House and Senate Set 21-35 Age Limit In Draft Bill, Volunteer Plan Dropped; 'Total Air War' Blasts London Area; 32 Killed in Munitions Plant Explosion

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.

DRAFT:

In November Prospects are that no American youth will be conscripted into army service until after election. Just before the house passed the draft bill by a vote of 185 to 155, and announcement to this effect was made by Representative Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) co-author of the bill.

To make sure of this, however, the house inserted an amendment

Lieut. Col. Lewis B. Hershey, pictured here, now head of the joint army and navy committee in charge of selective service plans, who more than likely will become "the power behind the draft," after the conscription machinery gets un-derway. While a civilian may be named titular head of the draft, Col. Hershey will contribute a major share of the work since he has spent four years developing sponsored by Representative Fish (R., N. Y.) to postpone peacetime draft for 60 days while the President appealed for volunteers.

The house bill differed in two other essentials from the measure passed by the senate. The senate called for an age limit of 21 to 30, inclusive. The house wanted registration extended to 45 years, in order to get a greater number of trained mechanics. The house also modified the "draft industry" amendment so that factories where owners refused defense contracts would be taken over by the government on lease or rental. The senate called for seizure and operation.

Ironing out the differences, house and senate conferees agreed upon a bill that, (1) fixed the age limit at 21 to 35 years inclusive, (2) modified the plant seizure amendment and (3) eliminated the 60-day volun-

Wendell Willkie, G. O. P. presidential nominee, added his opposition to that of President Roosevelt on the 60-day delay amendment.

MUNITIONS:

Disaster

In what was declared to be the worst disaster in the history of the American munitions industry, 32 persons were known dead, 22 missing (also believed to have perished) and 200 persons were injured in a series of earth-shaking explosions which destroyed the Hercules Powder company's Kenvil, N. J., plant. While the cause of the blast was not immediately determined, federal, state and local authorities began immediate investigations because the plant was busy at work on United States defense orders.

EGYPT: Offensive

Italy's long awaited offensive against English forces in Egypt got under way as artillery fire rumbled up and down the Egypt-Libya border. Fresh Italian troops moved up near the border as British and Italian flyers clashed in the first exchange of military blows on this front. Observers were of the opinion that Italy was really beginning to play her role in the "Battle of Britain." This role consists mainly in diverting the attention of the English to some other quarter while Hitler's attempt at an invasion of the British isles is carried out. Egypt a land invasion. is an ally of Britain but as yet has not declared war with the axis powers. As soon as the Italian forces slash very deeply into Egyptian territory this declaration is expected.

Previous raids and previous bombings were as nothing. Reichmarshal Hermann W. Goering, from a safe seat in France, personally took charge of the Luftwaffe's operations. Thousands of gigantic bombers were sent across the channel in waves at 30 minute intervals. All were aimed at London, seat of the British empire. Alarms continued from dusk until dawn. Even in daylight, while air precaution wardens were digging helpless from the debris left the night before, new planes arrived. They dropped incendiary bombs, which set great fires and led the night fliers to their targets through Gone now was raiding only of de-fense points and industries. Except for German propaganda sources, none challenged the announcement that purely residential areas were being subjected to devastating explosions. In world-famous Fleet street, home of the greatest British newspapers, some of the largest buildings in the city were wrecked.

Hospitals were wrecked, subways demoralized, gas mains broken and set afire. In a two-day period the British admitted 600 killed and 2,500

Objective of the terror was to undermine the morale of the ordinary citizen. Berlin said when this was accomplished, the Churchill cabinet would fall and a new cabinet willing to deal with the Reich would take its place.

In the battered, shell-torn city, however, the first day of the raids showed no loss of determination to hold out. The king visited a slum section where bombs had ripped great craters in the street, where homes of hundreds had been torn to bits. Out of the window of a house still standing, a woman shouted: "Are we downhearted?" And the crowd gathered around the king cried, "No." The king smiled. That night there were worse bomb-

British fliers, reported by the German air arm to be reduced to ineffective operation, were still able to get into the air and fight. Moreover they went visiting on their own. Docks at Hamburg, ports along the channel coast, in Denmark and Norway were given a treatment of aerial bombardments. The British air ministry said the retaliation was so severe that the areas could not be used by the Germans to launch

Nightly there were air raid alarms in Berlin, too. At least one bomb was dropped on the Reichstag building, seat of Hitler's rubber-stamp parliament.

APPOINTMENTS:

Labor Board

Charles Fahy, soft-spoken council of the National Labor Relations board, was promoted by President Roosevelt to assistant solicitor general. The man who piloted the NLRB through five years of injunction battles and Supreme court tests now goes to the office which prepares the government's side in hearings before the nation's highest judicial tribunal.

But the elevation of Fahy did not solve another and harder NLRB problem that faces the President. The term of its chairman, J. Warren Madden, expired August 26. Madden packed his papers and left the office. No successor has been ap-

Armament Manufacturers Realize Plant Expansion Carries Risks Congress — A recess of several weeks beginning before October 1 is expected in Washington.

Rayon—Japan may be dislodged WASHINGTON.—It is fairly simole for the government to commandeer any existing plant which it may deem necessary for the national defense program and the owners of which are unwilling to co-operate. ed at the lowest since 1929, by an But it is a bit difficult for the government to commandeer a plant for vey. Volume is set at 4,500,000. Last which the blueprints have not even been drawn.

Yet the ONLY fact behind the amazing public misconception of this whole picture of the alleged bogging down of the national defense program, which is blamed on greedy would-be war profiteers, concerns PROPOSED plants, not EXISTING

And the truth even about that is that there is very little delaying on the part of concerns which the government wants to take war contracts. Dozens of big concerns are risking the shirts of their stockholders by constructing new plants for the manufacture of airplane engines, airplane propellers and whatnot without knowing what the prices will be, without knowing what profits they will be allowed, and at the risk of having stark and idle plants on their hands two or three years

Right now there seems to be danger. The public is aroused to it, and is behind the appropriating of bil-lions for national defense. War rages in Europe, and there is eager demand for all sorts of war supplies. But who can tell what the picture will be even next summer, much The Petain government also orless three years from now?

Disarmament Might Follow Peace in Europe

dered detention of more wartime cabinet leaders, including former Premiers Edouard Daladier and Paul Reynaud, and Gen. Maurice Gamelin. All are being held in a chateau near Riom, where the "war For example, there might be not only peace, but the sort of disarma-ment agreement for which the statesmen of the early 1920's were striving, a situation in which no nation would build another fighting ship or fighting plane, a tank or a big gun, for a considerable period of

At the moment this seems farfetched, but consider the arguments which those who will be advocating this course will have, should there be peace a couple of years from now. Every nation in the world will be so deeply in debt that there will be serious doubt that they can ever pay the interest on it! A moment's thought about the present British debt and the rate at which it is being increased will show that this is not a totally impossible pic-

Taxation will be grinding, not only in Europe, but in the United States, whether we get into the war or not. For we are rapidly reaching a total of debt which will require heavy taxation merely to pay the government's annual interest bill.

Expansion of Plants Requires Real Nerve

So beyond any question, when peace does come, there is going to be a tremendous demand on the part of the taxpayers to cut down on military appropriations, if this can be done safely, and it will appeal to a number of statesmen then, as it did in 1921, to bring about disarmament by treaties.

Boiled down, that is why manufacturers OUGHT to be worried about amortization. And that is why the public should really be appreciating the nerve of those companies which are building new plants because the government wants them to do it, without waiting to find out about profits, and whether the tax collectors will leave them anything with which to pay for the new plants. Put another way, without knowing whether they will ever get back 10 cents on the dollar of their new investments.

Incidentally, President Roosevelt is NOT responsible for these attacks on business. But certain senators and representatives have been showing either very poor logic, or rather contemptible politics.

U. S. Foreign Policy Is Unique in History

There may be some parallel in history for the course now being followed by the United States government, and the open expressions of so many nonofficial American speakers, and editors, but researchers seem unable to find it.

For example, the various moves which have been made in defiance of neutrality, moves which very obviously have the approval of a considerable majority—some of the polls estimate it as more than 60 per cent-of the American people, ARMAMENT EXPANSION Armament manufacturers who undertake plant expansion without government amortization are exposing themselves to great risks, according to Carter Field. Peace in Europe, followed by a demand for disarmament, would bring them ruin, he points out. Field believes that America's foreign policy is unparalleled in history. Experts in Washington believe that German war claims should be discounted.

and yet which run absolutely counter to the supposed desire of a very large majority of the people to keep out of war. Putting it bluntly, and undiplomatically, it would appear that nothing this country may do is likely either to get it into the war or keep it out. That decision, it would appear from all the known facts, will be made for us, not by us. It will be made by Adolf Hitler. To put it another way, this country has already done so many things obviously hostile to Germany, and designed to aid her enemies, that if there were any purpose to be served, Hitler might feel himself justified in declaring war against the United

On the other hand, Denmark, Norway, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg never did the slightest thing to irritate the Germans, yet they were crushed without warning and in violation of the most solemn treay promises. So it would seem that Hitler decides what countries he will fight. The other countries either fight or do not fight, as he determines.

Unneutral Acts Have Approval of Majority

All of which would seem to make the arguments of the isolationists rather technical. We are committing acts which in other times would be branded as acts of war. For example, the original idea of a "neutrality patrol," which justified the recommissioning of the World war destroyers. For example, the repeal of the arms embargo while a war was actually in progress. For example, the more recent virtual alliance with Canada, which is at war with Germany.

And this is topped off with the delivery to the British of the 50 destroyers, with guns and ammunition aboard, which has long been predicted in these dispatches. Consider also the fact that a joint British and American committee will select the precise sites for the new military and air bases in British

And all this in the midst of a presidential campaign, with the candidates of both major parties actually approving the results accomplished—even if the opposition objects to the manner in which they are done-and with minorities in both parties very unhappy, but unable politically to do anything. German War Claims

Require Discounting

Nearly every news commentator is constantly telling the public that ere is no way of being sure what is happening in Europe behind the veil of censorship. Naturally there is no denying the truth of this frequently repeated statement, but there are certain things which simply MUST be so.

The main point is, as this is written, that the Nazis have not yet conquered Britain. No censorship could hide that, if it were already an accomplished fact. It is a matter of simple arithmetic, now that so much time has elapsed since the heavy air fighting over Britain began, that the German claims simply could not have been anything like accurate because their exaggeration is obvious.

This does not mean that the British are winning. Certainly the British censorship prevents our getting an accurate picture of that. For example, it may well be that the Nazi bombing of Britain is succeeding in destroying British airplane and munitions works. We do not know. We only know that the British contend that so far the bombings have not accomplished anything in slowing down the British war production.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the house of commons several weeks ago that British airplane production, plus what they were bringing in, was now equal to German airplane production. He did not deny that the Germans still had great superiority in number of fighting and bombing planes, but predicted that this superiority would decline from then on.

This of course will depend on several factors. One is whether the German raiders are able to destroy British airplane plants. Another is whether submarines, mines and German planes can curb British imports

As long as the British can keep on fighting in the air, it is obvious that the Germans are not accomplishing their real objective.

Just recently there was a remarkable story from Britain. American newspaper men, from the cliffs in the vicinity of Dover, saw and reported an attack by British bombing planes on German gun emplacements between Boulogne and Calais. The amazing part of this story is that the German guns ceased firing, apparently so as not to have their flashes make targets for the British bombers, and resumed firing when the British planes left.

A little study of that picture will make one very dubious indeed about the German claims to date!

OF ALL the highspots in a college | dresses are made reversible and charged with thrills and moments of of the wearer your garment is a excitement as the mad, merry quest for back-to-school "clothes" that re- will. Hoods are convertible into colcurs each fall of the year!

The college girl's what-to-wear problem certainly received the perfect answer recently in a preview of fashions presented in a series of style clinics held in the great, known far-and-wide Merchandise Mart of Chicago where gather semi-annually hundreds of merchants who are ever on the alert to sense fashion trends in advance. The two coats illustrated herewith were particularly stressed as types style-ambitious co-eds are sure to favor.

You can tell at a glance the message of the model to the right. Yes, t's most assuredly spotted fur! Leopard and ocelot and fur of kindred type will fairly stampede the spectator sport grandstand when the football season is on. It is a youthful fur and it's going to be the "rage" this season. In the picture it trims a zipper coat in olive green. The bag problem is solved with a muff bag of the ocelot worked with the self-wool that fashions the coat.

Fashion scouts looking for the ideal black coat this season will hail the model to the left as a real "find." It has a zipper fastening. You'll love the big pockets bound with Persian lamb (very smart again this season) and the hood is detachable, may be worn as a collar. Black is tremendously smart this season; keep this in mind when you go to look up new coats.

With almost uncanny wizardry designers are designing such ingenious contrivances as linings that zip in and out of coats in the twinkling of an eye, jackets, coats, and even

It behooves every college girl to seek out fashion's "latest improvements" for it means economy in dress as well as being first in your set to proudly flaunt the "new."

Just a word about the little penand-ink sketches in the background of our illustration. They are items gleaned from the aforesaid style preview that will "put you wise" as to a few of the fashion highlights that will enliven your college career. Mentioning them briefly, there's the American jeweled flag pin at the top to the left that tells of the wide-spread vogue for patriotic jewelry. Wear it on your lapel. And the cunning fringed shawl of green jersey with hat to match. See it centered to the left? It's adorable. Below note the many-strand necklace bracelet of large pearls. It's the latest. The sketch at the center top tells you that huge fur pockets on coats are tres chic. A triangle or square babushka head kerchief of multi-colored gleaming rayon satin worn peasant style you must have. You will not be able to resist a brush wool sweater with lacy crocheted hood as shown below to right. Two-Piece Dress Looks Like a Suit

One of the most successful fashions for early fall is the two-piece dress that looks like a suit. You will see the smartest models with the new two-piece look developed in wool, in satin and in velveteen this fall. This type dress makes you look thin, for there is absolutely no bulkiness round the waistline. Thus the long-torso line is accentuated. In some instances skirts are seamed on to the new longer-length jackets, which actually gives impression of a two-piece. Often large flap pockets are added, the newest idea being for pockets made of flat

The vogue for patriotic themes extends to every phase of fashion. The new star pattern prints are very attractive. Red, white and blue checked taffeta is being made up into children's dresses. ners are making hat and bag sets of red, white and blue jersey.

Pinafore styles meant for play and sports occasions have lost none of their demurely decorative features. Many of them have lace edges on their pockets, collars and cuffs. "Wiser!" Debby's voice rose again to an hysterical pitch. She whirled from her mother to face John, standing grave and silent in the doorway. "You know why she won't let me

"Go to your room, Debby." John's voice, cutting through her hysterical outburst, silenced Debby. She went past him out of the room, her head drooping again, her defiance crumpling beneath his stern, uncompromising expression. Sarah followed. The door closed.

CHAPTER XIV

"What is it, Mother?" John threw off his coat and walked to the "What started this? What hearth. is it all about?"

"I don't think we need to discuss it." Ann Houghton resumed her knitting. During the interval of silence which had followed the closing of the door, she had regained her composure. Her hands manipulated the amber needles steadily. Only the dull red flush that burned in her cheeks betrayed any inward agitation.

"I don't agree with you." John stood with his back to the fire, his glance turning from his mother to Gay, then back again to Ann Hough-"I find Debby in hysterics Sarah crying, you and Gay obviously distressed. I should like to know, if you please, exactly what has happened.

Gay's hands tightened on the back of the chair behind which she stood. "It was my fault," she said. "I invited Debby to go back to New York with me."

"And you don't want her to go?" John's eyes, grave and concerned, turned again from Gay to his moth-

"Why do you object, Mother?"
Ann Houghton regarded her son with a studied deliberation which chilled Gay's sympathy, aroused her antagonism. As deeply as memories of her own turbulent adolescence had moved her to sympathy for Debby, she had pitied John's mother, too. Now, watching her manner with John, its effect upon him, pity crystallized into resentment. Debby's accusations had held a measure, at least, of truth. If she had not seen Ann Houghton's gesture in John's room this morning, if she had not had that revealing glimpse of the possessive passion which burned beneath her controlled and reasonable manner with her children, she might now be convinced that only wisdom motivated the decision she had made. But she had seen. She knew-

"You know how difficult Debby has been," Ann Houghton replied her eyes holding John's troubled glance. "This year, especially. She's just beginning to show a real interest in the courses she's taking at the high school. I'm sure it would be unwise to allow her to make a break now."

'Perhaps you're right," John said

"I offered to have her tutored in the courses she's taking," Gay said, "or send her to a business school. It's quite probable that she might make more rapid progress with a tutor than in a class at the high school here."

She had not meant to give an impression of patronage. But that, she saw, was the effect of her words | upon Ann Houghton, upon John. "That's very generous, Gay," John's mother said, "but quite un-

John gave a short laugh. "You aren't going to assume full responsibility for all of us, are you?" he asked. "I think we can leave Debby's education to Mother."

"I wasn't thinking of Debby's education," she said lightly. "I thought she would enjoy a visit in New York and that I would enjoy having her there. My motives, as usual, I'm afraid, were almost entirely selfish."

John looked at her, then, questionngly, pleadingly. She smiled and is face cleared.

"She would enjoy it," he said. "She's always been crazy about you. The idea of you before she met you. I suppose, now, after these past three days, she's your slave." He turned to his mother. "Let her go with Gay, Mother. She isn't doing much here."

The distance between them narrowed. Gay's spirits lifted. It was as though he had come to stand beside her and taken her hand in his.

"I don't feel that it would be wise, John," Ann Houghton said reasonably, quietly. "Debby is impressionable and immature. It would be mistaken kindness, if you'll permit me to express myself frankly, Gay, to give her, at this time, a taste of something she can't have permanently. I'm afraid she would be more discontented than ever when she returned.

"Good Lord, Mother." John's voice held a note of irritation. "Nobody wants to eat fruit cake for every meal, but it's pleasant once in a while."

Ann Houghton smiled faintly. "I think that sort of fruit cake, just now," she said, "would be very bad for Debby. With this notion she has of singing on a radio program or in some place of entertainment, I'm afraid that being in New York with Gay would turn her head completely. "I shouldn't allow her to do anything of which you would disapprove, Mrs. Houghton.'

"I don't question that, but your life is so different from our life here. I'm afraid that the contrast-" "You know Debby is a chameleon, Mother. She adapts herself easily to any environment." "That's just why I don't-" she broke off, glanced quickly at John, at Gay. "I'm not presuming to criticize your mode of living, Gay, but I'm convinced that for Debby just at this time- If it were Sarah, that would be a different matter.' She folded her knitting into the bag. "I shouldn't think you would want her for a visit after the scene you've just witnessed. I feel that she, that I, owe you an apology.'

"No, please, Mrs. Houghton, She was terribly disappointed. It was my fault. I should have consulted you. It's all right. I understand how you feel, but I'm disappointed

John made a restless movement on the hearth. "Then it's settled, isn't it? Debby doesn't go back to New York with Gay. Now may we talk of something else? Food, for instance. I'm starved. Did Huldah make chocolate doughnuts? Come out to the kitchen with me, Gay."

Ann Houghton rose from her chair. "If you please, John, I'd like you to go to Debby with me."
"Oh, let her alone. You know how she is when she's had a tantrum. Don't play up to her and she'll get over it."

"I don't think she's well. She's not been herself these past few "You'll turn her into a neurotic if you don't stop coddling her." "Debby is sensitive in a way which I think I understand better than you."

John turned to Gay in smiling exasperation. "What was the use of my spending four years in medical school and two years interning when mother, by instinct, knows more than I do about my profes-

Again a faint chilling smile touched Ann Houghton's lips.

"I should like you to go with me, ohn," she repeated. "Debby is John," she repeated. "Debby is nervously excited. She'll probably need a sedative to put her to sleep. The doughnuts will wait, and Gay will excuse you for a few minutes, I'm sure.

"Certainly, Mrs. Houghton."
"Back in a minute, Gay." John's eyes were pleading. His smile was

"Good-night, Mrs. Houghton." John went out of the room with his mother. The door closed. Gay stood leaning against the back of the chair, staring into the fire.

Gay did not turn when the door opened. She remained seated in the chair beside the hearth, looking up at the painting above the mantel. "Were you asleep?" John asked, as we are concerned. But your mother is. She doesn't want Debby to go to New York with me because she's afraid of me, of the things I can do for her. She wants to be everything to all of you." "That's natural, isn't it?"

"Natural, perhaps, but selfish. Yes, selfish, John. Can't you see?' "If you knew what Mother's life has been. Her every thought has been for us."

"It would have been better for her, for you, if she had to plan for us, Gay. There wasn't much money. You can't understand, I suppose.' "No, frankly, I can't."

"That's because you have the protection of wealth," he said stiffly. "Oh, money! Because my grandfathers left a trust fund for me, we bicker and quarrel." Antagonism sharpened her voice, a sense of the distance widening between them. "You attach too much importance to what I have-"

"It isn't because you have it now," he said slowly, with measured deliberation. "It's because you've always had it. From the hour you were born every thought you've had, every move you've made, has been colored and shaped by the fact that both your grandfathers were wealthy men. Your mother—"

"How absurd we are!" She gave a short strained laugh. "In New York we quarreled because my mother did not display a properly maternal attitude. Now we quarrel because your mother is a model of maternal devotion. Oh, is it important, John?"

"We are each of us the product of our separate environments," he said carefully, thoughtfully. "You had nurses and governesses. You were sent to camps, to schools, to the sea-shore in summer, to dancing class. For your birthdays magicians were hired to entertain you and your guests. When you were sick there were nurses. Mother did everything for us. When we were sick, she couldn't afford to engage a trained nurse. There was no money for elaborate toys, amusement, entertaining. Mother made fun for us at home. She scrimped and saved to send me to college, to send Sarah. She managed it in ways you couldn't understand, hamburger instead of steak, never quite enough heat in the house, dried vegetables instead of fresh ones in winter, Sarah's dresses made over for Debby—" (TO BE CONTINUED)

This 1940 Campaign May Seem Exciting But It's Pretty Tame Compared to the Riotous Harrison-Van Buren Race in 1840

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON (Released by Western Newspaper Union.) 7ITH two such colorful personalities as President Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie as opposing candidates and the third term issue supplying material for heated debate, this year's campaign promises to become one of the hottest presidential contests in recent years. But it is doubtful if it will be as exacting as the one which stirred America 100 years ago when Martin Van Buren was the Democratic nominee and Gen. William Henry Harrison was the champion of the Whigs. Although the campaigns of 1840 and 1940 are a full century apart, they offer some interesting parallels. In both cases there has been a crossing of party lines in in the selection of presidential or vice presidential candidates. In 1840 Harrison's running mate on the Whig ticket was John Tyler, a Democrat. In 1940 the Democratic vice presidential nominee is a former Republican and the Republican candidate for President is a former Democrat.

In 1840 the Democrats, who had been in power for 12 years, were trying to keep a President in the White House for another four years. Opposed to them was a young, vigorous party which had been defeated four years earlier. In 1940 the Democrats, who have been in power for eight years, are trying to extend that period to 12 years under the same leader. Pitted against them is a rejuvenated Republican party, striving to stage a comeback after two successive defeats.

A 'Packed' Convention. For a proper understanding of the tumultuous 1840 campaign it is necessary to go back to the 1836 presidential race. Before the end of his second term President Andrew Jackson had determined to make Vice President

MARTIN VAN BUREN

Martin Van Buren his successor in the White House. So "Old Hickory" arranged to have a nominating convention held a year and a half before the election. By "packing" this convention, which was held in Baltimore in May, 1835, with delegates which he controlled, Jackson dictated the nomination of Van Buren for President and Richard M. Johnson of Kentucky for vice president despite the opposition of the southern wing of the party. This wing bolted the party and nominated Sen. Hugh L. White of Tennessee for President and John Tyler of Virginia for vice presi-Despite this defection in the party ranks, Van Buren and Johnson managed to win the election of 1836 because the Whigs were also split. They had nominated Gen. William Henry Harrison of Ohio for President and Francis Granger for vice president, but there was another Whig ticket in the field headed by Daniel Webster of Massachusetts for President and the same vice presidential nominee, Francis Granger.

In the election Van Buren carried 15 states and received 170 electoral votes, enough to win for him over Harrison's 73 electoral votes, Webster's 14, White's 26, and the 11 of South Carolina which went to Willis P. Mangum of North Carolina.

An Unhappy Administration. Van Buren's administration was an unhappy one. He inherited all of the difficulties growing out of Jackson's financial policies. Then came the panic of 1837 which resulted from a boom period caused by the craze for internal improvements. Despite these troubles and a growing dissension within the Democratic party, Van Buren managed to win the nomination for re-election in 1840. The Whigs again nominated Harrison and, in an attempt to attract the dissatisfied Democrats to their banner, they chose for Harrison's running mate the Democrat John Tyler. Harrison's military record was his chief recommendation as a presidential candidate. The son of Benjamin Harrison of Virginia, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, he had joined the army as an ensign at the age of 19, and had served against the Indians in Ohio under St. Clair and Wayne. In 1795 he was promoted to captain and placed in command of Fort Washington on the present site of Cincinnati. Two years later he resigned his commission and was appointed secretary of the Northwest Territory from which in 1790 he was chosen a delegate to congress. When the territory was divided in 1801 he was made governor of the new Territory of Indiana and in that position won the victory over the Indians which gave him the sobriquet of "Old Tippecanoe."

At the outbreak of the War of 1812 he was appointed brigadier general, placed in command of the Northwest frontier and defeated the British and Indians at the Battle of the Thames at which the famous Shawnee chief, Tecumseh, was killed. Promoted to the rank of major-general, he resigned from the army in 1816 when he was elected to congress from Ohio. After serving three years in congress, he was elected a state senator in 1819 and five vears later he was sent to the United States senate. In 1828 he was appointed minister to Colombia but he was recalled when Jackson became President.

A Candidate Minus a Platform. In nominating Harrison for President in 1840 the Whigs failed to provide him with any platform of party principles for the very good reason that they had none except that of wanting to be in power. But, as it turned out, they didn't need a platform.

Despite the fact that there was great dissatisfaction with Van Buren's administration, largely due to the depression which followed the panic of 1837 and a growing feeling that Van Buren had become "too aristocratic" for the common people, the Democrats might easily have won the election. They were the party in power, had all the resources of patronage and their leader was known as the "Little Magician," a tribute to his astuteness as a politician

But Van Buren's followers made several very bad political blunders and the Whigs were quick to take advantage of them. One of the Whig newspapers, which was not very enthusiastic about the party's candidate, printed the statement that "give him a barrel of hard cider and a pension of $2,000 a year and, our word for it, he will sit the remainder of his days in a log cabin by the side of a 'sea coal' fire and study mor-

Candidate of the 'Plain People.' Despite the fact that Harrison lived as a well-to-do country gentleman at his home, North Bend, in Ohio, the Whigs industriously cultivated the idea that he lived in a log cabin, toiled in the fields as a simple farmer and was indeed one of the "plain people." In contrast to his simplicity was the palatial luxury in which the aristocratic Van Buren was said to be living at the White House.

Whig orators denounced the Democratic candidate's extravagance. They declared he was "maintaining a royal establishment at the cost of the nation. Will the people feel inclined to support their chief servant in a palace as splendid as that of the Caesars and as richly adorned as the proudest Asiatic mansion?"

Instead of defending their candidate from such exaggerated charges as this, the Democrats added fuel to the flame by the names they called Harrison—"a super-annuated old woman," "a pitiable dotard," "a granny," "a red-petticoat general," and "the hero of forty defeats." All of this, plus the Whigs depicting him as a great military hero and a simple farmer, served to endear Harespecially the farmers and backwoodsmen.

The alliterative "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too!" became their favorite slogan and when they weren't shouting that, they were chanting "Van, Van is a used-up man!" or "With Tip and Tyler, We'll Bust Van's Biler!"

A Stirring Symbol.

Not only did the Whigs have such effective slogans as those quoted above but they also had a striking symbol for their cause.

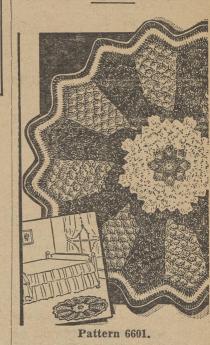

W. H. Harrison

They mounted log cabins on wheels and drew them through the streets with teams of white horses. At their rallies hard cider was freely dispensed-in fact, the campaign of 1840 has come down in history as the "Log Cabin-Hard Cider Campaign."

Never before—and never since -had there been such a noisy campaign and one so completely dominated by emotion. And so William Henry Harrison was borne into the White House on this flood of ballyhoo (even though that word hadn't yet been coined). But it was a hollow victory for the Whigs. Within a month after Harrison's inauguration, he died-and John Tyler, the Democrat, became President. Throughout his administration he quarreled with the leaders of the party that had elected him. So four years later they turned at last to Henry Clay but he was defeated by James K. Polk, the Democratic nominee, and the first "dark horse" in American polit-

Simplicity is the keynote of the Sunday night supper. That is why the "meal-on-the-tray" has become so popular.

Plan your Sunday supper around one central dish. It may be a salad, a creamed dish served on toast, or even a casserole dish. Here is a favorite supper menu for warm fall evenings which easily

Making Use of an Old Railroad Station

What would you say if your husband came home with the news that he'd bought the railroad station! You'd probably think he lost his mind-once you saw he wasn't kidding-and make remarks plenty.

A friend of ours did anyway when the news really soaked in. But in the end she was as enthusiastic about the purchase as was the man of the family. It was a typical little old time railroad station in a small town. The railroad track was "Did you ever do any public washed away one stormy day and speaking?" asked the man in the the officials decided not to repair it since the busses were providing the town with adequate transportation. That left the old station to go to the highest bidder, and our friend's husband was he. He moved the station to his backyard, gave it a fresh coat of some old yellow station paint, kept the sign nailed on and added some of those staunch station seats out in and joy of the whole family. front. But for goodness sakes,

The lunch counter made a fine refreshment bar while the ticket windows were converted into a marionette stage, this being a hobby of a young daughter of the family. The big old station stove was kept on duty for use in winter.

The erstwhile baggage room served as a spacious garage and tool room while the station agent's office made a grand office for the man in the case with plenty of space for his special junk and all those masculine treasures that just couldn't fit into a lady's ideas about decoration.

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Whether Benedict Crowell is a good prophet or not may yet be revealed. Mr. Crowell, assistant secretary of war in Experiences of the World war, has been ant on defense, by Secretary Stimson. Addressing the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia, July 11, 1931, Mr. Crowell said:

"Should a great war ever again engulf our country, American manufacturers, including the new industrialism of the South, as well as the older industrialisms of the North and East, without waste of time, material or priceless human lives, will perform their essential function of munitions supply . . . our national security is on a sound foundation."

Mr. Crowell, who was a consulting engineer before he became a Cleveland banker and industrialist, is a brigadier general in the ordnance reserve. His specialty, as assistant secretary of war, was in organizing our munitions industries for the war effort.

He was widely praised for his efficiency in this and gained fame as the most ruthless cutter of red-tape in the army high command. This may have something to do with his selection as defense consultant at this moment. Yale university, his alma mater, recognized the above service by giving him an honorary master of arts degree in

A native of Cleveland, 71 years old, Mr. Crowell began his business career as a chemist with the Otis Steel company. He rose in executive positions and at the same time gained technical qualifications which made him a metallurgist and consulting engineer.

He is the author of several books, including a six-volume series called "America Went to War," of which Robert Forrest Wilson was co-author. One of these volumes is entitled "The Armies of Industry," singularly pertinent to problems and backgrounds of our present national French Prophet France. He described the Of Doom Accepts debacle quite Conquest Foretold accurately, but put the date at 1943 instead of 1940. Today, the author accepts the conquest, which he tragically described and makes common cause with the conquerors. He denounces General De Gaulle and his followers as the hirelings of England.

In present and future clinical research into the fall of France and its causes, M. Marguerritte's lament and prophecy, as of 1925, will be interesting. After describing the alliance of French politicians with "Prussian and Bavarian junkers," and the subsequent collapse and conquest, he says:

"And then we shall be reaping what we have sown. It will be the result of our policy of attempting the semblance of grandeur-stupid because it is not warranted by our power, nor by our national wealth, nor by our trickling birth-rate, nor by our exhausted finances."

Years of self-indulgence, mad pleasure-seeking, the softening of moral fiber and the ebbing of national vitality, he said, would precede the final destruction of the French nation. The League of Nations, he predicted, would be a ghastly failure.

M. Marguerritte is the son of a famous French general of the Franco-Prussian war. In his study were medals and memorials of his father's war service. He is a stalwart man, tall and straight with abundant pompadoured hair and a Van Dyke beard.

He was a member of the Legion of Honor and honorary president of the French Society of Men of Let-Poincare, no defeatist, had urged his Legion of Honor decoration. This and all his other honors were stripped from him when he published an offending book, "La

THE exact purposes of the Nazi government of France in sending to this country the financial expert, Lacour-Gayet, have not yet been disclosed, but there have been hints that his job will be to pry loose the $1,000,000,000 of French credits frozen by governmental order. M. Lacour-Gayet has a wide acquaintance among American financiers, and had been for the six years preceding 1930 the financial attache of the French embassy at Washington. He has been regarded as one of the most astute of French financiers.

THE WAR BY RADIO

Well, I have been following the war almost a year now by listening make out is that it is a gigantic struggle between the breakfast food, nickel cigar, hair tonic, railroad watch, ice cream, salad oil, savings bank and soap interests.

I thought it was a fight between philosophies and systems, but what I mean is that you could never prove it to me by what comes out of my radio set. I have spent the whole of 1940 listening to the radio war news, and as the situation now stands the Nazis are better off in coconut-covered confectionery and part-Havana-leaf stogies, while the democracies are ahead in point on scalp oils, stop watches and the breakfast food that has four vitamins, from what I can grasp.

You wrote me that your radio has been on the bum and would I tell you what has been going on, so I am glad to give you my impression. Last night I hear that the Greek dictator, some fellow named Bounds, has had a conference with three Turkish leaders rich in proteins, headed by Meatena, over the sinking of a couple of Greek ships named Vim and Vigor. It looks like Greece may be taken over and divided between the Tastee Gum Drop alliance and the Open a Checking Account With Us for Any Sum From a Dollar Up bunch.

There is not much new from Africa. Mussolini has took Fruity Bars, Blue Owl and Fair Humor by direct assault, but the British are holding onto the Smoothier and Glossier Hair Area, and Berlin is remaining aloof. I don't know whether it is aloof of white or rye. The thing to watch is whether the British lose the Pure and Delicious Suez canal, which is rich in those qualities what gives you energy and ambition and a clear complexion, on sale at all leading drug stores, but pretty vulnerable from the air.

I don't seem to make much out of the situation in France. Petain, the marshal with that rich, creamy quality, has named a court to try six Frenchmen and a whopping stick of chocolate that comes in three sizes. The French government would like to leave Vichy and the watch that is the official timepiece of 11 railroads and move back to Paris and the soup that comes in 11 flavors at 10 cents a can. I don't know what will come of it all on account of I use a dollar watch and do not care for soup except vegetable, home made.

Personally, I think the situation is very confused and that no good will come of it for us, no matter what we smoke or eat, but I think congress should top stalling and pass a conscription law which has at least Vitamin C in it. I also favor letting England have 50 fullflavored destroyers and a case of Meatena in return for Bermuda, a year's supply of Dr. Whoziss's Tooth Powder and any good peachnut ice cream church the altar guild has a cupboard for linens and hangings. This cupboard has shallow drawers with doors in front. We find dampness and mold in the two lower drawers. What can we do to make the drawers dry?

Answer: That dampness comes up through the floor and through the two walls backing the cupboard. One method would be to move the cupboard away from the walls by at least two inches, and to raise it on blocks so that there will be a circulation of air behind and under it. In addition, the under part of the cupboard, the back and the one side toward the wall should be covered with waterproof felt tacked on. It will not do to lay the felt on the floor or attach it to the wall, for dampness that comes through should evaporate; if it remains in the floor and wall there might be trouble.

Door Through Cement Block Wall. Question: In changing the entrance to a basement apartment, we would have to go through a wall of cement blocks. How can the blocks be cut? Would this be an enormous expense?

Answer: As cement blocks are hollow, cutting is not a difficult or expensive process. It can be done with a cold chisel and hammer, but the quickest and easiest way is with an electric chisel. A mason contractor will have this tool, and would do the job at no great cost. Your very first move should be to set a heavy timber in the wall to form the upper edge of the opening that will be cut, to take the weight of the wall above it when the wall below has been removed.

Moisture-Proof Wall Finish. Question: Walls of our bathroom and kitchen are painted. Would there be any advantage in using wall-cloth? Answer: Wall-cloth is actually a light form of canvas finished with oil paints, and in its best form is waterproof and washable. It can be had in wallpaper patterns, and in appearance cannot be distinguished from wallpaper. When properly hung, the walls are resistant to moisture and can be washed. Grease that is always present in kitchen air will not penetrate and can be washed off. The additional advanchipping.

Answer: That leakage is due to faulty putty, the putty having drawn away from the wood to leave a fine hair-line crack. This can be closed by painting, although if the putty shows signs of general cracking and After taking off the old putty, the wood should be given a coat of paint to prevent oil in the new putty from being absorbed. Ordinary putty can be improved by adding one-fifth as much white lead paste.

New Roof Over Old. Question: I am told that new shingles can be laid over an old shingle roof; that the old roof makes good insulation. What is your opinion of

Answer: Laying a new shingle roof over an old roof is an excellent plan. The double thick roof gives good insulation and the roof is stiffened. Also, you are saved the cost of tearing off the old shingles and clearing up the mess. Dry rot in the old roof will die out and become harmless. Full instructions for doing the job can be obtained from the Red Cedar Shingle bureau, Chi-

Oil-Stained Cement. Question: Can you recommend something to dry up a cement floor in the cellar which has been stained Answer: Cover new stains for several days with an inch or two of dry portland cement. Dry hydrated lime is also effective. For old stains wash with a solution of two pounds of trisodium phosphate to the gallon of hot water. Rinse with plenty of clear water.

Limed Teakettle. Question: How can encrusted lime be removed from the inside of a copper teakettle? Answer: Fill the kettle with a mixture of cider vinegar and water in the proportion of one cupful to the quart; bring to a boil and let stand all night. Another method is to mash several raw potatoes, to put into the kettle for overnight. and then to add a little water and bring to a boil. Hard Water Drip.

Question: The drip of hard water has formed a rough coating on my wash basins. What will remove it? Answer: You can take that off with sandpaper or fine steel wool, but must be careful not to dull the gloss of the enamel, which can not be renewed. Rub very lightly and go at the job slowly. Size Before Painting.

An excellent way to size plaster walls before applying paint is to mix in one pint of linseed oil to the gallon of paint that you are going to use, and put that on as the first coat. Brush it in well and allow time for thorough drying.

Insulating a Porch Floor. Question: Please tell me the best insulation and waterproofing to put under an unexcavated porch floor. Will digging out a foot or two help keep the porch warmer?
Answer: A form of shredded wood fiber blanket with a waterproof paper covering, placed between the floor joists is satisfactory. You can also use rock wool batts, (pads), the kind made with a waterproof paper on one side. A deeper space under the porch may improve ventilation, but it will not make the porch floor warmer.

Trick of Reclaiming The Discarded Chair

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THERE were two of these old bent-wood chairs — both with cane seats gone and a badly scarred varnish finish. "Get them out of my sight!" their owner said, "I can't stand the thought of wood bent and forced into unnatural curves." In the end she did get them out of sight and used them too. The trick was done with slip covers made, as shown

The one you see in the sketch became a side chair for the living room dressed in richly colored cretonne in soft red and bluegreen tones with deep wine bindings. The legs of the chair were sandpapered and stained mahogany to tone in with the cover. The cane seat was inexpensively repaired with a ready made seat of plywood reshaped to fit by first cutting a paper pattern to fit the seat of the chair and then using the pattern as a guide as indicated here. Next week I will show you how the other one of these old chairs was used.
