Not that there's the slightest resemblance, but when you see a stranger on the streets of Harrington these days, you know it's a Witness of Jehova or a salesman from Beacom or Goldley Colleges.

Work at the local Eastern Shore Public Service office has been disrupted this week. Pat Plannery and Keek Farrow say that they have ordered fifteen invalid's chairs from the Kent General Hospital, and these will be used to cart the Rotarians home after next week's game. On the other side, Abie Parsons and Ren Wilson contend that the murderous pinching of "Hell-Roarint Howard" Williams and Rough-on-Rats Raughley of the Rotarians will convert the game into a shambles. Abie even goes beyond that, and says if Raughley doesn't break up the game with his hitting, he will with his singing.

The Harrington Public Schools had no commencement speaker this year, but Superintendent Messner said more in three or four minutes than the average commencement speaker says in an hour. We've attended many commencements and we've listened to many "inspirational" commencement speakers: "In the bright lexicon of youth there is no such word as failure"—if you can get a paying job; "Beyond the Alps lies Italy"—and don't forget that Mussolini is always lying there; and you might proclaim, to make the expression more realistic: "Beyond the altar lies the wash tub." "Twenty centuries look down upon you"—yeah, and what do they see?

Instead of sending young boys to the war, if war should come, we believe we have a better plan. Let the innocent kids stay at home, and send the people who sell their votes. They haven't much to live for, anyway—and, without knowing it, they are our most menacing fifth column.

Half Gone

With the Delaware Park Race meeting half over, it is appropriate to say "thank you" for gains due to the public support and patronage. These have been rather beyond what anyone had a right to expect.

Delaware Park feels that it has a dual obligation to the public and to the horsemen. These are linked, in that if Delaware maintains its high purse level, good horses will be attracted and the public will be served with sport of the first class.

There was no racing Monday, June 17th, as it was the day of our party down the Delaware River—grooms, managers, jockeys, officials, trainers, owners, everyone! The sport resumed on Tuesday, June 18th (and thereafter continues without interruption, through July 4th.) And may we remind you again of the Delaware Park policy, as follows:

Annually purses in excess of $300,000 are offered. Delaware is a non-profit track—dividends are limited by law to $687.20, but no stockholder ever has taken any dividends. Income goes primarily to maintain the high ($11,300 daily) per diem purse distribution so that race-goers may be assured of the best attractions when they visit the park.

The pari-mutuel percentage takeout (which means the overhead you pay by law for the privilege of betting) is the lowest in the country—7 1/2 pct. breakage to the nickel.

Customer—I've always had the idea in my head that bone articles were cheap.

Wrong Again
Her father accidentally met her young man in the street.
"I say, young fellow," he said, "you have been calling on my daughter for well nigh a month. What are your intentions?"
"Well, sir," he replied, regaining his confidence, "I hope to become an addition to your family."
"Father was well prepared.
"Oh, no!" he said, with a vigorous shake of his head. "You'll have to subtract, not add, young

Squaring the Circle
The director of a bank was relating how his wife overdrew her account at the bank.
"I spoke to her one evening," said he, "and told her that she ought to adjust it at once. A day or two later I asked her if she had done what I suggested."
"Oh, yes," she answered, "I attended to that matter the very next morning. I sent the bank my check for the amount I had overdrawn."

Spoke But the Truth
Smart Kid—I can jump much higher than that tree, mother.
Mother—But, Willie, you mustn't say what is not true.
Smart Kid—Well, that tree can't jump at all.

Liberals
Mrs. Sparks—I hear people talking about liberals, Henry. What I want to know is what a liberal is liberal with.
Henry—Other people's money, darling.

"Blowhardt plays a wind-instrument, I'm sure, but I don't know which one."

Hubby—Why so pensive, dear?
Wifey—I was just thinking what I shall get in the way of spring clothes.
Hubby—I see. After being pensive a while, you are going to be expensive.

Veteran—I'd like to take Pershing's place in the army.
Recruit—What do you mean?
Veteran—I'd like to retire from it for life.

MOVIES-IN-THE-SLOT
Are the movies going "back where they came from": the nickelodeon, the nicoleto and the peepshow?

News from Hollywood so indicates. Dozens of promoters are getting in on a gold rush they think will come with the introduction of movies by slot machines in taverns, barrooms, luncheonettes, ice-cream parlors and poolrooms all over the country.

You drop a nickel in the slot and get a movie show with music. The idea is to flood the country with "movie cabinets" through which a customer may get a movie with his beer, cake, strawberry sundae, three-decker sandwich or hotdog.

Tyrone Power and Deanna Durbin will be presented with a short ale and an onion. Mae West, Eddie Cantor and E. G. Robinson may be obtainable with a cup of java and a plate of beans. Errol Flynn and Kay Francis through the mere deposit of a nickel will become inseparable from a cocktail and a hand of rummy.

You may even get Raymond Massey in a new Lincoln drama at the Seaside Grill.

The new device brings Radio City to Hogan's Elite Cafe, transfers Roxy's to Finnegan's Bar and makes

It isn't hard to imagine a fellow rolling into a tavern, pulling out a handful of change and demanding "The Garden of Allah," a sardine sandwich, a rye highball and a couple of short newsreels with gingerale.

Jimmy Roosevelt is getting some of the blame. He was among the first to leap into the new idea with both feet. Since that time scores of movie figures are aboard and it is reported that some of the major producers have money in it.

Tremendous returns are predicted, especially if Will Hays doesn't stop such screen revivals as "Fun in a Turkish Bath," "The Bathing Beauties' Ball," "The Boudoir Burglar" and "Parisian Nights"

The whole idea will cheapen pictures, topple the movie industry from the penthouse level to the underground rathskeller and probably throw another rock at the legitimate picture houses. But it's coming.

The pictures are to be limited to three minutes, which is the only good thing that can be said in their favor. Maybe "Gone With the Wind" is to blame. It may be just a normal reaction against four-hour films.

SECRETARY LA GUARDIA
Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York has been mentioned as an assistant secretary of war or for some other place in Mr. Roosevelt's emergency cabinet. The very idea is staggering. Fiorello might or might not keep us out of this war, but he would start so many others that we would forget all about the present crisis. We can see him now, assistant secretary of the navy, attired in fire helmet, rubber boots and naval blouse, carrying a fire hose in one hand and a pair of binoculars in the other, ready for all comers.

Mayor LaGuardia is the only man in America who could plan a naval battle, dedicate a viaduct, open a new school, issue an ultimatum to Germany, deliver a talk on kitchen economy, put through an aviation program, throw out a first baseball, denounce the press and lead a tank attack, all in one afternoon.

A TEA IN THE TIME OF ROSES
(See Recipes Below)

It's the custom, in a great many clubs, to draw the season to a graceful close with a charming spring tea. If you're chairman of the refreshment committee for that delightful social function of your organization, why not plan to make "In the Time of Roses" the theme song for your tea?

Use roses here, there and everywhere . . . a rose-pink damask cloth with rose pattern; rose-sprigged china; a great bowl of real roses for the centerpiece, and candied rose petals to decorate the tiny cakes.

When you plan the refreshments, allow at least three sandwiches and two little cakes (or cookies) for each guest, and a pound of mints or salted nuts for each 25 guests. If the tea is a large one, you'll need two platters of sandwiches, two of cakes and one dish each of mints and nuts, on the table at one time, and make sure that for each platter on the table there's at least one full one in the kitchen to take its place.

Choose an interesting variety of dainty sandwiches for your tea. Oblong brown bread sandwiches with cream cheese and marmalade are good, and combine effectively with round white bread sandwiches, with a blend of tuna fish and mayonnaise between them. Very thin, dainty slices of an unusual bread are excellent for plain bread and butter sandwiches.

An assortment of dark and light cookies, and very small cakes provide the sweet touch for your menu. And tea you must have, of course.

Tea, when properly made, is one of the most invigorating drinks you can serve. It is most important, especially when making tea for a group, to measure the amount of tea used and to brew it just long enough and not too long in order to insure its best fragrance and tang. (Three to five minutes is generally conceded to be just about right brewing time.)

"My boy," said the father slyly, "here's a dollar bill. You go and kiss her. When I was young, you can bet I made 'em scream."

The son left his father, and shortly after returned in a high state of satisfaction.

"Well, did you kiss her, Son?" asked the father.

"Yes, you can bet I did, Dad," was the reply.

"And did you make her scream?"

"Scream? I'll say so! I kept the dollar."

U. S. Officials Say We Should Add to Our List of "Vanishing Americans" The Name of the Famed Texas Longhorn

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ADD to the list of "Vanishing Americans" the famed Texas longhorn! At least, that's what a report of the biological survey indicates, for it says that this animal, which once loomed large in the history of the West, is on the verge of extinction. Once there were nearly 10,000,000 of these rangy beasts.

Unlike the buffalo, however, the longhorn was not decimated to the point of near-extinction by ruthless slaughter. He is being bred out of existence. In his veins now flows the blood of the Shorthorn and the Hereford which reduced the length of his horns, put meat on his lanky sides and cooled his wild spirits.

It's all due to economics—or, more specifically, to the economic law of supply and demand. Back in the days which followed the Civil war, when Texans began gathering up the oversupply of cattle running wild over her broad prairies and trailing them north to the Kansas "cow towns" where eastern buyers met them, America became more of a beef-eating nation than it had ever been before.

The Texas longhorn was the chief source of supply and he continued to be thus for more than two decades. Then American meat-eaters began demanding a better quality meat. So the stockmen in the West used the hardy, half-wild longhorn as the foundation for crossing with superior beef breeds. And that revolutionized the cattle industry and the whole economy of the West. The longhorn was a picturesque feature of the western landscape but he was also an "economically wasteful" figure. So he was doomed to go.

By the middle 1920s it was apparent that the typical old-time longhorn, except for a few specimens in Wild West shows, or rodeo exhibition companies and a few runnins, wild in various parts of the Lone Star State, was rapidly approaching the point of extinction. Then a few Texans, remembering that this animal had been one of the chief foundation stones upon which the prosperity of their commonwealth had been built, declared that it would be something of a tragedy to let him be wiped out of existence and decided to do something about it.

A Move to Save the Longhorn.

At a meeting of the Old Trail Drivers Association in San Antonio, he proposed that a longhorn preserve be established in the ranch region of south Texas and a resolution was adopted endorsing the plan.

In the meantime the United States Department of Agriculture had become interested in the plan to preserve the longhorn. For several years it had tried to secure an appropriation from congress for that purpose but to no avail.

Origin of the Longhorn. It has been a "long trail," in more than one sense, that the longhorn has traveled. His history traces back to the days of Cortez. The Spanish conquistadores brought the first cattle to North America from the hills of Andalusia, in southern Spain.

"The forest officers first plunged into the prickly pear country between Laredo and Brownsville on the Rio Grande and Corpus Christi on the gulf. Every nook and corner of this region was hunted out, using every imaginable kind of transportation.

In two weeks they had spotted ten cows and one bull in that corner of Texas as meeting their requirements, picking one here, one there. They hired a cattleman who knew the country to gather them at a central point of shipping, and having exhausted this end of Texas, they moved up into the great coastal plains region between Houston and Beaumont.

Branded "U. S." The two shipments were concentrated at Fort Worth and dipped three times at seven-day intervals to free them of the deadly Texas fever tick and tested for tuberculosis. Then the whole bunch were put through a branding chute and branded 'U. S.' on the left hip.

"The longhorns were shipped from Fort Worth to the Wichita national forest. It was like old times to sit in the caboose of a long freight train with a car of cattle ahead and crawl over the top of the train in the dark to make sure the cows were all milk cattle, and oxen for transporting heavy loads. As the years passed numbers of these cattle escaped and became wild, running as free on the endless prairies as the bison and the antelope.

In the years before the railroad came to Texas, without a rod of fence anywhere between the Rio Grande and Kansas, the longhorn roamed at will over the vast range. There became so many in Texas then that often they were killed for their hides alone.

When John Barrymore seemed to be unavailable for the role of John Barrymore in "The Great Profile," at Twentieth Century-Fox, Adolphe Menjou was engaged for it. Then Barrymore's plans changed, he took the part, and Menjou took his salary, as the studio had no other picture ready for him.

It was during this hour of depression that a ranchman conceived the idea of driving cattle to the North. If the buyers wouldn't come to Texas for cattle, he would take his cattle where he could sell them, or, at least, where the prospects were good.

Rod Cameron, a young, six-foot Canadian, went to Los Angeles a year ago to learn the dime store business. That didn't work out very well, so he quit, took up little theater work, and now finds himself acting for Paramount.

Death brought him his first role, that of "Corporal Underhill" in Cecil B. DeMille's "Northwest Mounted Police." Earl Askam, a former stage star and war hero, was to have played it, but he died recently of a heart attack, and young Cameron, whose real name is Rod Cox, was summoned for it.

Now that they need passports to sail for a tour of South America, it has been discovered that many of Toscanini's NBC Symphony musicians are men without a country. It seems that there was a general impression among them that all they had to do to become American citizens was to file their intentions of doing so; now they're not Americans, and, as they renounced their native lands, they don't legally belong anywhere.

George Brent, working in Warner Brothers' "The Sentence," offers to put up $10,000 at 10 to 1 odds that he won't marry for another three years. "That's no reflection on Ann," he says, meaning Ann Sheridan, whom gossips have him wedding soon. "It's just that I'm going to wind up my picture contract then, and I'm not making any marriage plans until I do."

Long before the last great herd went "up the trail" in 1895, progressive cattlemen had been introducing blooded stock and crossing them with the longhorns. Shorthorns were tried first but the shorthorn wasn't so good at "rustling for his grass." In the Hereford the cattlemen found the animal that, crossed with the longhorn, was ideally adapted to the Texas ranges.

So the lanky old longhorn was through as a beef type. He became a hybrid and began losing his individuality in the red-coated "white-face." As a pure strain he exists now only as a curiosity on a few ranches in Texas, at live stock shows and in the "reservation" set aside for him in Oklahoma. He is a "Vanishing American."

"OLD ALAMO" This famous longhorn steer was crippled in a stampede during the filming of Emerson Hough's "North of 36" and had to be destroyed.

there. Cache and the Wichita forest were eventually reached and the cattle placed in the pasture provided for them. Swarms of people came out from surrounding cities to look them over, and the old-time cowmen of the region all agreed that the bunch which had been collected were really fine specimens of the old longhorns—perfect types with which to build up a modest herd of 250 or 300 head and thus preserve the breed for future generations of Americans to study and admire.

By 1929 the original herd of 24 longhorns in the Wichita national forest had increased to 40 and since then there has been a small increase each year. But the recent statement made by biological survey officials that there are now only 250 pure-strain longhorns, including no doubt the herd in Oklahoma and scattered numbers in other parts of the West, indicates that this animal is nearing the "end of the trail" and it is not inconceivable that an epidemic or sickness or some other unforeseen circumstance might easily wipe the breed out of existence.
