DEMOCRATS WILL HOLD CONVENTION ON AUGUST 27TH

Kent County Caucus To Be Held in The Senate Chamber at 10:30 Standard Time

SENATOR HUGHES TO BE KEYNOTER

With the date for their state convention selected, August 27, at Dover, Democratic leaders are laying plans for the election of delegates at the party primaries Saturday, Aug. 24.

Date of the convention was decided upon at a meeting of state committees this week in Dover. At the same time U. S. Senator James H. Hughes was named temporary chairman and keynoter.

Caucuses will be held at 10:30 a. m., standard time. The New Castle county and Wilmington delegates will meet in Capitol Theatre, Kent county in the Senate Chamber, and Sussex county in the House of Representatives.

A platform committee, to be appointed by Secretary of State Josiah Marvel, Jr., state chairman, will present a preliminary report at the next meeting of the state committee in the Kent County Court House at 7:30 p. m. the night preceding the convention. The final report will be presented the following day to the convention.

James M. Tunnell, Jr., of Georgetown, presided in the absence of Chairman Marvel, who is confined to his home by illness.

STATE WEDDING OUT ALL UNSAFE CARS

Automobile casualties are reducing as a result of the compulsory mechanical inspection of cars now being promoted throughout the State of Delaware under the joint auspices of the Motor Vehicle Department, the Delaware Safety Council, and the State Highway Department. The campaign, up to the end of July 31, or for the first two weeks, brought out of the 32,985 automobiles brought in for inspection, 6,861 not fit to be passed. However, although 26,124 vehicles were passed during this period, not all of them were qualified the first time. 4,965 of the ones passed had to undergo two inspections before passing, while 441 of the ones passed had to go through the lanes three or more times to be passed. These automobiles that took two or more times to be passed were potential accident breeders before being inspected and the defects adjusted, while the remaining 6,861 are still potential accident hazards. Although all of these automobiles may not have become involved in an accident, the possibilities are that some of them may have, so we can definitely say, that the inspection of the cars did result in having defective automobiles adjusted (Continued On Page Four)

POULTRYMEN TO TOUR KENT COUNTY NEXT THURSDAY

Group Will Assemble at The Dove's Postoffice at 9:30, Standard Time

SPONSORED BY CAESAR RODNEY

Poultry farmers in Kent county who are interested in making a study of modern houses for layers and broilers, the proper care of eggs on the farm, and the methods used in preparing eggs for the market, are invited to attend the county poultry tour which is scheduled for Thursday, August 8, under the auspices of the Caesar Rodney and Hartly Poultry Associations in cooperation with the Extension Service of the University of Delaware and the State Board of Agriculture.

The local committee which met recently to plan the itinerary of this tour consisted of George M. Bringhurst, Paul M. Hodgson, vocational instructor, and W. H. Richter of the Caesar Rodney local; Louis Bloom and Ernest F. Smith of the Hartly local; J. Frank Goruy, vocational agriculture instructor in the Dover high school, H. L. Richardson, extension poultryman of the University of Delaware; H. R. Baker, poultry pathologist for the State Board of Agriculture, and Kent County Agent Russell E. Wilson.

The tour will assemble at the Dove postoffice at 9:30 on Thursday morning, August 8, and the first stop will be at the farm of F. R. Benn, in East Dover, at 10 o'clock.

The next stop will be at the farm of David Green, near Milford, at 11:30, where a two-story brooder house is under construction with the use of a special kind of insulating material. At 12 o'clock noon the tour will meet on the lawn of Frank E. Austin, where the visitors will eat their box lunches, and lemonade will be served by these two local poultry associations. A brief program has been planned during the noon hour, including an inspection of Mr. Austin's shed-type laying house in which saturated paper and shavings are being used as insulating material. Poultrymen will be interested also in the ventilating system being constructed in this house.

From this farm the tour will proceed to the farm of Jacob Kesselring, near Dover, arriving there at 2:30 in the afternoon. Mr. Kesselring is one of the large broiler producers in Kent county, and has many interesting home-made devices and equipment in his broiler houses.

The last farm to be visited on this tour at 3:15 that afternoon will be that of Charles C. Marker, 5 miles north of Dover, who is a breeder-hatcher operating under supervision of the State Board of Agriculture, with an incubator capacity of 15,000 eggs, in addition to a laying house that will accommodate 3,000 birds.

The tour will end about 4 o'clock at the newly established egg grading station at the warehouse of the Southern States Cooperative. At this place the poultry visitors will see how eggs are graded and candled before being shipped to the market to demand higher prices.

ASBURY METHODIST CHURCH OF HARRINGTON
Robert E. Green, Minister

Church School 9:45 A. M. Helpful Bible instruction for every age group, taught by competent teachers.
Morning worship at 11 o'clock. Special music will be sug. Sermon by minister.
Monday evening, 7:30, Church School Board meeting; 8:15, Official Board meeting.
Prayer service Friday evening at 7:30.
Christ Chapel open daily to the public for meditation and prayer.
Church School picnic will be held at Oak Orchard Tuesday, August 6. Buses will leave the church at 8:00 A. M.

Delaware Chemical Corporation will grant exclusive franchise in this and surrounding localities to a capable man or woman for the distribution of their products. These items are outstanding in their field, practically no competition and are in everyday use. The margin of profit is very high and steady repeat business is positive. Small capital is necessary for the purchase of merchandise. Splendid opportunity for man or woman looking for steady income. Reply stating age, experience, etc., Dept. M-1, 711 Orange St., Wilmington, Delaware.

Unusual Strike Shows Fallacy Of Broad Government Rulings

Dispute Over Proper Classification of Workers Results in Stopping All Construction Work in City and Ties Up Supplies for Public Buildings.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Probably, not one of the readers of this column ever have heard the name of the Smoot Sand & Gravel company.

William Bruckart

Lately, however, the Smoot Sand & Gravel company has been much in the public prints of the city of Washington. It was in the news because its 250 workers went on strike.

This was no ordinary strike, not the usual walk-out. That's why the name of the Smoot Sand & Gravel company gained a place in the sun, small as is the business when compared with other great corporations.

The details substantially are as follows: employees of the concern have been classified as maritime workers, because they operate barges and tugs and cranes...

Busybody Decides It's Improper Classification

Having been classified as maritime workers, these employees were able to work as many hours a day or a week as they desired.

There are some stories floating around now to the effect that Mr. Hillman has been snuggling up to some labor leaders whose penchant for stirring up trouble is well known.

Cause for Fear in War And Navy Departments

Around the war and navy departments these conditions are creating considerable fear. Army and navy officers, charged with the job of expanding the services...

And thus, again, the business of the country is in the middle between the upper and nether millstones. All of the war contracts are being awarded in a manner that amounts to a command from the federal government.

Strike Directs Attention To a Serious Problem

This particular case is of more than ordinary importance in another way. Doubtless you have heard of the defense program, that great hysterical drive to defend ourselves from something that is due to strike us on next Tuesday—or maybe it is on November 5.

BUTTING IN

Busybody butts in on question of classification of workers—result is stopping all building work and the furnishing of needed supplies.

MISCELLANY: 'Great I Am'

Twenty-four leaders of the "Great I Am" cult were indicted by a Los Angeles federal grand jury on charges of a $3,000,000 mail fraud.

With over 500 forest fires in three northwestern states, Washington, Idaho and Montana, sweeping over thousands of acres of tinder dry timber land...

somebody has to do the work. The Smoot strike, therefore, directs attention at one of the problems that confronts this country.

No better illustration is possible than what happened in France and England. Their war preparation was limited to lip service for months...

We have something of the same basic situation in this country, right now. It is well known, of course, that Mr. Roosevelt has favored the labor leaders who could control votes.

Policy on Shorter Hours Will Not Be Modified

Only lately, Mr. Roosevelt said at the White House that, come war or peace, there would be no modification of the New Deal policy respecting shorter and shorter hours of work.

I think, too, that attention might be called to the recent appointment of Sydney Hillman as a part of the national defense council and his designation as head of the agency which will have charge of training American boys and girls for war work.

Philadelphia probably would put in a bid for the Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxemburg, a thrifty housewife, now in Quebec.

Cities May Bid For the Unhappy Royal Refugees

In case the above should appear to be a callous reference to tragic unhappiness, the main idea is that this democracy might well accord a certain respect to fugitive royalty because it appears to have something it really believes in.

NEW YORK.—The first World War tipped over 20 reigning princes and dukes, four emperors and seven kings, in addition to a scattering of small-fry royals whose names are now all but forgotten.

It is understood that the Empress Zita of Austria will be in America before long. The word "former" is omitted here, in deference to a clever, purposeful woman, who has never admitted that she isn't still the empress.

In early-day San Francisco a stately old gentleman with a splendid, kingly uniform announced that he was "Emperor Norton," and was pleased to make San Francisco his royal domain.

This department was never particularly partial to kings, but in addition to child refugees it might be a nice idea for each city over here to adopt a king, or a prince or duke.

"I expected that you'd either be leading John through the art gallery or that you'd be sitting here in utter silence."

"You underestimate the privilege it is to me to be permitted to talk without being interrupted."

"I suppose so," Gay was silent for a moment, then asked, "Have you told John, Dad?"

John saw David Graham's expression alter. The difference he had lost while he had talked of John's uncle returned. He glanced at John, almost, he thought, watching, in apology, then up at Gay, considering. "No," he said. "I haven't."

"It's about getting a place for you in the research department at Johns Hopkins," Gay said, eagerly. "That is what you want?" John heard the hesitancy in David Graham's voice, saw the considering expression in his eyes.

"I'd hoped that I might work and study there," he said slowly. "It's seemed pretty far in the future to make definite plans."

"There will be an opening for you the first of the year. I've been in communication with the authorities. Your training and ability will be investigated, of course, but that's largely a matter of course."

"Grandfather had an operation there," Gay's voice was excited and happy. "Considerate of him, wasn't it?"

John looked directly at David Graham.

"I appreciate what you've done," he said, "but I couldn't accept a place there the first of the year."

"Gay has told me—," David Graham's embarrassment visibly increased. "But I—we—she seemed to think that some arrangement might be made."

"Isn't it possible, John?"

"I'm afraid not." He saw a little of the brightness go out of her face but continued, "I've given Dr. Sargeant my promise to remain in Portland until October. You see, Mr. Graham, I'm discharging an obligation. Dr. Sargeant made it possible for me to complete my medical course and that was the stipulation."

"But if it's only a question of money," Gay's color deepened and her eyes were very bright. "Couldn't you—," She paused at a warning glance from her father, looked down at her hand.

"It isn't entirely. I've been working with Dr. Sargeant since October. He's leaving for a cruise the first of the year. There wouldn't be time to break in another assistant even if—," "Even if you could swallow your pride," he said, "I'd be glad to help."

"Gently, Gay," David Graham's face was very troubled. "This is a decision which John must make."

They were staring at each other like strangers, John thought, antagonism humming between them in vibrations across the dim, richly furnished room. But he could not, he would not yield. It was not, he told himself, entirely pride, not only stubbornness. There was a deeper reason, something he was unable to analyze fully. It had to do with all the other pressures being exerted upon him by this life into which he had been plunged.

"I'm sorry," he said, conscious of David Graham's eyes fixed upon him in compassion. "I can't break that promise, Gay. Dr. Sargeant is depending on me. I can't let him down."

There was silence for a moment. Then Gay's expression softened. She gave a low shaken laugh.

"I'm as bad as Aunt Flora," she said. "I've just been despising her because she very kindly offers to arrange your life for you. I'm doing the same." Her breath caught on a sob. "Forgive me. I'm sorry."

She slipped from the arm of her father's chair and came toward him. "I'll be patient. I can wait."

He looked down at her as she stood beside him, lovely in this changed and softened mood.

"You do understand, Gay?" he asked, wanting to take her in his arms, to heal the hurt he had been obliged to give her in the only way that his command. Diffidence held him motionless, self-conscious in the presence of her father.

Her eyes fell away from his pleading glance. "Of course I understand." She laughed too quickly, too brightly. "It's just that Grandfather's offspring have always had too much of everything, I suppose. We don't accept disappointments gracefully. Except you, Dad. You're the only one of us who doesn't snatch and grab." She linked her arm through John's. "Have you finished with John?"

"I hope not," David Graham smiled but his eyes were grave. "I hope to have the pleasure of a prolonged acquaintance."

"At the moment, I mean. This house. Swarming with relatives. No wonder we're all on edge. Will you excuse us, Dad? John and I are going out and walk five miles."

CHAPTER IX

The sun, dropping toward the horizon, laid a dazzling sheen on the snow, which covered the wide lawns sloping away from the gray stone towers and turrets and Victorian embellishments of the house, but when they entered the grove the glow was dimmed by the foliage of evergreens, striped and filigreed by the trunks and bare branches of trees. Rabbit tracks printed the path before them, whorls, scalloped indentations, like waves on sand, where the snow had been blown by the wind. They ploughed through kicking up a fine white mist that sprayed their faces with stinging cold.

"It's like a Maine snow," John said, as Gay became silent.

"Yes, isn't it?" she said brightly. "Dry and like powder. We don't often have them like this."

"Do you ski near here?" Why wouldn't she look at him? Her arm, linked through his, was unresponsive beneath the thick fur coat sleeve. When he glanced sidewise and down, he saw only tendrils of red-brown hair curling out under her cap, the curving line of her cheek half-buried in fur. He had thought that here, alone, out of doors, he would find her again, but she had ignored or deliberately misinterpreted his diffident attempts to effect a reconciliation so that he no longer made an effort to break through the brittle gaiety of her mood.

"We have," she replied. "On the slope just beyond the grove, between the Janeway place and ours. It isn't very exciting though. Coasting there is more fun."

"The Janeway place is beyond the grove?" John asked. Why should he apologize again? He asked himself. Gay had known that he was obliged to Dr. Sargeant until the coming October. She shouldn't have made plans for him which she knew he would be unable to endorse. She'd always been able to buy what she wanted. Well, in this instance, there was something more important than money. It was his services the doctor needed. Besides—

"Yes, 'Highcliff,'" Gay said in reply to his question. "It was a show-place until 'Dunedin' was built. Originally—I don't remember but I've seen photographs—people spoke of it as an Italian villa. It looked like a steel-enslaving with terraces descending in a series to a lake and balustrades and urns and weeping cypresses. Our family are parvenus in comparison with the Janeways. The land was granted to one of Todd's ancestors in 1630. That's why they can live simply now, without observing all the silly

"That's the Janeway place." John looked across the sloping expanse of snow to the white stone house which stood on a rise overlooking a series of terraces which descended to a small irregular lake. "Not the Italian villa," he said.

"Oh, no. Todd's father had the Patroon's house moved up on the site of the original house."

"Patroon?" he questioned, only vaguely familiar with the word.

"The ancestor to whom the land was granted," she explained but her voice was absent. "They're coasting," she said.

John's glance turned from the rambling stone house, washed over with faint pink light, standing serene among evergreens and the bare lofty branches of trees, toward the direction in which she was gazing. Figures in bright colored ski suits toiled up the slope which extended from the lake to the high wall planted with hemlocks which marked the boundary of the estate. As he watched, one of the figures raised an arm in greeting and a welcoming shout came ringing through the clear frosty air.

"There's Todd!" Gay's arm slipped from his. She took a few running steps forward. "Let's coast with them," she called back over her shoulder, then stopped and turned. "Shall we?" she asked, hesitatingly. "Would you enjoy it?"

"If you would," he replied, conscious of the constraint in his voice, "and I—we aren't intruding."

She returned to him, slipped her hand under his arm.

"Idiot!" she said. A half-smile curved her lips. Her eyes, lifted to his face, were very gentle. "John! Don't you know—?"

"Of course I know," he smiled, and saw her half-smile widen and deepen. "I'm rather good with a toboggan. Let's go coasting."

The sled sped down the runway glittering with a sheen that was faintly blue in cold moonlight.

"Hold tight!" Todd shouted back over his shoulder.

"I'm holding!" Gay tightened her grip around his waist. The words seemed to be torn from her lips and flung backward as the speed of the sled accelerated. Rushing cold stung her face and half closed her eyes. It was freedom, it was exciting.

"Here's the camel's hump!" The sled rose and dipped. Gay laughed, gasping. She leaned out around Todd's back and looked ahead through squinting eyelids. The wall rose ahead of them, the dark hemlocks outlined in snow. She closed her eyes as Todd made the slithering turn. The sled tilted, spilling them off into the snow. They lay where they had fallen, laughing, gasping, struggling for breath. Todd scrambled up.

"All right?" he asked and pulled her to her feet.

"All right." He dropped her hands. She stood brushing the snow from her ski suit. "I've never gotten over the feeling that sometime we're going to crash into that wall again."

"Do you remember when we did?" "I should. I still have the scar."

"It was your fault. You jerked the rope."

"It wasn't. You didn't make the turn in time."

"I suppose we'll be arguing that question when we're eighty," Todd said. "Breath okay? Can you make the climb now?"

They started back in the soft snow at the side of the run. Todd pulled the sled. Gay linked her arm through his. Figures moved ahead of them, climbing the slope, pulling the toboggan. Other figures were dark against the fire blazing at the edge of the lake.

"I do admire him. You're like him—a little."

"You want to believe that, don't you? I am, a little, I guess. But I wouldn't be satisfied to shut myself off from life as he does. There's something of Mother in me and a great deal of Grandfather, but nothing of Aunt Flora," humor shone in her eyes again, "if that's encouraging as it should be."

He laughed reluctantly. Her face lifted to his, in the dimming glow of the sunset, was very grave.

"When we talked in Dad's study, you were thinking of your work."

"Yes," he admitted, disconcerted by her penetration.

"You are afraid for your work." She waited and then went on. "Don't you know I'll never interfere with that, that it will be my pleasure to help you? Not that I am a noble and self-sacrificing character but," her voice faltered. "But because—I love you."

"I love you." He caught her to him. Their lips met. But though she clung to him, though her cheek, cold and wet with snow, lay against his and she whispered soft endearments, he felt something lacking in the embrace. Each misunderstanding, each prolonged explanation blunted a little the sharp ecstasy they had felt at the cabin, when their lips met, when, her cheek against his she whispered soft endearments. She drew away from him and he made no effort to hold her. They walked on, breaking a path through the grove, closer now, but not united. When they spoke their voices were gentle, their glances meeting, separating, questioned but received no answer. They came out of the grove into the open again.

"That's the Janeway place." John looked across the sloping expanse of snow to the white stone house which stood on a rise overlooking a series of terraces which descended to a small irregular lake.

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

Canvas Decking.

QUESTION: How can I cover a porch floor with steamboat decking? Twelve-ounce canvas costs 33 cents a yard, and 24-ounce canvas costs 75 cents. Will the difference in cost be justified? How should the canvas be laid?

ANSWER: Get heavy canvas, and buy a kind that is intended for the purpose. The best qualities will not shrink, and they have a water-proofing treatment. You should start with a flat deck of closely fitted boards, with no uneven places. On this put a fairly thick bed of white lead made into a soft paste by adding linseed oil. Stretch the first strip of canvas at the edge of the roof, rolling it into the paste and securing it with long copper tacks put in an inch apart all around. Lay the second strip with its edge overlapping the edge of the first one by two inches. Put paste under the overlap and secure by tacks. Continue in this way. When the roof is covered, put on a priming coat of deck paint, and when it is dry, two more coats of the same, used as it comes in the can.

Silverfish and Crickets.

QUESTION: How can I get rid of silverfish and crickets?

ANSWER: For both of these insects use pyrethrum powder, which is the common yellow insect powder. Put it in a powder puff and for the silverfish blow it into cracks in the woodwork, such as the crack between flooring and baseboard; blow it on shelves, behind books, and in similar places. For crickets blow it into the air behind pieces of furniture, boxes and radiators, and other places where crickets conceal themselves. Pyrethrum powder loses its strength on exposure to the air. It should be bought in sealed packages, and blowing should be repeated every three days.

Building a Cottage.

QUESTION: Being handy with tools, I am undertaking to build a summer cottage. What book that is fairly up-to-date will give me details and explanations of small house construction?

ANSWER: The National Lumber Manufacturers association, Washington, D. C., issues pamphlets on construction details, which would be well sending for. You will also find several pamphlets in Price List 72, "Publications of Interest to Suburbanites and Home Owners," to be had for the asking from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington.

Problem of Dampness.

QUESTION: We live on the street level in an apartment house built on a slight rise, and 100 yards or so from tidewater. Parquet floors show no sign of warping or unevenness, except in one spot where boards creak and sink a little. Do you think the apartment may be too damp in spring and summer?

ANSWER: With the ventilation that you describe, I see no reason why the apartment should be especially damp. The creaking boards should be investigated, however, to learn if the supports underneath have rotted or otherwise given way.

Plywood Walls.

QUESTION: The kitchen walls of my new country cottage are finished with plywood. Can I use a spar varnish finish on the walls? Is it advisable to first coat the walls with linseed oil?

ANSWER: Spar varnish will be all right. I would advise two coats. Dull the gloss of the first coat of varnish by rubbing down with fine sandpaper, then wipe off the dust before applying the second coat. Linseed oil is not necessary.

Refinishing Station Wagon.

QUESTION: The woodwork of my station wagon has weathered dull. Would like your advice on refinishing.

ANSWER: If the varnished finish is not peeling, wash the surface with soap and warm water, rinse with clear water; then wipe dry. Allow the moisture to dry out for a few hours. Refinish with one or two coats of a top quality spar varnish. Be sure the surface is dull before applying the varnish.

White Paint on Screens.

QUESTION: My house is somewhat shaded by trees, but when I put on the screens the house is noticeably darker. Would white paint on the screen help? Would it make the house look crazy? It is now painted cream.

ANSWER: It would not be objectionable, and would help brighten the interior. Make sure the paint is thin enough so it will not clog the openings in the screen.

Cleaning Reed Chairs.

QUESTION: Is there a good way to clean chairs made of bamboo peel cane? They are decorated with a small black design.

ANSWER: Those chairs can be scrubbed. Use any cleaning powder in a weak solution, applied with a scrubbing brush and cloth. Follow by rinsing with clear water and wiping dry. If refinishing is needed, use quick-drying varnish.

Bright Electric Light.

QUESTION: Is a 200-watt electric bulb O. K. for reading when used in an inverted lamp?

ANSWER: It is perfectly safe provided the eyes are protected from the direct glare of the light. The light from a lamp of such size is usually thrown against the ceiling for indirect lighting.

Fingermarked Furniture.

QUESTION: What would be the best treatment for walnut furniture to prevent smudgy fingermarks? Do you advise waxing?

ANSWER: There is no polish or finish for furniture which is guaranteed against fingermarks. The skin is naturally oily, and when the fingers or hand come in contact with a highly polished surface, prints will show. Marks on waxed furniture may be more readily wiped off by rubbing with a soft cloth. Use a paste wax, apply a thin coat, then rub well.

Gay Plaids and Stripes Add Zest to Smart Play Clothes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AN outstanding movement developing in the world of fashion during the last several seasons is the increasing attention given to the styling of play clothes. It is indeed something to reckon with, this matter of being correctly outfitted in the field of sports. This new importance attached to play clothes is proving a lively incentive to designers to turn out outfits that shall add to the picture as well as prove practical down to the last detail. There is no more fascinating endeavor than the field of costume design has to offer than this of creating play-clothes for young moderns.

It adds greatly to the pleasurable excitement that materials these days are produced so nearly perfect, not alone from the pictorial standpoint, but that they neither fade nor shrink in the wash, neither do they wrinkle or prove unseemly in the wearing. Playgrounds this season, because of the spectacular garb of fun-loving outdoor enthusiasts, burst forth in a blaze of color that fairly dazzles the eye. And of all the conspirators in the color game we know of none that are so loyally flying cheer-inspiring colorings as are the fashionable-for-play clothes plaids and stripes.

The picture shows how dramatically and picturesquely color-bright stripes and plaids are being fashioned into clothes that go golfing, tennis playing, cruising, dude-ranching and so forth wherever your wanderlust happens to take you this summer.

The very attractive outfit which you see to the right in the illustration makes one parasol-conscious at very first glance. Which is as it should be for one of the very most important events on the fashion program this summer is the come-back of parasols. Designers of beach clothes find big appeal in the parasol idea and whenever and wherever it is consistent to do so they introduce an eye-thrilling parasol. It worked out beautifully for the outfit pictured to add a matching parasol, and here you see it in all its glory flaunting the same gay stripes that give color to the smartly fashioned skirt. The fabric combination for this costume is a very happy one of stripe-printed celanese crepe for the skirt and parasol with sharkskin in monotone for the blouse top.

You can get such easy-to-follow patterns for play clothes nowadays, and modern sewing machines have such a vast equipment of gadgets and attachments that almost perform miracles in stitching, tucking, quilting, shirring, cording, it is a temptation to make one's own outfits. Many smart, fashion-aware women are doing just that, buying up pretty materials and making their own. It is a fact the records show that the home-sewing idea is decidedly on the increase.

Consider, in the light of being your own dressmaker, the charming gaytime sun suit which the girl seated is wearing. Just a few yards of seersucker plaid in vivid colors were required. You can make the whole outfit by spending only a couple of hours at your sewing machine even if you are a beginner at the sewing game. A little gathering attachment in your sewing machine kit will dispose of the yards of gathering at the waistline in just a few moments. You'll love the swirling ballerina skirt and the smartly fitted jacket top that furnish the styling theme for this outfit.

Star Dust

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

EDWARD GRIFFITH, who's producer and director of Paramount's "Virginia," drew a long breath of relief when Madeleine Carroll landed safely in New York. She'd said that she would be back in time to start work promptly, but it seemed unlikely that she would be able to keep her word, especially when nothing was known about her except that she was somewhere in France.

For her the trip was a disappointing one. She couldn't reach either her family or the orphans to whom she had turned over her chateau near Paris. She couldn't see her fiancé, although she did succeed in learning that he was in Tunisia. Despite the harrowing experiences that she went through, she looked lovelier than ever when she returned; she spent a few days in New York, and then departed for Charlottesville, Va., and "Virginia."

Remember the girl who won a contest that was conducted over the radio, and got the name of "Alice Eden" and a part in a movie as a result? Her name was Rowena Cook, and she's taken it back again and gone on record as saying that the lot of a contest winner in Hollywood is certainly not an easy one.

She was thrilled over winning the contest and getting a role and a contract. Everybody was swell to her. She'd spent years studying dramatic art, and naturally thought she'd be considered an actress. But she learned that people just and thus the hazard was eliminated. It should be worth the time spent at the lanes by all Delawareans to know that other automobiles as well as his own were in good mechanical condition—to eliminate the brakeless wonders and the one-eyed cars, and the blinding cock-eyed headlights. This expense is being borne by the State of Delaware, and is being borne for the safety of every person in Delaware. It should be the duty of everyone in the state owning a motor vehicle to have it inspected as soon as possible. It should be remembered that the car inspection is being promoted for the protection of everyone. The following list shows the number of defects and which will have or will be corrected under the inspection system which will last to the end of August:

Licenses and plates, 141; Lights, 2,068; Tires, 566; Mirror, 86; Windshield and all glass, 1,400; Windshield wiper, 122; Horn, 120; Emergency brake, 173; Steering gear, 71; Foot brake, 3,582; Clearance lights, 13; Flares, 57; Incorrect Motor Numbers, 98.

Millionth 1940 Chevrolet to be Contest Award

Some conception of the demand for the 1940 Chevrolet may be gained from the fact that the one-millionth model of this year's production left the assembly line at Flint, Mich., on July 12. In celebration of the public appreciation reflected by this tremendous production record, M. E. Coyle, general manager of Chevrolet, shown (left) above with W. E. Holler, general sales manager, announced that the one-millionth 1940 car, together with a trip to the New York World's Fair, would be awarded in a contest which is open now and will close Aug. 31. Details are obtainable at any of the company's dealers.

IMAGINARY INTERVIEWS: UNCLE SAM AND JOHN Q. CITIZEN

John Q.—Sam, you look different all of a sudden. Uncle Sam—I feel different. In fact, I haven't felt better in years.

John Q.—But don't you think there are tough days ahead of you? Uncle Sam—Sure. But I'm never at my best except in tough days.

John Q.—It's strange, but I feel the same way. I've been squawking and making demands all over the lot.

John Q.—But it means plenty of trouble, I suppose. Do you feel in condition for it?

Uncle Sam—No, darn it! I've grown so soft it's going to be a terrific battle to get into shape.

John Q.—I feel pretty flabby, too. Say, why did you let me get this way?

Uncle Sam (indignantly)—How did I let YOU get this way! What I wanna know is how YOU let ME get this way.

John Q.—You're the boss; I just do as I'm told.

John Q.—Who? Me? Uncle Sam—I only reflect your wishes and opinions.

John Q.—Don't blame it all on me, Sam. Every time I looked at you you were busy on plans for the more abundant life.

John Q.—Why, listen, when you should have been down to brass tacks, developing your muscles and hardening yourself for any contingency, you were behaving as if all anybody had to worry about in this world was a bigger recreation program.

John Q.—You babied me so much I got to like it, I admit.

Uncle Sam—All you wanted was the brass ring, caviar with the free lunch, government distribution of strawberries and cream.

John Q.—Why did you cater to me so much? Uncle Sam—I wish I knew. Every time I thought of letting you shift for yourself you'd start wiring me for aid in every crisis.

John Q.—Well, I guess it's all over now. I guess we've got to cut out the petting party and get on our own.

Uncle Sam.—Waddaya mean you "GUESS"!

THE NAME'S FAMILIAR, BUT—The head of the French-German armistice enforcement board is a colonel named Stuepnagle.

"Brazil Will Co-operate With Us, Says Hull."—Headline. Wanna bet?

IT'S PICNIC TIME! (Recipes Below)

Household News By Eleanor Howe

Summertime is picnic time, and you pack up your troubles as you unpack your picnic kit.

No dishes to wash afterward... paper cups and plates eliminate all such labor.

One hot dish is important at a picnic; it might be stew, or chowder, baked beans, or a macaroni dish—but do have something hot!

There are picnic hints and menus that you'll like, in my cookbook, "Easy Entertaining"; there's a menu for a beach party, a hiking trip and a steak fry, too—with all the recipes you'll need for this simple form of entertaining.

Raisin Drop Cookies. 1/4 cup butter. 1/2 cup granulated sugar. 2 eggs. 1 1/2 cups cake flour. 2 teaspoons baking powder. 1/2 teaspoon salt. 1 teaspoon cinnamon. 1 cup seedless raisins. 1 tablespoon milk. 1 teaspoon vanilla extract.

Cream butter and add sugar gradually. Add eggs, well beaten, and mix thoroughly. Mix and sift dry ingredients and add alternately with the milk and vanilla, beginning with the flour mixture.

Devised Eggs. 4 eggs, hard cooked. 1/4 teaspoon salt. Dash pepper. 1 tablespoon butter, melted. 1/4 teaspoon vinegar. 1 teaspoon prepared mustard.

Cut the hard-cooked eggs in halves crosswise. Remove yolks, mash, and add salt, pepper, melted butter, and prepared mustard.

One-Dish Meal for a Picnic. 1 pound country style sausage. 2 medium size onions (sliced). 1 can lima beans. 1 No. 2 can tomatoes. 1 teaspoon chili powder.

Shape sausage into flat cakes and fry with the onions until the sausage is well done. Drain off all but 1/2 cup of the fat, add remaining ingredients, and simmer for 30 minutes.

Baked Macaroni—Creole Style. (Serves 4) 1/2 package macaroni. 2 tablespoons butter. 2 tablespoons onion (minced). 1 green pepper (chopped). 1 No. 2 can tomatoes. 1 tablespoon granulated sugar. 1 teaspoon salt. 1/2 pound country style sausage. 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs (buttered).

Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water. Brown onion slightly in the butter. Add green pepper, and tomatoes. Add sugar and salt and cook until the green pepper is tender. Make sausage into flat cakes. In a buttered baking dish place a layer of macaroni, then a layer of sausage cakes, and another layer of macaroni. Pour the tomato mixture over the macaroni and top with buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 45 minutes.

Ginger Creams. (Makes 3 dozen 1 1/2-inch squares) 1/2 cup shortening. 2 tablespoons sugar. 2 cups flour. 1/4 teaspoon soda. 1/4 teaspoon salt. 1 teaspoon ginger. 1 cup dark molasses. 1 egg (separated). 1 cup boiling water.

Cream shortening and sugar together. Sift flour, soda, salt and ginger, and blend with the creamed mixture, using a pastry blender or a fork. Add molasses and egg yolk, and beat well. Then add boiling water, gradually, and beat well.

Spread batter in greased jelly roll pan (about 11 by 16 inches) and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for approximately 18 minutes. Cool, and frost with boiled icing or confectioners' sugar icing. Cut in squares.

Crazy Cake. 1 cup sugar. 1 egg. 1/2 cup cocoa. 1/2 cup lard. 1/2 teaspoon salt. 1 teaspoon baking powder. 1/2 teaspoon soda. 1 teaspoon vanilla. 1 1/2 cups flour (sifted). 1/2 cup boiling water.

Place all of the ingredients in a bowl in the order given. Do not stir until boiling water is added. Then beat 3 minutes, using a rotary beater, or 2 minutes if an electric mixer is used.

Place in greased 8-inch square pan and bake 35 to 40 minutes in a moderately hot oven (325 degrees).

Broiled Baked Bean Sandwiches. Bread, sliced. Baked beans. Cheese, sliced or cut in strips. Bacon slices, cut in halves. Arrange bread on broiler. When bread is toasted on one side, turn. Then cover the untoasted sides of the slices of bread with baked beans. Place cheese over the beans and top each sandwich with one-half slice of bacon. Place under broiler and broil until bacon is crisp and brown and cheese is melted.

Let 'Better Baking' Solve Your Baking Problems. True it is we all have baking problems. Yet, if solved correctly, we save time because fallen cakes don't have to be made over again and we save money too—because the family simply won't eat tough, chewy pastry, heavy, soggy cakes, etc.

In fact, it is to avoid just such baking failures as these (and many more) that I have compiled this cookbook, "Better Baking." "Better Baking" brings to you a whole series of baking hints, as well as a compilation of many of my own favorite baking recipes, including such unusual good-to-eat ones as a frosted nut spice cake, gumdrop cake, chocolate fudge cake, quick apple cake, and even a maraschino cherry cake.

To secure your copy of this book, simply send 10 cents in coin and please address, "Better Baking," care of Eleanor Howe, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Queen Bess' Silk Stockings

In the third year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth her silk woman, Mistress Montague, presented this redoubtable daughter of Henry VIII a pair of black silk knit stockings for a New Year's gift, relates Robert Cortes Holliday in "Unmentionables: From Fig Leaves to Scanties." These articles pleased her so well that she sent for Mistress Montague and asked her if she could help her to any more.

Mistress Montague answered, saying: "I made them very carefully of purpose only for your majesty, and seeing these please you so well, I will presently get more in hand."

"Do," said the queen, "for indeed I like silk stockings so well, because they are pleasant, fine and delicate, that henceforth, I will wear no more cloth stockings."

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

First Patent Was Issued 150 Years Ago; Since Then Uncle Sam Has Granted More Than 2,000,000 to His Inventive Sons

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

JULY 31 of this year marks the 150th anniversary of a red letter day on the American calendar. It was not the date of a great military or naval victory nor of a significant event in our social or political history.

What took place on that day does not, in itself, seem important. For it was simply this: On July 31, 1790, the United States of America granted to one Samuel Hopkins of Vermont a patent for a method of making "Pot and Pearl Ashes." But this was the first of more than 2,000,000 patents which have been issued since that time, and written between the lines of the records of those 2,000,000 patents is the story of the inventive genius which has made possible an economic system capitalized at billions of dollars and has given the United States its position as the greatest industrial and business nation in the world.

The American patent system had its genesis in that "Yankee ingenuity" which began to manifest itself early in the history of English colonization of North America. Nearly 300 years ago (in October, 1641) the Massachusetts Bay colony granted to Samuel Woslow a patent "for a period of 10 years, for a new method of manufacturing salt." This was followed by similar grants in other colonies, but mainly in New England, to promote the manufacture of iron, the building of grist mills and various other enterprises necessary for the development of industry along with agriculture and trade.

So when the new nation was established the Founding Fathers determined to include in the laws of the land statutes which would encourage invention and protect the inventor. During the Constitutional convention James Madison of Virginia and Charles C. Pinckney of South Carolina offered the first proposals for patent and copyright laws. These suggestions, which received the indorsement and encouragement of Thomas Jefferson and George Washington, resulted in congress passing an act on August 17, 1790, which governed the issuance of both patents and copyrights.

Jefferson, Patent Examiner.
During the first session of congress, applications for patents were filed by 15 inventors. At the second session it was decided to separate the two "rights" in the first law and on April 10, 1790, the first law, applying only to patents, was enacted. Jurisdiction over applications under this law was given to the "Commissioners for the Promotion of Useful Arts." They were three members of Washington's cabinet—Thomas Jefferson, secretary of state; Henry Knox, secretary of war, and Edmund Randolph, attorney general—and the task of administering the patent law was assigned to the State department. So Jefferson became in effect the first patent examiner and his staff for this work consisted of a single clerk.

Of the 15 applications made during the first year, three patents were granted. The first went to Samuel Hopkins for his method of making "Pot and Pearl Ashes," the second was for a machine to make candles, flour and meal (a queer combination, that!) and the third for a method of making punches for type.

The remaining 12, granted in 1791, were for the following: Improvement in distilling methods, driving piles for bridges, a threshing machine, a machine for breaking hemp, a marble cutter and polisher, a tide mill, a machine for making nails and threshing wheat (another queer combination!), a method of diminishing spindle friction, a formula for making an extract of barks, an improved bedstead, a method of making boots, and a method of using cattle for propelling boats. Under this first act a total of 87 patents were granted.

When the seat of government was moved to the new capital on the Potomac, Washington City, in 1800 the patent office equipment, records and models were loaded on a boat, and sailed to Georgetown where they were carried to the new quarters on Pennsylvania avenue, between Ninth and Twentieth streets, at a cost to the government of $208.

As the patent office grew, it became necessary to appoint a superintendent to direct its work.

An employee of the Smithsonian institution holds the model of an invention which was an "improvement in the method of lifting vessels over shoals." The patent, issued May 22, 1849, was granted to an inventor from Illinois, named Abraham Lincoln. (Yes, THE Abraham Lincoln.)

J. W. Thornton was the man selected and he was given a salary of $1,400 a year, allowed a clerk at $500 and a messenger at $72 a year. Later Thornton was given the title of commissioner and removed the office to "Croker's 2-story house" on Eighth street. Again in 1810 the patent office was moved, this time to a famous hotel, Blodgett's on E. street, where it shared quarters with the post office department.

Thornton's Great Service.
Thornton deserves to be remembered gratefully by his countrymen for a deed which he performed during the War of 1812. When a British force captured Washington in 1814 and began burning the public buildings, Thornton went to the British major who was in charge of the burning in that section of the city, and pleaded his case so earnestly that the patent office with its records and models were spared. Twenty-two years later a force against which his eloquence would have been unavailing nullified his patriotic effort.

In 1838, during the administration of H. L. Ellsworth, who became commissioner of patents upon Thornton's death in 1823, a fire swept through the patent office and destroyed the accumulation of 7,000 models and all the records excepting one book. Fortunately, a clerk had taken that book home the night before the fire.

Drawings of the parts which made up Eli Whitney's cotton gin.

As the result of this disaster a new patent office building was erected at F and Ninth streets, Northwest, and it served as the home of the patent office until 1932 when all departments of the office were moved to the new Commerce building, erected during the administration of President Hoover, former secretary of commerce.

Incidentally, the patent office is the father of the department of agriculture because in 1830 the commissioner of patents was given the duty of collecting and publishing farm statistics and for many years patent office funds were used to distribute free seeds to the farmers. This arrangement continued until 1862 when the present department of agriculture was founded. The patent office, with the Smithsonian institution also served as the official United States weather bureau for a time. Its duties overlapped into the agricultural field again in 1930 when it was authorized to issue patents for new sorts of plants in the "Plant Patent" bill for which Luther Burbank, the "plant wizard" and Thomas A. Edison did some effective lobbying.

In 1877 a second fire took its toll of more than 200,000 models damaged or destroyed and three years later the patent office discontinued its practice of requiring inventors to submit models along with their applications for patents. By this time, even with the destruction wrought by the fire of 1877, there was such a great stock of them on hand that their storage became a problem. In 1925 congress passed an act changing requirements for getting a patent.

Instead of requiring models and keeping them for inspection by prospective inventors, drawings and specifications of all patented inventions are now printed in small pamphlets which may be purchased at a small cost and studied at leisure. However, thousands of scientists, engineers, scholars and others visit the examining room of the patent office in the Commerce building to pore over its records, for here is the largest single source of scientific information in the world.

Roll Call of Fame.

There the visitor may read the contemporary records of inventions which have profoundly affected the course of history, not only in America but in the whole world. There he may be reminded again of the inventors whose fame ranks with our statesmen and military and naval heroes. Beginning with Eli Whitney and his cotton gin, they include such names as McCormick and his reaper, Morse and the telegraph, Bell and the telephone, Fulton and the steamboat, Sholes and the typewriter, Westinghouse and the air brake, Thomas A. Edison and a score of inventions which gave to the world more than $3,000,000,000 of new property; and Orville and Wilbur Wright and the airplane.

Incidentally, away back in 1822 a Philadelphia mathematician named James Bennett presented to congress this statement:

"That your petitioner, having invented a machine by which a man can fly through the air—can soar to any height—steer in any direction—can start from any place and light without risk of injury; and, whereas, a like machine has never been invented in any country or age of the world, so as to be applied to purposes of practical utility, and it is more than probable that artificial flying would not for a hundred years to come, be brought to the same degree of perfection, had not your petitioner, under Providence, accomplished it; and, as it must be evident to all that letters patent would be of little use to the inventor in consequence of various modifications or improvements which might be made, and which never would have been thought of had not the way first been opened by your petitioner. He therefore solicits a special act of the Congress of the United States to secure to him and his heirs for the term of 40 years, or for such other term as in their wisdom may be deemed just, the right of steering flying machines through that portion of the earth's atmosphere which presses on the United States, or so far as their jurisdiction may extend. By granting your petitioner's request, the honor of the invention shall be conferred on the United States."

Bennett's petition was passed back and forth between various committees in congress. Then he was notified that no action would be taken on it because the members "had so much business of a terrestrial character before them that they felt this matter above their reach." Thereby they proved themselves "bum guessers" indeed—much worse than Bennett. He missed it by only 14 years. He had said that "artificial flying" would not be perfected for "a hundred years to come."

The date of the Wrights' first successful flight at Kitty Hawk, N. C., was 1908.

New Tongue for Old!

If you've ever tried to order a dish of ham and eggs in a foreign country you will understand the problem facing American immigrants. In New York the foreign-born population is estimated at 2,500,000. The New York Board of Education, through its adult classes for the foreign-born, has done wonders in acquainting these people with the new language. Strangely enough the tendency is to learn the current "wise-cracks" first. These pictures show adult classes in progress.

Hyman Epstein, an immigrant from Poland, strikes a pensive pose as he ponders over the idiosyncrasies of the new language. The teacher is giving personal attention to Hyman.

You may not be able to teach an old dog new tricks, but these future Americans demonstrate that it's never too old to learn a new language. The gentleman with the book is 75.

Upper left: Mrs. Jeanne Leyman, of La Belle, France, does not find English easy to learn, but stays right with it. Circle: Mrs. Oterina Dilando is eager to learn English, but having no one to care for her daughter, Angelina, Mrs. Dilando brings her along. Lower left: Smiling with satisfaction, Mrs. Lena Ginsberg is shown at the blackboard after she has been singled out to read the lessons thereon.

Standing at the salute, an adult class of the foreign-born performs the ritual of pledging allegiance to the flag.

'Here's Your Change'
"Can you spare me a nickel for a cup of coffee?" said a youth to a Laramie, Wyo., business man, on a Laramie street. The man, noting that the young fellow didn't appear to be an ordinary "panhandler," handed him a quarter. Two hours later the business man reached his office. The youth was there—with 20 cents change from the quarter. "I had a hard time finding you to return this change," said the youth. "Thanks a lot."

The youth was there—with 20 cents change from the quarter. "I had a hard time finding you to return this change," said the youth. "Thanks a lot."
