LUNCHEON OF THE CENTURY CLUB IS A GALA AFFAIR

One Hundred and Forty Club Women From Four States Attend Tuesday's Meeting

STATE OFFICIALS IN ATTENDANCE

Tuesday was a gala day for the Harrington New Century Club—the day of the biennial luncheon, which was enjoyed by one hundred and forty ladies.

Under the direction of Mrs. R. J. Emory and her committee, the club room was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and potted plants. The tables were arranged by Mrs. Theodore Harrington, and the chairman of hospitality, Mrs. L. B. Harrington, and her committee served a delicious three-course luncheon.

Among the guests of honor were Mrs. H. Taylor, President of the Delaware State Federation of Women's Clubs; the three vice-presidents, Mrs. Burton Meyer, of New Castle county; Mrs. Walter Barrett, of Kent county; and Mrs. Peter Whaley, of Sussex. The local president, Mrs. Allan B. Parsons, presided. At the conclusion of her remarks, she was presented with a basket of flowers, given as a token of appreciation of her work by Mrs. Claude Cahall and Mrs. R. J. Emory in the name of the club.

Mrs. Lorenzo Jones, chairman of program, presented the following program:

Accordion solo, Miss Irene Daniels. Vocal solo, Miss Hilda May Meredith Reading, "The Last Word," Mrs. Brinton Holloway.

Group of vocal solos, Mrs. Scott. Selections by the Harrington High School Band, directed by Prof. Melvin Brobst.

Many of the clubs of the state were represented, and guests were present from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland, as well as from all sections of our own state.

PREPARE FOR RUSH IN CAR TAG BUYERS

Although use of the 1939 automobile tags will expire at midnight on Sunday, the Dover offices of the Motor Vehicle Department have not been rushed this week with persons applying for new tags. The department, however, is prepared to handle a last minute rush that is expected to appear during the latter part of the week. There has been a large increase in the number of applications that have been received through the mails. As far as could be learned, there will be a large increase in the number of new tags issued at the beginning of the registration year.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Jester entertained as week-end guests Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Beiderbeck and daughter, Christine, and Franklin Jester, of Philadelphia.

With deep sorrow we record the death of William Leonard Weaver, age 22, who was electrocuted late Saturday afternoon when he came in contact with an electric wire estimated to carry 22,000 volts. The wire had been knocked from an R. E. A. pole near the home of Ernest Tucker, when an automobile operated by Elwood Shultie crashed into the pole, severing the high-powered wires. The fatality occurred about one-half hour after the auto mishap. The deceased, formerly of Decatur, Alabama, was a young man of noble qualifications. He had resided here for several years and had been living with Mr. and Mrs. Bartos Hrupsa. He leaves at this place many friends who esteemed him in the highest. We can truthfully say he was a Christian gentleman. As evidence of the fact, his pocket Bible was found beside him when his body was moved from the wire. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Laura Melvin, of Dover.

A variety shower was tendered the newly-wed Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Laramore of Burrsville last Friday evening. Numerous gifts were received, after which ice cream and cake were served to more than one hundred and fifty guests. H. Stafford, Sr.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Porter, Crawford Garrett, Homer Donovan and Charles Fountain, of Burrsville; Mr. and Mrs. Willard Bullock, Whitesburg; Mr. and Mrs. William Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Donovan, Mr. and Mrs. James Morris and family, of Matens; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kemp, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Royland Stanton, Misses Janice Eloise Blades, Charlotte and Clara Belle Peck, Mary Elizabeth Cooper, Dorothy Ward, Ruth Messick, Virginia Legates, Mess. Willson Stanton, Robert Dill and Romulus Hopkins, of Harrington; Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Fry and family, Vernon; Mr. and Mrs. William Donovan and family and Miss Elizabeth Neeman, Felton; Miss Catherine Draper, Farmington; Mr. and Mrs. John Dyer, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Draper, Misses Emily and Effie Ott, Lenora Evans, and Preston Anthony, Harrington; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Day and family, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Slaughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holden and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jester, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Paskey, Mrs. Estella Seaman, Dorothy Laramore, Raymond and Wilson Hughes, Medford and Virgil Laramore, of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Frank Jester attended the turkey dinner given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Willis, of near Dover, last Sunday. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harrington M. Case, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Willis, Jr.; Taylor Case and family, Miss Ivy Sales, of Dover; Miss Rena Brothers, of Newark, Del.; Carroll E. Willis, of Tampa, Florida, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Connelly and family, of Washington, D. C.

Plans for the annual meeting of the State Board of Health, which will be held April 4, were discussed at the meeting of the board Tuesday afternoon in the Brandywine Sanatorium. Members said no appointment of an executive secretary to succeed Dr. A. C. Jost, who resigned last summer, was made, and expressed doubt that such an appointment would be made at the annual meeting.

TOMATO PROGRAM IN KENT COUNTY

In an effort to improve the quality of tomatoes for commercial canning purposes, and to increase the yield per acre as a means of reducing the cost of production, a tomato improvement program is being conducted in Kent County under the direction of County Agent Russell E. Wilson in cooperation with local canners and interested tomato growers.

This program includes the securing of cost of production records on a number of farms representative of the various type of soil throughout the county, and obtaining records of results of certain cultural practices, practices, with special reference to the use of additional potash as a side-dressing to tomato plants during the last cultivation. On nine farms in the Houston and Harrington areas last year, the application of 200 pounds of muriate of potash per acre increased the tomato yields 1.15 tons, and this work will be carried on again this year in other sections of the county, in addition to the above mentioned areas.

Recently a tomato growers' meeting was held in the Clayton public school building in cooperation with W. L. Wheatley, who owns and operates a cannery in that town, for the purpose of discussing the grading of tomatoes according to the government standard, and the fertilization practices essential to high yields. The subject of federal grades was discussed by Robert Bier, regional supervisor of the southeastern territory, from the United States Department of Agriculture, who has supervision of the federal inspectors in this region. J. Leonard Soper, Director of the Bureau of Markets of the State Board of Agriculture, also was present at this meeting and explained this inspection service.

For the past two years a tomato cost of production and fertilization project has been conducted by County Agent Wilson in cooperation with the Houston plant of Libby, McNeill & Libby, and this year a similar project will be carried on with this company's plant at Wyoming. The potash for these demonstrations is being furnished by the American Potash Institute through the courtesy of George R. Cobb, agronomist for this organization, who has cooperated with the extension service in other crop fertilization projects during the past several years. For this tomato improvement project a group of farmers will be selected as cooperators, and each grower will be required to keep an accurate record of all production costs, also the yield records from these fertilization plots.

The objective of this program is to establish a closer coordination between canners and growers in promoting a program for better tomatoes on a less number of acres, which will result in a crop of higher quality to meet the competition from other tomato producing sections in the country.

SATURDAY NIGHT

IMAGINARY DIARY OF SUMNER WELLES

MON.—Arrived in Italy okay. Was notified that Mussolini was busy reviewing a new goose step but that Count Ciano would see me. Nearly started a new war by absent-mindedly asking hotel manager if he knew where I could get a good Italian dinner.

TUES.—Was late reaching parley with Ciano because of streets being blocked by parades. Found Ciano so peaceful he dispensed with usual Italian custom of starting to argue before hearing the subject announced.

The count says Mussolini wants peace as soon as he is sufficiently armed for it.

WED.—Traveling through Switzerland. The Swiss are so peaceful I am wondering if other countries would be less belligerent if they yodelled.

THURS.—I see Goering and Hitler soon. The prospect is quite unnering.

FRI.—Saw General Goering. Both of him. He wanted to know if I was H. G. Wells or Orson Welles. It was hard to get down to peace talk as he wanted to discuss spring styles in men's military coats. He said Germany was not opposed to peace unless it meant she would have to get along without quarreling with everybody. I asked him if he thought Hitler might retire to the background. He said, "Can you imagine any prima donna retiring to any background?" I had an uncomfortable feeling that there was something under my chair. It turned out to be Goebbels. As I left Goering he said, "Remember us to Roosevelt and tell him not to get discouraged, he'll get into this mess yet."

LATER.—Met Hitler in the Rumpus Room. He asked me how America was and said he was sorry to hear it.

He then asked for an explanation of the peace idea. I told him Mr. Roosevelt felt peace would be a good thing. He replied, "When I've been in as many fights as Roosevelt I'll think so, too."

He suggested that we carry on our discussions in Russian. I said I did not understand Russian. He said, "Neither do I, but a peace conference is a conference." One word from me led to another. In fact it led to a dozen others. Hitler said Germany was always for peace and that if her artillery held out she would get it.

He kept fumbling with a microphone during the entire talk and once remarked, "If television was here I could conquer the world in six weeks."

MON.—Arrived in Paris. Daladier said France was not only for peace now, but had been hoping for it for centuries.

TUES.—In London. Saw Chamberlain. He suggested that we hold discussions in English. I said this might commit us to a clear understanding of what we were saying. He saw the danger of this at once.

I am to see him again tomorrow. I can't escape the conclusion that everybody in Europe is in favor of peace up to the point where peace is proposed.

FINLAND MUST FEEL LIKE THE FELLOW WHO WAS BEING CLAWED UP IN THE LION'S CAGE AND GOT OFFERS OF HELP BY TELEPHONE.

Berlin.—For stealing 200 chickens, 50 rabbits, 12 pigeons and 5 ducks, Karl Schroeder, 29, was sentenced to death and loss of civil rights today by a special court.—United Press.

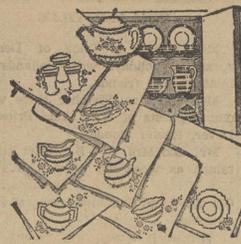

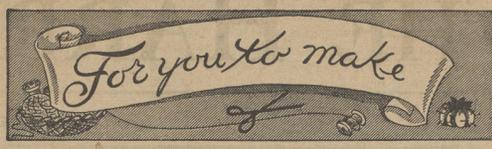

It's the loss of civil rights that makes chicken stealing dangerous, says Maek Hollander.

WHAT! NO SMELT?
The Smithsonian Institution, believe it or not, publishes a catalogue listing the fishes taken on President Roosevelt's cruises. (This department has actually seen the one for 1938.) What's more, the President always brings back fish for the Smithsonian Institution to keep. We note that Franklin is represented in the Smithsonian by the Muraenidae (morays), a Sphyrnaeidae (barracuda), an Acanthocybium petus and, honestly, one Haemulidae or grunt, as most fishermen call 'em.

Invented Propeller

It is just a hundred years since Frederic Sauvage, inventor of the propeller, died in abject poverty in a little hotel at Le Havre, France. Sauvage was a military engineer who left the army to devote himself to shipbuilding. After 10 years of painstaking research he invented the ship's propeller which was to supplant paddle-steamers and increase speed at sea tremendously.

Sauvage received little honor during his lifetime. His invention was at first laughed to scorn, and while he was in prison for a paltry debt of a few hundred francs, unscrupulous rivals stole his idea and started to produce propellers. Powerful shipping companies fitted their vessels with Sauvage's invention, but when he tried to sue them his case was thrown out of court. He died a bitter, poverty-stricken man.

Fair Question
The celebrated pianist had been boasting all through the dinner. Finally he held up his hands dramatically and exclaimed, "These ten fingers have made me world famous."

The bored man opposite him asked, drily, "Pianist or pick-pocket?"

Advice to the young: Take care of the pennies—and hide your money-box from daddy.

Old Habit
"I hear that Smith's wife has left him for the third time in a year."

Under an Alias
"Yes, darling," said the young commercial traveler, "there I was prepared to argue with the chap. But when I told him who I was he let me in at once."

Gems of Thought
THERE is nothing that commands right living like right living.
A competence is all we can enjoy.—Young.
Wit in the letter will prate, but wisdom speaks in a postscript.—Clough.
Free-will is not the liberty to do whatever one likes, but the power of doing whatever one sees ought to be done.—George MacDonald.
In a just cause it is right to be confident.—Sophocles.
If you do anything well, gratitude is lighter than a feather; if you have done anything wrong, the people's wrath is heavy as lead.—Plautus.

Her Ticket
The special constable had been told by his inspector to stop a car which was traveling fast in his direction.

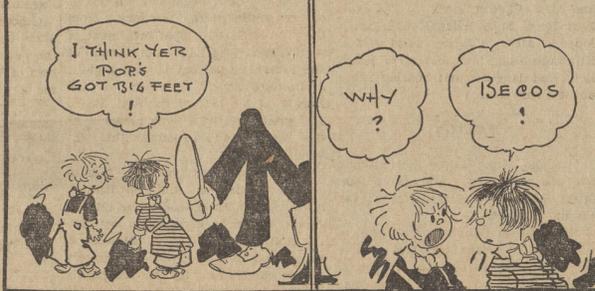

Ten minutes later he rang up to report.
"The car was being driven by an pull-out," he said, "I stops her, snatches it, writes her autograph, and then away she went."

First of Spring
"I hear your cook has rather an amorous disposition."

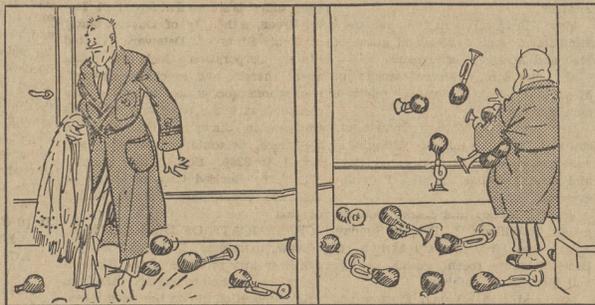

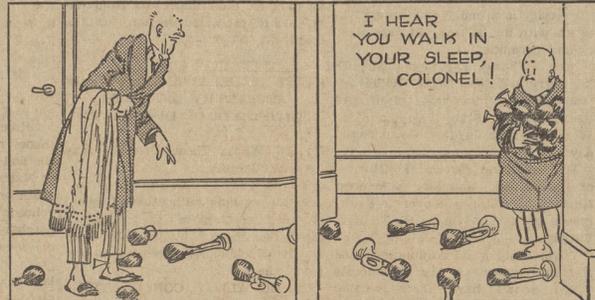

"Yes. If she can't get up a flirtation with the milkman, she starts mashing the potatoes."

Women don't really have more backbone than men. They just show more.
Funny to Him
"Why were you kept in school this morning, Tommy?"
"Because I laughed when teacher said, 'Never use a preposition to end a sentence with!'"

"The Name Is Familiar"

BY FELIX B. STREYCKMANS and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Sideburns

SIDE BURNS used to be called Burnside because it was Gen. A. E. Burnside who popularized them during the Civil war.

General Burnside's sideburns were not the rather weak things so often worn by the younger masculine element today.

Gen. Burnside

Why General Burnside wore them is open to discussion. It might have been to make up for the fact that his first name was Ambrose and his second name Everett.

But his achievements never needed apology. He was graduated from West Point in 1847. He served in the army for a while and then resigned to go into the manufacture of firearms.

Back in the army again, he was a colonel during the Civil war, was prominent at the Battle of Bull Run and later became a major-general.

He was intensely patriotic, amiable, modest and very popular. No American patriot deserved more to have his name commemorated. It's too bad it had to be immortalized in reverse!

Graham Cracker

EATING crackers in bed is a time-honored American custom that is attended with well-nigh disastrous aftermaths.

For this greater evil we can very definitely blame Sylvester Graham, health food faddist of the early 1800s. He devised graham flour, not so the bits of cracker would crawl down under our pajama collars and in the sheets between us and the bed.

Sylvester Graham was born in Suffield, Conn., in 1794, the son of a highly educated English clergyman. He became a minister, also, and went through life as a Presbyterian to save his soul.

One new food theory of his led to another and he had a wide following. Some followed him because they wanted to save themselves from liquor, some because they wanted to preserve their health and others followed him because they wanted to break his neck.

THE guillotine, machine used for legal beheading in France, was named for Dr. J. L. Guillotin, who prevailed upon the national assembly at Versailles in 1789 to adopt this contraption for all executions.

Two things about this need clearing up. First, Dr. Guillotin was not cruel—he was a kindly, mild-mannered physician from Paris. He spoke in behalf of the machine because it was a quick, painless method of inflicting death.

Second: Guillotine is spelled with a final e that is not found in Dr. Guillotin's name. When they called the machine "la guillotine" instead of "le guillotin" they not only bestowed paternity upon the doctor but they declared the child to be of the female sex.

Why the guillotine had to be feminine is not known from the standpoint of French grammar but it is decidedly appropriate for something devised to make a man lose his head—quickly and painlessly!

TEMPTING AND TOOTHsome (See Recipes Below)

Household News By Eleanor Howe

What Every Good Cook Should Know

There are certain principles of food preparation which every good cook follows, whether or not she's conscious of doing so, or understands the reasons on which they are based.

To be sure, every so often we find a recipe which seemingly contradicts every principle of cookery that has ever been formulated, and in spite of it, produces an excellent product. I suppose that's the proverbial exception that proves the rule!

There is, for example, a standard method for mixing cakes. Then there are revolutionary methods such as that which is used in the jiffy cake recipe below. But it's well to remember that the unusual method which, in one recipe, gives entirely satisfactory results, for another recipe may not work at all.

These are general rules (with an exception to prove every one, I do believe!) which the good cook follows as a matter of habit:

- 1. When mixing butter cakes or muffins, by the standard method, cream shortening, add sugar gradually, then egg yolks. Add sifted dry ingredients and liquid, alternately, beginning and ending with the dry ingredients. 2. Unless a recipe specifies otherwise, mix only until the ingredients are blended. 3. Cheese, egg and milk mixtures require a low temperature for cooking. Too high a temperature is likely to cause curdling. 4. When making pie crust, have the ingredients as cold as possible. 5. When egg white is added to a batter, it should be beaten until it is stiff but not dry, and folded lightly into the batter.

The recipes below will give you excellent results, in spite of the fact that they seem somewhat contradictory. But remember that the methods have been developed for these particular recipes, and they may not work if applied to any other.

Grandmother's Ginger Bread. 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup shortening, 1 cup molasses, 2 1/2 cups flour, 2 eggs (beaten), 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon cloves, 1/2 teaspoon ginger, 2 teaspoons soda, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup hot water.

Hot Water Pastry. (Makes 1 pastry shell) 1/2 cup shortening, 1/2 cup boiling water, 1 1/2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon baking powder.

Place shortening in a warm bowl, pour boiling water over it, and cream thoroughly with a fork. Place flour (measured after sifting once), salt, and baking powder in flour sieve and sift gradually into the creamed shortening and water mixture. Mix thoroughly. Make up into a dough ball and chill thoroughly.

Properly Concentrated Light Important

ELIZABETH MAC RAE BOYKIN There will be light on a dark subject if we list to the lamp manufacturers this season. For they have brought out several revolutionary ideas in home lighting; notably there is the polaroid lamp that is now on the market providing a marvelously diffused yet properly concentrated light that embodies a new principle of lighting. In addition, we may expect to see more indirect lighting units, achieved by separate reflector lamps as well as by built-in cove units.

But just plain table lamps are undergoing many style changes, too. In the first place, they will be much larger in scale and hence far more utilitarian than the dinky little numbers that have cluttered up the scene for too long. Then there will be more versatility in base designs. In place of the plain columns or vases that have been used for lamp bases, there will be a great many unusual architectural details used for bases—Greek colonnades or cap-

How true it is that the sauce can make or mar a dish, whether that dish is a cheese soufflé or a cottage pudding!

ly. Roll out and arrange in pie tin. Prick well. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for approximately 12 minutes.

Custard Pie 2 cups milk, 3 eggs, 3/4 tablespoon salt, 5 tablespoons sugar.

Scald milk. Beat the eggs light, add sugar and salt, and mix carefully. Add scalded milk. Strain into a well-greased pie pan and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 40 minutes, or until custard is firm. Bake a one-crust pastry shell in a second pie tin exactly the same size as that used for the custard pie. When the custard and baked pie shell are both thoroughly cooled, gently slip the custard pie into the pie shell just before serving. Note: This eliminates the soggy pie crust so often found in custard pies.

Jiffy Cake With Self Feing. (Makes one 8-inch cake) 1/4 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup milk, 1 teaspoon flavoring extract, 1 1/2 cups flour (cake flour preferred), 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Soften the butter by creaming. Then add sugar, unbeaten eggs, milk, flavoring extract, and the dry ingredients which have been sifted together. With a rotary beater or electric mixer, beat for 2 to 3 minutes, or until the batter is light and very smooth. Pour into greased pan 8 by 8 by 2 inches square, and cover evenly with the following mixture:

1/2 cup sweet chocolate (grated), 1/2 cup nut meats (cut fine). Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 35 to 40 minutes.

Maple Syrup Muffins. (Makes 12 muffins) 1 egg, 1/2 cup milk, 1/2 cup maple syrup, 1/4 cup butter (melted), 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Beat egg until very light and blend with milk, syrup and melted butter. Sift dry ingredients and add to first mixture. Pour into greased muffin pans and bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees) for about 20 minutes.

itals, masks and reproductions of stone grotesques will be seen as sophisticated lamp bases. Modern wooden columns of tall graceful form will be seen, frequently in dark finishes and sometimes touched with gold.

As for shades, you may look for beige and fawn colors to be of popular importance with moires and stripes as high fashion notes. There is a revival of fancier shades such as those finished with frayed full ruffs of silk, and fringes looped in swags around the shade will continue to be used. Be prepared also for hoop skirted effects and furber for hoop skirted effects and furber. Opaque shades in the dark colors or in metallic papers are decorator preferences and some of these are often seen in such colors as deep olive greens, browns and dusky blacks, always with a white lining. Marbleized papers, like those used for lining the covers of old books, are terribly smart for lamp shades. (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

Star Dust

STAGE SCREEN RADIO By VIRGINIA VALE (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

A GREAT deal of traveling is going on at the Warner Brothers studio, most of it by sea. Errol Flynn and Brenda Marshall are sailing the ocean blue with a crew of 400 aboard the "Albatross" and "Madre de Dios" for scenes in "The Sea Hawk."

Then there's "Till We Meet Again." For this one, Merle Oberon, George Brent and Pat O'Brien boarded the "S. S. Berenda" almost every morning for six weeks for a trip from China to San Francisco. For "All This and Heaven Too" Bette Davis crosses the channel from England to France. And all on the same lot!

The All-American College Queen, chosen from 462 colleges from the Atlantic to the Pacific, will be picked by Paramount in a national contest inaugurated in connection with the world premiere of "Those Were the Days," to be held in Galesburg, Ill., on May 21. College girls who have beauty and dramatic talent will be selected by the individual colleges; photographs of all entrants will be sent to New York, and from the 48 chosen for the semifinals, (one for each state) 12 will be picked to go to Galesburg. The winner will go to Hollywood.

When you see "Diamonds Are Dangerous" (with Isa Miranda and George Brent in the leading roles), it's probable that you'll try to remember where you've seen one of the girls who plays a minor role. The girl plays the part of a young lady who is having an extremely good time in a night club. She is very pretty, with blonde hair and blue eyes and a lovely smile. Perhaps you'll recognize her, for she is Virginia Lee Corbin, who made a million as a motion picture actress before she was 16.

From 1913 to 1926 she was a big name at the box office. Now she's staging a comeback, beginning as an extra. The money's gone, the public of today doesn't know her. But she's on her way up again. Now that Dinah Shore has become the songstress star of the Ben Bernie program via Columbia, the boys at NBC who handled her publicity must be thinking that radio is a queer business. For a year now these lads have been giving Dinah a terrific buildup. They must have spent thousands of dollars on special photographs, stunts, and writers' time to publicize her name and talent. And what is the fruit of their efforts? Her first commercial program lands her on a rival network!

Twelve Hollywood tourists were drafted from Los Angeles hotels as jurors to give audience reaction to Rudy Vallee's new show. They were treated like a real jury; given supper, and promised breakfast if their deliberations took all night. Findings of jury were not made public by the foreman.

Benay Venuta, the vivacious singing star of the George Jessel program, has been telling friends this story. It occurred during rehearsal of the program on which John Barrymore was guest star. A photographer hovered about, anxious to get some shots of the actor, but fearful that he might object, as he was considerably annoyed with cameramen in general at that time. Finally the photographer got up enough courage to approach the Great Lover. "Would you mind posing for pictures, Mr. Barrymore?" he asked. "Mind?" cried Barrymore. Then, leaning over, he whispered loudly, "Would you mind kissing Madeleine Carroll?"

Joseph Freni, the 23-year-old student of the French horn who was featured soloist on the Westinghouse program, Musical Americana, recently, is hoping that he'll spend the summer in South America. He is a candidate for the NYA. All American Youth Orchestra, which will tour Central and South America under the direction of Leopold Stokowski. The final auditions haven't been held yet, but musicians who heard him on the Musical Americana broadcast feel sure that he has a pretty good chance.

ODDS AND ENDS... Paulette Goddard, co-starring with Hope in "The Ghost Breakers," has started knitting the sweater she will give to her grandfather on his birthday... Smiling Joe Kelly, of the National Barn Dance broadcasts, spends his spare time inventing new sandwiches—but when he wants to eat one he falls back on hamburger and onion... The Bergen-McCarthy program is being broadcast from New York instead of Hollywood for a few weeks because Bergen wanted to see the Broadway shows, Donald Dickson wanted to see some of his old friends among the operatic stars, and Robert Armstrong wanted to see friends, relatives, and the city in general.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Keep brass articles from tarnishing by covering them with a thin coat of clear varnish. The varnish will form a lacquer which will not wear off unless the brass is handled frequently.

Serve waffles as soon as they are baked. If they are allowed to stand they are apt to become tough. Never stack them, since stacking makes them soggy.

To clean gas stove burners boil them in a strong solution of washing soda and water for about half an hour. This will remove all the grease. Rinse thoroughly, dry and put back into the stove.

Hotbeds are coldframes with heat added. This may be from animal manure, hot water or electricity. The difference between the two is the presence of the heating unit.

Orange and tomato juices lose much of their nutritive value after they have been exposed to the air for several hours. Consequently it is a good plan to prepare them just before serving. Buy tomato juice in cans which hold an amount that will be quickly consumed after they are opened.

THERE are two styles that you know right now you'll need, even if your Spring wardrobe is not entirely settled in your own mind! During the months to come, you'll want several free-and-easy sleeveless tennis frocks; and even better, you'll want at least one "little suit" for street and run-about. Well, here they both are, in this truly money-saving pattern (8597). The tennis frock has a swing skirt, wide, inset belt and strap back. Add the pinch-waisted little jacket-b blouse (the fitting is all by means of easy darts) and there's your suit-frock.

Doomed Giants

Whales, the largest mammals in the world, are threatened with extinction. For many years increasingly large whaling fleets, with huge floating factories for extracting the oil and other products, have been operating in the South Antarctic ocean. In the last 10 years Norway, the chief of whaling nations, has made over $300,000,000 out of whale-oil.

Every year an average of 40,000 whales are killed, and now that the price of whale-oil (invaluable for making margarine and fats for high-explosives) has increased from $65 to $200 a ton, the chase will be even more ruthless. Whales breed slowly.

The friends of Frank Gannett, who is trying to get into the race for president, have adopted a slogan, and such a slogan isn't calculated to help his cause. It is: "Gannett—Candidate to be Watched!" It seems to us that if a candidate has to be watched, it's an indication that he can't be trusted. It's about the same thing as one of these covered dish luncheons. We've been invited to dozens of them, but have never attended one—for the very simple reason that we like to see what we're eatin'.

SATURDAY, MARCH 30, 1940
At Two O'clock P. M.

The following described Real Estate, to-wit:

All those certain tracts, pieces or parcels of land situated in South Murderkill Hundred, Kent County and State of Delaware, and more particularly described as follows:

No. 1. All that certain farm, tract or parcel of land tenements, situated on the public road leading from Magnolia to Bowers, in South Murderkill Hundred, Kent County and State of Delaware, adjoining lands of Walter S. Camper heirs, and lands of others, and said to contain twenty-five acres of land, be the same more or less, and being the same lands and premises which were conveyed unto the said John Anderson and Lola C. Anderson, his wife, by deed of William A. Smith, widower, bearing even date herewith, and intended to be forthwith recorded; said deed having been executed and delivered prior to the execution and delivery of this mortgage and this mortgage being now given on the parcel of land above described for the purpose of securing the purchase price for said lands and premises.

The improvements thereon being a two-story frame dwelling, six rooms with summer kitchen; barn, cow stable, corn crib, brooder house and hog house.

No. 2. All that certain other farm, tract, piece or parcel of land and premises situated in South Murderkill Hundred, Kent County and State of Delaware, on the North side of the public road leading from Frederica to Warren's Landing, adjoining lands late of John W. Hall, deceased, lands formerly of John Lindale, deceased, lands of Annie Camper, lands of Thomas F. Clark, and lands of others, and containing eighty-three and one-half acres of land, be the same more or less, and being the same lands and premises which were conveyed unto William B. Donovan and John Anderson by deed of Lina T. Dare, widow, et. al., bearing date the twenty-second day of November, 1926, and of record in the Recorder of Deeds Office, in and for Kent County and State of Delaware in Deed Record Book G, Volume 13, Page 41, etc.

Subsequently, upon the death of William B. Donovan, on or about the fifteenth day of December, 1935, intestate, his undivided one-half share or interest in the lands and premises last above described descended unto his daughter, Lola C. Anderson, nee Donovan, as his only child and heir-at-law, his wife having predeceased him.

The improvements on parcel No. 2 being Stable and Garage.
Together with all and singular the buildings and improvements of every kind whatsoever, ways, water, watercourses, rights, liberties, privileges, improvements, hereditaments and appurtenances whatsoever thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining. Seized and taken in execution as the property of JOHN ANDERSON and LOLA C. ANDERSON, his wife, Mortgagees, and will be sold by GRIER H. MINNER, Sheriff, Sheriff's Office, Dover, Delaware. YOU CAN PAY MORE

-but why?

You can pay a lot more than the modest Chevrolet price for a motor car. But you'll find yourself asking, "Where can I get any more beauty, driving and riding ease, road action, safety and all-round value than I get in Chevrolet for '40?"
Particularly when you consider Chevrolet's extremely low prices and Chevrolet's exceptionally low cost of operation and upkeep.

"We use the telephone so much on our farm I know we couldn't get along without it."
"There are eight children in the family, and to take the telephone away from them would be like taking away their friends and chums. They use it a lot for visiting—and so does my wife."
"My wife has regular customers who call her when they want eggs and chickens. The telephone actually helps us make money because my wife always charges a little above the market price."

High Spots on Record-Breaking Run

Signs of the times in a motor age—these highway markers tell the story of a two-year, 100,000-mile truck test run recently completed by Chevrolet. In Canada, Mexico and every state of the Union, the truck operated on all types of highways and under every conceivable weather hazard, setting a new world mark for sustained and certified automotive operation, under the sanction and official observation of the American Automobile Association. The unit carried a 4,590-pound "payload." An average of 15.1 miles per gallon of fuel was maintained throughout the 100,000 miles, at an average operating speed of 33.07 miles per hour. Oil mileage was correspondingly high—1,072 miles per quart.

SUN, RAIN, AND Money
How Bank Loans aid Farm Prosperity

Farmers of this section have learned to depend not only upon Nature and their own efforts for successful farm operations, but, also, upon money borrowed from this bank at certain seasons, for crop making, marketing, and other purposes. Good land, with good farmers cultivating it, produces wealth for this community, and we are glad to lend where we can help make it more productive and to give our farmers well-deserved cooperation.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Cabinet Shifts, Bombing Raids Presage Big Spring Offensives; Russia Draws Closer to Italy

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union

EUROPE:

From Axis to Triangle

If foreign observers hoped the Finnish peace would place a quietus on western warfare, their mistake was clearly evident by late March. Not by secret maneuvers but by leaps and bounds the Rome-Berlin axis was merging into a Russian-German-Italian coalition designed to force a dictators' peace down the Anglo-French throat.

Mr. Welles Goes Home

Nobody knew what was in his briefcase but U. S. Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles boarded the Conte di Savoia at Genoa, homeward bound to tell Franklin Roosevelt about the chances for a European peace. Sidetracked by France and Britain, he had more luck with Germany and Italy whose dictators, Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini, met at the Brenner pass and presumably framed a set of abortive terms.

Also discussed at Brenner was an Italo-Russ compromise calling for sphere-of-influence division in the Balkans. A few days later, when Soviet Ambassador Alexander Schkvarzev flew from Berlin to Moscow on a secret mission, it was clearly evident that Germany was drawing Rome and Moscow closer together.

Reaction

In England. When press and public began yelling for action, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain got mad. He gave parliament the fightingest speech of his career and promised to strike back. For the umpteenth time in three years he averted a government collapse, this time by sending planes on a retaliatory air raid against the Nazi base at Sylt (see map). Wave after wave of bombers poured tons of explosives on the island fortress; next day reconnaissance planes brought back pictures to prove the damage. Hastily the Germans took precautions at their other vulnerable base, Heligoland. Then they

In the HEADLINES

OKLAHOMA—The U. S. obtained a preliminary order restraining Gov. Leon C. Phillips from using troops to prevent completion of the $20,000,000 Grand River dam. Phillips' contention: That the U. S. should pay the state $389,000 for property to be damaged.

TAXATION—At Washington, the U. S. treasury figured early 1939 income tax returns showed a 26 per cent boost over last year, with highest collections still to be reported.

AVIATION—American Airlines, Inc., asked the civil aeronautics authority for permission to operate the first complete airline from Chicago to Mexico City.

COMMUNICATIONS—Maj. Edwin Armstrong, inventor of static-free "frequency modulation" broadcasting, asked the Federal Communications commission to give his "F-M" the broadcasting channels now used for television. Argument: That television, now impractical commercially, stands in the way of radio progress.

TRADEMARK—At Baltimore a federal district court injunction ordered makers of five other soft drinks to cease using the words "cola" or "Coca-Cola" because it infringed on Coca-Cola's trademark.

MARITIME—Britain's Queen Mary and Mauritania slipped from their New York piers bound for Australia to become troop transports.

WHITE HOUSE—Having defied his doctor by getting out of bed with a cold, Franklin Roosevelt's temperature rose to 99.4. Result: He went back to bed with orders to stay there until cured.

PEOPLE—Unknown to his doctor, ex-Gangster Al Capone slipped away from the Baltimore home where he has lived several months while receiving treatment.

took revenge by raiding British convoys in the North sea.

In France. Fighting increased on the western front but there was a bigger fight in Paris. Called on the carpet as a result of the Russian threat, Premier Edouard Daladier emerged with such a weak vote of confidence (311 deputies had not voted) that his cabinet resigned. This was a victory for democracy, because the Daladier government has ruled for seven months under dictatorial decrees. Quickly President Albert Lebrun summoned Paul Reynaud, conservative ex-finance minister, bitter foe of Nazism and distaster of the politics-ridden Daladier cabinet. Next day Premier Reynaud emerged with a well publicized, psychologically sound "victory" cabinet dedicated to trouncing the Nazis. Edouard Daladier was still war minister, and all parties were thoroughly represented that the chamber's confidence seemed assured.

In Finland

While 500,000 Finns hastened evacuation of territory ceded to Russia, the battered little nation began patching her defenses and counting noses. Total war casualties were placed at 58,500, of which 29,700 were dead or seriously disabled. (Total army: 360,000.)

Meanwhile new troubles were arising with Russia. The Finnish cabinet, about to resign, heard that the Kremlin opposed formation of a Norwegian-Swedish-Finnish mutual defense alliance on the ground that it would be aimed at the Soviet. Obviously Russia was not willing to surrender her new-found domination over Scandinavia.

In Poland

Numerous and unpleasant are the atrocity stories coming out of Poland since German occupation last autumn. Much of this information probably came from consular officials of neutral nations, a possibility which might explain the latest Nazi order: Effective immediately, all foreign consular offices in Poland must be evacuated, making Germany the sole source of official information on conditions in the area. At Washington the state department announced the Reich had been adamant to its protests. Left without official representation were 532 Americans living in Poland.

ASIA:

Crow Eaters

For two and one-half years Japanese troops fighting in north China have reported after every encounter that the enemy has been "routed," "given a stunning blow," "wiped out" or "annihilated." In late March the Japanese army was forced to eat crow. An official survey admitted that more than a million Chinese troops were still fighting in north China under leadership of Gen. Cheng Chien, whom the Japs reported killed in 1938.

In the south, Nippon had better luck, capturing the walled city of Lingshan and encircling a large Chinese force east of the Nanning-Yanchow railroad. Meanwhile the puppet regime of Wang Ching-wei, turncoat ex-Chinese premier, summoned a central political council and established a government at Nanking under Japan's watchful eye.

POLITICS:

Farley's Inning

In late March Columnist Ernest Lindley wrote from Washington that President Roosevelt had told an unidentified southern legislator (1) that he wanted to retire; (2) that Cordell Hull should succeed him; (3) that Jim Farley's Catholicism would make impossible a successful race by the postmaster general. Next day Franklin Roosevelt protested. Said he: The remark about Farley and the rest of the article all came from whole cloth—it was utterly false. While this was no recommendation, it at least let Farley's friends believe that he would have an equal chance for the job if Mr. Roosevelt turned down.

Farley himself took heart. Next day, stepping from his train at Springfield, Mass., where Democrats have entered a full slate of delegates for him in the forthcoming primary, he said flatly: "To clear up any misunderstanding, let me say that my name will be presented to the national convention at Chicago, and that's that."

Other political news:

Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison announced "after weeks of earnest consideration" his candidacy in the New Jersey Democratic gubernatorial primary May 21. (Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.) a G. O. P. presidential campaign in Wisconsin and Nebraska (where he is a primary candidate). Reason: "The choice of the (G. O. P.) convention should flow from the deliberate judgment of the people, and not from . . . a campaign tour."

MEDICINE:

Quints?

At Miami, preliminary X-rays showed Mrs. Katherine Callahan, wife of a $15-a-week worker, was the prospective mother of five babies. Hearing about it, the Miami Herald placed her under contract for exclusive publication rights on photographs and news in exchange for financial aid and other facilities. Suddenly disappointed, the Herald learned Mrs. Callahan would really have only one baby.

Women in the News

DORIS DUKE CROMWELL, "world's wealthiest girl," found Husband Jimmy Cromwell in trouble. As U. S. minister to Canada he criticized American isolationists and denounced Germany, prompting congressmen to demand his recall.

MRS. FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT JR. fell from a horse, fractured her pelvis and suffered a slight concussion.

JACQUELINE COCHRAN, ace aviatrix, tried to better the world's air speed record of 311 miles an hour.

JOAN FONTAINE, actress wife of Actor Brian Aherne, sister of Actress Olivia de Havilland, was seriously ill in a Hollywood hospital.

CONGRESS:

Farm Fund

Passed by the senate (and certain to pass the house) was a $923,000,000 agriculture appropriation bill carrying $212,000,000 for parity payments and another $85,000,000 for the surplus commodities program. It was more than $200,000,000 above either the house bill or the President's budget, and wiped out most of the $300,000,000 earlier savings through which the house planned to avoid new taxes or a boost in the national debt limit.

Though congress hoped to offset the farm boost by slashing defense and relief appropriations, even this possibility was fading fast. Europe's war was forcing U. S. attention to her armed strength and metropolitan congressmen were demanding at least a $500,000,000 boost in WPA's appropriation. Some observers predicted the deficit for next fiscal year would be at least $2,500,000,000, compared with the $1,716,000,000 estimate by President Roosevelt. Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, hearing that congress was looking covetously at his $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund, hastened to protect it.

Also in congress:

Indicating a lessening of administration opposition to Wagner act amendments, the pro-New Deal labor committee voted to expand the labor board from three men to five. Earlier the committee

MICHIGAN'S HOFFMAN "Hell's bells, no!"

rejected 9 to 8 a motion for establishment of a new board, but there was skullduggery in this. Rep. Clare Hoffman (R., Mich.) learned his proxy vote had been cast against the proposal by error. Asked if he would have voted as his proxy was cast, Hoffman replied: "Hell's bells, no! Everybody knows what I think of this board!"

After passing the farm bill, the senate took up the house-approved resolution to extend for three years the reciprocal trade act. Its support diminished, the bill stood only a 50-50 chance of passing as the administration wanted it, minus a clause requiring senate ratification of each pact.

The senate banking and currency committee approved 14 to 4 the bill of Sen. John G. Townsend (R., Del.) to repeal the silver purchase act of 1934. Reasons: (1) Too costly; (2) it has subsidized Chinese, Mexican and Canadian silver; (3) heavy gold purchases have made it impossible to attain the goal of 25 per cent silver in the U. S. monetary stock.

An amendment to the Hatch "clean politics" act, designed to bar political activity on the part of state employees paid with U. S. funds, passed the senate and headed for a pigeonhole in the house.

The house military committee began investigating foreign purchases of U. S. airplanes, fearing vital defense mechanism was being sold abroad. Meanwhile the allied purchasing committee begged the U. S. to sell $1,000,000,000 worth of its newest, secret planes. Reason: Present models would be obsolete by the 1941 delivery date.

SUPERLATIVES in the news . . .

BIGGEST CARGO—U. S. navy tugs began towing a 6,500-ton floating dry dock from New Orleans to Pearl Harbor, Honolulu—6,000 miles away.

SUREST DATE—As they have for 100 years, a band of swallows returned on the appointed day to San Juan Capistrano, Calif., which they leave regularly each October 23.

MOST NOVEL CONTEST—At Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill., Communist Earl Browder polled nearly twice as many (357) votes as Franklin Roosevelt (194) on the issue: "What potential candidates for the presidency would you least want to see elected?"

MOST UNUSUAL IDEA—Sen. Carl Hatch (D., N. M.), author of the Hatch "clean politics" act, said he was considering legislation to finance major political campaigns with U. S. funds. Reason: "I believe it would cheaper in the long run . . ."

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—This war, so far, has lacked bands and banners and all other such traditional excitements and John Masefield has not even written a poem about it. In one detail, however, British traditionalism again prevails. Sir Muirhead Bone, official artist of the World War, is again officially appointed as the artist of the navy, and it is understood that he also will render the graphic records of the conflict on land as well.

Sir Muirhead, 64 years old, of Scottish birth, is one of the world's most distinguished etchers. He is also a painter, but in the years between the big wars he has turned more to etching. That is, with the trend of the times, as a modern war is decidedly an etcher's war. Skeleton trees on a blasted hillside, zig-zag trenches, the splintered chaos of peasants' huts, the angular dynamics of war machinery, all lend themselves to Sir Muirhead's superlative drypoint. There isn't much of the painter's mass and color in an up-to-date war—no gay plumes, bright uniforms and snorting black horses. There are instead the sullen monochromes of desolation, the inert black and white of sharply graven ruin.

There were plenty of hands playing when Sir Muirhead was appointed official war artist in 1916. He painted boldly or etched deeply his pictures for the war museum, for which he later became trustee. Much was made, not only of the importance of a minutely observed pictorial record of the war, but of the availability of so great an artist to render its full aesthetic values. This time, there is a perfunctory announcement, only a few lines, of Sir Muirhead's appointment. Not even in the graphic arts is war getting its accustomed fanfare.

This writer remembers well Sir Muirhead's masterful drawings in the "international studio" of an earlier and happier day—mellow architectural studies, or placid landscape in English byways where no air-raid siren ever sounded. He was the son of a Glasgow journalist, studying art at a night school. It was in 1901 that he went to England, to become an honorary doctor of letters at Oxford and one of the most famous artists of England. He has exhibited in New York several times and has an enthusiastic following among critics and the American art public.

IN 1937, Rep. John E. Miller of Arkansas made his campaign for the United States senatorship against the "New Deal patronage machine." His backers charged that his opponent, Gov. Carl E. Bailey, had the active support of his "organization of 5,000 state employees," and of various members of the New Deal cabinet. Representative Miller, running as an independent against "machine politicians," achieved a sensational victory, as he won the seat of the late Joe T. Robinson. He was the first independent elected to a major political office in Arkansas since the early reconstruction days. His success was acclaimed as a triumph over patronage politics.

Arkansas Senator Is Ardent Foe of Revised Hatch Act

Today, by one of those curious reversals of political form which make news, Senator Miller is the most conspicuous opponent of the extension and strengthening of the Hatch law, directed against political job-holders mixing in politics. He would not only block its extension to cover state job-holders supported in part by federal funds, but he would repeal section nine which bars governmental employees from political activity.

The lean, bespectacled Senator Miller is somewhat professorial in appearance, and, incidentally, was graduated from Cape Girardeau Teachers' college, in Valparaiso, Ind. However, he later turned to the law and has been a practicing attorney in Searcy, Ark., since 1912. He was prosecuting attorney and county judge before his election to the house in 1930. He is a native of Stoddard County, Mo.

IN THE light of not so ancient history, it is quite clear as to why Francis B. Sayre thinks we ought to get rid of the Philippines. Our high commissioner is a holder of the Grand Cross of the White Elephant. Less pertinent, but interesting is the fact that he also is a knight commander of the Chula Krom Klav, and a Phia Kalyan Metri. These titles were gratefully bestowed on him by the king of Siam, when, in the early 1920s, Mr. Sayre was adviser to the king and aided in many treaty negotiations.

Generals were our first Philippine administrators, then a politician and now a specialist in trade treaties—a neat epitome of military, political and economic urgency in the traditional historic sequence. Mr. Sayre, a somewhat evangelical economist and legalist, was born at South Bethlehem, Pa., studied at Williams college and the Harvard law school, taught at Williams and was an assistant district attorney in New York. He was Massachusetts' commissioner of corrections when he was appointed to the state department in 1933.

Photographers Have Field Day With White House Candidates

The campaign manager of handsome Paul McNutt, Democratic aspirant, is deliberately trying to "un-glamorize" his silver-crested candidate. This "newest portrait" shows the effective results.

Frank Cannett, 63-year-old Rochester (N. Y.) newspaper publisher, stands before his portrait and waves at the banqueters who heard him announce his candidacy for the G. O. P. nomination.

CHICKEN DEATHS CAN BE TRACED

Immediate Post Mortem Will Aid in Finding Disease.

By DR. F. R. BEAUXETTE Immediate post mortem examination of all chickens and other birds that die is the only means of knowing the causes of death. Records at the New Jersey agricultural experiment station indicate that over a period of years one can learn to expect certain diseases to occur at certain seasons of the year, but occasionally a new disease appears.

In general, however, pullorum disease and bronchitis come in the spring and are followed by coccidiosis and parasite problems. In the fall paralysis, pox and the respiratory infections appear. In mid-winter the mortality goes down and the diseases are of a miscellaneous character.

Birds are subjected to diseases caused by viruses, bacteria, fungi, protozoa, nutritional deficiencies and various external and internal parasites. These diseases are as numerous and as complicated as are the diseases of other species of animal or man, and, for this reason, their solution is equally as difficult. In fact, there exists in chickens or birds a disease parallel almost any disease in any other animal. Thus, chickens have malaria, tuberculosis, typhoid, tumors and pox, all of which are adapted to the bird. At the same time, they have a few diseases actually acquired from other animals such as swine erysipelas and tularemia.

However, chickens are the least source of infection for other animals or for man among all of the food-producing animals. Moreover, an egg from a healthy hen is bacteria-free which makes it the only food of animal origin of that nature.

Expert Advises Culling All 'Counterfeit' Cows

If all the "counterfeit" cows, or animals which do not live up to high standards of efficiency, were sent to the butcher, a surprising improvement in dairy farm income would be noted, says E. J. Perry, extension dairyman at the New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers university. Not only would there be no surplus milk, but there also would be more land to devote to more profitable farm commodities.

"The part that efficient cows play in building dairy farm security cannot be overemphasized," Mr. Perry points out. "It is well known that 10 good cows will yield more profit than 20 average cows, and the 10 will place less milk on the market. For instance, 10 cows averaging 8,000 pounds of milk will produce 80,000 pounds of milk in a year, while 20 cows averaging 5,000 pounds each, will have a total yield of 100,000 pounds. The feed cost for the two kinds of cows will not be very different.

"When several cows of average rating or below are mingling with efficient cows in a herd, the tendency is to keep more cows in order to obtain the income needed. The poor cows eat up some if not all of the profit which the good cows may have made.

Separator Losses

How many dollars' worth of butterfat are you losing each year in the skim milk from your separator? A sample taken to your local creamery or cream station can be tested. The cow tester is glad to render this service also. If operating efficiently, the average farm separator should not leave over 0.05 per cent butterfat in the skim milk. Better let your dealer do your separator adjusting. Some changes professing to fix any bowl may leave your machine in such shape that as much as one-tenth of your butterfat will be lost.

Caring for Colt

A little attention given to the feet of colts and young horses may make a difference in the value of the horse when ready to work. When colts' feet are allowed to become uneven and crooked, it is almost sure to affect the feet and legs permanently. Keeping the feet trimmed and shaped up properly allows normal development of the legs and prevents defects in the feet and legs. Poorly shaped feet and crooked legs that have resulted from neglect can be corrected in some measure by proper trimming of the feet.

'Battle of Barberr' Wages in Mid-West

No one ever knows, when a species of plant or animal is introduced from one region to another, what the result will be. Now, in the middle western and north central states, war is being waged on a plant, introduced from New England by the earlier settlers. The barberry bush is ornamental, its seeds attract birds, and only in recent years has it been discovered that fungus causes stem rust of wheat, oats and barley.

Bull Precautions

Never enter a box stall with a bull unless you are sure that he is securely stanchioned or hitched. Never allow yourself to get in a position where the bull can crowd you with his body or strike you with his head or horns. Strive let a bull loose, in the pasture, with the cattle. Handle the bull carefully. Lead him with the best staff you can get. Be on the alert every instant to prevent the bull from making a bad move that might prove dangerous.

THE GIFT WIFE

By RUPERT HUGHES

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

To Jebb's eyes the man was utterly a stranger, but Mr. Rosen no sooner saw Jebb than a smile began to quirk his mouth corners. And his greeting was:

"What's the trouble this time?"

"Oh—you refer to the time I was here before."

"Naturally."

Jebb stood in embarrassment.

"You haven't lost your passport again, have you?"

"I'm afraid I have."

"Well, it hasn't been found. If it turned up the police would forward it to us. Say, you must be as rich as you say, for you pay fines just for the fun of it. Where have you been all this while, Mr.—Mr.—"

"Are you trying to say 'Pierpont'?"

"That's it, Mr.—Vanderbilt Pierpont, eh?"

Jebb nodded. "Tell me, Mr. Rosen, you remember that little child I had with me the time you saw me?"

"Child? No. You had no child with you when I saw you. I'll not soon forget the first picture I had of you. Word came here that some Yankee was in trouble with the customs house. It's a common occurrence. Americans are forever bouncing into Turkey without the indispensable passport. The consul sent me down as usual to get our fellow-countryman out of book. I can see you sitting there now. You were very striking. I thought at the time that perhaps you had been indulging a little in magnificent water. You sat there hugging a Gladstone bag and threatening to report the customs inspector to your particular friend the Sultan."

"I had a Gladstone bag with me?"

"Yes, and the fellow had found some suspicious looking documents in it. Everything looked suspicious in the days of the old Sultan. You said you had come to Turkey to buy something—I don't remember just what. So many Americans come here to buy things. Anyway, you didn't have a passport and the inspector wanted to fine you. You said 'Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute.' I remember that. I calmed you down and persuaded the customs people to accept a consular guaranty and give you a new passport. And then you went your way. Now you've lost it again, eh?"

"You're sure I had a Gladstone bag with me?"

"Perfectly. It was full of blueprints and specifications and other dangerous looking papers."

"Where had I come from?"

"You got off an Austro-Hungarian Lloyd steamer."

"And you can't tell me where I got on?"

"Look here, my friend, are you stringing me? Asking me questions about you—what's this new game anyway? Lord help us, I thought I'd heard about all the fool questions a consul could be asked, but this is a new line. Why don't you cable to your friends in America and say, 'Who am I? Where was I? Where do I go from here?—answer prepaid.'"

It seemed inadvisable for Jebb to keep his secret from his angrier countryman. Seeing that there was no one else about, Jebb hitched his chair close to Mr. Rosen's desk and unobscured his story. Strange delight of confession! Just giving voice to his old secret was an immense relief. Rosen shook his head with the sympathy most Americans feel for the clients of Mr. Barleycorn:

"Too bad, old man," he said, "I'm rather fond of the liquid myself, but I take it in sips."

"Don't waste time sympathizing with me," Jebb broke in; "think of the child."

"Do you know, I believe we've heard of her from another source."

"You have! You mean she's found?"

"No, we've just heard that she was lost. We got a circular note from the American consul in Vienna. He had had word from the Austrian police."

"My friend von Hellwald put them on the track. Have they heard anything?"

"Oh, no. They've just begun to pretend to look. And here's the circular."

He took from a pigeonhole a sheet of paper.

"You see, it says, 'Wanted information of Cecilia Baxter.'"

"It isn't Baxter—it's Thatcher," Jebb insisted. "And not Cecilia, but Cynthia."

Rosen tossed the circular to Jebb.

"Oh Lord, Oh Lord!" Jebb groaned, "they've misspelled the name." He looked further. "And got the description wrong! She doesn't look a bit like that! The search has been useless, useless."

Suddenly Rosen was startled by a new idea.

"You say the child's real name was not Baxter, but Thatcher?"

"Yes, Thatcher."

"Any relation to—" he put his hand out to another pigeonhole for a card, "to John Thatcher, of Berlin?"

"That's her father."

"Is that so?"

"Yes. How did you get his name?"

"It was like this. A few weeks ago a Turk who keeps a little khan in the outskirts of town came in here with a Gladstone bag—" er came back. The Turk came here to see about it. He wouldn't leave the bag, but he let us look through it. There were a lot of blueprints and mechanical drawings with the name of John Thatcher on them. And a bundle of clippings and letters. I made a note of the name and promised to keep it in mind."

"Where can I find the fellow?"

"I'll have him here tomorrow."

"I can't wait to see him. Where is he to be found?"

"His name is Hafiz Mustafa and he keeps a little khan out near the Adrianople Gate, close to the Mosque of Mirima. Better go to the foot of the bridge and take one of the Golden Horn steamers—they run every fifteen minutes—get off at Avian Serai, this side of Eyub, and then go west through the Greek quarter. While you're up there you ought to see the wonderful cemetery of Eyub and the old landwall."

"I don't want to see any cemetery. I want to see that Turkish wrestler with the Gladstone bag. Good afternoon."

CHAPTER IX

"At last the effendi is on the job!"

This was Jebb's greeting from a ponderous Turk at the door of a shabby khan. The man had all the look of a retired athlete, whose sinews of steel had degenerated into swaddles of fat.

He recognized Jebb on the instant, and he was big enough to be rememberable on his own account; but Jebb could not recall an ounce of him.

Hafiz Mustafa bustled about making coffee and preparing a narghile for his honored guest. He spoke what English he had with a strong flavor of the Bowerly, in whose environs he had picked up his smattering.

"I see right away you are American."

"How you like my little khan, eh? He is not so worse, I think, huh?"

"It is beautiful," said Jebb, though he could not imagine a more doleful spot.

"It is not such a dam racket out here as in New York Coety, eh? For long tam I had a how they say?—a hash-house on Washeon Street. Yes. I get lots of the long green in America and I buy that leetle hash-house from an Osmanli who is home-seek for Stamboul. Bine-by, I get the homeseek too."

"So at last I sell out for big pile of dough and come home. Eet ees not such a much business here, but I can rest and theenk. Eet is a small walk out to the heeg fields where the tombstones is nice to seeet on and smoke and dream the nice long dream. And she is out there, my little hanim what I breeng from America."

"You brought your wife from America?" Jebb inquired politely.

"Evet, effendim—I mean, sure, Mike, I breeng her. She is dancer in music hall on Bowerly."

"A Turkish dancer?"

"Not on your life, Bo. She is pure American blood—comes from the great coety of Weesconsen. I see her dance one night. I think she is mos' beautiful theeng what ever ees—she wear the leetle trunks and the seek tight and the—spengles, and she stand up on her toes like she enjoy it. Bine-by, she ees love me, too, and we get married. She says she ees sick of that tarrible life, and so when I buy pretty leetle hash-house she help me. One day she is make coffee in those heeg boiler they have in America and the water spills over, and she is tarrible—how do you say?—scalded. Her pretty face is tarrible burned."

"But she is still beautiful to me, and her body is still the body like a seralli from Circassia. But after that she hates to go out in the street."

"I tell her, 'You come home to Stamboul where honest wives is wear the yildirma'—the veil, effendim. The veil is very kind thing. It keeps all women the same. Eet is more equality than the hat."

"Her name in Weesconsen was Annie Meetchel, but I geeve her new name—Osmanli name—Nayima, eet ees one nice name—yes?"

Jebb thought, yes indeed—not so pretty as Miruma, but a great improvement on Annie Mitchell.

"I used to have my khan near the Egyptian Bazaar," Hafiz went on, "but since my Nayima is out in grave there I like thees better. In evening I sit there and smoke and theenk, nobody is hurry—nobody say, 'Get a move on, Hafiz!'"

"The Gladstone—they tell me you found it?—where?"

"The Gladstone, effendim? What is that?"

"The bag—the valise—the—that thing of mine, you found?"

After another thoughtful of coffee, another mouthful of smoke, Hafiz rose, and, entering the khan, brought forth the Gladstone bag. Jebb recognized it with intense delight. He wanted to caress it. It was the first material link to his unsubstantial past.

He rummaged the contents with a sharpness of eye that might have offended a subtler Turk than Hafiz.

"All is there, I thank?" Hafiz asked, and Jebb nodded as he recognized every document he had collected in John Thatcher's cause. But he had cherished a wild hope of finding something more. With some embarrassment he asked:

"You didn't find ten thousand dollars in here, did you?"

The Turk smiled. The Yankees always joked. His politely amiable smile was more convincing than any other disclaimer could have been.

"Oh, yes," he chuckled, "I find ten thousand dollars—in a peeg's eye."

"Would you mind telling me where you found this?"

"Sure, I'll tell you, but not unteel the boss has something to eat."

"Oh, thank you. I'll go back to the Bristol Hotel for my dinner."

"The Brestol—not on your teentye, Bo. It is so late you never get there. You must take a—how did they say?—a snack with me."

He would hear of nothing else, and Jebb was forced to resign himself to the delay, hoping that perhaps some clew might yet transpire to aid his further search.

Afterwards Hafiz began his story: "The day I feerst laid my eyes on you—the old Padishah Abdul Hamid—whom Allah preserve!—if it please Allah—and I hope it does not—was still wearing the great sword of Othman. But it was after the people from Salonica had come down and made him call back the Constitution. He took it off the ice—see?"

"When feerst the Young Turks is come to town some of the ladies think everytheeng going to be turned upsidedown. They throw off the yildirma and go out to the streets, even to the theater. Some of them ride in carriage with their husbands. Some of them wear beeg hats from Paris. This make the religeous people mad like what if in New York all the ladies is wear bathing suits on Broodway, yes?"

"Me and some pals is stopping a carriage and telling a lady she better go home and put on her veil or she's goin' to be very sorry. She is educated Osmanli lady; she makes poetry and writes a magazine, but she read too many French novels, she goes out in the high-heeled shoes, the tight clothes over the immoral corsets—and her face is naked. She is scream when we tear off her big feathers. First theeng I know, somebody grabs me. I turn round; it is you, and you say: 'You beeg brute, I'm going to break every bone in your body if you say one 'nother word to that poor child!'"

The huge wrestler looked at the slender physician, then at his own booa constrictor arms, and laughed. There was no insult in his superiority.

Jebb smiled, too, at the magnificence of this Vanderbilt-Pierpontism, and asked:

"Why didn't you beat the life out of me?"

Hafiz smiled: "I see right away you are American, and the Americans is so nice to me—my Nayima is American, and the words you use they listen good to me. So I take your wrists and I hold you very gentle and talk to you nice and say in Eengleesh, 'Please, mister, kill me, but spare my life.'"

"You say, 'if you let that lady go, I let you live a little while.' I turn round and the lady is already vammose. The other mens is want to wear your blood, but I tell them you are a friend of a friend of mine, and they go away."

"Then I say, 'Boss, it's my treat, and we sit down at a little table in a little khan and I blow you off to coffee. Bine-by, you say you got a date weel' the Padishah, and I say, 'So long, old pal, I stay and feenish thees narghile.'"

"So you go and I stay. Bine-by, I see you have leaved this—Gladstone, yes? on the ground by your table. Nobody knows your name or where you live at. I go to the American consulate. Nobody knows you. They say, 'Leave the bag here. We give it to him.' I say, 'Nix on the hot air. I know about the American grafter. I keep it till my friend calls for it his own self.'"

"I wait long tam, but at last you is here, and here is the Gladstone. And that is all."

Jebb sat in deep reverie, deeply dejected. Then he shook off the old sorrow, and prepared to go. He wondered what reward Hafiz would think appropriate. He decided to throw himself on Hafiz' mercy:

"I can't thank you enough, for finding this and keeping it for me. And now, how—how much do I owe you?"

"Look here, boss," Hafiz groaned, "have I act like a piker, a panhandler, have I? I thought you and me was friends. I was doin' this as one American to a pal."

Jebb took his big limp hand and tried to wring it.

"Excuse me," he said, "I'm ashamed of myself."

"Let her go at that," said Hafiz; "cut it out, and clean it off the slate. When you git back to New York, if you'll stop in at some Osmanli restaurant down on Washeon Street or somewhere and tell them you know me, and I was lookn' well, and sent my best regards—they'll blow you to the best there is in the joint, and I'll call it square."

"I promise," said Jebb. "And now I've really got to go."

John Tyler, Born 150 Years Ago, Is One of Least-Known Presidents But Had a Career That Is Unique

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

JOHN TYLER, who was born just 150 years ago, is one of the least-known Presidents of the United States, yet few of our Chief Executives have had a more interesting or more unusual career. Here are some of the facts which make his unique:

He was the first vice president to become President upon the death of the Chief Executive.

He was the first vice president to be defeated for that office in one election and then stage a come-back and win in the next one.

He was the first President to surround himself with a "Brain Trust" of college professors and experts (even though that name had not yet been coined for it) and in doing so he antedated Franklin D. Roosevelt by nearly a hundred years.

He was the only President who was "purged" by members of his party . . . and they were more successful in doing that than President Roosevelt was in his attempted "purge" of his party!

He was the only President who ever renounced his allegiance to the United States.

After leaving the White House, he accepted the lowest office ever filled by an ex-President—that of road overseer.

His wife was the first President's wife to die in the White House.

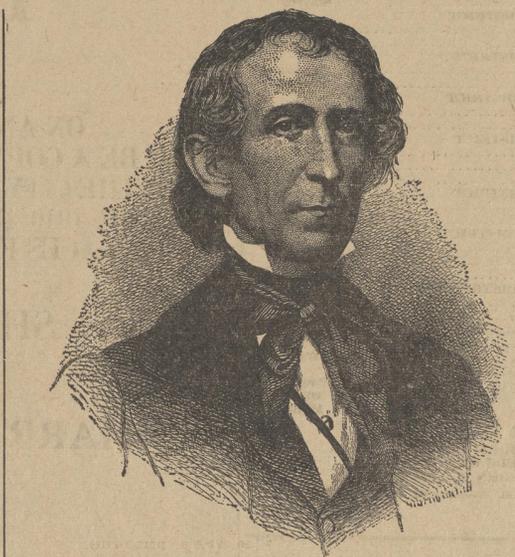

In fact, the dark thread of Death was woven all through the pattern of John Tyler's life. The death of a Virginia congressman, John Clopton, in 1816 resulted in Tyler's being chosen to fill the vacancy in the house of representatives and thus brought him on the stage of national affairs. The death of John Taylor in 1824 resulted in the nomination of Tyler to fill the vacancy thus created in the United States senate but his friend, Littleton Tazewell, was elected to the post. The death of William Henry Harrison made Tyler President of the United States in 1841 and a little more than a year after he moved into the White House, it was draped in black in mourning for his wife, Letitia Christian Tyler, who died September 10, 1842. And finally his own death prevented his holding the last office to which he was ever elected—membership in the congress of the Confederate States of America.

Tyler was born at Greenway in Charles City county, Virginia, March 29, 1790, the son of John Tyler who had served as governor of the Old Dominion from 1808 to 1811. Fourteen years later another John Tyler (the junior) was chief executive of Virginia but after serving one term was elected to the United States senate. When the doctrine of nullification was proposed by the South Carolinians, Tyler broke with his party and resigned from the senate.

As soon as Henry Clay and the other Whig leaders began trying to dictate to Tyler, they discovered that the man in the White House had a mind of his own. They first pushed through a bill to establish a United States bank. Tyler vetoed it, and their effort to pass it over his veto failed. When the Whig leaders reproached Tyler for his action, he reminded them that he had subscribed to no platform and that they should have known his opinions before they nominated him.

Somewhat crestfallen, they asked him for an outline of a bank bill he would sign. The result was Tucker's Exchequer Bank plan, which they changed and pushed through both houses. Thereupon Tyler vetoed it and again an attempt to pass it over his disapproval failed. Then congress passed a protective tariff bill which Tyler vetoed. A program for internal improvements to be financed by the federal government met with the same fate, because Tyler believed that the states should make their own internal improvements.

Swiftly the breach between the President and his party widened. The cabinet, with one exception, resigned. Daniel Webster remained long enough to complete negotiations for the Webster-Ashburton treaty. Then he resigned. The party was beginning its "purge" of its President. Next the Whig newspapers went into action and filled their columns with denunciations of the President. There were even threats of assassination. But Tyler stood firm in his determination to be

JOHN TYLER—Tenth President of the United States.

1812. As a running mate for "Old Tippecanoe" they selected the Democrat, John Tyler. They believed that this cultured Southern gentleman would attract Southern votes and his friendship for Henry Clay would hold the support of the Clay faction in the party. In the tumultuous campaign which followed, Harrison and Tyler won an easy victory but within a month after taking the oath of office as President, the aged Indian-fighter, worn out by the demands of Whig office-seekers, died on April 4, 1841.

Upon succeeding to the presidency, Tyler announced that he would retain the cabinet chosen by Harrison and would carry out the latter's policies. What they were, no one knew for the Whig cabinet had not adopted any platform and in the campaign there was no discussion of issues between the two parties. As a matter of fact, the Whigs had nominated Harrison because they believed he could be "managed" and Henry Clay intended to do the managing.

Although retaining Harrison's cabinet, Tyler immediately assembled about him a group of unofficial advisers (the first "Brain Trust") which included Prof. Nathaniel Beverly Tucker, professor of law at William and Mary college, who first suggested an Exchequer Bank plan which Tyler later proposed and whose recommendations about a public lands policy were incorporated in the Homestead Law of 1862; Caleb Cushing of Massachusetts, one of the greatest authorities on constitutional law, who was later nominated for chief justice of the Supreme court; Littleton W. Tazewell of Virginia, called by Thomas Jefferson "one of the most brilliant minds I have ever known"; and Robert J. Walker of Mississippi, later President Polk's secretary of the treasury and author of the tariff of 1846, who became Tyler's spokesman in the senate.

As soon as Henry Clay and the other Whig leaders began trying to dictate to Tyler, they discovered that the man in the White House had a mind of his own. They first pushed through a bill to establish a United States bank. Tyler vetoed it, and their effort to pass it over his veto failed. When the Whig leaders reproached Tyler for his action, he reminded them that he had subscribed to no platform and that they should have known his opinions before they nominated him.

Somewhat crestfallen, they asked him for an outline of a bank bill he would sign. The result was Tucker's Exchequer Bank plan, which they changed and pushed through both houses. Thereupon Tyler vetoed it and again an attempt to pass it over his disapproval failed. Then congress passed a protective tariff bill which Tyler vetoed. A program for internal improvements to be financed by the federal government met with the same fate, because Tyler believed that the states should make their own internal improvements.

Swiftly the breach between the President and his party widened. The cabinet, with one exception, resigned. Daniel Webster remained long enough to complete negotiations for the Webster-Ashburton treaty. Then he resigned. The party was beginning its "purge" of its President. Next the Whig newspapers went into action and filled their columns with denunciations of the President. There were even threats of assassination. But Tyler stood firm in his determination to be true to his oath of office. Then 10 members of congress, headed by ex-President John Quincy Adams, now a member of the house of representatives, brought in a report charging Tyler with violating a promise he had made before his nomination and threatening to impeach him. Tyler replied that he had never pledged anything to the Whigs.

Despite this denial, the Whig congressmen issued a series of "Addresses to the People" in which they charged that the President had gone into office fully committed to a program which he now repudiated, thus "selling out the party." They listed the reforms which they desired and which they declared, the President was "impeding." Finally, when Tyler filled his cabinet with Southern Democrats, headed by John C. Calhoun as secretary of state, it was the last straw. The Whigs issued a proclamation that "all political connection between them and John Tyler was at an end from that day henceforth." The party had completely purged its President.

The remainder of Tyler's term of office was marked by the dispute over the slavery question and the annexation of Texas, favored by the Democrats and opposed by the Whigs. Having been "read out of the party," Tyler now had nothing to lose and supported the move for annexation, but without success at first. As the 1844 campaign approached, this question became the principal issue. James K. Polk, the Democratic nominee, endorsed annexation. Tyler had tried to build up a party of his own and seek re-election. Although he was nominated by a small faction, he was persuaded to withdraw from the race and Polk won. Just before leaving office Tyler had the satisfaction of seeing his plan for the annexation of Texas accepted by the Lone Star republic and the next year it came into the Union.

Tyler's political career was now ended. He retired to his home, Sherwood Forest, where, in a facetious mood, he often referred to himself as the "Robin Hood of Virginia." It was during this period of retirement that he accepted the lowly office of road overseer.

Although a Virginian and a slaveholder, Tyler was opposed to the institution of slavery and became president of the African Colonization society, formed with the view of recolonizing the slaves in Africa. Early in his career he looked forward to the time when slavery would disappear from the South as it already had from some of the Northern states but being a strict constructionist he wanted to bring that about by Constitutional means.

As the clouds of the threatened civil war lowered, the ex-President used his influence to help avert it. His last great effort to preserve the Union was as president of the Washington Peace Convention of 1860, assembled in a last-minute effort to seek some compromise between the North and the South. He looked upon the convention as an attempt to preserve the Constitution and the laws of the nation, which he considered the North had sought to ignore, not change.

When his native state seceded, Tyler, like Robert E. Lee, believed that his first duty was to Virginia and he renounced his loyalty to the United States. He was elected to the Confederate congress but died January 17, 1862, before the congress assembled.

Making Draperies? Some Style Hints!

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THAT lace curtains are in fashion again is news! This easy-to-make and easy-to-hang valance is something that many of you have been wanting. All the dimensions for cutting it are given here. The glass curtains are hung on the lower rod; the side drapes on the upper rod; and the valance is draped over knob holders.

The color plan for this window began with the glazed chintz drapery material in tones of green, beige and golden yellow. The darkest green—a soft olive tone, was used in sateen to line the valance and make the tie-backs. The brass holders for the valance repeated the golden yellow. The cream glass curtains toned into the drapery background, and a plain olive green window shade was used.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears has prepared four booklets for our readers with illustrated directions for making 128 thrifty homemaking ideas. Each book contains an assortment of 32-pages of curtains; slip covers; rag rugs; toys; gifts and novelties for bazaars. Books are 10 cents each—please order by number—No. 1, 2, 3 and 4—With your order for four booklets you will receive a FREE set of three Quilt Block patterns of Mrs. Spears' Favorite Early American Quilts. DOG

License Tax Now Due

"It shall be the duty of every person of the State of Delaware outside the corporate limits of the City of Wilmington, owning or having under control, or on premises upon which said person resides, any dog over four months of age, to pay on OR BEFORE THE FIRST DAY OF MARCH OF EACH CALENDAR YEAR, a license tax of one dollar on such dog to the Board of Game & Fish Commissioners of the State of Delaware. Said license tax shall be due and payable on the first day of January and shall be paid in addition to any or all other tax or taxes imposed upon or on account of any such dog or dogs by any city or town ordinance.

"Upon the payment of said license tax the person paying the same shall be entitled to receive a dog license therefor, showing the date on which such license tax is paid and a metal license tag showing the year for which the license is paid and the serial number of the license. Such tag shall be of a design to be adopted by the said Board of Game and Fish Commissioners, and shall be attached to a substantial collar by the owner of such dog and shall be worn by such dog at all times. If any such tag should be lost a new tag shall forthwith be secured from the Board of Game and Fish Commissioners, for which tag an additional license tax of twenty-five cents shall be paid.

"The failure to pay such license tax on or before the FIRST DAY OF MARCH OF EACH YEAR shall constitute a misdemeanor . . . and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than Five Dollars ($5.00) nor more than Fifty Dollars ($50.00) for each offense and upon failure to pay such fine and costs shall be imprisoned for a period not exceeding ten days."
