

ROTARY CLUB'S LADIES' NIGHT IS A HUGE SUCCESS

Dr. Alexander Cairns, in His Eleventh Address in Harrington, Thrills Large Audience

TWO HUNDRED IN ATTENDANCE

Rotarians and their wives, about 200 hundred in all, sat enthralled in Firemen's Hall Tuesday night as that irrepressible Irishman, Dr. Alexander Cairns, speaking with the rapidity of a gatling gun, served a blend of philosophy, eloquence and bubbling humor.

In his timely talk, he compared past crises in the world's history with the crisis existing today.

He traced the rise and fall of the dictators—Alexander the Great, Napoleon, Caesar—and the latest misguided maniac to make the bid for a place in the sun, Adolph Hitler.

Each dictator, said Dr. Cairns, ruled for a brief period, conquered other nations—and then collapsed, the conquered nations returning to their original form.

Napoleon was an ardent coward. Despite his reputation as the world's greatest military figure, he deserted 60,000 boys under the age of 18, members of his own army, and left them to die on his retreat from Moscow. Hitler, too, is a coward, and his reign will be short.

At the end of his address, his eleventh in Harrington, the audience gave him an ovation.

Dr. Harry Holloway, State Superintendent of Education, and E. Paul Burkholder were the other speakers. They were in excellent form, and would have starred on any program—anywhere.

Miss Irene Ford, accompanied by Melvin Brost, made a decided hit with two violin solos.

J. C. Messner had charge of the singing. The invocation was offered by Rev. Robert E. Green, the benediction by Rev. Thos. C. Jones.

Wilbur E. Jacobs, president of the Harrington Rotary Club, presided.

Visiting clubs were Denton, Dover, Milford, Federalsburg, Laurel, Georgetown, Smyrna. Denton sent fifty people to the banquet.

STATE OF DELAWARE OFFICE OF SECRETARY OF STATE CERTIFICATE OF DISSOLUTION

To All Whom These Presents May Come, Greeting: WHEREAS, it appears to my satisfaction by duly authenticated record of the proceedings of the voluntary dissolution thereof, by the consent of all the stockholders deposited in my office, the DOVERTEX CORPORATION a corporation of this State whose principal office is situated at No. 19-21 Dover Green, in the city of Dover, County of Kent, State of Delaware, United States Corporation Company being agent therein, and in charge thereof, upon whom process may be served, has complied with the requirements of the Corporation Laws of the State of Delaware, as contained in 2033. This community was saddened to hear of the serious accident to Odith Brown, who was struck by a truck while on his way to work. We hope for a speedy recovery.

LIBERALS IN KENT WIN BALLOT PLACE

The Liberal Democratic state and county tickets will appear on the ballot to be voted at the election on Nov. 5 as a consequence of a formal opinion given in Superior Court at Dover Thursday by Judge Charles L. Terry, Jr.

The decision ordered issuance of a peremptory writ of mandamus directing Clerk of the Peace John C. Slaughter, who had rejected the tickets, to include the third party slates on the ballots.

The proceedings were instituted by Eugene H. Shallcross, state chairman, and Richard E. Norris, Kent County chairman, who were represented by Ivan Culbertson, nominee for governor. Howard E. Lynch, Jr., representing Mr. Slaughter.

Judge Terry held that the list of 570 names filed by the party with its tickets was surplusage and did not come within the meaning of Section 1810 of the election laws. The petitioners contended that the list was not filed in compliance with Section 1810, but was filed "for the sole reason of being of assistance to the clerk of the peace."

"If no demand was made by the clerk of the peace for the filing of a certificate under Section 1810, and a certificate was, in fact, filed which did not meet the requirements of 1810, such certificate would have to be considered surplusage for the simple reason that there was no duty to file such a certificate until a demand had been made by the clerk of the peace, and, at the time the certificate was filed, clearly, from the evidence, no demand had been made and the filing of a certificate, under such circumstances if it be not in proper form, would not as a matter of law, relieve the clerk of the peace from the duty, if he questioned the number of members of the party, to demand a certificate in proper form under Section 1810," Judge Terry said.

On the charge of Mr. Lynch that the county convention was not legally called, Judge Terry said:

"No law has been offered, nor is the court able to find any statute or decision that holds that such a meeting of men for the purpose of holding a convention was not in proper form and within the legal limits of our law pertaining to the organization of a political party."

DAIRY HERD RECORDS

According to the September report of the Kent County Dairy Herd Improvement Association, which has mailed from the office of County Agent Russell E. Wilson to each member of this organization, the average production per cow for the past month was 636 pounds of milk and 26.3 lbs. of butterfat.

Of the 192 cows which were on official test during September, there were 51 cows that produced over 800 pounds of milk each, and 16 cows which produced in excess of 40 lbs. of butterfat each, which is a reasonably good record for this season of the year when pastures are short due to weather conditions. One important factor which will be stressed by the extension service during the coming year, therefore, is more and better pasture and hay crops for dairy cattle, and this program will include also the greater use of home-grown feeds in dairy rations for more economical milk production.

In order to bring this question of home-grown feeds to the attention of dairy farmers, a committee of interested dairymen will be selected in the county to cooperate with the county agent in planning this project. Assistance in this work will be given by Kenneth W. Baker, farm management specialist of the Delaware extension service, and plans will be discussed with reference to securing a number of dairy farmers who will serve as cooperators in this project during the next few years.

Information in regard to the advisable use of home-grown feeds will be mailed to these cooperating dairymen at timely intervals, and this group of milk producers thereby will be placed in contact with the extension service to receive all available information concerning the feeding and management of dairy herds. There is a possibility also that a county tour may be arranged sometime during the year to include some of the farms where special uses of these feeds have been made with profitable results.

Further information relative to this type of extension service for the benefit of dairy and livestock farmers will be published in the county newspapers, and in the meantime all milk producers and other livestock farmers are requested to give this matter serious consideration, and to contact the county extension office for more details as to the methods by which this project will be conducted. The Kent County Dairy Herd Improvement Association will cooperate with the Delaware extension service in this pasture and feeding program in which all dairy farmers will be asked to cooperate.

HALLOWE'EN MASQUERADE

A Hallowe'en masquerade party was enjoyed by the ladies of the Ever Ready Workers Class of Asbury Church when they held their regular meeting in the Collins Educational Building on Monday night.

In a guessing contest as to the identity of the masqueraders, Mrs. Clarence Barlow and Mrs. William Cain were the last ones to be identified.

Mrs. Florence Grier and committee arranged the program.

Hot Water Heater for sale; in perfect condition.—William Hermann, 224 Commerce street.

FELTON

At the meeting of the Avon Club last Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. D. A. Pety was appointed by the president, Mrs. Nelson M. Hammond, to take charge of arrangements for attendance of chairmen to the State-wide conference to be held in Wilmington Friday, October 25th. Mrs. Charles Lee Sipple introduced Mrs. George Ehringer, of the Dover Garden Club, who gave a most interesting talk on Flower Arrangement.

Mrs. E. C. Hardesty and son, Eugene, of Wilmington; Mrs. Roland Heister and Mrs. Allen Heister, of Philadelphia, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Bradley.

Oliver Simpler and Harry Short, of Wilmington, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Simpler. Barratt Simpler, of Media, was also a guest on Sunday.

Miss Marie Hurd, a nurse in Wilmington General Hospital, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hurd.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Morrow spent the week-end at the New York Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth H. East, of Dover, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. T. East Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurence E. Cain have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Harriet Goslee Cain, to Elmer Henbeck, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Henbeck, of Baltimore.

Miss Caroline Simpler has been chosen as one of 84 high school musicians who will comprise the Delaware All-State Band for its concert at P. S. duPont High School, Wilmington, on October 25th.

Plans are being made for organizing a ladies' auxiliary of the fire company. Two meetings have been held, a committee appointed to draw up a constitution and by-laws and the following temporary officers elected: President, Wanda Keller; vice-president, Mrs. C. M. Simpler; secretary, Mrs. Joseph Glackin; treasurer, Mrs. Clarence Bradley.

The members of Sarah Rebekah Lodge attended the installation of officers at the Rachel Rebekah Lodge in Harrington Wednesday evening.

CENTURY CLUB NOTES

The New Century Club was fortunate today in having the cooperation of our town school. Miss Joseph and Miss Paskey brought several of their pupils to the meeting. Billy Horleman and Arthur Darby sang two duets, "In a Little Dutch Garden" and "The Woodpecker Song." They were accompanied by Mrs. T. J. S. Warfield at the piano and John Butler on the clarinet. Then eleven of the pupils presented a skit entitled "Safety Sam," the highlight of which the illustrating of their theme with colorful posters made by the pupils themselves.

Merritt Tatman, of the high school demonstrated and explained the principles of spontaneous combustion.

Franklin Koontz and Charles Townsend showed us the reason for many of the explosions around gasoline stations and told the club how such accidents could be avoided.

Next we were taught a simple and inexpensive way to make a fire extinguisher by William Austin and George VonGoeres.

Refreshments were served by the committee, closing an exceptionally interesting and educational program.

EXTRA VOTES FOR EARLY EFFORT IN JOURNAL CONTEST

Subscriptions Will Count Much More Now Than at a Later Date

SPECIAL OFFER ENDS NOVEMBER 2

In order to assist all those who are in earnest effort to a good start in the Journal "Salesmanship Club" the following extra vote offer is made: $60,000 extra votes, in addition to the regular schedule printed on the receipt book covers, will be credited on each and every $30 worth of subscriptions turned in, from the beginning of the contest up until Saturday night, November 2. After this date subscriptions will count less votes and positively at no future time of the campaign will subscriptions count as many votes as they will during this period.

The prizes will be awarded at the end of the contest strictly upon a vote basis, and not necessarily upon the number of subscriptions or amount of money turned in. Therefore, it will be to each contestant's advantage to get in every possible subscription while they count the most votes.

Without a doubt the contestant who may be fortunate enough to have a good lead in votes by the end of this extra vote period will have a decided advantage to win first prize, as it would be hard for any competitor to overtake them after vote value has been reduced on subscriptions.

Each yearly subscription turned in during this extra vote period offer will count more votes than FOUR yearly subscriptions turned in the last week of the contest. Therefore, the importance of this banner vote period can easily be seen.

Too Late

A country doctor was also a keen shot. Often on his rounds he took his gun with him, in case he might get a shot at a rabbit or pigeon. One day, carrying his gun, he met a farmer, who eyed the gun and asked: "Who are you going to see, doctor?"

"Old Bert Hinkle, at Four Oaks farm."

"Well, you won't need the gun. Old Bert pegged out last night."

Found Out at Last
"Young man," said the old one, severely, "When I was your age, I, too, thought I knew all. Now I have reached the conclusion that I know very little."

"Great Scot!" exclaimed the lad in astonishment: "has it taken you this long to find that out? Why, I knew it the minute I saw you!"

He Wandered
Friend—I bought a copy of your book the other day.
Author—O, so it was you!

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH

"You are entitled to damages."
"But I've been damaged enough already, judge."

Take That!

The fussy dentist was examining the teeth of his patient and assumed an air of great wisdom.

"Have you had any advice before with regard to your teeth?"

"Yes. I called on a druggist last night."

"And what foolish advice did he give you?"

The exasperated patient exclaimed desperately:

"He told me to come to you."

Good Advice

Rosalie (very wealthy)—What advice can you give me? I'm so afraid the men care only for my money.

"Yes," answered Cactus Joe. "In the early enthusiasm we named our most popular night club after it."

HALLOWEEN PARTY SUGGESTIONS (See Recipes Below)

Household News
By Eleanor Howe

Halloween provides a good excuse for an unusual party. The theme you may select should be the basis around which the party is built. "Black Magic Party," "The Haunted House," "Buried Treasure Hunt," "The Witches' Rendezvous," "The Ghosts' Gambol" are all suggestive names for the party you may be planning for All Hallows' eve.

A Halloween party without decorations just isn't a party. They may be so simple that it takes very little time to put them up; pumpkins, cornstalks, and lighted jack-o'-lanterns. Or you may decorate with witches, owls, black and orange crepe paper streamers, black and gray crepe paper moss dripping from the ceilings, or ghosts standing in spooky corners with eerie lights thrown upon them.

The invitations should, of course, be indicative of the type of party you are giving.

"On Halloween the ghosts will dance, The gnomes and goblins will sing and prance; So don your masks and costumes gay, To the Haunted House be on your way.

The door will be open till the clock tolls eight, So take my advice and don't be late."

In keeping with Halloween we must not forget the traditional games and pranks. The chamber of horrors, with clanking chains, damp hands clutching the guests, and dark tunnels should put the guests into the spirit of the party. Bobbing for apples, fortune telling and guessing games are all old favorites. These suggestions may bring to your mind others that may be old-time Halloween games.

Orange Sauce.
1 tablespoon cornstarch mixed with 1 tablespoon cold water
5 tablespoons sugar
5 tablespoons hot water
5 tablespoons orange juice
½ teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon butter
Make a paste of the cornstarch and cold water. Add sugar and hot water and cook for 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Add fruit juices and butter.

Halloween Ice Cream Clowns.
Place a ball of ice cream on a butter cookie and use raisins, tiny pumpkin gumdrops or candied cherries to make the eyes, nose, and mouth in the ice cream. Place an ice cream cone upside down on the ice cream for a cap, and place a ruff of whipped cream on the cookie around the clown's neck.

Pumpkin Ice Cream.
(Makes 1 quart)
¾ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
Pinch of salt
1 cup coffee cream
2 egg yolks (beaten)
¾ cup pumpkin (canned)
½ teaspoon orange rind (grated)
½ cup pecan meats
½ cup whipping cream
Combine the sugar, cinnamon, ginger and salt. Mix well. Add the cream slowly and scald over boiling water. Mix beaten egg yolks and pumpkin, and add to the cream mixture with the orange rind. Return to heat, and cook for 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Chill, fold in the nutmeats and whipped cream, and pour into the freezing container of an ice cream freezer, filling it not more than ¾ full. Assemble and cover the freezer. Surround with a mixture of 3 parts of crushed ice to 1 part rock salt. Next turn the crank slowly and steadily until turning becomes difficult. When the mixture is frozen, carefully remove the dasher and pack down the cream with a spoon. Replace the cover, draw off the water, and replenish the ice and salt. Let stand for an hour.

Orange Date Cake.
½ cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg (well beaten)
1 cup sour milk
2 cups cake flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup dates
1 whole orange
Cream shortening, add brown sugar slowly, and beat well. Add beaten egg and sour milk.

Mix and sift flour, soda, baking powder, and salt. Grind dates and orange together through food chopper and add alternately with the sifted dry ingredients. Bake in a loaf pan in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 50 minutes.

Goblin's Dessert.
(Serves 4 to 5)
2 eggs (separated)
7 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon butter (melted)
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup orange juice
1½ cups stale bread (cut in pieces)
Beat egg yolks until very light, and gradually beat in the sugar. Add butter, salt and orange juice. Pour over the cubed bread. Beat egg whites until stiff, and fold into the first mixture.

Pour into buttered baking dish and bake in a moderately slow oven (325 degrees) for about 30 minutes.

Ginger Snap Pie Crust.
(Makes 2 crusts)
Make 3 cups ginger snap crumbs by rolling ginger snaps on bread board or crumbling through food chopper. Combine with ¾ cup melted butter and blend lightly. Then press mixture into pie plate, shaping firmly all around, and place in refrigerator to chill until firm.

Pumpkin Chiffon Pie.
(Makes 2 pies)
3 tablespoons gelatin
½ cup cold water
6 eggs
2 cups sugar
2½ cups strained pumpkin
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cloves
1 cup whipping cream
Soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes. Separate eggs and beat egg yolks. Then combine 1 cup of the sugar, the strained pumpkin, milk, salt, and spices with the egg yolks and cook slowly, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from fire, add gelatin, and stir until dissolved. Cool. When mixture begins to thicken, stir in the remaining cup of sugar and fold in the beaten egg whites. Pour filling in the chilled ginger snap pastry shells and chill in refrigerator until set. Before serving decorate pies with whipped cream faces, using chilled pastry tube.

AXIS CONFERENCE

Mussolini—Well!
Von Ribbentrop—You took the word out of my mouth!
Mussolini—What explanation has Hitler to make to me?
Von Ribbentrop—Explanation for what?
Mussolini—He was to have licked England by August. I had his word for it.

Von Ribbentrop—Everything in a war can't be done according to schedule.
Mussolini—This is a fine time to tell me!

Von Ribbentrop—Germany can't help it if the British fail to give up in accordance with our expectations. Their slowness in surrendering is very disturbing to Herr Hitler.
Mussolini—If it disturbs Hitler, what do you think it does to me?

Von Ribbentrop—But there is nothing for us to worry about.
Mussolini—Did you ever try standing for any length of time with one foot in the middle of the sea and the other foot in the middle of Europe?

Von Ribbentrop—You are giving yourself too many feet.

Mussolini—Before I get through I may need 'em. I don't like the looks of things.

Von Ribbentrop—Why did you come into the war?
Mussolini—You know very well why I came in. You gave me a complete scenario, showing that France was finished and that England was as good as sunk.

Von Ribbentrop—Everything will come out as we promised. All we need is patience and a new plan.

Mussolini—Why can't you mop up England the way you did all those other countries? There must be traitors, fifth columnists and quitters there, too.

Von Ribbentrop—Yes, but England has 'em all in jail. Now listen, Der Fuehrer says you have got to take Gibraltar. Are you ready?

Mussolini—Who? Me!

Von Ribbentrop—We must have the co-operation of Spain. We must move fast.

Mussolini—My troops never moved faster than they did when they were in Spain.

Von Ribbentrop—This time it's got to be in the right direction.

Mussolini—There are moments when I think maybe we are biting off more than we can chew.

Von Ribbentrop—You have my assurance this will be done on a 50-50 basis.

Mussolini—What do you mean by that?
Von Ribbentrop—Germany will do the biting; you can do the chewing.

Mussolini—The more you talk the more nervous I get.

Von Ribbentrop—Brace up! Don't you know Germany and Italy are super races? Don't you know they are the two greatest Powers on earth? Don't you know they are nations with a destiny? Don't you know they will rule the world?

Mussolini—I know it, and you know it... but does the world know it?

Frilled Curtains Give Glamour to Windows

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE newest frilled curtains give a full, lavish effect. If they make your old curtains look a bit dejected, like those shown here at the right, don't be discouraged. The window at the left uses those same curtains with a dash of glamour added. This economy trick saved a certain young matron enough money to buy a number of smart new accessories for her living room.

She discovered that a diagonal dart, which took up the curtains at the back, threw more fullness to the front, thus giving the new high drape a smart line. Tie-backs and valance were made of flowered chintz in rose and plum tones, lined with plain plum colored chintz. One yard of each kind of chintz was required for each window.

NOTE: The chintz covered lamp shade and the spool table also add interest to this window. Full directions for making a shade like the one illustrated are in SEWING, Book 1. Directions for the spool table are in Book 5; also descriptions of the first four booklets in this series. There are 32 homemaking projects in each number; for which there is a service charge of 10c each to cover cost and mailing. Send order to:

Suitor's Slight Slip Gave Her Pop an Opening

Reggie had courted the daughter of the house for many months now, and finally came to the conclusion that it was time to declare himself. He found no great difficulty in obtaining the young lady's consent. However, he dreaded the ordeal he expected when asking for her father's approval. Then he hit upon the happy thought of writing to him. Here let it be known, his spelling wasn't so hot!

"Dear Sir," ran the note, "I wish to ask for the hand of your daughter, the flour of the family."
Back came the father's reply: "Is it the flour of the family or the dough you're after?"

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Rear Adm. Hayne Ellis, who will command the new Atlantic navy, now being developed, is not only one of the country's topnotch tars, but the snappiest dresser in the fleet, and one of the handsomest and most popular of naval officers. He has a reputation for unusual spirit and enterprise and is credited with a wide and highly specialized knowledge of foreign affairs.

Like virtually all the navy high command, he is a landlubber, hailing from Macon, Ga. After his graduation from the Naval academy in 1900, he served in the Boxer and Philippine rebellions and thereafter commanded many first-line ships. He was liaison officer during the Washington arms conference, was aide to Secretary of the Navy Denby and from 1931 to 1934 was head of the naval intelligence. It was he who was picked as naval aide to the prince of Wales on the latter's good-will tour of this country.

Last year he was transferred from command of the ninth naval district to the command of the Atlantic squadron. While the new Atlantic navy, starting with a nucleus of vessels now in the Atlantic, will be under his single command, both Pacific and Atlantic fleets will be under the supreme command of Adm. James O. Richardson, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet.

Sea dogs stress the admiral's popularity with the jack tars. A few years ago he was in charge of a flock of them on a visit to the Vatican. The boys pulled a navy yell, with their yell-leaders doing back flips. It might have seemed an unseemly proceeding, but the admiral had known it was coming, and had guessed correctly that it would bring a call for encores—which it did, from the pope himself.

Admiral Ellis is 63 years old, tall, erect and broad-shouldered and, again, magnificently tailored. He attained his present rank in 1933.

AS The Little Church Around the Corner marks its ninety-second birthday, Dr. Randolph Ray may be noting with interest that Jupiter and Saturn are swinging through a triple conjunction, which hasn't happened for something over 300 years. Dr. Ray keeps track of the stars and thinks it quite likely that his destiny "inclines" with theirs. For many years he consulted the late Evangeline Adams, the astrologer. He thinks it quite reasonable that the affairs of men should be linked with the cosmic deeps.

Jupiter and Saturn, it happens, are backsliding, or retrograding, but Dr. Ray and The Little Church Around the Corner are standing firm—largely due to the tolerance, social tact and humane understanding of the rector. It is said that in his youth he was impressed by Robert Browning's invocation of a degree of humane worldliness among churchmen. That might have been Fra Lippo Lippi.

At any rate, Dr. Ray met the theater more than half-way in making The Little Church the haven for its people, and also the romantic shrine of thousands of marriages. He is no off-hand marrying parson. He investigates all couples thoroughly and the rites of his church are never casually administered.

Of southern birth, he was a "leg man" for the Brooklyn Eagle, and groped around the edges of law and medicine before he became a minister. Studies at Columbia university inclined him to the Episcopal ministry. After his ordination, he consulted Evangeline Adams. She told him he would go West and meet great success there. In Bryan, Texas, he became rector of St. Andrew's church and later was dean of St. Matthew's cathedral at Dallas.

He came to The Little Church Around the Corner, more formally The Church of the Transfiguration, in 1923. With the years, he has taken on the appearance and demeanor of a British cleric, tall and dignified, conforming rigidly in all the requirements of the rubric, but less of a rigid conformist in everyday friendly human intercourse. Inclined to overweight, he keeps in trim by working in his 130-acre garden at Litchfield. It was in 1870 that The Little Church Around the Corner became a famous marriage center.

LIEUT. Gen. Yoshitsuge Tatakawa, Japan's new ambassador to Moscow, has always been a friend of Russia and has always insisted that there were no important doctrinal differences between communism and totalitarianism. He has been one of the most bellicose leaders of Japan and one of the most insistent on a tieup of the hard-boiled powers. Of the British, he said, "They are a crafty lot, smooth-spoken, always with something up their sleeve. I think I can get along better with the Soviets."

Star Dust

STAGE SCREEN RADIO
By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ACTORS usually dread working with children on the stage or in pictures because children, like animals, invariably "steal" scenes. One cute gesture, one little smile from a child can make an Academy Award winner look like a piece of furniture, so far as audiences are concerned.

Nevertheless the members of the cast of "Shepherd of the Hills" were delighted to have four-year-old Virita Campbell in their midst while they were on location in the San Bernardino mountains. On location hours are usually very long, the rule being to shoot from daybreak to sunset to take full advantage of the natural light. Which means that actors, stars and all, get up at 5:30 or thereabouts.

But in the eyes of the state labor law Virita is an infant, so she can't start to work until 8 a. m. Consequently the actors who worked with her got two extra hours of sleep every morning. They brought pressure to bear on Director Henry Hathaway to extend her part so that it would last for the entire six weeks.

Deanna Durbin's new picture, "Spring Parade," is a honey, chiefly because she, S. Z. Sakall and Henry Stephenson are in it. The story is just another of those Old Vienna things, but Henry Koster did a good job of directing, the entire cast—it includes Allyn Joslyn, Reginald Denny, Robert Cummings and Franklin Pangborn—is good, and there are some lovely new songs. The grown-up Deanna is charming and sings beautifully, of course—and as the setting is what old Vienna always is in the movies, she sings an arrangement of the "Blue Danube."

Practically all the men stars in Hollywood were fired from perfectly good jobs before they turned to the movies. Preston Foster suspects that Nelson Eddy got the one he lost. Foster was working on a Philadelphia newspaper, selling classified advertising. He got extra jobs singing in the chorus and in minor roles in the La Scala Opera company. One day the boss dropped in at a matinee, and there was Foster singing when he should have been out selling advertising!

Meanwhile Nelson Eddy was working as a shipping clerk for an iron works company in the same city. He had a habit of bursting into song when he was working hard. The foreman couldn't stand it, so he fired the singer, who promptly got a job on the Philadelphia paper that hadn't appreciated Foster's singing—the job was selling classified advertising.

Robert Taylor was washing the inside of a windshield in a service station in Beatrice, Neb., when the rag slipped out of his hand and into the lap of a lady. He fled, not waiting to be fired.

One of the nicest stories ever told about Hollywood has as its hero the late Grover Jones, author of many a successful movie scenario.

Some years ago he and his wife, who were childless, went to The Cradle, in Chicago, to adopt one. The superintendent showed them hundreds of babies.

"How about that one?" asked Jones, pointing to a child with crossed eyes.

"That poor baby," said the superintendent. "He's been here longer than any of the others. Nobody wants him."

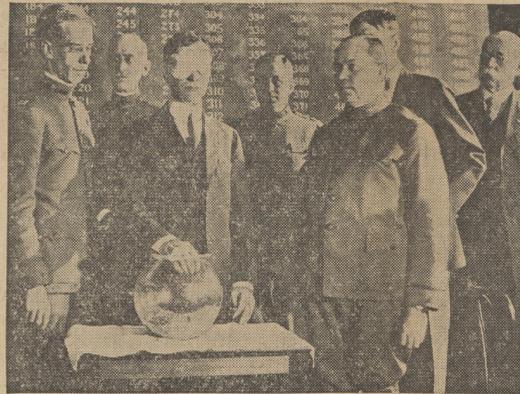

"We'll take him," said Jones. "Today the child, after being given every advantage of medical treatment, is straight-eyed. And three years ago the Joneses had a little girl of their own."

The popularity of a radio program can be judged by its Crosley rating, or by the price tickets to its broadcasts bring. They're not supposed to be sold, of course, but there is a well-organized group of neat, polite young men who beg people going into the broadcasts for their extra tickets. Westinghouse's "Musical Americana" is now in the top rank, along with a few other regular, sponsored shows; its tickets bring 75 cents. Tickets to Toscanini's first broadcast brought as high as $50.

ODDS AND ENDS—Lila Lupino has the smallest waist in Hollywood—nineteen inches. . . Basil Rathbone is grateful to Sherlock Holmes; after years of being a villain on stage and screen the air has given him a chance to play a man whom the world admires and respects. . . That refugee ship picture in which Constance Bennett and Pat O'Brien are working won't be called "Passage West" after all—it's a good title, but too much like "Northwest Passage"—so Columbia's looking for a new one. . . Irene Dunne and Cary Grant are starting work in "Penny Serenade," with no effort or expense spared to make it a winner.

Draft History to Repeat As Uncle Sam Gets Busy

The Burke-Wadsworth selective military service bill, which calls to military service men between the ages of 21 and 35, inclusive, recalls the scenes of 1917 when Uncle Sam drafted his army for the World war. As in 1917, there are not enough arms to go around, and some draftees may be forced to train with wooden guns. Physical requirements will not be as strict as those used in selecting men for the regular army in peacetime, but the men chosen will be near-perfect specimens.

Fairness and impartiality marked selection of the first draftees in accordance with the selective service regulations during the World war. Here you see Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, blindfolded, drawing the first draft capsule from a glass bowl, in 1917.

Scenes like this, showing draftees checking in at Fort Slocum during the national call to arms in 1917, will once more be the rule now that the Burke-Wadsworth military training bill is in effect.

Draftees being examined by a military medical staff in 1917. The army of 400,000 men who are taking the oath of allegiance under the Burke-Wadsworth bill will be the healthiest conscription group in the nation's history.

Countless rolls of cloth in the quartermaster's department in Philadelphia soon will be cut into soldiers' uniforms.

Visual Defects
One-third of the applicants to drive school buses in five North Carolina counties were found to have visual defects. All except one of these rejected failed in two or more visual tests. Three applicants were found to be blind in one eye. Commenting on these figures, the Better Vision institute points out that there are 80,000 school buses in the United States and urges that in the interest of safety school bus operators should be given periodic eye examinations.

Smell-Sound Pictures
Two Swiss inventors claim they have an invention that synchronizes 20 smells with sound and sight in a modern screen epic. They call their invention the "odorated talking picture."
They are enthusiastic about the way their invention makes movie dramas more vivid. They claim they can produce 5,000 smells with odorated apparatus but they don't advise any producer to put them all in one film. They refuse to tell how their device works.

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger B. Whitman

Open Porch Construction.
QUESTION: I want to build an open porch over an enclosed sun porch. It opens out from a bedroom which has three windows facing south. The three windows are set in one opening. What should be the construction of the flooring: material, pitch and drainage? Which window should be made into the door? Should I provide a storm door for winter?

ANSWER: The covering on a roof that is to be walked on can be of a prepared canvas, made especially for the purpose. The minimum pitch of the roof should be a quarter-inch to the foot. The surface and framing should be of rigid construction. The canvas should be laid over a No. 2 common flooring of pine, fir or spruce, 3/4-inch thick; not over four inches wide, and must be tongue-and-groove. It should be smooth, with joints planed if necessary. The canvas should be turned up or flashed four to six inches at the walls to insure water-tightness. The middle window is the one to be made into a door. You should by all means put on a storm door for the winter, and also provide good weather-stripping.

Squeaking Stairs.
QUESTION: Stairs from my entrance hall creek and groan. Stairs are straight ascending in one unbroken line. How can I cure the horrid noises that accompany each footfall?

ANSWER: That squeaking is from the springing or arching of the treads away from the risers. If the under side of the stairs is open, tighten the wedges that secure the ends of the treads in the grooves of the side pieces; drive them in with a hammer. Otherwise, standing on a tread to weight it down, drive two-inch finishing nails through the tread near the front edge, so that they go into the riser. Nails should be driven in pairs at opposite angles. Sink the heads below the surface with a nailset and fill the holes with wood putty.

Refinishing a House.
QUESTION: The walls of my stucco house are cracked in several places, and I am anxious to refinish the walls. I am considering brick veneer, asbestos siding or wood siding. Which of the three would you advise? Is it possible to refinish the walls without tearing down the stucco?

ANSWER: All three materials are very satisfactory as wall coverings. The first two, of course, will require little or no maintenance. As to the choice between the brick and siding, a great deal depends on the style of the house. If you select brick veneering, the present stucco would not have to be removed; but for the siding, it would be better to remove the stucco.

Outdoor Fireplaces.
QUESTION: How can I build a small outdoor fireplace? I have a cabin in the country, and we are anxious to cook steak in the open. Where can I get information on mixing cement?

ANSWER: Popular Science Monthly, 353 Fourth avenue, New York city, has information on this; illustrations and directions. For information on mixing cement, apply to the Portland Cement association, 347 Madison avenue, New York city, or to the Chicago office at 33 West Grand avenue. The association has published an excellent pamphlet called "Concrete Improvements Around the Home."

Waterproofing Brick Wall.
QUESTION: What can I use to waterproof the outside of a brick wall? My neighbor does not want me to use black because it faces her yard. Black seems to be the cheapest waterproofing.

ANSWER: A cement composition paint is very satisfactory, providing the bricks have not been previously painted with an oil or asphalt paint. A black asphalt paint, of course, does not help the appearance of the wall.

Rubber Flooring.
A correspondent sends me a sample of the flooring in his dining room, and asks for the best method of cleaning it.

ANSWER: The material is rubber, which can be cleaned by mopping with clear water. It can also be waxed, but care should be taken to use a bright drying water wax; not paste or liquid wax, for these contain oils and solvents that are injurious to rubber.

Making Insect Screens.
QUESTION: Where can I get instructions for making insect screens for my windows and front porch?

ANSWER: The making of screens of all kinds at home is well covered in a pamphlet issued by the Copper & Brass Research association, 420 Lexington avenue, New York city, that can be had for the asking.

Washing a House.
QUESTION: A house that was painted six months ago has become extremely soiled through weather conditions. What is the best way to wash it?

ANSWER: First, use a garden hose, and a scrubbing-brush on the long pole. If the soiling is a deposit from neighboring oil burners or from train smokes, scrub with two tablepoons of trisodium phosphate in a bucket of water, using a scrubbing-brush or a sponge. Follow with your hose.

Christian Society of Service Meets

Nearly 200 ladies of the Women's Society of Christian Service of Dover District of the Peninsula Methodist Conference assembled in Asbury Methodist Church of Harrington on Thursday, October 24.

Mrs. Walter A. Hearn, of Dover, opened the meeting, introducing Mrs. Charles Horsey, of Laurel, who led the devotions.

Then Mrs. Hearn asked her husband, Rev. W. A. Hearn, to preside over the business meeting. Mrs. Jas. McNeal, of Dover was elected temporary chairman. The following nominating committee was appointed: Mrs. Harry Boyer, Harrington. Mrs. Lewis M. Price, Smyrna. Mrs. John Shilling, Dover. Mrs. J. Fred Hudson, Rehoboth. Mrs. Carl Brown, Seaford. Mrs. Ernest Mattiford, Smyrna.

Felton; secretary of Christian Social Relations and Local Church Activities, Mrs. Robert West, Millville; secretary of Student Work, Mrs. Grace Robinson, Laurel; secretary of Literature and Publication, Mrs. Frank Conlin, Milford; Secretary of Supplies, Mrs. Lester Daniels, Townsend.

Brief addresses were given by the officers of the Conference Society, as follows: Mrs. W. W. Sharp, Harrington, president; Mrs. Charles Jarvis, Easton, Md., secretary; Mrs. John Shilling, Dover, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Philip E. Douglass, Hurlock, Md., treasurer; Mrs. L. M. Price, Smyrna, secretary of Literature and Publications.

A pleasing feature of the morning session was a vocal solo, "The Holy City," by the pastor of the hostess church, Rev. Robert E. Green, accompanied by his wife. Mrs. C. Fred Wilson presided at the pipe organ.

Announcement was made of the first annual meeting of the Conference Society at Avenue Methodist Church, Milford, Del., on Friday, November 15, at 10:00 o'clock a. m.

We believe that the voluntary enlistment of home dollars for home defense would be a good thing for this community.

Certainly there is grave danger to the vital interests of every family and every individual if we buy and defense would be a good thing for this community.

Let us patronize home merchants more. Their shelves have most of the goods we need. Their prices are right. They are taxpayers in this community. Dealing with them will help all of us.

Army Preparing for New Recruits; Tension in Balkan States Increases As Britain and Axis Exchange Blows; U. S. Community Chest Drives Open

THE WAR: New Scenes

The Balkans blossomed out as the new critical area in the European struggle. German troops who earlier entered the country to seize the rich oilfields were increased and took over more territory. Ten divisions of Nazi troops, 150,000 men, as well as numerous aircraft, arrived. Neutral sources said the actual goal was Greek and Turkish ports which control access to Asia Minor oil lines.

Turkey and Greece are allied to England as non-belligerents. Turkey also has an alliance with Russia and expected help from the Soviet if the situation came to a showdown. Russia, meanwhile, made a vast military zone of Bessarabia, which it seized early this year from Rumania. Many tacticians believe Russia was ready to oppose Germany in the Balkans, but others were less sanguine. They believe Russia already is outflanked in that theater.

A drive to Greece and Turkey also would give the Axis powers a base on which to move toward Suez from another angle, causing a pincer movement with the Italians moving east along the Egyptian coast.

Africa still was a gem for conquest. Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the "Free France" forces, based himself at Duala, in the Cameroons, in tropical West Africa. His arrival coincided with a reception at Dakar for Gen. Maxime Weygand, representative of the Vichy forces. Neutral sailors escaping from Dakar reported the Senegal sector had been taken over by German authorities. Washington looked at the news apprehensively. Officials there believe the Germans soon may use that air base for commercial flights to South America.

Air War

Over England, France, Belgium, Netherlands and Germany furious air battles continued. The fight always was "the same as yesterday—but more violent." Each side daily stepped up bombings of enemy territory. The great St. Paul's cathedral in London was damaged. Many died each night under the debris of stores and apartments. The Germans used a new bomb, combination explosive and incendiary.

position, was unable completely to defend its home front. British fliers increased the length and ferocity of their raids on the capital and industrial centers. Germany began to evacuate children from Berlin.

British and Italians both claimed victory in a Mediterranean engagement. The Italians said a British aircraft carrier and destroyer were damaged. Youngest Senator

Joseph H. Ball, Minnesota newspaper man just appointed to the Senate of United States to succeed the late Senator Ernest Lundeen of that state, will be the youngest member of that body when he takes his desk in Washington. FUND RAISING: President Speaks

Community Chests in thousands of communities taking part in the 1940 Mobilization for Human Needs opened their drives for funds. The first gun fired was a speech from the White House by President Roosevelt. "The ancient injunction to love thy neighbor as thyself," the President said, "still is the force that animates our faith—a faith that we are determined shall live and conquer in a world poisoned by hatred and ravaged by war."

WASHINGTON: Defense

The capital is filled with rumors of impending changes in the defense commission setup following the election. One rumor has it that if Roosevelt wins, he will offer Wendell L. Wilkie, his Republican opponent, the position of commission chairman.

A more likely routine is that William A. Knudsen will be elevated to the position of "chief of staff" and that Donald T. Nelson, former Sears Roebuck executive, expert, will be "co-ordinator" between the commission's several divisions.

Secrets

Leaks in information supplied by the army to congressmen has irked defense officials. It was indicated there will be a general tightening up. Two recent events were the final straws. First, members of the house appropriations committee made public details of an airport program that the army was guarding and asked to keep secret. Then Rep. Van Zandt (R., Pa.) made an array of figures of arms equipment, although Chief of Staff Marshall was said to have requested the tables be treated as confidential.

Otherwise on the Washington front: Secretary of State Hull made public denial of rumors that he would resign.

American diplomatic missions in Rome and Berlin were ordered home in what was described as a personal shift.

Rumanian owned funds and securities totaling $100,000,000 were "frozen" in U. S. banks during the Balkan disturbances.

LABOR: New Regulations

With the federal law reducing the maximum hours of labor from 42 to 40 now in effect, Federal Administrator Philip B. Fleming announced regulations exempting thousands of "white collar" workers from the provisions. To these the law will not require that overtime wages be paid. Overtime for all others will be time and one-half time.

The regulations are the result of months of study and hearings by the wage-hour division. They decided that an executive is one whose duty consists of management of an enterprise of "sub-division" at a salary of at least $30 a week. He also must have the power to hire or fire.

'Harmar's Defeat' Was First Fruits of Military Policy Which Has Sacrificed Americans on Altar of Unpreparedness

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

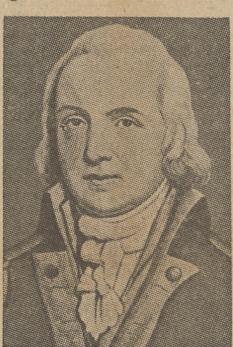

IN THE month of October, 1790, the present site of Fort Wayne, Ind., was the scene of two significant military engagements. They not only were the first of a series of disasters which overtook our regular army during a century of conflict with the Indians but they marked the beginning of a blundering military policy that repeatedly sacrificed American lives on the altar of unpreparedness.

These two engagements have come down in history as "Harmar's Defeat." Thus, for a century and a half, the name of the first general-in-chief of the United States army and the beginning of our permanent military establishment have been linked with the ideas of failure and disaster.

Josiah Harmar, born in Philadelphia on July 25, 1753, had served in the Revolution under Washington and Greene. His war record, although not brilliant, had been an honorable one.

In the year 1784 the Continental congress, after having set the strength of the permanent military forces of the new nation at 80 men, asked four states to furnish forthwith from their militia, 700 men, to serve for 12 months, unless sooner discharged.

This was inaugurated our system of depending upon militia for providing the bulk of our armed forces, a system which was repeatedly to prove such a dismal failure in war-time emergencies. Harmar was made lieutenant-colonel commandant and assumed command of the troops on August 12, 1784. His rank made him the senior officer in the service of the United States, so he automatically became "general-in-chief."

GEN. JOSIAH HARMAR

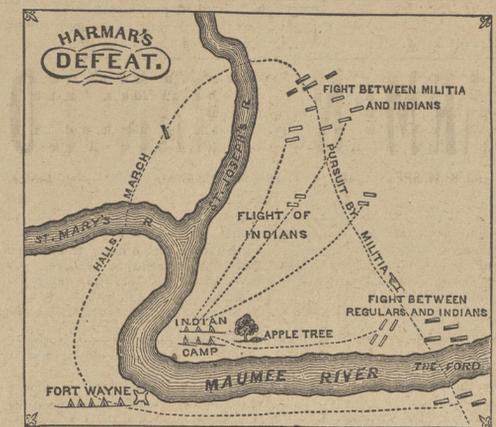

After the adoption of the Constitution and the election of Washington as President, Harmar was kept in command of the army by Gen. Henry Knox, secretary of war. With most of its domestic problems on the way to a solution, Washington's administration was able to turn its attention toward the Indian problem in the West. The wave of emigration that had begun to pour into Kentucky, then seep north into the Ohio country, was bitterly resisted by the Indians.

Gen. Arthur St. Clair, governor of the Northwest Territory, had tried in vain to bring peace to the harried frontier by negotiations with the Indians. When these efforts failed, Washington appealed to congress for money enough to carry on a successful campaign against the hostiles. But that body, jittery over the imaginary dangers of a large "standing army," declined to make the necessary appropriations. So when General Harmar set out for the West with an expeditionary force to whip the Indians into submission, it was pitifully inadequate for that task.

Although it numbered more than 1,400 men, only 320 of these were regulars and the remainder were militia—three battalions of Virginians, one of Pennsylvanians, and one of mounted light troops from Kentucky. Not only were the majority of these troops wretched stuff for the stern task ahead of them, but their equipment was deplorable.

Such was the army that was sent against the hundreds of Wyandot, Shawnee and Miami warriors (their exact number is unknown) who had repeatedly proved themselves formidable fighters, skilled in the type of warfare that had overwhelmed Braddock in 1756, and led by one of the greatest chiefs of this continent ever produced. He was Little Turtle of the Miamis.

On October 4 Harmar's army left Fort Washington (site of the present city of Cincinnati) and moved north. Near the St. Mary's river 10 days later, Harmar sent Colonel Hardin with a company of regulars and 600 militia to push on to the Miami villages at the head of the Maumee river. Hardin found the Indian towns on both banks of the St. Joseph deserted but the red men had left behind a number of cows and great stores of vegetables and grain, including 20,000 bushels of corn. Hardin's men immediately began plundering and it was with great difficulty that their officers brought them under control.

On October 19 the general sent a detachment of 300 men under Colonel Hardin, at his request, to locate the encampment of the retreating Indians and bring them to battle.

Five miles from the village, the soldiers came upon an abandoned Indian camp where Hardin deployed his forces but neglected to arrange for any real co-ordination of their movements. Three miles further on they discovered two Indians on foot who tried to escape in the underbrush, and, throwing caution to the winds, the soldiers plunged forward in pursuit. The result was that Hardin's command was drawn into an ambushade that had been prepared by Little Turtle whose warriors opened up with a fusillade of musketry that threw the soldiers into confusion.

At the first fire of the savages, the militia, with the exception of nine men, fled without firing a shot. These nine joined the little detachment of 30 regulars, led by Captain Armstrong and Ensign Hartshorn, who were standing their ground and returning the savages' fire, which was now concentrated upon them. The nine militiamen were shot down but the regulars made a brave resistance with their bayonets until 22 of the 30 had been killed.

The next morning Harmar issued a general order, berating "the shameful, cowardly conduct of the militia who ran away and threw down their arms without scarcely firing a shot." Next the commander ordered an advance against the Shawnee village of Chillicothe, to destroy that town and the supplies stored there.

This was successfully accomplished but Harmar was so disheartened by the evident demoralization of his army that he decided upon an immediate retreat to Fort Washington. The movement began on the morning of October 21 and by evening the army had gone into camp seven miles southeast of the present city of Fort Wayne. Then Colonel Hardin, still chagrined over his failure two days earlier, went to the commander and outlined a plan for snatching victory from defeat. Believing that the Indians would swarm back to their burned villages, he would make a swift night march with a picked force of men and fall upon the unsuspecting savages.

Harmar was dubious of the wisdom of the scheme but Hardin was so persistent in his pleading that the commander finally gave his consent. Accordingly late that night a force of 340 picked militiamen and 60 regulars, commanded by Maj. John P. Wyllys, set out for the Miami villages. They reached their objective soon after sunrise undiscovered by the Indians who were busily engaged in trying to salvage some of their property from the burned village.

A Plan That Failed.

The plan of battle was a good one and probably would have succeeded had it not been for an action characteristic of undisciplined troops. Major Hall, with a battalion of militia, was to take a circuitous route to the westward, cross the St. Mary's river at the ford and there, in the rear of the village, wait until they heard the noise of the attack by Major McMullen's battalion, Major Fontaine's mounted riflemen and the regulars under Major Wyllys. The latter would then move across the Maumee and drive the surprised savages against the guns of Hall's battalion. Hall reached his position unobserved. But one of his men disobeyed orders, fired at a lone Indian and alarmed the village before the other troops were in position. The aroused savages quickly discovered them and Little Turtle, quickly sensing that Hall offered no serious threat, concentrated his attention on the main body of troops. Soon small groups of Indians were seen streaming away to the northeast and McMullen's militia and Fontaine's horsemen, pursued them, leaving Wyllys and the regulars unsupported.

Undaunted by this fact, the regulars advanced across the river and attempted to force their way up the river where a large force of Indians opened a hot fire upon them. Wyllys was one of the first killed and the others were driven back into the river which was soon literally choked with the bodies of men and horses. Meanwhile Major Fontaine was hotly engaged with another force of Indians who shot down the major and killed a number of his men. But immediately afterwards the savages were attacked in the rear by Hall's men.

There was a short fierce struggle, then Hall's, McMullen's and Fontaine's forces fell back in confusion to the ford across the Maumee where they joined the remnants of the regulars in their retreat. One of the horsemen, who had escaped from the field, bore the news of the new disaster to Harmar who immediately ordered a detachment of militia to march to the aid of their comrades. But, such was the demoralization of the militia that only 30 of them were willing to go. When Hardin arrived in camp and urged the commander to lead his entire force against the enemy, Harmar, having lost all confidence in his soldiers, refused to go. The next day he continued his retreat to Fort Washington where he arrived on November 4.

The Americans' loss was given as 183 killed and 31 wounded, although it is probable that some of these numbers were men who had deserted and made their way back to Kentucky. Harmar claimed that his men had killed at least 100 Indians and regarded his campaign as a success, despite the fact that a court of inquiry was appointed to investigate what the authorities considered a serious disaster. The court exonerated him of all blame and he was retained in the service as adjutant-general of the Pennsylvania troops. In this capacity he rendered good service in providing men for the army of Gen. Arthur St. Clair which suffered an even worse defeat the next year, and the army of Gen. Anthony Wayne, which finally whipped the Indians at the Battle of Fallen Timbers in 1794. He resigned from the army in 1799 and entered the mercantile business in Philadelphia where he died August 20, 1813.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

When making iron holders put in one layer of leather from an old glove, as it is a nonconductor of heat.

Lubricate the meat chopper and electric mixer with salad oil. This will prevent any disagreeable taste which might occur if regular lubricating oil were used.

Half an hour is ample time to allow for baking of medium-sized apples.

Keep flowers out of drafts as much as possible; they are more susceptible to a chill than humans.

To give crunchiness as well as added flavor to meringues for pies, add one-fourth cup shredded nut meats to each two egg whites. Sprinkle the nuts over the top or add them to the meringue just before it is spread.

Glycerine will remove tea and coffee stains from table linen. Rub spots with glycerine and let stand a few minutes, then wash linen in the usual way.

Care must be taken to avoid opening the oven door for five minutes after the cake has been placed in the oven. When removing it or drawing it to the front to see if it is baked evenly, be very careful, as the least jar may cause the cake to lose its lightness.

Prepare a small handsaw for storing by first heating it in an oven and then quickly rubbing it with lard or any unsalted fat. Hang the saw on a nail on a wall. Wipe off the surplus fat when you use this saw again.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities which, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, painness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

SYNOPSIS

Don Alfredo, wealthy, Spanish owner of a Southern California rancho, refuses to heed several warnings of a raid by a band of outlaw, Sierra Indians. One day after he has finally decided to seek the protection of the nearby mission for his wife and family, the Indians strike. Don Alfredo is killed and his two young daughters are torn from the arms of the family's faithful maid, Monica, and are carried away to the hills. Padre Pascual, missionary friend of the family, arrives at the ruins of the rancho.

CHAPTER II—Continued

"Padre, first make sure bad Indians are gone. They might kill you," cautioned Diego. "No, no," exclaimed the padre, as near impatience as he ever allowed himself to stray. "That is nothing, nothing!" "They might kill me, Padre," suggested Diego darkly. As the wind, blowing in a gust, dies suddenly into calm, the mission veteran murmured, "True, Diego," he murmured, gently reproachful of himself. "You might be in danger. Remain here, hidden in the wheat. I will go forward and report if there is danger."

Both men were striving for their own ends: the padre to keep his devoted servant from harm, Diego to keep his infirm master from harm.

"Tell me, Diego," said the padre, agitated, "can you see anyone?" "I see a woman and a boy. They are fighting. She holds him and beats him with a stick."

"It is Monica," said Diego in his staccato accents. "Now the boy gets loose. He is running. She chases. He is running into the wheat to hide. Slower, Padre. Have care! You will fall!"

Protests were lost on the aged man. With his hands outstretched in eager appeal as he stumbled on he sought to stay the angry Monica. She was already in the tall wheat, furiously pursuing her escaping victim. The two were running down the trail through the grain which must soon bring them into the padre's arms when his shout reached the ears of both pursued and pursuer.

The boy, seeing the advancing priest, halted, dumfounded. But only for an instant—then, tearing into the tall grain with the swiftness of a rabbit, he could only be followed with the eye as the swaying wheat heads told of his flight.

Monica dashed ahead. Even the sight of the padre did not check her hysteria. "Diego!" she cried loudly to the padre's neophyte. "After him! Do not let him go!"

Diego stared but made no move. He looked at the rapid parting of the grain heads that marked the boy's race to escape; but most of all he stared at the strange Monica in front of him. Her scant gown was in rags. Her features were distorted with grief and rage. Her eyes, strained and tear stained, bulged in their sockets, and still she shouted at Diego in the Indian tongue as she pointed after the fleeing boy.

"Woman!" exclaimed Padre Pascual. "Woman!" he repeated in sterner command, for she scarcely heeded him. "What are you doing? Who are you?"

The half-crazed creature suddenly looked at her. The stick dropped from her grasp. She clasped both hands to her haggard face and with a dreadful cry threw herself prostrate on the ground at the padre's feet.

"Who—who," gasped the sorely bewildered priest, "are you?" "Padre," said the stolid Diego collectedly, "do you not know? It is Monica."

"Impossible!" exclaimed the padre. "Monica whom I have known for so many years—whom I baptized! Aid her, Diego. Rise, my poor child. Rise! Speak!"

"Monica!" he exclaimed as Diego helped the sobbing woman to her uncertain feet. "Monica! What is the meaning of this? What is the meaning of this? Where are your master and mistress?"

Monica, falling again to her trembling knees, lifted her face as she caught at his right hand. "Woe is me, Padre! My master cruelly slain! My mistress shamed unto death. Carmelita, Terecita, stolen by the wicked Indians. Only Alfredo left. Woe to Los Alamos!"

Stunned, the missionary and the neophyte listened to the horrible recital of the murders of the day before.

Padre Pascual listened to the end. He stood infirmly, leaning again on his staff with head and mind lifted to heaven, poured out his grief in prayer to his Maker. The awesome spectacle of the venerable man, heart-broken but silent, in petition before his God steadied Monica.

"At last," she said, gasping with emotion, "the soldiers came. Alfredo brought them. The house is burned; the quarters and the granary are burned. They rode away to pursue the savages; Alfredo rode to heaven, poured out his grief in prayer to his Maker."

to the presidio. And my dear mistress, she is lost, lost. And my lovely, lovely children! My Carmelita lost forever!"

"And Dona Juana, where is she now?" asked the padre patiently. "In the home of her sister, Dona Teresa, at the presidio. I walked all the way back here today to find, if possible, some garments for my unhappy mistress."

"And had Don Alfredo no warning of this attack?" pursued the padre.

Monica almost shrieked as she clasped her hands. "Warning upon warning, Don Alfredo had! For a week I warned him. The cook told me the attack would come. I begged my master to flee with the family to the presidio. He only laughed. 'Have I not had for a time the boy of the chief Sobriano here in my household?' he would say to me. 'Sobriano will control the young men. He will not allow them to attack us. We are as safe as Los Alamos, Monica, as they are at the presidio.'"

"Only Sunday night the cook said to me: 'Tomorrow they come!' I told Don Alfredo. The Senora begged him to heed the warnings. He was impatient but he yielded. 'Tomorrow morning, then, we will go, querida mia,' he told her. And then—next morning when he went to get the horses they swung down on us. 'Woe to Los Alamos!'"

Diego asked a question—his first—in the Indian tongue. Monica answered in Spanish. "It was that boy," she cried, "that Indian fiend, Yosco! Still my master would have escaped with his life but for him. When Don Alfredo and the two vaqueros saw the Indians come they fled to the house for firearms. Yosco, accused boy, barred the front door against them! They could not get into the house; they were slaughtered, all three, on the portico before the barred door—barred by this young fiend. And this morning, back he came to steal the silver in the house. I caught him. It is he that I was beating, and now he has escaped."

The three moved slowly on through the wheat toward the ranch house.

CHAPTER III

Too cold and too hungry to sleep, Bowie sat looking into his dying campfire, speculating on what still might be ahead of him and his companions. His thoughts reverted less willingly to what he had left behind; the acute agony of thirst, the steady gnawing of hunger, the fiendish heat of the desert, the killing of the last pony for food.

But at least the horror of this was behind him. The mountains could not be worse; they might be better. The sky was overcast and the night air, drifting silently down from the higher Sierras, chilled him to the bone. On the other side of the campfire embers, stretched asleep on the rocky ground, lay a lanky Missourian, the scout, Ben Pardaloe, with his feet so close to the fire that it seemed as if they might blaze up any minute. His sleep was fitful, like that of a famished man, unlike his normal sleep with which Bowie, after three weeks of hard camp life, had grown too familiar. Pardaloe, tall and gaunt, twisted and turned, drew up his legs and thrust them desperately out again. From his open mouth there issued sighs and burlles. Even the familiar snore was lacking; Ben was too weak to snore.

The third man, Bob Simms, a half-breed Creek Indian, lay sleeping more quietly a little apart from the rest. Now, boys," he added precariously, "hang on to every scrap of this meat—every scrap; might not sight another for a week. Mountains is big around here, they sure are. The highest is behind us. And I say, now while our stomachs is full, push on till we get down where there's plenty of game. We're started downhill but we're too high yet by near a mile, and going downhill a mile is a long way unless you fall down."

Pardaloe stretched out on the ground. "If I had a pipe of tobacco I'd call this a fair enough country. But there's too much snow on them high fellers—nights are too blamed cold. Well, Henry"—so the scout addressed Bowie—"if you say so, it's good; but give me one more hour at this deer—then I'll make a start."

Lazily, but with a more hopeful view of life, the little party of Texans made their way down the western slope of the Sierras. The difference between empty stomachs and full stomachs cheered them on their way, and the substantial remains of their feast they carried in sacks, crudely skewered from the buck's hide.

It was a rough and forbidding terrain they were following. "Ain't seen hide nor hair of a livin' critter all day," Ben rambled on as the sun sank in the west. "Well, we chewed dry leather three days after we finished your pony, Henry," he said to Bowie. "Guess fresh deer hide will keep us goin'. Why ain't this a good place to camp for the night, right here? What say, Henry? Here's water handy."

Bowie was willing to camp, and the peaceful Simmie never interposed objection on a minor point. The spot they had reached was close to the brink of a long ledge that broke away below them into an open flat. A mountain brook gurgled hard by. They built a fire, laved, drank, and opened their re-

likely hiding from panthers. Don't waste ammunition. We've none to spare."

"All right, Simmie," murmured Pardaloe, addressing the Creek by his nickname, "you stalk him."

Minute after minute passed, with Bowie and the scout anxiously waiting. The mere prospect of food had so excited the dormant salivary glands of the hungry men that each minute after the first was almost torture. Yet both knew no more could be done than the Indian would do. If the scout Pardaloe tried to help the stalk he might only spoil things. They must wait and lick their hopeful chops.

"What's keeping him half an hour like this?" grumbled Pardaloe. "Half an hour nothing, Ben. Patience," counseled Bowie.

The words had barely left his lips when they heard the distant crack of a rifle.

In a moment both men were running in the direction from which the report had come.

It was some job to keep up with Pardaloe's long legs. He was as graceful as a camel, but the ground he could cover in an emergency was a caution. When, by dint of calling and answering, two hungry men found the Indian, he was actively cutting up the handsome buck. The scout needed no instructions. He put down his rifle and began hunting chips for a fire. Bowie got his flint and tinder ready.

"No, I don't feel like traveling today. Been traveling for three weeks now. Today I put away for eatin'. What say, Injun?"

Pardaloe spoke after the first hour of a repast that promised to last all day. "I'll ask you one question, Henry," continued Pardaloe after getting no response from Simmie, and speaking now to Bowie. "Be we or been't we in California?"

Bowie was disposing of a venison shank. "Ben," he said reassuringly, "we 'be.' Where did you think you 'be'?"

Pardaloe, gnawing at what was left on the bone of his venison saddle, spoke at ease. "Well, up to about a hour ago I thought I was in hell. But I guess this must be California. Things seem to be comin' our way since Simmie brought down this deer. Now, boys," he added precariously, "hang on to every scrap of this meat—every scrap; might not sight another for a week. Mountains is big around here, they sure are. The highest is behind us. And I say, now while our stomachs is full, push on till we get down where there's plenty of game. Lazily, but with a more hopeful view of life, the little party of Texans made their way down the western slope of the Sierras. The difference between empty stomachs and full stomachs cheered them on their way, and the substantial remains of their feast they carried in sacks, crudely skewered from the buck's hide.

It was a rough and forbidding terrain they were following. "Ain't seen hide nor hair of a livin' critter all day," Ben rambled on as the sun sank in the west. "Well, we chewed dry leather three days after we finished your pony, Henry," he said to Bowie. "Guess fresh deer hide will keep us goin'. Why ain't this a good place to camp for the night, right here? What say, Henry? Here's water handy."

Bowie was willing to camp, and the peaceful Simmie never interposed objection on a minor point. The spot they had reached was close to the brink of a long ledge that broke away below them into an open flat. A mountain brook gurgled hard by. They built a fire, laved, drank, and opened their re-

likely hiding from panthers. Don't waste ammunition. We've none to spare."

"All right, Simmie," murmured Pardaloe, addressing the Creek by his nickname, "you stalk him."

Minute after minute passed, with Bowie and the scout anxiously waiting. The mere prospect of food had so excited the dormant salivary glands of the hungry men that each minute after the first was almost torture. Yet both knew no more could be done than the Indian would do. If the scout Pardaloe tried to help the stalk he might only spoil things. They must wait and lick their hopeful chops.

"What's keeping him half an hour like this?" grumbled Pardaloe. "Half an hour nothing, Ben. Patience," counseled Bowie.

her do what she wants in Asia, Japan will attack us.

Certain people in Washington say if we get into war with Japan we can't help Britain. And so it goes.

Washington Emphasizes Defense, Not Offense

Just now Washington isn't as warlike as it sounds. The emphasis is on defense, not offense. However, there are conflicting views as to what White House opinion, said this: "The United States has to play a cautious game. Our job now is to keep out of war. Aid Britain all we can. As long as the British navy controls the seas Japan can't hurt us."

Another man who speaks for another group which is supposed to reflect White House opinion, said this: "The United States has to play a cautious game. Our job now is to keep out of war. Aid Britain all we can. As long as the British navy controls the seas Japan can't hurt us."

If that policy is followed, and I think most observers here believe it will be no matter who is elected President, we will simply reply to any further unfriendly moves on the part of Japan by economic measures. We have cut off some of her vital needs. We can cut off more.

And heaven knows what the ladies could accomplish if they suddenly quit buying silk stockings. That's Japan's chief income—raw silk—and if they couldn't sell it to us, the Japanese would have to let their silkworms turn up their toes and die—and you know something pretty bad is supposed to happen when a worm turns.

French Ambassador Has Hard Job

It is hard to find out whether you are at war and if so, with whom, these days. Of course, we are at peace with France. At least we recognize the French ambassador, the suave and amiable Henri Hays.

He has a very hard job because, as everybody knows, the government of Vichy has about the same relationship to the French people as French perfume has to a piece of Limburger cheese. The dachshund's tail wags the French puddle.

And the United States government, which can't admit officially that this is true, acts just as if it knew it all the time. It has frozen French financial holdings in this country. It is as hard for the French government to draw on funds invested here as it is for a Hollander or a Belgian or the citizen of the other occupied countries to get their money—which doesn't make them angry either.

Some Hollanders instructed their agents here not to pay out their funds to anybody even if they themselves write letters ordering this done. For, of course, the Nazis could force the owner to order the securities sold and then confiscate the funds and use it themselves.

Well, one of the many ticklish assignments of Monsieur Henri Hays is to try to get the government to loosen up on those French investments. Of course, some funds can be drawn upon for special purposes such as the expenses of the embassy. And there has been a worried rumor that the United States government might have to turn the entire amount over.

Predict Balanced Budget for 1943

With congress and the defense commission bent on seeing that the money appropriated for national defense gets put to work, all the talk is about what's going out and very little about what's coming in. You haven't heard a thing about balancing the budget recently, have you? Well, you will anon. Perhaps before this item meets your eye. For the experts say that we are going to have a $15,000,000,000 budget in 1943 and what is more we are going to be able to balance it.

How will this feat be accomplished? Simply through normal taxes, they tell us. Production and national income will mount so fast owing to pyramiding defense expenditures that normal taxes will bring in enough money to get the dizzy old budget.

This statement comes, not from starchy-eyed optimists but from fishy-eyed financial experts who are paid to get the low-down for their no-less fishy-eyed banker clients.

The capital has felt many repercussions of the war and naturally broadcasters suffer. Recently Earl Godwin, one of my colleagues, broadcast a London dispatch which started quite a controversy. William Dean Hassett, meticulous and scholarly member of the White House staff, insists that not long ago this is the way the dispatch reached his usually sharp New England ears.

"Ambassador Kennedy had a narrow escape today when the Germans dropped an incendiary blonde near the American embassy."

Defense Contracts Exempt From Hours' Act Provisions

WASHINGTON.—Defense requirements permit exemption of entire contracts from the provisions of the Walsh-Healey law, according to L. Metcalfe Walling, administrator of the department of labor.

Walling explained that the law was carefully framed to avoid rigidity, and that any employer was permitted to work his employees "as many hours beyond 40 as he cares to without asking permission of anybody as long as he pays the overtime rate of time and one-half."

"In addition to that," he said, "if for some reason a particular employer and the contracting agency of the government feel that the public interest requires that a contract be performed outside the provisions of the Walsh-Healey act, the department of labor has the power to exempt the entire contract."

World Bristles With War Talk As America Arms for Defense

U. S. Trains Conscript Army and Prepares for Action; Germany, Italy, Japan Present Solid Front, Assume Militant Attitude.

By BAUKHAGE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Baukhage, NBC Commentator, whose voice on the Farm and Home Hour is heard daily by many of our readers, is the author of the following Washington column. Soldier, writer and broadcaster, for the last quarter of a century, Baukhage has covered foreign and domestic news from all parts of the United States and principal capitals of Europe.

WASHINGTON.—It is just about as far from the executive offices of the White House on Pennsylvania avenue to the broadcasting studio as it was from the other day Spruce street back home to the store where my mother used to send me for a loaf of bread (and a stick of "lickerish" if I had an extra penny). It was on my way to the store one day that I first saw a live man wearing the uniform of the United States. It was my Cousin Ned just starting off for the Spanish-American war in his sailor suit.

I've seen a lot of uniforms since, on the avenue in Washington, too, but I couldn't help thinking as I walked along the other day scuffling the dried leaves that had fallen from the immemorial White House elms, that a lot of nine-year-old kids and older ones, too, are soon going to be seeing plenty of uniforms for the first time, just the way I did, 40 years ago.

Right now that is something that Washington and every other city, town and cross roads in the country have in common. In the corridors of the marble buildings beside the Potomac they are talking about the same thing that they are on Main street and at the general store. I wouldn't be surprised if certain gentlemen in certain foreign capitals were talking about the same thing, too: Our new citizen army.

Need for Conscript Army in Peacetime

There are certain things about conscription that people are thinking about. According to a lot of letters I get, what many people want to know is why we need a citizen army in peacetime.

I put that up to a military man and this is the way he answered me: "Speed is what counts in an army today. We aren't calling out these boys to fight anybody. We are calling them now to train them so they'll be ready if we ever need them. The United States can always raise a big army if war is ever declared. But neither we nor any other country can raise a trained army overnight—and a lot can happen in the night these days. What we want to do is train men for a reserve. They will still be a part of our defense after their active training is over."

"If this war ends and a disarmament agreement is reached with all nations we won't need to train anybody any more. Meanwhile these men when they are through their year's service will go home and slip back into their niches as civilian life. But if a war comes they can step into the ranks over night as they would if we were in danger anyhow. But they will step back as trained soldiers, not war recruits."

That seemed to me a new way of looking at it. It explains why there is a need now. A fire engine wouldn't be much use if you had to teach the firemen how to use it after the house started burning.

Triple Alliance Powers Have Belligerent Attitude

Is our house actually in danger of catching on fire now?

Well, I am a reporter, not a prophet. The profit motive isn't overemphasized in the reporting business. Furthermore right now the air in these parts is so full of political speeches and other war talk, just as it is out your way, that you can hardly see across the Potomac on a clear day. The political speeches are so belligerent and the war-talk, especially what we are getting from Rome, Berlin and Tokyo is so political, it takes a fine-tooth comb to separate them.

A dispatch from Rome says the axis doesn't want to get us into war and wants to stop our aid to Britain. Berlin says that if we attack Japan, Germany and Italy will attack us. That would get us into the war which Rome says the axis doesn't want.

Tokyo says that if we don't let America is arming rapidly, but she is arming for defense, not offense, according to Baukhage, Washington correspondent. He finds that Germany, Italy and Japan have adopted a belligerent attitude since they signed their Triple Alliance recently. Does this mean war? Baukhage believes that no one knows the answer yet. He reports that some financial experts predict the budget will be balanced in 1943.
