Chief defends officers in mooning incident

By Carol Ann Porter
Editor

An investigation continues this week into an incident in which a 9-year-old boy was arrested last Wednesday after allegedly "mooning" a Harrington police officer.

According to the police report, three children were walking in the middle of the road on Mispillion St. Harrington police officer Cpl. Scott Davis, a six-year veteran, observed that traffic had to go around the children so he told them to get out of the street.

Chief Frank G. Melvin Jr. said that one of the children, a 9-year-old from Woodside, responded by taking down his pants, grabbing his buttocks and mooning Cpl. Davis three times.

When the officer approached the child, the boy started screaming and crying, "don't arrest me. I've been in trouble before. My mother will beat me."

In order to restrain the child, he was handcuffed and put in the squad car which also had a drug enforcement dog in it.

The child, apparently afraid of the dog, began screaming louder. According to Chief Melvin, the dog was confined within a cage in the back of the car. "There is no way the dog could have hurt the child," he said.

During this time, William L. Parker Sr., 53, who lives on Mispillion St., stopped mowing his grass, walked over to Cpl. Davis and asked for an explanation of why the child was screaming and handcuffed.

While Mr. Parker was questioning Cpl. Davis, a second officer, Pltm. Mark Anderson, arrived on the scene. They were in the process of moving the child from one car to another when Mr. Parker got in the way. Pltm. Anderson has been a policeman a little more than three years.

Chief Melvin said that according to the report, Mr. Parker was hindering the officers from putting the child in the other police car. "It appeared to the police officers that Mr. Parker was trying to take the Museum worker's love of flowers grows and shows

By Carol Ann Porter
Editor

According to museum clerk, Grace Welch, the museum has received many compliments on the flowers at the museum. Mr. Bob Shultie, an employee at the museum, planted and has been caring for the flowers. They consist of red, white and salmon petunias and geraniums planted closely together. Mr. Shultie keeps them trimmed so that they will branch out and bloom more.

Although caring for the flowers at the museum is Mr. Shultie's favorite task, it is not all that he does.

He volunteered at the Harrington Museum for a year before being hired through a government funded program a year and a half ago.

Mr. Shultie, 65, also helps catalog the artifacts, acts as a tour guide and is now working on the 911 address changes for members of the Harrington Historical Society.

He was born and raised in Harrington and has lived here most of his life. His parents, Marie and Elwood Shultie, are both deceased. He has a brother, Richard Shultie, and two sisters, Doris Roberts and Deanne Ryan, all of Harrington. He has one deceased brother, Sonny Shultie.

Mr. Shultie retired from Prentice-Hall Corp. Systems, Inc. in 1987. While employed there, he performed para-legal work. During the last five years of his 20-year career, Mr. Shultie worked with computers. "With my experience in computers at Prentice-Hall, I thought I might be of some help to the Harrington Museum's computer program," said Mr. Shultie.

"I needed something to occupy my mind," he said. "I just can't sit around and twiddle my thumbs, and that's why I started volunteering at the museum."

Mr. Shultie is very interested in history and growing up in Harrington, he has much knowledge of the town's history.

"The thing that stands out in my memory the most from growing up in Harrington are the parades that we used to have," he said. "I remember the bands, the horses and the decorated bicycles in the '40s."

Mr. Shultie added that there were parades on Veterans Day and the Fourth of July. "People in those days honored their flag," said Mr. Shultie. "It's not like that nowadays."

Mr. Shultie said that he not only does the yard maintenance at the museum, but he helps his sister and brother-in-law keep their yard looking good. "I love it," said Mr. Shultie. "I love working in the flower beds."

Mrs. Welch said everyone should stop by and see what a wonderful job Mr. Shultie does with the flowers. She said that there are also five flower boxes of pansies, geraniums and vincas in front of the original museum building at 110 Fleming St. On the advice of Mr. Leonard Coryell, City Manager, another box is being purchased by Mr. Shultie to fill in a space.

This will be donated in memory of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Shultie. The first five were donated by Mrs. Dorothea Coverdale and Mrs. Grace Welch in memory of their deceased hus-

Area students learn about Delaware history the fun way

By Marie Cunningham,
Children's Librarian

Seven area students learned Delaware history the fun way recently. . . they lived it. James Grove, Michael Thompson, Thomas Lankford, Robert Baltrusch, William Lindsay, Angela Chmielewski and Jacqueline Salb attended Hands On Heritage Day Camp '97 sponsored by the Delaware Heritage Commission.

Each day of the week-long day camp began and ended on the camp's "Magic School Bus" that transported the campers to and from their various and varied historic points of destinations throughout the First State.

Once they arrived at each site, the campers' time travel really began as they embarked on activities which were representative of the time and place of each site.

Eight points of interest were visited in all. They included New Castle Courthouse, George Read II House, Delaware Agricultural Museum and Village, Trap Pond, Gov. Ross Mansion, Fort Delaware State Park, John Dickinson Plantation and Dover Air Force Base Museum.

The Lake Forest community young people, ages 11-13 years, have been particularly fortunate because Harrington area businesses and civic groups have continued to support Hands On Heritage Camp with financial contributions towards a camp scholarship fund.

The following businesses made contributions to help pay for the seven scholarships which were available for the summer of 1997:

- Taylor's Hardware
- Delmarva Power
- Graphics Unlimited
- JCPenney National Bank
- Marcus Cable
- Wilmington Trust
- Harrington Business Assoc.
- Harrington Heritage Day Committee

Because of the contributions from these businesses and organizations, 1997 turned out to be a banner year with the largest number of camp scholarships to date.

Hands On Heritage Day Camp is truly a community endeavor. Area young people enjoyed a week of statewide travel while having fun, making friends and learning Delaware history. This was all

Local historian researches history of Mason-Dixon Line

By Clarabel Walls

In October 1767, 230 years ago, the Mason-Dixon line was set by two surveyors who came from England in order to establish a boundary between Maryland and Delaware.

Beginning in 1682, because of conflicting grants, there was a long dispute between William Penn and Lord Baltimore of Maryland as to the correct owner of lands.

The dispute continued between the heirs of Lord Baltimore and William Penn. The heirs wished to end the dispute. Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon were hired to come to America and set a common line.

The surveyors arrived in Philadelphia in November 1763 and began their survey by ascertaining the most southern part of the city.

The two surveyors and a large party of assistants, ax men and guides, moved westward 31 miles to the forks of the Brandywine where they planted a rose-quartz stone.

The stone is known as the "Star Gazers' Stone." From there, the party struck on a line south to a point which was to be the northeast corner of Maryland. Guided by stars, they began a trail through wilderness placing double-crown stones at five mile intervals. Their journey covered 230 miles and ended four years later in October 1767.

Delaware's northern boundary was established as an arc extending from the northeast corner of Maryland to the Delaware River. Its axis was the cupola of the New Castle Courthouse.

Killen's Pond is site of DSHA's 8th Annual Picnic

By Carol Ann Porter
Editor

The Delaware State Housing Authority held their 8th Annual Picnic at Killen's Pond on Wednesday, July 30.

More than 450 youngsters and adults who live in the DSHA-owned affordable rental housing sites were on hand to enjoy the day's festivities, food and fun.

The picnic appropriately named "Unity in the Community" began at 9:45 a.m. and ended at 2:30 p.m. at the state park in Felton.

According to Cyndi Marshall, Chief of Community Relations for DSHA, once each year, her department hosts a picnic for residents of affordable rental housing sites in Kent and Sussex counties.

This year's picnic was one of the largest they have hosted. "It's a fun day at which residents of the various affordable housing sites get to know one another," said Ms. Marshall.

On hand to share in the day's festivities were cartoon characters "Happy Tiger" and "Top Hat Cat."

There were educational and fun activities including police-sponsored events, facepainting, volleyball, adult bingo, softball and other games.

Lunch was served to everyone in attendance, and then for a happy ending to a wonderful day of fun and educational activities, it was off to the waterpark for the picnic-goers.

child away from them," said Chief Melvin. "Initially, Mr. Parker struck one of the officers in the chest and that caused the officer to arrest Mr. Parker for hindering prosecution."

Chief Melvin added that the Cap-Stun pepper spray was then used to restrain Mr. Parker from hitting anyone else. "But according to the report, it didn't work," said the chief.

"When Mr. Parker started going after the officer again, he was struck in the lower leg twice with an asp baton," said Chief Melvin. "Our officers are taught to avoid hitting a person in the head or vital organ if at all possible. So the officer was doing exactly what he is trained to do."

Mr. Parker was eventually subdued and handcuffed, taken to the station and released on a criminal summons.

"An investigation will be done with the help of the Attorney General's Office," said Chief Melvin. "I have not heard from Mr. Parker yet, and I wish he would come talk to me because he's the one who was affected by this."

According to Chief Melvin, the internal investigation will probably be done by the Milford Police Department. They will be assisted by Harrington Police Sgt. Terry Hesel. At first, it was thought that the Dover Police Department would handle the investigation, but Chief Melvin said there was a conflict.

Chief Melvin insists that his officers were only following department policy and procedure. "Believe me, these officers have suffered from all of the negative publicity," said Chief Melvin. "Both of these men are good officers. I can't think of anything negative to say about them," said the chief. "All of my men are good officers. They are handcuffed."

He went on to say that most of the people he has talked to seem to have a problem with the 9-year-old being handcuffed. "It's departmental policy to handcuff a person who has been arrested," said Chief Melvin. "If the officer doesn't handcuff the person arrested, they could be in a lot of trouble."

He said that anything could happen if the person arrested was not handcuffed. "They could try and steal the car or do something very foolish," he said. "All it is temporarily restraining anyone especially if there is a volatile situation. How could the officer drive his police car back to the station safely with the child kicking and screaming? That's why the 9-year-old was handcuffed."

Chief Melvin said that his police officers need very little supervision. "When I'm home asleep at night, I know they are doing the right thing," said Chief Melvin. "It's a shame that this had to happen, but you cannot let people take the law into their own hands."

bands, Mr. Lindale Coverdale and Mr. Carroll Welch Jr., respectively.

Many times people want to do something for the museum but don't know what to do. Besides donating artifacts, there is also a need for people to donate to beautification or time for hosting or many other things.

Museums are like any other business. They do not run without help. Much appreciation is extended to all who help from the museum personnel. Be sure to enjoy the flowers!

Your views on mooning incident

This is in response to the 9-year-old boy arrested by the Harrington police. I have no problem with the Harrington police doing their job, but when the chief said the Capstun used to spray the other defendant was no worse than water, I disagree. A Capstun is a mixture of pepper and rubbing alcohol, and it usually comes in different percentages of contents. It causes severe burning, makes your eyes shut and your mucus membranes run, and sometimes causes breathing problems. I think it's a little more serious than putting water in someone's eyes.

Will stiffer penalties reverse the trend for violent crimes committed by juveniles? I hope so. If not, what will? I don't know for sure. I think we're going to have to involve the families of juveniles. The idea of simply turning a juvenile back over to the parents or the family isn't working. The parents couldn't control the child to begin with, so what makes us think if we turn the child over it's going to work then? No way! Should juveniles be tried as adults for violent crimes? Most definitely! I've seen this done all over the world, and it should be done here as well. No juvenile should get away with any violent crime, and that's just the way it has to be. We have been too cavalier in our approach to crime stopping when it comes to juveniles, and juveniles know it. They say "I'm a juvenile, so you can't do anything to me." Regardless of what the situation is, a juvenile should at least spend a day in jail.

The juvenile who mooned the Harrington police officer should not have been turned back over to his aunt. He should have stayed in that jail until his parents came to get him. They should have explained to him that because he had no respect for the law he was staying in jail for the rest of the day. It's about time we cracked down on young offenders, or else it's going to continue and they'll get in deeper trouble as they grow older. If they lie to their parents, they'll lie to their relatives and they'll lie to the police. It's about time they paid the consequences for their actions. If their parents won't teach them, then it's the responsibility of society to make sure they get the full brunt of their actions.

I'm calling about my thoughts on the Harrington mooning incident. It's sad that a 50 pound boy had to be handcuffed by a big policeman and put into a police car with a growling, barking dog. Were the police so unprepared that they couldn't handle a little boy? I have a nephew that wears his pants like this little boy, and if he leans over to pull them up you're going to get mooned. No wonder we don't get involved to help people anymore! Look at what happened to Mr. Parker, the concerned neighbor. I feel that mother needs an apology from Chief Melvin.

I was just reading about the Harrington police arresting and handcuffing a 9-year-old boy, putting him in the car with the aggressive police dog. This was stupid to begin with, but I feel it's typical of cops. Cops in Delaware don't know how to handle the community needs or the people. All they know how to do is write speeding tickets. Delaware needs to wake up and train these police officers properly!

'Show us a little respect'

I'm calling in regard to the state and local police. I feel they've gotten to the point of having no consideration for the public. My daughter had an accident on July 11, and the trooper acted like he had authority simply because of that uniform. Courtesy and kindness are lost. We're taxpayers who pay their wages and they should, in return, show us a little respect instead of being so bitter and cold when dealing with the public. This irks me! How can we respect somebody who thinks they're an authority simply because they have a badge and a uniform? This has to change!

'Maybe the Fair needs to know this'

I read in the newspaper about the Delaware State Fair attendance dipping this year. It is our opinion and the opinion of many of our friends that we're no longer interested in going to the Fair because the costs have gone up so much. It's not really an event we feel is worthy of the fees they want to charge, like $6 for a ride for two children. We go to the Rehoboth boardwalk now for this sort of thing. Maybe the Fair needs to know this. Maybe they need to readjust their costs and the prices they charge everyone. Maybe then the attendance would go up again.

'That's all the research I need'

I'd like to respond to the Sound Off titled "There are better ways." How is the writer or other critics of the D.A.R.E. Program so well versed on the policies of the drug legalization groups they mention? When my son was going through D.A.R.E. last year, it was the only class he talked about at home. He said he wanted to be a D.A.R.E. officer when he grows up, and that's all the research I need. I'd like to thank the state troopers that teach D.A.R.E. instead of criticizing them.

Include senior talent at State Fair

I live in Newark, but I'm a State Fair stockholder and stay in Harrington for the entire run of the Fair. I have a question for the State Fair. On the free stage, why not have a talent show without prizes for senior citizens, such as was done a few years back? There's a youth talent show and a Christian talent show, but nothing that utilizes senior talent on either of the two senior days. I attended a senior talent benefit show at St. Ann's Church in Wilmington that lasted three hours, and almost every act was great. The Rehoboth bandstand has two September shows featuring plenty of excellent senior singers and musicians from Newark, Dover, Milford, Lewes and Rehoboth. If the previous Delaware State Fair senior show had been scheduled for a couple more years, I guarantee that by now the show would be a well established staple of one of the Fair's two senior citizen days.

EDITOR'S NOTE: We've forwarded your question to the Delaware State Fair, and will publish their response as soon as it is received.

NOTES & NEWS from the Harrington Business Community

by Linda Chick

Last week's column was an introduction to a series of articles concerning family-friendly work policies. This is a continuation of that discussion.

A recent symposium hosted by BPW/USA explored "The Duality of Work and Family Roles". A variety of research papers were presented with lively discussion following each presentation.

Session I, with Drs. Mary Secret and Ginny Sprang of the University of Kentucky, explored "The Impact of Family-Friendly Policies in the Workplace". They conclude that attitudes are shifting and that addressing work/life issues is becoming an integral part of the corporate culture.

How Are Attitudes Changing?

1) There is a new sub-specialty in the Human Resource field, that of Work/Life Manager. 2) There is an association of Work/Life Professionals. 3) The number of cover stories devoted to work and family has increased dramatically. 4) There is a regular "work & family beat" at major newspapers and magazines. 5) There are over 200 work/life programs and policies today. 6) Family Friendly policies are considered a business strategy.

The Secret/Sprang research project is continuing. A ranking of those employers who were surveyed is to be published and a conference will bring these businesses together to discuss findings and share policies.

Session II - Dr. Jacqueline Wallen and Pao-Yun Chen from the University of Maryland researched the "Effects of Work-Family Benefits on Absenteeism and Satisfaction with Child Care". Their findings suggest that flexible work arrangements show the strongest relationship with absenteeism while pre-tax dependent care accounts are most strongly related to satisfaction with child care.

Employers surveyed report improved recruitment, retention and productivity, less turnover and absenteeism, and enhanced corporate image as a result of instituting family-friendly work policies.

Research among employees, however, indicates low utilization of programs. This is foreshadowed by the very real concern that employees who opt for flexible work policies are taken off the "fast track" to management positions. Wallen concluded that more research is needed to investigate the specific effects of particular work-family benefits and utilization.

Session III - "Success at Work and Family - Does Life Stage Matter?" was the research topic chosen by Yan Hu, Ph.D., and Phyliss Moen, Ph.D., of Cornell University. They created categories of employees relative to life stages.

The "Anticipatory" stage is comprised of unmarried employees from 20-30 years of age. Men and women in this group equally feel a lack of success in both work and family life.

In "The Launching Stage", employees 25-39 and married with a child under 6, both men and women report a higher feeling of success in family life, but perceive a lack of success in work life.

The "Establishing Stage" spans the ages of 35-54 with a child in adolescence. Both genders feel successful at work and at home.

The "Shifting Years" are those 50-65 with children who are leaving or already have left home. The group reports the highest feeling of success in work and family life.

Hu and Moen conclude that workers today include family life in their definition of success; and that life stage rather than gender is a previously over-looked but important factor in the perception of success.

The implication for business is that benefits must be targeted to specific lifestyles and the benefit plan to employee priorities.

Incidental to this research is the conclusion that employees bring work problems home, rather than the other way around, indicating a merging of work and family environment. An important pattern finds that workers in all life stages feel a lack of success overall. Furthermore, those who feel very successful at work are less likely to feel very successful at home or a balancing home and family life.

There is certainly more work to be done in the area of work life policies. BPW/USA will continue to create opportunities for research and education in this area.

We invite our readers to respond to this column by sending letters to The Harrington Journal, P.O. Box 239, Harrington, DE 19952 or by calling Sound Off at 629-2050 or 678-8255.

Vartan Gregorian became president of the Carnegie Corporation of New York in June. An Armenian immigrant who came to the United States 40 years ago, he earned a Ph.D. from Stanford University in California and became a college professor and administrator. After serving eight years as president of the New York Library and president of Brown University in Providence, Rhode Island, he has also served as an advisor to the Annenberg Challenge.

Gregorian has much to say about how public schools may be improved. The most profound, yet sensible, statement he makes is, "...improving them is a job for everyone from parents to college presidents."

In the March 23, 1997 edition of Parade Magazine, Gregorian lists "Ten things you can do to make our schools better."

Visit your schools; involve the grandparents; make the public school a magnet for the community; volunteer to help in your school; read to your children; give every schoolchild a library card; organize and attend shows that the children put on; recognize that too much television has a terrible effect; let our children go places; and restore the arts as a major element in education.

He added, "The core of the teaching process is and always will be the teacher ... yet too often teachers are held in low esteem. We pay them less than we pay plumbers."

ARTHROSCOPY

Arthroscopy is perhaps the greatest innovation in orthopedic surgery of this century.

The arthroscope is an instrument with an end as thin as a pencil. It contains a series of magnifying lenses and glass fibers that illuminate the joint and reflect images back to a camera. This allows the surgeon to visualize the inside of joints and to treat many intra-articular problems.

The same procedures which once required large incisions, hospitalization and lengthy recovery periods, can now be performed through tiny quarter inch incisions that don't even require stitches and produce a barely noticeable scar. They are performed on an outpatient basis and the recovery time is often as short as a few days. The pain is much less than the open procedure and is easily relieved with mild analgesic medication. In most cases, a patient can carry on normal activities within a few weeks.

Virtually every major joint can be approached through arthroscopy. As the technology becomes more refined, a greater number of joint problems can be treated in this manner. Damage to the cartilage, ligaments, bone, and tendons can be thoroughly assessed and can be partially or completely treated through arthroscopy.

When arthroscopy is performed on the shoulder, elbow, or wrist, a sling may be required for a short period. Arthroscopic procedures involving the knee or ankle may require crutches initially but are usually discarded in a few days.

The accuracy of arthroscopy diagnostically surpasses all other available tests in determining joint pathology, including MRI. In total costs, the arthroscopic procedures are far less expensive than traditional open procedures. The arthroscope is indeed a powerful tool in the surgeon's armamentarium to treat disease and when combined with laser technology, gives the surgeon even greater capabilities to treat the joint problems which affect us.

Clarice S. Ward celebrates 90th birthday

Once more the flags were proudly flown on that wonderful day, "Mom's" Birthday and Flag Day.

A most momentous and surprise occasion was held in honor and celebration of the 90th birthday of Clarice S. Ward, at the Fellowship Hall of the Asbury United Methodist Church in Harrington, on June 14th.

The large hall seated all the family, friends and guests, but was overflowing with love, hugs and happiness.

The guest of honor, called Mom, Mom-Mom, Mom-Mom Grapes, Great-Grandmother, and Great-

Great-Grandmother, was hugged, kissed, squeezed and teased by her children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren, all of whom are living and most of whom were present.

After thanking God for the many blessings He has showered upon this family, everyone enjoyed a very delicious catered meal.

Introductions were made of guests, friends and neighbors, all of which applied to State Rep. Bobby Quillen, who spoke and made several presentations from state and federal dignitaries.

The birthday cake was delivered with a chorus of "Happy Birthday," after which speeches chiding and honoring her were given.

While reminiscing about this "SUPERWOMAN" continued, flashing cameras kept up the excitement until the party shifted to the McKnatt's on Simmons St.

All of these festivities had been preceded by a cookout at the home of Becky McKnatt on Friday evening, and were followed up by a breakfast at the Bonsall's in Delmar on Sunday morning.

line forming the boundary between the northern part of Maryland and Pennsylvania was used as the boundary line between the north and the south when the states split over the slavery issue.

Originally, Mason and Dixon had intended to heard further west. The expedition was halted when Indians refused to let them pass.

William Penn's lands known as the "Three Lower Counties on the Delaware," became the state of Delaware. This was verified by the trans-peninsular line stones which marked earlier the division between Penn and Lord Baltimore's lands.

The lands north of the line which extended 69 miles east and west from "Cape Henlopen" (Fenwick Island now) to the Chesapeake Bay, were granted to Penn and became the state of Delaware. Lands to the south and west became the state of Maryland.

From the middle point of the early transpeninsular line, Mason and Dixon ran the north-south boundary which forms the western border of the state of Delaware.

This boundary located between Delaware and Maryland is located a few miles west of Harrington in the vicinity of the Judge White home. Simple limestone markers were used to mark the line. Double-crown stones were placed every five miles. Harrington is proud of its colonial history.

History -

made possible through local contributions towards the camp scholarships.

The administration of the program was a collaborative effort by the Harrington Public Library, the Harrington Historical Society and Lake Forest W.T. Chipman Middle School.

Selection of scholarship recipients was based on school performance with an emphasis on social studies, demonstration of good citizenship and library membership. Six campers are public school students and one camper is home-schooled.

When asked if they would recommend Hands On Heritage Day Camp, all seven campers replied, "Yes!"

There was only one reported disappointment, and that was the cancellation of the blacksmithing activity due to the illness of the instructor.

A special activity at the Harrington Public Library is being planned where campers will demonstrate the technique of marblizing. The number of hands touched by Hands On Heritage continues to grow. . . so pass it on.

Prospect U.M. Church

"These things said he, and after that he saith unto them our friend Lazarus sleepest; but I go, that I may awake him out of sleep." (John 11:11)

Rev. James Carmean Jr. is the minister at Prospect United Methodist Church, which is located five miles west of Harrington on Route 14 in Vernon, DE. We have Sunday School for all ages at 8:45 a.m. and Worship Service is at 9:45 a.m. Please join us for worship.

On Sunday, August 3, Terry Woodward was greeter and Albert Wright was candle lighter. The Introit by the choir was "I Was Glad". They sang "Fill My Cup, Lord" for the Introit. Kerry Woodward prayed the offertory prayer and Diana and Terry Woodward were ushers.

Rev. Carmean read selected verses of scripture from John 11 and 12. His sermon title was "Fellowship". Lazarus was very ill and his sisters, Mary and Martha, had sent someone to go and tell Jesus and ask Him to come and heal Lazarus. Jesus did not go right away, but stayed in the place where He was for two more days. When Jesus got there the people told Him He was too late, that Lazarus had already died and had been dead four days. God tried to comfort the family and friends and tried to make them understand God is never too late. He told the people to roll away the stone from the tomb and He called in a loud voice for Lazarus to come forth, and Lazarus came out of the tomb alive. Christ is calling us today to rise up and worship Him.

Communion was observed in our church.

Aug. 20 - 6 p.m. Picnic on the lawn.

Harrington Baptist Church News

"And gather us from among the nations, to give thanks to thy hold name, and glory to thy praise. Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, from everlasting to everlasting; and let all the people say, Amen, praise the Lord!" (Psalm 106:47-48)

Scripture tells us in Romans 14:11-12 "As I live says the Lord, Every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall give praise to God."

So then each one of us shall give account of himself to God.

Harrington Baptist Church under the leadership of our Pastor Bob Good invites you to come and worship with us each week as we give thanks to this wonderful Lord and Savior to whom we bow the knee and give Him praise for our salvation. No one is going to escape confessing that Jesus Christ is Lord, either to salvation or damnation. So we pray for you that you will come, listen to the message of our pastor and confess your sins and plead for forgiveness before it is too late.

Our church is located on East Liberty Street, across from the Armory. Our phone number is 398-3373. Everyone is welcome.

Pilgrim Chapel News

Paul Baker opened the Sunday School service, Homer Sherwood led us in song, and Leon Smith led us in prayer. Sherman Mayle presented the lesson, "A Glimpse of Kindness". The scripture focus and background was from the book of Ruth. Naomi had a husband and two sons and they, faced with famine in Bethlehem, moved to Moab. Naomi's husband died, leaving her with the two sons. They eventually both married and lived in Moab for about ten years. Both sons died and Naomi faced the losses.

Naomi had decisions to make and decided to return to Judah her home land, the daughters-in-law left with her. During the trip, Naomi bid each of them to return to their own mother's home and to find rest in another husband. One (Orpah) with deep love and pain chose to obey her mother-in-law. The other (Ruth) made her decision to stay with Naomi and proclaimed in part, whither thou goest, I will go, Where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God.

The shadow of death turned into the brightness of life. This was a loyal, loving friendship.

St. Bernadette's Church News

The Communities of St. John the Apostle in Milford and St. Bernadette's in Harrington welcome three new staff members: John Gendivlas, Paulette R. Cotnoir, and Irma Barriga.

Irma Barriga assumed her position as Pastoral Associate to the Hispanic Community on the 1st of July. Originally from Peru, Mrs. Barriga most recently served in New Jersey and New York. She brings with her a wealth of experience in addressing the varied needs of the Hispanic community, including social work, migrant education, as well as evangelization and catechesis.

Paulette R. Cotnoir, a native of Delaware, joins our staff this month as Director of Religious Education. Ms. Cotnoir has been employed in the New England area for the last 10 years and has an extensive background both as an educator and administrator.

John Gendivlas, our Director of Music will also be arriving during the month of August. Mr. Gendivlas comes to us from York, Pennsylvania, with a history in teaching and directing music, administering music programs as well as an expertise in choral directing and keyboard.

As you begin your ministry with us we look forward to your sharing with us your many gifts and talents. Again, welcome to the communities of St. John's/St. Bernadette's and to the larger communities of Milford and Harrington.

language of Satan. Lying is Satan's native tongue. Satan is the father of lies. Satan's plan is to disrupt God's plan.

We should shun white lines and not play games - one lie leads to another and another to cover up. Example: how close your golf ball came to the hole - how big the fish you caught was - yes, "I always go to church" when you really mean on Easter or Christmas. Next comes the stretching of a story about your neighbor!

Truth is right, we should maintain a life of truth - honesty.

1. Learn the truth
2. Love the truth
3. Live the truth

God takes sin seriously and bearing false witness to our neighbor is sin. We are called to maintain truth.

Next Sunday School will be 9:30 a.m. and Worship at 10:40 a.m., evening service at 6 p.m. Rev. Scott will be speaking in Millsboro at 7:30 p.m. at Careys Camp on Wednesday evening. Call the church for more information.

Calvary Wesleyan Church News

This week is Jr. High Camp at Denton Camp in Maryland. We have several teens from Calvary attending. Next week, the Sr. High camp will begin.

Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. the Adult Bible Study will be held in the church with Pastor Tim Isley. There will be no Youth meeting because of the camps. The Wednesday night study will be in the book of James - Growing Toward Integrity series: When the Mirror Doesn't Lie James 1:19-27.

Vacation Bible School will be August 17-22 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. This year the children will go on an exciting adventure. They will be discovering hidden treasure, tasting camp food, experiencing an adventurous trip through the desert and getting to know God's love and how He keeps His promises. Call 398-3618 for more information and to register. The only warning we would issue is that the children may be faced with eating only manna and running from an irritable camel!! Everyone is welcome. Register today!!

Sunday, August 10 - 9:30 Sunday School, 10:45 Morning Worship, 6 p.m. Evening Worship. Nursery is available for morning services.
