, I'm eaten up with flies, and the sun's taken all the skin off the back of my neck!

Co-operation

A parent recently had occasion to punish his six-year-old son. That night he overheard the youngster saying his prayers.
"Please, Lord, make me a good boy," pleaded the child. "I asked you yesterday, but I guess you overlooked it."

TEACH HIM A LESSON

"I don't know what to do with that boy of mine. He won't go to school, he won't work and he's always asking me for money."
"Why don't you get him a job as collector for an installment house?"

The Little Less

Anxious Sportsman (who thinks he has backed a winner)—Did you send off that wire in time?
Village Postmistress—Yes, sir, but the money was a penny short so I left out the name of the horse.

Oxygen

The teacher of a chemistry class asked:
"For what purpose do automobile shops use oxygen?"
"For the carburetors to breathe," a pupil responded.

Poor Pa

Tommy—Mummy, if someone broke the flower vase, what would you do?
Mother—I would spank him and put him to bed.
Tommy—Well, roll up your sleeves. Father did it.

Bones—Great fun! My wife cooks and I guess what the dish is!—Montreal Star.

What to Eat and Why

With Approach of Warm Weather, C. Houston Goudiss Advises Extra Care in Storing Foods in the Home

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

IT IS the proud distinction of America's food industries that notwithstanding the infinite variety of perishable foods which are constantly available, and regardless of the distances they have been transported, even the most delicate foods are delivered to the consumer in a fresh, wholesome condition, with all their fine flavor unimpaired.

The secret of this modern miracle is refrigeration. Vast sums of money have been invested in long trains of refrigerated cars, thousands upon thousands of refrigerated trucks, refrigerated warehouses and refrigeration equipment in stores. All this has been done for a single purpose: to keep food fresh and at its best until it reaches the home.

At this point the responsibility shifts to the homemaker. And if she falls down on her job, then all previous efforts to keep food free from spoilage have been in vain.

Homemaker's Responsibility

As guardian of her family's health, one of the homemaker's most important tasks is to see to it that all food is safeguarded against contamination until it reaches her table. This means that a perishable food must continue to be refrigerated properly in the home. For only in this way can they be protected from the ravages of micro-organisms which are always ready to attack foods when conditions are favorable for their growth.

Two essentials are necessary for satisfactory food preservation in the home. First, perishable foods must be stored at a temperature of from 40 to 45 degrees Fahrenheit—never at a temperature higher than 50 degrees. Second, the right degree of humidity must be maintained. Too much moisture will encourage the growth of bacteria; too little will dehydrate fruits and vegetables and make them unfit for consumption.

Home Care of Foods

Both requirements are met by a good household refrigerator; and the homemaker who appreciates the importance of keeping foods sound and wholesome will regard an efficient refrigerator as an investment in good health. It is especially necessary that the food supply be properly refrigerated during the warmer weather of spring and summer, in order to prevent the consumption of dishes that may have become contaminated without any marked alteration in appearance, taste or odor.

Highly Perishable Foods

Milk is often regarded as the most perishable of all foods, because it is an ideal medium for the growth of bacteria. It is, therefore, essential that this splendid food be kept at low temperatures at all times. It should be put into the refrigerator as soon as possible after it is delivered, and kept there until the moment it is to be used. Milk should never be allowed to stand at room temperature for any length of time. For it has been demonstrated that when it is held at 40 degrees—an ideal temperature—before delivery, then allowed to stand at a room temperature of 75 degrees for an hour and a half, and again refrigerated, a rapid increase in bacteria occurs.

Other types of protein foods also present a favorable medium for bacterial growth when they are held at temperatures higher than 50 degrees. These include meat, fish, meat broths, gelatin, custards and creamed foods. It is advisable to keep these foods, as well as the milk supply, in the coldest part of the refrigerator.

Fruits and Vegetables

Fruits and vegetables soon lose their moisture content unless they are protected against warm, dry air; and they are likewise subject to the action of micro-organisms which result in decay. But when stored in a modern refrigerator, these mineral- and vitamin-rich foods can be kept in perfect condition for considerable periods, thus making it possible to take advantage of favorable market offerings.

Guarding Against Mold

As a rule, warmer weather also increases the problem of combating molds. For given moisture and warmth, molds will grow on almost anything. However, the most hospitable hosts are acid fruits, such as oranges, lemons, berries or tomatoes; sweets, such as jams and jellies; bread and meat. While molds are physiologically harmless if eaten, they definitely spoil the taste and appearance of food.
Mold growths can be killed by boiling. They are retarded by the dry circulating air of an efficient refrigerator. It is to allow for air circulation that berries should be stored uncovered—if possible, spread out so that the air can reach more than just the top layer.

Constant vigilance on the part of the homemaker in caring for foods on hand will avoid a needless drain on the food budget and will safeguard the health of every member of the family.

Questions Answered

Mrs. L. E. S.—It is a fallacy to believe that spinach is in a class by itself as a source of iron. It's a splendid vegetable, but as a source of iron, it is practically equalled by kale, and exceeded by a number of other greens including beet tops, dandelion greens, chard, parsley, watercress and turnip tops.

Mrs. D. N. M.—In general, nuts are rich in both protein and fat, and for this reason, they may be used interchangeably with meat in the diet. They are also considered a good source of vitamin B.

Isn't This Why You Are Constipated?

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? White bread, meat, potatoes? It's little wonder you're constipated. You probably don't eat enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It's a kind of food that forms a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a movement. If this is your trouble, may we suggest a crunchy toasted cereal—Kelllogg's All-Bran—for breakfast. All-Bran is a natural food, not a medicine—but it's particularly rich in "bulk." Being so, it can help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. You won't have to endure constipation, you can avoid it. Eat All-Bran daily, drink plenty of water, and life will be brighter for you! Made by Kelllogg's in Battle Creek.

League of Reformed Drinkers, Founded in '90's, Was Unique Among American Organizations

National convention of the Keeley League at Harrisburg, Pa.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
© Western Newspaper Union

AMONG the many thousands of clubs, societies, associations, leagues, federations and the like which have been organized in this country there once was one that was absolutely unique. It was composed exclusively of men who had been drunkards and at one time it had a membership of more than 30,000. Moreover it had auxiliaries in which the wives, mothers and sisters of its members were enrolled.

It held national conventions attended by thousands of delegates and its national and state officers were men noted in politics, the professions and literature. Instead of being ashamed of the fact that they had been drunkards, its members honestly admitted it, but they took pride in the fact that they had conquered Demon Rum, alias John Barleycorn. And as a symbol of that fact they wore in the buttonholes of their coats this emblem:

Why the horseshoe? That was because this league was founded in a blacksmith shop in the little city of Dwight, Ill. And thereby hangs the tale of the National Keeley league and the man who was responsible for its organization—a "horse and buggy doctor" named Leslie E. Keeley. Born in Potsdam, N. Y., in 1832, the son of an old-fashioned country doctor, young Leslie Keeley came west in the late 1850's and studied medicine for a time under a Doctor Littlefield in Beardstown, Ill. In 1860 he entered Rush Medical college in Chicago and was in his second year when the Civil war began. He volunteered for service as a medical cadet and was assigned to duty at Jefferson Barracks, near St. Louis. He was soon made an assistant surgeon and placed in command of the medical staff there. Then he was promoted to surgeon and ordered into active service as a brigade medical director on the staff of General Wright's third division of the Army of the Cumberland.

When the war ended young Keeley resumed his studies at Rush and was graduated in 1866. He settled in the little corn belt town of Dwight, Ill., and became a successful country doctor which led to his appointment as division surgeon of the Chicago & Alton railroad. While in the Union army, Dr. Keeley had become interested in investigating the various effects of alcohol and was soon convinced that drunkenness was a disease that could be cured. So he began to experiment. He found that alcohol attacked certain nerve forces and being an experienced chemist he established a laboratory and began his researches to discover a drug or combination of drugs which would combat the power of alcohol.

An 'Impractical Visionary.' People of the community in which he was practicing regarded him as a dreamer, an "impractical visionary." Alcoholism was a moral, not a medical, problem, they declared. But a young Irish chemist recently arrived in America thought differently. John R. Oughton was his name and he was employed as a pharmacist in a Dwight drug store in the building in which Dr. Keeley had his office.

Oughton became interested in Keeley's researches and soon he was assisting the doctor in trying to compound the medicine which would hold John Barleycorn in check. Finally in 1879 came the announcement that they had been successful and that a cure for alcoholism had been found. At first the people of Dwight were incredulous, but when some confirmed drunkards around the town, to whom life had little to offer, "took the cure" and found that it worked, skepticism changed to belief in its efficacy. Soon inebriates from the surrounding country were offering themselves for treatment.

At the end of two years Keeley was able to establish a small sanitarium, drawing his patients largely from Chicago whose "gin mills" were turning out more and more drunkards every year. Requiring capital to operate his rapidly growing institute, Keeley entered into a partnership with Oughton and Maj. Curtis Judd, who was engaged in the mercantile business in Dwight. Keeley's plan of treatment for alcoholism was an innovation. Whereas the oldtime asylum for inebriates was a place of horror with its straitjackets and other forms of restraint, Keeley's institute was a place for voluntary patients where they met the doctors on a basis of mutual confession of responsibility for a cure. During the eighties further research and experiments developed new methods of treatment and by 1890 the institute began to attract public notice.

The next year occurred the incident which led to Keeley's becoming a national figure. Joseph Medill, editor of the Chicago Tribune, heard that a country doctor was curing men of drunkenness. He sent a reporter to Dwight. The newsman came home and wrote up what he had heard. Not convinced, Medill sent another reporter, Dr. Keeley said to him: "Please tell Mr. Medill to send me six of the worst drunkards he can find and in three days I will sober them up and in four weeks I will send them back to Chicago sober men; and, unless of their own volition, they will never seek liquor. At any rate they will never have need or necessity thereafter."

Medill's Experiment. The challenge was met. Mr. Medill declared: "I selected a half dozen of the toughest products of alcoholism which the Chicago saloons were able to turn out. The experimental cases were sent down to Dwight, one at a time, extending over a period of several weeks. And in due time they were all returned to me, looking as if a veritable miracle had been wrought upon them. They went away soiled and returned gentlemen."

"But I do not stop with the half dozen specially selected cases, but sent down to Dwight a number of inebriate acquaintances to take the treatment. When I had then become convinced that drunkenness was a disease, the result of imbibing a poison and that a medicine had been discovered which released the victim from the irrepressible thirst, and that it restored the man to normal health of both body and mind, I felt it to be a duty which I owed to humanity to make known the virtues of the Keeley cure as fast and as far as it was in my power." Newspapers throughout the United States began writing up the institute and soon the quiet little town of Dwight was overwhelmed with visitors and patients seeking treatment. A boom developed rivaling the scenes of present-day oil discoveries. Soon it had become the most famous village of its size in America and the saying "gone to Dwight" became a familiar part of the argot of the day.

As the demand for the treatment grew, it was found necessary to supplement the facilities of the parent institute. A far-flung system of branch institutes in principal cities grew up, totaling at one time more than 60. Dr. Keeley carried his treatment abroad and institutes were established in London, Liverpool, and other foreign cities.

The League Is Founded. As more and more patients flocked to this little city, an organization of "graduates" of Keeley's institute was formed who began to hold reunions to proclaim their victory over Demon Rum. Out of this grew the National Keeley league with its 350 local lodges in every state of the Union and its membership that exceeded 30,000.

The members of the league had qualifications for doing the most effective kind of temperance work. Knowing the danger of social drinking they were able to caution the beginner and knowing the growth of the habit they were well equipped to admonish the moderate drinker to stop while he could still control himself.

When Dr. Keeley died in 1900 at the age of 68, the work which he had pioneered had made him internationally famous. The town of Dwight was known throughout the continent. Dr. Keeley was fortunate in that the value of his discovery brought him public appreciation during his lifetime. While the majority of those who took the "cure" remained cured, there were naturally some backsliders. Dr. Keeley himself said: "I cannot give a man a moral will. His Creator does that. But if he has not sinned away that moral will entirely, I can help him to say no!"

All things considered, he did more for the victims of inebriety than anyone had before or since. Moreover, the change that has developed in the past half century in the attitude of society toward the drinking man—of regarding him as a person afflicted by a disease rather than as an unregenerate sinner—is largely due to the teachings of Dr. Keeley. Some time perhaps the social historians will "discover" this country doctor whose pioneering temperance work entitles him to as much, if not more, credit than some of the politicians whose names adorn the pages of history and the value of his contribution to the nation's progress will be more widely recognized than it has been up to now.

COL. A. J. SMITH

One of the league's most famous presidents was Col. Andrew J. Smith, himself a "graduate" of Dwight. Colonel Smith introduced the treatment into the Soldiers' home at Leavenworth, Kan., when he became governor of the home and it was also administered at soldiers' homes at Milwaukee, Wis., Hampton, Va., Los Angeles, Calif., and other cities. In fact, at a time when the soldiers in our army were noted for being almost as hard-drinking as they were hard-fighting, an institute was established exclusively for the use of enlisted men at Fort Leavenworth.

Old-timers still living in Dwight remember Dr. Keeley on the subject of getting private treatment after arriving. He was mildly and politely refused. He applied again with the same result. The third time he said: "Dr. Keeley, I don't want to go into line with the rest of these people. I am a man of wealth and family and will give you a thousand dollars if you will administer me this treatment privately."

Dr. Keeley replied: "My friend, I cannot do what you ask. But never mind. Get right into 'line' and if you behave yourself for a couple of weeks, you will be just as good as any of the other patients." The aims and purposes of the National Keeley league, according to an article which appeared in the American Journal of Politics in December, 1882, were set forth in its constitution as follows:

"To further the cause of temperance among all people by curing the drunkard of the disease of intemperance and preventing the youth of the country, by education and example, from contracting it. To bind together in one fraternal band, all who have taken the Keeley treatment for liquor or other diseases; to extend the knowledge of the Keeley remedies; to establish state and auxiliary leagues and by medical, moral and Christian methods, by the help of Almighty God to discourage and annihilate the use of liquor as a beverage in any way that may seem opportune, or the occasion may demand."

Just as do other organizations, so did the National Keeley league have its own publication. It was called the Banner of Gold and it circulated among the thousands of graduates of the Keeley institute. An interesting feature of this magazine was the poetry which appeared in it, written by nationally-known poets. Indicative of the fact that "gone to Dwight" was a by-word in the nineties is this poem by Nixon Waterman which appeared in the Banner of Gold:

SINCE PAPA'S BEEN TO DWIGHT
My papa's awful happy now, and mamma's happy, too,
Because my papa doesn't drink the way he used to do;
And everything's so jolly now— 'tain't like it use to be,
When papa never stayed at home with poor mamma and me.
It made me feel so very bad to see my mamma cry,
And though she'd smile I'd see the tears a hiding in her eye;
But now she laughs just like we girls and never cries a mite,
And sings such pretty little songs—since papa's been to Dwight.

You ought to see my Sunday dress, it's every bit all new;
It ain't made out of mamma's dress the way she used to do
And mamma's got a pretty cloak all trimmed with funny fur,
And papa's got some nice new clothes and goes to church with her.
My papa says that Christmas time will pretty soon be here,
And maybe good old Santa Claus will find our house THIS year.
I hope he'll bring some candy and a dolly big and bright;
He'll know where our house is I'm sure—since papa's been to Dwight.

TO GOV. A. J. SMITH
Give us your hand, old man, and let me give a benediction from the heart that knows
The gladness peace and hope and happiness
That glorious work like yours no man bestows.
Give us your hand, brave Captain of a host,
We'll follow you with courage born of trust.
Lead on! and answering to your battle cry,
We'll lift our fallen brothers from the dust.
—James F. Dudley in the Banner of Gold.

FIT COVER AROUND CHAIR SUPPORTS, AND FASTEN WITH SNAPS—MAKE SIDE OPENINGS LONG ENOUGH TO SLIP OVER WIDEST PART OF BACK

A difficult slipcover problem.

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: Your books have shown me how to do so many things that I am turning to you for help. I want to make slipcovers for the living-room furniture because with three young ones the upholstery is soon going to be ruined. The job completely baffles me. I am enclosing a rough sketch of one of the chairs. Can you suggest any way that a removable cover can be made for it? B. A."

If you are prepared to make many neatly fitted openings almost any type of chair may be slipcovered. Either bindings or facings may be used to finish edges where seat and back covers are cut around arms and supports. Where there are so many openings of different lengths, snap fasteners are generally more satisfactory than zippers. If snap fastener tape is obtainable it saves time to whip it to the long edges. The narrow frill for this chair covers a curved line across the front and carving at the top of the front legs.

TOOTHPICK USE DAILY SAID TO HELP TEETH

A toothpick by any other name will do a world of good in the prevention of dental ills, Dr. W. J. Charters of Des Moines, Ia., writes in the May issue of the Journal of the American Dental Association, showing that "mouth abluitions of the primitives were very effective because etiquette was ignored."

Now, anyone using a toothpick is in disgrace, the writer declares, with the result that the term toothpick will have to be discarded and the terms wooden or metal stimulators substituted if the pick is to continue as an adjunct to preventive dentistry.

Charging that all dental patients more than 12 years of age suffer with tooth decay or gum disease, or both, Dr. Charters states:

"Many people go through life dressed in all kinds of finery, yet in their mouths they harbor hundreds of different species of man-eating termites. This vast army has more hideouts and more efficient protection than our original public enemy number one."

The writer declares that nine-tenths of the organisms that flourish in the mouth can be eliminated by intelligent treatment, but despite this fact bacteria are allowed to undermine oral health and send their poison throughout the body to the detriment of general health.

"Dental practice has proved that many systemic ailments can be eliminated through mouth hygiene," according to Dr. Charters. "The first and easiest conditions to overcome are the feeling of fatigue, muscular rheumatism, eczema, constipation, paralysis and numerous painless ailments."

"Secondly, painful conditions such as neuritis of the back, arm, leg, eye and ear, sciatica and lumbago are frequently caused by the presence of infected teeth and gums."

"I am looking forward to the day when these conditions will be prevented instead of cured by divitalization or extraction."

Dr. Charters tells the profession that effective preventive dentistry depends on the "synchronization of the various dental activities." In early childhood, he declares, correct diet is important and crooked teeth should be straightened. The next important step is oral stimulation by the use of the toothbrush and other instruments.

It is Dr. Charters' opinion that the "keynote of saving one's teeth," regardless of all mouth corrections, is stimulation of the gum tissue, and this can be accomplished only "through correct brushing, and through correct use of various stimulating instruments of which the toothpick is one."

INCREASE IN SALES NOTED BY CHEVROLET COMPANY

The steady gain over 1938 that has marked the Chevrolet sales graph in 1939 held to its course through April, figures released in Detroit today disclosed. Final tabulations for the month of April indicate an increase of 23.3 per cent new passenger car and truck deliveries over April of 1938. Total sales for the month were 76,801.

For the 10-day period ending April 30, Chevrolet sold 29,863 passenger cars and trucks at retail, an increase of 4,669 units over the 25,195 cars and trucks sold in the preceding 10 days.

The final 10-day period rose 26.4 per cent above the figure for the same dates in 1938.

Chevrolet truck sales followed their 1939 upward trend, 5,661 units being retailed during the final 10 days to boost the month's total to 15,133, which is 22.7 per cent over the figure for April, 1938. The final 10 days revealed a gain of 28.4 per cent over the similar period in 1938.

FIRE LOSS ON AMERICAN FARMS $100,000,000 YEARLY

The American farm community suffers more than its proportionate share from the carnage of death and injury due to accidents. The accident record for farmers, in relation to exposure, does not appear to be as good as that of workers in manufacturing industries. Farmers work about half again as many man hours in total, during the year, but they have three fourths again as many accidental deaths.

According to the Delaware Safety Council, the following are some of the most common accidents that cause death or injury to the farmer:

Falls from ladders, haymows, haystacks, windmills, and roofs account for thousands of accidents.

Gears, whirling belts, flywheels, and loose shirt sleeves and coat sleeves around ensilage cutters, corn shellers and threshing machines annually collect their toll. All machinery should be guarded.

Cutting tools left scattered about the place are frequent causes of accidents among adults and especially among children. Replace all tools in a tool house.

Every home should be equipped with a first-aid kit, including bandages and antiseptics, so that minor injuries may be properly treated so as to avoid more serious consequences.

Improper handling of animals causes many accidents. A bull always is dangerous. He may safely be led by using a staff with a snap engaging the nose ring, instead of a loose rope which permits the bull to approach its master.

Farm fires cost $100,000,000 annually in this country. The common cause of fires, on farms are spontaneous combustion, improper maintenance of gasoline and kerosene containers, lightning, overheated stoves, brush and pasture fires which get out of control, improperly thawing out frozen pipes, gas jets too near curtains, burning rubbish too near buildings, improper use of cleaning fluids, and faulty electric wiring.

ner which would have required a three-fourth vote in each House, as provided in the constitution but this failed when the Republicans refused to withdraw their "Ripper" bills and the Democrats accordingly did not vote for the appropriations.

The next move was an attempt to create a three man commission to handle these appropriations but this failed when the State law judges advised Governor McMullen not to sign the measure.

Finally the measures just vetoed were passed providing for payment to State hospitals on a per diem basis and for the State to enter into agreements with the firemen to protect property and similar agreements with other institutions.

In his veto message the Governor explained that the measures just vetoed gave him, as a layman, the impression of attempting to do indirectly what the judges had advised him the Legislature could not do directly.

His message also contained the statement that the Governor expressed his reluctance at feeling compelled to take this action and proposed that the General Assembly reconvene at once for a one-day session.

The Governor assured the majority members of the Legislature that if the "Ripper" legislation was repealed in that one-day session, the minority members would aid in quickly passing the supplementary appropriation bills in their regular constitutional form.

The supplementary appropriations that stand cancelled at the present time as the result of the Republican "Ripper" program are Palmer Home, Dover, $2,900 per year; hospitals throughout the State, $177,000 per year; Delaware Industrial School for Girls, $41,000 per year; volunteer firemen, $30,000 per year; veterans' organizations, $5,000 per year for observance of Memorial Day, Armistice Day, etc.; Delaware Commission for the Blind, $15,000 per year; Layton Home for Aged Colored People, $1-350 per year.

DRIVEAWAY SERVICE GAINS IN POPULARITY AT OLDS

Two great world's fairs, one in New York, the other in San Francisco, are contributing much to the growing popularity of Oldsmobile's convenient customer-driveaway service, according to D. E. Ralston, general sales manager.

"While this method of taking the delivery of a new Oldsmobile has always been popular with motorists in all parts of the country, these two world-famous attractions have greatly stimulated this convenient method," said Ralston. "By accepting their new car at the Oldsmobile factory in Lansing, Michigan, buyers not only effect freight savings but they also have the opportunity of many sight-seeing trips enroute to their destinations," he added.

"In very many cases, our owners explain, they plan to visit one or the other or both of the big world's fairs."

NEW YORK.—Radio, automobiles, airplanes, moving pictures and virtually all the other technical ten-strikes of the modern world came in between the first and second Chicago world's fairs. About all that is brand new at the New York World's fair is television, which took its bow with a telecast at the inaugural ceremonies.

Unlike Britain's garret inventor, John Logie Baird, Allen B. Du Mont, putting his by-line on the new television set, came along through the "channels" in which promising young technicians are grooved these days. Out of Rensselaer Polytechnic institute in 1923, he was employed as a tube engineer with the Westinghouse company in Bloomfield, N. J., until 1937, when he became chief engineer of the De Forest Radio company. But, when he caught the television germ, he did just what Baird did, the only difference being that he held up in a cellar instead of an attic.

It was in 1931 that he quit a good job to play a hunch. The hunch was that the cathode ray was the joker in the flickering television deck. So he dived into his basement, built his laboratory and stayed underground until he was ready to come up with a cathode-ray tube which is pretty nearly the works in television.

In 1937, Mr. Du Mont rounded up some capital and built a sizable two-story laboratory at Montclair, N. J., employing 42 men. By 1938, Paramount pictures had declared itself in a big way, and, at last accounts, Mr. Du Mont's enterprise was virtually a subsidiary of this corporation. That is interesting in view of the fact that, in England, they already are televising events for the moving picture screen. It is indicated that the Du Mont rig may be subject to the same development.

COL. EDWARD STARLING, who confers with Albert Canning, chief constable of Scotland Yard, about guarding the British king and queen on their visit here, is an Chameleon-Like creature on the British Royalty "Deadwood Dick" tradition which the British like to think is typical of this country—a long, lean, reserved, tight-lipped Kentuckian, with a sombrero, the guardian of five Presidents, camera-eyed and a crack pistol shot. He will be there when their majesties go to the White House, but he will not be conspicuous. He merges with the scenery like a chameleon.

He saved Clemenceau's life during the Paris peace conference. Guarding Woodrow Wilson, he rode in an automobile immediately behind the "Trigger" car. He saw an assassin level a gun. Shooting from the hip in a lightning draw, he cracked the killer's wrist.

He is the one man the President has to obey, an advance man who interviews police, maitres d'hotel, transportation officials and chefs, even editing menus, and, on occasion, speeches, if they indicate too much of a tax on the President's receptive energies.

At 17, he was a deputy sheriff of Hopkinsville, Ky. As a special agent for the railroads, he touched off his first national headlines by trapping the "California Kid," a desperate raider who had long eluded capture. President Theodore Roosevelt gave him special assignments which routed him into the White House secret service detail in 1913. In 1935, he became head of the detail, which congress had authorized after assassination of President McKinley.

He is six feet tall, gaunt and serious, graying now, the better to fade into the crowd.

JOHN R. STEELMAN, the government's special mediator in the Appalachian soft coal dispute, was once a "blanket stiff," riding the rods with the hoboes to get Ex-Blanket Stiff Boils Down Our Labor Disputes from Arkansas to the western wheat fields.

There, in the post-war boom days, he earned $4 a day and invested his savings in a Henderson college A. B., a Vanderbilt M. A. and a University of North Carolina Ph. D. Heading the government conciliation service, he smoothed out 4,231 labor disputes, involving 1,618,409 workers, in the 1938 fiscal year. He was an Arkansas farm boy, working the southern logging camps. He is tall and dark, and friendly and easy-going in manner.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LABINE

Tax Revision Brought to Fore By Administration Objection Over Huge Farm Appropriation

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

CONGRESS: Spend, Tax, Save

Excess spending was the complaint of U. S. Chamber of Commerce members at their annual convention. This has also been congress' complaint against President Roosevelt. A few days after the Chamber adjourned, Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins returned from a Potomac cruise with the President to radiate optimism, pooh-pooh the Chamber's complaints and plump for another year's spending as "essential."

Almost as he spoke the senate passed a record agriculture appropriations bill which totaled $1,218,000,000 (compared with the President's budget estimate of $842,126,051). Restored were $225,000,000 in parity payments to growers of wheat, cotton, corn, tobacco and rice, earlier shelved by the house. Added was a $113,000,000 item for disposal of surplus commodities, and an extra $25,000,000 to the original $24,984,000 estimate for a farm tenancy program.

If the senate thought Mr. Hopkins' spending plea meant a green light from the White House, it soon learned otherwise. At his press conference the President rebuked congress for breaking its promise to levy new taxes to meet out-of-pocket costs. Recalled was last session's $212,000,000 farm parity appropriation for which no revenues were provided. Chimed in Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau: "The bill disturbs me greatly. I think that if they are going to add to the present deficit, it should be up to congress to meet the increase. . . . It's about time we began tapering off."

Probable upshot is that the farm appropriations squabble will force consideration this session of two issues treated superficially thus far, namely, economy and tax revision. Said Georgia's Sen. Richard B. Russell, floor leader for the farm bill: "I am strongly opposed to singling out the farm program as the only one which must be reduced, or for which we must levy new taxes. . . . I am willing to economize, but not solely at the expense of the farmer."

Since the President opposes new levies on small taxpayers, tax revision (probably the price congress must pay for its huge farm bill) would likely mean a nice shakeup of upper bracket taxes to secure more revenue.

SECRETARY MORGENTHAU
"It's about time . . ."

If the farm bill is any sample of congressional economizing, this cause will go unsung until another year. Already having appropriated record-breaking army funds under the new defense program, the house coughed up $773,414,214 for the navy, $17,015,212 more than the President asked. Meanwhile a house committee investigating WPA heard Chicago's Mayor Edward J. Kelly, New York's Fiorella H. LaGuardia and other municipal chiefs testify that congress must not curtail relief spending this year lest city folks go hungry.

EUROPE: Peace?

History may relate that Edward, duke of Windsor, helped avert European war in 1939 when he spoke from Verdun's battlefield "simply as a soldier of the last war" to ask that national leaders "renew their efforts to bring about a peaceful settlement." Windsor's speech gave voice to a whisper already in the wind; within 24 hours the dove could raise its head without risking de-capitalization.

Poland. To stop Germany from seizing Danzig and part of the Polish corridor, Poland needs Russian help. Britain's effort to line up the Soviet were blocked by (1) Prime Minister Chamberlain's wariness, and (2) Polish hesitancy over letting Russian troops cross her soil.

Stopping at Warsaw en route home from Turkey, Bulgaria and Rumania, Russia's Vladimir P. Potemkin, first assistant foreign commissar, had a two-hour conference with Polish Foreign Minister Josef Beck. Upshot was a lessening of Polish suspicion. Next day the Soviet proposed a four-power (Russia, France, Poland and Britain) mutual assistance pact to safeguard European peace. Reason: Hitler's denunciation of pacts with Poland and Britain have made a new "peace front" imperative.

Vatican. Pope Pius XII, himself a one-time ace diplomat, had his papal nuncios to Britain, Poland, France, Italy and Germany invite those nations to a conference over the Polish-German question. Though shunned because (1) anti-Axis nations feared it would mean a new Munich appeasement conference, and (2) anti-God Russia was not invited to participate in a discussion which vitally concerns her, the proposal nevertheless brought one possible ray of hope: Hitler and Mussolini rejected it because they believed the European situation not sufficiently serious to endanger peace. The Vatican thought this might mean Hitler does not intend to precipitate trouble right now.

VLADIMIR POTEMKIN
Poland grew less suspicious.

Scandinavia. Foreign ministers of Denmark, Norway, Finland and Sweden apparently rejected proffered non-aggression treaties with Germany. Such pacts are still possible, but by their reluctance Scandinavian states remain a bulwark of neutrality which obviously wants no truck with Der Fuehrer.

Japan. Often reiterated the past month has been Japan's reluctance to turn its anti-Communist pact with Germany and Italy into a military alliance. Reason: Japan wants no war with democracies, which would inevitably result if a new Russ-British-French-Polish entente were to fight Hitler.

PEOPLE: Charlie Again

One summer day in 1874 curly-headed four-year-old Charles Ross and his brother were taken for a ride by two men who promised them Fourth of July fireworks. Charlie's brother was found a few days later but Charlie himself was never found despite 23 ransom letters demanding $20,000 for his release. The best clue was lost when two burglars were shot five months later on Long Island. One, Joseph Douglas, gasped before he died that his dead partner had helped him steal Charlie Ross.

Since then hundreds of abandoned children have been identified as Charlie Ross, but this spring a new candidate arose in Gustav Blair, 62-year-old carpenter at Phoenix, Ariz. Blair claimed his traits and appearance resembled Charlie Ross. Lincoln C. Miller, whose family reared Blair, testified his (Miller's) father had told him Blair was a kidnaped child, that he had guarded the four-year-old child in a cave.

After deliberating eight minutes, a Superior court jury at Phoenix decided on the basis of this testimony that Charlie Ross had been "found." At 65, the horny handed carpenter looked to radio and film contracts.

FORECAST

By Democratic Statistician Emil Hurja, that on basis of current standing Vice President Garner and New York's Tom Dewey will win Democratic and Republican presidential nominations next year, provided President Roosevelt seeks no third term. Meanwhile, a Gallup poll gave Dewey 54 per cent of all Republican votes.

By Washington gossip, appointment of Francis B. Sayre, assistant secretary of state, as Philippine high commissioner to succeed Paul V. McNutt, Democratic presidential aspirant.

Also by Washington gossip, midsummer resignation of Richard C. Patterson, assistant secretary of commerce, to enter either utility field or motion picture industry.

clauses calling for the installation of beacon lights and emergency landing fields.

POLITICS: GOP Liberalism

Though U. S. political power swings pendulum-like from conservatism to liberalism and back again, there is a long-run trend to liberalism. New Deal liberalism will probably be followed by Republican conservatism, but no alert Republican believes his party can win by junking all New Deal reforms and going back to the theories of Coolidge and Hoover days.

A good sample of progressive G. O. P. thinking is that of Minnesota's youthful Gov. Harold Stassen who, according to Dr. Glenn Frank of the party's program committee, believes something like this:

Republicans should accept much of the New Deal's social legislation, first auditing the New Deal's results and soliciting constructive statements regarding G. O. P. philosophy on political and economic problems. Though believing farmers "are ready to repudiate the New Deal," Mr. Stassen warns that the party cannot favor any individual clique like farm, business or labor groups.

Stassen on the 1940 convention: "It is very important that delegates represent genuinely and honestly the sentiment of their states. They should not just be a delegation picked by political bosses. Among them should be some youngsters, some real farmers, real workers."

WHITE HOUSE: Plan No. 2

Legalized by the newly passed governmental reorganization bill, President Roosevelt's No. 1 federal shakeup (effective June 24) created new agencies for public works, lending and welfare. Plan No. 2 followed quickly, a roundup of long-misplaced bureaus whose abolition or consolidation the President believes will save $1,250,000 yearly.

Its most significant feature: Abolition of the unique national emergency council and transfer of its major functions to the President. An immense elaboration of ex-President Hoover's famed "secretariat," NEC has been and will remain a sensitive, nationally organized ear-to-the-ground device whereby the Chief Executive can keep his finger on the public pulse. Its 38 state administrators will probably be retained. Its director, Lowell Mellett, will probably be named one of six presidential assistants with a "passion for anonymity."

Other changes (with former affiliations parenthesized):

To COMMERCE: Inland waterways commission (War); to AGRICULTURE: Rural electrification administration (Independent); to FEDERAL RESERVE: Federal Reserve Board (Independent); to NATIONAL ARCHIVES: Codification board (Independent, to be abolished).

To INTERIOR: Coal commission (Independent, to be abolished); bureau of insular affairs (War); bureau of fisheries (Commerce); biological survey (Agriculture); and U. S. Forest Service (Independent, to be placed in Interior's park service).

To STATE: Foreign commerce service (Commerce); foreign agricultural service (Agriculture); and foreign service buildings commission (Independent).

To TREASURY: Bureau of lighthouses (Commerce); to be placed under Treasury's coast guard; director general of railroads and War Finance corporation (Independent, both to be dissolved).

Expected soon is Plan No. 3, probably shifting jurisdiction over deportable aliens from labor to justice departments, and ironing out jurisdictional overlapping concerning public lands.

ASIA: Up the River

Twenty-two months ago China's capital was Nanking. Japanese aggression pushed it westward up the Yangtze to Hankow, next backward into Szechwan province and the ancient walled city of Chungking. Playing a retreating game, Gen. Chiang Kai-shek knows that the deeper he can draw Japan into his bailiwick, the easier will China's resistance be.

CHINA AND HER CAPITALS
Japan is prepared to follow.

But Generalissimo Chiang did not expect what happened next. Into Chungking (normally 635,000 population) swarmed 1,500,000 refugees, in itself a grave problem. Then one day 45 Japanese war planes swarmed over Chungking, dropping incendiary bombs and demolishers, more than 100 in all. When the smoke cleared China could count 5,000 casualties, a ruined capital and temporarily lost morale.

Germany and Britain found their embassies destroyed. For all concerned it seemed best to move the capital—wheels again, this time 150 miles northeast into Chengtu, whose normal half million population will automatically double overnight.

Peace-loving Chengtu might well regard this official invasion as a death sentence. General Chiang probably hopes an off-the-river capital may break his bad luck jinx, but Tokyo thinks otherwise. Despite British protests that Chungking's bombing was purely terroristic and without a definite military objective, Nippon's warriors announced their death planes were prepared to follow China's capital wherever it may roam.

Early Political Activity Presages Bitter 1940 Presidential Campaign

Widespread Movement Away From New Deal Philosophy of Government Worries Democratic Leaders; Popularity of President Yet to Be Evaluated.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—There seems to be no doubt that the political mill for 1940 has begun to grind earlier than has happened in almost any modern time. Politicians and political forecasters, alike, agree that the activity, the advance agents of the 1940 campaign with its national conventions and presidential nominations and national elections, is evident now to a greater extent than has been recorded in almost any other quadrennial period.

It is to be recognized, of course, that there would be more intensive effort in advance of the 1940 elections than occurred prior to the 1936 national elections because, presumably at least, both great political parties will be sorting over the candidates.

ALFRED M. LANDON

Will not have as much voice in selection of the Republican candidate as Mr. Roosevelt will have in making the Democratic choice.

So, we approach the things that are to be considered and dealt with as campaign questions next year—as seen from this distance.

Is New Deal On the Wane?

I believe it can safely be said as fact recognized by most able political students that the 1938 elections, with the attendant increase in Republican strength in the house and senate, together with the evident trend of thinking throughout the country, that there is a widespread movement away from the New Deal philosophy of government. How far it has gone, or how far it may yet go; how much the personal popularity of President Roosevelt has waned, or how much it may yet fluctuate, and how vigorously Mr. Roosevelt is opposed within his own party are factors yet to be evaluated. But that evaluation has begun; hence, the activity within the Democratic ranks.

The fact that there is a trend away from the New Deal philosophy—not all of those policies, but a very great many of them—is the factor that is causing Democrats, New Dealers as well as anti-administrationists, to scramble around. There is more "under cover" maneuvering of delegates to the Democratic national convention going on right now than I have witnessed thus far in advance during any of the last seven preliminary battles. The faction of the Democratic party that may be roughly delineated as headed by Vice President Garner, Sen. Pat Harrison of Mississippi, and Senator Byrd of Virginia—the old liners—appears determined to rid the party of radical leadership. The group which has stood by President Roosevelt—New Dealers through thick and thin—is overlooking no opportunity to keep the Democratic label pinned upon their faction.

G. O. P. Has Tactical Advantage

Within the Republican ranks there are undoubtedly more of those waiting to see which way the cat will jump than there are among the Democrats. The Republicans, however, have one distinct advantage; they can attack anything and everything the New Deal administration has done. They do not need to defend anything, which is the handicap that burdens each faction of the Democrats to a greater or less extent.

Moreover, the Republicans are not burdened with the will of any one man to which they must give consideration. That is to say, neither former President Hoover nor Gov. Alf Landon, the nominees in 1932 and 1936, respectively, will or can have as much voice in selection of the next candidate as Mr. Roosevelt ordinarily would have in making the Democratic choice. This condition springs from the fact that, as President, Mr. Roosevelt retains titular leadership of his party. Messrs Hoover and Landon, having taken a licking in turn, need not be accepted by the rank and file of the party or by Republican wheelhorses as having any greater rights than others.

And by the same token, the Roosevelt leadership complicates the Democratic picture. Since he has stated with great frequency and with an emphasis that cannot be denied that "there is no turning back," he can be regarded as determined to insist upon selection of a Democratic candidate—either himself or someone else—next year who will push the New Deal forward. And that position, boys and girls, is what the old line faction of the party seem determined now to overturn. As a matter of cold fact, it appears from all of the information available to me that Mr. Roosevelt's determination on this point is really the fundamental basis for the current canyon between the New Dealers and the old liners.

Again, none can foretell how far it will go; but it can be said without equivocation that if that schism continues up to the 1940 nominating conventions, the 1924 convention fight between William Gibbs McAdoo and Al Smith will appear as a tea party. This bitterness can be just as deep seated as that.

Small G. O. P. Machines Demand Recognition

It should not be overlooked, however, that there is hair-pulling in prospect on the Republican side as well. It extends down to the grass roots because of individual thinking that has been taking place. This condition results through lack of a federal political machine. Dozens of small machines have been waging their own tails for so long that they now are demanding recognition from the brass hats at the top.

Further, since there is a growing belief that the Republican presidential nomination in 1940 is "worth something"—that is, that the Republicans have a chance after eight years of political drought—there is an extraordinary crop of favorite sons coming forward.

Concerning the prospective campaign, itself, there again is that uncertainty about Mr. Roosevelt's personal popularity, about the prestige he has or will be able to lend to the mantle bearer of the Democratic party. There is likewise the question as to how much of the New Deal ought to be discarded and how much ought to be kept, and it is not an easy decision to make.

There is, for instance, no question in my mind but that voters everywhere are getting disgusted with too much government. I do not mean to infer that they are unanimous. But the evidence cumulates that the federal government is engaging in too many functions; that it is invading private rights too far; that its general scope is beyond what government was designed to be, and that more and more people are saying "there ought to be some laws repealed" rather than that "there ought to be a law."

Government Spending Causes Dissatisfaction

Another obvious sentiment shows a rather amazing dissatisfaction with continuation of government spending and the creation of added debt. With this, of course, is coupled the general fear of added taxes. It is quite widespread, this feeling that some gloomy years are ahead. While the money flowed as free as water, there was no lack of takers. A change appears to have taken place, however, and from all quarters one hears expressions, or questions, as to how high the taxes will have to be to pay off even a part of the debt.

A third thing that stands out wherever political leaders talk over the campaign problems is the matter of unemployment which, of course, includes the question of whether government would not be serving better if it omitted attempts to "reform" business. It sits down to some of the basic New Deal policies and, say what you will, it is a red hot subject. It remains as a fact that there were 10 or 12 million unemployed when Mr. Roosevelt took office, and there are at least 10 million now. Voters are asking, therefore, whether and how long such a situation can continue without a collapse.

All of these questions, it is to be noted, strike very close to every voter in one way or another. It likewise comes within the range of thought that the man who is elected next year—man, because no woman is yet included in the list—will have a tough time satisfying even a majority of the people. Just as a rail fence guess, or maybe it is a hunch—anyway, I believe the next President will be good for only one term. He will not be popular after four years. As a further guess, I have an idea that the candidate who will be elected next year will be the man who paints the greatest picture of gloom about the situation.

A Quiet Scene

TURN out of the way a little, good scholar, toward yonder high honey-suckle hedge; there we'll sit and sing whilst this shower falls so gently upon the teeming earth, and gives yet a sweeter smell to the lovely flowers that adorn these verdant meadows.

Look, under that broad beech-tree I sat down when I was last this way, a-fishing, and the birds in the adjoining grove seemed to have a friendly contention with an echo, whose dead voice seemed to live in a hollow tree, near to the brow of that primrose-hill; there I sat viewing the other streams glide silently toward their center, the tempestuous sea; yet some times opposed by rugged rocks, and pebble stones, which broke their waves, and turned them into foam; and sometimes I beguiled time by viewing the harmless lambs, some leaping securely in the cool shade, while others sported themselves in the cheerful sun; and saw others craving comfort from the swollen udders of their bleating dams. As I thus sat, these other sights had so fully possessed my soul with content, that I thought, as the poet hath happily expressed it:

I was for that time lifted above earth: And possessed joys not promised in my birth.

—Isaac Walton.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 42), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells. Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life.
