AN IDEA!

Bill Hillman, European manager for Collier's, says that the removal of 12 statesmen and leaders would bring peace to Europe. In other words he sees the wrong people in the wrong spots. And this column is with him. Assuming it to be impossible to give the hook to Hitler, Stalin and Chamberlain just now, this department nominates for the other nine places of power the folowing men: George S. Kauffman, Al Smith, Mahatma Gandhi, Olsen and Johnson, Anthony Eden, Bugs Baer, and Walt Disney. Imagine such a group in complete charge of Europe for a week . . . everything would be settled peacefully, and with even Adolf, Joe and Neville joining in the laughter.

Spring Menus

Planning meals can be fun, if you'll let your imagination and your conscience be your guides! Meal planning does require imagination and a bit of originality, too, if you don't want the responsibility of three meals a day to be a bore, and three meals a day without that touch of 'something" different can be boring—to you as well as to your family! A meal may be properly and carefully

'balanced' from the standpoint of proteins and carbohydrates and vitamins and minerals—and still be a drab and uninteresting affair.

That seems to be particularly true in spring, when appetites are likely to be jaded, and you seem to be running out of menu ideas. And that's exactly the time to try something different, a little trick to add newness and interest to soups; a tasty and unusual meat dish; and a salad or dessert that makes use of some of the refreshing spring vegetables and fruits.

Just for variety, for instance, when I want to serve hot soup as the first course of a meal, I combine equal parts of canned consomme and tomato juice, simmer the resulting mixture for about 5 minutes with a bay leaf for flavor, and serve it very hot with a spoonful of salted whipped cream sprinkled with chopped chives or green onion tops. And I serve green onions and crisp, succulent radishes in place of the relishes I've used all winter. I use rhubarb for sauce or for dessert, just as soon as the price comes down within reach of my budget; I shred young carrots, or cut them in thin slivers, and cook them with an equal amount of onion, sliced fine; drain them and season with salt, pepper and butter. Or I cook carrots and potatoes together and mash them just as I would for mashed potatoes. to serve with the rich brown gravy of a pot roast. Here are three spring menus that

The clergyman in a wayside church out of London was about to start his sermon when three strangers entered.

They were late and very conscious of it. One of them found a seat near the door, but the other two had to walk further up. At that moment the preacher was finishing the announcement of his text: "—and Paul I know, but who are ye?"

The young men paused for a moment, looked bewildered, then one of them spoke up. "Glad to have the pleasure, Reverence," he said. "This is Harry MacTavish from Edinburgh, and I'm James MacPherson, from Edinburgh, too.

Washington Wouldn't Take It, But He Didn't Oppose the Idea

Tom Jefferson on the Other Hand Was Dead Set Against It: 'Old Hickory' Jackson a Single Six-Year Term; Hayes Indorsed It.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of three articles tracing the development in American history of the third term issue. What did Washington think about it? Jefferson? Andrew Jackson and others? The following articles are recipilly pretinent during the present especially pertinent during the present election year, is presented as a strictly impartial review of the third term sub-ject, taking no stand for or against it.

II. PRECEDENTS AND VIEWS OF THE PRESIDENTS

YOU are opposed to the ■ idea of any President seeking to have more than eight years in the White House, the chances are that you will cite the case of George Washington as your strongest argument.

"The father of our country declined to run for a third term. So why depart from the precedent which he established?" you will ask.

If, however, you believe that there is no real objection to having a Chief Executive serve more than two terms, you will also turn to the first President. You will point out that Washington retired after two terms not because he was opposed to a President serving more than eight years but because he was worn out with the labors in the service of the nation and looked forward to a peaceful old age at Mount Vernon.

Differed With Jefferson. More than that you will quote this letter which Washington wrote to Lafayette on April 28, 1788:

"Though I cannot have time or room to sum up the arguments in this letter, there cannot, in my judgment, be the least danger that the President will by any practicable intrigue ever be able to continue himself one moment in office, much less perpetuate himself in it, but in the last stage of corrupt morals and practical depravity, and even then there is as much danger that any species of domination would prevail. Though when a people have become incapable of governing themselves and fit for a master, it is of little consequence from what quarter he comes. Under any extended view of this part of the subject I can see no propriety in precluding ourselves from the services of any man who in some great emergency shall be deemed universally most capable of serving the public."

The President who, even more than Washington, established the

"no third term" tradition was Thomas Jefferson. Writing to Washington on May 2, 1788, in regard to the new Constitution, the "Sage of Monticello" expressed his dissatisfaction with "the perpetual re-eligibility of the Presbecause he feared that it would "make an office for life." So he said he hoped that "before there is danger of this change taking place in the office of President the good sense and free spirit of our countrymen will make the change necessary to prevent it."

Thomas Jefferson

Toward the close of his second term in office, when the legislatures of Vermont, New Jersey and Pennsylvania sent him resolutions asking him to be a candidate again, Jefferson replied to all of them with a letter which contained this paragraph

"That I should lay down my charge at a proper period is as much a duty as to have borne it faithfully. If some termination to the services of the Chief Magistrate be not fixed by the Constitution, or supplied by practice, his office, nominally, four years, will in fact become for life, and history shows how easily that degenerates into an inheritance. Believing that a representative government responsible at short periods of election is that which produces the greatest sum of happiness to mankind, I feel it a duty to do no act which shall essentially impair that principle, and I should unwillingly be the person who, disregarding the sound precedent set by an illustrious predecessor (Washington) should furnish the first example of prolongation beyond the second term of office."

During "Old Hickory" Jackson's first administration, he sent a message to congress in 1829 recommending that the electoral college be abolished, that the President be elected by direct vote and that he be limited to a single term of either my conviction that the best in terests of the country will be promoted by the adoption of some plan which will secure in all contingencies that important right of sovereignty to the direct control of the people. Could this be attained, and the terms of those officers be limited to a single period of either four or six years, I think our liberties would possess an additional

Jackson's recommendation of a single six-year term for Presidents was echoed 40 years later when Rutherford B. Hayes in his inaugural address said, "In furtherance of the reform we seek, and in other important respects a change of great importance, I recommend an amendment to the Constitution prescribing a term of six years for the presidential office and forbidding a

In 1901 indiscreet friends of President McKinley began talking about his becoming a candidate again. Thereupon the President promptly scotched that talk by issuing a public statement in which he said:

"I regret that the suggestion of a third term has been made. I doubt whether I am called upon to give it notice, but there are now questions of the gravest importance before the administration and the country, and their just consideration should not be prejudiced in the public mind by even the suspi-cion of the thought of a third term. In view . . . of a longsettled conviction . . . I will not be a candidate for a third

The candidacy of Theodore Roosevelt on the Bull Moose ticket in 1912 revived agitation over a third term. One of the planks in the platform, adopted by the Democrats at Baltimore, favored a single presidential term and urged the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution, making the President ineligible for re-election and pledging their candidate to this principle. A short time before the inauguration of Woodrow Wilson, the senate passed a joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment limiting the Presilent to a single six-year term. While this resolution was pending in the house, Mr. Wilson wrote a letter to A. Mitchell Palmer, a representative from Pennsylvania, as follows:

"The question is simply this: Shall our Presidents be free, so far as the law is concerned, to seek a second term of four years, or shall they be limited by constitutional amendment to a single term of four years or to a single term extended to six years?

Admitted His Quandary.

"Four years is too long a term for a President who is not the true spokesman of the people, who is imposed upon and does not lead. It is too short for a President who is doing, or attempting a great work reform, and who has not had time to finish it. To change the term to six years would be to increase the likelihood of its being too long without any assurance that it would, in happy cases, be long enough. A fixed constitutional limitation to a single term of office is highly arbitrary and unsatisfactory from every point

Favored Two Terms.

"Put the present customary limitation of two terms into the Constitution, if you do not trust the people to take care of themselves, but make it two terms (not one, because four years is often too long), and give the President a chance to win the full service by proving himself fit for it. . .

"As things stand now the people might more likely be cheated than served by further limitations of the President's eligibility. His fighting power in their behalf would be immensely weakened. No one will fear a President except those whom he can make fear the elections. "We singularly belie our own principles by seeking to determine by fixed constitutional provision what the people shall determine for themselves and are perfectly competent to determine for themselves. We cast a doubt upon the whole theory of popular government."

Walled Kremlin Holds Secrets Of Red Regime

MOSCOW.—Soviet Russia is ruled from within a mysterious city in the heart of Moscow, the vast Kremlin whose inscrutable goings-on are hidden behind a 60-foot wall, armed guards and drawn curtains.

All the secrecy of the vanished Russian Orthodox church—and more—lies protected inside this palace which was once the heart of the nation's religion as well as her government.

Where Russia's monks and czars once walked there is now the guarded tread of Soviet commissars. But today, as before Communism, the "sacred city of the Kremlin" is still the focal point of all Russian eyes.

They used to say "Above Moscow is only the Kremlin and above the Kremlin is only Heaven." Today atheistic Russia ignores the last

Stalin Lives There. No outsider knows within which of the Kremlin's innumerable buildings lives Josef Stalin, for rare indeed is the visitor who finds his way inside this city's gates. Once there he will find the church of St. Constantine, Nicholas palace, Chudov monastery (now a military academy and barracks), a convent and courts of justice. Surmounting the wall are no less than 19 towers from which Soviet guards keep their eyes peeled for marauders lurking in Red square below.

Just as the Kremlin was a stronghold for Czarists, so has it become the sacred city of Communism, a place where men of that creed gather from all parts of the world. In ashes of "revolutionary heroes," including John Reed, the American journalist who turned Red. Also there is the "brotherhood grave" of 500 workers killed trying to storm the Kremlin during the revolution.

Lenin Buried in Red Square. And out in Red square, but still within the shadow of this wall, stands the gaudy tomb of Lenin from which Stalin and other high Soviets customarily watch troop demonstrations and parades.

Night brings an added air of mystery to the Kremlin. At midnight its chimes peal forth the "Internationale." Communism's song. But the notes come haltingly because the chimes were originally intended to play "God Save the Czar" and have never been rebuilt. While the chimes were still in pretty good shape they made a phonograph recording which is now broadcast nightly from Moscow.

In winter the blood-red flag is floodlighted atop the Kremlin, presenting a sharp and startling contrast with the snow-covered roofs. It was this symbol of Communism that the diplomats of Germany saw when they entered the Kremlin last autumn to sign that epochal treaty which sent Hitler to war against Poland and the allies.

Finland's diplomats saw the same emblem last December and again in March, when the Soviet behemoth closed its conquest against a smaller but braver neighbor.

Known to be located inside the Kremlin, therefore, is the most integral part of Viacheslav Molotov's foreign affairs commissariat, although the foreign office itself is opposite the Lubyanka prison. The olitbureau of nine members meets in the Kremlin as does the council of people's commissars, or the Russian cabinet. Stalin has always been present when noted foreign diplomats have called at the Kremlin, but he does not stay there all the time. He maintains several country homes, though nobody knows which of them he is visiting at any given time.

Perhaps it is the Kremlin's threatening atmosphere that makes visiting envoys capitulate to Russian demands, yet Stalin himself is always affable. It is known that after the Soviet-German pact was signed last autumn he remarked to Joachim von Ribbentrop, "Now let's drink a glass of our bad Soviet champagne." In March, following the Soviet-

Finnish peace, the negotiating officials sealed their pact with a round

But the foreign correspondent, standing outside the Kremlin's walls, knows that this system of mysterious and underground rule keeps Russia better informed about the hidden motives behind foreign governments than about the actual public opinion in those countries. Russian embassies abroad are ignored, for the Kremlin, as might be expected, deals chiefly with Soviet secret representatives.

THE BOY WHO GAVE A DIME

Just a ragged little fellow, With a dimple in his chin, And a shoulder brown and freckled Where the sunlight filtered in Through a shirt all torn and faded By the ravages of time; And his hands caressed and cuddled

In their grimy depths—a dime!

Now a dime is little money, But his eyes grew sort of dim At the thought of parting from it-For it meant a lot to him. He had worked to earn that money, Saved a penny at a time, Till at last his little pocket Held the treasure of a dime.

But he'd seen a dreadful picture In the morning press that day Of a sullen, swollen river

In a valley far away; Of a tragic, bleak-faced mother There beside the rolling tide. Kneeling by the stormy waters Where her little boy had died.

So he sought the Red Cross center, Where a nurse was standing by; And she tixed this ragamuffin With a calm, appraising eye. Then a whispered consultation, And a sugar-coated bluff: "Thank you for your offer, sonny, But I think we have enough."

Disappointment, sorrow, anguish Soon displaced his look of joy, And he stood there, broken hearted, Just a ragged little boy.

Then the sweet-faced nurse relented, And adown the aisles of time Still must ring the cheery whistle Of the boy who gave a dime.

From the visionless and thoughtless Still there comes a faint echo From an ancient, Christ-scourged

Of two thousand years ago: 'Why, a dime is little money-Why this fuss, and hue, and cry Of a dime; a dime's not money-Tell me what a dime will buy!"

Well, it all depends, my neighbors,

If you see it right or not: If you'll only look behind it, Why, a dime can buy a lot-For a pittance may be princely If its mission is sublime: It bought peace, and pride, contentment

For the boy who GAVE the dime!

The tragi-ridiculous perplexity of Jebb solved itself. He heard a rustle and Miruma came to him as swiftly as she had vanished. He greeted her with effusion:

"Oh, don't-" he was going to say; "don't stop being jealous of me! but he caught himself.

There was no time to explain or to let Miruma escape. Miss Ludlam was at Jebb's elbow with the check folded and palmed, as if it were a slight tip. She pretended to shake hands with him and left the money as she released the clasp: There you are, Mr. Pier-Dr. Jebb, and I can never thank you 'Don't thank me at all-er-er-Miss Ludlam, may I present to you -may I present to you-Miss-Madame-for heaven's sake, hanim effendim, what is your name? She's my dearest friend on earth, but I don't know her name!"

"I am Madame Miruma Janghir. I did take my father's name." Miss Ludlam was staring with both ears at this mysterious conversation. She was as much interested in Miruma as Miruma in her. Each was exotic to the other. Miss Ludlam sat down and motioned the other two to sit.

To explain this ring legend himself was intolerable, so Jebb rose and "Won't you two talk to each other a few moments, while I go find out about the trains to Budapest? I must take the first one."

Seeing that Miruma was afraid and deeply troubled either at this news or at being left with her supposed rival, Jebb added: "And perhaps Miss Ludlam will tell you the story of the ring." Then he decamped, leaving Miruma very erect and disdainful toward Miss Ludlam. When he came back the story had evidently been told, for the two women had their heads close together and were on cordial terms. He said: "I find there is a train at 6:46—my old friend the Orient Express. It gets me to Budapest an hour before midnight. I think I'd better take it. There's just time enough for a good drive about Vienna before train time. Would you care to go?"

Miruma was willing enough to go nywhere with Jebb, and she asked only time enough to get a hat and a wrap. When she was gone, Jennie Ludlam, who could see through a millstone with a hole in it, and had guessed at once that Jebb and Miruma were infatuated, lingered to

'She's a perfect dear-and such a beauty! I'll take care of her for you while you are in Budapest. Your generosity to me was princely. I wish I could repay it in some way but you are so rich. When you come back I have a scheme which might interest you—as a physician; though I dare say you don't practice any more; but perhaps you would lend me your advice. This is for charity,

On a sudden impulse, he made her sit down, and told her briefly the story of his curse, his other personality, the loss of the child, and his arrival in Turkey. And her sympathy came in a rush of warm thoughts implied in a pressure of his hand, a look of compassion, and a few

You have helped so many in distress. You have helped me. You can, you shall help numberless others.

CHAPTER XV

After much parley, Checkless pieced together the man's fragmentary story into this narrative:

"He says one day in the efternoon, you are came here vit a nice little gyermek—child, and he makes notice of her, she is so pretty, and she loves his flowers so. He cannot understand it vat she say, but he loves her because she is so loving loves her because she is so lovink for his roses. But you did look tired and sick and you sit on a bensh and go like you take a little sleep.

"Long time the child plays here, and then she makes a looking for you. But you are not there. You had gone out of sight. The little girl is afraid, but she tries not to cry. The lady and gentleman stay a long while to keep her brave, for they say all the time you surely come back. Then the lady and gentlemans say, 'Ve take her to our house and if you see the man you tell him we got the child.'

"The gardener says, 'You better tell the police, too.' And they say, Yes, they tell the police; but all the same they like to keep the baby.

"Long times go by and the gardener is almost forgetted it all. When today comes you again and he has got such a big mad at you he wants to fight it. It is cu-rious; you are looking for a child and you look like a mans vat looses a child."

"I am the man," said Jebb; "I was-ill, and I wandered away in a -a sort of delirium. When I came to my senses I was in another country, and I couldn't remember."

Checkless almost swooned at so much history in such essence. "So! Den all yet got to do it is to find the gentlemans and lady vat keeps the child in cold storatch and say: 'Here ve are again.'" "We must find them at once. What was their name?" On hearing the question translated, the gardener made them wait while he went to the tool-house and brought from his coat a soiled and wrinkled card bearing this, and this

Checkless gleaned from this:

"He is a Rossian name, and he sells French typewriters in Poland." "I see that." said Jebb. "But this does not tell where he lives in Budapest: ask him " The gardener turned the card over and put an earthy finger on a penciled address on the back of the card. But it had been blurred till nothing was legible but "Pension-

'George Checkless' for short and . . Ulloiut." "Who is Ulloi-ut?" said Jebb. "He is a street, one of the longest streets in Pest."

The gardener could remember come naturalized, had prospered, nothing more. The number of the and returned to his country with house had been there, but it was rubbed off his memory as well as After some desultory conversation

"I got it," he said. "Ve go to the telephone newspaper and tell them they got to tell everybody in Budapest all about it, and maybe sure somebody telephones to the office something about it."

The vocal advertisement was accepted for its news value without charge and put upon the wires while

The rest of the day Jebb spent in wandering up and down Ulloi street, studying every house and seeing in each one a den where Cynthia was incarcerated. He dined with Checkless at the Hotel Bristol. When they had ordered dinner. Checkless went to telephone to the telephone-paper. He came back beaming: "A man has called up the paper and says he knows somet'ink. They give him this address and he comes here any minute." At last a hotel servant brought a man who had asked for Jebb at the desk. Jebb asked Checkless to ask the man to sit down and feast. The stranger answered rather petulantly for himself: "Ain't I got any English? Ain't I gone to New York many times?" "You are not Mr. Pogodin, then."

Mr. Pataky was a man of great excitability. He was chiefly impressed with the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Pogodin had gone away owing him money, and that they had refused to pay for a vase and a pitcher the child had broken.

Washable Fabrics Attain New Place in Style Significance

achieved by wash fabrics during the last several years is nothing less than epoch making. Inspired by the amazing cottons and linens and spun rayons and kindred weaves at their command, designers are turning out wash apparel that is writing a thrilling chapter in fashion history.

Now that we have come to recognize the adaptability of modern washables to every phase of allpurpose wear, ranging from the most casual, utilitarian and informal to formal occasion, women who understand the art of dress are feeling the urge to plan their wardrobe entirely from play and workaday clothes to formal dinner gowns and party frocks in terms of smart wash

To tell of the multitudinous wash fabrics producers are turning out this season would be a task in vain. However, there are highspots that deserve mention. There are the cotton gabardines in delectable pastels that tailor beautifully for slack suits and sports frocks. Crinkled seersuckers have taken a new lease on life. You can get them in sturdy weave or so exquisitely sheer they will prove a delight for summer wear. As to the new piques so highly important this season, you won't be able to resist the eyelet embroidered versions. The printed piques, too, are lovely. As to the fascinating chambrays now so modish (be sure to make a note of chambray for it is tremendously important) the newer types have been refined to a degree of nicety in touch, texture and lovely coloring that makes them not to be resisted. The same may be said of dimities (in demand for both formals and informals), there is a crispness about modern types that adds sprightliness to the mode. When you see the dainty afternoon and party frocks fashioned of sweetly feminine Jennie Lind muslins confusion of colors over a sheer background, it's a safe guess you will be indulging in more than one of these gay little flatterers. We must not forget to call attention to the stunning huge plaids of sheer texture. These are designs to go anywhere and everywhere this sum-

When you start out in quest of washable cotton or spun rayon prints keep in mind that the smartest this season are in gray and white, especially the new polka dots which are all the rage this season. Yellow and gray prints are also in high fashion.

Another interesting feature brought out at the wash apparel show held in Chicago this spring was the importance of stripes. Stripes of every conceivable interpretation from high-colored gypsy and candy stripes to fetching stripes in pastels, also floral stripes and other novelty stripes were stressed throughout the entire program of voguish washables.

The working of stripes in clever design has become a fascinating pastime with designers. Note how artfully stripes have been juggled for the dress pictured to the left in the illustration. This attractive model is fashioned of a woven spun rayon in pencil stripe. The pockets and front panel reveal a diagonal working of stripes.

To the right in the group, candy stripes of rough weave turf cloth in striking colors are manipulated to advantage with the result of achieving a most pleasing back view as well as being attractively styled throughout.

The girl seated in the foreground has on a frock that boasts a circular skirt and the new corselet treatment at the waistline. The material for this dress is a spun rayon sport print that subscribes very effectively to the vogue for novelty stripes. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lace-Panel Gloves

Gloves this season are in a highly decorative mood. Even the simplest gloves for general wear are apt to be tucked or shirred or otherwise cunningly furbelowed. The eight-inch rich rayon Kayspun glove designed by Natascha as here pictured eloquently interprets the present trend toward decorative detail, which in this instance is expressed in a heavy lace panelling up the sides. The accompanying bag has the same lace applied as the long gloves. This very chic twosome of bag and gloves is available in white. black or navy.

"The Name Is Familiar"

BY FELIX B. STREYCKMANS and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

'It's the Bunk!'

"T'S just a lot of bunk," is a phrase that owes its existence to a debate that occurred in the house of representatives in 1820. This is not to imply that congress was free from "bunk" before that, by any means, but the words "bunk," "bunkum" and "buncombe" originated during a debate over the famous Missouri Compromise. Felix Walker, a North Carolina mountaineer, represented the Western North Carolina district which included his own Buncombe county. While everyone else was demanding a vote, Walker wanted to make a speech. His political friends tried to stop him but he insisted on making a long, pointless harangue declaring his constituents would be disappointed if he didn't say something for "dear old Buncombe." The word came to mean humbug or insincere talk.

And Buncombe county was named for Edward Buncombe, a wounded colonel of the Continental army who died in Philadelphia in 1780. Thus, the man whose name is used to designate claptrap had nothing to do with it and had been dead 40 years when the word came to have its present meaning.

Nicotine

N ICOTINE is a common word but Jean Nicot, French diplomat of the 1500s, after whom it was named, is little remembered.

He studied in Paris, was a courtier to Henry II and envoy of Francis II to Lisbon in 1560. While in Spain, he obtained the seeds of the tobacco plant from a Dutchman who brought them from Florida. Nicot returned to Paris with from which nicotine is derived. They are called Nicotiana plants and that is the word coined directly from Jean Nicot's name. Not all of the Nicotiana plants and shrubs are used for smoking-some of them are beautiful annuals and perennials with attractive flowers. All varieties bear nicotine which is used to kill insects and only the genus Tobaccum is used by smokers to kill time. Why the Nicotiana plant was named for Jean Nicot who brought it to France instead of the Dutchman who brought it to Nicot can best be explained by the fact that Nicot wrote a French dictionary at the time and merely gave himself a break.

Marcel Wave

A LTHOUGH marcel seems to be the perfect name for the wave in a woman's hair, it was chosen only because it was the name of the man who invented the first successful one. But his name was Francois Marcel Grateau, so some thought must have been given to the way the word would sound or his middle name would not have been chosen.

Francois was born in 1852 near Paris and his father was a stone mason. His mother's lovely natural wavy hair was the admiration of all her acquaintances and the inspiration for her son to put all his effort toward inventing an iron that would imi-

Marcel Grateau In 1886, he succeeded and women flocked from all over Europe and England for his marcel wave. Only 10 years later, he retired from active hairdressing, the acknowledged benefactor of his profession.

He lived for 39 years more, however, and died at his home, Chateau Thiel, near Paris, in 1936, at the age of 84. Yet when he took up an apprenticeship in his father's trade of stone masonry he was made to give it up because they said he wasn't healthy enough!

There is another and even greater paradox in his life: He was also discharged from his job in a beauty shop as a young man because the proprietor said he was not suited to that type of work! (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

English Church Property The Church of England might be surprised to learn it owns an acre of tobacco in the tobacco country near Franklinton, N. C. The deed was never transferred, and accrued taxes would amount to over $6,000, but the property is still classified as non-taxable church land, though never improved.

Gay Panholders for Your Shower Gifts

LET'S make some bright new panholders! NUMO hot iron transfer, Z9108, 15 cents, has just the motifs you've been wantingpretty enough for any bride-to-be, and a gay tonic for your own winter-weary kitchen. The nine designs illustrated are all on this one pattern; note that these combine into distinct sets of three

A pastel waterlily flanked by two lily pads of green is the basis of one lovely set. Sunflower, morning glory and wild rose motifs make up the second set; the third set is a clever group constitute of two parts people does sisting of two pup panholders which slip into a doghouse holder when not in use.

So if you're in need of inexpensive shower gifts, order this pattern, then get out your scrap bag and start to work. You could give no more practical nor appreciated gift than one of these attractive sets. And, of course, the several stampings of this NUMO transfer will enable you to make sets for yourself, too. Scented Divorce

In 1700 an act was passed by parliament which laid down that any woman, whatever her age and whether she be married, single or a widow, who by the use of perfume, cosmetics, paint, false teeth, wigs, iron corsets, padded bust and hips, or high-heeled shoes, inveigles a male subject of his majesty into marriage, shall be guilty of having broken the law which prohibits the practicing of witchcraft and other arts of black magic, and any such marriage will be counted for null and void.

Watch Your Kidneys! Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering vaste matter from the blood stream. But waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning
