DR. SMITH NAMED ACTIVE HEAD OF BOARD OF HEALTH

To Fill Dr. Jost's Position Until Successor Is Chosen; No Action Nurse Supervisor

BOARD PHYSICIANS REFUSE POST

Dr. E. F. Smith, health officer for Kent county, was authorized by the State Board of Health last Friday to assume the duties of executive secretary until a successor to Dr. Arthur C. Jost is selected.

Dr. Smith has served as Kent county health officer for many years and previously had served in Sussex county.

The resignation of Dr. Jost was accepted by the board with regret. No action was taken in regard to his successor other than the inauguration of plans to seek a man qualified to fill the position.

Dr. Meredith I. Samuel, of Wilmington, and Dr. Charles Wharton, executive director of the Unemployment Compensation Commission, are being mentioned as possible successors to Dr. Jost. It was said definitely that none of the physicians on the board would accept the position.

The question of the appointment of a supervisor of public health nursing to succeed Mrs. Kathryn Trent whose resignation was accepted at the last meeting was considered, but no action was taken. The board will probably not make any appointment to this position until a new executive secretary has been selected.

The meeting was held at the home of Dr. Stanley Worden, president of the board, in Dover. Others who attended included Dr. Margaret I. Handy, Dr. Bruce Barnes, Dr. John F. Maguire, Mrs. Ethel B. Warner and Mrs. Elizabeth H. Martin.

RAISING CROWS AS PETS FAD IN SUSSEX COUNTY

Visitors at Lincoln City, these days are startled when one of the residents walks out on the front porch, calls "Here Pete," or "Here Gregory," at which a black crow flaps down from the top of the walnut tree and stalks into the living room.

Residents of Lincoln City have taken up the fad of raising black crows as pets. No sooner does one family acquire one, than the neighbors think they need one, too.

The crows are caught from the nest before they can fly. They are domesticated with liberal bribes of hamburger. Especially well mannered are to be seen happily flapping about the yards at the George Carpenter, Sherman Transue and Lacey Shockley places.

CHINCOTEAGUE ROUNDUP TIME NEARS FOR PONIES

"Pony Penning Day" when the annual roundup of wild ponies, the only thing of its kind in the East, will take place Thursday, July 27, on Chincoteague Island, on the Eastern Shore of Virginia. Plans are being made to make it one of the best affairs ever held on the island and a record throng of visitors is expected.

The colorful round-up provides the principal feature for the Chincoteague Firemen's Carnival, July 20 to 31. Wild ponies, reputedly descendants of horses escaping from a Spanish galleon off the coast in the 18th century, are rounded up from the marshes surrounding the island and sold at auction.

The penning day is looked forward to not only by the people of the Shore, but many sections of the country, particularly along the Atlantic Seaboard. Islanders are preparing for more than 8,000 visitors.

There will also be a water carnival sponsored by the U. S. Coast Guard, and pony races, boat races, special seafood dinners and numerous other attractions in connection with the round-up.

Chincoteagueans, who own the wild ponies conduct the round-up, brand their newcomers, select those of marketable age, and turn the rest loose again. The fishermen are now using their painters and lassoes and practicing up for their annual cowboy role.

The penning day, when the mustangs are auctioned off to the highest bidder, has come to be a community day on Chincoteague. The ponies are driven in from the marshes and forced to swim across from the neighboring islands. When the sale is completed, those remaining are returned to their native ranges.

Dover Woman Landed 68-Lb Fish

Mrs. Maurice W. Carrow, of Dover, fishing 40 miles off shore at Ocean City, Md., Monday, caught a 68-lb. marlin, after battling with same for 47 minutes. It is believed to be the record catch by a woman so far this season at the resort.

$1,712,500 ROAD WORK PROJECTS THIS YEAR

Construction projects totaling almost one and three-quarter million dollars are on the program of the Delaware State Highway Department thus far this year, according to the records of the department.

The twenty-eight construction projects will have a total cost of $1,712,500. Some of the projects are already completed while others are now in course of construction and contracts on two others remain to be awarded.

Included in the projects are main and secondary roads, some of which have been widened, and the replacement of some bridges. Construction of approaches to new buildings in various parts of the State were also included in the program.

Of the total amount of money being spent this year, $1,442,000 is federal aid money while the balance of $270,500 is State money.

The construction program for the present year is slightly larger than the programs of recent years and has provided for a larger amount of employment of various sections of all three counties where the different projects on the program are located.

BACKYARD BERRIES

Clyde A. Pentz, an artisan well driver near Denton, practiced an innovation new to this part of the country, during the strawberry season recently passed. He raised the strawberries in barrels.

He filled two barrels with rich soil and placed a tile in the center of each to retain moisture. Holes were bored in the sides of the barrels and plants inserted in them. Pentz says the method conserves space, facilitates picking besides insuring cleaner berries and less waste, and eliminating cultivation. The two barrels furnished enough strawberries to supply Pentz' family of four every other day.

INVENTS FISHING SINKER

Loren Calloway has made an improvement on the dipsie, or lead sinker, used in surf fishing. The conventional dipsie has four sides and is shaped like a pyramid. This form is hardly suitable for cross tides, such as those at Cape Henlopen, as the tides make it turn over and over, giving the fisherman the impression he has a bite. Calloway now uses a three-sided pyramid dipsie which the tide merely slides in the sand. When a fish bites the fisherman is not fooled.

Calloway makes his own dipseys. He puts clay in a cigar box and punches the molds with a stake pointed like a dipsie. He pours molten scrap lead in the molds and inserts a wire in the center, looped at one end to hold the line. He suggests that keys used to open cans of potted meats and sardines could be used. Calloway says the home-made dipseys save him considerable money.

A truck owned by Phillips Brothers of Salisbury, contractors on the road widening project between Harrington and Milford, caught fire Saturday night but was easily extinguished by the local fire department. The truck was loaded with flares.

James P. Rogers, 82, retired farmer of Greenwood, died Saturday morning in the Milford Memorial Hospital. Surviving are a son and three daughters. Funeral services were held from the Hardesty Funeral Parlor at Bridgeville Monday morning with interment in Bridgeville Cemetery.

Ernest Smith of Vernon, probably marketed some of the earliest wheat of the season, besides getting a good yield. Three weeks ago he harvested 156 bushels from seven acres and marketed it at the Harrington Milling Company at 63 cents per bushel. Smith sowed red clover and lespedeza in his grain and reports that the latter legume did much better than the former during the recent dry weather. Smith farms 22 acres and expects to turn eventually to poultry and dairying to realize the maximum returns. Recently he sold a Holstein cow for 80 dollars to Abe Wyatt of Felton.

BOY SCOUTS TO ASSIST FAIR OFFICIALS AGAIN

Delaware Scouts are again going to encamp at the Harrington Fair grounds to give assistance to the Kent and Sussex Fair Officials and visitors during the period of the Fair from July 25 to 30 under direction of Howard A. Solomon, Field Scout Executive, Salisbury. The Scouts will be recruited from Kent, Sussex and New Castle Counties reporting on the Scout Camp grounds Monday, July 24 at 9:30 A. M., Standard Time.

Scouts will erect a tent city south of the race track where visitors are cordially invited to see the Boy Scout Encampment during the day and evening. The boys will be assigned to special duty, assisting the fair ground officials, in exhibitions, ushering at the grandstand, parking cars, and numerous other services and good turns.

This is the fourth year in which the Del-Mar-Va Council Boy Scouts have rendered services at the Fair.

It is a valuable experience for the boys as well as an appreciated service to the many visitors coming to the Fair. Selection of the Scouts to make up this Provisional Troop is being made on the basis of age, experience and Scout Rank.

60 POISONED BY FOOD DURING CHURCH PICNIC

Overworked physicians this week sought a clue to the food poisoning which felled more than 60 persons who attended a church picnic Saturday at Rehoboth. Md. State Board of Health technicians were called in an effort to isolate the germ to determine if it is contagious.

Dr. D. S. Fisher, acting health officer, for Wicomico County, said every sanitary precaution was being taken to prevent spread of the malady, which struck every virtually picnicer who attended the event sponsored by the Methodist Protestant Church.

Dr. William Emrich, only physician in the town of 900, had patients on every street.

"Some of the victims are critically ill," Dr. Emrich said, "we are hopeful however, that all will eventually recover."

Dr. Emrich has been working day and night since the first victims collapsed Saturday night. Since then there has been a steady flow of calls to his office, as more and more participants in the picnic supper fell ill.

Approximately 40 were stricken Monday and Saturday, with more than a score asking medical aid. In some cases entire families are affected.

Health authorities were inclined to blame home-made ice cream, in which unsterilized milk was used, for the poison epidemic. Sources of the milk were being traced as physicians worked under pressure to relieve the victims and prevent spread of the malady through the community, if it develops that the ailment is contagious.

BANDIT BINDS FOUR IN FAMILY; SEIZES $420

A masked bandit, who early Monday bound and gagged a family of four south of Delmar and escaped with $420 in his victims car, is being sought by police.

The search shifted to the Wilmington area Monday night after state police found the automobile abandoned on the duPont Boulevard near Wrangle Hill.

The car was identified as the property of Mrs. Rose Kircher, 50, operator of a service station near Delmar, who returned to her Maryland home early Monday morning to find her daughter Harriett, 16, and a son, Edwin, 18, trussed up with strips of sheeting and a masked man sitting in the living room holding a long-barreled revolver.

"I've been waiting an hour and a half for you," the intruder said as he bound the woman's hands and feet. Just then Nicholas Meglio, Mrs. Kircher's brother, entered the house. After binding Meglio in the same fashion, the bandit searched his victims.

In Mrs. Kircher's pocketbook, he found $420, including the service station receipts. He also took the woman's diamond ring and a class ring from Edwin. Threatening to shoot the children if anyone made an outcry, the man jumped into the Kircher car, a dark green sedan, and drove away.

Edwin was the first to free himself. He notified the state police sub-station which broadcast the alarm to Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland police.

The bandit was described as about 24 years old, 5 feet, 11 inches tall, and of dark complexion. During the hold-up, a black hood covered part of his face and he wore a black hat, long overcoat and black gloves. Harriett told police the man forced an entry into the home at 11:30 P. M., Sunday. After binding her and her brother, who had been asleep, he sat down to await the return of Mrs. Kircher. Although the mother did not appear until an hour and a half later, the visitor appeared little perturbed at the delay, the girl said.

KENT-SUSSEX FAIR OPENS ON TUESDAY NEXT HERE

With the twentieth annual Kent and Sussex Fair only a few days off, things are beginning to hum at the fair grounds. In an attempt to live up to its well-earned reputation, the officials are leaving nothing undone to provide special features for the program each day, in addition to the usual program of horse racing. Several racing stables are quartered at the track with the trainers putting the trotters and pacers through their daily workouts.

The fair will be from July 25 to 29, inclusive, five days and nights. However, for the past two or three years the management has been putting on feature shows on Monday nights. This year the fair's patrons will be entertained by Jimmy Lynch and his "Death Dodgers," who defy serious injury and possible death as auto stunt drivers. Jimmy hails from Texas and was a Texarkana garage mechanic when he invented rough riding on an automobile hood and developed this feature into the show business. The outstanding mystery of his act is the fact that he rides saddle back on the hood of an automobile with no one inside driving the car. He is assisted by a company of thirteen. It is estimated that he smashes from 35 to 40 cars annually.

Tuesday, the opening day, will be "Children's Day" as usual, when all children will be admitted to the grounds free. A feature for the opening day will be a drill and music by what is proclaimed Delaware's outstanding girls' drum and bugle corps from Cranston Heights. This organization competes in parades several times during the season and has been most successful in securing first prize or at least second.

Many new features will be presented for the first time this year. One feature will be "Zacchini," who will be shot from a cannon 270 feet in the air over a double ferris wheel. This feature will be shown twice daily.

President B. I. Shaw and Secretary Ernest Raughley are optimistic over a successful year. No new buildings were erected this year, but Superintendent J. Frank Graham is already busy supervising the painting and making minor repairs so that everything will be in first class shape for the opening date.

Due to circumstances beyond the control of the fair directors, they are forced to announce that cash awards to exhibitors will be reduced one-third on all awards from $1.50 to $3.00, and fifty per cent on awards over $3.00. However, this announcement is made on the status of the annual appropriation usually made by the State Legislature for prize awards. The officials sincerely regret this necessary action and are hoping the Legislature will pass the measure soon after they reconvene so that the full amount of the awards can be made.

Another feature for Tuesday will be running races, the class will include any horse not eligible to enter the running races on Wednesday or Friday. On these days the card will include many thoroughbreds. Two one-mile heats will be raced each day, the award being $50 per heat—money divided into four purses. Ponies exhibited at the fair will also be entered in a pony race.

In addition to the exhibits, which cover many acres of space, horse racing will be the top feature from Tuesday afternoon through Friday afternoon. On Saturday, the closing date, thrilling auto races will be held, sanctioned by the American Automobile Association and under the personal direction of Ralph A. Hankinson, assisted by several aides. Between the races each day vaudeville acts will be produced on the stage opposite the grandstand. The acts will include: Fantasies of 1939, comedy acts, daring trapeze performers, an elephant act, an act high in the air, novelty entertainers and disappearing water ballet.

For Wednesday the officials plan to introduce a feature never before tried on a race track in this section of the country. They are going to try a foxhound race in which 200 foxhounds are expected to be entered. Prizes will be awarded to the winners.

Thursday will be Governor's Day and soon after the arrival of the governor a cattle parade will be held on the race track. Music lovers attending the fair always appreciate the quality of the music supplied by Joe Basile and his Madison Square Garden Band. Joe has been playing this fair so many seasons he is almost considered a permanent fixture. The Devil Dodgers will also appear in their act on the race track Friday night. A dazzling display of fireworks will be a nightly feature to hold the attention of the visitors and after that many will visit the carnival grounds where dozens of rides and shows will be in operation.

I Issue Marriage License.—Squire Joshua Smith.

For Sale—Attractive aprons, assorted styles and sizes. Fast colors.—Mrs. C. S. Morris.

TELLS FIREMEN TRAFFIC RULES MUST BE OBEYED

Fire companies were criticized by Corporal F. C. O'Neal of the State Police on their speed and the disregard of stop signs at highway crossings in responding to fire alarms at the meeting of the Kent County Firemen's Association held at Bowers Beach Wednesday night.

Corporal O'Neal, who is a member of the Harrington company, said if the practice is not curbed, some of the drivers may be "introduced to a magistrate."

The officer cited his own company as one of the offenders.

About 24 firemen took part in the fishing trip on Delaware Bay Wednesday afternoon offered as part of the entertainment by the South Bowers Fire Company. On the trip most of the firemen made better catches than the yid on the trip last month, the party caught 200 crocus.

The delegates meeting at the fire house for the business session in the evening, were welcomed by Vice-president Donald Jester of the Dover company.

The companies in the county were asked to consider forming a firemen's bowling league. The delegates were instructed to confer on the subject with their individual companies.

Since a recent disastrous fire which destroyed some farm property in the South Bowers area, the old question of water shortage on farms was discussed. The firemen now are seeking the cooperation of farmers, urging them to provide a few barrels to be kept filled with water.

Other speakers included Chief Doctor T. C. Beswick, of Upper Darby, Pa., and State Treasurer Caleb W. Johnson.

ELLENDALE MAN LANDS BIG SHARK OFF BOWERS

A large tiger shark was caught about twelve miles off Bowers Beach Sunday afternoon by a fishing party headed by Teddy Walrus, of Elpendale.

After an exciting struggle in which all the members of the party participated with gaff hooks and ropes, the shark was subdued and lashed to the boat. Hauled ashore at Bowers Beach it was found to measure 8 feet 9 inches in length, and its weight was estimated at 350 pounds.

MISS HAZEL HUGHES TO BECOME BRIDE

The engagement of Miss Hazel Hughes, daughter of Mrs. Walter Hughes and the late Mr. Hughes of Felton, and Burton Willis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan S. Willis of Milford, was announced at a birthday dinner held recently in honor of Miss Hughes.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. George Slater, Mr. and Mrs. James Raughley, of Milford, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Hammond, Mrs. Benjamin Rash, Miss Dorothy Hughes, Ronald Morrow, of Felton and Robert Donaway of Federalburg.

Milton Bland recently caught a 55-lb. drum at the Cotton Patch, between Indian River Inlet and Bethany Beach, on a nine-strand 27-lb. wet test Zane Grey line, while surf fishing. He used squid as bait and battled the fish 15 minutes before being acclaimed the victor. Sunday afternoon, using the same bait and equipment, Bland caught 11 trout, averaging 2 to 3 pounds, in an hour, at Cape Henlopen.

Loren Calloway and sons, Gooden and Jim, and Eugene Anderson, caught 19 trout while surf fishing at Cape Henlopen last week. The fish averaged 1½ to 2 pounds, and were caught on peeler crabs.

HARRINGTON AREA DEVELOPING AS BROILER SECTION

Fred B. Greenly, One Of Largest Producers In County, Has Plant Near Town

TO ENLARGE BUSINESS NEXT FALL

Fred Greenly, largest broiler producer in this section of the county, believes Delaware chicks make the ideal broilers. "I think 90 per cent of the chicks used in Delaware broiler industry have been coming from New England," Greenly said, "but I believe the trend is turning towards Delaware chicks because they are more acclimated."

At an auction at his broiler house on the Cahall place, on the Frederica road, early last month, Greenly sold 7000 broilers, averaging 3.3 lbs., at 16½c. These came from chicks purchased from Bridgeville. At the same time he sold 8000 birds, averaging 2.8 lbs., at 15½c. These birds were raised from New England chicks handled exactly like Delaware chicks. D. E. Handley, who also has a plant on the Frederica road, is another poultryman who has switched to Delaware chicks, Greenly said.

Greenly raises around 40,000 broilers annually. He prefers a hybrid, the progeny of New Hampshire Red hens and Barred Rock cockerels. "Hybrids are more rugged than either of their parents," Greenly declared. "The mortality rate is lower, they grow faster, and are more uniform."

At present he is raising 12,000 birds six weeks old. Usually he carries them 14 weeks at which time they will weigh 3 to 3½ lbs.

This Harrington poultryman has a broiler house 466 feet long, probably the largest in the county. In the center is a feed room, with seven rooms for birds on each side. Always when passing through the feed room, from one section of the house to another, employees are required to wet their shoes in a pan of disinfectant, a strong solution of carbolic acid. Over the feed room is a three-room apartment for an employe, Harvey Passwaters. In the fall Greenly plans to erect a house to hold 15,000 birds.

Because of the rapid growth and fine shade of the beautiful mimosa trees, Greenly expects to set out a row of them soon near his plant.

HARRINGTON'S MIMOSA TREES

Those Harringtonians having mimosa trees on their lawns are indeed fortunate. This legume, a member of the family Mimosaceae, natives of tropical and warm regions, delights the onlooker with its globular pink and white flowers. At night and early morning it makes its presence known by the aroma of its blossoms.

We know of no mimosa trees in Harrington ten years ago. Now they are fairly plentiful. Herbert VonGoerres of Delaware avenue has two; Arlie Wix of Delaware avenue has one; William Barlow and Fred Greenly of Dorman street have one each; Albert S. Gottlieb of Delaware avenue has one, and Howard Kootz of Mechanic street has one. There are a number of others in town. We would like to know who had the first one.

Mimosa trees are beneficial. Being a legume, they take nitrogen from the air and store it in the soil, just like alfalfa and soy beans.

A Few Little Smiles

HERE AND THERE

An Irishman entered a ticket office one day and inquired the fare to Chicago.

"Ten dollars," returned the clerk, "but we are making a special rate today. We'll sell you a round-trip ticket for fifteen dollars."

"A round-trip? What do you mean?" puzzled the Irishman.

"Yes," explained the clerk, "you can go to Chicago and back."

"Well," said Pat, "what do I want to come back for, when I'm already here?"

False Alarm

The host showed his guest into his bedroom.

"I hope you're not nervous, old chap," he said, "but this room is supposed to be haunted."

"Haunted!" exclaimed the guest.

"What by?"

"A wraith—a spectre!"

"A w-what?"

"A wraith—a spectre."

The guest sighed with relief, and the color returned to his cheeks.

"Oh, that's all right!" he said at last. "At first I thought you said a rate collector!"

THIS WAY IN

"Young lady, I shall never darken your doors again."

"How y' gonna git in—through the windows?"

More Profitable

An amiable old man, a visitor, was trying to win the friendship of the small daughter of the house.

"I'll give you a nickel for a kiss," he said.

"No, thank you," she replied sweetly. "I can make more money taking castor oil."

Something Picturesque

"You can win in a walk," said the admiring friend enthusiastically.

"Public sentiment would never be satisfied with anything so sedate and orderly," answered Senator Sorghum. "Can't you arrange for me to win in an airplane or a parachute jump?"

Something From Above

"Isn't there danger," said the timid man, "of dropping things from an airplane on the people below?"

"That isn't the worst," answered the candid inventor, "you're lucky if the whole thing doesn't fall on you."

Hey, That Girl's In Again!

He—Why did you send that poor fellow back for your cold cream? He'll never find it.

She—I only wanted to get the chap off my hands.

People Are Too Suspicious

Judge—How could you swindle people who trusted in you?

Prisoner—But, judge, people who don't trust you can't be swindled.

That's Different

Office Boy—Sorry, but you can't see Mr. Blodgett.

Caller—Is he in conference?

Office Boy—No, he's busy.

WRECKLESS DRIVING?

"When he'd smashed his car to splinters like that?"

Hard to Please

"In running for office," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "you cannot please every one; the best that you can do is to look benignly pleasant and convey the impression that everybody pleases you."

On a Dude Ranch

Cowboy—What kind of saddle do you want—one with or without a horn?

Dude—Without a horn, I guess. There doesn't seem to be much traffic out on these prairies.

Chief Concern

First Farmer—Which is correct, "A hen is sitting" or "A hen is setting"?

Second Farmer—I don't know, and I don't care. All I bother about is when she cackles—is she laying or is she lying!

Maybe It's Well

Tough Tommy

Maid—No, 'ceptin' he swallowed a bug soon after you left but I give him some insect powder right away so they's no need to worry about that.

Hollywood Bound

"Dearie, you're engaged to five men. What are you going to do about it?"

"I'm going into the movies, and marry them all within five years."

All Square

He was a stout man, with large, broad feet, and although several pairs of boots were shown to him he refused them.

"I must have square toes," he explained to the assistant.

The young man sighed. "But square toes are not stocked now, sir," he insisted. "Pointed toes are fashionable this season."

The stout man gave an angry stare. "That may be," he retorted, "but I happen to be wearing last season's feet."

Possible, But

Cooling Summer Drinks

Can you think of anything more cooling and refreshing than a frosty glass of ice cold beverage sprigged with mint and tinkling with ice cubes? Neither can I. There's something about a cold, tart-tasting drink that seems to lower the temperature several degrees.

I like to keep a variety of chilled drinks in my refrigerator to meet the demands of sultry weather; a sparkling punch to serve during mid-afternoon when everyone is wilted and weary; old-fashioned lemonade for thirsty youngsters and grown folks, too; or cool, refreshing iced tea to serve with meals, or whenever the occasion warrants.

Iced tea is a summer standby, and properly prepared it's truly delicious. Follow these simple rules for making it, if you like to serve to your family and your guests the clear, sparkling, faintly fragrant tea that's delightfully refreshing.

Make Modern Laundry Out of Waste Space

Waste space upstairs can easily be fashioned into a modern laundry, brightened up with paint and hung with some of those attractive low-priced curtains that are always bobbing up in such variety. If you read floor plans of modern houses you have discovered the growing trend for off-the-kitchen-laundries. Equipment designed for such rooms includes washers that pump themselves empty.

Ironing has always been an upstairs operation, mostly because it is easier to transfer ironed clothes to proper storing places without danger of over-mussing. Many ironers have table tops that serve a real purpose in the small kitchen, and there are washers tailored to kitchen size, too.

House Cleaning Is Made Easy by Use of Vacuum

The days are gone forever when, to clean a rug thoroughly, it was necessary to hang it on a clothesline or lay it on the grass and beat it with a bamboo or steel wire contraption.

Today, thanks to electricity and the vacuum cleaner, rug beating is a thing of the past in millions of homes. Moreover, in addition to eliminating much work and drudgery, the vacuum cleaner raises practically no dust and thus greatly reduces the time required for dusting.

Pleasant Room for a Pair of Brothers

By BETTY WELLS

GRANTED that nurseries are mostly decorated for the pleasure of parents—the children usually like them in a superior sort of way. We saw a room for a pair of little brothers recently that managed both to set off the children and express the parents' goodly gaily.

The wall paper is called "Two By Two" because it is a Noah's Ark pattern with all the animals in plaids and pastels. Everything else in the room went two by two also—two twin beds, two little low chests, two little desks, two little chairs, all painted pale green. Most of the furniture could be used by older children as these two grew up. A plain green broadloom rug covered the floor.

The bedspreads were quilts of large and white squares with a large center medallion in each quilt with appliqued animals copied after the wall paper motifs. Each little chair had a slip cover of green. Curtains were plain white dotted swiss. On one wall a large green glass blackboard provided plenty of space to scribble, and each of the two closets were completely built-in with sectional compartments that could be shifted as the boys grew older.

This was a good-sized room that could with few shifts be converted into a study-sitting room. The beds, being full length, have springs and mattresses that will make fine studio couches some day and the small chests could be end tables. Across one end of the room a built-in unit might include a wide wall-to-wall table top desk with shelves above and drawer and file compartments below. The walls by that time would be done over of course, perhaps in a natural grass cloth paper that looks a lot like tweed, then why not curtains and spreads in cotton serge in a Scotch plaid pattern. The green rug might still be all right to keep if it was a good one in the first place.

Victory Parade of A. E. F. 'Corps d' Elite' in Paris Twenty Years Ago Recalls Grand Review Of the 'Boys in Blue' in Washington in 1865

THE "BIG PARADE" OF 1919—The A. E. F. Composite Regiment just before passing through the Arc de Triomphe, Place de l'Etoile, in Paris. (U. S. Army Signal Corps Photograph)

The "BIG PARADE" OF 1865—Union troops marching down Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington. (From the painting by James E. Taylor)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

MOST Americans are familiar with the story of the "Grand Review" of the Union army which took place in Washington soon after the Civil war ended. But it is doubtful if many of them recall a similar "Victory Parade" which followed a more recent conflict even though it occurred only 20 years ago this month. One reason, of course, is that it was staged 3,000 miles away, in the capital of a foreign land. Therefore it was witnessed by only a few Americans, whereas 64 years earlier more than 100,000 of them had crowded the streets of the capital of their own country to cheer their victorious warriors.

The "Big Parade" of 1865, held in Washington on May 23 and 24, was the march of 179,000 veterans of the Army of the Potomac and 65,000 of the Army of the West, representatives of the total of nearly 3,000,000 men who had been called into service to save the nation from disunion.

The "Big Parade" of 1919, held in Paris on July 14, France's national holiday of Bastille day—was a march of only 3,200 American soldiers but they symbolized the armed might of more than 4,000,000 men whom Uncle Sam had mobilized to serve in the greatest war the world has ever known. And they were all picked men, these 3,200, for it was a composite regiment which was the "Corps d' Elite" of the A. E. F. The story of that regiment, unique in American military history, was told in a recent issue of the U. S. Army Recruiting News as follows:

On April 21, 1919, Maj. Gen. Joseph T. Dickman, then commanding the Third Army at Coblenz, Germany, issued the following instructions:

"The Commander-in-Chief will send to England about May 24 from Antwerp, a Composite Regiment of Infantry consisting of 12 companies organized from the Third Army. "This Regiment must consist of the best officers, noncommissioned officers and men of the Third Army. It will give exhibitions in England and possibly later in other countries. "You will immediately organize in your Division two composite companies of Infantry . . . selecting the largest, most snappy and best looking officers and men for these two companies . . ."

On May 10 the composite companies assembled at the Carnival grounds in Coblenz. The Third Army Composite Regiment was formally organized on May 18, 1919, the composite companies of the several Divisions being given regimental designations as follows:

Composite Co. from: Designated:
1st Brigade, 1st Div. Co. "A"
2nd Brigade, 1st Div. Co. "B"
5th Brigade, 3rd Div. Co. "C"
6th Brigade, 3rd Div. Co. "D"
4th Brigade, 2nd Div. Co. "E"
3rd Brigade, 2nd Div. Co. "F"
9th Brigade, 5th Div. Co. "G"
10th Brigade, 5th Div. Co. "H"
7th Brigade, 4th Div. Co. "I"
8th Brigade, 4th Div. Co. "K"
11th Brigade, 6th Div. Co. "L"
12th Brigade, 6th Div. Co. "M"

Col. Conrad S. Babcock assumed command of the Composite Regiment on May 19, and the regiment began drilling and performed the usual camp duties at the Carnival grounds until June 15, when it entrained for Joinville-le-Pont on the outskirts of Paris.

Reviewed by Pershing. On the afternoon of June 22 the third battalion tendered a reception to Gen. John J. Pershing at the Pershing stadium, following which the regiment was reviewed and inspected by the president of France and General Pershing.

On July 4, at 6:30 a. m., the regiment embarked for Paris to parade in that city, forming in the historic Place de la Concorde and passing in review before the president of France and General Pershing.

On July 14 a provisional battalion embarked at four a. m. for Paris, forming on Boulevard Neully. The American column moved forward over the parade route, passing under the famous Arc de Triomphe and paying honors to the monument of the war dead in the Place de l'Etoile and to the president of France at the head of the Boulevard Champs Elysees.

The Composite regiment left Le Havre on July 16 and arrived at Southampton, England, that evening. On the afternoon of July 17 it arrived in London.

Inspected by Prince of Wales. The next morning the regiment formed in Hyde park for a parade in a medal presentation ceremony, afterwards being inspected and reviewed by the prince of Wales and General Pershing.

Again the next morning the picked body of American soldiers formed in Hyde park for a parade past the saluting point at the Queen Victoria monument, the salute being received there by King George V in the reviewing stand.

On July 23 the Composite regiment entrained for Southampton, and sailed at six p. m., for Le Havre, arriving at the French port the following morning. Disembarking immediately upon arrival at Le Havre, the regiment entrained for its encampment at Joinville-le-Pont. On July 31, the regiment was reviewed by General Pershing, the last such review by the Commander-in-Chief, A. E. F., of the Composite regiment overseas.

Orders having been received for the regiment to move to Brest and prepare to sail for the United States, the command left Joinville-le-Pont on August 4 and detrained at Brest two days later. Until August 29 it engaged in drills and camp duties at Brest, embarking on the transport "Leviathan" on the twenty-ninth and sailing for the United States the next day.

Return to America. The big steamship docked at Hoboken, N. J., on September 8, and the Composite Regiment went into camp at Camp Mills on Long Island, N. Y. On September 10 the regiment paraded on Fifth avenue, New York city, as escort troops of honor to the general of the armies, John J. Pershing. Five days later it left Camp Mills and moved by rail to Washington, D. C., in which city it paraded with the "Fighting First" Division, A. E. F., on September 17. During the remainder of the month it was stationed at Camp Meade, Maryland, and was processed for demobilization, which was completed on September 30, 1919.

his prancing steed which ran off.

But, writes Frederick F. Van De Water in "Glory Hunter": "Don Juan is running away with a man no horse ever outwitted. Rider and charger flash by the grandstand at a hard run. Beyond the stand Custer masters his rebellious steed and amid wild cheering, gallops back to his place in line. When he passes a second time, erect and soldierly at the head of his division, all men know him and call his name."

The "Grand Review" of May 23-24, 1865, was the idea of Edwin M. Stanton, secretary of war in President Lincoln's and President Johnson's cabinet. To celebrate the end of the war and to give the people an opportunity to look upon the men who had saved the nation, he suggested that the Army of the Potomac and the Army of the West, then camped near Washington, be formally reviewed in the capital before being discharged from service and returned to their homes. Accordingly, Gen. U. S. Grant, commander-in-chief, issued an order for the review.

Public and private buildings in Washington were decorated for the occasion. Floating flags and draped bunting were everywhere and at prominent places along the line of march were erected triumphal arches covered with floral embellishments. In front of the White House four reviewing stands were built, decorated with regimental battle flags and flowers. The school children of the city, the girls dressed in white and the boys in black jackets and white trousers, were assembled on the terraces and balconies of the Capitol to sing patriotic songs as the soldiers passed.

Shortly before nine o'clock on the morning of May 23 a thrill of expectancy ran through the crowd as the magic word, "Here they come!" passed down the line. The blast of a trumpet, the roll of drums—and down the avenue came a little group of horsemen. At their head rode a bearded officer, on his shoulder straps two silver stars. It was Maj. Gen. George Meade, the victor of Gettysburg, who was leading the Army of the Potomac. Behind him clattered his mounted escort and then in solid rank on rank the men who had fought with Grant at Spotsylvania, at Cold Harbor, in the Wilderness, and at Petersburg, and the men he had divided their rations with the men in gray at Appomattox. Their uniforms were soiled and faded, for there had been no brushing up for this occasion. They marched in the garb in which they had fought.

General Meade lifted his sword in salute as he rode past the main reviewing stand in front of the White House. In it sat President Johnson and members of his cabinet. Grouped around them, in brilliant uniform, were the diplomats and envoys of foreign countries. On the President's left sat a stubby, bearded little man who had led his host to victory—Lieut. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant. Back of them stood distinguished officers of the army and navy—Halleck, Meigs, Hancock "the Superb" and Burnside "the Splendid but Unfortunate."

Shortly before three o'clock that afternoon the first day of the parade had ended. It had taken the veterans of the war in the East more than six hours to pass the reviewing stand. On the morrow their brother veterans from the West would have their chance for the plaudits of the crowd. "Before daylight the fire companies of the city were out watering the streets for the splendid military display of General Sherman's army" reads a contemporary newspaper account of the second day of the review. "At nine o'clock General Sherman, heading the column, marched down Pennsylvania avenue amid the din of huzzas and congratulations and a hailstorm of bouquets and wreaths."

But if this review represented all the pomp and circumstance of war, there was a reflection of its horror and cruelty, too, in the march of Sherman's men. For along with them marched thousands of freed slaves, sheep, goats, pigs, cows and horses, which "Sherman's Bummers" had picked up along the way. In their ambulances and pack trains were game cocks, poultry, calves, jewelry and a miscellaneous collection of other articles, brought with them back from their campaign of devastation through the South. Perhaps the cheering crowds, looking upon these men in blue as the saviors of the nation, gave but little thought to the true meaning of that strange spectacle, nor realized the agony of defeat, or hunger, and of poverty for years to come for the people of their own blood which this part of the triumphal march represented.

Meade had given orders that the parade should start promptly at nine o'clock and his punctuality in obeying his own orders caught the dignitaries napping. For he arrived at the reviewing stand before they took their places in it!

Not long after the review, a woman made some slurring remarks about the Union soldiers to Sherman. "Well, Madam," he replied, "you surely can't expect the possessions of all the cardinal virtues for $13 a month."

ADVENTUROUS AMERICANS

By Elmo Scott Watson

Indian Painter

THE early painters of American Indian life were all adventurous men, but John Mix Stanley had more than his share of perils and narrow escapes from death.

Stanley first became interested in Indians in 1838 and went to Fort Snelling, Minn., to paint them. During the next eight years he made frequent visits to picture the tribes of the Southwest. In 1846 he joined the famous march of General Kearney and his dragoons from Santa Fe to San Diego, during which time he laid down his painter's brush to take up a gun and fight in several engagements.

The next year Stanley found more excitement awaiting him in the North. He narrowly escaped being in the Whitman massacre when that missionary, his wife and 11 others were killed by the Cayuses in eastern Washington. He had another close call when he returned to San Francisco to take ship for New York via Cape Horn, for he arrived just too late to go aboard. That ship was lost at sea and was never heard of again.

In 1853 Stanley was appointed artist to the expedition sent to explore a route for a Pacific railroad from St. Paul to Puget Sound. After a series of adventures with that expedition, he returned to the East, where he died in 1872. The last years of his life were saddened by the loss of more than 150 paintings of Indian life which he had spent 10 years in making and which were destroyed by a fire in the Smithsonian institution in 1865.

Aguinaldo's Captor

IN 1901 America had a new national hero—a little man with a slight limp, with a Van Dyke beard and a sense of humor that bubbled in him like the effervescence of wine. His name was Frederick Funston, former student at the University of Kansas, newspaper reporter and member of a filibustering expedition to deliver to Cuban revolutionists five Hotchkiss guns for use against the Spanish. He was made a captain of artillery and in 18 months fought in 22 engagements. Then the Spanish put a price on his head and he barely managed to escape and return to the United States.

At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war Funston raised a regiment of Kansas volunteers and was made its colonel. He was sent to the Philippines and aided in the capture of Manila. In August, 1898, Emilio Aguinaldo started an insurrection against the new masters of the islands and for the next three years led 70,000 American soldiers and their native auxiliaries a merry chase.

Finally he was located in southern Luzon and Funston, by now a brigadier-general of volunteers, formed a daring plan to capture him. Taking two captains and two lieutenants, Funston led a party of 80 Macabee scouts toward Aguinaldo's hiding place. They were to pass themselves off as a detachment of insurgent Tagalogs who had captured these five Americans and were bringing them to Aguinaldo. It was a risky business for everything depended upon the faithfulness of the Macabebes.

But they played their part to perfection and the American "captives" were delivered to Aguinaldo. Then they revealed their identity and calmly informed Aguinaldo that he was their prisoner.

Confederate Mail Runner

FOR 10 years before the Civil war Absalom Grimes was a Mississippi river pilot running between St. Louis and St. Paul. At the outbreak of the war he enlisted in a company of "irregulars," raised in Ralls county west of Hannibal, Mo., to recruit the Confederate army. One of the members of this company was a young fellow named Sam Clemens. Years later Mark Twain referred to his "short and inglorious military career" in that company which decamped hastily at the first appearance of an enemy force and soon afterwards disbanded.

Grimes then volunteered for service as a mail carrier between the Missouri and Kentucky troops in the Confederate army and their relatives at home. It was an extremely hazardous duty for it meant going through the Union lines at the peril of capture and execution as a spy. During the siege of Vicksburg he ran the blockade successfully by wiring his mail in tin boxes to the bottom of an overturned skiff and floating beside it among the Union gunboats until he had passed them.

Grimes was repeatedly captured by the Union forces and twice he was sentenced to death. He spent several months in the old Gratiot prison in St. Louis and was there under sentence of death at the end of the war. However, his life was saved by an unconditional pardon issued by Abraham Lincoln—among the last acts of mercy performed by the President before he was assassinated.

Balanced Glands

The importance of properly balanced glands is exemplified by thyroxine, a product of the thyroid, which never amounts to more than one 2,500th of an ounce in a normal adult, says Collier's. An excess of this hormone may produce an exophthalmic goiter while a deficiency may cause a cystic goiter.

Recently I started a wall hanging of crewel work embroidery that required many stitches that were new to me. I found them all clearly diagrammed in Book 2, and was certainly glad I had it to turn to.

I am now interested in covering seat cushions for our dinette. The children have both breakfast and their mid-day meal here. Can you suggest a material that will stand hard wear and that comes in bright colors? G. B." Striped awning material would give good service and both you and the youngsters would enjoy the gay coloring in this much used corner. Green and orange stripes would be attractive, and this color scheme could be repeated in green curtains and orange paint for the inside of a cupboard. I have suggested slide fasteners for the cushions so that they may be removed easily for laundering.

Gen. Custer 'Stole the Show' at the Review

At the head of the cavalry corps in the "Grand Review" rode Phil Sheridan's two "Boy Generals"—Wesley Merritt and George A. Custer. And it was the latter, with his long golden curls and flaming red necktie who "stole the show," either accidentally or deliberately, from all the other officers there and provided one of the most dramatic incidents of the historic occasion. As Custer, mounted on his magnificent black charger, "Don Juan," passed the Treasury building, a chorus of 300 young girls in white sang "Hail to the chief" and showered him with bouquets. Gallantly he tried to catch one of the wreaths on the point of his saber. Apparently at that moment he lost control of

HE'D NEVER SEEN A PURPLE PIE

Gelett Burgess, famous humorist writer and illustrator, who was in Harrington the first three days of the week, left for his New York home yesterday, impressed by three things—the solitude of Slaughter Beach, the marvelous beauty of Mordington, the colonial home of Mr. and Mrs. Bankson T. Holcomb at McCauley Park, and the exquisite flavor of Delaware huckleberry pie.

The author of the best seller, "Look Eleven Years Younger," was much impressed by the huckleberry pie served at Swain's Hotel Monday evening at dinner. The following day his gratitude knew no bounds when Mrs. Albert S. Gottlieb, whose husband attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology shortly after Burgess' departure from the same school, presented him with another delicious huckleberry pie right from the oven.

Tuesday afternoon the Burgess party also visited Mordington. The noted author was much impressed by the colonial mansion, built in 1777 by members of the Douglas family, ancestors of former Governor Buck. He and Mrs. Holcomb, wife of the former state WPA administrator, had much in common in discussing the antique and Chinese furniture with which the mansion is furnished.

Mr. Burgess was in Harrington supervising the publication of a booklet at the Journal office. It is entitled, "Short Words Are Words of Might," a study of words in one syllable.

The editor of this great moral and religious weekly, long a champion of huckleberry pie, clambers up the foothills of Olympus—and pens this deathless poem:

HUCKLEBERRY PIE (By J. Harvey Burgess) Across the dull travail of years, Through shifting dreams of smiles and tears, I see the summer sky; I see the sun-drenched boyhood hills, Their waterfalls and tinkling rills— And huckleberry pie! Oh, yesterday, today you seem The tender fabric of a dream, With white clouds floating by, With heaven's music soft and low,

For heaven can't be far, I know. From huckleberry pie! My truant feet have gone astray, Have wandered down the old, old way, And yet, at twilight's glow, I scent the fields of Delaware, The crimson berries in her hair As in the long ago. I want to live ten aeons more, I hanker for no golden shore— But when I come to die, When softly comes the gasping breath— I want to eat myself to death On huckleberry pie!

CANTALOUPE HARVEST BEGINS NEXT WEEK

The indicated time to begin the harvest of cantaloupes is near. The first shipments will be made the latter part of this week. If favorable weather conditions prevail, a crop of much higher quality than that of last year is expected. The Bureau of Markets points out it is important that care be exercised by the growers in order that packed cantaloupes be mature. The market price is dependent upon the consumers desire to buy a product which has been allowed to reach the proper stage of maturity before being harvested.

As it is the duty of the Bureau of Markets to pass on the maturity of this crop when offered for sale, the director has arranged that representatives of the department visit as many of the growers as time will permit. By this type of service it will be possible for the grower and a representative of the department to discuss the maturity question and to reach a decision as to the proper time to harvest.

HARRINGTON CHILDREN SAY THEY OPPOSE SUNDAY FILMS

The Trinity Methodist Sunday School here voted unanimously Sunday in opposition to the bill to legalize Sunday movies, which is expected to be brought up for further consideration by the legislature in August. The school also voted to hold a union picnic with the Asbury Methodist Church Sunday School and named the following committees for the affair: Arrangements and transportation, Herbert Nichols, Albert Thistlewood and Mrs. Blanche Cahall; refreshments and recreation, Clifford Raughley, Mrs. Carrie Hitchens and Mrs. Helen Melvin.

his "adversary," who quickly turned rescuer. Wilbert Cawley, son of Wayne A. Cawley, clerk of the Circuit Court for Caroline County, is a patient in Easton Emergency Hospital with serious burns while Roy Hubbard who lives near Preston, is nursing burns about the arms at home.

The chemical exploded from contact with Mr. Cawley's cigarette. The "duel" stopped at once, and Hubbard proceeded to tear off Cawley's clothing and roll him in the grass to put out the blaze.

POWER BOAT CRABBING LAID TO 25 ON SHORE

Hearing was postponed for two weeks in the cases of 25 watermen charged with scraping up crabs with gasoline-powered boats, pending a conservation commission conference on the matter.

A state law prohibits trawling for crabs with power boats. Deputy Sheriff Harold Sterling said he had served 25 warrants and had about 125 more to serve.

Federalsburg bounced back into a tie with Harrington in the Mar-Del Baseball League by scoring two victories over the week-end. The Feds downed Bridgeville, 15 to 3, on Saturday, and conquered Hartly in an 11-inning game Sunday, 5 to 4. In other games, Harrington blanked Houston, 8 to 0, Denton downed the Bridgeville team, 6 to 2, and Church Hill nosed out Greensboro in a 12-inning contest, 9 to 8.

FORD V-8 FOR 1939

Beauty Hints By Jane Heath.

HOT days—work days—play days are here. What's the news on summer "make-up"? "As little as possible," answer the beauty experts. "The idea is to look healthy and natural. Let your skin warm to the sun. Let your hair blow free. Discard rouge and powder if you like. But, even if you're rusticated back on the farm, you'll still accent two features—eyes and lips. Eyebrows should be kept groomed and free of stray hairs at all times. This is quickly done with the convenient tweezers with scissors handle, sketched above. Keep to the natural hairline and avoid any artificial look which is now definitely "dated." Luxuriant lashes are another beauty aim which may be achieved, as you tend your garden, with care and cultivation. Kurlene, a fine eye-lash dressing made of rich, natural oils, will do the trick. Applied with the tip of the finger or an eye beauty brush, it leaves the lashes silky and pliable. And now comes the final touch, a wide starry-eyed effect, produced with a clever eyelash curler that trains lashes upward with no heat or cosmetics. In selecting a lip-stick, choose one with clear, warm blood tones, lighter than you've been using. Accent your eyes and lips this summer, to look healthy and natural. But the wise girl will use just a bit of art to aid Nature.

The old age horizon has been made falsely bright of late by sparkling "pension plans" which make the future glow like an Aurora Borealis display.

But how many of these plans will ever get down to earth to benefit you? One thing seems certain: Hard-work- ing citizens would never approve any scheme that would force them to carry on their necks all persons who reach a specified birthday. There would be too many undeserving in with the de- serving.

With so much theory in the air, a growing bank account during produc- tive years still seems to offer the best "pension plan" for the average man or woman.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Charge Pittman Embargo Bill Constitutes Admission by U. S. Of Japan's Belligerent Rights

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

CONGRESS: Neutrality

First guesses after the senate foreign relations committee tabled the Bloom-Hull measure held that neutrality was a dead issue this session. Not counted upon were Sen. Key Pittman's enthusiasm and the White House's insistence. Because President Roosevelt evidently feared a European war after the harvest season, he demanded that neutrality legislation be passed this session. Nor would congressional objection avail much; filibusters are a handy weapon for stalemating legislation, but the President's special session threat made it seem more desirable to act now than be called back from vacation.

The President's program: (1) retention of the munitions board; (2) barring of American ships from combat zones; (3) restriction of American travel in such zones; (4) transfer of title of goods sold to belligerents before shipment; (5) continued restrictions on loans and credits to warring nations; (6) regulation of fund collections in the U. S. for belligerents. Through all inclusive and apparently carrying more tenacity with which American isolationists fear the U. S. might become involved abroad, the President's program carries far less potential dynamite than Senator Pittman's measure. Under this bill, the President would be forced to declare a munitions embargo against any nation violating the 1922 nine-power Chinese non-aggression treaty. The obvious target: Japan.

But what Mr. Pittman apparently forgot is that such declaration would constitute American admission that a state of war exists in China—a fact Japan has never admitted. Japan would thus gain belligerent rights in China and U. S. interests would have to flee the war zone. Thus America's entire Oriental position would be toppled, and the embargo would have little effect unless Great Britain follows the unlikely course of adopting similar tactics.

Most vital from a White House viewpoint is immediate repeal of the existing arms embargo, which the President and Secretary of State Cordell Hull believe gives encouragement to Dictators Hitler and Mussolini, who know that in event of war with Britain and France the ban on U. S. arms shipments must be invoked against all belligerents. Isolationists, admitting this, think it would be a good idea.

AGRICULTURE: More Trouble

On July 1 the U. S. looked forward to a wheat crop of 716,655,000 bushels, comparatively small beside last year's 920,801,000 bushels and the 10-year (1928-37) average of 752,962,000 bushels. Obviously, wheat is not a source of worry for Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace this year. But a job with more than its just quota of worries has produced three others to take the place of wheat:

Tobacco. Last year growers voted to remove strict marketing control provisions of the farm law, resulting in a big expansion of acreage this year. As of July 1 the tobacco forecast for this year was 1,654,922,000 pounds, compared with an average crop of 1,350,400,000 pounds. If estimates materialize, some experts believe prices will be depressed 25 per cent below last year; also that—under law—another referendum must be held on tobacco quotas. If approved the quotas would not become operative until the 1940 crop started to market.

Corn. Forecast now is a crop of around 2,570,796,000 bushels, compared with the 10-year average of 2,309,674,000 bushels. Reasons: (1) unusually favorable weather in June; (2) a sharp increase in plantings of high-yielding hybrid corn. With a surplus of about 450,000,000 bushels from previous seasons already on hand, experts predict some governmental action will be necessary to forestall undue price depression. If marketing quotas remain, approved by two-thirds of corn-belt farmers, growers would be required to store their share of the excess supply or pay a penalty tax of 10 cents a bushel.

Cotton. With 14,350,000 bales of cotton hanging over his head, Secretary Wallace persuaded congress to give him $928,000,000 for curing the surplus problem. Of this, a large part will go to cotton, distributing it among U. S. relief families and offsetting losses in selling cotton to foreign buyers at cut-rate prices, i. e., government subsidy. But in New York the Cotton Exchange secretary moaned a few days ago that cotton exports this season may be the smallest in more than 50 years, not in spite of, but because of government aid. The factors:

"First—American cotton has been priced roughly at one cent a pound above competitive relationships with foreign growths that can be readily substituted for American cotton. This, in turn, being due to the fact that American cotton prices have been largely pegged by government loans.

"Second—For several months foreign users of American cotton have not dared to make normal forward purchases of the American staple because they have not known to what extent the price of American cotton abroad will be lowered by the prospective subsidy payments on exports by the U. S."

POLITICS: Yes or No?

One good way of ruining an opponent is to give him so much rope he hangs himself. When Indiana's one-time Gov. Paul V. McNutt returned from his $18,000-a-year post as governor general of the Philippine islands, he became the nation's No. 1 outspoken seeker after 1940's Democratic nomination. What amazed onlookers was that he boldly walked into the lion's mouth, conferring with President Roosevelt and his traditional enemy, Postmaster General James A. Farley. What amazed them still more was Paul McNutt's appointment a few days later as $12,000-a-year head of the newly created U. S. security agency. What did it mean? Was Paul McNutt the President's choice for 1940? Or was Mr. Roosevelt craftily plotting the political suicide of this ambitious Hoosier, thus insuring his own re-nomination for a third term? The pro and con:

Buildup? "Liberalism" is a much worn-out word denoting the New Deal's objectives. The last few months it has been succeeded by "humanitarianism" as the keynote for 1940. Not to be forgotten is the "humanitarian" scope of Paul McNutt's new job, where he has charge of social security, the office of education, National Youth administration and Civilian Conservation corps, all strong talking points a smart politician can use to further his own cause. Neither should Paul McNutt's travel opportunities be forgotten; as head of the security agency his chances for speeches and political contacts are practically unlimited and he is expected to make the most of them.

Breakdown? The security post is not all roses. Keen observers know Paul McNutt is in the limelight where both Democrats and Republicans can take pot-shots at him between now and nomination day. They also know that his new job may be a good place to build a man up personally, yet "humanitarianism" should have nothing to do with politics; therefore Mr. McNutt must be discreet.

Meanwhile, in Indianapolis, McNutt Manager Frank McHale could figure his campaign to date had been a success. His candidate, like young Lochinvar, had come out of the west after 2 1/2 years in Manila, where he could make no embarrassing entangling alliances. More important, he had returned to get what Frank McHale termed the President's endorsement as a candidate for 1940.

HOUSING: Political Vogue?

Periodically there arises a David who slays the wicked giant Goliath. Usually it sets a fashion until corruptness again catches hold. Last year New York's racket-busting States Attorney Thomas E. Dewey became a David, captured public fancy, inspired radio programs and placed wicked politicians on the defensive. The public obviously wanted reform and no more rackets.

When Tom Dewey began looming as a 1940 G. O. P. presidential possibility, reformation sounded like good strategy for any aspiring politician or party. By early July, Attorney General Frank Murphy had behind him an excellent record of smashing corrupt political machines (like Kansas City's Tom Pendergast) and tracking down income tax evaders. This was the signal for Scripps-Howard Columnist Raymond Clapper to charge that Frank Murphy was trying too hard to win the vice presidential nomination. Meanwhile there was arising another administration racket-busting program under guidance of the justice department's Thurman W. Arnold. Its aim: To drive trust practices, price-fixing and collusion out of the U. S. building industry. The day Mr. Arnold told his plans to the temporary national economic committee, Chicago Daily News' William H. Fort wrote from Washington that this was "obviously the New Deal's most ambitious trust-busting venture in its attempt to push young Tom Dewey's New York activities into the shade."

RACKET BUSTER DEWEY

Everybody's doing it.

Designing or not, Thurman Arnold's drive bids fair to accomplish something. With 140 lawyers and an enlarged appropriation, the justice department expects to uncover plenty of reasons why a metropolitan dweller runs into trouble when he wants to build a house. Alleged monopolistic devices: (1) fixing of prices by producers of building materials and trade associations; (2) use of joint selling agencies; (3) control of sales and limiting of quantities.

TRADE: Penalties

It is no coincidence that the world's topmost aggressive powers, Italy, Germany and Japan, must force exports to maintain a balance of trade. The primary reason is that peace-loving nations would sooner trade elsewhere; another, goods for which foreign markets are available must be kept at home to guarantee self-sufficiency in case of war and to build military machines.

Therefore no deliberate anti-Nazi gesture was involved last spring when the U. S. began levying countervailing duties on goods imported from Germany. Through this move coincided with the Reich's absorption of Czechoslovakia, treasury and state departments pointed out that Germany customarily forces exports through subsidy, thereby giving its manufacturers an unfair advantage.

Similar reasoning was behind the countervailing duties recently imposed on Italian silk exports to the U. S., which treasury officials discovered were being subsidized. Skipping next to aggressive Japan, the U. S. is investigating complaints from domestic textile manufacturers that Nipponese cotton goods makers are being given government subsidy, boosting still further the natural world trade advantage they gain by low operating costs. Result: Observers predict countervailing duties will soon be imposed on cotton imports from Japan.

Trend: How the wind is blowing... LABOR - Oregon's Supreme Court has held constitutional the famous "anti-picketing" law adopted by referendum last November, confining picketing to bona fide disputes between employers and a majority of employees, prohibiting boycotts and outlawing minority strikes. BABIES—Since both 1937 and 1938 found France's deaths exceeding her births, Premier Edouard Daladier has announced decrees to reward large families and thus stimulate the birth rate. BUILDING—Major U. S. engineering construction awards for 1939's first half reached the greatest volume since 1930.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK—News of the approaching retirement of Brig. Gen. Harley B. Ferguson is a reminder that it was he who supervised the raising of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor for the U. S. government in 1910 and 1911.

In the service for 42 years in the engineering corps, he probably has won more shirt-sleeve battles against all the disasters of the American litany than any other army officer with a gift for achieving the impossible. He will be 64 years old on August 14 and there is talk that he may be upped to the rank of major general before the bell rings on his finish fight against the elements.

He is the Hackenschmidt of flood grapplers, winning one fall after another against the Mississippi. He has been president of the Mississippi River commission since 1932; member of the board of rivers and harbors since 1930 and is also a member of the St. Lawrence Waterway board.

Back in the days of "manifest destiny," starting in 1897, the young second lieutenant got his first practice workouts in the mud and miasma, floods and elemental and human catastrophes in the Philippines and Cuba, and with the army swamper tiding up China and providing relief after the Boxer uprising around the turn of the century. If the "destiny" involved getting things shishoope in a hurry, he always made it a lot more manifest than it might have been otherwise. He was chief engineer of the China expedition.

He started fighting floods in Montgomery, Ala., in 1907 and through the years commanded army engineering works, defensive and aggressive, at Milwaukee, Cincinnati, New Orleans, Vicksburg, Pittsburgh and Norfolk, Va.

In the World war, he was chief engineer of the second army corps in France. He went to West Point from his home town, Waynesville, N. C. His son is a commander in the navy. He has two daughters.

DR. PAUL POPENOE, geneticist, biologist, and student of family relations, who has given much of his interesting career to clinical studies of home life, discovers that women are aggressive proposers and that 70 out of 85 get their man. This is his finding in his survey of this hitherto unexplored field of statistics.

Women a Close Second to N.W. Mounties

Dr. Popenoe is director of the court of family relations at Los Angeles. A specialist in the daily squabbles of married life, he has been effective in settling many of them. He says it is a good idea to write down all your wife's faults, check them against your own, and then burn the paper. You should keep the family budget straight, refrain from nagging, and keep yourself as busy as possible and never bored. As a geneticist, he thinks it is a fair bet that we will become a race of "super-idiots," whereas we could be super-Einsteins if we could use collectively the sense that God gave geese.

He is a native of Topeka, Kan., educated at Occidental college and Topeka university. He was a newspaper reporter in Pasadena and Los Angeles before he became a biologist and geneticist.

Blame Absurd Relief Policies For Widespread WPA Strikes

Misguided Effort to Force Government Into Greater Gifts To Them; Yell Radical Accusations When Soft Snap Is Ended; Honest Distribution Congress' Aim.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON—It is sometimes possible, I believe, to find an excuse for violent action on the part of a man who is hungry. Likewise, that individual's desperation may be explained when his children are near starvation. It is a social condition that perhaps merits sympathetic understanding rather than harsh treatment. When those individuals have had the specter of starvation removed by the generous hand of government, however, it strikes me that there can be no justification for revolt against the government or the people which have been responsible for the charity. That is to say, neither the government nor the citizens can be held responsible for the hard luck of any of us, nor does any one individual have a divine right to such generosity.

Yet, there exists in this country today an extraordinarily large number of persons who seem to feel the government must bend its knees to them. They have lately taken the position—largely misguided by the lowest grade of leaders—that they can dictate to their government and their neighbors the terms upon which they will receive government relief. They have gone so far as to use the strike as a weapon to force, to coerce, their government into greater gifts to them, and it is one of the most dangerous trends to be noted on the horizon of our country. It is traceable, of course, to the utterly absurd relief policies that have been practiced, heretofore.

To go back a bit for a review, the relief program enacted recently by congress for the year that is now starting specified that all WPA workers must put in 130 hours per month in order to get the maximum government relief. It was included by congress as a part of the law upon recommendation by WPA Commissioner F. C. Harrington, and no right thinking person can find reason to disagree. The purpose is most commendatory. The increase in the hours of labor was designed to weed out those who were receiving WPA checks who were satisfied to go on without any thought of ever obtaining a private job again. There is that type, you know.

Congress Sought to Set Up An Honest Distribution

The rules that expired June 30 had made it possible for some workers to receive the maximum pay in as little as two weeks of work. Skilled workers were being paid wages that were equivalent to the rates in private employment in the area where they were. So, some workers stayed on the job two weeks and had their month's pay; others worked longer and were paid much less. Congress, therefore, tried to set up something like an honest distribution and it directed that everybody receiving the WPA checks had to work 130 hours in order to receive the full amount.

There were some other provisions, that irked the WPA workers. One of them, for instance, makes it necessary for those who have been on WPA relief jobs for 18 months, to take a layoff of one month. That was designed to give some other unemployed person a chance to get WPA relief.

The third big change from last year and the earlier years of federal relief was a specification as to wages. The legal language is too complex for me to understand, thoroughly, but the intention is to make the rates of WPA wages have some relationship to the cost of living where the unemployed are given WPA jobs.

These things are in the law, this time. In previous years, congress had been unable to break the grip of the professional relievers, like Harry Hopkins and Aubrey Williams, and the rates of pay and conditions of work were determined largely by such men. Mr. Williams will be recalled as the man who said in a speech to WPA workers they should use their numerical strength politically and support only those officials who turned loose the most money. Under the previous system, the WPA workers could attack rules, and regulations laid down by individuals. But now Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Williams are not in the picture, and a hard-boiled army officer heads up the WPA organization.

Strike Against Government Is What Confronts Country

The condition that confronts the country, therefore, is a strike against the national government, because the elected representatives of the people as a whole laid down the rules, this time. Of course, the Constitution guarantees to all citizens the right to petition congress. It does not grant the right, however, to use force or violence to change the action of congress. The WPA workers who went out on strike, therefore, in my opinion, were right close to the border line of a serious offense against the government. It is one thing to strike, as a union does, against an employer; it is quite another thing for a union to be organized to perpetuate government charity and to use that union in a violent fashion as has been done in this instance.

And, speaking of unions, there are two of them—rival organizations—among WPA workers. There is the Workers Alliance of America and the Workers League of the United States. The first named is headed by David Lasser and the second by Lloyd Leith. I do not know the background of either man, where they came from or what their mission in life may be. Of this, however, I am sure: very few men and women in this world of ours ever work for absolutely no pay.

I wish that congress would dig into those two organizations and see how much these "leaders" are paid and find out where the money comes from. It is difficult for me to believe that either one of them or several dozen "field men" and secretaries and others with titles are such lovers of humanity that they are not being well paid for their work. To believe that these men are emulating Our Lord to that extent is stretching my credulity too far.

Why Is a Union Necessary Among These Workers?

One might also inquire quite properly, I think, why it is necessary to have a union among these workers. I fail to see why they should spare any of the meager funds that the government gives them for living purposes to be used by union leaders. Those fellows cannot do anything to make congress change its mind. Oh! They can come to Washington—and they do— and issue statements and shout threats before congressional committees and see their names in the newspapers, and accomplish nothing. That is, they get nowhere except that they are able to show the poor, wretched souls on relief that their "leaders" are great "fighters" in the cause.

While there never was a chance of congress amending the law and anyone with a grain of sense must recognize it, these self-appointed, self-anointed saviors of the WPA workers did succeed in calling something like 40,000 workers off of their jobs in various parts of the country. The result was that those workers lost just that much money. They also ran afoul of the Harrington determination, which many of them did not realize was not a Hopkins or Williams chin. Colonel Harrington promptly issued orders that those who stayed away five days would be replaced, because there were thousands willing to work and had no jobs. Obviously, that brought a good many back to their jobs. Some others, however, let their passion and unwise leadership of their unions put them in a position of cutting off their nose to spite their face.

It is to be noted, in passing, that conditions now are somewhat different than when the policies of the professional relievers were operative throughout the country. There were numerous instances, it will be recalled, when Hopkins and Miss Perkins, secretary of labor, advised that sit-down strikers should be fed off of relief funds. State relief directors and state charity leaders seem generally to have taken a different view of the current situation.

Seems There Are Some Very Stupid Local Labor Leaders

The national labor unions, like the American Federation of Labor and the Lewis organization, the C. I. O., came close to getting involved in this picture. I do not know whether the heads of those great unions were responsible for the general aloofness, but they were quick to explain that strikes by any of their member organizations in behalf of the WPA workers were "entirely local." If this be true, the explanation lies in the fact that there must be some very stupid local labor leaders. Surely, with union labor's prestige at its lowest ebb in many years, respectable labor unions could hardly expect to gain in public esteem by participating in such ludicrous proceedings as a strike against the government of the United States.

Notwithstanding the gloomy phases of the story told above, attention should be drawn the meanwhile to the healthy aspect that can be found upon examination of the circumstance. Consider the courage that congress showed in taking a position which admits the existence of certain parasitic elements. That is to say, congress has taken a positive step toward placing relief on a basis that will reduce waste, to some extent. It has made some gains in the direction of sweeping out a small part—very small, it is true—of the political influences that hitherto operated. And, more important than the rest, the congress over President Roosevelt's opposition, has acted to compel greater local responsibility for use of public money.

GROWERS TRY NEW STRAINS OF CELERY

Combine High Quality and Disease Resistance.

By R. A. EMERSON

Celery growers are testing four new strains of cross-bred celery this spring, combining high quality and disease-resistance of the parent stocks.

Developed by the joint efforts of the departments of plant breeding and vegetable crops at Cornell, the new strains are a cross of the old Golden self-branching variety with the high quality and disease resistant green variety Giant Pascal. The growers have selected four strains for trial.

The new strains are said to be highly resistant to the yellow fungus, a serious celery disease in New York state. Though not all the celery land in the East is infested with the fungus causing the disease, the affected areas are extending more widely every year.

However, if growers continue to raise varieties that are susceptible to this disease, most of the muck land suitable for celery production will be infested before many years. The cross-bred celery has better quality than most of the celery on the market today, he says. The plants were bred on the basis of length of stalk, thickness of stalk, and firmness; the resulting strains form thick stalks of celery that are "less stringy."

Good Breeding Birds Worth Protecting

Poultrymen who pedigree breeding are confronted each year with the problem of keeping breeding males in good condition from one breeding season to the next.

Since the progeny test is the basis of progressive poultry breeding operations, it is necessary that all males tested during the first year be kept until their breeding worth is determined. It is discouraging to discover that the best male, according to performance of his daughter in the laying house, has been beaten up by his mates during the summer months and cannot be used again for breeding purposes.

F. P. Jeffrey, instructor in poultry husbandry at the New Jersey college of agriculture, Rutgers university, says that because of their tendency to fight each other, it is unwise to allow male birds to run together in any large number unless they have access to a very large range which also provides a certain number of hideouts where the male can take refuge.

"A better system," Mr. Jeffrey says, "is to allow the males to run with females. It has been observed at the experiment station that three males with 100 females generally works out satisfactorily. This practice, however, is not desirable from the standpoint of sale of market eggs unless the eggs are given immediate cooling and retailed as quickly as possible.

"In case a valuable male breeder has been detected, it is worth while to keep him in a roomy, individual cage equal in size to one used for stud mating. The extra labor required in caring for him is well spent if he can be kept in good physical condition for the next breeding season."

Industrial Cycles Are Important to Farmers

Some of the nation's most important industries are "cyclical" in nature; their booms and poor times come in cycles, according to G. E. Brandow of the department of agricultural economics, Cornell university.

He cited buildings, textiles, and automobiles as the principal examples of industries that show these periods of activity and inactivity. "The importance of industrial cycles to the farmer," he stated, "is mostly their part in causing changes in total business activity, which, in turn, influence the demand for many farm products. A long cycle in building is most important; its influence can be detected in the price of eggs and milk and in farm prices generally."

Mr. Brandow said the most important influence on profits in farming is the general level at which prices fluctuate or change. Industrial cycles and business activity do not cause changes in the general level of prices, he said, but they do explain many of the short-time up-and-downs in prices and the time at which major changes occur in price levels.

Gardens Profitable

The farm garden returns as much from time invested as does any farm enterprise. The better the garden, the more returns it can make in food, fun, and profits to the family. Have the garden near the house. Odd moments can be spent there, and the lady of the house can easily gather the vegetables without waste of time. Nearness to the house also gives some protection against animals and thieves, but a permanent fence is the best insurance.

Whey Substance

Scientists from the United States department of agriculture report a new manufacturing process which produces an interesting substance from whey. The substance resembles rubber in some ways but is transparent. It is somewhat like glass but is softer and is flexible. There are six billion pounds of whey available annually in the United States. This new manufacturing process will open up an entirely new market for whey.

Seeks Actual Graves of Thermopylae's Victims

ATHENS, GREECE.—Excavations that have been carried out by Professor Marinatos, director of archaeological services of the Greek ministry of education, in the neighborhood of the Gulf of Lamia have aroused hope that discovery of the actual grave of the 300 Spartans and 20,000 Persians who perished in the Battle of Thermopylae is imminent. Thermopylae was fought in 480

B. C. and the heroism of a handful of Spartans under Leonidas has been immortalized by the historian Herodotus.

A stocodotus relates that an army of 100,000 Persians under King Xerxes invaded Greece from the north, but in order to reach the center of the country it had to go through the Pass of Thermopylae, a narrow road between the mountain named Callidromos and the shores of the Maliaic Gulf, which is now called the Gulf of Lamia, an inlet of the Aegean sea.

Tree Stumps Reclaimed

The tree stumps which constitute the "feed" for the steam and solvent wood naval stores industry are found in the vast cut-over lands of Mississippi, Georgia and Florida, according to Industrial and Engineering Chemistry. These remnants of lumbering are not useful until 10 to 15 years after cutting. By that time the bark has sloughed off, leaving the heartwood in which the resinous material is concentrated. The stumps are pulled out by tractors.

Grand River Dam Authority Is Victorious in Storage Plea

WASHINGTON.—The federal power commission granted an amended license to the Grand River Dam authority authorizing construction of the Grand river dam project with water storage to 745 feet above sea level. This permits construction of the project without changing present plans.

Army engineers had recommended that the water storage requirement be fixed at a 755 foot level because of flood control plans.

However, they acceded to requests of the Public Works administration, the power commission, and the Grand River Dam authority to reduce the requirement until such time as the government could furnish flood control funds for additional land purchases and construction.

Issuance of the license would permit condemnation of the lands in federal as well as in state courts.

CHAPTER XI—Continued

"And Miss Van Stratten naturally denies everything. To you," interrupted Mr. Gormine.
 "Well; no. Not exactly denies it. But—"
 "Mr. Sayles, I am really surprised at you," broke in the other severely. "Your gullibility is astonishing. Obviously, you have let yourself be taken in. I know little of women, but I do know something upon adequate authority, that the least trustworthy of the sex is the straw-blond type."
 "The what?"
 "Ashen or straw blonde, as I believe it is called."
 "Miss Van Stratten is not a blonde."
 "Nonsense! Definitely a blonde, with Persian-cat eyes, yellowish and exhibiting what might be termed disconcerting gleams."
 The description was too pat to be misinterpreted. "Wait a minute," besought the breathless Kelsey. "You've got the wrong girl."
 "By no means. She at once identified herself as—"
 "Listen to me. Did she say 'Sweet cheese'n crackers'? Didn't she? Didn't she? Speak up, man!"
 "Why, now that you mention it, I believe she did. What, if anything does it mean?"
 Mr. Gormine will never know. His interrogator jammed up the receiver, leapt out into the storm, and turning the first corner, banged into Miss Gloria Glamour. He clutched her in no gentlemanly grip.

"Hey!" protested the beauty-girl. "Unhand me, villain. Lay off, will you, Tempy? You hurt."
 "What did you do it for?"
 "Do what? Hi! Marty! Rescue! Our star boarder's gone batty."
 Martin Holmes came up on the run. He put his arm around the girl and drew her into a sheltering doorway, Kelsey, with his hold unrelaxed, following.

"Break," suggested Martin.
 "I want to know why she's been playing hell with Marne."
 Martin gave the girl a look. "I told you this was going to turn around and bite you. Well, I expect he's got a right to an answer."
 Gloria gaped. "Where do you get your information, Tempy? And where do you get in on it, anyway?"
 "Never mind where I got it. The point is, I've just accused Marne of having an affair with Snyderacker, and now I find—"
 "Oh, sweet cheese'n crackers!" gasped Gloria. "You would do something like that! Where does that leave me?"
 "It ought to leave you in jail for the rest of your life. What did you do it for?"
 "Fifteen thousand dollars. And I don't even get that."
 "Easy, there, Kelsey," interposed Martin, as his friend began shaking the unfortunate culprit again. "She didn't mean any harm. It'll all be squared soon. Only we haven't told Marne yet. There's the car. Hop in and Gloria will explain."

All three got in and the beauty-girl spoke her piece. "I figured on making a nice, little clean-up for all of us," said she sorrowfully. "But Martin put the ki-bosh on it."
 "Well, I'll be—what are we going to do with her?" Kelsey appealed to his friend.
 "Personally, I'm going to marry her," answered Martin. "Before she can pull any more fast ones."
 "And I'm going to be a good little gal forever after. Be a sport," she adjured Kelsey. "And square it for me with Marne, won't you?"
 "I've got myself to square with Marne first. Suppose you two get out of this car. I'm in a hurry. And don't break your valuable necks getting back to Headquarters any sooner than you need to."

A fountain of mud and water was seen by several astonished observers, proceeding down the Lake Road in the manner and with the speed of a waterspout. At the brook, the driver made a wild swerve and pulled up just in time.
 The bridge had gone out.

CHAPTER XII

Darkness, early descending, added to the depression of Miss Marion Norman Van Stratten's spirits. She was experiencing a loneliness unprecedented in her hitherto well-companioned life. Even Glunk had abandoned her. No response was forthcoming to her repeated and emphatic bell-rings. She found herself wishing ardently for the return of Gloria and Martin; less ardently for that of Kelsey Hare.
 Marne was thoroughly angry and disgusted with Kelsey. That he had technically "insulted" her with his suspicions of her laxity did not count for so much. She was not Victorian-minded, and was fair enough to admit that appearances were to some extent against her, though what he had meant by his nonsense about direct evidence, she could not guess. What annoyed her most was his almost hysterical stupidity. It did occur to her that the conduct of young men in love was likely to be slightly abnormal; she had observed that phenomenon with dispassionate interest before. Her interest, this time, was far from dispassionate. It was definitely personal and wrathful. If he was in love with her, why couldn't he have said so?
 Mr. Kelsey Hare was definitely on her mind, where he had no business to be, and she resented it.
 To evict him from that position she decided to go out and look for the lights of the hoped-for car in which Gloria and her companion had left that morning. Proceeding with caution, she made her way to the edge of the brawling flood which, only a few days before, had been a peaceable and well-behaved brook. As she stood, peering out into the night, a flicker of lightning displayed her incredulous eyes the shore, stationary on the opposite shore. It seemed to be empty. She shouted but the wind snatched the voice from her mouth and overbore it with its own more strident clamor.

 At least, the car would be a means of getting to town. Gingerly she sought for the bridge. It did not seem to be where she expected to find it. Another flash illumined the scene. It revealed the daunting fact that the bridge was not only absent from its proper place, but that it was nowhere else to be seen.
 Marne went back to the house and sat down to think it over. The situation was plain enough. She was completely cut off from the world. Isolated. Marooned. A prisoner of the waters, condemned to an indefinite stretch.

So that was that. Meantime, being a practical young person, she saw no reason for going hungry. In Glunk's absence, she collected what she could find of his utensils, encouraged the fire, found some tea, bread and eggs, and accomplished a respectable supper. It was while cleaning up that she heard, above the raving night, something that sounded like a human call.
 "Glunk!" she cried.
 A weight fell heavily against the side door. A voice, not Glunk's, announced thickly:
 "I'm here."
 Arming herself with the poker, she ran to the spot. As she threw the door open, a creature unbelievably disheveled, muddled, and battered lurched in and leaned against the wall.
 "Give me a drink."
 "Kelsey?" she said, not quite certain.
 "What there is left," he confirmed.
 She darted to the kitchen, came back with a glass of Scotch. The derelict cleared a way to its mouth and swallowed it.
 "That's better. Thanks."
 "How did you ever get here?"
 He lifted his arm and made a wild smear of his face. "I don't just exactly know. I washed up somewhere. I believe."
 "Somewhere? Where?"
 "Along the shore of the lake. Flotsam and jetsam."
 "Well, you'd better wash up again," she advised struggling against an impulse of hysterical laughter. "You're an awful spectacle. The mirth in her eyes altered to doubt. "What happened?"
 I saw your car. I suppose you fell in, looking for the bridge."
 "No; I didn't fall in."
 Her eyes were wide now. "You didn't jump in, did you?"
 "It didn't look so bad," said he apologetically.
 "Whatever induced you to run such a mad risk?" she demanded.
 "You were over here."
 "I'd have been all right."
 "Maybe. I shouldn't. I had to get back to you—to do some groveling."
 She laughed a little wildly. "I should say you'd been doing some."
 "Marne, I've been the double-damnedest fool that ever lived, to believe that rot about you. What do you want me to say?"
 "Nothing."
 "As hopeless as that?" he asked.
 "No. That isn't what I mean." Indeed, all the righteous indignation had ebbed out of her at first understanding of why he had come. "Don't you think there's been too much said already?"
 "Probably." He closed his eyes and wavered a little.
 "You're hurt!" she cried sharply.
 "No; I don't think so. I've taken rather a beating."
 "You've got to get your clothes off," said she practically. "There may be something broken."
 "Call Glunk. He'll help me."
 "Glunk isn't here. I'll do it, myself."
 Without fuss or ado she undressed him, brought towels and hot water and removed such of the silt and mud as had not been ground into his skin. He seemed hardly more than half-conscious. She brought him another drink and ordered him to go to sleep. At this he roused himself.
 "Not yet," he begged. "I've got you on my mind."
 "You can keep me there until you wake up."
 "No. I'd never be able to get to sleep."
 "Very well," said she quietly. "Let's have it over as soon as possible. You thought I was A. Leon's mistress."
 "Yes."
 "I was God!"
 "Good God! Don't I know it now! That's why I had to get back here,

To tell you what a rat I'd been."
 "Well, you're here. It's settled. No," she forbade peremptorily as he would have gone on, "I don't want to hear any more now. We aren't so far from square. I thought you were a rotter and found you weren't. Would you go to sleep pretty now if I sat here and held your hand?"
 He turned her fingers in his, set his lips to the curve of her palm, and fell into the profound sleep of one who has been brutally mauled. It seemed hardly a minute later when he awoke, struggling. "No; no!" he heard himself protesting.
 Marne was trying to disengage her hand. "It's all right," she said soothingly. "I'll be right back."
 "What is it?"
 During the two hours of his nap, the wind had dropped and the rain was a soft murmur.
 "Don't you hear something?" asked Marne.
 "Only the flood,"
 "Someone calling," she insisted.
 He sat up. Every muscle in his body was sore from the pummeling of the waters, but he felt refreshed, alert and strong again.
 "You can hear all sorts of voices in running water."
 "I'm almost certain—There it is again." She ran from the room and opened a window. Huddling into a robe, and grabbing for his shoes, he

All Sandwiches Aren't on Rye

This perked gent, the British fourth Earl of Sandwich, threw tremendous gambling parties in his castle two centuries ago. He began serving steaks between slices of bread so his guests could grab a bite without leaving the roulette wheel. He should have copyrighted the idea, because today the sandwich is not only a quick lunch but an industrial institution.

For example: The two gentlemen at the left are known as "sandwich men" and they advertise anything from hardware to hamburgers up and down main street. Sportsmen have their "sandwich boats" in the famous Oxford-Cambridge bumping races. At least four towns on this continent (and the Sandwich islands, too) owe their names to the gambling nobleman.

In industry the word "sandwich" means a lamination (or division into thin plates or layers) of materials such as wood, glass, paper, metal or rubber for greater strength and efficiency. One of the most spectacular of these sandwiches is the new steel-and-rubber wheel for railway cars. Photo above shows the rubber "sandwich" being placed in the wheel. The cross-section at the right shows how the rubber inserts prevent metal-to-metal transmission of vibration from rail to axle. This new process, which received one of its most successful applications in the new subway cars at New York, is being used throughout the country.

The first "sandwich glass" was named after Sandwich, Mass., a Cape Cod settlement whose formula for beautiful colored glass is now lost. Modern sandwich glass is safety plate glass for automobiles. In the above photo girls at the Libbey-Owens-Ford plant place paper-thin plastic filler between sheets of plate glass. A new "filler" has just been perfected which has four times the strength and resilience of former fillers.

Finished "sandwich" glass, a far cry from the earl's idea!

Star Dust

★ Film Folks on Stage
 ★ Ann Waited and Won
 ★ Kenny Signs Up to Talk
 —By Virginia Va's—

HOLLYWOOD is planning for next summer, and you ought to do the same, if you're interested in seeing your favorite stars of the screen on the stage. It's all because of Charles Coburn, who has been an actor for the last thirty or forty years, and for the last two has been in Hollywood. During the last year he has appeared in "Idiot's Delight," "Made for Each Other," "Alexander Graham Bell," and the recently released "Bachelor Mother." And before long you will be able to see him with Carole Lombard and Cary Grant in "The Kind Men Marry."

But the project to give film stars stage experience is largely due to his experience as the guiding genius of the Mohawk Dramatic festival, which takes place each summer at Union college, Schenectady. There, experienced stars perform in well-known plays.

After his first year in Hollywood Charles Coburn discussed various faults of the motion picture industry with some of the directors and producers. He was asked to do something to remedy those faults—to start something like the Mohawk Drama festival, in fact. But he saw trouble ahead, with each big company demanding the leading roles in his theatrical productions for its stars. He felt that the best way out was for him to line up plays if some college would take over the festival.

The University of California came forward, and now it seems to be all set. Stars, featured players, and even bit players and extras will have a chance to get theatrical experience—and the great public will have an opportunity to look on while they get it.

Ann Sothern deserves congratulations for knowing what she wanted and going after it, although sometimes the going was hard. It's more than a year since she refused to play any more of those ga-ga heroines and declared that she'd do nothing but character roles. She had a long wait—and in Hollywood it's scary to wait too long between pictures, because the public forgets you so soon.

Then came her chance in "Trade Winds," just what she wanted. Another wait, and she was signed up for "Maisie." She was so good in that one that Metro wanted her to sign a contract, but she'd have none of it unless she could be assured of getting the kind of parts that she wanted. She'd rather be off the screen altogether than be on it with no chance to do anything but look beautiful.

So—Metro gave her the contract that she wanted, and her first picture under the new deal will be "Busman's Holiday," made in England with Robert Montgomery.

New York had its picture taken from the air the other day, more extensively than ever before. A complete crew of cameramen and sound technicians spent several days shooting the harbor, the skyline, the World's fair, and everything else that they thought might be of interest to you when you see the forthcoming Walter Wanger production, "Eternally Yours." Mr. Wanger is doing everything possible for that picture; look at the names in the cast—Loretta Young and David Niven, Hugh Herbert, Billie Burke, Dr. Aubrey Smith, Zasu Pitts. If you pass this one up it won't be his fault.

Kenny Baker has a nice contract for next year, and Jack Benny will have to find a new singer to replace him. One of the big oil companies has lured Baker away, giving him a handsome salary, and a contract that will permit him to talk as well as sing, which Benny's sponsors didn't want him to do.

ODDS AND ENDS—Paramount is in favor of making Martha Raye a blonde for her next picture, and she doesn't like the idea. . . . Maybe Sally Ellers sees no lady when she dumped her ice cream soda into the lap of the woman who insisted on taking the seat Sally was reserving for a friend—but she was doing what thousands of ladies have yearned to do. . . . When Dorothy Lamour went to Waukegan for the opening of "Man About Town" she was assigned to the hotel suite where she stayed when she eloped with Herbie Kay. Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!
 Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the blood stream free of excess of toxic impurities. The act of living-life itself—a constant producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, vomiting at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.
 Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbances.
 The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

In the Kent County Herd Improvement Association for the month of June there were 89 cows which produced over 1000 pounds of milk each, and the official records show which and the official records show also that 12 cows produced over 50 pounds of butterfat each, according to the report which was sent from the office of County Agent Russell E. There were 476 cows, representing 23 herds, tested during June by Terry B. Stanley, official tester for the association, and records indicate that these cows produced on the average 696.5 pounds of milk and 26.1 pounds of butterfat.

The marked influence which the dry weather in June had upon the milk production was clearly shown in the comparison of the records for May and June.
