

MANY TREES MOVED ALONG STATE ROADS

Nearly Thousand Trees and Plants Replanted During the Past Year

WORK TO BE CONTINUED THIS YEAR

In line with its policy of trying to save desirable trees along the highway, whenever possible, the State Highway Department has moved and transplanted nearly 1000 trees and plants during the past year.

Much of the work was done during the past winter in connection with road widening and relocation; along the dual highway location between Smyrna and Dover nearly 200 trees ranging from 1 to 22 inches in diameter having been successfully moved.

One of the largest which was successfully moved was a maple which was 30 feet tall, 22 inches in diameter, weighed close to fifteen tons and was moved a distance of 60 feet at the intersection of the Brenford road and the duPont Highway.

In addition to trees, shrubs and plants were also moved and desirable hedges saved where it was necessary to remove them in the course of widening or to secure clearer vision at intersections and at other dangerous locations.

$22,000 RUM SEIZURE AT FARM NEAR LEIPSIC

Smuggled liquor, valued by Federal officials at about $22,000, was seized Tuesday afternoon in an abandoned farm house on the Leipsic Creek, one mile from the Leipsic Bay by the coordinated forces of the Customs Department, Coast Guards and Bureau of Industrial Alcohol.

The seizure consisted of 125 fifteen-gallon kegs believed to contain malt whiskey, cognac and rum, thought to have been smuggled into the country by rum runners from St. Pierre-Miquelon, Nova Scotia.

According to Federal officials, this is the second large seizure of smuggled liquor in this country since repeal. No arrests have been made, but all Federal agencies in this area are on the trail of what they believe may result in arrests.

The contraband was taken to Wilmington the following morning and docked at the Marine Terminal. From there it was transported to the U. S. Customs House at Sixth and King streets, where it will await future sale by the government.

Federal officials say that each keg is valued in the open market at $175. The seizure is regarded as outstanding evidence that rum row and runners have not disbanded.

The capture is attributed to the work of the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol in this State which has been in operation for only about two weeks.

The men, Earl Matthews and William Pinder, formerly with the Prohibition Department, received a tip as to the cache of liquor Monday when they learned that Coast Guard cutters from Cape May had chased a rum boat up the Delaware Bay in the early Sunday morning. The rum boat escaped in spite of the vigilance and dogged search carried on by the cutters.

Tracing one clue to another, Matthews and Pinder finally located the smuggled liquor in an abandoned farmhouse on the Leipsic Creek, one mile from the Delaware.

The rum runners apparently thought they were safe in their hiding place, because the farmhouse is surrounded by a veritable moat-like marsh and is not accessible by automobile.

no longer hampered by the regulations of the old prohibition service, summoned to their aid the Coast Guards and U. S. Customs Department.

The three agencies of the Federal Government worked in an excellent co-operation and Agents Pinder and Matthews, with Clyde Beach, of Philadelphia, special agent for the U. S. Customs, accompanied the Coast Guard cutter No. 110 to the hiding place. The cutter was in command of Boatswain's Mate David Hendrix.

They found the kegs of liquor stacked high in the old farmhouse, where no effort had been made to conceal the goods. For eight hours the men, including the crew of the cutter No. 110, worked to load the ship with the kegs. They had to roll the kegs in a dory and then row the dory to the cutter.

The barrels, many of them muddy, had very little to distinguish them. Some of the kegs bore the names: "Vatted Highland and Islay Malt." Others had the words, "Sheriff's Islay Malt," and the remainder had large Bs stamped on the ends. One barrel that was opened for investigation was said to contain cognac.

FREDERICA

One of Frederica's old land marks was removed last week when the old Darby blacksmith and wheelwright shops were torn down. The removal of them brings to mind when Mr. Warren Darby owned string teams of mules and timber wheels to haul logs to the wharf, where they were rafted down the Murderkill River to the Delaware Bay and to Philadelphia.

The shops were conducted under the name of Minner & Patterson until the senior member retired, and later Mr. Patterson has lived in retirement. The shops were used as a garage for trucks until they became unsafe.

Sunday evening the choir gave two special renditions. Two selections were sung by the young people. Mrs. Hugh Vincent sang a solo that was appreciated. Reading by Mrs. Charles Malin, of Philadelphia, fitted in the program, receiving considerable commendation.

Supervisor of Schools G. Roland Miller has been appointed superintendent of Trinity M. E. Sunday School, succeeding Ira Garbutt, who resigned owing to illness.

THE NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION

Mrs. Orville R. Wright, secretary-treasurer of the Kent County Farm Loan Association, received word today from Wm. I. Myers, Governor of the Farm Credit Administration, Washington, D. C., that Federal land bank loans and land bank commissioner's loans will be made in the future through the Federal land bank in bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation, which bonds are guaranteed by the United States Government both as to principal and interest, which will be at the rate of 3 1-4 per cent. per annum for the bonds to be issued at this time. Those bonds will take the place of the cash distribution in the disbursement of the unclosed loans previously approved by the Federal land banks.

The bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation, according to the statement by Governor Myers, will have behind them not only the unconditional guarantee of the Federal Government as to both principal and interest, and the capital of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation amounting to about $200,000,000, but also the consolidated bonds of the Federal land banks issued in exchange for the bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation and the mortgages accepted by the land bank commissioner as security for loans.

Governor Myers assured Secretary Wright that the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation bonds will be an attractive investment. "They will be as readily marketable as bonds of the United States Government and they will be quoted in all of the principal markets," he continued. "Holders who have to dispose of these bonds should not sell them without first ascertaining their real market value."

The Governor particularly stressed the fact that country bankers probably will be the largest investors in these securities since the creditors of farmers who are being refinanced may not all be in the position where they can hold the bonds so acquired and will find it necessary to sell them. Secretary Wright states that these bonds, which will be tendered to farmers' creditors in payment of their debts, are exempt from Federal, State, municipal and local taxation, except surtaxes and estate, inheritance and gift taxes. They are lawful security for fifteen-day borrowings by member banks of the Federal Reserve system. They are also lawful investments for all trust, public and fiduciary funds of which the deposit or investment is under the authority or control of the Government. The payments of the interest on these bonds and the repayment of their principal are guaranteed by the United States, which means that if the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation should ever be unable to meet the bonds, the Treasury will assume such payments.

"These bonds will be issued in denominations of $100, $500, and $1,000. However, amounts less than $100 will be disbursed in cash. For example, a loan of $985 would be made in a $500 bond, four $100 bonds and the rest in cash. In addition, to provide for certain debts, such as taxes which cannot be paid in bonds, cash covering the required amounts will be provided. Loans which have been applied for and approved, but on which the cash has not been paid out, as well as those approved by the bank in the future, will be financed on the above basis. This arrangement in no way disturbs or alters the other provisions of the loans. The interest rate on new loans will continue to be 4 1-2 per cent. for the emergency period when made through a national farm loan association and 5 per cent. when made directly by the bank."

STRANGE, BUT TRUE
"Have you noticed a very odd thing about blunt people?" Freeman asked his friend.
"Can't say that I have," said the latter. "They are certainly rather embarrassing at times."
Freeman nodded pensively.
"Yes, but hasn't it ever struck you that they are the ones who generally come to the point first?" he said.

Machine Age
"The machine age is taking away a vast number of jobs," said the mechanic.
"Don't I know it!" affirmed an office man. "It cost me my job."
"How is that?" inquired the first speaker. "You have never done any mechanical labor, have you?"
"No," he admitted, "but I got my job when the Republicans were in power; and now the Democratic machine has taken it away."

"Wish him the same, I s'pose," said Peggy.—Boston Transcript.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE TENDER HEART OF FARMER BROWN'S BOY

WHEN Nimble Heels the Jumping Mouse so unexpectedly jumped up inside the trousers' leg of Farmer Brown's boy he probably was more frightened than Farmer Brown's boy himself, and that is saying considerable. You see, for a minute or two Farmer Brown's boy didn't have the least idea whose sharp little claws those were clinging to his leg. He simply knew that there was something alive on his knee and his first thought was of a Snake. Farmer Brown's boy does not like Snakes. If he had done any real thinking he would have known that it couldn't be a Snake, for a Snake could have felt very different.

But Farmer Brown's boy acted first and thought afterwards. In times of real danger this often is the best way of doing. In times of imaginary danger it is often the other way around. Almost without knowing that he was doing it, Farmer Brown's boy brought his hand down heavily at the point where he felt those sharp little claws. Under his hand he felt a soft little body.

"Oh!" cried Farmer Brown's boy. "I'm afraid that that was Danny Meadow Mouse and that I've killed him."

Farmer Brown's boy sat down in the grass, and with his free hand carefully rolled up his trousers' leg until he could take hold of little Nimble Heels. As he drew out the dainty little brown-clothed fellow Farmer Brown's boy gave a little whistle of surprise. He had expected to see blunt-headed, stubby-tailed, stout-bodied Danny Meadow Mouse. And here in his hand was the slimmest, trimmest little mouse he ever had seen. And such a tall! He whistled again when he saw the length of that slim, tapering tail. Never before had Farmer Brown's boy seen a Jumping Mouse.

Poor little Nimble Heels lay quite still in Farmer Brown's boy's hands. You see, that had been a very hard blow that Farmer Brown's boy had struck in his surprise. Instantly a look of pity and sorrow swept over the face of Farmer Brown's boy. "You poor little fellow! I'm afraid I have killed you and I wouldn't have done that for the world," he cried.

There were tears in the eyes of Farmer Brown's boy, as he stroked the soft little body with one finger. A leg moved and then kicked feebly. Into the eyes of Farmer Brown's boy crept a look of hope. Without stopping to turn down the leg of his trousers, Farmer Brown's boy started for the Smiling Pool as fast as he could run. When he got there he dipped a little water up in the hollow of his hand and sprinkled Nimble Heels. Nimble Heels gasped a little and Farmer Brown's boy put a drop or two of water in his mouth. Nimble Heels opened his eyes. You see, he hadn't been dead after all, but he might have died if Farmer Brown's boy hadn't tried to bring him back to life.

"I'm so sorry," murmured Farmer Brown's boy as he stroked the little brown mouse. "I'm so sorry. I guess now I'd better take you home so as to be sure you quite recover." And so it was that Nimble Heels began a long journey.

CHOICE THINGS TO EAT

A QUICK hot bouillon may be made by using a teaspoonful of the prepared vegetable paste, dissolved in a cupful of hot water. Any other flavor may be added if desired—a slice of lemon or a bit of onion extract.

Tomato Canape.

Cut bread one-fourth inch thick and make into rounds with a cookie cutter. Spread with butter and then with mayonnaise; on this put a slice of peeled tomato the same size, spread with mayonnaise, edge the tomato with a ring of chopped chives inside a ring of chopped egg white and the rice of yolk to fill the center. Top with a stuffed olive or a sprig of parsley.

Cider Punch.

Beat up a glass of apple jelly to a froth, add a cupful of boiling water and a quart of cider. Flavor with nutmeg. Fill glasses with shaved ice and pour over this the punch.

Oyster Cocktail in Grapefruit Shells.
Put two tablespoonfuls of catsup, a tablespoonful of chili sauce, a dash of paprika and tabasco into a small glass with one-half dozen oysters for each cocktail. Set into the shell of half a grapefruit, surround with ice on the plate and serve. Horseradish is well liked and may be substituted for the chili sauce.

Almond Paste.

Take half a pound of blanched and ground almonds, the yolks of two eggs,

MEADOWS OF MEMORY

By ANNE CAMPBELL

A CROSS the meadows of my memory
A collie dog comes running.
The buttercups are growing happily,
The quill are sunning.
A meadow lark is whistling from the fence—

A rail fence sprawling—
And I can hear through thickets green and dense,
The crickets calling.

The butterflies are wheeling in the sun.
The locust trees are sending
Their perfume to a child—a lonely one—

Whose day is ending,
When in the West the banners of the night

Display their beauty,
A little girl will take her bedtime flight—
A tireless duty.

My room still stands within my memory.
I see each low brown rafter.
Then I remember—though I long to be
Where childish laughter
Made every house of living a refrain,
Serenely and glowing—
The house is tumbled down, and in the lane
The weeds are growing.

Learning to Protect Their Homes

ACTING on the suggestion of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the women of Bordentown, N. J., are taking up seriously the study of marksmanship for the protection of their homes and their children from the depredations of burglars and kidnapers. Lieut. Harry W. Barrick, United States army pistol and rifle champion and infantry instructor at the Bordentown Military Institute, has taken the ladies under his tutelage. Two of his promising pupils are here shown, with their children.

town so distinguished for happy marriages that the men have banded together to honor the mothers who so brought up their wives to make them happy? Is it with grateful sons-in-law that the movement started for "Mother-in-law's day"?

Sadly, no. This is how it happened: Some of Amarillo's prominent matrons, encouraged by Gene A. Howe, newspaper publisher, have organized the Mother-in-Law's club of Texas. The club's president says, "A mother-in-law is one who has brought up her daughters in such a way that they want to marry and make homes, and have enough appeal that men want to marry them."

Most of the mothers-in-law I know would be a bit embarrassed, I think, by such a movement on the part of a woman's club in their town. Mothers (and therefore mothers-in-law) are people who do not have to advertise. They give as they do of themselves because that giving is a part of them. And there is nothing they want out of life, as a rule, which "selling themselves" could obtain for them.

Crop Tests Made All Over Nation

Progress Noted in Breeding Carrots, Onions; Study Potato Yields.

Vegetable growers will be interested in some of the research work now going on in many parts of the country. More than fifty new tests with vegetable crop plants were reported at a recent meeting of specialists in Boston. Work done in California on vine crops, such as squash, shows the truth of the old belief the earlier the fruit is harvested, the greater the number of flowers and fruit received from the plant.

California workers also reported progress in breeding watermelons, carrots, and onions. Now they want a watermelon that resists wilt, and other diseases, but which at the same time keeps its quality. They are also breeding for highly-colored, smooth, tender carrots.

Potato yields suffer sometimes from lack of enough magnesium in the soil. The leaves usually turn light green or yellow as a result. One Virginia scientist believes chemical analysis of the lower leaves of the plant will show whether nitrogen or magnesium causes poor yields and change in color of the leaves. He adds that experiments show that placement of fertilizer in the soil may injure rather than aid the seed. When cut surfaces of potato seed pieces come in contact with fertilizer, heating is prevented, and injury or killing of the seed results. Whole seed does not suffer this type of injury.

Pasture Improvement Important for Farmers

Pasture improvement is a profitable undertaking on southeastern Ohio farms if live stock are kept to utilize the extra forage. D. R. Dodd finds after several years of demonstrations in fertilizing, liming and seeding these hillside: From these tests he makes these deductions:

Re-seeding of runout pasture at the time of applying lime and fertilizer is not necessary unless desirable pasture plants cover less than 5 per cent of the ground area or unless quick results are desired.

Fertilizers not only greatly increase the yield but also gradually change the kind of vegetation occupying the land.

Where capital is limited, the largest return per dollar invested may be obtained from lime and superphosphate.

The largest net return, however, comes from a complete fertilizer. Potash in addition to phosphate alone is not worthwhile as a general rule. Where nitrogen and phosphate are used, the returns from additions of potash are much greater.

Nitrogen is by far the most effective of the three common elements in increasing yield. Returns from it, however, are rather limited unless phosphorus and potassium are also present in abundance.—Ohio Farmer.

Ice Requirements

To compute the annual ice requirements of a dairy farm in the northern states, if the ice house is moderately good and shrinkage from melting is not more than 30 per cent, half a ton of ice per cow is sufficient to cool the cream and hold it at a low temperature for delivery two or three times a week if suitable cooling tanks are used. If whole milk is to be cooled, the quantity of ice stored should be increased to one and a half tons per cow, says the United States Department of Agriculture. For the needs of the average family on a general farm at least five tons of ice are necessary for the season and, because of melting losses, this amount is about the minimum to be considered, even for a well-insulated ice house.

Long Hitch Increases Draft

While the difference between a 10-foot team hitch and 100-foot hitch is considerable, it is not as great as people make out and it is all about that a team cannot drag a 94-pound bag of cement at the end of a 100-foot rope. They can drag it easily, but it would tire them much more rapidly because of the poorer footing. This same reason also explains why the front team on a tandem hitch tires so much more than the rear team; the flatter angle at which they must pull gives them a poorer footing and a poorer chance to exert their strength.—Wallaces' Farmer.

Longer Ears of Corn

For 30 years Jacob Sass, an Iowa grower of prize corn, has been trying to add to the length of ears. His efforts have rewarded him with ears of the grain 10 inches in length, which is 3 inches longer than normal. He even produced some measuring 15 inches, and says the day is not far off when he will be able to show 18-inch corn. For planting, Sass selects the kernels of his longest corn as seed.

Sheep Industry Is Old

The sheep industry is very, very old. Sacred history tells us the shepherds and their flocks were 'round about in the hills when Christ was born. The industry was very old even in those days and a most important one. As time progressed and civilization spread to the west across Europe, the sheep population expanded. In all of the great wars of history the soldiers wore wool and ate meat. As the civilized nations grew in importance their sheep industry advanced.

Moving Large Trees

During the winter large trees are frequently transplanted. Unless adequate equipment is available it does not pay to move such trees. Smaller trees are easier to move, and the transplanting does not disturb the roots and set them back as much as it does the large trees. For this reason, small trees will frequently develop and grow fast enough to overtake the large trees. Most shade trees should be transplanted when they are 6 to 10 feet in height.

Odd Changes Made in American Place Names

It does not seem probable that there will be any tourist rush for Mendicant Ridge or Starved Creek these days, but if anyone should be curious about these strange appellations he may find complete enlightenment in "Uncle Sam's Handbook on Geographic Names." For 44 years the United States Geographic board has been chasing down peculiar place names and settling disputes regarding their spelling, pronunciation, origin and meaning. Its most recent publication, for which some one in the State department chose the foregoing pretentious title, contains 25,000 novel reports and decisions of this character.

One of the most ironic cases of evolution in nomenclature was found at Breteche creek, Wyoming. This stream, flowing into the Shoshone river, was named for Paul Breteche, an early settler of French ancestry. The original pronunciation was "Bre-tehshay," but with naive disregard for the feelings of the discoverer, local residents have twisted the name into Britisher creek. The geographic board insists upon wrenching it back to the original.

Likewise our weakness for Americanization of names has made "Ozark" out of the French "Aux Arce" and "Key West" out of the Spanish "Cayo Huesco."

With a finality that admits of no dispute the board has taken the occasional "h" out of "Behring." The Bering sea was named for Capt. Ivanovich Bering, whose explorations in 1741 gave the world its first knowledge of Alaska. But Gulph Creek, Pa., retains its historical spelling. In spite of the moderns who would have it mere "Gulf," School teachers of New England need not be further bewildered by the 133 different ways of spelling Lake Win-nesaukee if they will recognize the authority of Uncle Sam's experts.

Tracking down these picturesque names to their original source appears to be a great sport. But after nearly half a century the geographic board appears to be surfeited by this type of local color. People who christen towns, rivers, mountains, etc., in the future are respectfully asked to choose names which "are short, euphonious, and in keeping with the character and traditions of the region," and to preserve the story of their derivation.—Washington Post.

All Meteors Cold When They Reach the Earth

Meteor authorities, due no doubt to the readiness of ordinary folk to believe practically anything of stones from the sky, are among the most skeptical people on earth. Recently we reported their disbelief in yarns about near-collisions between meteors and airplanes. Now it must be revealed that they also put no credence in yarns about houses, haystacks or other objects being set afire by them.

Dr. Charles C. Wylie of the University of Iowa, writing in Popular Astronomy, says there has never been an authenticated instance of a meteor setting fire to anything. Moreover, the popular idea that meteors are incandescent when they strike the earth is likewise an error. Their surfaces may reach incandescence for a few seconds high up in the atmosphere, but they are soon slowed down so much that passage through the air cools rather than heats them. They stop glowing at an altitude of several miles, and are cold when they strike.—Literary Digest.

MOTHER-IN-LAW'S DAY

THE town of Amarillo, Texas, has added a new holiday to the calendar: "Mother-in-Law's day!"

The slogan of the town on that day was "A mother-in-law is a mother who has made good." The mayor issued a proclamation calling for city-wide observance. The lending theater gave entertainment, and business houses contributed favors and prizes. Awards went to the oldest and youngest, the prettiest mother-in-law, and the one with the greatest number of children married.

Well! What do we think about that?

The important question, it seems to me, is who started it. Is Amarillo a

After a service of more than ten years as pastor of the Harrington Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. E. H. Collins has retired from the conference and will make his home near Wilmington. For many years he has been not only a pastor, but one of Harrington's most public-spirited citizens. As a worker for the community, he has ranked with the best. The best wishes of Harrington go with him.

"Yet Solomon, in all his glory, was not arrayed like these." This, dear reader, refers to the official dog catchers of Delaware. A position of comparative abasement, one would think, would call for a less conspicuous form of apparel, but these dog catchers strut up and down the State, their sartorial flamboyancy putting to shame the ornate regalia of the High-Go Muckamarene, Chief Gazaboo of the colored lodge, "The Sons and Daughters of I Will Arise."

Col. Jim Wickes, of the Delaware State News, in editorial comment on the annual banquet of the Harrington Chamber of Commerce banquet, is under the impression that this organization is a new one. It was organized twelve years ago and the recent banquet was the tenth given by the organization. These banquets are delightful affairs, because the ablest after-dinner speakers in America appear on the programs and they attract people from all parts of the East. We invite you to be our guest at the next one, Col. Jim, and you may see just how we do things down here, sans manuscripts.

Harrington's Chamber of Commerce (Spet in Wilmington Sunday Star)

Harrington may not be a very big town from a territorial standpoint, nor the most populous burg in this strip of Diamond domain, but when it comes to reaching about its own industrial egg-laying abilities, it is certainly capable of sustaining the reputation of the Blue Hen's brood.

If one is skeptical about the ability of the Harringtonians to carry on through this blue business period of our national history, a visit to the annual banquet of Harrington's Chamber of Commerce would drive these blues "helter skelter" from his thoughts, and make him feel that depressions are only mental misadventures for which Harrington has a complete and unfailing antidote. Yes, the town, if we are to believe the stories told, is inoculated against any and all business slumps.

It was my good fortune to sit at the table at the recent political rally at the Hotel Du Pont, with the editor and publisher of the Harrington Journal, J. Harvey Burgess. He slipped a ticket into my hand and said, "Come to Harrington, on the 27th and see what we can do." Well, in company with Mr. A. O. H. Grier, associate editor of the Evening Journal Every Evening, and Mrs. Grier I went, with the result that I spent one of the most pleasant of evenings and renewed many acquaintances made years ago as a member of the General Assembly.

But the banquet and entertainment that followed more than compensated for the sixty-four miles of role, each way, and through a pouring rain, too. From the moment when Toastmaster Burgess rapped for order until the benediction was pronounced by Professor J. C. Messner, the intervening time was check full of first class instructive and entertaining features and the feasters were chock full of Kent county turkey and all the fixin's, too.

Of course the address of the evening, and the one that the entire audience of more than two hundred persons seemed especially keyed up to hear, was delivered by Governor Charles H. Brough, of Arkansas. The subject of Governor Brough's address was "The Glory of the Old South and the Greatness of the New." Governor Brough is one of those pleasing types of gentlemen that we of the north sort of look for, indeed expect to find, in one that has gained official distinction way down yon in the land of corn and cotton. We rather expected an intellectual treat on last Tuesday night and the genial Governor from the cotton State did not disappoint. For nearly two hours Governor Brough held his audience to closest attention and he made an impression on all who heard him. While a Southerner by birth and rearing, Governor Brough is much more than a sectionalist. He was as liberal in his praise of northern ability as he was in his glorification of southern chivalry. His address was a masterpiece and it is a great pity that it could not have been broadcast to every home in Delaware.

The other speakers of the evening, of course, dwelt on local subjects and they showed in very convincing ways that Harrington is industrially "on its toes," and that its entire population is one in working for the industrial and intellectual uplift of the town.

What Delaware needs, even more than a good five-cent cigar, is a habitual criminal law. It is no curb to crime to sentence a fellow to a few days in jail after his fortieth or fiftieth offense.

Vast Wealth Ruled by Women in U. S.

Huge Inheritances Pass on Fortunes to Females.

Chicago.—The golden stream of America's wealth is gravitating into the hands of American women. The prospect of women exercising a dominant control over the nation's billions is no longer remote, for, from the wife of the wage earner, with her kitchen clutch on the family purse strings, to the great queens of inherited finance, women little by little are possessing the nation's wealth for themselves.

The days not so long ago when the country marveled over the legendary riches of Hetty Green, "first woman millionaire," have given way to everyday acceptance of the many women who now possess colossal fortunes.

Control Vast Sums.

Doris Duke, granddaughter of the late James B. Duke, is now in control of $10,000,000 of the Duke tobacco fortune. By 1936, when she will come into full control of her complete inheritance of $50,808,000, she will be the richest girl in the world.

Right now she ranks second in actual holdings to Barbara Hutton, who recently married Prince Alexis Mdivani of the Russian province of Georgia. She inherited one-third of the $58,000,000 left by her grandfather, the late Frank W. Woolworth, dime store king.

While these two girls are the most "Your Spirit Shines Through You" By LEONARD A. BARRETT William James, who was one of America's most eminent psychologists, coined the phrase, "the pragmatic test," by which he meant that experience was the test of reality. Many speakers and writers frequently wonder why the product of their skill does not merit a wide influence.

The same principle holds true in all phases of life. It is the basic law of success in the economic world. Remove confidence from business and you have bankruptcy. Faith is the essence of credit. A character loan is not common in large financial circles. What creates confidence in credit is a tested experience. Respect for integrity is the most important asset in a business man's career.

People believe in us if we believe in ourselves. It should not be difficult to persuade another to our point of view, if our argument expresses a personal belief and experience.

"Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian," said Felix to Paul—no wonder. A salesman will not get orders if he does not thoroughly believe in the value of the article he sells. A manufacturer soon loses his clientele if he falsifies the product of his factory.

In the tragedy of Macbeth we read, "Your spirit shines through you."

glistening examples of women with legendary wealth, there are thirty others in the United States currently reporting annual incomes of over $1,000,000 each. Their average income, indeed, was $2,062,190—and that means that their fortunes run into tremendous sums.

The complete astounding picture of how far the women of the United States have already come in their instinctive program of corraling the money made by men in a man's country has just been presented by economists.

Published by the University of Chicago, the survey, "Women and Wealth," directed by Mary Sydney Branch of Western college at Oxford, Ohio, shows:

Survey Gives Facts. That women millionaires are now as plentiful as men.

That women are the beneficiaries of more than half the estates left by either men or women.

That they receive more than two-thirds of the value of all the legacies through which these estates are distributed.

That an average of 88 per cent, or more than nine thousand millions of all income reported under the federal income tax, is received by women.

That of the 18,000,000 stockholders in the United States, women comprise 7,740,000.

That women, in 1928, owned more than twenty thousand millions of the total of ninety-two thousand millions worth of capital stock in all American corporations.

That 48 per cent of all those leaving enough property to be subject to inheritance tax are women.

That women annually are the recipients of 80 per cent or more of the death claims paid by life insurance companies, receiving, in 1931, the staggering total of $732,115,607.

And that they are named beneficiaries of eighty-seven thousand millions of the one hundred and nine thousand millions of life insurance outstanding.

All this, too, only a few generations from the days when women's economic status was little better than that of a child or a slave!

Whales Yield Much Oil.

The head of the average sized sperm whale will yield 12 barrels of oil from which spermaceti is manufactured. This substance, wax-like in its consistency, is prepared by boiling the oil in water to which a very weak solution of lye has been added. The product is employed in the manufacture of candles.

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

THE principal requisites for all work baskets are identical. To these each person adds other things which she finds helpful in her own sewing ventures. To her these are essentials also but since they are not to every one, they cannot be universal requisites. I am giving my idea of essentials with occasional notes of reasons and explanation.

First and foremost come needles and threads, in which category are included sewing silks, darning cottons, silks and yarns of wool or mixtures. In the fittings for this basket we shall include darning materials. However, let me add, it is a better plan to have a darning basket and a sewing basket fitted separately. Some day in the near future I am having an article on work bags, baskets, tables, screens, etc., and their various advantages. I now give fittings only.

The needles should be in assorted sizes, and kept in a needle book, preferably with several leaves, one for fine, one for medium, and another for coarse needles of the kind best suited to the person. There should be some packages of needles also in reserve.

Threads.
In white threads there should be numbers 40, 50, 70, 80, and either 90 or 100 for very fine stitchery. 1,000 is preferable to 100 cotton as it is very fine and very strong. Include a large spool of bastine cotton. This is a low-priced cheap grade of thread with an extra smooth finish, just the thing for bastine. It does not resist wear like ordinary thread, and it is inadvisable to use it in its stead. A spool of thread, 40 and 70 are needed. A spool of coarse shoe button thread may be added. It will be needed if any member of the family wears button shoes. Black and white silk are important and such other colors as are needed in sewing done at the time. Size A is right.

Scissors in at least two sizes, shears and smaller ones, will be needed. Four pairs are often included, the smallest size for snipping threads, the largest for cutting out materials. Buttonhole scissors, once essential, are no nowadays. A well-protected razor blade is recommended as a great help when ripping seams. An emery for polishing needles, and making them slip easily through textiles is a requisite not to be overlooked. Even when needles get slightly rusty, they can be restored to usefulness by running them briskly back and forth through the emery ball. Wax is another essential. This is for the thread. It smooths it and prevents its knotting. It binds together the infinitesimal filaments of strands and tends to increase the strength of the thread. Silk is not waxed. Cotton and linen are. The other requisites are tape measure, common pins, and a thimble.

Work for Spare Hours.
It is surprising the amount of sewing or fancy work which can be done in odd moments, provided the things are ready to work on, and are conveniently at hand. It is by taking advantage of such moments that mending can be gotten out of the way without ado. Stockings can be darned and tends to increase the strength of the thread. Silk is not waxed. Cotton and linen are. The other requisites are tape measure, common pins, and a thimble.

Fever Sets Record.
John town, Pa.—Temperature of nine-year-old Francis Mervine, Twin Rocks, reached 106.6 degrees, the highest ever recorded here, shortly before his death from pneumonia, physicians revealed.

Meteoric Iron in Museums.
It is estimated that there are 275 tons of meteoric iron in museums.

Gold of Vanished Race Unearthed in Panama

For a very long time gold has been known and highly valued. Ornaments of great variety and beautiful and elaborate workmanship have been found in sites belonging to the earliest known civilizations. Archeologists say that in prehistoric ages a large number of gold objects were made in Ireland and distributed over Europe. A few years ago the treasures discovered in the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, the Egyptian monarch of the eighteenth dynasty, caused a sensation throughout the world. And last autumn St. Louis was given an opportunity to see the collection of gold ornaments and gems unearthed at Monte Alban, Mexico, which had been exhibited at the Chicago exposition.

The latest treasure to come to light, or the latest to be reported, has been uncovered in the province of Coclé, Panama. In a small plot of ground near the Pacific end of the Panama canal, Harvard archeologists have excavated a great store of gold jewelry and utensils. The work has been carried on secretly for three years and the scientists now announce that they have opened about twenty of hundreds of graves of a vanished people, whose culture differed from that of the Mayas, resembling that of the most highly civilized tribes in northern Peru, and who lived in Panama about the time Columbus discovered America. Here they have discovered many thin plaques of hammered gold and ponderous personal adornments such as cuffs, necklaces and pendants, besides solid and hollow castings in the form of men and animals, all pure gold, not to mention pottery, jade,

Old Virginia City

Old-timers enjoy telling tales of the early days of Virginia City. Some go so far as to predict another "strike" and again see the boom come as it did before. When news of the Comstock lode reached the outside world, prospectors and their satellites came from far and near. The village of 1856 became a city of over 80,000 inhabitants almost overnight. Today Virginia City, while living in its past glories, is just a visiting spot for tourists. The census figures tell the story. The entire county of Storey, in which Virginia City precinct is located, shows that in 1890 there were 8,806 inhabitants. In 1880 this figure had dropped to 3,673. By 1920 there were only 1,400 inhabitants and the census of 1930 gives the entire county only 607 bona fide residents.—Pathfinder Magazine.

A Frank Statement Concerning Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

We believe the use of pills and tablets containing mineral drugs is rapidly giving way to gentle regulation of the bowels with a liquid laxative. We believe Dr. Caldwell's original prescription of fresh herbs, pure pepsin, and senna is the ideal family laxative. And we know it is a safe preparation for children and expectant mothers because it does not cause bowel strain or irritate the kidneys.

SYNOPSIS

Stephen Drake, with his four-year-old son, is rescued from a blizzard by Jim Flynn, big timber operator, whom Drake has robbed and whose property is lost. Drake, until his death, impresses on the boy, Steve, the debt they owe "Old Jim." Twenty years later, Steve meets "Young Jim" Flynn, his benefactor's son. Sent by Old Jim, incapacitated through an accident in which Kate, his daughter, is temporarily blinded, to take charge of the company—the Polaris—woods operations, the youth is indulging in a drunken spree. Hoping to do something for Old Jim, Steve hastens to the company's headquarters, finding Frantz plotting against the Flynn interests. Worshipping Frantz in a fit fight, the Polaris crew assumes that Drake is Flynn's son, and he takes charge, as "Young Jim." A photograph of Kate, which Steve finds, intrigues him immensely. Steve gains the friendship of LaFane, woods scout. Frantz discovers Drake's impersonation. Threatened with disclosure, Steve accuses Frantz of attempting to murder him, exhibiting evidence, and the man dare not act. Steve sends LaFane to find Young Jim and sober him up. Steve wins the friendship of Old Donald, who owns timber land vital to the Flynn interests and the Scotsman gives him an option for Polaris to buy his timber. Knowing of the giving of the option, and wanting the timber for a rival company, Frantz plans to put Steve out of the way, but the latter outwits him.

He said that significantly and the Laird stared at him in sharp query. "My guess would be this: that Flynn tried to buy from you and had gotten nowhere, that he knew his son was a worthless bum, that he found this fellow who makes a good enough appearance and who surely is a darned good fisherman and sent him in here with the deliberate purpose of winning your confidence and friendship."

so trusted would have had dealings with Polaris in the past, and would know Young Jim well.

When Steve re-entered his cabin on the return from town to find it in a sorry state of disarrangement he experienced a moment of great surprise. Then Frantz's words at the Laird's came back. He had boasted that Steve had no evidence against him to prove that he had attempted murder.

Sure enough; the shotgun was gone. He was chagrined at not having taken more precautions. However, he told himself, the threat which he had held over Frantz was no longer of major importance. The man could tell his story of having discovered the genuine Young Jim elsewhere in the country almost any time, now; it would make little difference to any person but Kate.

Early on a Sunday morning McNally harnessed his light team and started for town to meet the arrival due the next day.

Drake would have driven to the railroad himself but the fire hazard continued to increase and if a burning started he wanted to be on the job; furthermore, he was hoping that LaFane would come either with Young Jim or bearing word of him. He must be present to have at the earliest possible moment whatever news might be forthcoming.

Had he gone to Shoestrung himself he might have observed things that old McNally missed.

For one thing, he might have seen Frantz idling within the building, watching as Mac escorted the arrival toward the waiting wagon. He was even close enough to hear McNally say as he looked down at the brief case which was lifted in query: "Oh, that'll be all right! Jim'll likely take it right down to the Laird's. Anyhow, we got a good safe in the store to lock it up in."

"You Want Me?" She Asked So Simply and Directly That It Quite Took His Breath.

After the team trotted up into the town to have McNally's purchases loaded, Frantz hailed an automobile, parleyed with the driver and was driven northward on the Good-Bye road. The car could take him only a dozen miles before the route entered swamp country that could be handily traveled only by teams, but it completed that much of the trip before McNally had more than a start on the way home. From there Frantz went afoot, headed toward Good-Bye lake. He swam the lower river and, at night, rolled himself in a blanket taken from a pack-sack cached beneath a well-kept canoe.

Until the arrival in the country of Steve Drake, Frantz's first plan, which had taken many months in the fashioning, had progressed steadily. Once upon a time, he had sought to attach himself to Old Jim Flynn, render the services of which he was capable and profit therefrom, as most men profit. His impulse then had been rather delectable; he was willing to give value for what he received.

Then Kate Flynn had come to Good-Bye with her father. In the beginning she appeared to like him but her intuition had it that the man was not what he appeared to be on the surface, that he was not one, even, for her father to depend on.

When this became clear to Frantz, what decency had been in his character before was consumed by the fire of his greed and ruthlessness. Nothing remained for him in his relationship with the Flyns except gain.

But he did not betray himself in the beginning. He appeared to take his failure to win Kate's heart with as much grace as a man can. He pretended a continuing friendship with Polaris until his connections with rival timber owners were perfected. Then he had commenced his campaign to undermine Old Jim; had, by his land deals, drawn a strangling boundary of ownership around the outfit and, with so much accomplished, stepped into the open and sought to turn even the Flynn crew against the company.

Everything seemed to be going well. The arrival of the man for whom he was to form such an antipathetic hatred the success of that scheme. His hope of sending Jim Flynn to the oblivion to ruin so his holdings might go to add to that growing empire of timberlands which Frantz's principals desired was quickly cooled by the new signs of life about the job which followed the arrival of an outstanding leader.

This was had enough but, added to these other failures which could be laid only at the feet of the one who posed as a Flynn, was the item of his hold over Mary Wolf. When Steve Drake aided the girl in her departure from the squalid little farm home where she had been so conveniently located, Frantz was shaken by an urge for vengeance which knew no bounds.

He tried to kill, in a cowardly way, and failed. He tried blackmail, a coward's weapon, and failed again. At MacDonald's, because of his regard for the old Scot's nature, he was forced to stand by and see the last plan he had laid for personal gain go crashing down.

But he was no quitter, these Frantz! And when he read those telegrams, at Shoestrung, hope came to life again. Money was coming into the country; money in a quantity which was in itself disturbing to consider. But that money meant more than the possession of so many thousands. It renewed his faith that some day he would be the agent for a transaction involving the transfer of the much coveted MacDonald property.

He had unmasked Steve Drake for the Laird at the proper moment. If that option could be caused to lapse he felt certain that the eccentric Old Scot would refuse to renew a deal with one who had hoodwinked him or with a corporation which had had such a one in its service. So, the option must lapse.

Steve was in the store when McNally drove into the clearing. Mac had planned to spend the night at the last farmhouse between headquarters and town and Drake, after breakfast, had busied himself there to be present at the arrival.

But his mind was not wholly on that event, important though it was. It persisted in going back to an earlier incident of the day.

He had awakened as usual when the chorus of bird songs commenced to swell, dressed and stepped outside with an ejaculation of surprise, because Mary Wolf was seated on a log beside his threshold, elbows on knees, waiting with stolid patience, apparently for his appearance.

"Hullo, Mary! When and where'd you drop from?"

"Camp, Jus' now," she said.

"Something wrong?"—Has Frantz been after you again? I haven't seen him in days and I'd wondered about you."

"Nothing wrong, Franz don't come by our camp."

"Well, if nothing's wrong... What brings you here again, Mary?"

"You want me?" she asked so simply and directly that it quite took his breath.

"Want you? Why... What... That is, I don't know what you're driving at," he cried faintly.

The girl stirred slowly on the log. "My father, he die by'n'-bye," she said. "Not long, now. He gets worse. He breathes fast... So." She panted. "I should not go before he is dead. He is old; sick. At school they tol' us we should stay by old people. Take care of 'em. That is right. I do."

"But he die pretty soon. I can go. Young Jim," she said, "you treat me good. You are the only young man who ever treats me like you men say and do by white women. You are... you are... She hesitated, seeming to search for the proper word. Then, successful, spoke it with as much emphasis, it is likely as she had ever placed on an utterance. "You are kind."

Steve laughed, deeply embarrassed. "I say—what is so: you are kind. You live alone. I can cook good. They tol' me at school I can cook good. I not like some. Some girls don't work. Me, I work. My father die. I come here and cook for you. I do it all. Sweep, Wash, Sew. I be your girl."

Red swept into Steve's cheeks. She searched his face with a probing gaze, almost as a faithful dog might, expecting largess.

"When Old Jim come, I go away. When white girls come, I go away. When you go to town, me I stay by camp. I think everything when I got back and split cedar. What you say, Jim?"

Now, what did a man say to a proposal such as this?

Steve Drake said nothing at all. He had not a word at his command for that interval. In Mary's plan was nothing unclear, nothing offensive. It was childishly natural. He had been kind to her, probably the first man of his race and years whom she had known and who had not looked upon her as a creature of utility, and in her gratitude she was offering all that she possessed.

"Why, Mary," he began with a helpless feeling as he realized the futility of attempting to make her understand either how deeply her offer touched him or the impossibility of his acceptance. "You... I don't know what to say to make you know that I am your friend. But, even so, you can't come here and stay. Understand that? I can't have you here."

The Weather

An interesting statement from the weather bureau points out that abnormal weather tends to create more abnormal weather and this is especially true of the midwinter months of January-February and the mid-summer ones of June-July. This statement is based on facts gathered from records kept in several midwestern states over a long period of years. These meteorologists point out that a cold or stormy January is apt to have cold and storms predominating in February. An unusually hot or dry June will likely be followed by an exceptionally hot or dry July. In many states August has a tendency towards the abnormal weather. The sun rotates in a little less than a month, and this may cause a weather rhythm.

Last Word in Bridal Veilcraft

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

As TO lovely and chic bridal array for the late spring and the summer bride, fashion is positively lavish in offering suggestions which are entirely new and novel.

Pretty as a wedding dress may be, it is, after all, the veiling of the bride, together with the various little accessory items of adornment, which make or mar the picture. The wealth of ideas offered in both veils and head-dresses and accompanying fantasies is positively thrilling this season.

Time was when the bride-to-be bought yards and yards of tulle, depending on the magic touch of some good fairy who would appear at the last moment to adjust the veil to a point of enchantment. Of course this entailed endless worry and suspense and more times than not ended in keen disappointment.

However, in this present day of efficiency all this uncertainty as to the final touch to the veil has been done away with and a new order of procedure takes its place. The modern bride-to-be goes to the leading millinery department or her favorite shop and asks to be shown the latest and most fetching in bridal adornment.

The visions of loveliness which the salespeople will bring forth are enough to make the eyes of any prospective bride dance with joy. Think of it—the entire ensemble all thought out for you down to the last orange blossom bud.

One of the first items of news which will be imparted to the enquiring bride-to-be is that streamline effects are the last word in wedding veilcraft. Which means that there is going to be a symmetry, a very poetry of motion about the billowy masses of tulle which veil the springtime bride which will

LACE REAPPEARING IN VARIOUS HUES

You just can't keep a good fashion down. With spring dance frocks growing more feminine and alluring by the minute, lace was certain to stage a reappearance, after having been more or less out of the picture for winter.

A black frock, in one of the new cire or cord laces, is just about the most satisfactory evening frock that anyone can own. And a white lace dress, worn with bright colored slippers and accessories, is a fetching youthful fashion.

This spring, however, there is unusual emphasis on colored laces. French women are choosing navy blue lace over satin or taffeta slips, in place of black. Green lace, in lovely leafy shades, makes enchanting evening dresses. One very effective model is made with a trained skirt, fitted around the hips, and with soft fullness at the hemline. The bodice is made with a hip-length peplum, divided in front and shirred at the back to match the fullness in the back of the skirt.

Definite Leaning Toward Swagger Suits Observed

No one is going to put the American girl in uniform this spring. . . Suits are as varied as the weather, which gives room for practically a daily design.

There is a definite leaning toward the swagger suit, no doubt due to all this windblown talk which is effective. . . If it does sound a little chilly. . . These swaggers come in practically full length coats, frequently tent under the neck, but in bows, and ascot. The coats have the full sleeve, hang loosely and are not made to be wrapped around. Skirts have wide self-cloth belts and often the button which marks the belt closing is repeated on the blouse.

Sequin Stoles Appear

Long straight stole scarfs of sequins or lame are draped about the shoulders as an accompaniment to frocks of the same fabric.

What Women Want to Know About Fashions

Taffeta looms large in millinery. The note to strike is tailored, but keep it feminine. Feather tipped scarfs are something new for spring wear. After a deluge of rough tweeds, it's a relief to see Kasha-like fabrics for spring.

Midnight blue is favored by a number of smart Parisians for evening wear this season.

delight and satisfy all who behold. You see the idea conveyed in the exquisite lace-trimmed veil to the left in the picture—a model which is now showing in the better millinery establishments. Note that the veil is supported at the top of the close-fitting cap of Chantilly lace in coronet or tiara effect. Of course you have noted the huge lace rosettes, one at each side, which seem to have fluttered down into position on the sweep of real veils. They bring a message of glad news in regard to bridal veil styling for spring-summer, 1934.

And her flower buff! Flower buffs are the correct thing for the modern bride to carry. What's more, the bride's attendants will be carrying them, too, but in fresh springy colors which no word describes so perfectly as "delicious."

Here's something those seeking style hints should know. It is about cunning little flanged molded-to-shape face veils which brides are wearing—ever so flattering! Then, too, it is interesting to note that bridesmaids' hats are sporting tremendously wide brims of maline. These in a galaxy of springtime colorings are wonderfully picturesque and becoming. In some instances the bride's attendants are carrying quaint colonial bouquets with wide ruffles of maline encircling the prim cluster of rose flowers, the maline matching the wide maline brim of each hat.

And now this recital of lovely bridal fantasies must be brought to an end but not until we call attention to the resplendent Spanish lace veil on the bride pictured to the right. It is done in true Spanish mantilla effect.

WITH BOLERO

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A woman who keeps pace with the times cannot get by without at least one long-sleeved, floor-length dress which sets her apart from the daytime world of practical clothes, and stamps her as a lady of the new leisure. This gown of all-day crepe, the new rayon woven of tubize yarn acetate and tubize viscose yarn is in a new shade called orange bisque. Its simple flowery lines make it a dress of graceful and becoming dignity. Outstanding style points to remember include the bolero effect and the deep armhole sleeves, also the girde-tie of self fabric.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M. D.

Psoriasis Cured by Fat Free Diet

ONE of the skin ailments that discourages both parents and physician is psoriasis—white scaly patches like mortar on the skin which, when the scales are peeled off leave a bleeding surface.

Just what causes this ailment has never been discovered. By using arsenic internally (Fowler's solution) and ammoniated mercury on the scaly patches, most cases clear up in time, only to break out again perhaps in a few months.

That "nervousness" may be a factor is admitted by many skin specialists, as also is the possibility of some gland disturbance in the body.

Thus the manner in which the body processes handle some foods may be at fault, as leaving out certain foods from the diet has cleared up a number of cases.

Some research men have found that it is during the cold weather that this skin ailment gets worse, and point out that psoriasis does not exist in the tropics.

Dr. O. Grutz and M. Burger, Berlin, relate some of their studies which tend to show that the underlying cause of psoriasis is probably a disturbance in the way in which the body uses the fat foods—cream, butter, fat meat.

Psoriasis may be due to the blood vessels of the skin allowing too much fat to be poured out on the surface of the skin, or because the form in which the fat reaches the skin is so altered that irritation arises.

In any case as it is the fats that cause the trouble, cutting down on the fats should be good treatment. To prove this Doctors Grutz and Burger stopped all other forms of treatment in eleven cases, and simply omitted the fats in the diet.

What was the result? In four cases that had resisted all other forms of treatment, leaving out the fats in the diet resulted in a complete cure; in five cases considerable improvements were observed and two cases still being treated, likewise show improvement.

High Blood Pressure

IT HAS been carefully estimated that one in every 1,000 people die annually as a result of diseases associated with high blood pressure, yet all physicians know that certain patients may live many years in good health, despite well marked high blood pressure.

Why is it possible for some individuals with very high blood pressure to live to a good age whereas others live but a few years after the high blood pressure is discovered?

Dr. Edward J. Steglitz, in Illinois Medical Journal, states that the cause of high blood pressure is anything which injures or irritates the muscular wall of the blood vessel and thus causes these muscular or elastic fibers to contract more than the normal amount.

Now there are a number of things which will injure or irritate the blood vessel, therefore the treatment depends upon just what is causing the trouble in each particular case. As some of the causes can be removed or their effects lessened, and others cannot, you can see that some cases are likely to live for a long time and others live but a few years.

For instance something may be simply irritating the blood vessels, and its muscular walls tighten in an effort to overcome it, just as waste material from the food in the intestine irritates or stimulates the muscular walls of the intestine to tighten and thus push this waste outward and downward.

In this case there is no real damage being done to the wall of the blood vessel and when the irritating substance is removed, and no more, or at least very little is present, the blood pressure comes back to normal or near to the normal point.

If however the blood vessel is so injured or damaged that the muscle or elastic tissue is replaced by hard fibrous tissue then the blood pressure will be high and must continue to remain high.

The thought then is that where the elastic tissue of the vessels is simply being irritated causing a sort of spasm, then by removal of this irritation the blood pressure should be reduced and the life span be about normal. Infection from teeth, tonsils, gall bladder or intestine may be the cause.

But when the infection has lasted for some time and the elastic coat is damaged, nothing but careful living—mental and physical—is likely to preserve life.

The Hubbard Medal

The Hubbard medal is an award conferred by the National Geographic Society "in recognition of the services to mankind of those who labor to push back the horizons of geography." The medal takes its name from Gardner Greene Hubbard, the founder and first president of the society. Its exclusiveness is probably what gives the medal its chief distinction. It has been awarded only to Henry Amundsen, Gilbert, Shackleton, Stefansson, Bartlett, Byrd, Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh.

Spanish Women's Rights

As the Spanish constitution gives women equal rights with men, feminine bull fighters have reappeared in the arenas. Pretty Manolita Tulla and Maria Alegre each killed a pair of bulls at Alenteo with such dispatch that the applause entitled them to parade around the ring. About twenty-five years ago women bull fighters were fairly common. Then one was killed and several others were zored, so women matadors were banned. But that was under the monarchy, and times have changed.

EXPEDITION FINDS ANTIOCH HOUSE 1,600 YEARS OLD

Archaeologists have dug up a villa at Antioch that dates from 1,900 years ago. It has colonnades and mosaic pavements, along with domes decorated with colored glass and gold leaf. It was found at Daphne, or rather a suburb of that ancient place in Yako, a modern suburb of Antioch.

The discovery was made by the Princeton university expedition. There is in the suburb a huge circus or stadium, three times as large as Palmer stadium at Princeton, that seats 55,000, and lead and terra cotta pipes were found in place, along with a huge bath. All were built, it is surmised, in 67-66 B. C. by Quintus Marcus Rex, proconsul of Cilicia.

Antioch goes back to 800 years before Christ, and was named after Antiochus by his son. It was the ancient capital of the Greek kings of Syria, and was located on the Orontes, some twenty miles from the sea. Its port was Seleucia. It is frequently mentioned in the New Testament, and it was there that disciples of our Savior were first called Christians. Syria was first conquered by Pompey and later captured by the Persians and made a heap of ruins. It was restored by the Emperor Justinian in 538. In the Seventh century the Saracens took it and held it for 300 years. Now it is a poor town, manufacturing silks, leather and carpets, and producing goat's wool and beeswax.

Process of Elimination

The heavy man was trying to get to a vacant seat at the circus, "Pardon me," he said to a woman, "did I step on your foot?"

"Yes," she said after glancing at her ring. "All six elephants are still out there. You must have."

$1,000,000 SET FOR DIRECT AID TO STATE NEEDY

another $1,000,000 from the Federal Government as a direct grant and the total of $2,000,000 will be administered by the relief commission to be created by the act. The bill will contain a provision that this total is to be divided between Wilmington and each of the three counties, the allotments to be made on a basis of population and the relief needs in each subdivision as shown by the records of the present Temporary Emergency Relief Commission as to what has been expended in each county during the past year. The sums to be allowed Wilmington and the counties were not revealed today in advance of the introduction of the bill.

There will be nothing in the bill providing for the levying of any taxes to produce revenue with which to finance this bill and neither will there be anything to authorize a bond issue for this purpose. The committee has found that by diversion of school and highway funds the State can well afford to finance the program without recourse to any special tax or bond issue.

The bill will not contain the names of the relief commissioners because of the difficulty the members of the Legislature from all sections of the State are having in finding men willing to accept the post. Yesterday the Republicans and Democrats from Wilmington and each county held caucuses at which names were suggested but when these nominees were consulted last night and today practically every man declined to serve. This has left the legislators very much at a loss as to where they are going to get men to accept membership on the commission and it is admitted filling of these offices is going to be one of the biggest problems in the consideration of the bill.

M. P. CHURCH NEWS

Revival services will begin this Sunday evening and continue each night except Saturday for two weeks. The pastor will be assisted by brother ministers in some of the meetings. The following ministers have consented to preach the following evenings next week, and preachers for the second week will be announced later: Monday evening, Rev. J. F. Langrall, of Farmington; Tuesday evening, Rev. W. T. Archer, of Hobbs, Md.; Wednesday, Rev. W. F. Bauscher, of Dover; Thursday the pastor will preach, and Friday Rev. Herbert Hudgins, of Greenwood. You are cordially invited to hear these brethren.

The pastor will begin the series of meetings Sunday evening. His subject will be "The Wages of Sin." A great many people are dissatisfied with the wages paid them. Of all the wages paid, you would think that the wages paid a sinner would be the most discouraging. Are you satisfied, sinner, to go on? Do you want to learn about how you can better your lot? Hear this sermon.

The Sunday School and morning attendance contest ended last Sunday in a victory for the men. Anyone almost would have conceded victory to the women last Sunday, but they lost. The men certainly did work the last four weeks. They made as many points in those four weeks as they did the first seven. To the lead of 66, which the men had Sunday morning, they added 9 more, giving them a lead of 75 points as their margin of victory for the contest. In addition to the contest, there was quite a bit of rivalry as to who would have the largest offering. Sunday night when the offering was called for, the women reported $14.10. Then the men reported $14.25. Early Monday morning the women reported another dollar and the men 15 cents. Later in the week another dollar came in to add to the men's total. The final figures were $15.40 for the men and $15.10 for the women. The grand total for the whole school was $51.00. To all who gave, we say, "Thank you."

The program Sunday evening was very good. The Junior choir never did better. Those who worked and directed deserve much praise. We have much to be thankful for.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. E. B. Rash, next Wednesday afternoon at 2:30.
